24 And I separated twelve of the leaders of the priests—Sherebiah, Hashabiah, and ten of their brethren with them—

25 and weighed out to them the silver, gold, and the articles, the first fruits of the house of our God, which the king, his counselors, his princes, and all Israel who were present had offered. 26 I weighed into their hand six hundred and fifty talents of silver, silver articles weighing one hundred talents, one hundred talents of gold, twenty gold basins worth a thousand drachmas, and two vessels of fine polished bronze, precious as gold. 28 And I said to them, “You are holy to the Lord; the articles are holy also; and the silver and the gold are a freewill offering to the Lord God of your fathers.† 29 Watch and keep them until you weigh them before the leaders of the priests and the Levites and heads of the fathers’ houses of Israel in Jerusalem, in the chambers of the house of the Lord.” 30 So the priests and the Levites received the silver and the gold and the articles by weight, to bring them to Jerusalem to the house of our God.

The Return to Jerusalem

31 Then we departed from the river of Ahava on the twelfth day of the first month, to go to Jerusalem. And the hand of our God was upon us, and He delivered us from the hand of the enemy and from ambush along the road.†

32 So we came to Jerusalem and stayed there three days.

33 Now on the fourth day, the silver and the gold and the articles were weighed in the house of our God by the hand of Meremoth the son of Uriah the priest, and with him was Eleazar the son of Phinehas; with them were the Levites, Jozabad the son of Jeshua and Noadiah the son of Binnui, with the number and weight of everything. All the weight was written down at that time. The children of those who had been carried away captive, who had come from the captivity, offered burnt offerings to the God of Israel: twelve bulls for all Israel, ninety-six rams, seventy-seven lambs, and twelve male goats as a sin offering. All this was a burnt offering to the Lord.

And they delivered the king's orders to the king's satraps and the governors in the region beyond the River. So they gave support to the people and the house of God.

Intermarriage with Foreigners

When these things were done, the leaders came to me, saying, “The people of Israel and the priests and the Levites have not separated themselves from the people of the lands with respect to the abominations of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Moserites, and the Amorites. For they have taken some of their daughters as wives for themselves and their sons, so that the holy seed is mixed with the peoples of those lands. Indeed, the hand of the leaders and rulers has been foremost in this trespass.” So when I heard this thing, I tore my garment and my robe, and plucked out some of the hair of my head and beard, and sat down astonished. Then everyone who trembled at the words of the God of Israel assembled to me because of the transgression of those who had been carried away captive, and I sat astonished until the evening sacrifice.

At the evening sacrifice I arose from my fasting; and having torn my garment, I trembled and bowed down on my knees and spread out my hands unto the Lord God, and I said, “O Lord, I am too ashamed and embarrassed to lift up my face to You, for our iniquities have multiplied above our heads, and our guilt has grown up to heaven. Since the days of our fathers to this day we have been very guilty, and for our iniquities we, our kings, and our priests have been delivered into the hand of the kings of the lands, to the sword, to captivity, to plunder, and to humiliation, as it is this day. And now for a little while grace has been shown from the Lord our God to leave us a remnant to escape, and to give us a peg in His holy place, that our God may enlighten our eyes and give us a measure of revival in our bondage. For we are slaves. Yet our God did not forsake us in our bondage; but He extended mercy to us in the sight of the kings of Persia to revive us, to repair the house of our God, to rebuild its ruins, and to give us a wall in Judah and Jerusalem. 10 And now, O our God, what shall we say in response to this? For we have forsaken Your commandments, 11 which You gave us by Your servants the prophets, saying, ‘The land which you are entering to inherit for yourself is a changing land in the removal of the people of the lands for their abominations with which they filled it from one end to the other with their impurity.’ 12 Now therefore, do not give your daughters as wives for their sons, nor take their daughters to your sons; and never seek their peace or prosperity, that you may be strong and eat the good of the land, and leave it as an inheritance to your children forever.’

13 “And after all of this which has come against us for our evil deeds and our great trespasses, there is not anyone such as our God, for You have punished us less than our iniquities deserve, and have given us such deliverance as this, 14 even though we kept breaking Your commandments and intermarried with the people of the land. Do not be greatly upset with us to our utter destruction, to the point that there not be a remnant or survivor. 15 O Lord the God of Israel, You are righteous, for we remain, being preserved to this day. Behold, we are in Your presence in our trespasses, though it is not possible to stand in Your presence because of this!”

Confession of Sin for Intermarriage

And as Ezra prayed, and as he confessed, weeping and praying before the house of God, a very great assembly of men, women, and children gathered to him from Israel; for the people wept bitterly. 2 Shechaniah son of Jehiel, one of the sons of Elam, spoke up and said to Ezra, “We have broken the covenant with our God and have taken pagan wives from the peoples of the land, yet now there is hope for Israel in spite of this. 3 Now therefore, let us make a covenant with our God to put away all these wives and those who have been born to them, as you advise. Arise and alarm them with the commands of our God, and let it be done according to the law. 4 Arise, for this matter is your responsibility. We also are with you. Be of good courage, and do it.”

5 Then Ezra arose, and made the leaders of the priests, the Levites, and all Israel swear an oath that they would do according to this word. So they swore an oath. 6 Then Ezra rose up from in front of the house of God and went over to the treasury of Jehohanan the son of Eliashib and entered there. He ate no bread and drank no water when he arrived, for he mourned because of the unfaithfulness of those of the exile. 7 And they issued a proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem to all the descendants of the captivity that they must gather at Jerusalem, \(^8\) and that whoever would not come within three days, according to the instructions of the leaders and elders, all his property would be confiscated, and he himself would be separated from the assembly of those from the captivity.

\(^9\) So all the men of Judah and Benjamin gathered at Jerusalem within three days. It was the ninth month, on the twentieth of the month; and all the people sat in the open square of the house of God, trembling because of this matter and because of the weather. \(^10\) Then Ezra the priest stood up and said to them, “You have broken the covenant and taken pagan wives, adding to the guilt of Israel.\(^†\) \(^11\) Now therefore, give praise to the Lord God of your fathers, and do His will; separate yourselves from the peoples of the land and from the pagan wives.”

\(^12\) And all the assembly answered and said, “This word of yours is powerful upon us to do it. \(^13\) But there are many people; it is the season for heavy rain, and we are not able to stand outside. Nor is this the work of one or two days, for there are many of us who have transgressed in this matter. \(^14\) Please, let the leaders of our entire assembly stand; and let all those in our cities who have taken pagan wives come at appointed times, together with the elders and judges of their cities, until the fierce wrath of our God is turned away from us in this matter.”

\(^15\) Only Jonathan the son of Asahel and Jahaziah the son of Tikvah opposed this, and Meshullam and Shabbethai the Levite gave them support.

\(^16\) Then the descendants of the captivity did so. And Ezra the priest, with certain heads of the fathers’ households, were set apart by the fathers’ households, each of them by name; and they sat down on the first day of the tenth month to examine the matter. \(^17\) By the first day of the first month they finished questioning all the men who had taken pagan wives.

Interrmarriages Are Ended

\(^18\) And among the sons of the priests who had taken pagan wives, the following were found of the sons of Jeshua the son of Jozadak, and his brothers: Maaseiah, Eliezer, Jarib, and Gedaliah. \(^19\) And they gave their promise that they would put away their wives; and being guilty, they presented a ram of the flock as their trespass offering.\(^†\) \(^20\) Also of the sons of Immer: Hanani and Zebadiah; \(^21\) of the sons of Harim: Maaseiah, Elijah, Shemaiah, Jehiel, and Uzziah; \(^22\) of the sons of Pashhur: Elioenai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nethanel, Jozabad, and Elasah. \(^23\) Also of the Levites: Jozabad, Shimei, Kelaiah (the same is, Kelita), Pethahiah,
Judah, and Eliezer. 24 Also of the singers: Eliashib; and of the gatekeepers: Shallum, Telem, and Uri. 25 And others of Israel: of the sons of Parosh: Ramiah, Jeziiah, Malchiah, Mijamin, Eleazar, Asania, and Benaiah; 26 of the sons of Elam: Mattaniah, Zechariah, Jehiel, Abdi, Jeremoth, and Elia; 27 of the sons of Zattu: Elioenai, Eliashib, Mattaniah, Jeremoth, Zabad, and Aziza; 28 of the sons of Bebai: Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai, and Athlai; 29 of the sons of Bani: Meshullam, Malluch, Adaiah, Jashub, Sheal, and Ramoth; 30 of the sons of Pahath-Moab: Adna, Chelal, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattaniah, Bezalel, Binnui, and Manasseh; 31 of the sons of Harim: Eliezer, Ishijah, Malchijah, Shemaiah, Shimeon, 32 Benjamin, Malluch, and Shemariah; 33 of the sons of Hashum: Mattenai, Mattattah, Zabad, Eliphelet, Jeremai, Manasseh, and Shimei; 34 of the sons of Bani: Maadai, Amram, Uel, 35 Benaiah, Bedeiah, Cheluh, 36 Vaniah, Meremoth, Eliashib, 37 Mattaniah, Mattenai, Jaasai, 38 Bani, Binnui, Shimei, 39 Shelemiah, Nathan, Adaiah, 40 Machnadebai, Shashai, Sharai, 41 Azarel, Shelemiah, Shemariah, 42 Shallum, Amariah, and Joseph; 43 of the sons of Nebo: Jeiel, Mattithiah, Zebed, Zebina, Jaddai, Joel, and Benaiah. 44 All these had taken pagan wives, and some of them had wives by whom they had children.

The words of Nehemiah the son of Hachaliah.

It came to pass in the month of Chislev, in the twentieth year, as I was in Shushan the citadel,† that Hanani, one of my brothers, came with men from Judah; and I asked them concerning the Jews who had escaped, who had survived the captivity, and concerning
And they said to me, “The survivors who are left from the captivity in the province live there in great distress and reproach. The wall of Jerusalem is also broken down, and its gates are burned with fire.”

Nehemiah's Intercessory Prayer

So it was, when I heard these words, I sat down and wept, and I mourned for many days; I was fasting and praying before the God of heaven. And I said, “No indeed, O Lord, the mighty, the great and the awesome God of heaven, who keeps the covenant and mercy for those who love Him and who keep His commandments.

Let Your ear be attentive and Your eyes open, that You may hear the prayer of Your servant which I pray before You now, day and night, for the children of Israel, Your servants, and confess the sins of the children of Israel which we sinned against You. Both I and my father's house have sinned.

We have departed from You, and have not kept the commandments, the statutes, nor the ordinances which You commanded Your servant Moses.

Remember, I pray, the word You commanded Your servant Moses, saying, ‘If you are unfaithful, I will scatter you among the nations, but if you return to Me, and keep My commandments and do them, even if your dispersion be to the farthest part of heaven, yet I will gather them from there and bring them to the place which I have chosen as a dwelling for My name.’

Now these are Your servants and Your people, whom You have redeemed by Your great power and Your strong hand. Rather, O Lord, let Your ear be attentive to the prayer of Your servant and to the prayer of Your servants who desire to fear Your name; and let Your servant prosper today, I pray, and grant him mercy in the sight of this man.” (For I was cupbearer to the king.)

Nehemiah Is Sent to Judah

And it came to pass in the month Nisan, in the twentieth year of the reign of King Artaxerxes, when the wine was before me, that I took the wine and gave it to the king. There was no one else present before him. And the king said to me, “Why is your countenance sad, and why are you not self-controlled? This is nothing but sickness of the heart.” So I was greatly afraid.
Then I said to the king, “May the king live forever! Why should my face not be sad, when the city, the home of the tombs of my fathers, lies waste, and its gates destroyed by fire?”

Then the king said to me, “What is it that you request concerning this?” So I prayed to the God of heaven, and I said to the king, “If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor in your sight, send me to Judah, to the city of the tombs of my fathers, that I may rebuild it.”

Then the king (his queen sitting beside him) said to me, “How long will your journey be? And when will you return?” And my request found favor before the king, and he sent me, and I gave him a time. Then I said to the king, “If it pleases the king, let him give me letters for the governors beyond the River, that I may be given safe passage until I come to Judah, and also a letter to Asaph the keeper of the king's forest, that he may give me timber to make beams for the gates, and for the wall of the city, and for the house that I shall occupy.” And the king granted these to me as the good hand of God was upon me.

And I came to the governors beyond the River and gave them the king's letters. Now the king had sent captains of the army and horsemen with me. And for Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the Ammonite servant, it was distressing to them that a man had come to seek the well-being of the children of Israel.

Nehemiah Surveys Damage to the Wall.

So I came to Jerusalem and was there three days. Then I rose up in the night, I and a few men with me; I told no one what my God had put in my heart for me to do for Israel, nor was there any animal with me except the one on which I rode. And I went out by night through the Valley Gate to the mouth of the spring of the fig tree and to the Dung Gate. And I was viewing the wall of Jerusalem which they had broken down and its gates which they had destroyed by fire. Then I passed on to the Fountain Gate and went to the King's Pool, but there was no room for the animal I was riding to pass. So I went up to the wall by the brook at night and viewed the wall. Then I was at the Valley Gate, and I returned. The sentries did not know why I had gone or what I was doing. And I did not tell the Jews, the priests, the nobles, the officials, or the others doing the work until my return.

Then I said to them, “You see the distress we are in, how Jerusalem is laid waste and its gates are destroyed with fire. Come and let us rebuild the wall of Jerusalem, and we will no
18 And I told them of the hand of God which is good upon me, and also of the king's words that he had spoken to me. So I said, “Let us rise up and let us build!” And their hands were strengthened for good work.

19 But when Sanballat the Horonite, Tobiah the Ammonite servant, and Geshem the Arab heard of it, they laughed us to scorn and came to us and said, “What is this thing that you are doing? Are you rebelling against the king regarding this?”

20 So I answered and said to them, “The God of heaven will Himself prosper us; and we His servants are innocent and we will build, but you have no part or right or memorial in Jerusalem.”

The Builders of the Wall

3 Then Eliashib the high priest and his brothers the priests rose up and rebuilt the Sheep Gate. They consecrated it and hung its doors, and they sanctified it even as far as the Tower of the Hundred and to the Tower of Hananel.

2 Next to them, the men of Jericho rebuilt, and next to them the sons of Zaccur the son of Imri rebuilt.

3 The sons of Hassenaah built the Fish Gate; they laid its beams and hung its doors with its bolts and bars. 4 And next to them Meremoth the son of Uriah, the son of Hakkoz, made repairs. Next to them Meshullam the son of Berechiah, the son of Meshezabel, made repairs. Next to them Zadok son of Baana made repairs. 5 Next to them the Tekoites made repairs, but their nobles did not put their shoulders to the work.

6 Jehoiada the son of Paseah and Meshullam the son of Besodeiah repaired the Old Gate; they laid its beams and hung its doors along with its bolts and bars. 7 And next to them Melatiah the Gibeonite and Jadon the Meronothite and the men of Gibeon and Mizpah repaired the throne of the governor of the region beyond the River. 8 And next to them Hananiah the son of Rekem made repairs to the wall, and they fortified Jerusalem as far as the Broad Wall. 9 And next to them Rephaiah, leader of half the district of Jerusalem, made repairs. 10 Next to them Jedaiaiah the son of Harumaph made repairs in front of his house. And next to him Hattush the son of Hashabnah made repairs. 11 Malchijah the son of Harim and Hashub the son of Pahath-Moab repaired a second section as well as the Tower of the Ovens. 12 And next to him was Shallum the son of Halloesh, leader of half the district of Jerusalem; he and his daughters made repairs.
Hanun and the inhabitants of Zanoah repaired the Valley Gate. They built it, hung its doors with its bolts and bars, and repaired a thousand cubits of the wall as far as the Dung Gate. Malchijah the son of Rechab, leader of the district of Beth Haccerem, repaired the Dung Gate along with his sons. He built it and hung its doors with its bolts and bars, and they repaired the wall of the Pool of Shelah by the King's Garden, as far as the stairs that go down from the City of David. After him Nehemiah the son of Azbuk, leader of half the district of Beth Zur, made repairs as far as the place in front of the tomb of David, to the manmade pool, and as far as the House of the Mighty. After him the Levites, under Rehum the son of Bani, made repairs. Next to him Hashabiah, leader of half the district of Keilah, made repairs for his district. After him their brothers, under Bavai the son of Henadad, leader of half the district of Keilah, made repairs. And next to him Ezer the son of Jeshua, the leader of Mizpah, repaired another section in front of the Ascent to the Armory at the buttress. After him Baruch the son of Zabbai repaired the other section, from the buttress to the door of the house of Eliashib the high priest. After him Meremoth the son of Urijah, the son of Koz, repaired another section, from the door of the house of Eliashib to the end of the house of Eliashib. And after him the priests, the men of Achechar, made repairs. After him Benjamin and Hasshub made repairs by their house. After them Azariah the son of Maaseiah, the son of Ananiah, made repairs by his house. After him Binnui the son of Henadad repaired another section, from the house of Azariah to the buttress, even as far as the corner. Palal the son of Uzai made repairs opposite the buttress and on the tower that projects from the king's upper house by the court of the prison. After him Pedaiyah the son of Parosh made repairs. And the Nethinim who dwelt in Ophel made repairs as far as the place of the Water Gate toward the east, and on to the projecting tower. After them the Tekoites repaired a second section, next to the great projecting tower and as far as the wall of Ophel.

Beyond the Horse Gate the priests made repairs, each in front of his own house. After them Zadok the son of Immer made repairs in front of his own house. After him Shemaiah the son of Shechaniah, the keeper of the East Gate, made repairs. After him Hananiah the son of Shelemiah and Hanun, the sixth son of Zalaph, repaired another section. After him Meshullam the son of Berechiah made repairs in front of his dwelling. After him Malchijah the son of Saraphi made repairs as far as the house of the Nethinim and of the merchants, in front of the Miphkad Gate, and as far as the upper chamber at the corner. And between the upper chamber to the corner and the Sheep Gate, the bronze workers and the merchants made repairs.

The Workers Are Ridiculed.

33Now it came to pass, when Sanballat heard we were rebuilding the wall, he was distressed, and he was furious and was mocking the Jews.‡ 34And before his brothers and the army of Samaria he asked, “These Jews are rebuilding their city?” 35And Tobiah the Ammonite, who was with him, said to them, “Surely they will not sacrifice or eat in this place of theirs, will they? For even if a fox goes up on it, will it not break down their stone wall?”

36Hear, O our God, for we have become a scorn. Return this reproach of theirs upon their own head, and make them a scorn in a land of captivity.‡ 37Do not cover their lawlessness.

Conspiracy against Jerusalem

4Now it happened that when Sanballat, Tobiah, the Arabs, and the Ammonites heard that the rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem was progressing and the gaping holes were being filled in, a great evil came over them.‡ 2For they all conspired together to come and attack Jerusalem. 3And we prayed to our God and set watchmen to observe their presence day and night.

4Then Judah said, “The strength of the enemy is broken, but there is so much rubbish that we will be unable to do work on the wall.” 5And our adversaries said, “They will neither know nor see anything till we come into their midst and kill them and cause this work to cease.” 6And so it was that the Jews, the ones dwelling near them, came and said to us, “They are coming up against us from all sides.” 7Therefore I positioned men behind the lower parts of the wall in the sheltered areas, and I positioned the people by families with their swords, their spears, and their bows.‡ 8And I looked and arose and said to the nobles, to the leaders, and to the rest of the people, “Do not be afraid of them. Remember our God, great and awesome, and fight for your brethren, your sons, your daughters, your wives, and your houses.”

9And when our enemies heard their plan was known to us, and that God brought their plot to nothing, we returned, all of us, to the wall, each man to his own work. 10So it was from that day forward, half of them did the work, and half of them took up defensive positions with spears, shields, bows, and breastplates. The rulers stood with the entire house of Judah.†

Those who built on the wall and those who carried burdens loaded themselves in such a way that with one hand they held a weapon, and with the other hand they did the work. Every one of the builders, as he built, had his sword girded at his side, while next to him was the one who sounded the trumpet.

Then I said to the nobles, the rulers, and the rest of the people, “The work is great and extensive, and we are scattered across the entire wall, each man far from his brother.†

Therefore, wherever you are, when you hear the sound of the trumpet, rally together to meet us there. Our God will fight for us.”

So we labored in the work while the other half of the men held spears from daybreak until the stars appeared. And at that time I said to the people, “Spend the night within the midst of Jerusalem; let the night be a guard for you, and let the day be for work.” And I was there along with the watchmen behind me, and there was not one man of us who removed his clothing.

Internal Strife

Now there was a great outcry of the people and their wives against their Jewish brothers.†

For there were those who said, “We, our sons and our daughters are many; therefore let us get grain, that we may eat and live.” There were even some who said, “We pledged our lands and vineyards, even our houses, that we might receive grain and be able to eat.” Some even said, “We borrowed money for the king's tax, pledging our lands and vineyards. Yet now our flesh is as the flesh of our brothers, our children as their children; and indeed we are forcing our sons and our daughters to be slaves, and some of our daughters have been brought into slavery. It is not in our power to redeem them, for other men have our lands and vineyards.”

And I became very angry when I heard their outcry and these words. After serious thought, I rebuked the nobles and rulers and said to them, “Each of you is exacting usury from his brother.” So I called a great assembly against them. And I said to them, “According to our ability we have redeemed our Jewish brothers who were sold to the nations. Now indeed, will you even sell your brothers? Or should they be sold to us?” Then they were silenced and found nothing to say.
Then I said, “What you are doing is not good. Should you not walk in the fear of our God because of the reproach of the nations, our enemies? 10 I also, with my brothers and my servants, am lending them money and grain. Please, let us stop this usury! 11 Restore now to them, even this day, their lands, their vineyards, their olive groves, and their houses, also a hundredth of the money and the grain, the new wine, and the oil that you have charged them.” 12 So they said, “We will restore it and will require nothing from them; we will do as you say.” So I called the priests and required an oath from them that they would do according to this promise. 13 Then I shook out the fold of my garment and said, “So may God shake out each man from his house and from his property who does not perform this promise. Even thus may he be shaken out and emptied.” And all the assembly said, “Amen!” and praised the Lord. Then the people did according to this promise.

Nehemiah's Unselfishness

Moreover, from the time that I was appointed to be their governor in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year until the thirty-second year of King Artaxerxes, twelve years, neither I nor my brothers ate the governor's provisions. 15 But the former governors who were before me laid burdens on the people and took from them bread and wine, besides forty shekels of silver. Yes, even the outcasts bore rule over the people, but I did not do so because of the fear of God. 16 Indeed, I also continued the work on this wall, and we did not buy any land. All my servants were gathered there for the work. 17 And at my table were one hundred and fifty Jews and rulers, besides those who came to us from the nations around us. 18 Now that which was prepared daily was one ox and six choice sheep. Also fowl were prepared for me, and once every ten days an abundance of all kinds of wine. Yet in spite of this I did not demand the governor's provisions, because the bondage was heavy on this people. 19 Remember me, my God, for good, according to all that I have done for this people.

The Opposition Intensifies

Now it happened when Sanballat, Tobiah, and Geshem the Arab, and the rest of our enemies heard that I had rebuilt the wall, and that no gaps remained in the wall (though at the time I had not hung the doors in the gates), 2 Sanballat and Geshem sent a letter to me, saying, “Come, let us meet among the villages in the plain of Ono.” But they were plotting to do harm to me. 3 So I sent messengers to them, saying, “I am doing so great a work that I... cannot come down. Why should the work cease? As soon as I finish it I will come down to you.”

And they sent me the same message again, and I answered them in the same manner.

Then Sanballat sent his servant to me as before, with an open letter in his hand.†

In it was written:

It is reported among the nations that you and the Jews plan to rebel; therefore, according to these rumors, you are rebuilding the wall that you may be their king. ‡And you have also appointed prophets to proclaim concerning you at Jerusalem, saying, “There is a king in Judah!” Now these matters will be reported to the king. So come, therefore, and let us consult together.‡

8 Then I sent to him, saying, “No such things as you say are being done, but in your own heart you invent them.” 9 For they all were trying to make us afraid, saying, “Their hands will be weakened in the work, and the work will not be done.” Now, therefore, I have strengthened my hands.†

10 Afterward I came into the house of Shemaiah the son of Delaiah, the son of Mehetabel, and he, being distressed, said, “Let us meet together in the house of God, within the temple, and let us close the door of the temple, for they are coming to kill you; indeed at night they are coming to kill you.” †11 And I said, “Who is the man that shall enter the house in order to live?” 12 Then I perceived that God had not sent him at all, but that he pronounced this prophecy against me because Tobiah and Sanballat had hired him. 13 For this reason he was hired, that I should be afraid and act that way and sin, so that they might have cause for an evil report that they might reproach me.

14 My God, remember Tobiah and Sanballat according to these their works, and the prophetess Noadiah and the rest of the prophets who would have made me afraid.

†The Wall Is Completed.

15 So the wall was finished on the twenty-fifth day of Elul, in fifty-two days. †16 And it happened, when all our enemies heard of it, and all the nations around us saw these things, that they were very disheartened in their own eyes; for they perceived that this work was done by our God.

17 Also in those days the nobles of Judah sent many letters to Tobiah, and the letters of Tobiah came to them. For many in Judah were pledged to him because he was the son-in-law of Shechaniah the son of Arah, and his son Jehohanan had married the daughter of Meshullam the son of Berechiah. Also they reported his good deeds before me and reported my words to him. Tobiah sent letters to frighten me.

Then it was, when the wall was built and I had hung the doors, when the gatekeepers, the singers, and the Levites had been appointed, I gave charge of Jerusalem to my brother Hanani, for he was a faithful man and feared God more than many, along with Hananiah the leader of the citadel. And I said to them, “Do not let the gates of Jerusalem be opened until the sun is hot; and while they stand guard, let them shut and bar the doors; and appoint guards from among the inhabitants of Jerusalem, one at his watch station and another in front of his own house.”

Those Who Returned from Captivity

Now the city was large and spacious, but the people in it were few, and the houses were not rebuilt. Then my God put it into my heart to gather the nobles, the rulers, and the people that they might be registered by genealogy. And I found a register of the genealogy of those who had come up in the first return and found written in it:

These are the people of the province who came back from the captivity, of those who had been carried away, whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried away, and who returned to Jerusalem and Judah, everyone to his city. Those with Zerubbabel, not only Jeshua, but also Nehemiah, Azariah, Raaemia, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Ezra, Bigvai, Nehum, Baanah, and Masphar, men of the people of Israel; the children of Parosh, two thousand one hundred and seventy-two; the children of Shephatiah, three hundred and seventy-two; the children of Arah, six hundred and fifty-two; the children of Pahath-Moab, of the sons of Jeshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred and eighteen; the children of Elam, one thousand two hundred and fifty-four; the children of Zattu, eight hundred and forty-five; the children of Zaccai, seven hundred and sixty; the children of Binnui, six hundred and forty-eight; the sons of Bebai, six hundred and twenty-eight; the children of Azgad, two thousand three hundred and twenty-two; the children of Adonikam, six hundred and sixty-seven; the children of Bigvai, two thousand and sixty-seven; the children of Adin, six hundred and fifty-five; the children of Ater of Hezekiah, the children of Hashum, three hundred and twenty-eight; the children of Bezai, three hundred and twenty-four; the children of Hariph, one hundred and twelve; the sons of Gibeon, ninety-five; the children of Bethlehem, one hundred and twenty-three, and Netophah, fifty-six; the children of Anathoth, one hundred and twenty-eight; the children of Beth Azmaveth, forty-two; the children of Kirjath Jearim, Chephirah, and Beeroth, seven hundred and forty-three; the men of Ramah and Geba, six hundred and twenty-one; the men of Michmas, one hundred and twenty-two; the men of Bethel and Ai, one hundred and twenty-three; the men of Nebo, fifty-two; the sons of Elam, one thousand two hundred and fifty-four; the children of Harim, three hundred and twenty; the sons of Jericho, three hundred and forty-five; the children of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, seven hundred and twenty-one; the children of Senaah, three thousand nine hundred and thirty.

The priests: the sons of Jedaiah of the house of Jeshua, nine hundred and seventy-three; the sons of Immer, one thousand and fifty-two; the sons of Pashhur, one thousand two hundred and forty-seven; the sons of Harim were one thousand and seventeen.

The Levites: the sons of Jeshua, of the house of Kadmiel, and of the sons of Hodevah, seventy-four. The singers: the children of Asaph, one hundred and forty-eight. The gatekeepers: the children of Shallum, the sons of Ater, the children of Talmon, the sons of Akkub, the children of Hatita, the sons of Shobai, one hundred and thirty-eight.

children of Perida, the children of Jaala, the children of Darkon, the children of Giddel, the children of Shephatiah, the children of Hattil, the children of Pochereth of Zebaim, and the children of Amon. All the Nethinim and the children of Solomon's servants were three hundred ninety-two.

And these were the ones who came up from Tel Melah, Tel Harsha, Cherub, Addon, and Immer, but they could not identify their father's house nor their lineage, whether they were of Israel: the sons of Delaiah, the sons of Tobiah, the sons of Nekoda, six hundred forty-two.

And of the priests: the sons of Habaiah, the sons of Koz, the sons of Barzillai, who took a wife of the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite and was called by their name. These sought their listing among those who were registered by genealogy, but it was not found; therefore they were excluded from the priesthood as defiled. And the governor said to them that they should not eat of the most holy things until a priest could consult with the Urim and Thummim.

Altogether the whole assembly was forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty, besides their male and female servants, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred and thirty-seven; and they had two hundred and forty-five men and women singers. Their horses were seven hundred and thirty-six, their mules two hundred and forty-five, their camels four hundred and thirty-five, and donkeys six thousand seven hundred and twenty.

Some of the heads of the fathers’ houses gave to the work of Nehemiah for the treasury one thousand gold drachmas, fifty basins, and thirty priestly garments. Some of the heads of the fathers’ houses gave to the treasury of the work twenty thousand gold drachmas and two thousand two hundred silver minas. And that which the rest of the people gave was twenty thousand gold drachmas, two thousand two hundred silver minas, and sixty-seven priestly garments.

So the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, some of the people, the Nethinim, and all Israel dwelt in their cities. When the seventh month came, the sons of Israel were in their cities.

The People Hear the Law
Now all the people gathered together as one man in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate; and they told Ezra the scribe to bring the Book of the Law of Moses, which the Lord had commanded Israel.

So Ezra the priest brought the Law before the assembly of men and women and all who could hear with understanding on the first day of the seventh month. Then he read from it in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate from morning until midday, before the men and women and those who could understand; and the ears of all the people were attentive to the Book of the Law.

So Ezra the scribe stood on a platform of wood which they had made for the purpose; and beside him, at his right hand, stood Mattithiah, Shema, Anaiah, Urijah, Hilkiah, and Maaseiah; and at his left hand Pedaiah, Mishael, Malchijah, Hashum, Hashbadana, Zechariah, and Meshullam. And Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the people, for he was standing above all the people; and when he opened it, all the people stood up. And Ezra blessed the Lord, the great God. Then all the people answered, “Amen, amen!” while lifting up their hands. And they bowed their heads and worshiped the Lord with their faces to the ground. Also Jeshua, Bani, Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodijah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, and the Levites helped the people to understand the Law; and the people stood in their place.

So they read distinctly from the book in the Law of God; and they gave the sense and helped them to understand the reading.

Then Nehemiah, who was the governor, Ezra the priest and scribe, and the Levites who taught the people said to all the people, “This day is holy to the Lord your God; do not mourn nor weep.” For all the people wept when they heard the words of the Law. So he said to them, “Go your way, eat the fat, drink the sweet, and send portions to those for whom nothing is prepared; for this day is holy to our Lord. Do not sorrow, for the joy of the Lord is your strength.” Thus the Levites quieted all the people, saying, “Be still, for the day is holy; do not be grieved.” And all the people went their way to eat and drink, to send portions and rejoice greatly, because they understood the words that were declared to them.

Feast of Booths Restored

Now on the second day the heads of the fathers’ houses of all the people, with the priests and Levites, were gathered to Ezra the scribe in order to understand the words of the Law. And they found written in the Law which the Lord had commanded by Moses that the sons of Israel should dwell in booths during the feast of the seventh month, and that they should announce and proclaim in all their cities and in Jerusalem. And Ezra said, “Go out to the mountain and bring olive branches, branches of oil trees, myrtle branches, palm branches, and branches of leafy trees to make booths, as it is written.”

16 Then the people went out and brought them and made themselves booths, each one on the roof of his house, or in their courtyards or the courts of the house of God, and in the open square of the Water Gate and in the open square of the Gate of Ephraim. 17 So the whole assembly of those who had returned from the captivity made booths and sat under the booths; for since the days of Joshua the son of Nun until that day the sons of Israel had not done so. And there was very great gladness. 18 Also day by day, from the first day until the last day, he read from the Book of the Law of God. And they kept the feast seven days; and on the eighth day there was a sacred assembly, according to the prescribed manner.†

The Worshipers Confess Their Sins

9 Now on the twenty-fourth day of this month, the sons of Israel were assembled with fasting, in sackcloth, and with dust on their heads.‡ 2 Then those of Israelite lineage separated themselves from all foreigners; and they stood and confessed their sins and the iniquities of their fathers. 3 And they stood in their place and read from the Book of the Law of the Lord their God, and they were confessing to the Lord and worshiping the Lord their God. 4 Then Jeshua, Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani stood on the stairs of the Levites and cried out with a loud voice to the Lord their God.

5 And the Levites, Jeshua, Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabniah, Sherebiah, Hodijah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah, said, “Stand up and bless the Lord your God forever and ever! Blessed be Your glorious name, which is exalted above all blessing and praise!”

Confession of the Sins of Israel

6 And Ezra said, “You are the only Lord. You have made heaven, the heaven of heavens, with all their host, the earth and everything on it, the seas and all that is in them. You give life to all, and the host of heaven worships You.‡ 7 You are the Lord God who chose Abram and brought him out of the land of the Chaldeans, and gave him the name Abraham. 8 You found his heart faithful before You and made a covenant with him to give the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, and the Girgashites—to give it to his descendants. You fulfilled Your words, for You are righteous.
“You saw the affliction of our fathers in Egypt and heard their cry by the Red Sea. And in Egypt You showed signs against Pharaoh, against all his servants, and against all the people of his land. For You knew that they acted proudly against them. So You made a name for Yourself as it is this day. And You divided the sea before them, so that they went through the midst of the sea on dry land; and their persecutors You threw into the deep, as a stone into the mighty waters. Moreover You led them by day with a cloudy pillar, and by night with a pillar of fire, to give them light on the road which they should travel.

You came down also on Mount Sinai and spoke with them from heaven. You gave to them just ordinances and true laws, good commandments and precepts. You made known to them Your holy Sabbath and commanded them statutes and commandments and the Law by the hand of your servant Moses. You gave them bread from heaven for their hunger and brought them water out of a rock for their thirst. You told them to go in to possess the land which You had sworn to give to them. But they and our fathers acted proudly, hardened their necks, and did not heed Your commandments. They refused to obey, and they were not mindful of Your wonders that You did among them. But they hardened their necks, and they appointed a leader to return to their bondage in Egypt. But You are God, gracious and compassionate, long-suffering, abundant in kindness, and did not forsake them.

Even when they made a molded calf for themselves and said, ‘These are the gods that brought us up out of Egypt,’ and worked great provocations, yet in Your manifold mercies You did not forsake them in the wilderness. The pillar of the cloud did not depart from them by day to lead them on the road; nor the pillar of fire by night to show them light and the way they should go. You gave Your good Spirit to instruct them, and did not withhold Your manna from their mouth, and gave them water for their thirst. Forty years You sustained them in the wilderness; they lacked nothing; their clothes did not wear out and their feet did not swell.

Moreover You gave to them kingdoms and You divided nations to them. So they took possession of the land of Sihon, the land of the king of Heshbon, and the land of Og king of Bashan. You also multiplied their children as the stars of heaven and brought them into the land which You had told their fathers to go in and possess. You subdued before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and gave them into their hands, with their kings and the people of the land, that they might do with them as they wished. And they took strong cities and possessed houses full of all goods, cisterns already dug, vineyards, olive groves, and fruit trees in abundance. So they ate and were filled, and grew fat, and delighted themselves in Your great goodness.

26“Nevertheless, they were disobedient and rebelled against You, cast Your law behind their backs, and killed Your prophets, who testified against them to turn them to You, and they worked great provocations. 27Therefore You delivered them into the hand of their enemies, who oppressed them; and in the time of their trouble, when they cried to You, You heard from Your heaven; and according to Your abundant mercies, You gave them deliverers who saved them from the hand of their enemies.

28“But after they had rest, they again did evil before You. Therefore You left them in the hands of their enemies so that they had dominion over them. Yet again they cried out to You, You heard from heaven; and You delivered them according to the multitude of Your mercies, and testified against them, that You might bring them back to Your Law. Yet they did not heed Your commandments, but sinned against Your judgments, ‘which if a man does, he shall live by them.’ But they stubbornly turned their backs, stiffened their necks, and would not hear. 30Yet for many years You had patience with them and testified against them by Your Spirit in Your prophets. Yet they would not listen; therefore You gave them into the hand of the peoples of the lands. 31Nevertheless in Your great mercy, You did not utterly consume them nor forsake them; for You are mighty and gracious and merciful.

32“Now therefore, our God, the great, the mighty, the powerful and awesome God, who keep Your covenant and Your mercy: do not let all the trouble seem small before You that has come upon us, our kings and our princes, our priests and our prophets, our fathers and all Your people, from the days of the kings of Assyria until this day. 33However, You are just in all that has befallen us; for You have dealt faithfully, but we have done wickedly. 34Neither our kings nor our princes, our priests nor our fathers, have kept Your Law, nor heeded Your commandments and Your testimonies with which You testified against them. 35For they have not served You in their kingdom, or in the many good things that You gave them, or in the large and rich land which You set before them; nor did they turn from their wicked works.

36“Behold! We are slaves today! And the land which You gave to our fathers to eat its fruit and its bounty, here we are, servants in it! 37And it yields much increase to the kings You have set over us because of our sins; also they have dominion over our bodies and our cattle at their pleasure; and we are in great distress. \(38\) And because of all this, we make a sure covenant and write it; and all our rulers, our Levites, and our priests seal it.”

**Those Who Signed the Covenant**

**The Covenant Which Was Sealed**

And the rest of the people—the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, the Nethinim, and all those separating from the peoples of the land to the Law of God, their wives, their sons, and their daughters, everyone who had knowledge and understanding—these, joining with their brothers, bound themselves with a curse and entered into a curse and an oath to walk in God's Law which was given by Moses the servant of God, and to observe and do all the commandments of our Lord and His statutes: not to give our daughters as wives to the peoples of the land, nor take their daughters for our sons; and if the peoples of the land brought wares to sell on the Sabbath day, we would not buy from them on the Sabbath or on a holy day; and we would forgo the seventh year's produce and the exacting of every debt. Also we will make ordinances for ourselves to exact from ourselves yearly one-third of a shekel for the service of the house of our God: for the showbread, for the regular grain offering, for the regular burnt offering of the Sabbaths, the New Moons, and the set feasts; for the holy things, for the sin offerings to make atonement for Israel, and all the work of the house of our God. We—the priests, the Levites, and the people—cast lots for bringing the wood offering into the house of our God according to our fathers’ houses, at the appointed times year by year, to burn on the altar of the Lord our God as it is written in the Law. 35 And we made ordinances to bring the firstfruits of our ground and the firstfruits of all fruit of all trees, year by year, to the house of the Lord; 36 to bring the firstborn of our sons and our cattle, as it is written in the Law, and the firstborn of our herds and our flocks to the house of our God, to the priests who minister in the house of our God; 37 to bring the firstfruits of our grain, the fruit from all kinds of trees, the new wine and oil to the priests, to the storerooms of the house of our God; and to bring the tithes of our land to the Levites, for the Levites should receive the tithes in all the cities of our servitude. 38 And the priest, the descendant of Aaron, shall be with the Levites when the Levites receive tithes; and the Levites shall bring up a tenth of the tithes to the house of our God, to the rooms of the storehouse. 39 For the children of Israel and the children of Levi shall bring the offering of the grain, of the new wine and the oil to the storerooms where the articles of the sanctuary are, where the priests who minister and the gatekeepers and the singers are; and we will not neglect the house of our God.†

The People in Jerusalem

11 Now the leaders of the people dwelt at Jerusalem; the rest of the people cast lots to bring one out of ten to dwell in Jerusalem, the holy city, and nine-tenths were to dwell in other cities. † 2 And the people blessed all the men who willingly offered themselves to dwell at Jerusalem.

3 These are the heads of the province who dwelt in Jerusalem. (But in the cities of Judah, everyone dwelt in his possession in their cities—Israelites, the priests, and the Levites, the Nethinim, and the descendants of Solomon's servants.) † 4 Also in Jerusalem there dwelt some of the children of Judah and of the children of Benjamin.

Of the children of Judah: Athaiah the son of Uzziah, the son of Zechariah, the son of Amariah, the son of Shephatiah, the son of Mahalalel, of the children of Perez; 5 and Maaseiah the son of Baruch, the son of Col-Hozeh, the son of Hazaiah, the son of Adaiah, the son of Joiarib, the son of Theziah, the son of Shiloni. 6 All the sons of Perez who dwelt at Jerusalem were four hundred sixty-eight valiant men.

7 And these are the children of Benjamin: Sallu the son of Meshullam, the son of Joed, the son of Pedaijah, the son of Kolai, the son of Maaseiah, the son of Ithiel, the son of Jeshaiah;

8 and after him Gabbai and Sallai, nine hundred twenty-eight. 9 Joel the son of Zichri was their overseer, and Judah the son of Asana was second over the city.

10 Of the priests: Jedaiah the son of Joiairib, and Jachin; 11 Seraiah the son of Hilkia, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub, was the leader of the house of God. 12 Their brethren who did the work of the house were eight hundred and twenty-two; and Adaiah the son of Jeroham, the son of Pelaliah, the son of Amzi, the son of Zechariah, the son of Pashhur, the son of Malchijah, 13 and his brethren, heads of the fathers’ houses, were two hundred and forty-two; and Amashai the son of Azarel, the son of Ahzai, the son of Meshillemoth, the son of Immer, 14 and their brethren, mighty men of valor, were one hundred and twenty-eight. Their overseer was Zabdiel, the son of one of the great men.

15 Also of the Levites: Shemaiah the son of Hasshub, the son of Azrikam, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Bunni; 16 Mattaniah the son of Micha, the son of Zabdi, the son of Asaph, the leader who began the thanksgiving with prayer; Bakbukiah, the second among his brethren; and Abda the son of Shammua, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun. 17 All the Levites in the holy city were two hundred and eighty-four.

18 Moreover the gatekeepers, Akkub, Talmon, and their brothers who kept the gates, were one hundred and seventy-two. 19 Also the overseer of the Levites was Uzzi the son of Bani, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Micha, of the sons of Asaph, the singers in charge of the service of the house of God. 20 For it was the king’s command concerning them that a certain portion should be for the singers, a quota day by day. 21 Pethahiah the son of Meshezabel, of the children of Zerah the son of Judah, was the king’s deputy in all matters concerning the people.

Those Outside Jerusalem

22 With regard to the villages within their rural districts, some of the children of Judah dwelt in Kirjath Arba and 23 in Jeshua, 24 and in Beersheba, 25 and their villages, and Azekah and its villages; and they set up tents in Beersheba. 26 The children of Benjamin dwelt around Geba of Michmas, 27 and some of the Levites of Judah were in Benjamin.

The Priests and Levites
Now these are the priests and the Levites who came up with Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Jeshua: Seraiah, Jeremiah, Ezra, Amariah, Malluch, Hattush, Shechaniah, Sallu, Amok, Hilkiiah, and Jedaiah. These were the heads of the priests and their brothers in the days of Jeshua.

Moreover the Levites were Jeshua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and Mattaniah who led the thanksgiving psalms, he and his brothers. Also Bakbukiah and Unni, their brothers, stood across from them in their duties.

Now in the days of Joiakim, the priests, the heads of the fathers’ houses, were: of Seraiah, Meraiah; of Jeremiah, Hananiah; of Ezra, Meshullam; of Amariah, Jehohanan; of Melichu, Jonathan; of Shebaniah, Joseph; of Harim, Adna; of Meraioth, Helkai; of Iddo, Zechariah; of Ginnethon, Meshullam; of Abijah, Zichri, the son of Minjamin; of Moadiah, Piltai; of Bilgah, Shammua; of Shemaiah, Jehonathan; of Joiarib, Mattenai; of Jedaiah, Uzzi; of Sallai, Kallai; of Amok, Eber; of Hilkiiah, Hashabiah; and of Jedaiah, Nethanel.

The Levites in the days of Eliashib, Joida, Jaddusa and Joanan, and Idua, were being recorded as heads of families, even those priests within the kingdom of Darius of Persia. The sons of Levi, heads of the families until the days of Johanan the son of Eliashib, were written in the Book of the Chronicles. And the leaders of the Levites were Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua the son of Kadmiel. With their brothers across from them, they offered praise and gave thanks, each group alternating with the other, according to the command of David the man of God.

Mattaniah, Bakbukiah, Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, and Akkub were gatekeepers keeping the watch at the storerooms of the gates. These lived in the days of Joiakim the son of Jeshua, the son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah the governor, and of Ezra the priest, the scribe.

Dedication of the Wall

Now at the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem, they sought out the Levites in all their places in order to bring them to Jerusalem to celebrate the dedication with gladness, with thanksgivings and singing, and with cymbals, stringed instruments, and harps. 25And the sons of the singers gathered together from the countryside around Jerusalem, and from the villages of the Netophathites, 26from the house of Gilgal, and from the fields of Geba and Azmaveth. For the singers had built villages for themselves all around Jerusalem. 27The priests and Levites purified themselves, and then purified the people, the gates, and the wall.

28So I brought the leaders of Judah up on the wall and appointed two large thanksgiving choirs. One went to the right hand on the wall toward the Refuse Gate. 29After them went Hoshiaiah and half the leaders of Judah, 30and Azariah, Ezra, Meshullam, 31Judah, Benjamin, Shemaiah, Jeremiah, 32and some of the priests’ sons with trumpets—Zechariah the son of Jonathan, the son of Shemaiah, the son of Mattaniah, the son of Michaiah, the son of Zaccur, the son of Asaph, 33and his brothers, Shemaiah, Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethanel, Judah, and Hanani, with the musical instruments of David the man of God. Ezra the scribe went before them. 34By the Fountain Gate, in front of them, they went up the stairs of the City of David, on the stairway of the wall, beyond the house of David as far as the Water Gate eastward.

Temple Appointees

And at the same time some were appointed over the rooms of the storehouse for the offerings, the firstfruits, and the tithes, to gather into them from the fields of the cities the portions specified by the Law for the priests and Levites; for Judah rejoiced over the priests and Levites who ministered.†

Both the singers and the gatekeepers kept the charge of their God and the charge of the purification according to the command of David and Solomon his son. 43 For in the days of David and Asaph of old, there were chiefs of the singers and songs of praise and thanksgiving to God. 44 In the days of Zerubbabel and Nehemiah, all Israel gave portions for the singers and the gatekeepers, a portion for each day. They also consecrated holy things for the Levites, and the Levites consecrated them for the children of Aaron.

The Last Reforms of Nehemiah

On that day they read in the Book of Moses, in the hearing of the people, and it was found to be written that no Ammonite or Moabite should ever come into the assembly of God,† for they had not met the children of Israel with bread and water, but instead hired Balaam to bring a curse against them. But our God turned the curse into a blessing. 3 So it was, after hearing the Law, they separated all the mixed multitude from Israel.

Now before this, Eliashib the priest, living in the storeroom of the house of our God, was allied with Tobiah. 5 And he had prepared for him a large room where previously they had stored the grain offerings, the frankincense, the articles, the tithes of grain, the new wine and oil, which were commanded to be given to the Levites and singers and gatekeepers, as well as the firstfruits for the priests. 6 But during all this I was not in Jerusalem, for in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes, king of Babylon, I had returned to the king. Then after certain days I obtained leave from the king 7 and came to Jerusalem. Here I discovered the evil thing Eliashib had done for Tobiah. He had prepared a room for him in the courts of the house of God. 8 This grieved me bitterly; therefore I tossed out from the room all the household goods of Tobiah. 9 Then I commanded them to cleanse the rooms, at which time I brought the articles of the house of God back into them, along with the grain offering and the frankincense.

Tithes Are Restored

I also realized that the portions for the Levites were held back from them. For each of the Levites and the singers who did the work had gone back to his field. 11 So I contended with the rulers and said, “Why is the house of God forsaken?” And I gathered them together and set them in their place. 12 Then all Judah brought the tithe of the grain and the new wine and the oil to the storehouse. 13I appointed Shelemiah the priest and Zadok the scribe as treasurers over the storehouse, along with Pedaiah of the Levites. Next to them was Hanan the son of Zaccur, the son of Mattaniah. They were chosen for they were counted as faithful, and it was their duty to distribute to their brothers.

14Remember me, O my God, concerning this, and do not wipe out my good deeds that I have done for the house of my God and for its services!

The Sabbath Is Restored

15In those days I saw in Judah people treading wine presses on the Sabbath, and bringing in sheaves, and loading donkeys with wine, grapes, and figs, and all kinds of burdens, which they brought into Jerusalem on the Sabbath day. 16Men of Tyre dwelt there also, who brought in fish and all kinds of goods and sold them on the Sabbath to the children of Judah and in Jerusalem. 17Then I contended with the free sons of Judah and said to them, “What evil thing is this that you do by which you profane the Sabbath day? 18Did not your fathers do this, and did not our God bring all this disaster on us and on this city? Yet you bring added wrath on Israel by profaning the Sabbath.”

19So it was, when the gates of Jerusalem stood open before the Sabbath, that I commanded, and they shut the gates; and I charged that they must not be opened until after the Sabbath day. Then I posted some of my servants at the gates so that no burdens would be brought in on the Sabbath day. 20Now the merchants and sellers of all kinds of wares lodged outside Jerusalem once or twice. 21So I warned them and said to them, “Why do you spend the night around the wall? If you do so again, I will lay hands on you!” From that time on they came no more on the Sabbath. 22Then I told the Levites who were cleansing themselves, who came to guard the gates, to sanctify the Sabbath day.

Remember me, O my God, concerning this also, and spare me according to the greatness of Your mercy!

Pagan Marriages Forbidden

23In those days I also saw Jews who married women of Ashdod, of Ammon, and of Moab. 24And half their children spoke in the language of Ashdod, and could not speak the language of Judah, but spoke according to the language of one or the other people. 25So I contended with them and cursed them, struck some of them and pulled out their hair, and made them swear by God, saying, “You shall not give your daughters as wives to their sons, nor take their daughters for your sons. 26 Did not Solomon king of Israel sin by these things? Yet among many nations there was no king like him, who was beloved of his God; and God made him king over all Israel. Nevertheless pagan women caused even him to sin. 27 Should we then hear of your doing all this great evil, transgressing against our God by marrying pagan women?”

28 And one of the sons of Jehoiada, son of Eliashib the high priest, was a son-in-law of Sanballat the Horonite; therefore I drove him from me.

29 Remember them, God, because of the rights of inheritance of the priesthood and of the covenant of the priesthood and the Levites.

30 And I cleansed them of every pagan thing. I assigned the daily courses to the priests and the Levites, each to his own service,† 31 and to bringing the wood offering and the firstfruits at the appointed times.

In goodness, remember me, O our God!

The Book of Tobit

Author—Unknown

Date—Between the fourth and second centuries BC

Major Themes—The Book of Tobit is a love story. A father sends his only son into the world so that he may find a bride, save her, and bring her back rejoicing to his parents. The same story is told by the Lord in John 3:16.

From the beginning, God has been working in history to bring man out of the darkness of sin and death and into the glorious light of Christ. This is the story of salvation, and the Book of Tobit is an icon of that story. Within Tobit's narrative lies a shadowy outline of God working in history from the beginning to the end of the age, as He makes preparation for the uniting of man and all creation to God in Christ.

Background—The story of Tobit is set against the backdrop of the Assyrian exile in Nineveh. Family tragedy, hope, and divine intervention are interwoven to communicate the presence of God's providence.

Outline

I. Tobit's Life before the Exile, His Early Days in Nineveh (1:1–22)

II. Tobit's Charity, His Blindness, and His Prayer for Help (2:1–3:6)

III. Tobiah's Quest and Marriage (3:7–9:6)
   A. Sarah's predicament and prayer (3:7–17)
   B. Tobit sends Tobiah on his quest with Raphael in disguise (4:1–5:23)
   C. Tobit marries Sarah and breaks the curse (6:1–9:6)

IV. Tobiah's Return and Conclusion (10:1–14:15)
   A. Tobiah returns and heals his father (10:1–11:19)
   B. Raphael reveals his identity (12:1–22)
   C. Tobit praises God (13:1–14:1)
   D. Final Days of Tobit (14:2–15)

Tobit's Early Years in Israel and Nineveh
This is the book of the words of Tobit, the son of Tobiel, the son of Hananiel, the son of Aduel, the son of Gabael, of the seed of Asiel, from the tribe of Naphtali. † He was led captive out of Thisbe in the days of Shalmaneser, king of the Assyrians. Thisbe is south of Kedesh Naphtali, in Galilee above Asher. †

I, Tobit, walked in the paths of truth and righteousness all the days of my life. I did much almsgiving to my brethren and to the people who journeyed with me as exiles to Nineveh, in the country of the Assyrians. †

In my young days, when I was in my own country, the land of Israel, the entire tribe of my father Naphtali turned away from the house of Jerusalem, which was chosen from all the tribes of Israel, to sacrifice for all the tribes. This temple, the habitation of the Most High God, was sanctified and built for all generations forever.

Now all the tribes that joined in the revolt sacrificed the heifer to Baal. The house of Naphtali, the tribe of my father, also revolted. But I alone traveled frequently to Jerusalem for the feast days, as it is written for all of Israel in an everlasting ordinance. I would carry the firstfruits and the tithes of my harvest and the first-shearing. †

These I would give to the priests, the sons of Aaron, at the altar. I would offer the tenth of all the harvest to the sons of Levi who served at Jerusalem. I would also sell off the second tenth and go and spend it at Jerusalem each year. The third tenth I would give to whom it was fitting, as Deborah the mother of my father commanded me, for I was left an orphan by my father. When I became a man, I took Anna for a wife from my own kindred. With her I became the father of Tobias. †

When I was taken captive to Nineveh, all my brothers and those from my race ate from the bread of the Gentiles. †

But I protected myself by not eating it. For I remembered God with all my soul. So the Most High gave me grace and comeliness before Shalmaneser, and I became his purchasing agent. I would go into Media. And one time in Rages of Media, I entrusted to Gabael, the brother of Gabrias, ten talents of silver. †

When Shalmaneser died and his son Sennacherib reigned in his place, the roads were unstable and I could no longer travel to Media. In the days of Shalmaneser, I did much almsgiving to my brothers. I would give my bread to the hungry and my clothing to the naked. If I saw anyone of my people dead, cast outside the wall of Nineveh, I would bury him. †

If King Sennacherib put someone to death when he came trying to escape from Judea, I buried them secretly. For in his anger, he put many to death, and the bodies were sought by the king; but they were not found. But one of the men of Nineveh went and made known to the king concerning my burying them. So I hid, and when I knew I was being sought to be put to death I was frightened and ran away. All of my possessions were seized and I had nothing left, except Anna my wife and Tobias my son.

But not even fifty days passed before two of King Sennacherib's sons had killed him and escaped into the mountains of Ararat. Thus Esarhaddon his son reigned in his place. He appointed Ahikar, the son of my brother Anael, to be over all the accounts of his kingdom and over the entire government. Ahikar then entreated on my behalf, so I came to Nineveh. Now Ahikar was the wine-pourer, the keeper of the signet ring, the administrator and the accountant. Esarhaddon appointed him second to himself, and he was my nephew.

The Charitable Tobit Becomes Blind.

When I arrived at my house, my wife Anna and my son Tobias were given back to me. It was the Feast of Pentecost, which is the holy feast of the seven weeks. A good dinner was prepared for me, so I sat down at the table to eat. When I saw the abundance of meat, I said to my son, “Go and bring whomever you may find of our needy brethren who are mindful of the Lord. Behold, I will wait for you.” But he came back and said, “O father, one of our people was strangled and thrown into the marketplace.” So before I even tasted anything, I jumped up and carried the corpse into a room until sunset. Then I returned, bathed myself, and ate my bread in sorrow. Then I remembered the prophecy of Amos, how he said,

"Your feasts will be turned into mourning,
And all your gladness into a song of grief.

So I wept. When the sun went down, I departed, and after digging a grave, I buried him. My neighbors laughed at me and said, “He is no longer afraid to be put to death for doing such a thing. He ran away before, and now, behold, he is burying the dead again.”

On the same night that I buried him, I returned home. But since I was defiled, I slept by the wall of the courtyard with my face uncovered. However, I did not see the sparrows on the wall, for while my eyes were open the sparrows discharged their droppings into my eyes, and they became white films in my eyes. I went to physicians, but they could not help me. Then Ahikar supported me until he left for Elymais.
Then my wife Anna worked for hire at what women do. She would send her work to the owners and they would pay her. On one occasion they paid her wages and also gave her a small goat. But when she returned to me, it began to bleat. So I said to her, “Where did this goat come from? Is it not stolen? Return it to the owners, for it is unlawful to eat what is stolen.” But she replied, “It was given to me as a gift. It was in addition to my wages.” But I did not believe her, telling her to return it to its owners. I blushed in embarrassment for her sake. So she answered and said to me, “Are your acts of charity and righteous deeds lawful? Behold, you are a know-it-all!”

Tobit's Prayer

Then I wept in my sorrow, and with pain I prayed, saying:

2 O Lord, You are righteous. So too are all Your works. All Your ways are mercy and truth. Your judgments are true and just forever. Remember me and look upon me with favor. Do not punish me for my sins and my ignorance, nor those sins of my fathers which they committed against You. Because they disobeyed Your commands, so You gave us as spoil, captivity and death. You made us a byword of disgrace among all the nations in which we were scattered. Now Your judgments concerning my sins are many and they are true, because I did them, and so did my fathers. For we did not keep Your commandments. Indeed we did not walk in truth before You. Now do with me as is best before You. Command that my spirit be taken up, so I may be released and become soil, since it is better for me to die than to live. For I have heard false insults, and there is much sorrow within me. Command that I be freed from distress to now enter into the eternal place. Do not turn Your face away from me.

7 On the same day, in Ecbatana of Media, Sarah, the daughter of Raguel, happened to be insulted by her father's maids. She was married to seven husbands, but before they could be with her as a wife, Asmodeus, the evil demon, killed them. So they said to her, “Do you not recollect that you strangled these husbands? You have already had seven husbands, but you received no profit from any of them. Therefore, why punish us? If they are dead, go with them. May we never see a son or daughter of yours.”

10 When she heard this, she was so distressed that she considered hanging herself. But she said, “I am the only one of my father. If I do this, it will be a disgrace to him, and I will bring down his old age with sorrow into Hades.” So she prayed by her window and said:

Sarah's Prayer

“Blessed are You, O Lord my God. Blessed is Your holy and precious name unto the ages. May all Your works bless You forever. Now, O Lord, I offer myself completely to You. Command that I be released from the land, that I may not hear such disgrace any more. O Lord, You know that I am innocent of any sin with a man. I have not defiled my name nor the name of my father in the land of my captivity. I am my father's only offspring. He has no other child who will be his heir. Neither does he have a brother close at hand, nor an adopted son that I might keep myself as a wife to him. Seven of my husbands have already perished. What should I live for? But if it does not seem good to You to kill me, command that I be looked upon with favor, and that mercy be shown to me, so I may no longer hear disgrace.”

The prayer of both was heard in the presence of the great glory of Raphael, and he was sent to heal the two of them: to remove the white films from Tobit; to give Sarah of Raguel to Tobias the son of Tobit as a wife; and to bind Asmodeus the evil demon, for it fell upon Tobias to inherit her. At that same time Tobit returned and entered his house, and Sarah of Raguel came down from her upstairs room.

Tobit Instructs Tobias

On that day Tobit remembered the silver he had entrusted to Gabael at Rages of Media.

So he said to himself, “I requested death for myself. Why do I not call my son Tobias to make this known to him before I die?”

So he summoned him and said, “My son, if I die, bury me, but do not disregard your mother. Honor her all the days of your life. Do what is pleasing to her, but do not grieve her. Remember, my son, that she experienced many dangers for you while you were in the womb. When she dies, bury her beside me in the same grave. My son, remember the Lord our God all your days, and do not desire to sin or to disobey His commandments. Do righteousness all the days of your life, and do not walk in the ways of wrongdoing. For if you walk in the truth, you will be successful in your works. Do almsgiving from your possessions to all who do righteousness. When you do almsgiving, do not let your eye be envious. Do not turn your face away from any poor man, so the face of God will not be turned
Do almsgiving based on the quantity of your possessions. If you possess only a few, do not be afraid to give according to the little you have. You are storing up a good treasure for yourself in the day of necessity. For almsgiving delivers us from death and prevents us from entering into the darkness. Indeed, almsgiving is a good gift for all who do it before the Most High.

“My son, guard yourself from all fornication, and above all take a wife from among the seed of your fathers. Do not take a foreign woman who is not from the tribe of your father, for we are sons of the prophets. Noah, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are our fathers from of old. Remember, my son, that all these took wives from among their brothers and were blessed in their children. Their seed will inherit the land.

So now, my son, love your brothers and do not be arrogant in your heart against your brothers, the sons and daughters of your people. Take a wife for yourself from them, for arrogance brings destruction and great disorder, and in such worthlessness there is loss and great defect. For worthlessness is the mother of famine.

Do not keep overnight the wages of any man who works for you, but pay him immediately. If you serve God, He will pay you. Give heed to yourself, my son, in all your works, and be disciplined in all your conduct. What you yourself hate, do not do to anyone. Do not drink wine unto a state of drunkenness, and do not let drunkenness become your traveling companion. From your bread, give to him who is hungry, and from your clothing, give to the naked. If you have more than you need, do almsgiving, and do not let your eye envy the almsgiving when you do it. Spread out your bread on the grave of the righteous, but do not give it to sinners.

Seek counsel from every sensible man, and do not treat any useful advice with contempt. At every opportunity bless the Lord God, but more than this ask that your ways may become straight, and that all your paths and purposes may prosper. For not every nation has understanding. But the Lord Himself gives all that is good, and as He desires He humbles whomever He will. Now my son, let none of my commandments be removed from your heart.

Now let me point out to you the ten talents of silver I entrusted to Gabael the son of Gabrias, in Rages of Media. Do not fear, my son, that we have become poor. For you are very rich if you fear God. Stay away from every sin, and do what is pleasing before Him.”
Tobias answered him and said, “O father, I will do everything you have commanded me.

2 But how will I be able to obtain the silver, for I do not know him?” 3 Then he gave him the record of the debt and said to him, “Find for yourself a man who will travel with you, and I will pay him his wages as long as I remain alive. Now go and obtain the silver.”†

4 Then Tobias went to look for a man and found Raphael, who was an angel. But he did not know it. 5 So Tobias said to him, “Can you go with me to Rages of Media? Are you acquainted with those places?” 6 The angel said to him, “I will go with you. I am acquainted with the roadways and I have lodged with our brother Gabael.” 7 Tobias said to him, “Wait for me and I will tell my father.” 8 He said to him, “Do so, but do not delay.”

9 So he went to his father and said, “Behold, I have found someone who will go with me.” But his father said, “Call him to me, that I may know what tribe he belongs to, and if he is trustworthy enough to go with you.” 10 So he invited him, and Raphael came in. They greeted one another cordially.

11 Tobit then said to him, “Brother, to what tribe and kindred do you belong?” 12 Raphael responded, “Do you seek a tribe and a family, or a hired man to go with your son?” Tobit replied, “Brother, I wish to know your people and your name.” 13 Then he said, “I am Azarias, the son of Ananias the Great, one of your relatives.” 14 So Tobit said to him, “You are most welcome, my brother. Do be not angry with me for seeking to learn of your tribe and your family. As it turns out, you are a brother of mine from a good and upright family. For I knew Ananias and Jonathan, the sons of Shemiah the Great, since we would journey in common to Jerusalem to worship and to offer the firstborn and the tenth of our harvest. They were not led astray in the deception of our brothers. My brother, you are from a good root.

15 “But tell me, what shall I give you as wages? A drachma a day and expenses for you and my son? 16 I will even add more to your pay, if you both return in good health.” 17 Thus they were well pleased. Then he said to Tobias, “Prepare for the journey, and may it be prosperous.” So his son prepared the things for the journey. Then his father said to him, “Go with this man, and may the God who dwells in heaven prosper your journey. May His angel journey with you.” They both departed, and the young man's dog went with them.†
But Anna his mother wept and said to Tobit, “Why have you sent our son away, or is he not the staff of our hands when he goes in and out before us? Do not attain silver upon silver, but may it be dirt compared to our son. For as he was given to us to live by the Lord, this is sufficient for our existence.” Tobit said to her, “My sister, do not be concerned. He shall return in good health, and your eyes will see him. For a good angel will go with him, and his journey shall be prosperous. He will return in good health.” So she ceased weeping.

The Journey to Rages

They went on the journey and came to the Tigris River. So they spent the evening there. The young man went down to wash himself, and a fish jumped up from the river and was determined to swallow the young man. The angel said to him, “Take hold of the fish.” So the young man grabbed the fish and put it on the bank. Then the angel said to him, “Cut open the fish. Take the heart, the liver, and the gall and put them in a safe place.” The young man did as the angel commanded him. Then they cooked the fish and ate it.

After this, they traveled together until they came near to Ecbatana. Then the young man said to the angel, “Brother Azarias, what is the purpose of the liver, the heart, and the gall of the fish?” He replied, “If a demon or an evil spirit troubles anyone, the heart and the liver must be used to make smoke before the man or woman, and that person will never be troubled again. As for the gall, use it to anoint a man who has white films on his eyes, and he will be healed.”

As they came near Rages, the angel said to the young man, “Brother, we will spend the night with Raguel. He is your relative and with him is his only child, a daughter named Sarah. I will speak for her that she might be given to you as a wife, because her inheritance belongs to you; for you alone are from her people. The girl is beautiful and she is sensible.

“So now listen to me, for I will speak to her father. When we return from Rages, we will celebrate the wedding. For I know that Raguel cannot give her to any other man according to the rule of Moses, or he will be subject to death. Thus it is proper that you receive the inheritance rather than another man.”

Then the young man said to the angel, “Brother Azarias, I have heard the girl was given seven husbands, and they all perished in the bridal chamber. Now I am the only son of my father, and I fear for myself lest, entering the bridal chamber, I may die even as those before me. For a demon loves her, and he does not harm anyone except those who approach her. Now I fear for myself lest I die and bring the life of my father and mother down into their tomb with grief and sorrow upon me. They have no other son who will bury them.”

16 But the angel said to him, “Do you not remember the words your father commanded you, to take a wife for yourself from among your people? Now listen to me, brother, for she will be a wife to you. As for the demon, have no concern, for this night she will be given to you as a wife.”

17 If you enter the bridal chamber, you will take with you ashes of incense, and lay some of it on the heart and liver of the fish. Then you will make smoke, and the demon will smell it and flee and never return. 18 When you approach her, both of you will rise up and cry out to the merciful God. He will save you and be merciful. Do not fear for yourself, for she has been prepared for you from of old. You will save her and she will go with you. I believe that you will have children by her.”

19 As Tobias heard these words, he loved her and his soul was very much united to her.

At the House of Raguel

Then they went to Ecbatana and came to the house of Raguel. Sarah went ahead to meet them, and after they greeted one another, she escorted them into the house. 2 Raguel said to Edna his wife, “How the young man resembles my cousin Tobit!” 3 Then Raguel asked them, “Where are you from, brothers?” They answered, “We are from the sons of Naphtali who are captives in Nineveh.” 4 Then he said to them, “Do you know Tobit our brother?” They responded, “We know him.” 5 Then he asked, “Is he in good health?” They answered, “He is alive and in good health.” Tobias then added, “He is my father.”

6 Raguel jumped up and kissed him and wept. He blessed him and said to him, “You are the son of a good and noble man!” But when he heard that Tobit had lost his eyesight, he was grieved and wept. 7 Edna his wife and Sarah his daughter also wept, and they received them eagerly. 8 And they killed a ram from the sheep and set many dishes before them.

9 Then Tobias said to Raphael, “Brother Azarias, speak about what you said on the way, and let the matter be completed.” 10 So he told Raguel what he said, and Raguel said to Tobias, “Eat, drink, and be glad, for it is fitting for you to marry my child. However, I must tell you the truth.\footnote{11} I gave my daughter to seven men, and when they went in to her, they died during the night. But for now, be glad!” \footnote{12} But Tobias said, “I will not eat anything until after you establish an agreement with me.” So Raguel said, “Receive her according to the decree, for you are her relative and she is yours. The merciful God will prosper you in what is good.”

\begin{center}
\textbf{Tobias and Sarah Are Wed.}
\end{center}

\footnote{13} So he called Sarah his daughter, and taking her by the hand, he gave her to be a wife for Tobias. Then he said, “Behold, receive her according to the decree of Moses, and bring her before your father.” He then blessed them \footnote{14} and summoned his wife Edna. She took a scroll and wrote out the agreement. They sealed it, and then they began to eat.

\footnote{15} After this, Raguel called his wife Edna and said to her, “Sister, prepare the other room and lead her into it.” \footnote{16} She did as he said and led her there. Then Sarah wept, but Edna understood the tears of her daughter and said to her, \footnote{17} “Be courageous, my child. May the Lord of heaven and earth give you grace instead of this sorrow of yours. Be courageous, my daughter.”

When they finished dining, they led Tobias to her. \footnote{2} As he went, he remembered the words of Raphael, and put the heart and the liver of the fish upon the embers of the incense and made smoke.\footnote{3} When the demon smelled the fragrant scent, he fled to the upper parts of Egypt, and there the angel bound him. \footnote{4} While both were enclosed in the room, Tobias rose up from the bed and said, “Arise, sister, and let us pray that the Lord will have mercy upon us.” \footnote{5} So Tobias began to pray, saying:

“Blessed are You, O God of our fathers, and blessed is Your holy and glorious name unto the ages. The heavens and all Your creatures bless You.\footnote{6} You made Adam and gave him Eve as a helper, his wife as a support. From them the seed of mankind came to be. You said, ‘It is not good for the man to be alone. Let Us make a helper for him like himself.’\footnote{7} O Lord, I now take this my sister as my wife, not on account of fornication, but in truth. Command that she and I may have mercy, and in this grow old together.”\footnote{8}

\footnote{8} And with him she said, “Amen.” \footnote{9} Then both fell asleep for the night.

\footnote{10} But Raguel rose up and went outside and dug a grave, saying, “He, too, may have died.”\footnote{11}
Raguel then went back into his house and said to his wife Edna, “Send one of the maids and let her see if indeed Tobias is alive. If he is not, let us bury him that no one may know.”

So the maid went to the door, and when she opened it she found both of them sleeping. She came out and told the two of them that he was alive.

Then Raguel blessed God, saying:

“Blessed are You, the God, with every pure and holy blessing. Your holy ones and all Your creatures bless You. All Your angels and Your chosen ones bless You unto all the ages.† Blessed are You, for You have made me glad, and it did not turn out for me as I suspected. Rather, You did with us according to Your abundant mercy. Blessed are You, for You had mercy on our two only children. O Lord, show them mercy, and complete their life in health and with gladness and mercy.”

Then he ordered his household servants to fill in the grave.

After this he provided a wedding feast for them lasting fourteen days.† Before the time of the wedding feast was over, Raguel swore an oath and said to Tobias, “You are not to leave from here unless the two of you stay the fourteen days of the wedding feast. At that time take half of my belongings and go in good health to your father. The remainder will be yours when I and my wife die.”

Gabael Returns the Silver

Then Tobias called Raphael and said to him,† “Brother Azarias, take a servant and two camels with you and journey to Rages of Media. Find Gabael and bring the silver back to me and bring him to the wedding feast. For Raguel has sworn an oath for me not to go away. But my father is counting the days, and if I delay much longer he will be very distressed.”

Then Raphael went and spent the night with Gabael, and gave him the handwritten receipt. So Gabael brought the small sealed bags and gave them to him. They both rose early in the morning and went to the wedding feast. Then Tobias blessed his wife.

Anna's Distress

Tobit his father was counting each day. But when the days needed to complete the journey ended and they had not returned,† he asked, “Has he perhaps been dishonored? Or has Gabael died and no one gave him the silver?” 3 So he was very distressed.

4 Then his wife told him, “The young man has perished. That is why he is delayed.” Then she began to weep for him and said, 5 “Nothing matters to me, my child, the light of my eyes, for I permitted you to go.” 6 So Tobit said to her, “Be silent and have no more thoughts about it. He is in good health.”

7 She replied to him, “You be quiet. Do not deceive me. My child has perished.” Then throughout the day she went outside to the road by which he departed, and during the day she did not eat bread. At night she did not cease lamenting for her son Tobias until the fourteen days of the wedding feast were over, the days Raguel swore him to celebrate there.

The Bride and Groom Depart

8 Then Tobias said to Raguel, “Send me back, for my father and my mother no longer hope they will see me.”† 9 But his father-in-law said to him, “Stay with me, and I will send messengers to your father. They will make clear to him how you are doing.” But Tobias said, “No indeed. On the contrary, send me back to my father.”

10 Then Raguel arose and gave Sarah his wife to him, and half of his belongings in servants, cattle, and silver. 11 Then he blessed them and sent them on their way, saying, “May the God of heaven prosper you, my children, before the day I die.” 12 To his daughter he said, “Honor your husband’s mother and father, for they are now your parents. Let me hear a good report of you,” and he kissed her. 13 Then Edna said to Tobias, “My beloved brother, may the Lord of heaven bring you back and grant me to see your children from my daughter Sarah, that I may rejoice before the Lord. Behold, I am entrusting my daughter to your care. Do not grieve her.”† 14 With this, Tobias went on his way blessing God that He had prospered his journey. Then he blessed Raguel and Edna his wife.

Tobit's Blindness Is Healed

11 He traveled until they approached Nineveh. Here Raphael said to Tobias, † 2 “My brother, are you not aware of how you left your father? 3 Let us run ahead of your wife and prepare the house. 4 Take the gall of the fish in your hand.” So they proceeded, and the dog followed behind them.

5 Meanwhile Anna sat gazing upon the road for her boy. 6 She perceived that he was coming and said to the father, “Behold, your son is coming, and the man traveling with him!”

7 Raphael said, “I know that the eyes of your father will open. Rub the gall on his eyes. When the eyes sting, he will rub them and cause the white film to fall away. He will then see you.”

9 Then Anna ran up to her son and fell upon his neck and said to him, “I have seen you, my child. From this day, I am now ready to die!” So they both wept. 10 Then Tobit came out of the door. He stumbled, but his son ran up to him. 11 He took hold of his father and dabbed the gall on the eyes of his father, saying, “Father, take courage!” 12 Then as his eyes stung, he rubbed them, and the white films peeled off from the corners of his eyes. 13 When he saw his son, he fell upon his neck, weeping, and said, 14 “Blessed are You, O God, and blessed is Your name unto the ages. Blessed are all Your holy angels, for You scourged me but had mercy on me. Behold, I see Tobias my son.” 15 His son went in rejoicing and told his father the great things that had happened to him in Media.

16 Then Tobit rejoiced and blessed God as he went to meet his daughter-in-law at the gate of Nineveh. But those who saw him as he walked along were amazed that he could see. Tobit gave thanks before them, because God had mercy on him. 17 Then as Tobit drew near to meet Sarah, his daughter-in-law, he blessed her, saying, “May you be in good health, my daughter! Blessed is God who brought you to us, and blessed are your father and your mother.”

18 So there was rejoicing among all his brethren in Nineveh. 19 Even Ahikar and his nephew Nadab came, for the wedding feast for Tobias was kept with gladness for seven days.

Raphael Reveals His Identity

12 Tobit summoned his son Tobias and said to him, “My son, see to the wages of the man who went with you, and we must add to them.” 2 He replied to him, “My father, it is no harm for me to give him half of what I brought. 3 For he brought me safely to you, healed my wife, and brought me the silver. Likewise he healed you.” 4 The elderly man replied, “He more than earned it.” 5 So he called the angel and said to him, “Take half of everything you brought.”

6 Then Raphael secretly called the two of them, and said to them, “Bless God and give Him
thanks. Ascribe greatness to Him and give thanks in the presence of all the living for what He has done for you. It is good to bless God and to exalt His name. Make known the words of God's works honorably and do not delay to give thanks to Him. It is noble to keep hidden the secret of a king, but glorious to unveil the works of God. Do good, and evil will not find you. Prayer is good with fasting, almsgiving, and righteousness. A few prayers with righteousness are better than many with wrongdoing. It is better to do almsgiving than to lay up gold. For almsgiving rescues one from death, and it will wash away every sin. Those who do almsgiving and are righteous will be full of life. But those who sin are enemies of their own life.

I will not hide anything from you. Indeed, I did say that it is good to conceal the secret of a king, but to reveal gloriously the works of God. Now when you and your daughter-in-law Sarah prayed, I brought the remembrance of your prayer before the Holy One. When you also buried the dead, I was likewise present with you. Then too, when you did not hesitate to stand up and leave your dinner so as to depart and care for the dead, your doing what is good did not escape me; but I was with you. Now God sent me to heal you and Sarah your daughter-in-law. I am Raphael, one of the seven holy angels who report the prayers of the saints and who enter before the glory of the Holy One.

The two of them were troubled and fell upon their faces, for they were afraid. But he said to them, “Do not be afraid, for peace shall be with you. But bless God forever. For I did not come of my own good will, but rather by the will of our God. Therefore bless Him forever. All these days I appeared to you I did not eat or drink; but you were seeing a vision. Now give thanks to God, because I am ascending to Him who sent me. Write in a book everything that was accomplished.”

Then they stood up, but no longer saw him. They acknowledged the great and wondrous works of God, and how the angel of the Lord had appeared to them.

\[\textbf{Tobit Exalts the Lord.}\]

Then Tobit with exceeding joy wrote a prayer, saying:

\[\text{“Blessed is God Who lives unto the ages, And blessed is His kingdom,}\]
For He scourges, and is merciful;
He brings down into Hades,
And leads up.

There is no one who will escape His hand.

3 Give thanks to Him before the nations,
O children of Israel,
For He scattered us among them.

ı Make known His greatness there;
Exalt Him in the presence of all the living,
For He is our Lord and God;
He is our Father unto all the ages.

He will scourge us for our wrongdoings,
But He will again have mercy
And gather us from all the nations,
Wherever you were dispersed among them.

ı If you return to Him with all your heart
And with all your soul,
To do the truth before Him,
Then He will turn to you
And not hide His presence from you.

ı Behold for yourself what He will do for you,
And give thanks to Him fully with the organ of speech.
Bless the Lord of righteousness,
And exalt the King of the ages.

ı In the land of my captivity, I give thanks to Him,
And make known His might and majesty to a nation of sinners.
Be converted, you sinners,
And do righteousness before Him.
Who knows if He will desire you
And have mercy on you?

ı I exalt my God,
And my soul exalts the King of heaven
And will rejoice exceedingly in His majesty.

ı Let all speak of His majesty
And give thanks to Him in Jerusalem.
O Jerusalem, the holy city,
He will scourge you for the deeds of your sons,
But He will again show mercy to the sons of the righteous.

Give thanks to the Lord with goodness
And bless the King of the ages,
That His tabernacle may be restored again to you in joy.

May He rejoice in you, the captives,
And may He love those who are distressed among you
Unto all generations forever.

Many Gentiles will come from afar
To the name of the Lord God,
Bearing gifts in their hands
And offerings to the King of heaven.
Generations of generations will offer You joyful worship.

Cursed are all who hate You;
Blessed are all who love You forever.

Rejoice and be exceedingly glad for the children of the righteous,
For they will be gathered together
And will bless the Lord of the righteous.
Blessed are those who love You.
They will rejoice in Your peace.

Blessed are the many who grieved over all Your scourges,
For they will rejoice when they see all Your glory
And will rejoice forever.
Let my soul bless God the great King.

For Jerusalem will be built with sapphire and emerald,
And her walls with precious stones,
And her towers and battlements with pure gold.
The streets of Jerusalem will be paved
With beryl, onyx, and stones from Ophir.

All her streets will proclaim, 'Alleluia!'
And will give praise, saying,
‘Blessed is God, who exalted you unto all the ages.’”

Then Tobit ceased giving thanks.
He was fifty-eight years old when he lost his sight, and eight years later he regained it. Tobit did almsgiving, and continued to fear the Lord God, and gave thanks to Him. He grew very old, and called his son and his son's sons, and said, “My son, take your sons. Behold, I have grown old, and I am departing from this life. Depart to Media, my son, for I trust all the words Jonah the prophet spoke concerning Nineveh, that it will be overthrown. But in Media there will be more peace for a time. For our brethren in the land will be dispersed in the earth from the good land. Jerusalem shall be desolate, and the house of God therein will be burned up. It shall be desolate for a time.

But God will again have mercy on them, and He will return them to the land. They will build the house, but not as it was before, until the times of the age are fulfilled. After this, they will return from the captivity and build Jerusalem honorably. The house of God within her will be built as a glorious building for every generation forever, as the prophets said concerning her.

All the Gentiles shall return to truly fear the Lord God. They shall bury their idols in the earth, and all the Gentiles will bless the Lord.

His people will offer thanks to God, and the Lord will exalt His people. All who love the Lord God in truth and righteousness will rejoice. They will show mercy to our brethren.

So now, my son, depart from Nineveh, since what the prophet Jonah said will doubtless come to pass. But keep the law and the ordinances. Be merciful and righteous, that it may be well with you. Bury me decently and your mother with me, but lodge no longer in Nineveh.

My son, observe what Aman did to Ahikar who reared him, how he led him from light into darkness, and how greatly he repaid him. Indeed Ahikar was saved, but as for that man, he was repaid with retribution and descended into the darkness. Manasseh did almsgiving and was saved from the trap of death that was set for him. But Aman fell into the trap and perished.

Now then, my children, observe what almsgiving does, and how righteousness delivers us.”

After he said these things, his soul departed as he lay on his bed. He was one hundred and fifty-eight years old, and Tobias buried him gloriously. When Anna died, he buried her with his father. Then Tobias departed with his wife and his children to Ecbatana, to Raguel his father-in-law. He grew old honorably and buried the parents of his wife most respectfully. They inherited their estate and that of Tobit his father.
14 Tobias died at Ecbatana of Media when he was one hundred and twenty-seven years old.
15 Before he died, he heard of the destruction of Nineveh, taken by Nebuchadnezzar and Ahasuerus. Thus before his death he rejoiced over Nineveh.

Author—The identity of the author is not known.

Date—Although the story occurs during the reign of Nebuchadnezzar and the Assyrian domination of the Near East, the ideas and language place it somewhere in the second century BC. The work was probably composed sometime during the reign of John Hyrcanus I (135–105 BC), high priest and king of Israel.

Major Theme—God protects His people from their enemies. The Lord God works in mysterious ways throughout history through the agency of human beings, both evil and good, powerful and weak. Judith's lesson to us is that our worship of God, trust in Him, and obedience to His commandments result in divine protection and salvation from our enemies, no matter how powerful those enemies seem to be in this world.

Background—The heroine of this story is Judith, meaning Jewess, the beautiful widow of a wealthy farmer, pious and of good reputation among her countrymen. She single-handedly takes on Holofernes, the enemy of Israel, a general in Nebuchadnezzar's army.

King Nebuchadnezzar's Victories

1 It was the twelfth year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, who reigned in the great city of Nineveh. In those days Arphaxad, who reigned over the Medes in Ecbatana,² built a wall around Ecbatana of hewn stones which were three cubits wide and six cubits long. He made the wall seventy cubits high and fifty cubits wide.³ At its gates he set its towers, a hundred cubits high and sixty cubits wide at their foundations. 4And he made its gates raised to seventy cubits high and forty cubits wide, for the marching out of his mighty armies and his infantry in battle array. 5In those days King Nebuchadnezzar waged war against King Arphaxad in the great plain, the plain in the region of Ragau. 6And all those who inhabited the hill country and all those who lived along the Euphrates, the Tigris, and the Hydaspes rallied to him, including those from the plain of Arioich, king of the Elamites. Many nations of the sons of Chaldea gathered in battle array.†

Then Nebuchadnezzar, the Assyrian king, sent envoys to all those dwelling in Persia, to all living in the west, and to those who dwelled in Cilicia, Damascus, Lebanon, and Antilebanon, and to all those who lived on the seacoast, and those among the nations of Carmel and Gilead, and Upper Galilee and the great plain of Esdraelon, and to all those in Samaria and its cities, and beyond the Jordan as far as Jerusalem, Bethany, Chelous and Kadesh and the river of Egypt, and to Tahpanhes and Rameses and the whole land of Goshen, even beyond Tanis and Memphis and to all the inhabitants of Egypt as far as the boundaries of Ethiopia.†

†But all who lived in that area scorned the summons of Nebuchadnezzar, king of the Assyrians, and refused to join with him in the war because they were not afraid of him. They regarded him as but one man, and they sent his messengers away empty-handed and dishonored.†

The Defeat of Arphaxad

12Then Nebuchadnezzar was extremely angry with all that land, and swore by his throne and his kingdom that he would take vengeance on all the regions of Cilicia and Damascus and Syria; that he would slay with the sword all the inhabitants of the land of Moab, and the sons of Ammon, and all Judea, and all those in Egypt as far as the borders of the two seas.† 13So in his seventeenth year, he marched with his army against King Arphaxad and defeated him in battle. He routed the whole army of Arphaxad and all his cavalry and all his chariots; he ruled over his cities. Then he came to Ecbatana, and took over its towers and plundered its marketplaces and put its adornments to shame. 15He captured Arphaxad in the mountains of Ragau and ran him through with his spears, totally destroying him that day.† 16Then he returned, he and all his sundry multitude of a great many warriors, and they rested there and feasted sumptuously for one hundred twenty days.†
In the eighteenth year, on the twenty-second day of the first month, in the house of Nebuchadnezzar king of the Assyrians, it came about there was talk that it was time to take vengeance on all the land, just as he had said. So he summoned all his officers and all his nobles, and he laid out verbally all the wickedness of the land. They determined to destroy everyone who had not obeyed his summons.

When he finished his plan, Nebuchadnezzar king of the Assyrians called Holofernes, the chief captain of his army, second in command to him, and said to him, “Thus says the great king, the lord of all the earth: Behold! You shall go out from my presence and take men confident in their strength with you, a hundred twenty thousand foot soldiers and twelve thousand cavalry. March against all the land of the west, because they disobeyed my commands. You shall order them to prepare the earth and water, for I will come out in wrath, and I will cover the whole face of the land with the footprints of my army, and I will give them over to my army as plunder. Their wounded will fill the valleys, and their brooks and rivers shall be overflowing with their dead. I will lead them away as captives to the end of the whole earth. And going out ahead of me, you shall seize all their territory. They will surrender themselves to you, and you shall hold them for me until the day of their punishment. Against the ones who refuse, let your eye not spare them, and give them over to slaughter and plunder throughout all your territory. For as I live, and by the power of my kingdom, what I have spoken I will do by my hand. Take heed and do not transgress any of the orders of your lord, but carry them out fully just as I have commanded you, and do it without any delay.”

So Holofernes went out from the presence of his lord and called all the generals, captains, and officers of the Assyrian army. And as his lord had commanded him to do, he mobilized one hundred twenty thousand select men for the battle, together with twelve thousand archers on horseback, and he set them in formation as any great army is organized in time of war. He brought a great number of camels, donkeys, and mules to transport their baggage; innumerable sheep, goats, and oxen for their food supply; ample provisions for every man, and a great quantity of gold and silver from the king's palace.
marched out with his entire army to go in advance of Nebuchadnezzar the king to cover the entire face of the land to the west with their chariots, cavalry, and their select infantry. And along with them went a great mixed crowd, like a swarm of locusts, like the dust of the earth, for the multitude could not be numbered.

And they went out from Nineveh three days’ journey to the plain of Bectileth, and they camped over against Bectileth, near the mountain to the left of Upper Cilicia. Then he took his entire army—his infantry, the cavalry, and his chariots—and went from there into the hill country. He ravaged Put and Lud, and he plundered all the Rassisites and the Ishmaelites along the desert towards the south of the Chelleans. Then he followed the Euphrates and passed through Mesopotamia, destroying all the fortified cities along the river Abron, until he came to the sea.

He captured the region of Cilicia and killed everyone who resisted him, and came as far as the southern borders of Japheth, opposite Arabia. He encircled all the Midianites and torched their tents and plundered their sheepfolds.

Next he marched down into the plain of Damascus at the time of the wheat harvest and burned all their fields, destroying their flocks and herds. He sacked their cities, ravaged their lands, and struck down all their youths with the edge of the sword.

Thus fear and dread of him came upon all the inhabitants of the seacoast, at Sidon and Tyre, and those living in Sur and Ocina, and all those living in Jamnia. Those residing in Azotus and Ashkelon also greatly feared him.

They sent messengers to him to sue for peace, saying, “Behold! We the servants of Nebuchadnezzar the great king lie prostrate before you. Do to us as is pleasing in your sight. Behold! All our dwellings, all our land, all our fields of wheat, our flocks and herds, and all our tents are before you; do with them as you desire. Behold! Our cities also and their inhabitants are your slaves; come and deal with them as is fitting in your sight.”

These men came to Holofernes and reported all these things to him. He went down to the seacoast with his army and stationed garrisons over the fortified cities, and selected chosen men from them as allies. These people, and all their surrounding countryside, received him with garlands and dancing and timbrels. But he destroyed all their borders and cut down their sacred groves, for he had been given orders to demolish all the gods of the land, so all nations would worship Nebuchadnezzar only, and so all their tongues and tribes would call upon him as god. Then he came to Esdraelon, near Dothan, facing the great ridge of Judea. He camped between Geba and Scythopolis, and remained there for a month to bring together all the supplies for his army.

Israel Prepares Its Defense

When the Israelites residing in Judea heard everything Holofernes, the commander of Nebuchadnezzar king of the Assyrians, had done to the nations, and how he stripped and demolished all their temples, they were greatly terrified at his presence. They were troubled for Jerusalem and also for the temple of the Lord their God. For they had just recently come back from exile, and all the people of Judea had only recently been regathered, and the holy vessels, the altar, and the temple had been consecrated, having been profaned. So they sent word into all the region of Samaria, and to Kona, Beth Horon, Belmen, and to Jericho and Choba and Aesora, and to the valley of Salem. Immediately they seized all the hilltops and fortified the villages in them, and stored up provisions in preparation for war, having just harvested their fields.

Joakim the high priest, who was in Jerusalem at that time, wrote to those dwelling in Bethulia and Betomesthaim, which faces Esdraelon opposite the plain near Dothan. He ordered them to occupy the mountain passes, since Judea could be invaded through them. They were easy to defend because the approach was narrow, with space for only two men at the most to pass.

The Israelites did as instructed by Joakim the high priest and the council of all the people of Israel, which met in Jerusalem. And all the men of Israel cried to God with great fervor and humbled themselves in great somberness. They, their wives and children, their cattle, and all the strangers, the hired servants and the purchased slaves, put sackcloth around their waists. All the men of Israel and the women and the children living in Jerusalem prostrated themselves before the temple, and put ashes on their heads and spread out their sackcloth before the face of the Lord. They also covered the altar with sackcloth, and cried out fervently with one accord to the God of Israel that He would not allow their infants to be prey and their wives to be seized; that the cities they inherited not be destroyed; that their sanctuary not be desecrated and be a reproach to the gloating of the Gentiles.

The Lord heard their cry and looked down on their affliction, for the people were fasting
And Joakim the high priest and all the priests who stood before the presence of the Lord and served the Lord, having girded their waists with sackcloth, offered the continual whole burnt offerings and the votive and the freewill offerings of the people. With ashes on their turbans, with all their strength they cried out to the Lord to look with favor upon all the house of Israel.

Holofernes Hears of Israel's Preparations.

It was told to Holofernes, the commander of the Assyrian army, that the Israelites were prepared for war and had blocked the passes in the mountains, fortified all the hilltops, and placed barricades in the plains. He was very angry, and he called all the princes of Moab and the captains of Ammon and all the governors of the seacoast together. He said to them, “Tell me, sons of Canaan, who are these people who live in the hill country? What cities do they inhabit? How large is their army? In what does their power and strength consist? And who is the king who rules them and leads their army?”

An Ammonite's History of Israel.

Then Achior, the leader of the Ammonites, said to him, “Let my lord hear now the word that comes from the mouth of your servant, and I will tell you the truth concerning this people who dwell in this hill country near you; no falsehood will come out of the mouth of your servant. These people are descended from the Chaldeans. They previously sojourned in Mesopotamia because they did not wish to follow the gods of their fathers, who were in Chaldea. For they had departed from the way of their ancestors and worshiped the God of heaven, the God they had come to know. As a result, they cast them out from the presence of their gods, and they fled to Mesopotamia and sojourned there for a long time. Then their God commanded them to depart from the place of their sojourn and go to the land of Canaan. They settled there and became very wealthy in gold, silver, and abundant livestock. But when a famine spread through all of Canaan, they went down into Egypt and sojourned there as long as there was food; and there they became a great multitude, so great they could not be numbered.

Then the king of Egypt rose against them and, taking advantage of them, forced them to make bricks; he humbled them and made them slaves. So they cried out to their God, and He struck the whole land of Egypt with deadly plagues. The Egyptians cast them out from their presence. So God dried up the Red Sea before them. He led them by way of Sinai and Kadesh-Barnea, and they drove out all those living in the desert. They settled in the land of the Amorites, and by their strength they utterly destroyed all the residents of Heshbon. And crossing over the River Jordan, they occupied all of the hill country. Then they drove out the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Shechemites, and the Gergesites, and they dwelled there for a long time.

If they did not sin before their God they prospered, because their God, who hates sin, was with them. But when they strayed from the path which He prescribed for them, they were destroyed in numerous battles, and they were exiled to a land not their own, and the temple of their God was brought down to the ground, and their cities were seized by their adversaries. Yet now they have come back to their God and returned from their dispersion, and they have taken back Jerusalem, where their sanctuary is. They have settled in the hill country, for it was not inhabited.

Now my lord and master, if there is any sin of ignorance in this people and they sin against their God, then we will identify their offense and will go up to defeat them. But if there is no lawlessness in their nation, then let my lord leave them alone, lest their Lord shield them, and their God defend them, and we will become a reproach before the whole earth.”

Now when Achior finished speaking these things, all the people standing around the tent started to grumble. Then Holofernes’ officials and all those dwelling in the seacoast and Moab insisted Achior be put to death. They said, “We will not be afraid of the Israelites. For behold! They are people in whom there is no might nor the power to wage war. Now therefore, we will go up, Lord Holofernes, and they will be devoured by your whole army.”

As the disruption of the men outside the council calmed down, Holofernes, the Assyrian army commander, spoke to Achior in the presence of all the crowd of foreigners and to all the sons of Moab: “Who are you, Achior, and you mercenaries of Ephraim, to prophesy among us as you did today, to tell us we should not wage war against the Israelite people because their God will shield them? Who is god besides Nebuchadnezzar? He will send his power and will utterly destroy them from the face of the earth, and their God will not deliver them.†

3 Rather we, the servants of the king, will strike them down as one man. They will not withstand the strength of our cavalry. 4 We will subdue them with it; their high hills will be drunk with their blood, and their plains will be filled with their bodies. Their footprints will no longer remain, but they will utterly perish, says King Nebuchadnezzar, lord of all the earth. It is he who has spoken; none of his words will be in vain.

5 “But you, O Achior, and your mercenaries of Ammon who spoke these words in the day of your wrongdoing, you will not see my face from this day forth until the time I will punish these people who came up out of Egypt. 6 When I return, the sword of my forces and of my servants will pass through your sides, and you will fall among their wounded men. 7 Now my servants will take you back to the hill country, and they will put you in one of the cities of the hill passes. 8 You will not die until you perish alongside them, 9 and if you really suppose in your heart that they will not be taken by us, then do not be downcast. I have spoken, and no word of mine shall fail.”†

10 Now Holofernes commanded his servants, who were standing by in his tent, to capture Achior and remove him to Bethulia and turn him over to the sons of Israel. 11 Then the servants took hold of him and led him outside the camp toward the plain. They traveled from the plain into the hill country to the springs below Bethulia. 12 When the men of the city saw them, they took up their weapons and hurried out of the city to the crest of the mountain. The slingers kept the servants from ascending by hurling stones at them. 13 Taking shelter down at the base of the mountain, they tied up Achior and left him at the foot of the mountain, and went back to their master.

14 When the Israelites went down from their dwelling, they found and loosed him and brought him to Bethulia. They set him before the leaders of the city, 15 who in those days were Uzziah the son of Micah of the tribe of Simeon, and Chabris the son of Gothoniel, and Charmis the son of Melchiel.† 16 They summoned all the city elders, and all their young men and the women rushed to the assembly, and they set Achior in the midst of all the people. Uzziah asked him what had happened. 17 He reported to them the events of the council of Holofernes, and all the many words he had spoken in the midst of the Assyrian officials, and all that Holofernes arrogantly boasted against the house of Israel.
Then the people fell down and worshipped God and cried out, saying, “O Lord God of heaven, look down upon their arrogance, and have mercy on the humble state of our people. Look with favor upon those who are sanctified unto You this day.” Then they encouraged Achior and praised him exceedingly. Then Uzziah took him from the assembly to his house and gave a feast for the elders. And all that night they called upon the God of Israel for help.

Israel Is Attacked at Bethulia

On the next day, Holofernes commanded his entire army and all his allies who joined with him to move against Bethulia and occupy the passes up in the hill country, and to attack the Israelites. So their soldiers broke camp, and their army numbered a hundred seventy thousand infantry and twelve thousand cavalry (not including the baggage handlers), a great multitude. They camped beside the spring in the valley near Bethulia. They were spread out in width over Dothan as far as Belbaim and in length from Bethulia to Cyamon, facing Esdraelon.

When the Israelites saw their great numbers, they were exceedingly distressed, each saying to his neighbor, “Now they will ravage the entire land. Neither the high hills, nor the valleys, nor the foothills will support their weight.” Still each one took up his weapons, and having lit fires on the their watchtowers, they stood guard that whole night.

Then on the second day, Holofernes brought all his cavalry out in full view of the Israelites in Bethulia. He carefully inspected the approaches leading to the city, and then he came upon the springs which were their water source and seized them. He placed soldiers there to guard over them, and returned to his encampment.

Then all the chief men of the sons of Edom, and all the leaders of the people of Moab, and the commanders of the seacoast region came to him, saying, “Let our lord now hear our word, that there be no losses in your army. For this people, the Israelites, do not put their trust in spears, but in the height of the mountains where they dwell, since it is not easy to reach their mountain peaks. Indeed, master, do not engage them in battle formation, and not one man of your forces will fall. Stay instead in your camp, and keep all the men of your army there. Have your servants take control of the spring which comes from the base of the mountain, for this is where the citizens of Bethulia draw their water. Their thirst will consume them, and they will surrender their city. Then we and our forces will go up to the peaks of the mountains nearby and camp there to make sure no one departs from the city.

14 They and their wives and their children will waste away from starvation, and before the sword can come against them they will already be struck down in the streets where they live.

15 So you will repay them an evil recompense, because they rebelled and did not meet with you in peace.”

16 And their words pleased Holofernes and all his servants, and he gave command that they do just as they said. 17 So the forces of the Ammonites departed, along with five thousand Assyrians, and they set up camp in the valley and captured the springs, the water supply for the Israelites. 18 Then the Edomites and the Ammonites came up and camped in the hills facing Dothan, and from there they dispatched some of their troops to the south and east, toward Egrebeh, near Chusi beside the brook Mochmur. The remainder of the Assyrian forces camped on the plain and spread out over the whole countryside, and their tents and the supply lines expanded everywhere, an enormous array.

19 Then the children of Israel were disheartened, and they cried out to the Lord their God. Their enemies had them surrounded, and there was no way for them to escape. 20 The entire army of Assyrians—their infantry, chariots, and their cavalry—encircled them for thirty-four days, and all the water containers of the citizens of Bethulia stood empty.† 21 Their cisterns were dried up, and there was not one day in which there was enough water to drink, for the water was rationed. 22 Their children became listless, and their women and youths fainted from thirst and collapsed in the city streets and in the gateways, for there was no longer any strength in them.

The People Want Surrender

23 Then all the people, the youths, the women, and the children, crowded around Uzziah and the leaders of the city. With loud voices they cried out before all the elders, saying, 24 “May God judge between you and us! For you have done us a great wrong by not making peace with the Assyrians.† 25 For now there is none to help us. And God has delivered us into the hands of them who laid us low in thirst and in great destruction. 26 So call to them and surrender the whole city to be plunder to the army of Holofernes and all his forces. 27 For it is better for us to be plunder to them, for we shall become their slaves, but our lives will be saved, and we will not have to watch our infants die before our eyes, and our wives and children breathing their last. 28 We call all of heaven and earth to witness against you and entreat our God, the Lord of our fathers, who is punishing us according to our sins and the sins of our fathers, do according to these words spoken this very day.”

29 And with one accord, a great mourning broke out in the midst of the whole assembly, and with a loud voice they cried out to the Lord God. 30 But Uzziah spoke to them, “Brothers, take courage, and let us endure yet five more days, in which the Lord our God will return His mercy to us. He will not utterly forsake us. 31 But if these days come and go, and no help reaches us, I will do as you say.”

32 Then he dismissed the people to their various posts, and they went up on the walls and watchtowers of their city, and he sent the women and children home. And they were in great misery in the city.

Judith Upbraids the Rulers of Bethulia

In those days, Judith got word of this matter. She was the daughter of Merari, the son of Ox, the son of Joseph, the son of Oziel, the son of Elkiah, the son of Ananias, the son of Gideon, the son of Raphaim, the son of Ahitub, the son of Elijah, the son of Hilkiah, the son of Eliab, the son of Nathanael, the son of Salamiel, the son of Sarasadai, the son of Israel.†

2 And her husband was Manasseh, of her own tribe and family. He had died at the time of the barley harvest. 3 For as he supervised those binding the sheaves in the field, he was overcome with heat stroke and fell on his bed and died in his city of Bethulia. They buried him with his fathers in the field lying between Dothan and Balamon.

4 Judith remained a widow in her house for three years and four months, 5 setting up a tent for herself on the rooftop of her house, and she wrapped sackcloth around her waist and wore the garments of her widowhood.† 6 She fasted every day of her widowhood, except for the day preceding the Sabbaths, the Sabbath days themselves, the eves of the new moons and the new moons, and the feasts and days of celebrations of the house of Israel.† 7 Beautiful in stature, she was very lovely to look upon. Manasseh, her husband, left her gold and silver, men and women servants, and livestock and fields. She kept up this property, and 8 no one spoke ill of her, for she feared God and was devoted to Him.

9 When Judith heard the angry words the people spoke against the rulers, being weak for want of water, and the things Uzziah said to them, by oath promising them after five days to surrender the city to the Assyrians, \(^{10}\) she sent her faithful maid, who was responsible for all her possessions, to call on Chabris and Charmis, elders of the city. \(^{†} 11\) They came to her, and she said to them, “Listen to me now, rulers of the people of Bethulia! Your words spoken today to the people are not right, nor is the oath you have sworn and pronounced between God and yourselves, promising to surrender the city to our adversaries unless the Lord turns and helps you in so many days.

\(^{12}\) “Now who are you to have put God to the test this day, setting yourselves up as God’s equal among the sons of men? \(^{13}\) You are testing the Lord Almighty, but you will never come to know anything! \(^{14}\) You cannot plumb the depths of the heart of man, nor grasp the thoughts of his mind. How then do you expect to search out God, who made all these things, and come to understand His mind or comprehend His purpose? No, brothers! Do not provoke the Lord our God to anger. \(^{15}\) For if He does not wish to come to our aid within five days, He has the power to protect us anytime He pleases, or even to destroy us before the face of our enemies. \(^{16}\) But do not put a time bind on the purposes of the Lord our God, for He is not to be threatened as is a man, nor to be coaxed as a human being.

\(^{17}\) Therefore, while we await His deliverance, let us call upon Him to help us, and if it pleases Him He will hear our voice. \(^{†} 18\) For there has not arisen in our generation, nor has there been in this present time any tribe or family or people or city of ours that bowed down to gods made with hands, as happened in earlier times. \(^{19}\) Because of this, our fathers were given over to the sword and to pillage, and that is why they suffered a great defeat before our enemies. \(^{20}\) But we know no other god but Him; therefore we have hope He will not disregard us nor any of our nation. \(^{21}\) For if we are seized, all Judea will fall, and our sanctuary will be plundered, and He will make us accountable for its profanation with our blood. \(^{22}\) For the slaughter of our brethren, the captivity of our land, and the desolation of our inheritance He will bring upon our heads, regardless of where we are enslaved among the Gentiles. We will be an offense and a reproach in the eyes of those who master us. \(^{23}\) For our servitude will not be to our benefit; rather, the Lord our God will turn it to humiliation.

\(^{24}\) Now my brothers, let us set an example for our people, for their very lives depend upon us. Furthermore, the sanctuary, the temple, and the altar rest upon us. \(^{25}\) Besides all this, let us be thankful to the Lord our God, who is testing us just as He did our fathers. \(^{26}\) Remember His actions toward Abraham and how He put Isaac to the test. Recall what happened to Jacob in Mesopotamia of Syria while shepherd to the sheep of Laban, the brother of his mother.

27For He has not tested us with the fire, even as He did them, to search out their hearts. Nor has He punished us. Rather, the Lord scourges those drawing near to Him as a warning.”

Uzziah's Answer

28Then Uzziah said to her, “All that you said you spoke with a good heart, and there is no one who will oppose your words. 29This is not the first day on which your wisdom has been evident, but from your earliest years all the people have recognized your understanding, because the disposition of your heart is good. 30But the people are very thirsty, and they compelled us to do just as we spoke to them and caused us to take an oath which we will not break. 31Now pray for us, since you are a devout woman, that the Lord will send rain to fill our cisterns, and we shall not faint from thirst again.”

32Then Judith replied to them, “Hear me, and I will do something which will be known unto all the generations of our descendants.† 33You must stand at the gate tonight, and I will go out with my maid, and within these days in which you promised to surrender the city to our enemies, the Lord will deliver Israel by my hand. 34But you must not ask me what I am going to do, because I will not tell what I am going to do until I complete the task.”

35So Uzziah and the rulers said to her, “Go in peace, and may the Lord God go before you to take vengeance upon our adversaries.” 36So they left the tent and returned to their posts.

The Prayer of Judith

9 Then Judith prostrated herself, put ashes upon her head, and uncovered the sackcloth which she had put on. And at the time of the evening incense being offered in the house of God in Jerusalem, Judith cried out to the Lord with a loud voice and prayed:†

2“O Lord God of my father Simeon, to whom You gave a sword for vengeance against the foreigners who loosened the girdle of the virgin to defile her, and disgracefully exposed her thighs, and violated her body to humiliate her, for You had said, ‘It shall not be done,’ and yet they did it.† 3So You gave their rulers over to be killed, and their bed, which was ashamed of their deceit, they themselves being deceived, to be stained with blood. You struck down the servants along with their princes, and princes on their thrones. 4You gave their wives over to plunder and their daughters to captivity, and all their spoils You divided among Your beloved sons, those who were zealous with Your zeal and abhorred the defilement of their blood, and called upon You to help. O God, my God, hear me also, a widow!

5“For You did those things and the things that occurred before and those that followed after; and You have planned the ones present, and the ones for the future. 6And the things You have determined present themselves and say, ‘Behold, we are here’; for all Your ways are prepared beforehand, and Your judgment is by foreknowledge.

7“For behold, the Assyrians are multiplied in their strength. They are exalted with horses and riders. They glory in the strength of their infantry; they hope in shield and spear, in bow and sling, but they do not know that You the Lord crush wars; 8the Lord is Your name. Break their might by Your might, and tear down their power in Your anger; for they intend to defile Your sanctuary and desecrate the tent where Your glorious name rests, and to cut off the horns of Your altar with the sword. 9Behold their arrogance. Send Your wrath upon their heads. Grant to the hand of the widow to do what I plan. 10By the deceit of my lips, strike down the slave with the ruler and the ruler with his servant. Crush their pride by the hand of a woman.

11“For Your might is not in numbers, nor Your power in men who are strong, but You are the God of the lowly; You are the helper of the oppressed, the defender of the weak, the protector of those who are forsaken, the savior of those without hope. 12Yes, O God of my father and God of the inheritance of Israel, Lord of heaven and earth, Creator of the waters, King of all Your creation, attend to my prayer! 13Cause my deceitful words to be their wound and a bruise to those who planned cruelty against Your covenant, and Your holy house, and Mount Zion, and against the house Your sons possess. 14Make Your entire nation and every tribe to know and understand that You are God, the God of all power and might, that there is none other who protects the people of Israel but You only.”

Judith Begins to Execute Her Plan

10 When she had ceased crying to the God of Israel and had completed all her words, 2she arose from where she had prostrated herself, and summoned her maid and went down into the house, where she lived on the Sabbaths and her feast days. 3There she took off the sackcloth she was wearing and removed her widow's garments. She washed her body with water and anointed herself with precious ointment. She braided her hair and put a headdress on her head, and put on festive attire she had worn when her husband Manasseh was alive.

She placed sandals on her feet, and put on her bracelets, her anklets, her rings, earrings, and all her jewelry. She made herself very beautiful, inviting to the eyes of all the men who might look on her. Then she gave her maid a flask of wine and a cruse of oil, and filled a bag with grain and a cake of dried fruit and a loaf of bread; all these items she wrapped up together and gave them to her maid.

Then they went out to the gate of the city of Bethulia and found Uzziah standing there with the elders of the city, Chabris and Charmis. And they saw her, and her face was changed and her clothing was different, and they marveled at her beauty and said to her, "May the God of our fathers grant you favor and fulfill your pursuits, to the exaltation of the sons of Israel and the glory of Jerusalem."

She bowed down to God and said to them, "Order the gates of the city to be opened, and I will go out to fulfill the words you spoke with me." They commanded the young men to open the gates as she had requested. And so they did, and Judith went out along with her maid, and the men of the city watched her until she went down the mountain and crossed the valley, until they could no longer see her.

The women traveled straight through the valley, and an Assyrian patrol met her. They seized her and asked, "Who are you, and where are you coming from, and where are you going?" She replied, "I am a daughter of the Hebrews, and I am fleeing from them, because they are about to be given over to you to be devoured. I have come to see Holofernes, the commander of your forces, to give him an accurate report. I will show him the way he can go out and take all the hill country captive without losing the body or the life of any of his men."

And as the men listened to her words, and beheld her face—for she was wondrously beautiful in their eyes—they said to her, "You have spared your life by hastening to come down to see our lord. Now come with us to his tent, and we will escort you to him, to deliver you to him. When you stand before him, do not be fainthearted, but report to him just as you said, for he will treat you well.

They then chose a hundred men from among them to escort her and her maid, and they brought them to Holofernes’ tent.

There came about quite a commotion throughout the entire camp, for the rumor of her arrival quickly spread among the tents. They came and gathered around her as she stood..."
outside the tent of Holofernes while they announced her presence to him. They marveled at her beauty, and because of her, they wondered about the Israelites. Each said to his neighbor, “Who will dare despise this people with a woman like this among them? Surely it is not wise to leave even one of their men alive, for if we let them go they will be able to outwit the whole world!”

Judith Meets Holofernes

Then those guarding Holofernes and all his servants came out and led her into the tent.
Holofernes was reclining on his couch under a canopy of purple and gold, emeralds and other precious stones. When they told him of her being there, he came out, preceded by silver lamps, to the entrance of the tent. And when Judith came in before him and his servants, they were taken by the beauty of her face. She prostrated herself, paying homage to him, but his servants lifted her up.

Then Holofernes spoke to her, saying, “Woman, take courage; do not be fearful in your heart. I have never hurt anyone who chooses to serve Nebuchadnezzar, king of the whole earth. Even now, if your people inhabiting the hill country had not held me in such low regard, I would not have lifted my spear against them. Rather, they did this to themselves. Now tell me why you have fled from them and come to us, for you have come to a safe place. Take courage! You shall live tonight and from this day forward. No one will harm you, but they will treat you well, as they do all the servants of my lord, King Nebuchadnezzar.”

Then Judith said to him, “Receive the words of your servant, and permit your handmaid to speak in your presence. I will say nothing untrue to my lord tonight. And if you carry out all the words of your handmaid, God shall do something great through you, and my lord shall not fail in his pursuits. For Nebuchadnezzar, king of all the earth, lives, and the power of him who sent you to set aright every soul prevails. Not only does all mankind serve him because of you, but because of your strength even the wild animals of the field, the beasts of burden, and the birds of the heaven shall live for Nebuchadnezzar and his whole house. For we heard of your wisdom and the great accomplishments of your life, and it is spoken throughout the whole earth that you alone are noble in all the kingdom, competent in knowledge, and remarkable in military strategy.
9“Now as for the words Achior spoke in your council, we have heard these things. For the men of Bethulia spared his life, and he told them all the things he had spoken to you.

11“And now, so that my lord not be defeated and unsuccessful, death will come upon them, for a sin has overtaken them by which they will provoke their God, when they do that which is not proper. 12Since their food supply gave out and water is scarce, they have determined to kill their animals and to consume all that God in His laws specifically told them not to eat. 13They further resolved to consume the firstfruits of the grain and the tithes of wine and oil they sanctified and reserved for the priests in Jerusalem, who serve in the presence of our God—things not lawful for any person to touch with his hands. 14And they have sent people to Jerusalem to bring permission back from the council of elders, because those living there have done these things. 15And it will come to pass when the response is reported to them, and they act on it, on that same day they will be delivered over to you to be crushed.

16“When I, your handmaid, learned of this, I fled from these people. And God sent me to do some things with you, by which all the earth will be astonished when they learn of them. 17For your servant is God-fearing, serving the God of heaven night and day. Now, my lord, I will stay here with you, but each night your handmaid will go out in the valley, and I will pray to God, and He will tell me when they have committed their sins.† 18At that hour I will come and inform you, and you shall go out with all your army, and none of them will be able to resist you. 19Then I will bring you through the midst of Judea until you reach Jerusalem. There I will place your chariot in their midst, and you will guide them like sheep who have no shepherd; not even a dog shall growl at you. This was made known to me as a gift of foreknowledge, and I have been sent to report this to you.”

leanorines is Taken by Judith's Plan

20What she said pleased Holofernes and all his servants. They admired her wisdom and said, 21“There is not such a woman of beauty and with the wisdom of words from one end of the earth to the other.” 22Holofernes spoke to her, saying, “It is good that God sent you here, ahead of your people. You bring strength to our hands and demise to those who disparaged my lord. 23You not only look beautiful, but you are wise in your words. If you will do as you
12 He then gave the order to have her brought into where his silver service was kept, and he commanded them to prepare some of his own delicacies for her and his wine to drink. 2“I will not eat any of this,” Judith said, “lest it cause offense. But I will be supplied by the provisions I brought with me.” 3Then Holofernes told her, “If your provisions run out, where do we obtain more of the same? For no one from your people is with us.” 4Then Judith answered him, “My lord, even as you live, your handmaid will not use up what I brought with me until the Lord completes by my hand what He has purposed.”

5Then Holofernes’ servants led her into the tent, where she slept until midnight. She rose as the morning watch approached, 6and sent a message to Holofernes, saying, “My lord, let the command be given to allow your handmaid to go out and pray.” 7So Holofernes ordered his guards not to detain her. So she stayed in the camp for three days, but each night she went out into the valley of Bethulia and washed in the water from the spring of the camp. 8When she came up out of the water, she prayed to the Lord God of Israel to guide her way for the victory of His people. 9So, returning cleansed, she remained in the tent until her evening meal was offered to her.

Holofernes’ Feast.

10It came to be on the fourth day that Holofernes hosted a banquet just for his personal staff. None of the officers were invited. 11He spoke to Bagoas, a eunuch who was in charge of his private affairs, saying, “Now go and persuade the Hebrew woman you care for to join us to eat and drink. 12It would be disgraceful to us if we allowed such a woman to be neglected, for if we do not seduce her she will laugh at us.”

13Then Bagoas departed from Holofernes’ presence and came to her and said, “Let not this beautiful handmaiden hesitate to come to my lord in the honor of his presence, and to drink wine with us in merriment. On this day you will be like one of the daughters of the Assyrians who serve in the house of Nebuchadnezzar.” 14Then Judith answered, “Why would I refuse my lord? For whatever is pleasing to him I will do immediately, and this will be a delight to me until the day I die.” 15So she arose and dressed herself in all her womanly finery. Her maid went on ahead to spread out the lambskins on the ground for her in front of Holofernes, which she had received from Bagoas for her use to recline on each day when she ate.†

Now when Judith came in and reclined, the very heart of Holofernes was ravished by her, and his deepest feelings were aroused. He was exceedingly desirous of her, and had been waiting for the moment to seduce her since the first time he saw her.†

Then Holofernes said to her, “Drink and be merry with us.” 18 Judith replied, “Indeed, my lord, I will happily drink now, for this is the best day of my entire life.” 19 Then taking what her maid prepared, she ate and drank before him. 20 Holofernes was delighted because of her, and he drank more wine than in any one day since birth.

Judith Beheads Holofernes

When evening came, his servants quickly departed, and Bagoas shut the tent from the outside and dismissed the waiters from the presence of his lord. They all went to bed, being very tired, for the banquet had lasted a long time. 2 Judith was left alone in the tent as Holofernes was sprawled out on his bed, for he had become unconscious from the wine.†

Now Judith had instructed her faithful maid to remain outside the bedchamber and wait for her to emerge, just like she did on other days, for she said she would go out to pray, and she had told Bagoas the same thing.

So everyone left, with no one great or small remaining in his bedchamber. Then Judith stood next to his bed and said in her heart, “O Lord, God of all strength, look down at this hour on the works of my hands for the glory of Jerusalem.†

For now is the time to aid Your inheritance, and to help carry out my plan for the destruction of the enemies who have risen against us.” 5 Then she approached the bedpost, near the head of Holofernes. She took out his sword which hung there.†

She then came closer to the bed, and taking hold of the hair on his head, she said, “O Lord God of Israel, at this moment strengthen me.” 8 Then she struck his neck twice with all her might and cut off his head. 9 She then rolled his body off the bed and tore down the canopy from the posts. Next she stepped outside and gave the head of Holofernes to her maid, 10 who put it into her food bag.

Judith Returns to Bethulia

Then the two of them together went out to pray, as was their custom. Passing through the camp, they went down around the valley, and up the mountain of Bethulia until they reached
And from a distance Judith cried out to the guards at the gates and said, “Open! Open the gate! God, our God, is with us! He yet shows His strength in Israel and His might against our adversaries, just as He has done this day!” When the men of her city heard her voice, they ran with haste down to the gate of the city and called the elders of the city together. From the least to the greatest they quickly gathered, for they considered it incredible that she had come back, and they thrust open the gate and welcomed the women. They then built a fire for light, and everyone crowded around them.

Then with a loud voice Judith said to them, “Praise God! Praise Him! Praise God! For He has not taken away His mercy from the house of Israel, but by my hand He has shattered our enemies this very night!” Then she took the head out of the bag, displaying it to them, and said, “Behold the head of Holofernes, commander of the Assyrian army. And this is the canopy under which he lay in his drunkenness. The Lord struck him dead by the hand of a woman. As the Lord lives, who guarded me in the path I have walked, my face deceived him to his demise. Yet he committed no sin toward me, either to defile me or shame me.”

All the people were completely astounded, and they bowed down to worship God, saying with one voice, “Blessed are You, our God, who this very day brought the enemies of Your people to nothing.”

Uzziah said to her, “You are blessed by the Most High God, O daughter, above all other women on the earth. Blessed be the Lord God, who created the heavens and the earth, who led you to sever the head of the chief of our adversaries. Your hope in Him will never depart from the hearts of men as they call to mind the power of God. May God grant this to you as an everlasting honor and reward you with blessings. For you did not spare your life on account of the humble state of our nation. Rather, you avenged our calamity, walking a straight path in the presence of our God.” And all the people responded, “Amen! Amen!”

Judith's Plan Continues

Then Judith said to them, “Hear me, my friends; take this head and hang it at the top of the city wall at daybreak. Then when the sun comes up on the horizon, let every able-bodied man take up his weapons and appoint a captain over them. March out of the city as though you were going down to the plain against the outposts of the Assyrians, but do not go down. Then they will take up their weapons and head into their camp and awaken the officers of the Assyrian army. They will hurry together to Holofernes’ tent, but they will not find him. Panic will overcome them, and they will run from you. 4 Then you and all those who dwell inside the boundaries of Israel shall pursue them and kill them as they flee. 5 But before you do these things, call Achior the Ammonite to me so he may look upon and recognize the man who hated the house of Israel and sent him to us as though to his death.”†

So they sent for Achior from Uzziah's house, and when he came he saw the head of Holofernes held in the hand of a man in the assembly of the people. He fell on his face and fainted. 7 But when they picked him up, he fell prostrate at the feet of Judith, and bowing before her, said, “Blessed are you in all the tents of Judea. Those who hear your name in every nation will tremble. 8 But for now, explain to me everything you did during these days.”

Then, in the midst of the people, Judith told him the many things she had done since the day she departed until the time she was speaking with them. 9 And as she completed her report, the people shouted loudly, making jubilant noise in the city. 10 And when Achior saw all the things the God of Israel had accomplished, he believed in God profoundly, was circumcised, and has been membered with the house of Israel until this day. †

11 At daybreak, they hung the head of Holofernes on the wall, and every man seized his weapons. They then marched out in companies to the mountain passes. 12 And when the Assyrian forces saw them, they notified their captains, and they went in turn to the generals, the captains, and all their officers. 13 They went to the tent of Holofernes and said to the man in charge of all his affairs, “Awaken our lord at once, for the slaves dare to come down to wage war against us, to their total destruction.”

14 Then Bagoas went in and knocked at the door of the tent, for he presumed Holofernes was sleeping with Judith. 15 When there was no answer, he opened the door and entered the bedchamber. He found him sprawled out on the floor, a corpse without a head. 16 With a loud voice he cried out, weeping and groaning. Shouting out, he tore his garments. 17 He then went to the tent where Judith had lodged. Unable to find her, he ran out to the people and cried out, 18 “The slaves deceived us! A single woman of the Hebrews has brought shame upon the house of King Nebuchadnezzar! Come and see—Holofernes is sprawled on the ground and his head is gone.” 19 When the Assyrian army officers heard these words, they tore their tunics and were in a state of great turmoil. They cried aloud, shouting in the midst of the camp.
When those in their tents heard the wailing, they were utterly astounded at what had happened. Fear and trembling came over them, and not waiting for each other, they all impulsively ran out of the camp and fled in every direction through the valley and the hill country. Even those who had been camping in the hill country outside Bethulia arose and fled. Then every warrior amongst the Israelites rushed out against them. Uzziah dispatched his men to Betomasthem, and to Bebai and Choba and Kola and to all the regions of Israel to report on what had happened, in order that they would all hurry out to face their enemies and destroy them. So when word came to the Israelites, they came upon them with one accord and smote them as far away as Choba. Likewise, when told what had happened in the enemy camp, even those from Jerusalem and the surrounding hill country came out. And those from Gilead and Galilee outflanked them, inflicting massive slaughter, well beyond Damascus and its boundaries. The inhabitants of Bethulia who remained there descended on the Assyrian camp, plundering it, and were greatly enriched. Soon the Israelite forces came back from the slaughter, taking possession of the spoils, as did those in the villages and towns of the hill country and the plain. They took much of the plunder, for it was there in great quantity.

Then Joakim the high priest and the elders of Israel dwelling in Jerusalem came to observe the great things the Lord had done for His people, and to see Judith and to greet her. When they met with her, with one accord they blessed her and told her, “You are the glory of Jerusalem, the heroine of Israel, the pride of our people! You accomplished all these things by your own hand. You brought about good things for Israel, and God is well pleased with them. May you be eternally blessed by the Almighty Lord.” And the people all said, “Amen!”

The people pillaged the camp for thirty days, giving Judith Holofernes’ tent, all his silver service, his couches, his bowls, and all his furnishings. Some of these she loaded on her mules, and she harnessed them to her wagons and stacked the rest on them. Then all the women of Israel assembled to see her. They blessed her and performed a dance to honor her. And she took woven branches in her hands, and presented them to these women. And she and those with her crowned themselves with garlands of olive wreaths. She stepped out before all the dancers, leading all the women. At the same time, the men of Israel followed, bearing their weapons, clothed with garlands and singing songs of praise. Then Judith began singing a hymn of thanks before all Israel, and the people responded heartily with this
And Judith said: “Begin a hymn to my God with tambourines,

Sing to the Lord with cymbals;
Lift to Him a new psalm,
Exalt Him, and call upon His name.

For God is the Lord who makes wars cease,
For into His camps, into the midst of His people,
He rescued me from the hands of those pursuing me.†

The Assyrian descended from the mountains of the north;
He came with the countless numbers of his army,
Whose multitude blocked up the rivers,
And his cavalry covered the hills.‡

He said he would set my territory on fire,
And slaughter my young men with the sword,
And dash my nursing babies on the ground,
And take my children as plunder
And my virgins as spoils of war.

But the Lord Almighty has thwarted them
By the hand of a woman.†

For their mighty man did not fall by our young men,
Nor did the Titans’ sons strike him down,
Nor did tall giants attack him,
But Judith, daughter of Merari,
In the beauty of her appearance disabled him.‡

For she took off the garment of her widowhood
To exalt those afflicted in Israel,
And anointed her face with perfume,
And bound her hair with a headband,
And put on a linen garment to entice him.

Her sandals caught his eyes,
Her beauty captured his mind,
And the sword slashed his neck.
The Persians shuddered at her courage,
And the Medes were disturbed at her daring.
Then my downhearted people raised the war cry,
And my weak ones cried out, and the enemies were terrified;
They raised up their voices, and the enemy was overthrown.
The sons of the handmaidens stabbed them,
And wounded them as the offspring of fugitives;
They were destroyed by the army of the Lord.

I will sing a new song to my God:
Great are You, O Lord, and glorious,
Marvelous in power and unsurpassable.
Let all Your creation serve You,
For You spoke, and they were created;
You sent Your Spirit, and He formed them.
There is nothing which can resist Your voice.
For the mountains with the waters shall be shaken at their foundations,
And at Your presence, the rocks shall be melted as beeswax.
And yet You are merciful to those who fear You.
For every sacrifice as a sweet-smelling offering is like nothing,
And the fat in the whole burnt offerings is like nothing to You;
But he who fears the Lord is great in all things.
Woe to the nations that rise up against My people;
The Lord Almighty will punish them on the day of judgment;
He will give them over to fire and worms in their flesh;
In pain they shall weep forever.

When they came to Jerusalem, they worshiped God; and when they were purified, they offered their burnt offerings, freewill offerings, and their gifts. And Judith dedicated all the property of Holofernes that the people gave to her, along with the canopy which she herself had taken from his bedchamber, as a votive offering to God. For three months, the people in Jerusalem feasted continually before the sanctuary, and Judith stayed with them.

The End of Judith's Days

After these days everyone returned home, and Judith went to Bethulia and lived at her estate. She was honored throughout the entire country for the rest of her days. Many men desired her, but she married no man during the remaining days of her life, after Manasseh her husband died and was buried with his people.† 23She became greatly renowned, and she grew old in the house of her husband until she reached the age of one hundred five years. She freed her maid, then died in Bethulia. They buried her in the tomb of Manasseh, her husband, 24and she was mourned by the house of Israel for seven days. Before her death, she gave her possessions to all who were nearest of kin to her husband Manasseh, and to her own nearest of kin. 25And no one again brought fear to the people of Israel in the days of Judith, nor for a long while after she died.

The Book of Esther

Author—By tradition, Mordecai (9:20, 29).

Date—About 450 BC, after the fall of Babylon.

Major Theme—Divine providence of God in taking care of His people in adversity when they pray to Him and trust in Him. The Jews fasted and prayed when they learned of an evil plot to destroy them. Esther, an orphan, was chosen by King Xerxes (Ahasuerus) to replace the Persian queen. It was because of her royal position that she was able to persuade the king to save her people. Similar patterns to the rise of Esther as queen may be seen in the rise of Joseph to the court of the Pharaoh and the rise of Daniel in the court of Babylon.

Background—The Book of Esther is an account of the Jews who chose to remain in Susa, Persia, after Cyrus gave them a decree to return to Jerusalem (2Ez 1:1–4). Thus, 2 Ezra fits in time between chapters 6 and 7 of Esther, linking the Book of Esther to the time of Ezra and Nehemiah. Haman's effort to eradicate the Jews is the last major effort to destroy them before the time of the Maccabees. God promised to give rest to the Israelites (Dt 25:19), and with Haman's execution the Jews have rest from their enemies.

Introduction: Mordecai's Prophetic Dream

1a In the second year of the reign of the great King Artaxerxes, on the first day of Nisan, Mordecai, the son of Jair, son of Shimei, the son of Kish, of the tribe of Benjamin, had a dream.† 1b He was a Jewish man living in the city of Susa, a great man who served in the court of the king. He was from the captives Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had deported from Jerusalem with Jechoniah the king of Judah. And this was his dream:

Behold, there was noise and tumult, thunder and earthquake—confusion on the earth. Two great dragons came forth, both ready for combat. A great roar came forth from them, and at the sound of them, every nation prepared to wage war against the nation of the just. And indeed, it was a day of gloom and of darkness, tribulation and anguish, oppression and great confusion upon the earth. The entire upright nation was troubled, fearing the evils against them; they were prepared to perish, and they cried out to God. And at their cry there came forth, as it were from a small spring, a great river having abundant water. There was light, and the sun rose, and the lowly were exalted, and they devoured the esteemed.

Mordecai, who had seen this vision and what God was planning to do, awoke. He kept it in his heart and wished to ponder it until night.

A Plot against the King.

Then Mordecai rested in the courtyard with Gabatha and Tharra, the king's two eunuchs who guarded the courtyard. He overheard their words and considered their anxieties, and he realized they were preparing to lay hands upon the king, and he informed the king about them. Then the king interrogated the two eunuchs, and they confessed and were led away to be executed. The king made a memorandum of these matters, and Mordecai also wrote about these matters. And the king commanded Mordecai to serve in the court, and he gave him gifts for this service. But Haman, the son of Hamadatha the Agagthite, was held in high honor before the king, and he sought for ways to bring harm to Mordecai and his people because of the two eunuchs of the king.

King Artaxerxes’ Banquet.

It came to pass, after these matters, in the days of Artaxerxes (this is the same Artaxerxes who reigned over the hundred and twenty-seven provinces, from India to Ethiopia), in the days when King Artaxerxes sat on the throne in the city of Susa, that in the third year of his reign he gave a feast for his friends and the rest of the nations, and for the nobles of the Persians and the Medes and the chiefs of the satraps. And after these things, that is after he had displayed the wealth of his kingdom and the glory of the joy of his riches for one hundred eighty days, when the days of the celebration were completed, the king set forth a banquet in the court of the king's palace for six days for the people living in the city. The courtyard was adorned with fine white linen curtains stretched out on cords of purple and fastened to square gold and silver studs, on pillars of marble and stone. And the couches were of gold and silver on a mosaic pavement of emerald stone, mother of pearl, and marble, and transparent coverings variously adorned with colorful flowers and encircled with embroidered roses. There were gold and silver cups, and a ruby goblet set out, worth thirty thousand talents, and there was an abundance of sweet wine, which the king himself drank. Now this banquet was not in keeping with established law; but this is what the king desired, and he ordered all the stewards of his household, those of his men, to do his will. Queen Vashti also provided a banquet for the women in the royal palace of King Artaxerxes.

Queen Vashti Dishonors the King

Now on the seventh day, the king was merry and told Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagtha, Zethar, and Carcas—the seven eunuchs, the servants of King Artaxerxes—to bring the queen before him, to enthrone her and to place the royal crown upon her, to show her beauty to the rulers and the nations, for she was beautiful. But Queen Vashti did not heed his words and refused to come with the eunuchs. The king was distressed and angry.

The king said to his friends, “Thus has Vashti spoken; follow the law and justice concerning this.” And Arkesaios, Sarsathaios and Memucan, the nobles of the Persians and Medes, those near to the king and first in rank by the king, went to him. They reported to him what according to the laws was to be done to the queen Vashti, because she did not do as commanded by King Artaxerxes by way of the eunuchs. And Memucan said to the king and the princes, “Queen Vashti has not only wronged the king, but also all the king's rulers and nobles.” He reported the words of the queen, and how she contradicted the king, and how she disobeyed King Artaxerxes: “Thus today the royal ladies of the rulers of the Persians and the Medes, hearing the words which were spoken to the king, will dare to dishonor their husbands in the same way. If it pleases the king, let him make a royal decree, and let it be written according to the laws of the Persians and the Medes, and let it not be declared otherwise, that the queen no longer come before him, and let the king give her royal position to a woman better than she. And let the decree of the king, which he shall have made, be proclaimed throughout his kingdom, and thus all wives will honor their husbands, from the poor to the rich.”

21 And the word pleased the king and the nobles, and the king did just as Memucan said.

22 He then sent out to his entire kingdom, throughout the provinces, according to their own language, that husbands be feared in their own houses.†

The Search for a New Queen

And after these words the wrath of the king subsided, and he no longer mentioned Vashti, remembering either what she had said or how he had condemned her.†

2Then the king's servants who attended him said, “Let beautiful young virgins be sought for the king,

3 and let the king appoint officers in all the provinces of his kingdom, that they may gather all the beautiful young virgins to the city of Susa into the women's quarters, under the custody of the king's eunuch, custodian of the women. And let beauty preparations be given them.

4 And let the young woman who pleases the king be queen instead of Vashti.” This thing pleased the king, and he did so.

Now there was a Jewish man in the city of Susa whose name was Mordecai, son of Jair, son of Shimei, son of Kish, of the tribe of Benjamin,

6 who was an exile from Jerusalem, whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had taken captive.

7 He had raised the daughter of Abihail, his father's brother, and her name was Esther; and when her parents died, he brought her up to be his wife, and she was beautiful.†

Esther Chosen Queen

8 So when the king's ordinance was heard, many young maidens were gathered together in the city of Susa, under the custody of Hegai, and Esther was brought to Hegai, the custodian of the women.

9 And the young woman pleased him and found favor in his sight. He hastened to give beauty treatments to her, and her portion, and the seven young maidens appointed to her from the palace. He himself treated her and her maidservants well in the women's quarters.

10 But Esther did not reveal her people or her family, for Mordecai charged her not to reveal it.

11 And every day Mordecai walked about the courtyard of the women to see what would happen to Esther.

12 Now this was the time for a young woman to go in to the king, after she had completed twelve months, for thus are the days of preparation fulfilled: six months being anointed with oil of myrrh, and six months with perfumes and beauty treatments for women.\textsuperscript{13} After this, she goes to the king, and she shall be allowed to bring whatever she asks with her from the women's quarters into the royal palace. \textsuperscript{14} She enters in the evening, and towards daybreak she departs quickly to the second women's quarters, where Shaashgaz, the king's eunuch, is the guardian of the women, and she does not go in to the king again unless she should be called by name.

15 Now when the time came for Esther the daughter of Abihail, the uncle of Mordecai, to go in to the king, she neglected nothing which the king's eunuch, the guardian of the women, commanded. Now Esther obtained favor in the sight of all who saw her. \textsuperscript{16} So Esther went in to King Artaxerxes in the tenth month, which is Tebeth, in the seventh year of his reign. \textsuperscript{17} And the king loved Esther, and she found favor beyond all the other virgins, and he placed the queen's crown on her. \textsuperscript{18} And the king gave a banquet for all his friends and nobles for seven days, and he exalted the marriage feast of Esther and granted a release to those under his reign.\textsuperscript{16}

19 And Mordecai was serving in the courtyard. \textsuperscript{20} Now Esther had not revealed her heritage, just as Mordecai commanded her when she was with him, which is to fear God and to keep His commandments, and Esther did not change her manner of life.\textsuperscript{17}

21 Now two of the king's eunuchs, the chiefs of the bodyguards, were furious because Mordecai had been promoted, and they sought to kill King Artaxerxes. \textsuperscript{22} And the matter was made known to Mordecai, and he informed Esther, and she made the details of the plot known to the king. \textsuperscript{23} The king examined the two eunuchs and hanged them. The king then ordered that a record remembering the good will of Mordecai be placed in the royal library.\textsuperscript{17}

3 After these things King Artaxerxes honored Haman, the son of Hammedatha the Agagite, and elevated him and set his seat above all his friends.\textsuperscript{17} \textsuperscript{2} All those in the court bowed to him, for thus the king commanded, but Mordecai refused to bow to him. \textsuperscript{3} Then those in the court said to Mordecai, “Mordecai, why do you ignore the king's command?” \textsuperscript{4} They said this to him daily, but he did not listen to them. And they informed Haman that Mordecai resisted the words of the king, and that Mordecai had revealed to them that he was a Jew. 5 When Haman learned that Mordecai did not bow to him, he became exceedingly angry, 6 and he determined to destroy all the Jews of the kingdom of Artaxerxes. 7 And he made a decree in the twelfth year of the reign of Artaxerxes, and he cast lots to determine the precise day and month to destroy the race of Mordecai on a single day, and the lot fell on the fourteenth day of the month, which is the month of Adar.†

8 Then Haman spoke to King Artaxerxes, saying, “There is a certain people scattered among the peoples throughout your kingdom; their laws are different from all other people, and they disregard the king's laws. Therefore it is not fitting for the king to let them remain.† 9 If it pleases the king, let him make a decree to destroy them. If so, I will pay ten thousand talents of silver into the king's treasury.” 10 So the king took off his signet ring and placed it into the hand of Haman in order to seal what was written against the Jews. 11 And the king said to Haman, “Keep the silver, and deal with those people as you wish.”

12 Then the king's scribes were called on the thirteenth day of the first month, and they wrote, as Haman commanded, to the commanders and the governors in the one hundred twenty-seven provinces stretching from India to Ethiopia, and to the rulers of the nations, in their own language. They wrote in the name of King Artaxerxes, 13 The letter was sent by couriers throughout the kingdom of Artaxerxes to utterly destroy the race of the Jews on a single day, in the twelfth month, which is Adar, and to plunder their possessions.

The Letter Sent to Destroy the Jews

13a The following is a copy of the letter:

The great King Artaxerxes, to the rulers in the hundred twenty-seven provinces from India to Ethiopia, and who hold authority under him, thus decrees:† 13b Ruling over many nations, and having gained dominion over all the world, not motivated by the power of authority, but ever conducting myself in moderation and unceasing gentleness, I was desiring to make the lives of my subjects continually tranquil and to maintain the kingdom calm and safe to its furthest borders, and to restore the peace desired by all men. 13c But when I inquired of my counselors how this should be done, Haman, who excels in good sense among us, and has been shown unwavering in good will and unshakeable in fidelity, and has attained the second place in the kingdom, 13d made known to us that there is a race of people full of ill will who are mixed in with all the other races throughout the whole world, whose laws are contrary to all the other nations, and they continually disregard the ordinances of the kings. Thus the joint administration, blamelessly administered by us, cannot be performed.

Therefore, we have determined that this people alone is in opposition to every other person, entertaining a strange code of laws, and not disposed to our affairs and perpetrating the worst evils, and thus the kingdom is not able to experience stability. Therefore, we have designated all those made known to you in the letters written by Haman, who is appointed over such matters and who is our second father, to root out and destroy all of them, with their wives and children, without any mercy, sparing no one, on the fourteenth day of the twelfth month Adar of this present year— that this race of people, both from before and until now hostile to us, violently going down to death in one day, may afterwards secure for us a time that is tranquil and an undisturbed state of affairs.

Copies of the letters were published throughout every province, and an order was given to all nations to be ready on that day. The matter was quickly dispatched also in Susa. And the king and Haman were drinking, but the city was troubled.

Mordecai Enlists Esther's Aid.

But Mordecai, learning what had happened, tore his clothes and put on sackcloth, and sprinkled ashes on himself, and running through the square of the city he cried out with a loud voice, “A people who have done no wrong are about to be destroyed!” He went as far as the king's gate, and there he waited, for it was not allowed for him to enter the courtyard wearing sackcloth and covered in ashes. And in every province where the king's command and decree arrived, there was great mourning among the Jews, with fasting, weeping, and wailing; and many lay in sackcloth and ashes. The queen's maids and eunuchs came and told her, and she was deeply distressed upon hearing of this situation. Then she sent garments to clothe Mordecai and take his sackcloth away from him, but he would not accept them.

Then Esther called Hathach, her eunuch who attended to her, and sent him out to learn for herself the details from Mordecai. Mordecai made known to him what had happened, and the offer Haman had made to the king to put ten thousand talents into the treasury to destroy the Jews. He also gave him a copy of the decree posted in Susa concerning their destruction to show it to Esther. He told him to instruct her to go in to the king and make supplication before him, and to plead before him for the people, remembering, said he, “the days of your low estate and how you were raised by my hand; because Haman, second to the king, spoke against us for our death. Call upon the Lord and speak to the king concerning us, and to deliver us from death!” So Hathach came and told her all these words.

Then Esther said to Hathach, “Go to Mordecai and say, ‘All the nations of the kingdom know that any man or woman who goes into the inner court to the king who has not been summoned, there is no deliverance for him unless the king holds out his golden scepter to save that person. And I have not been called to go in to the king for thirty days.’ ” So Hathach related all Esther's words to Mordecai.

And Mordecai said to Hathach, “Go and say to Esther, ‘Do not say to yourself that you alone will be saved in the kingdom apart from all the other Jews. For if you choose not to heed this request at this time, help and deliverance for the Jews will arise elsewhere, but you and your father's house will perish. Besides, who knows whether it is for this occasion you reign as queen?’ ” Then Esther dispatched the one who came to her to Mordecai, saying, “Go and assemble together the Jews in Susa. Fast for me; do not eat or drink for three full days and three full nights. I and my maids will also fast. Then I will go to the king, contrary to the law, even if I am to perish.” So Mordecai went and did all that Esther commanded him.

The Prayer of Mordecai

He then beseeched the Lord, remembering all the works of the Lord, and said, “O Lord, Lord, almighty King, all things are under Your power, and there is no one to oppose You in Your desire to save Israel. For You have made heaven and the earth, and every wondrous thing under heaven, and You are the Lord of all, and there is no one who shall resist You, Lord. You know all things: You know, O Lord, that it is not out of disrespect or arrogance or love of honor that I did this, to refuse to bow down to the haughty Haman, for I would have been happy to kiss the soles of his feet for the salvation of Israel. For I did this in order that I not place the glory of man above the glory of God. I will not bow down to anyone but You, my Lord, and I will not do these things out of arrogance.

And now, O Lord God, King, God of Abraham, save Your people, for they look upon us for our destruction, and they desire to destroy Your inheritance from the beginning. Do not disregard Your portion which You redeemed for Yourself out of the land of Egypt.
17h Hear my prayer and be merciful to Your inheritance. Turn our mourning into feasting so we may live and hymn Your name, O Lord. Do not destroy the mouth of those who praise You.”

17i Then all Israel cried out with all their might, for their death was before their eyes.

The Prayer of Esther

17j And Queen Esther, seized with the agony of death, fled to the Lord for refuge. And removing her royal garments, she put on the garments of distress and mourning. Instead of the magnificent perfumes, she covered her head with ashes and dirt. She humbled her body exceedingly. She set aside everything of her worldly joy, and her hair was unkempt. She implored the Lord God of Israel, and said:

17k “O My Lord, You alone are our King. Help me, who am alone and have no help but You! For my risk of danger is in my hand. 17l I have heard from my birth in the tribe of my family that You, O Lord, chose Israel out of all the nations, and our fathers out of all their ancestors, for an everlasting inheritance, and do for them whatever You have spoken. 17m Now we sinned before You, and You have delivered us into the hands of our enemies because we have worshiped their gods. O Lord, You are righteous. 17n But now they are not satisfied with the bitter state of our bondage, but they have pledged to their idols to abolish the decree You have spoken and to destroy Your inheritance, to close the mouths of those who praise You, and to extinguish the glory of Your temple and Your altar, 17o and to open the mouths of the heathen to proclaim the virtues of their false gods, and to extol a human king forever.

17t “You know all things, and You know I hate the glory of the lawless and abhor the bed of the uncircumcised and of every foreigner. 17u You know my necessity, for I abhor the symbol of my proud station which is upon my head on the days when I appear in public, as if it were a menstrual rag, and I do not wear it on the days I am alone. 17v Your handmaid has not eaten at the table of Haman, nor have I honored the banquet of the king, nor drunk the wine of libations. 17w Neither has Your handmaid rejoiced since the day of her elevation, except in You, O Lord, God of Abraham. 17x O God, who have power over all, hear the voice of us in despair, and deliver us from the hand of those acting wickedly, and deliver me from my fear.”

Esther Goes before the King

And it happened on the third day, when she ceased praying, she took off the garments of the solemnity, and put on her glorious apparel.† 2 And having become resplendent, appealing to the all-seeing God and Savior, she took with her two of her favorite maids. Upon the one she leaned as an elegant woman and the other maid followed behind her, bearing her train.† 3 She was aglow in the perfection of her beauty. Her face was as radiant as it was lovely, but her heart shrank with fear.† 4 And having entered through all the doors, she stood face to face with the king. He was sitting on his royal throne, clothed in all his glorious apparel, covered with gold and precious stones. He was awesome. 5 And as he looked up, resplendent in his glory, at the very edge of anger, the queen collapsed, her complexion paled, and she slumped against the head of the maid who went before her. 6 But God changed the spirit of the king to gentleness. And full of great concern, he leapt from his throne and held her in his arms until she recovered. He comforted her with calming words and said to her, 7 “Esther, what is it? I am your brother. Be of good cheer! You are not going to die because of this usual ordinance. Come near!” 8 And lifting his golden scepter, he laid it upon her neck, and he embraced her and said, “Speak to me.”

9 And she said to him, “I saw you, my lord, as an angel of God, and my heart was troubled for fear of your majesty, for you, my lord, are awesome, and your face is full of kindness.” 10 But while she was speaking to him, she fainted. And the king was troubled, and all his servants comforted her.

11 And the king said, “What do you want, Esther? What is your request? It shall be granted to you, even up to half my kingdom.”† 12 Then Esther said, “Today is my special day. If, therefore, it pleases the king, let both you and Haman come to the banquet which I will prepare for today.”† 13 And the king said, “Have Haman hasten here that we may do what Esther asks.” They both came to the banquet of which Esther spoke.
14 So at the banquet, the king said to Esther, “What is it, Queen Esther? Whatever you desire will be granted to you.” 15 And she said, “My request and my petition is this: If I find favor in the sight of the king, let the king and Haman also come tomorrow to the banquet which I will prepare for them, and tomorrow I will do the same.”

17 So Haman went out from the king overjoyed and cheerful, but when Haman saw Mordecai the Jew in the court, he was enraged. 18 And having entered his own home, he called his friends and his wife, Zeresh. 19 And he showed them his wealth and the honor the king had bestowed upon him, how he made him to be first and chief in the kingdom. 20 Haman added, “The queen invited no one else to be with the king at the banquet except me, and I am also invited tomorrow. 21 But these things do not please me when I see Mordecai the Jew in the courtyard.”

22 Then Zeresh his wife and friends said to him, “Have a tree cut down, fifty cubits high, and in the morning speak to the king and let Mordecai be hanged on the tree. But go with the king to the banquet and be merry.” Haman liked what they said, and the tree was made ready.

6 But the Lord made it difficult for the king to sleep that night, and the king commanded his servant to bring in the written records of notable events. 2 And he found the written records about Mordecai, how he had told the king about the two eunuchs of the king when they were keeping guard and sought to lay hands on Artaxerxes. 3 Then the king said, “Has any honor or favor been granted Mordecai?” And the king’s servants said, “Nothing was done for him.” 4 And at the same time the king asked about the good will of Mordecai, behold, Haman entered the courtyard. The king said, “Who is in the courtyard?” Haman had come in to talk to the king about hanging Mordecai on the gallows he had prepared. 5 And the king's servants said, “Behold, Haman is standing in the courtyard.” And the king said, “Let him come in.”
The king said to Haman, “What should I do for a man whom I wish to honor?” And Haman thought to himself, “Whom would the king wish to honor but me?” So Haman said to the king, “As for the man whom the king wishes to honor, have the king’s servant bring the royal robe the king wears, along with the horse he rides, and let these be given to one of the king’s honored friends, and let him clothe the man whom the king loves and then mount him upon the horse. And let it be proclaimed in the city square, saying, ‘Thus it shall be done for every man whom the king honors!’” Then the king said to Haman, “You have spoken well; thus you shall do to Mordecai the Jew, the one serving in the courtyard, and let no word you have spoken be overlooked.” So Haman took the robe and the horse and arrayed Mordecai with the robe, and mounted him on the horse; and he went throughout the city square, and proclaimed, saying, “Thus shall it be done to every man whom the king honors.”

Mordecai returned to the courtyard, but Haman returned to his own quarters grieving, with his head down. And Haman related these events to his wife Zeresh and his friends. Then his friends and wife said to him, “If Mordecai, before whom you are beginning to fall, is of the Jewish race, you will not be able to defend against him, for the living God is with him.” While they were still speaking, the king’s eunuchs came to hasten Haman to the banquet which Esther had prepared.

Esther's Second Banquet

So the king and Haman came to the banquet to drink together with the queen. And the king said to Esther on this second day of the banquet, “What is it, Queen Esther? What is your request? What is your petition? Let it be granted to you, even up to half my kingdom.” She said in reply, “If I have found favor in the sight of the king, let my life be given to me at my request, and my people at my petition. For both I and my people are sold into destruction, pillage, and bondage. We and our descendants have already been enslaved as male and female slaves, and I refuse to listen to this, for the accuser of my people is not worthy of the king's court.” Then the king said, “Who is this who dared to do this thing?” And Esther said, “The enemy is this wicked man, Haman.” Then Haman was troubled before the king and the queen.

Haman Is Hanged

The king arose from the banquet and went into the garden, but Haman was pleading with the queen, for he realized that he was in desperate circumstances. 8 The king returned from the garden, and Haman, while entreating the queen, had fallen upon the couch. And the king said, “So! Will you force yourself upon my wife in my own house?” And hearing this, Haman changed in his countenance. 9 Then Harbona, one of the eunuchs, said to the king, “Look! Haman has prepared a gallows for Mordecai, the one who spoke for the benefit of the king. A gallows fifty cubits high has been set up at Haman's place.” Then the king said, “Hang him on it!” 10 And Haman was hung on the gallows he had prepared for Mordecai. Then the wrath of the king was appeased.

Haman's Plot Is Thwarted.

On that day, King Artaxerxes gave Esther everything belonging to Haman the accuser. And Mordecai was summoned before the king, because Esther made known his relationship to her. 2 The king then took the signet ring he had taken from Haman and gave it to Mordecai. Then Esther appointed Mordecai over everything that belonged to Haman.

3 Again she fell down at the feet of the king, and she implored him to remove all the evils Haman had done to the Jews. 4 Then the king held out his golden scepter toward Esther. So Esther arose and stood beside the king and said, 5 “If it seems good to you, and I have found favor, let a letter be sent out to revoke the letters sent out by Haman, which were written to annihilate all the Jews in your kingdom. 6 For how can I be able to look upon the oppression of my people? How will I endure the destruction of my countrymen?”

Then the king said to Esther, “Since I granted you everything that belonged to Haman, and hung him from the gallows because he laid hands on the Jews, what else do you want? 8 Write it yourselves in my name, as it seems good to you, and seal it with my ring; for whatever is written by command of the king and sealed with my ring cannot be revoked.”

9 So the scribes were summoned in the first month, which is Nisan, on the twenty-third day of that same year. For whatever was ordered was written to the Jews, to the local governors, and to the chiefs of the satraps from India as far as Ethiopia, one hundred and twenty-seven provinces, to every place according to their own language. 10 So it was written by the authority of the king and sealed with his ring, and the letters were dispatched by couriers. 11 As he commanded by these letters, the Jews were to exercise their own laws in every city, to be of help to each other, and to treat their adversaries and those opposing them as they
This was to take effect beginning on one day throughout all the kingdom of Artaxerxes—the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is Adar.

The New Decree

The following is a copy of the letter:

The great King Artaxerxes, to the governors of the provinces in the hundred twenty-seven satrapies, from India to Ethiopia, and to the faithful to our interests: Greetings!

Many of those who have been frequently honored in the great kindness of their benefactors have become high-minded; not only do they seek to do harm to our subjects, but being unable to bear such a measure, they undertake to plot against their own benefactors.

Not only do they drive out gratitude from among men, but also being puffed up by those who are unacquainted with goodness, they suppose they will escape the vengeance of the all-seeing God.

And often, many of those who have been appointed to positions of authority, being entrusted to manage the affairs of friends and having been given a position of authority as an encouragement, have become accessories to the shedding of innocent blood; and they have involved them in circumstances without remedy by deceiving with false arguments the benign kindness of the rulers.

And it is possible to observe this, not so much from examining the ancient traditions, as by your learning from the wicked deeds accomplished in your midst by the pestilential influence of those unworthy of holding power.

We must be on guard for the future, that we may maintain the kingdom undisturbed and peaceful for all the people, making the most of changes, and always judging fairly in the matters coming to our attention.

Thus Haman, the son of Hammedatha, a Macedonian, certainly not of Persian blood, but differing greatly from our kindness, and having been hospitably received by us, received such a large share of the benevolence which we have for all peoples that he was even publicly proclaimed to be our father, reverenced by all; he attained the rank of second to the royal throne. But unable to bear his dignity, he endeavored to deprive us of our kingdom and our life. And by very twisted methods of deception, he demanded the destruction of our deliverer and constant benefactor, Mordecai, and Esther, the blameless consort of our kingdom, together with their whole race. For through these ways, he expected to catch the nation of the Persians undefended, and to guide the Macedonians to victory.
we find that the Jews, who have been consigned to destruction by this terribly wicked man, are not criminals, but live by most just laws. 12P We find them to be children of the Most High, Most Mighty, Living God, who has guided the kingdom both for us and our forefathers in the most excellent manner.

12Q Therefore, you will do well to disregard the letters sent by Haman the son of Hammedatha, because he who has produced these has been hanged at the gates of Susa, along with his whole household. For God Almighty, who rules over all things, swiftly rendered a just judgment on him.

12P Therefore, post a copy of this document publicly in every place, making it known that the Jews are to follow their own customs; and join in supporting them, so that on the day set for their destruction, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month Adar, they may defend themselves against those who would attack them. 12S For God, who holds power over all things, has made this a day of gladness for them instead of a day of the destruction of a chosen race. 12T Therefore, celebrate this outstanding day among your named feasts with all rejoicing, so that both now and in the future it may be deliverance for us and for the well-inclined Persians; and for those who plot destruction against us, a remembrance of destruction. 12U And every city or province whatsoever which shall not act in accordance with these things shall be mercilessly destroyed with spear and fire; it shall be made impassable not only to men, but even to wild animals and birds forever. 13 Let copies of the decree be posted conspicuously throughout the kingdom, and let all the Jews be ready on that day to fight against those who oppose them.

The Posting of the New Decree

14 So horsemen were sent out quickly to carry out the king's commands, and the decree was also posted in Susa.

15 Then Mordecai went out robed in royal raiment, having a gold crown and a diadem of fine purple linen; and seeing him, the people of Susa rejoiced. 16 And there was light and gladness for the Jews. 17 In every city and province where the decree was published, where the proclamation was posted, there was joy and gladness among the Jews—feasting and good cheer. And many of the Gentiles were circumcised and lived in the Jewish way, because of fear of the Jews.
Now in the twelfth month, on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, the decree written by the king arrived. On that day those in opposition were destroyed by the Jews, for fearing them, no one resisted. For the leaders of the satraps, the sovereigns, and the royal scribes honored the Jews, and the fear of Mordecai weighed on them, for the order of the king had come down that Mordecai should be acknowledged throughout the kingdom. And in the city of Susa, the Jews killed five hundred men. These included Parshandatha, Dalphon, Aspatha, Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, Parmashta, Arisai, Aridai, and Vajezatha—the ten sons of Haman, son of Hamadatha, the enemy of the Jews. They ravaged them. On that day, the number of those killed in Susa was reported to the king.

Then the king said to Esther, “The Jews have killed five hundred men in the city of Susa. How do you think they have made out in the surrounding lands? What more do you yet desire, so that it will be done for you?” Esther said to the king, “Let the Jews be granted the opportunity to do the same tomorrow in order to hang the sons of Haman.” And he permitted this to be done, and he set out for the Jews of the city the bodies of the sons of Haman to hang. Then the Jews gathered together in Susa on the fourteenth of Adar and killed three hundred men, but they plundered nothing.

The rest of the Jews throughout the kingdom assembled and came to the aid of one another, and they had rest from their enemies, for they killed fifteen thousand of them on the thirteenth of Adar, but they plundered nothing. Then they rested on the fourteenth of that month, and observed it as a day of rest with joy and gladness.

And the Jews in the city of Susa also gathered together on the fourteenth, but did not rest from their enemies, but they observed the fifteenth with joy and gladness. This is why the Jews scattered in every foreign land observe the fourteenth of Adar with gladness as a holiday, sending parcels to their neighbors. But those living in the major cities keep the fifteenth of Adar as a holiday, sending parcels to their neighbors.

Mordecai wrote these things in a book and sent it to all the Jews in the kingdom of Artaxerxes, to those both near and far, to establish these days as holidays, and to observe both the fourteenth and fifteenth day of Adar—

for on these days the Jews had rest from their enemies. Thus Adar is the month which was turned from mourning into joy, and from grief into a holiday; to celebrate the whole time with feasting and gladness, sending parcels to friends and to the poor.

The Jews accepted everything just as Mordecai wrote to them: how Haman the son of Hamadatha, the Macedonian, warred against them; how he had made a decree and cast lots to exterminate them; how he had gone to the king telling him to hang Mordecai; and how all the evils he plotted against the Jews came upon himself, and how he was hanged, he and his children. Therefore these days were called Purim—on account of the lots (because in their language they are called pur), because of the words of this letter, and because of all they had suffered on account of these things and all that had happened to them.

Mordecai established it, and the Jews took it upon themselves, their descendants, and upon those joining with them not to do otherwise. And these days are to be a memorial throughout every generation, and city, and family, and province. Thus these days of Purim shall be observed forever, and their remembrance shall not cease in any generation. Then Queen Esther, daughter of Abihail, and Mordecai the Jew wrote down the many things they had done and the truthfulness of the command of Purim. And Mordecai and Queen Esther established it for themselves, establishing it at that time according to their soundness of mind and their purpose. Esther established it by a command forever, and it was written for a memorial.

And the king levied tribute upon his kingdom both by land and sea. And his power and valor, the riches and the glory of his kingdom, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Persia and Media for a memorial. And Mordecai was next to King Artaxerxes, and he was great in the kingdom and honored by the Jews; and being beloved, he set forth in detail the way of life to all his people.

Epilogue

And Mordecai said, “These things were from my God. For I recall the dream which I had concerning these things, and not one detail of them has failed.

There was a small spring that became a river; there was light and the sun and much 3d The two serpents are Haman and I. 3e The nations are the Gentiles gathering together to destroy the name of the Jews. 3f And my nation, which cried out to God and was delivered, is Israel. For the Lord has saved His people, and the Lord has rescued us from all these evils. And God performed signs and great wonders, which have not happened among the Gentiles.

3g “On account of this, He made two lots, one for the people of God and one for the Gentiles. 3h And these two lots came in the hour, and in the time, and in the day of judgment before God and among all the Gentiles. 3i And God remembered His people and vindicated His inheritance. 3j And they shall observe these days in the month of Adar, the fourteenth and fifteenth day of that month. They shall gather together with joy and gladness before God throughout all generations forever among His people Israel.”

3k In the fourth year of the reign of Ptolemy and Cleopatra, Dositheus, who said he was a priest and a Levite, and Ptolemy his son brought in the letter of Purim, which they declared existed, and that Lysimachus, the son of Ptolemy, who was in Jerusalem, had translated it.†

The First Book of the Maccabees

Author—Although the author of 1 Maccabees never identifies himself, it may reasonably be assumed that he was an orthodox Jew familiar with both the geography and the topography of Judea.

Date—About 104 BC, according to the last two verses of the book (16:23, 24). The work was compiled during or shortly after the reign of John Hyrcanus I (134–104 BC), the high priest and ruler of Israel. It covers the period from the reign of Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 BC) to the succession of John Hyrcanus.

Major Theme—God's deliverance of Israel during the Jewish Wars. The author makes it clear that God chose the Hasmoncean family as the instrument of his deliverance (5:62). Their primary objective was the rededication of the temple (4:36–61), an event still celebrated by Jews everywhere as the festival of Hanukkah, from the Hebrew word for “dedication.”

Background—First Maccabees was originally written in Hebrew and was probably called “The Hasmonceans,” after Mattathias of the house of Hashmon (2:1). It was Mattathias who began the Jewish revolt with the help of his five sons. The bulk of the book recounts Judah's war against Antiochus IV, the Seleucid ruler who tried to force Hellenism upon the Jews.

Outline

I. Prologue: The Hellenistic Empire from Alexander to Antiochus IV (1:1–64)
II. The Hasmoncean (Maccabean) Revolt (2:1–4:61)
III. Jewish Expeditions against Neighboring Tribes (5:1–68)
IV. Lysias Usurps the Throne (6:1–63)
V. The Reign of Demetrius I Soter (7:1–50)
VI. The Alliance between the Jews and the Romans (8:1–31)
VII. Jonathan Succeeds Judas (9:1–73)
VIII. The Rise and Fall of Alexander Balas (10:1–11:19)
IX. Demetrius II Betrays the Jews (11:20–53)
X. Trypho and the Reign of Antiochus VI (11:54–12:53)
XI. The Emergence of the Jewish Nation under Simon (13:1–16:24)
After Alexander, the son of Philip the Macedonian, came out of the land of Kittim and conquered Macedonia, and defeated Darius the king of the Persians and the Medes, and reigned in his place—he was already king of Greece—

He then fought numerous wars, conquered fortresses, and slaughtered the kings of the earth. He went to the ends of the earth and took the spoils of many nations. So the earth rested from war before him, and he was exalted; his heart was likewise encouraged. He formed a mighty army and ruled countries, nations, and princes, and they all paid taxes to him.

Then later, he fell sick, and he knew he was dying. So he brought in his trusted servants who had grown up with him from childhood, and parceled out his kingdom to them while he was still living. After Alexander reigned for twelve years, death claimed him. Then his servants began to rule, each in his appointed place. They all put on crowns after he died, and their sons for many years after them, and the evils they caused multiplied on the earth.

A sinful root came forth from them, Antiochus Epiphanes, the son of Antiochus the king, who was a hostage in Rome. He began his reign in the one hundred and thirty-seventh year of the kingdom of the Greeks.

In those days lawless men came forth from the sons of Israel, and they persuaded many, saying, “Let us make a covenant with the Gentiles surrounding us, for ever since we were separated from them, many evils have found us.” This proposal found favor in their eyes, and some of the people eagerly desired to enter into this agreement. So they went to the king, and he gave them authority to observe the ordinances of the Gentiles. Then they built a gymnasium in Jerusalem according to the customs of the Gentiles, and made themselves as the uncircumcision. So they fell away from the holy covenant, yoked themselves to the Gentiles, and sold themselves to do evil.

Thus the kingdom was prepared before Antiochus, and he determined he would reign over the land of Egypt, so as to rule over two kingdoms. Thus he entered Egypt with a strong multitude of chariots, elephants, cavalrymen, and a large army. He engaged Ptolemy king of Egypt in battle, and Ptolemy turned from him in shame and fled. Many were wounded and fell. So they captured mighty cities in Egypt, and Antiochus took spoils in the land of Egypt.

Antiochus Pillages the Temple

After he conquered Egypt in the one hundred and forty-third year, Antiochus turned and went up to Israel and Jerusalem with a large army. He entered the sanctuary in arrogance and took the golden altar, the lampstand, all the utensils, the table of presentation, the cups and bowls, the golden censers, the curtain, the crowns, and the golden ornaments on the face of the temple. He stripped everything, and took the silver and the gold and everything costly, and the hidden treasures he found. Taking all these things, he departed for his own land. He committed deeds of murder and spoke with great arrogance.

More Destruction in Jerusalem

After two years, the king sent a revenue official to the cities of Judah, and he entered Jerusalem with a large army. Antiochus spoke peaceable words to them with deceit, and they believed him. Then he fell upon the city suddenly, struck it a great blow, and killed many people from Israel. He took spoils from the city, set it on fire, and tore down its houses and the city walls. They took captive the women and the children and took possession of the animals.

Then they built the city of David with a great and strong wall and strong towers, and it became their citadel. They placed there a sinful nation of lawless men, and they became strong within it. And they laid up weapons and provisions, and gathered together the spoils they had taken from Jerusalem. Then they returned there and were like a great snare.

36 It became an ambush against the sanctuary,
An evil accuser against Israel continually.
37 They shed innocent blood around the sanctuary
And defiled the sanctuary.
38 The inhabitants of Jerusalem fled because of them,
And she became a dwelling place of strangers.
She became a stranger to her offspring,
And her children forsook her.
39 Her sanctuary was laid waste like a desert
And her feasts were turned into mourning,
Her Sabbaths into a disgrace
And her honor into contempt.
40 Her dishonor prevailed against her glory,
And her high position was turned into mourning.

A Decree of Corruption

41 Then the king wrote to all his kingdom, that they all were to be as one people, and that each one was to forsake his customs. So all the nations accepted the word of the king. 42 Many from Israel also thought it good to serve him, so they sacrificed to idols and profaned the Sabbath.

43 Then the king sent books to Jerusalem and the cities of Judah by the hand of messengers, and told them to follow foreign customs in the land, to forbid whole burnt offerings and sacrifices and drink offerings in the sanctuary, to profane the Sabbaths and the feasts, and to defile the sanctuary and the holy ones. 44 These books also told them to build altars, sacred precincts, and temples to idols, to sacrifice swine and common animals, to leave their sons uncircumcised, so they would corrupt their souls by every unclean and profane thing, and forget the law and alter all the ordinances. 45 They also added that whoever did not obey the word of the king would die.

46 According to all these words he wrote to everyone in his kingdom. He also placed inspectors over all the people and commanded the cities of Judah to sacrifice in each and every city. 47 Thus many of the people, everyone who forsook the law, joined together and did evil things in the land. 53 They forced Israel to hide in every place of refuge they had.

54 Then on the fifteenth day of Chislev, in the one hundred and forty-fifth year, they set up the abomination of desolation on the altar of the whole burnt offerings and built altars in the surrounding cities of Judah. 55 They also burned incense at the doors of houses and in the streets. 56 And when they found books of the law, they tore them to pieces and burned them in the fire. 57 Whenever a book of the covenant was found in someone's possession, or if anyone sympathized with the law, the judgment of the king was to kill him. 58 They acted with their might against Israel, against those who were found month after month in the cities.

59 Then on the twenty-fifth day of the month they sacrificed on the altar, which was on top of the altar of the whole burnt offerings. 60 In keeping with the decree, they sentenced to death the women who had their children circumcised, 61 and the families who had circumcised them, and hung the infants from their mothers’ necks. 62 Yet many in Israel grew strong, and determined in themselves not to eat unclean things. 63 They chose rather to die than be defiled by foods or profane the holy covenant. So they died, 64 and great wrath came upon Israel.

The Zeal of Mattathias

In those days Mattathias, the son of John of the tribe of Simeon, a priest of the sons of Joarib, rose up from Jerusalem and settled in Modein. He had five sons: John, called Gaddi; 3 Simon, called Thassi; 4 Judas, called Maccabeus; 5 Eleazar, called Avaran; and Jonathan, called Apphus. 6 He saw the blasphemies taking place in Judah and Jerusalem, 7 and said:

*Alas, why was I born to see this,
The ruin of my people,
The destruction of the holy city,
And to live there when it was delivered
Into the hand of the enemy,
The sanctuary into the hand of foreigners.

* Her temple has become like a man without honor.
\footnote{Her glorious vessels were carried away into captivity;}
Her infants have been slain in the streets,
Her young men with the sword of the enemy.
What nation has not inherited her palaces
And taken hold of her spoils?
All her adornment has been removed:
In place of freedom, she has become a slave;
And behold, our sanctuary,
Our beauty and our glory have been laid waste,
And the Gentiles have desecrated it.
Why should we live any longer?"

14Thus Mattathias and his sons tore their clothes, put on sackcloth, and mourned exceedingly.

Apostasy at Modein

15Now those from the king who were enforcing the apostasy journeyed to the city of Modein to make them offer sacrifice, and many from Israel also came with them. So Mattathias and his sons gathered together. 17Then those from the king spoke to Mattathias, saying, “You are a great and glorious leader in this city and supported by your sons and brothers. 18Now come, be the first to follow the decree of the king, as all the Gentiles and the men of Judah have done, and those who remain in Jerusalem; and you and your sons will be among the king's friends, and you and your sons will be honored with silver and gold and many rewards.”

23When he finished saying these words, a Jew came forward in the sight of everyone to sacrifice upon the altar in Modein in accordance with the king's decree. 24When Mattathias saw him, he was filled with zeal, and his heart trembled and poured forth anger in judgment. Then he ran and slew him upon the altar. 25So he killed the king's man who wanted to offer sacrifice at that time, and he tore down the altar. 26Thus he had zeal for the law, just as Phinehas had against Zambri the son of Salome.

Warfare in the Wilderness

27 Then Mattathias cried out with a loud voice in the city, saying, “Every one who has zeal for the law and holds to the covenant, let him follow me.”

28 So he and his sons fled into the mountains and left behind whatever they had in the city.

29 Then many who sought righteousness and judgment went down to the desert to live there, they, their sons, their women, and their cattle, because evils increased severely against them. 30 It was also announced to the king's men and the soldiers in Jerusalem, the city of David, that certain men who had scattered when the command of the king was made known had gone into hiding in the desert. 31 Thus, many ran after them, tracked them down, marched against them, and engaged them in battle on the Sabbath day.

32 Then they said to them, “Now, come out and do the will of the king and you shall live.”

33 But they answered, “We will not come out, nor will we do the will of the king to desecrate the Sabbath day.”

34 So the enemy rushed into battle against them. 35 Yet they did not answer them, nor did they cast a stone, nor did they block up their hiding places, saying, “Let us all die in our innocence. Heaven and earth will testify for us that you destroyed us unjustly.”

36 So the king's men rose against them in battle on the Sabbath, and they died along with their women, children, and cattle, as many as a thousand people.

39 Then Mattathias and his friends grieved for them exceedingly.

40 So each one said to his neighbor, “If we do as our brothers did and fail to fight against the Gentiles for our life and our ordinances, they will quickly wipe us off the earth.”

41 So they resolved on that day, saying, “Every man who comes against us for battle on the Sabbath day, let us war against him, and we shall not all die as our brothers did in their hiding places.”

42 Then the synagogue of the Hasideans gathered with them, a mighty army from Israel, everyone who willingly offered himself for the law.

43 Everyone who escaped from evils was added to them and became their support.

44 So they formed an army, and struck the sinners in their wrath and the lawless men in their anger. The rest fled to the Gentiles to be rescued.

45 Mattathias and his allies also surrounded the altars and tore them down, and they circumcised the uncircumcised boys by force, as many as they found in the mountains of
Thus they pursued the sons of arrogance, and the undertaking prospered in their hand. They took the law out of the hand of the Gentiles and the kings, and did not allow the sinners to dominate them.

Last Days of Mattathias

Then the days approached for Mattathias to die, and he spoke to his sons, saying, “Now arrogance and scorn and the time of destruction and furious anger have been strengthened. Therefore, children, be zealous for the law, and offer your lives for the covenant of our fathers; and remember the deeds our fathers did in their generations, and receive great honor and an everlasting name. Was not Abraham found faithful in trial, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness? And Joseph at the time of his trouble kept the commandment and became ruler of Egypt. Phinehas our father showed true zeal and received a covenant of eternal priesthood. Joshua fulfilled the word and became a judge in Israel. Caleb testified in the assembly and received an inheritance in the land. David, in the mercy shown him, inherited the throne of the kingdom forever. In his great zeal for the law, Elijah was taken up into heaven. Ananias, Azarias, and Mishael believed and were saved from the fiery furnace. In his innocence, Daniel was delivered from the mouth of lions. Thus, understand from generation to generation that all who hope in the Lord will not be weak. Do not fear the words of a sinful man, because his glory is like manure and worms. Today he will be exalted, but tomorrow he will not be found; for he returned to his dust, and his purpose will perish. Children, be courageous and strong in the law, because you will be honored by it.

“So behold Simeon, your brother. I know he is a man of wisdom. Listen to him every day, and he shall be your father. Judas Maccabeus, mighty in fighting from his youth, he shall be the leader of your army, and he will fight the fight of the people. And you, bring forth with you all those who are doers of the law, and seek justice for your people. Repay the Gentiles in full, and hold fast to the ordinance of the law.”

Then he blessed them and was added to his fathers. So he died in the one hundred and forty-sixth year and was buried in the tomb of his fathers in Modein; and all of Israel mourned him with great mourning.
Then Judas his son, who was called Maccabeus, rose up in his place. His brothers all helped him, and everyone who had been allied with his father, and they fought the battle for Israel with gladness.

Eulogy to Mattathias

He enlarged his people's glory
And was clothed with a breastplate like a giant;
And he girded on his weapons And waged war,
Sheltering the camp with his sword.

He was like a lion in his deeds,
Like a young lion roaring for its prey.

For he pursued the lawless and searched them out;
And he set on fire those who troubled his people.

The lawless were humbled from fear of him,
And all the workers of lawlessness were troubled;
For deliverance prospered by his hand.

He embittered many rulers,
And brought joy to Jacob by his deeds;
And may his memory be blessed forever.

He passed through the cities of Judah
And destroyed the ungodly from the land;
And he turned wrath away from Israel.

His name was known to the ends of the earth,
And he gathered those who were perishing.

Judas' Early Victories

Then Apollonius gathered the Gentiles together and brought a great army from Samaria to wage war with Israel. But Judas knew it and went out to meet him. He struck and killed him, and many wounded fell; and the rest fled. They took their spoils, and Judas took the sword of Apollonius and fought with it every day.

Now Seron, the leader of the army of Syria, heard Judas had gathered a large assembly of faithful men with him, and they were going out into battle. So he said, “I will make a name for myself and be honored in the kingdom. I will fight Judas and his followers who despised the word of the king.” 15 He set forth, and with him went an army of godless men, strong enough to help him take vengeance on the sons of Israel.

16 So he drew near to the highlands of Beth-Horon, and Judas went out to meet him with only a few allies. 17 As they saw the army coming to meet them, they said to Judas, “How will we, being few, be able to fight against such a powerful number? We who have come out today are weak from lack of food.” 18 Then Judas said, “It is easy to hem in many at the hands of a few, and it makes no difference before heaven to save with many or with few. 19 For victory in battle does not come from the size of the army, but from the might of heaven. 20 These come against us in the abundance of insolence and lawlessness, to seize us and our women and children, and to take spoils from us; 21 but we are fighting for our lives and our laws. 22 God Himself will crush them from before our face; but as for you, do not fear because of them.”

23 When he was through speaking, Judas suddenly rushed against them, and Seron and his army were destroyed before him. 24 He pursued him into the descent of Beth-Horon as far as the plain. Around eight hundred of their soldiers perished; the remainder fled into the land of the Philistines. 25 Then fear of Judas and his brothers began, and terror fell upon the nations around them. 26 So his fame reached the king, and the Gentiles talked about the battles of Judas.

Syrian Counterattack

27 When Antiochus the king heard these words, he was very angry, and he sent and gathered all the forces of his kingdom, an exceedingly strong army. 28 He also opened his treasury and gave a year's wages to the troops, and commanded them to be ready for any need. 29 Then he noticed the silver in the treasury was depleted, and the taxes from the region were small, because of the dissension and misfortune he caused in the land when he took away the laws that existed from the earliest days. 30 So he took care not to pay out expenditures and give gifts as abundantly as he had done before, even more lavishly than the previous kings. 31 He was very disturbed in himself, so he decided to go to Persia and collect taxes from those regions and gather abundant silver.

32 He left Lysias, a man of distinction from the royal lineage, in charge of all the king's affairs, from the river Euphrates to the boundary of Egypt. 33 He was also to take care of his
Then he handed over to Lysias half of the armies and the elephants. He gave him orders concerning all his wishes and concerning those who lived in Judea and Jerusalem. He ordered him to send an army against them, to destroy them and remove the might of Israel and the remnant of Jerusalem, and to remove their memory from that place. He was also to settle foreigners in all their regions and distribute their land by lot. Then the king took half of the remaining armies and left Antioch, the capital of his kingdom. In the one hundred and forty-seventh year, he crossed over the Euphrates River and entered the regions on the other side.

Lysias appointed Ptolemy, the son of Dorymenes, and Nicanor and Gorgias, valiant men who were loyal to the king, and he sent with them forty thousand infantry and seven thousand cavalry to go into the region of Judah and crush it according to the king's orders. So he set out with the whole army, and they went and camped near Emmaus on the plain. When the merchants of the region heard about them, they took a very large amount of silver and gold and shackles and went into the camp to obtain the sons of Israel as slaves. The army of Syria and of the land of the Philistines joined them as well.

The Jews Prepare for Battle

Now Judas and his brothers saw that evil events were increasing and the armies were encamped at their borders. They learned also the words of the king which he ordered, to bring destruction and annihilation on the people. So each man said to his neighbor, “Let us repair the ruin of our people and battle for our people and the sanctuary.” Then the assembly gathered to prepare for battle and to pray and ask God for mercy and compassion.

Jerusalem was uninhabited like a desert.
No one brought products in or took them out,
And the sanctuary had been trampled down.
The sons of foreigners were in the citadel,
A lodging place for the Gentiles.
Gladness was taken from Jacob,
And flute and harp played no more.

They assembled and went into Mizpah, opposite Jerusalem, because at a former time Mizpah was a place for prayer in Israel. They fasted on that day and put on sackcloth, sprinkled ashes upon their head, and tore their garments. They opened the book of the law.
to look into those matters about which the Gentiles consulted the likenesses of their idols. 49 They also carried the priestly garments and the firstfruits and the tithe, and they stirred up the Nazirites who had finished their days. 50 Then they cried aloud to heaven, saying,

"What do we do with these,
And where will we take them?
ære Your sanctuary has been trampled down and defiled,
And Your priests are in mourning and humiliated.
ære Behold, the Gentiles have gathered against us to destroy us.
You know what they plan against us.
ære How will we be able to stand against them
If You will not help us?"

54 Then they blew the trumpets and cried out with a loud shout. 55 After this, Judas appointed rulers for the people, leaders for thousands and hundreds and fifties and tens. 56 He ordered those who were building houses, or were betrothed to women, or were growing vineyards, or were afraid, to return each one to his own home, according to the law.

57 Then the army departed and set up camp south of Emmaus. 58 Judas said to them, “Be ready at dawn to fight with these Gentiles who have gathered against us to destroy us and our sanctuary. 59 For it is better for us to die in war than to look upon the evils the Gentiles would bring to us and the sanctuary. 60 But as God's will is in heaven, so He will do.”

Judas Fights the Gentiles at Emmaus

Then Gorgias took five thousand men and a thousand choice cavalry, and the army marched out by night, to descend upon the camp of the Judaeans and strike them suddenly. Young men from the citadel served as his guides. 3 But Judas got word of it, and he and his soldiers marched out to strike the king's army in Emmaus while his forces were dispersed from the camp. 5 When Gorgias came into the camp of Judas at night, he found no one. So he sought them in the mountains, saying, “These are fleeing from us.”

6 At first light, Judas was seen on the plain with three thousand men, but they did not have armor and swords as they wished. 7 They saw the Gentiles’ camp with strong fortification and surrounded by cavalry trained for battle. 8 But Judas said to his men, “Do not be afraid of their numbers or of their attack.† 9 Remember how our fathers were saved in the Red Sea, when Pharaoh pursued them with his army?

10 So now, let us cry out to heaven to see if the Lord will be with us, and remember the covenant of our fathers, and crush these forces before us this day.

11 Then all the nations will know that He is the Redeemer and Savior of Israel.”

12 So the Gentiles lifted their eyes and saw them coming opposite them,

13 and they departed from their camp and went into battle. Then those with Judas sounded the trumpets.

14 Thus they met, and the foreigners were crushed, fleeing into the plain.

15 All those remaining fell by the sword. They pursued them as far as Gazara and as far as the plain of Idumea and Azotus and Jamnia, and about three thousand of their men fell.

16 Then Judas and his army returned from pursuing them,

17 and he said to the people, “Do not desire the spoils, for the battle is before us.

18 Gorgias and his army are in the mountain nearby, but stand firm before our enemies and battle them; and afterwards, take the spoils boldly.”

19 While Judas was finishing these words, an enemy detachment was seen peeping out from the mountains,

20 and they saw that their army had been put to flight and that the Judeans had set their camp on fire; for the smoke that was seen revealed what had happened.

21 When they became aware of this, they were very afraid, and when they observed the forces of Judas prepared for battle in the plain,

22 they fled to the region of the Philistines.

23 Judas returned to take spoils from their camp, and they took massive amounts of gold and silver, and cloth dyed blue and purple, and abundant wealth.

24 As they returned from battle they sang hymns and blessed heaven, because the Lord is good, for His mercy endures forever.

25 Thus great deliverance happened to Israel on that day.

26 But all the Gentiles who escaped went and reported to Lysias everything that had happened.

27 When he heard this, he was bewildered and disheartened, because things had not happened to Israel as he wished, and had not turned out as the king commanded him.

Judas Defeats Lysias

28 The following year, Lysias recruited sixty thousand chosen men and fifty thousand cavalry so he could fight them.

29 Then he came to Idumea and camped in Beth-zur, and Judas met them there with ten thousand soldiers.

30 When he saw their mighty camp, he prayed and said, “Blessed are you, O Savior of Israel, who stopped the attack of the giant warrior by the hand of your servant David, and delivered the Philistines’ camp into the hands of Jonathan the son of Saul, his armor-bearer. 31 Even so, besiege this camp by the hand of your people Israel, and let these enemies be ashamed of their army and cavalry. 32 Put cowardice in them and melt the boldness of their might, and let them be shaken by their defeat. 33 Cast them down with the sword of those who love You, and let all men who know Your name give praise to You with hymns.”

34 Then they attacked one another, and five thousand men from the camp of Lysias fell, and some fell from the opposite side. 35 When Lysias saw the turn of events for his troops, and the courage shown by those of Judas, and how they were prepared either to live or to die bravely, he returned to Antioch and recruited mercenaries to again invade Judea with an even greater force.

Restoration of the Temple.

36 So Judas and his brothers with him said, “Behold, our foes have been crushed. Let us go up to purify the sanctuary and renew it.” 37 Thus the entire camp gathered and ascended to Mount Zion. 38 They saw there the sanctuary deserted, the altar desecrated, and the doors burned down. In the courtyard they found that bushes had grown up as in a wooded area or on one of the mountains. They also saw the priests’ quarters in ruins. 39 So they tore their garments and lamented greatly, and sprinkled themselves with ashes. 40 They fell on their faces on the earth, sounded the signal on the trumpets, and cried to heaven.

41 Then Judas ordered his men to fight those in the citadel until he purified the sanctuary. 42 He chose righteous priests, devoted to the law. 43 They purified the sanctuary, and carried the defiled stones to an unclean place. 44 And they discussed what they should do with the altar of whole burnt offerings, which had been desecrated. 45 It seemed to them the best plan was to tear it down, so it would not be a reproach to them because the Gentiles had corrupted it. So they tore down the altar. 46 They also stacked the stones in an appropriate location on the temple hill until a prophet would come and tell what should be done with them.

47 Then they took uncut stones, according to the law, and constructed a new altar like the one before. 48 They also repaired the sanctuary and the inside of the temple, and consecrated the courtyards. 49 They made new holy vessels and carried the lampstand, the altar of incense, and the table into the temple. 50 And they burnt incense on the altar and lit the lights on the lampstands, and these gave light inside the temple. Then they set bread on the table, hung the curtains, and completed all the tasks they had begun.

They rose early on the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the ninth month, which is the month of Chislev, in the one hundred and forty-eighth year, and offered sacrifice according to the law on the new altar of whole burnt offerings which they made. It was consecrated with songs and harps and lutes and cymbals at the time and on the day the Gentiles had desecrated it. All the people fell down and worshiped and blessed heaven, which had prospered them. They celebrated the consecration of the altar for eight days; and they offered whole burnt offerings with gladness, and the sacrifice of a peace offering and a thank-offering. They also adorned the face of the temple with crowns of gold and small shields, and restored the gates and the priests’ quarters, and installed doors. There was great gladness among the people, and the disgrace of the Gentiles was removed.

Then Judas and his brothers and the congregation of Israel decided that each year at that time the days of the consecration of the altar should be observed with joy and gladness for eight full days, beginning on the twenty-fifth of the month of Chislev.

At this same time they also built high walls and strong towers around Mount Zion, lest the Gentiles come and destroy these things, as they had done before. Then he stationed an army there to guard it, and he fortified the town of Beth-zur, so the people would have a fortress that faced Idumea.

Battles with Surrounding Nations

When the surrounding nations heard the altar was repaired and the sanctuary renewed as before, they were extremely angry. So they resolved to kill the race of Jacob who lived among them, and they began to kill and destroy the people. Thus Judas waged war on the sons of Esau in Idumea at Acrabattene, for they were besieging Israel. He struck them a great blow, humbled them, and took spoils from them. He also recalled the evil acts by the sons of Baean, who trapped and snared the people in ambush out on the roads. He shut them up in their towers and encamped around them, vowing to destroy them. So he set their towers on fire with everyone inside. Then he crossed over against the sons of Ammon, and found a strong army and many people, with Timothy as their leader. He fought many battles against them until he struck them down, and they were crushed before him. Then he overpowered
Jazer and its villages and came back to Judea.

9 Now the foreigners in Gilead assembled against the Israelites living within their borders, to destroy them. But they fled into the fortress of Dathema and sent letters to Judas and his brothers, saying, “The Gentiles have gathered against us and surrounded us to destroy us. 10 They have made ready to come here and overpower the fortress where we have taken refuge, and Timothy is in charge of their army. 11 Now therefore, come and deliver us from their hand, for many of our men have perished. 12 All our brothers in the region of Tob have been put to death, and they took their wives and children captive, along with their possessions; and they destroyed about a thousand men there.”

14 While their letters were being read, behold, other envoys arrived from Galilee with torn garments and reported similar words, saying that those from Ptolemais, Tyre, Sidon, and all Galilee of the Gentiles had assembled themselves together, “to destroy us.” 15 So when Judas and the people heard these words, a great assembly was gathered to decide what to do for their brothers who were in trouble and were being attacked by adversaries. 16 So Judas told Simon his brother, “Choose men for yourself and go and save your brothers in Galilee, while my brother Jonathan and I go to Gilead.” 18 He left Joseph, the son of Zachariah, and Azariah, a leader of the people, with the rest of the army in Judea, to guard it. 19 He ordered them, saying, “Take charge of this people, but do not go into battle against the Gentiles until we return.” 20 Then three thousand troops were chosen for Simon to go to Galilee, and eight thousand men for Judas to take to Gilead.

Victories in Galilee and Gilead

21 Thus Simon went into Galilee and fought many battles with the Gentiles, and crushed the Gentiles before him. 22 He chased them to the gates of Ptolemais, and three thousand Gentiles perished, and he took their spoils. 23 So he took the Israelites of Galilee and Arbatta, along with their wives and children and everything they possessed, and brought them with great joy to Judea.

24 Meanwhile, Judas Maccabeus and Jonathan his brother crossed over the Jordan and journeyed three full days into the desert. 25 They came upon the Nabateans, who met them peacefully and told them everything that had happened to their brothers in Gilead: 26 “Many have been imprisoned in Bozrah and Bosor in Alema, Chaspho, Maked, and Carnaim (all
27And some have been imprisoned in the remaining cities of Gilead. Tomorrow your foes will attack the strongholds to destroy and capture all of them in one day.”

28Judas and his forces returned at once to Bozrah by the desert road; and he captured the city, killed all the males by the edge of the sword, took all the spoils, and set the city on fire.†

29He marched from there by night, and they kept going until they reached the fortress of Dathema. Then at daybreak they looked up and beheld many people, too many to count, carrying ladders and engines of war to take the fortress and strike the Israelites inside.

30When Judas saw the battle had started, an outcry went up from the city to heaven with trumpets and loud shouts. So he said to his army of men, “Fight today for the sake of our brothers!”

31Then he came up behind them in three companies, and they sounded the trumpets and cried aloud in prayer. When Timothy's army saw that they faced Maccabeus, they fled before him. He struck them a great blow, and on that day eight thousand of them perished.

32Judas then made his way to Aelma. He waged war and captured it, taking its spoils and setting the city on fire. He marched on from there and captured Chaspho, Maked, and Bosor, and the remaining cities of Gilead.

33Timothy, however, called together more troops and set up camp opposite Raphon across the stream. Judas dispatched soldiers to scout the camp, and they returned to him, saying, “All the foreigners have gathered around us, and a very large army is with him. Further, they have hired Arab mercenaries to help, and they are also camped on the other side of the stream, prepared to come against you in battle.” So Judas went out to face them.

34Timothy told the officers of his army while Judas and his camp drew near the stream, “If he crosses the stream against us first, we will be unable to withstand him, for he is strong enough to defeat us. But if he is frightened and sets up camp across the stream, we will pass over against him and crush him.”

35But as Judas approached the water, he stationed the scribes of the troops near the stream and ordered them, “Do not allow anyone to stay in camp, but make all of them join the battle.” So Judas crossed over to meet them first, with all the men behind him. Then all the Gentiles were crushed by them. They dropped their weapons and fled into the sacred regions of Carnain. So Judas captured the city and set the sacred precinct on fire, along with all those residing there. Thus Carnain was defeated, for they were not able to stand against Judas.

45 After this, Judas assembled all the Jews living in Gilead, from small to great, along with their wives and children and their possessions, a great entourage, to return to the land of Judah. They came as far as Ephron, an expansive and fortified city on the highway. They could not pass through, either to the right or the left. The only way to go was through the middle of town. But the men of the city closed it off and barricaded the gates with stones. So Judas sent them a peaceful word, saying, “Let us pass through your land to go to our land. No one will harm you. Merely we will come through on foot.” But they refused to open to him. So Judas gave orders to proclaim to the troops that each man make camp where he was. Then the soldiers in the army made camp, and he fought the men of Ephron all day and all night, and the city was given over into his hand. He killed every male with the edge of the sword, destroyed the city completely, and took its spoils. So he passed through the city, stepping over those who were killed.

52 Then they came to the Jordan, crossing over into the great plain facing Beth-shan; and Judas gathered the stragglers and encouraged the men along the way until they entered Judah. They marched up to Mount Zion and sacrificed whole burnt offerings, and offered whole burnt offerings with joy and gladness of heart, because not one of them was lost before they returned home in peace.

55 While Judas and Jonathan had been in Gilead, and Simon his brother was in Galilee facing Ptolemais,† Joseph the son of Zacharias, and Azariah, officers of the army, got word of their courageous acts and the victorious battles they fought. They spoke, saying, “Let us make a name for ourselves as well and take on the Gentiles who live around us.” Thus they gave a command to those from the army with them, and they marched to Jamnia. But Gorgias and his army went out from the city to face them in battle, and Joseph and Azariah were routed and chased as far as the boundaries of Judea. That day about two thousand men of Israel perished. It was a great defeat for the people; for expecting to act heroically, they did not follow the orders of Judas and his brothers. And they did not belong to the seed of those men through whom Israel received the gift of deliverance.
So Judas and his brothers were honored greatly throughout all Israel and even by the Gentiles, where their name was being heard. People assembled around them and gave them praise.

Then Judas went out with his brothers and fought the sons of Esau in the land to the south, and attacked Hebron and its towns, and pulled down its many fortresses and set on fire its towers round about. He also marched into the country of the Philistines, and then on to Marisa. Some priests that day who wanted to show their courage perished in battle, for they went out to fight recklessly. But Judas turned aside to Azotus, the country of the Philistines. He destroyed their altars, set the carved idols of their gods on fire, and took spoils in the cities. Then he came back to the land of Judah.

Last Days of King Antiochus IV

Now King Antiochus passed through the upper countries and heard that Elymais in Persia was a splendid city for its wealth in silver and gold. Its temple contained great wealth, with shields of gold, breastplates, and weaponry left there by Alexander, the son of Philip, the Macedonian king who first ruled over the Greeks. So he came and sought to defeat the city and take spoils, but he failed because his plot was uncovered by the men of the city. They confronted and fought against him, and he fled and retreated from there very discouraged, and went back to Babylon.

Then a man came and told him while he was still in Persia that his army which had invaded the land of Judah was put to flight; that Lysias had gone first with a strong army, but had been put to shame before Israel; that Israel was growing strong by the weapons, supplies, and abundant spoils they had taken from the armies they had conquered. Moreover, they had pulled down the abomination he built on top of the altar in Jerusalem; and they had encircled the sanctuary with high walls as it had before, as well as Beth-zur, his hometown.

When the king received this report, he was shocked and greatly shaken. He fell upon his bed and was sick with grief, because matters had not gone for him as he hoped. King Antiochus lay there several days, for deepening grief worsened his condition. He concluded he was about to die. Thus he called together his friends, saying, “Sleep has eluded my eyes, and anxiety has devastated my heart. I ask myself, ‘What is this stress I have come to, and into what sea of troubles am I immersed? For I was kind and loved as a ruler.’ 12But now I recall the evils I did in Jerusalem; for I took all the silver and gold vessels, and sent to destroy those who lived in Judah for no good reason. 13I know that because of these things, evils have found me; and behold, I am perishing with deep grief in a foreign land.”

Succession of Antiochus V.

14He then summoned Philip, one of his friends, and set him over his entire kingdom. 15He gave him his crown and his robe and ring, that he could take charge of his son Antiochus and raise him to rule. 16Thus Antiochus the king died in the one hundred and forty-ninth year. 17When Lysias found out the king had reposed, he established Antiochus his son to reign. Lysias had raised him from youth and called him Eupator.

Siege of the Citadel

18Now men from the citadel were confining Israel to the area around the sanctuary. They were attempting by whatever means to injure them, and to bring strength to the Gentiles. 19So he gathered all the men to defeat them. 20They assembled the army and attacked the city in the hundred and fiftieth year. He also built engines of war and other instruments of battle.

21But some of these enemies escaped from the enclosure, and some ungodly Israelites sided with them. 22They approached the king, saying, “How long will it be until you render a judgment to avenge our brothers? 23We were pleased to serve your father, and to follow what he said and obey his orders. 24Because of this the sons of our people attacked the citadel and became our enemies. Besides this, they killed as many of us as they found, and our inheritances were taken away. 25But they have not stretched out their hand against us alone, but also against all the lands on their borders; 26and behold, today they have surrounded the citadel in Jerusalem to defeat it. They have strengthened the sanctuary and Beth-zur as well. 27So unless you quickly overtake them, they will do worse things than these, and you will be unable to stop them.”

Campaign of Antiochus V and Lysias

28The king was angered greatly when he heard this, so he assembled all his friends, the military leaders, and those who ruled. 29Armies of mercenaries came to him as well from other nations and from various islands of the seas. 30 So the number of his armies was one hundred thousand foot soldiers, twenty thousand calvary, and thirty-two elephants trained for battle. 31 They arrived through Idumea and marched against Beth-zur, fighting for many days and building engines of war. But Israel went out, set them on fire, and battled heroically.

32 Judas then marched out from the citadel and set up camp at Beth-zechariah, across from the king's camp. 33 The next morning the king rose at dawn and led his army on a forced march on the highway to Beth-zechariah. His soldiers prepared themselves for warfare and blew the trumpets. 34 They also showed the elephants the juice of grapes and mulberries to ready them for the campaign.† 35 Then they stationed the elephants among the phalanxes and set alongside each animal a thousand men, covered with coats of mail and with bronze helmets on their heads. Five hundred horsemen were chosen and assigned to each elephant. 36 These positioned themselves beforehand wherever the animal was, and wherever it went, they rode alongside and never left it alone. 37 Sturdy covered wooden towers were strapped upon each elephant by a special harness, and four armed men fought from inside each tower with its Indian driver. 38 They positioned the remainder of the horsemen on each side, on the two flanks of the forces, disturbing the enemy while they themselves were protected by the phalanxes. 39 As the sun shined on the golden and bronze shields, the hills glistened from them and lit up like a flaming fire.

40 While one sector of the king's forces was stretched out on the high hills and some were on the plain, they marched on steadfastly in good order. 41 Everyone trembled when they heard the sounds of the soldiers as they marched along, and the clanging of their weapons, for the army was massive and very strong. 42 But Judas drew near with his army in battle formation, and six hundred of the king's men fell. 43 Then Eleazar, called Avran, saw one of the elephants covered with royal armor. It was taller than the rest, and he reasoned the king was riding it.† 44 So he laid down his life to rescue his people and to make an everlasting name for himself. 45 He ran boldly into the center of the phalanx, killing soldiers to the right and left, and they got out of his way on both flanks. 46 Then he crawled under the elephant, struck it from beneath, and killed it. It fell to the ground on top of him, and he died there.

47 When the Israelites saw the royal might and the fierce attack of the troops, they turned away from them in flight. 48 But the soldiers of the king's army went up to Jerusalem to attack them, and the king set up camp in Judea and on Mount Zion. 49 He reached a peace accord with the men of Beth-zur, who evacuated the city because they had no food there to withstand a siege, for it was a sabbatical year for the land. So the king captured Beth-zur and set a guard there to secure it. He then set a camp opposite the sanctuary for several days and built siege towers, engines of war which threw fire and stones, machines to fire off arrows, and catapults. The defenders also made engines of war to match theirs. So they battled several days. But with no food stored up, because it was the seventh year, and the men who survived in Judea against the Gentiles had eaten the remaining provisions, few men remained in the sanctuary, for hunger had overtaken them. They scattered, each to his own place.

Now Lysias got word that Philip, whom Antiochus the king had chosen while still alive to raise Antiochus his son to rule, had returned from Persia and Media with the armies that had gone there with the king, and that he was trying to gain control of the kingdom. So Lysias decided immediately to send a message to the king, the commanders, and the men, saying, “We grow weaker each day, our food supply is running out, the force we are fighting against is strong, and governing the kingdom puts pressure on us. Therefore, let us come to agreement with these men and have peace with them and their nation. We should arrange for them to live by their laws as before; for it was because of their laws which we abolished that they became furious and did all the things they have done.”

This word pleased the king and the commanders, so he sent an offer of peace to the Israelites, which they accepted. Thus the king and the commanders gave them their oath. On these conditions the Israelites evacuated the fortress. But when the king came to Mount Zion and saw the fortification of the place, he broke his promise and commanded his men to pull down the surrounding wall. Then he left hastily and came back to Antioch. There he discovered Philip in charge, so he attacked him and captured the city by force.

Demetrius I Becomes King

Demetrius the son of Seleucus set forth from Rome in the one hundred and fifty-first year, sailed with a few men into the city by the sea, and reigned there. As he entered the royal house of his fathers, his army seized Antiochus and Lysias and brought them to him. When he became aware of this action, he said, “Do not show me their faces.” So the soldiers put them to death, and Demetrius occupied the throne of his kingdom.
Then all the lawless and ungodly men of Israel came to him. Alcimus, who wanted to be a priest, led them. They brought charges against the people before the king, saying, “Judas and his brothers have destroyed all your friends and scattered us from our land. Therefore, send a man you trust, and let him see all the destruction he did to us and to the country of the king. Then let him bring punishment to them and all who serve them.”

Bacchides and Alcimus Control Judah

The king then appointed Bacchides, one of his friends, who ruled the province of Beyond-the-River, for he was prominent in the kingdom and loyal to the king. Then he sent him and the ungodly Alcimus, whom he appointed to the priesthood, and ordered him to avenge the sons of Israel. They marched on with a large army and came into the land of Judah, and sent envoys to Judas and his brothers with peaceful words full of deceit. But they did not heed their words, for they noticed they came with a large army.

Then a delegation of scribes was sent to meet with Alcimus and Bacchides to request justice. The Hasideans were the first among the sons of Israel to seek peace with them. For they said, “A man, a priest from the seed of Aaron, came with their forces, and he will not do us wrong.” The priest spoke peacefully to them and promised them, saying, “We will not seek to injure you or your friends.” They believed him, but he overtook sixty of their men and put them to death in one day, according to the word which was written:

“They poured out the flesh of your saints
And their blood around Jerusalem,
But there was no one to bury them.”

Then fear and trembling fell upon all the people, for they said, “There is no truth and uprightness in them. For they violated the promise and oath they swore.”

So Bacchides departed from Jerusalem and marched to Beth-zaith. He sent for and captured many of the soldiers who deserted him, and some of the people, and he slaughtered them at the great well. He put Alcimus in charge of the region and left an army with him to serve him. Then Bacchides returned to the king.

Alcimus then strove for the high priesthood, and all who harassed their people also gathered with him. They took control of the country of Judah and damaged Israel greatly.
Now Judas saw all the evil Alcimus and those with him had done among the sons of Israel; it was worse than what the Gentiles did. Thus Judas departed to all the regions surrounding Judea and took vengeance on the men who had deserted. He forbade those in the city to journey out to the countryside. But when Alcimus realized Judas and his followers were growing strong and knew that he could not prevail against them, he went back and brought evil charges against them before the king.

Nicanor Marches on Israel

The king then sent Nicanor, one of his renowned commanders who hated and disdained Israel, and ordered him to get rid of the people. Nicanor came up to Jerusalem with a large army, and he sent Judas and his brothers peaceful words full of deceit, saying, “Let there be no quarrel between us. I will come peacefully with a few men to see you in person.” So he approached Judas, and they greeted each other peacefully. But the adversaries prepared to seize Judas. Then Judas was aware that Nicanor had come with deceit; and he feared him, so he did not care to meet him again. When Nicanor learned his plot had been discovered, he went into battle with Judas at Caphar-salamah. Some five hundred of Nicanor's soldiers fell; the remainder fled to the city of David.

After this, Nicanor went up to Mount Zion. Then some priests came out of the sanctuary, along with some elders of the people, to greet him in peace, showing him the whole burnt offering which they had sacrificed on behalf of the king. However, he mocked and ridiculed them. He defiled them and spoke with arrogance to them. He also swore an oath angrily, saying, “Unless Judas and his troops are delivered into my hands now, then if I come back in peace, I will set this house on fire.” Then he stormed out in great rage. The priests then entered and stood facing the altar and the sanctuary. They wept and cried out, “You chose this place to be called by Your name that it might be a house of prayer and supplication for Your people. Take vengeance on this man and on his soldiers, and let them die by the sword. Remember their blasphemies and let them be alive no longer.”

Soon Nicanor left Jerusalem and camped at Beth-horon, and the army of Syria joined him. But Judas took position in Adassa with three thousand troops. Judas prayed, saying, “When the ambassadors from the king uttered blasphemy, Your angel went forth and struck one hundred and eighty-five thousand of the Assyrians. Crush also this army before us today, and let the others know that he spoke blasphemy against Your sanctuary; and judge him according to his malice.”

Nicanor Falls in Battle

So the armies faced off in war the thirteenth day of the month Adar, and Nicanor's army was scattered. He himself was the first to fall in the war. When his soldiers saw Nicanor die, they dropped their weapons and ran. Israel even chased them a day's journey from Adassa as far as Gazara. As they pursued them, they kept blowing the trumpets, sounding the battle call. Then the Israelites went out from all the villages around Judea and outflanked the adversaries. They drove them back to the pursuing army, and they all fell by the sword. Not one of them survived. Then Israel captured the spoils and their possessions. They even beheaded Nicanor and severed his right hand, which he had stretched out arrogantly. They carried them and put them on display just outside Jerusalem. So the people were very glad, and they celebrated that day as a day of great joy. A decree came forth to celebrate this day at the same time every year, on the thirteenth day of Adar. Thus the land of Judah had peace for several days.

Pact with the Romans

Then Judas learned of the reputation of the Romans, that they were mighty and behaved well toward all who made a pact with them. They could ensure friendship with as many as came to them, indeed, because they were of great strength. People also told him of their warfare and the courageous works they were doing in Gaul—how they conquered them and imposed taxes on them. They also reported what they had done in the country of Spain, to take control of their silver and gold mines, and how they dominated the entire region by their careful planning and forbearance, although the area was a great distance away. The Romans also defeated kings who challenged them from around the world, until they subdued them and struck a deadly blow against them. But the others paid them taxes each year.

They battled and soundly conquered Philip and Perseus, kings of the Macedonians, and others who stood up against them in war. They further conquered Antiochus the great king of Asia, who went to war against them with a hundred and twenty elephants and cavalry and chariots and a massive army. But his troops were destroyed by them. They captured him alive, and ordered that he and those who would rule in the future should pay large taxes
They also took from him the countries of India, Media, and Lydia. Then they gave some of the best of all these territories to King Eumenes.

The Greeks also plotted to come against them, but this became known to the Romans, and they sent one of their generals against them. He fought with them, and many wounded fell, and the Romans took their wives and children captive. They robbed them, took their land, pulled down their fortresses, and have to this day enslaved them. They crushed and captured the remaining kingdoms and the islands, as many as would oppose them. But they secured a relationship with their friends and those people who relied on them. Thus they conquered rulers far away and nearby; as many as had heard of their reputation feared them. Those the Romans desire to help and to raise up as kings, they establish; and those kings they wish to depose they depose, for they have great power. But despite all this, none of the Romans has donned a crown or vested in purple, so as to be magnified by it. Instead they formed a council for themselves, and three hundred and twenty senators constantly deliberate concerning the people, to help them behave in an orderly fashion. They trust one man to govern them for a year, and to rule over their land. Everyone heeds this one leader, and there is no jealousy or strife among them.

Now Judas appointed Eupolemus the son of John, son of Accos, and Jason the son of Eleazar, and dispatched them to Rome to build friendship and an alliance and to free their people from a yoke of bondage, because they realized the Greek kingdom was subjecting Israel to total servitude. So they journeyed to Rome—a very long trip. When they came to the senate chamber, they said the following: “Judas, also named Maccabeus, his brothers, and the Jewish people sent us here to you to build an alliance and have peace with you, that you may enlist us as your friends and allies.”

Terms of the Alliance

The proposal pleased the senate. So this is the copy of the message they issued in reply, inscribed on bronze tablets and sent to Jerusalem, to be kept there as a record of peace and friendship:

“May it be well with the Roman people, and the Jewish nation shall respond wholeheartedly as their allies, as the occasion may dictate. If war comes first to Rome or to any of their allies in all their dominion, the Judean nation shall act as their allies, wholeheartedly, as the occasion may dictate to them. 26 As to any enemy who wages war, the Jews shall not donate or supply grain, weapons, money, or ships, as Rome has stated, and they shall honor these commitments without getting anything in return. 27 Similarly, should war break out first against the Jewish nation, the Romans shall freely respond as their allies, as is appropriate for them. 28 Further, no grain, weapons, money, or ships will be given to allies of the enemy, as Rome has decided, and they shall hold to these obligations and do so with no deception. 29 Thus the Romans offer a treaty with the Jews on these terms. 30 If after these agreements take effect, both parties should decide to add or subtract anything, they shall do so by agreement, and whatever they add or subtract shall be binding.

31 “Now regarding the evils Demetrius the king is doing to them, we have sent to him this word: ‘If therefore they appeal to us against you again, we will defend their rights and oppose you, be it on the sea or on land.’ ”

Judas Dies in Battle

9 Now Demetrius got word that Nicanor and his men had fallen in battle, so he authorized Bacchides and Alcimus to go a second time into the land of Judah and take the right-hand flank of the army with them. 2 Thus they traveled the highway into Gilgal and camped at Mesaloth in Arbela. They captured it, and many people died. 3 Then in the first month of the one hundred and fifty-second year, they encamped opposite Jerusalem. 4 But they departed there and went to Berea, twenty thousand foot soldiers and two thousand cavalry with them.

5 Now Judas set up camp in Elasa, and three thousand chosen men accompanied him. 6 When they saw how large the number of the enemy forces was, they were very afraid, and many sneaked out of the camp. Just eight hundred men remained among them.

7 When Judas realized his troops had run away and the battle was pressing upon him, he was greatly discouraged and had no time to rally them. 8 Though weary, he said to those who remained, “Let us arise and move out against our enemies. We may yet be able to fight them.” 9 But they kept trying to turn him back, saying, “We are not able. Let us rather save our lives now. Let us return with our brothers and fight against them later, for we are too few.” 10 But Judas answered, “May it be far from us to do such a thing, to run away from them. If our time has come to die, then let us die courageously for the sake of our people. We will not leave behind a charge against our honor.”
Then the forces of Bacchides moved out from the camp in formation and stood to encounter them. The mounted troops were divided into two parts, and the sling-throwers and the archers advanced before the army, along with all the chief warriors; Bacchides was on the right flank. Then the phalanx drew near between the companies on both sides and sounded their trumpets. The army of Judas also blew its trumpets. The ground shook by the clamor of the troops, and the battle raged on from morning until nightfall.

Judas realized that Bacchides had the strength of his forces on the right flank. So all the stouthearted men came together with Judas. They demolished the right flank, and pursued Bacchides’ men all the way to Mount Azotus. When those on the left flank saw that the right flank was broken, they reversed course and followed closely behind the army of Judas. The battle was fierce, and many men on both sides suffered wounds and fell. Judas also fell, and his men fled.

Jonathan and Simon took Judas their brother and buried him in the tomb of his fathers in Modein. They wept for him, and all Israel mourned him with great lamentation for many days, saying,

“How the mighty is fallen, Israel's savior.”

Now the abundant acts of Judas—his wars, the brave things he did, and his greatness—are not recorded, for there were far too many.

Jonathan Succeeds His Brother

After Judas's death, the lawless emerged in all the regions of Israel, and all those rose up who worked evil. In those days, there was a very great famine, and the nation deserted with the evildoers to Bacchides, He chose godless men and appointed them lords of the country. These men sought out and searched for the allies of Judas, bringing them to Bacchides. He took vengeance on them and mocked them. There was great perplexity in Israel, such as had not been seen since the days when the prophets ceased to be seen in their midst.

Then all of Judas's friends came together and spoke to Jonathan. Since your brother Judas died, a man like him has not come out to take on our enemies, namely Bacchides and those from our country who hate us. Therefore, we have now chosen you this day to replace him as our ruler and be our leader in battle." 31So Jonathan accepted the command at once and rose up in the place of Judas his brother.

Jonathan Takes on Bacchides

32When Bacchides heard this, he sought to kill him. 33But Jonathan, Simon his brother, and everyone with him knew of this, and they escaped to the desert of Tekoa and camped near the waters of the pool of Asphar. 34Bacchides discovered this on the Sabbath, and he and his army all crossed over the Jordan.

35So Jonathan sent John his brother as leader of the people, and he begged his Nabatean friends for approval to store their huge amount of baggage with them.† 36But the sons of Jambri from Medeba came out and seized John, and left with everything he had.

43Bacchides then heard of this and arrived with a large army on the Sabbath at the banks of the Jordan. 44So Jonathan said to those with him, “Let us stand and fight for our lives, for today is not as yesterday or the day before. 45Behold, the battle is before us and behind us. The water of the Jordan is on this side and that, and the low ground and thicket is not the place to turn aside. 46Now therefore, cry out to heaven that you may be saved from the hand of our adversaries.” 47So the battle was joined, and Jonathan reached out his hand to strike Bacchides, who ducked aside and went behind him. 48Then Jonathan and his forces jumped into the Jordan River, swimming to the other side. Bacchides and his army did not cross over the Jordan to strike them. 49About a thousand of Bacchides’ soldiers fell on that day.
50 Bacchides then returned to Jerusalem and built fortified cities in Judea: the fortresses were in Jericho, and in Emmaus, Beth-horon, Bethel, Timnath, Pharathon and Tephon, all with high walls, gates, and bars. 51 He also placed a guard in them, and they were hostile to Israel. 52 Then he strengthened the cities of Beth-zur and Gazara, and the citadel, and placed armies in them with stores of provisions. 53 He also seized the sons of the rulers of the area, holding them hostage under armed guards at the citadel in Jerusalem.

Attempted Destruction at the Temple

54 Then in the one hundred fifty-third year, in the second month, Alcimus issued the command to take down the wall of the inner court of the sanctuary. Then he took down the work of the prophets and started to destroy it.† 55 At that instant, Alcimus was stricken, his mischief was thwarted, his mouth was shut up, and he became paralyzed. He could not even speak a word so as to give orders concerning his property. 56 So Alcimus died then and there in great pain. 57 When Bacchides saw that Alcimus had died, he returned to King Demetrius. Thus the land of Judah was peaceful for two years.

58 Soon, all the lawless men deliberated among themselves, saying, “Behold, Jonathan and those with him are living in peace and certitude. Now, therefore, let us bring Bacchides back here, and he will seize them all in one night.” 59 So they went and conversed with him, 60 and he departed to come with a large army, secretly sending letters to all his allies in Judea, telling them to capture Jonathan and those with him. But they could not do so, because their plot had been discovered. 61 So Jonathan and his men caught about fifty of their countrymen who were the leaders of the agitation, and killed them.

Bacchides’ Forces Are Crushed

62 Then Jonathan, Simon, and those with them departed for Bethbasi in the desert, and rebuilt the outpost that had been destroyed and strengthened it. 63 When Bacchides heard of this, he gathered all his army and sent orders to the men of Judea. 64 Then he arrived and camped at Bethbasi and attacked it for many days, making engines of war. 65 But Jonathan left Simon his brother in the city, and headed out into the country with a handful of men. 66 He struck Odomera and his brothers and the sons of Phasiron inside their tents. Then he launched his attack and entered into battle with his armies. 67 Meanwhile Simon and those with him came out of the city and set on fire the engines of war. Once they took the offensive against Bacchides, he was crushed by them. They upset him greatly because his plan of attack was in vain. Also, he was filled with rage at his advisors, the lawless men who urged him to come into the country. So he killed many of them and then decided to return home.

When Jonathan learned of these events, he sent envoys to make peace with Bacchides and to obtain freedom for the captives. Bacchides accepted the proposal and swore to Jonathan he would not harm him all the days of his life. He returned to him the hostages taken earlier from the land of Judah. Then he returned to his homeland and made no further attempt to come into their country. Thus the sword was laid down in Israel. Then Jonathan settled down in Michmash, where he began to judge the people and to destroy the ungodly men of Israel.

Alexander Appoints Jonathan High Priest.

Then in the one hundred and sixtieth year, Alexander, the son of Antiochus Epiphanes, went forth and conquered Ptolemais. They made him welcome, and he reigned there. But when Demetrius the king learned this, he gathered a huge army and went out to battle him. Demetrius also sent a letter to Jonathan with peaceful words to flatter him. For he said, “Let us act with foresight to make peace with him before he sides with Alexander against us. For he will recall the evils we carried out against him, and against his brothers and his nation.” So the king gave authority to Jonathan to assemble an army, prepare weapons, and be his ally. He also ordered the hostages in the citadel to be released to him.

Then Jonathan entered Jerusalem and read the letter in the presence of all the people and those in the citadel. They were very frightened when they heard the king had given Jonathan authorization to assemble an army. So the men in the citadel returned the hostages to Jonathan, and he brought them back to their parents.

Soon, Jonathan settled in Jerusalem and began to reconstruct the city. He also told the workers to build the walls to surround Mount Zion with square-cut stones for fortification, which they did. Then the foreigners who had been in their fortresses built by Bacchides fled. Each one left his place and departed into his own land. Only some in Beth-zur who had forsaken the law and the commandments remained, for it was a place of refuge.
When King Alexander heard about the proposals Demetrius had sent to Jonathan, and was told about the battles and the courageous deeds done by Jonathan and his brothers (as well as what they had suffered), he said, “Where will we find another like this man? Let us make him our friend and our ally.” So he wrote a letter and sent it to him, saying:

18 “Alexander the king to Jonathan his brother, greetings. We have heard you are a mighty warrior and suitable to be our friend. So now we appoint you today as high priest of your people and command that you be called a friend of the king (he also sent him a purple robe and a golden crown). We ask you to agree with our interests and maintain friendship with us.”

So Jonathan, in the seventh month of the one hundred and sixtieth year, put on the holy robe at the Feast of Tabernacles. Then he gathered an army and stockpiled many weapons.

Demetrius I Writes to Jonathan

When Demetrius heard these reports, he was disturbed and said, “What is this that we have done? Alexander has upstaged us by forming a friendship with the Jews for support! I also will write them words of encouragement and promise them glory and gifts, that they may be my support.” So he sent them the following message:

“King Demetrius to the nation of the Jews, greetings. Since you have kept your agreements with us and maintained our friendship, and have not sided with our enemies, we have learned of this and rejoice. Even now, do continue to keep faith with us, and we will repay you good things for your deeds. We will grant you many prerogatives and give you gifts.

At this time I am releasing and exempting all Jews from tribute and salt taxes and from crown levies. Furthermore, instead of handing over to me a third of the harvest and half of the fruit of the trees, which I am due, I cancel them from this day forward and beyond. I will not extract them from those of Judah, nor from the three provinces annexed to them from Samaria and Galilee from now on. In addition, let Jerusalem and her vicinities be set apart and released from tithes and taxes. I am also releasing my control of the citadel in Jerusalem, and I give it to the high priest, that he may place men in it whom he himself chooses to guard it. So every soul of the Jews taken captive from the land of Judah into all my kingdom I release freely without payment. Let all officials also cancel the duties on their livestock.

34“Moreover, all the feasts, the Sabbaths, the new moons, the appointed days, as well as the three days prior to the feast and three after the feast, let all these days be established as exempt and released for the Jews in my kingdom. 35 No one will have the power to exact anything from them or to trouble any of them about anything.

36“Let the number of Jews in the army of the king be limited to thirty thousand men, and let the stipend that is due to all the troops of the king be paid to them. 37 Some of them are to be established in the great fortresses of the king, and some are to be set in positions of trust wherever the kingdom has need. Let their officers and leaders be taken from them, and let them live by their own laws, as the king commanded in the land of Judah.

38“As for the three provinces added to Judea from the country of Samaria, let them be considered as one, so it may not be subject to any other authority than the high priest. 39 I have given Ptolemais and the land adjoining it as gifts to the sanctuary in Jerusalem, for regular expenses in the sanctuary. 40 I also grant fifteen thousand silver shekels yearly out of the king's revenues from the appropriate places. 41 Even all the surplus the officials did not pay as in the first years, from now on they will give for the works of the temple. 42 Moreover, the five thousand shekels of silver which the officials received every year from the incomes of the sanctuary, these are also cancelled, because they belong to the priests who minister there. 43 Further, whoever takes refuge at the temple in Jerusalem or in any of its vicinities because he owes a royal payment or any debt, let him be released and receive back all his property in my kingdom.

44“The expense of rebuilding and restoring the structures of the sanctuary is also to be paid from the king's revenue. 45 Then too, the expenses of rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem and the fortifications around it are to be paid from the king's revenue, and also the rebuilding of the walls in Judea.”

Offer Rejected, Demetrius Killed.

46 But when Jonathan and the people heard these words, they did not believe or accept them, because they remembered the great wrongs Demetrius had done in Israel and how badly he had afflicted them. 47 So they favored Alexander, because he was the first to offer peaceable words to them; therefore, they remained allied with him all his days.

48 Now King Alexander assembled a large army and took position opposite Demetrius. 49 The two kings met in battle, and the army of Demetrius fled. Alexander took pursuit and defeated them. 50 He fought very hard until sunset, and Demetrius fell on that day.

Alexander Weds Cleopatra

51 Then Alexander sent envoys to Ptolemy the king of Egypt with the following message:

52 “Since I returned to my kingdom and have taken the throne of my fathers and established my rule (for I defeated Demetrius and secured control of my country; 53 I faced him in war and he and his forces were destroyed by us; and we indeed have sat down upon the throne of his kingdom), 54 now let us build a friendship with each other. Give me your daughter in marriage, and I will become your son-in-law. I will give you gifts worthy of both you and her.”

55 Then Ptolemy the king answered, saying:

“It was a good day when you went back to your fathers’ homeland and occupied the throne of their kingdom. 56 Now I will do for you what you requested, so meet me at Ptolemais, that we might see each other; and I will be your father-in-law, as you asked.”

57 Then Ptolemy left Egypt along with his daughter Cleopatra, and reached Ptolemais in the one hundred and sixty-second year. 58 King Alexander met him there, and Ptolemy gave him his daughter Cleopatra in marriage. He celebrated her wedding in Ptolemais with great pageantry, in royal manner.

Jonathan Made Governor

59 Then King Alexander wrote for Jonathan to meet him. 60 So he journeyed with splendor to Ptolemais and there met the two monarchs. He offered them silver and gold, and gave their friends numerous gifts. Thus he found favor with them.

61 Then some troublemakers from Israel, lawless men, also gathered against Jonathan to accuse him, but the king paid no attention to them. 62 The king then gave command to remove Jonathan's clothes and robe him in purple; and they did. Then the king seated him with himself and said to his leaders, “Go out with him into the midst of the city and proclaim that no one should accuse him concerning any matter; and let no one trouble him for any cause.” So it was that when his accusers saw the honor given him according to the proclamation, and saw him robed in purple, they fled. Thus the king honored him and inscribed him among his close friends. He also appointed him general and provincial governor. Then Jonathan departed to Jerusalem with peace and gladness of heart.

Demetrius II Appoints Apollonius

Now in the one hundred and sixty-fifth year, Demetrius, the son of Demetrius, traveled from Crete to the land of his fathers. When King Alexander heard it, he was very distressed and went back to Antioch. Then Demetrius appointed Apollonius governor of Coele-Syria. Apollonius gathered a large army and marched against Jamnia. He sent word to Jonathan the high priest, saying:

“You alone rose up against us, but I was ridiculed and disgraced because of you. Why do you maintain authority over us in the hill country? Now therefore, if you trust in your army, come down against us in the plain, and let us judge together for ourselves there, for I have an army of the cities. Inquire and learn who I am, and the others who help us. They tell us there is no place for your foot to stand before us, because your fathers were put to flight twice in their land. Even now, you shall not be able to withstand such a cavalry and army in the plain, where there is neither stone nor pebble nor any place to flee.”

Jonathan Defeats Apollonius

But when Jonathan heard the words of Apollonius, he was moved to action. He chose ten thousand men and departed from Jerusalem, and his brother Simon joined to help him. He took up a position at Joppa, but the men of that city shut its gates; for Apollonius had a band of soldiers in Joppa. So Jonathan attacked them. Then the men of Joppa became fearful and opened the gates; and Jonathan captured Joppa.

When Apollonius got word of it, he gathered three thousand cavalry and a sizable army and marched into Azotus, as though he were going beyond. But he went ahead into the plain, since he had a large cavalry and trusted in it. Jonathan chased him to Azotus, and there the armies joined in battle. 79 But Apollonius secretly had left a thousand cavalry behind. 80 Jonathan discovered there was an ambush behind him, for they encircled his army and shot arrows at his troops from morning till sundown. 81 But his army stood their ground, as Jonathan had ordered, and their cavalry grew tired.

82 Then Simon brought in his army and confronted the phalanx in battle (for the cavalry had grown tired); and they were crushed by him and fled. 83 When the cavalry was scattered on the plain, they retreated to Azotus, entering Beth-dagon, their pagan temple, to hide. 84 Then Jonathan set Azotus and the surrounding cities on fire and took spoils from them. The temple of Dagon and those who took refuge in it were burned up in the fire.† 85 So eight thousand men fell by the sword along with those who were killed by the fire.

86 Then Jonathan left there and camped opposite Ashkelon, and the men of the city came out with great ceremony to meet him. 87 Jonathan and the men with him later went back to Jerusalem with many spoils. 88 Thus when King Alexander heard these reports, he proceeded to honor Jonathan again.† 89 So he sent him a golden buckle, as was customary to give to the relatives of kings. He also gave to him Ekron and all its regions as his possession.

Ptolemy IV, Alexander Die

11 Then the king of Egypt gathered together a large army, like sand along the seashore, and many ships; and he sought to obtain possession of Alexander's kingdom by deceit, and to add it to his kingdom. 2 So he set out for Syria with words of peace, and those from the cities were open to him and met with him, because King Alexander ordered them to meet him since he was his father-in-law. 3 But when Ptolemy entered the cities, he set a band of soldiers in every city.

4 But when they neared Azotus, they showed him the temple of Dagon which had been burned, and Azotus and the surrounding fortifications that were destroyed, and the bodies of those lying about whom Jonathan had burned in the war; for they made heaps of them in his path. 5 They also told the king what Jonathan had done, so as to blame him; but the king remained silent. 6 Jonathan then met the king in Joppa with great ceremony, and they greeted each other and stayed the night there. 7 Jonathan journeyed with the king to the river Eleutherus, and then went back to Jerusalem.
Thus King Ptolemy ruled over the coastal cities as far as Seleucia by the sea, and devised evil plans against Alexander. So he sent ambassadors to King Demetrius, saying, “Come, let us enter into a covenant with one another. I will give you my daughter, Alexander's wife, in marriage, and you will reign over your father's kingdom. For I regret giving him my daughter, since he tried to kill me.” Thus, Ptolemy blamed Alexander because he desired his kingdom. So he took back his daughter and gave her to Demetrius. Therefore he was estranged from Alexander, and their animosity was evident.

Then Ptolemy entered Antioch and assumed the crown of Asia. So he wore two crowns on his head, that of Egypt and that of Asia. But King Alexander was in Cilicia at this time, for the inhabitants there were in revolt. When Alexander heard of it, he engaged him in battle. So Ptolemy went out with a mighty force and faced him, putting him to flight. Then Alexander took refuge in Arabia, seeking safety. King Ptolemy was held in great honor. So Zabdiel the Arab cut off Alexander's head and sent it to Ptolemy. But King Ptolemy died three days later, and his garrisons in the fortresses were destroyed by the inhabitants of those fortresses. Thus in the one hundred and sixty-seventh year, Demetrius became king.

Jonathan Finds Favor with Demetrius II

In those days, Jonathan gathered men from Judea to attack the citadel in Jerusalem, and he built many engines of war for use against it. But some lawless men who despised their nation came to the king and told him Jonathan would set siege to the citadel. When the king heard this, he was enraged; and he broke camp and went to Ptolemais. He wrote Jonathan that he was to lift the siege, and to meet him in Ptolemais at once for a conference.

But when Jonathan heard this, he issued orders to continue the siege. Then he chose some elders of Israel and some priests, and put himself in danger. For he took silver, gold, clothing, and many other friendly gifts and went to the king in Ptolemais. And Jonathan found favor with him. Again, some lawless men from the nation accused Jonathan. But the king did to him as those before him had done and exalted him in front of all his friends. He also confirmed him in the high priesthood and whatever other honors he held before, and considered him as one of his best friends. Then Jonathan asked the king to exempt Judea from taxes along with the three provinces and Samaria, and promised him three hundred talents. The king was pleased and wrote Jonathan a letter concerning all these things. Its message was as follows:

30"King Demetrius to his brother Jonathan and the nation of the Jews, greetings. 31The copy of this letter which we wrote to Lasthenes our relative concerning you we have copied also to you, that you might know what it says. 32King Demetrius to his father Lasthenes, greetings. 33To the nation of the Jews, our friends, and who do what is right towards us, we have decided to do good, because of their goodwill toward us. 34We have established the borders of Judea for them and the three provinces of Aphairema, Lydda, and Rathamin. They were added to Judea from Samaria, as well as all the areas bordering them. All who offer sacrifices in Jerusalem we have released from the royal taxes which the king received from them each year, from the harvest of the earth and fruit of the trees. 35Any other payments due us from now on from the tithes, the salt pits, and the crown taxes—from all these we grant release. 36None of these provisions will be cancelled from now on for all time. 37Now therefore, take heed to make a copy of this, and let it be given to Jonathan and put in a notable place on the holy mountain.’ ”

Jonathan Aids Demetrius II

41Meanwhile, Jonathan sent to King Demetrius the request that he remove the soldiers in the citadel from Jerusalem as well as those in the fortresses; for they were at war with Israel. 42Then Demetrius sent to Jonathan, saying, “Not only will I do these things for you and your nation, but I will greatly honor you and the Jewish nation when I have the opportunity. 43And you will do rightly to send me soldiers who will ally with me, because all my troops have revolted.” 44So Jonathan sent three thousand very able men to him at Antioch. When they came to the king, he was very glad at their arrival.
Then men from the city gathered within the city, a hundred and twenty thousand of them, and they wanted to kill the king. But the king fled into the palace, and those from the city seized the streets of the city, and they began to fight. So the king summoned the Jews for help, and they all rallied around him and dispersed throughout the city. On that day they killed about one hundred thousand men. They set the city on fire, took many spoils on that day, and rescued the king. When the men of the city realized the Jews had gained control of the city at will, they lost their courage and called out to the king with this request: “Restore the peace and make the Jews quit fighting us and the city.” So they threw down their weapons and made peace. Then the Jews were honored before the king and before all those in his kingdom. After this, they returned to Jerusalem with many spoils.

Thus King Demetrius ruled on the throne of his kingdom, and the land was peaceful before him. But he broke his word about everything he promised Jonathan. Thus he became estranged from him, and did not repay Jonathan the favors he had done for him, but greatly afflicted him.

Antiochus VI Honors Jonathan

Later, Trypho returned and had with him the young boy Antiochus, who put on the crown and became king. All the troops who had cursed Demetrius gathered around him. They fought against Demetrius, who was put to flight. Trypho then captured the elephants and gained control of Antioch. So Antiochus the younger wrote to Jonathan, saying, “I confirm you in the high priesthood, set you over the four provinces, and you will be one of the king’s friends.” He also sent him gold cups to serve him at table, and gave him authority to drink from these, to dress in purple, and to wear a golden buckle. He then established Simon his brother as general from the Ladder of Tyre to the boundary of Egypt.

Then Jonathan departed and journeyed beyond the river and in the cities. The entire army of Syria gathered around him as allies. When he went into Askelon, the people of the city met him and honored him. From there, he left for Gaza, but when the inhabitants of Gaza shut him out, he besieged the city, set its surrounding fortifications on fire, and plundered them. Thus the men of Gaza pleaded with Jonathan. He made peace with them, took the sons of their governors as hostages, and dispatched them to Jerusalem. Then he traveled through the country, going as far as Damascus.
Jonathan also got word the officers of Demetrius had arrived in Kadesh in Galilee with a sizable army. They intended to oust him from office. So he set out to meet them, but he left his brother Simon in the country. Then Simon positioned himself at Beth-zur, and for many days fought against it and blocked it off. Then the people begged him for peace, and he granted it to them. So he cast them out from there, took possession of the city, and placed a garrison in it.

Now Jonathan and his soldiers camped by the lake of Gennesaret, and rose early the next morning and marched to the plain of Hazor. Then behold, the foreign army met him in the plain and set up an ambush against him in the mountains. But they themselves met him face to face. Then the men in the ambush rose up from their places and joined the battle. All Jonathan's men fled. None of them remained except Mattathias, the son of Absalom, and Judas, the son of Chalphi, commanders of the armed forces. So Jonathan tore his garments, poured earth on his head, and prayed. Then he turned back to the battle and put the enemy to flight. When Jonathan's men who had run away saw this, they returned and joined him in the pursuit of the enemy as far as Kadesh, and there they set up camp. As many as three thousand of the foreign army fell that day. Then Jonathan went back to Jerusalem.

Friendship Renewed with Rome and Sparta

When Jonathan saw the time was right, he chose envoys and sent them to Rome to validate and renew friendship with them. Also, he sent letters to Sparta and other localities for the same reasons. So they left for Rome, entered the senate chamber, and said, “Jonathan, the high priest, and the nation of the Jews sent us here to renew the former friendship and alliance between ourselves.” Then the Romans wrote letters to the citizens in every place, so they might send forth the ambassadors to the land of Judah in peace.

This is the copy of the letters which Jonathan wrote to the Spartans:

Jonathan the high priest, the elders of the nation, the priests, and the Jewish people to their brothers the Spartans, greetings. Some time earlier, letters were sent to Onias the high priest by Arius, who ruled over you, that you are our brothers, as the attached copy indicates. Onias received the envoy with honor, and he accepted the letters, which plainly showed the alliance and friendship. Therefore, although we do not need these things, since we have the holy books in our hands, we have decided to send and renew our brotherhood and friendship, so we would not be estranged from you. For significant time has elapsed since you sent word to us. Therefore at every opportunity, both on feast days and ordinary days, we remember you unceasingly in the sacrifices we offer and in our prayers, as it is right and proper to remember brothers; for we rejoice in your glory. But many troubles and many wars have surrounded us, and the kings around us have fought against us. We did not wish to trouble you and our other allies and friends with these wars. For we have had help from heaven assisting us, for we were freed from our enemies, and they were humbled. Therefore we chose Numenius son of Antiochus and Antipater son of Jason, and sent them to Rome to renew our former friendship and alliance with them. We also ordered them to go to you, to greet you and give you these letters from us concerning the renewal of our brotherhood. Now then, please send us a reply.”

This is the copy of the letters they sent to Onias:

“King Arius of the Spartans to Onias the high priest, greetings. It has been put in writing regarding both the Spartans and the Jews that they are brothers, and are both of the family of Abraham. So now that we know this, please write us concerning your welfare. Thus we are writing to you that your cattle and possessions are ours, and ours are yours. Therefore we order our ambassadors to report to you accordingly.”

Campaigns of Jonathan and Simon.

Then Jonathan heard the officers of Demetrius had come back with a larger army than before to make war against him. So he marched out of Jerusalem and engaged them in the area around Hamath, giving them no chance to invade his country. So he sent out spies to their encampment. They later returned and told him the army of Demetrius planned to attack the Jews at night. At sunset, Jonathan ordered those with him to stay awake and to be ready with their weapons for a fight during the night. Then he sent out an advance guard to surround the camp. When the enemy got word that Jonathan and his soldiers were ready for battle, they were terrified at heart. So they lit fires in their camp and fled. But Jonathan and his men did not know this until it was morning, for they saw the firelight. So Jonathan chased after them, but could not overtake them, because they crossed over the Eleutherus
Then Jonathan turned aside against the Arabs, called Zabadeans, and struck them and took their spoils. He then broke camp and marched to Damascus and throughout all that country.

Meanwhile, Simon went out and marched as far as Askelon and the fortresses nearby, and turned aside to Joppa and captured it. For he heard they wished to hand over the fortress to the men sent by Demetrius. So he established a garrison there to guard it.

When Jonathan returned, he assembled the elders of the people. Together, they decided to build fortresses in Judea, and to make the walls of Jerusalem even higher, and raise a great high wall between the citadel and the city to separate it from the city, so it would be isolated and its garrison could not buy nor sell goods. So they assembled to rebuild the city and part of the wall on the valley to the east that had fallen; thus he repaired the wall that is called Chaphenatha. Simon also built Adida in the Shephelah. They fortified it and set up bolted gates.

Jonathan Captured, Troops Killed

Then Trypho sought to rule Asia, to wear the crown, and to stretch forth his hand against King Antiochus. He also took precautions lest Jonathan would not permit it, but wage war against him. So seeking to capture and destroy him, he marched forth to Beth-shan. Then Jonathan went out to meet him with forty thousand soldiers chosen for battle, and he came to Beth-shan. When Trypho saw that he came with a large army, he was afraid to stretch forth his hand against him. So he received him honorably and met him with all his friends. He gave gifts to Jonathan, and ordered his friends and his own troops to obey him as himself. Then he said to Jonathan, “Why have you troubled all these men? We are not at war! Now send them home; but choose a few soldiers for yourself to be with you. Then come with me to Ptolemais, and I will give it over to you along with the rest of the fortresses and the remaining troops and officers. Then I will turn around and go home, for that is why I came here.”

So Jonathan believed Trypho, and did as he had said and sent away the troops, who departed for the region of Judah. But he kept three thousand soldiers with him, two thousand of which he left in Galilee, and a thousand who went with him. But when Jonathan entered Ptolemais, the men of the city shut the gates and captured him, and they Then Trypho sent soldiers and cavalry into Galilee and the Great Plain, to kill all Jonathan's men. But when the soldiers learned that Jonathan and those with him had been captured and killed, they encouraged each other to keep marching in close formation, ready for attack. But when the pursuers saw them ready to fight for their lives, they retreated. So they all came safely to the land of Judah and cried out for Jonathan and his men. They were exceedingly afraid, and all Israel mourned greatly. Then all the nations surrounding them tried to defeat them, saying, “There is none to lead them or to help them. Now then, let us wage war against them and erase them from memory.”

Simon Leads His People

Now Simon learned that Trypho had assembled a huge army to march on the land of Judah and crush it. He saw the people were trembling with fear, so he went to Jerusalem and gathered everyone together. He encouraged them, saying, “You know what my brothers and I and my father's house have done concerning the laws and the sanctuary. You know, too, the wars and the crises we have seen. This is why all my brothers perished, all for the sake of Israel, and only I am left. Now may my life never be safeguarded in time of trouble, for I am in no way better than my brothers. Thus I will avenge my nation and this sanctuary and your wives and children, for all the nations have hatefully gathered to destroy us.”

Thus he rekindled the spirit of the people when they heard these words. They responded with a loud voice, saying, “You lead us in place of Judas and your brother. Fight our wars, and we will do everything you tell us.” So he gathered all the men of fighting age and rushed to finish the walls of Jerusalem; he fortified the city on all sides. Then he sent Jonathan son of Absalom with a sizable army to Joppa, and he drove out its people and remained there.

Trypho Kills Jonathan

Meanwhile, Trypho left from Ptolemais with a large force to come into the land of Judah. Jonathan accompanied him under guard. Now Simon set up camp in Adida, opposite the plain. When Trypho heard that Simon had risen up in place of his brother Jonathan and... was about to face him in battle, he sent men to him, saying, 15 “We are detaining your brother Jonathan because of the silver he owed the royal treasury and for which he is responsible. 16 Now send a hundred talents of silver and two of his sons as hostages, that when he is freed he will not rise up against us; then we will free him.” 17 Simon sensed they were speaking to him deceitfully, but he sent for the silver and the sons, lest he arouse great hostility among the people, for they might say, 18 “Because Simon did not give him the money and the sons, Jonathan perished.” 19 Then he sent the sons and the hundred talents. But Trypho acted with deceit and would not free Jonathan.

20 Later, Trypho arrived to invade Judah to destroy it, and they circled around the road leading to Adora. But Simon and his army advanced along opposite him every place he went. 21 Then men from the citadel sent ambassadors to Trypho, urging him to come to them through the desert and send food for them. 22 Trypho then prepared all his cavalry to come, but there was a heavy snowfall that night, and he could not march through the deep snow. Instead, he departed and went into Gilead. † 23 But when he came near Bascama, he slew Jonathan and buried him there. † 24 Then Trypho turned and went to his own country.

25 Simon sent men and gathered the remains of his brother Jonathan and buried him in Modein, the city of his fathers. 26 All Israel mourned him with great lament for many days. 27 Simon also built up the tomb of his father and brothers with polished stone in front and back, making it high enough to be seen. 28 He then built seven pyramids, one opposite the other, for his father and his mother and his four brothers. 29 Around these pyramids he made engines of war, building massive pillars around them, and upon these pillars he placed suits of armor for a perpetual memorial, and alongside the suits of armor he made carved ships, so they could be seen by everyone sailing the sea. 30 This tomb which he made in Modein exists until this day.

Demetrius II Honors Simon

31 Now Trypho also dealt wickedly with young Antiochus the king and murdered him. † 32 Then he became king in his place and wore the crown of Asia, bringing great adversity to the land. 33 Simon thus strengthened the fortresses in Judea, surrounding them with high towers and with thick walls and gates and bolts, storing provisions in the fortresses. 34 Also Simon selected men and sent them to King Demetrius to bring relief for the country, for all
Trypho's actions were violent.

Then the king sent him a positive answer and wrote him this letter:

35“King Demetrius to Simon the high priest, friend of kings, and to the elders and the Jewish nation, greetings. 36We received the crown of gold and the palm branch you sent. We are ready to declare general peace with you and to order our officials to cancel your taxes. 37Indeed, all the grants we made to you stay intact, and let the fortresses you built remain in your keeping. 38We also forgive the mistakes committed up to the present day as well, and remove the crown tax you owe. If any other tax has been exacted in Jerusalem, let it be no longer exacted. 39If some of your men are suited for enrollment in our bodyguard, let them be enrolled. And may there be peace among us.”

42Then the people began to record in their letters and contracts, “In the first year of Simon, the great high priest and commander and ruler of the Jews.”

Simon Secures Gazara and Jerusalem

43In those days Simon camped at Gazara, surrounding it with soldiers. He also built an engine of war, brought it to the city, and struck and seized one tower. 44Then the men in the siege engine jumped out and ran into the city, and there was a great commotion in Gazara.

49But the men in the citadel at Jerusalem were prevented from coming and going in the region to buy and to sell. So they were extremely hungry; even the strong among them were dying of hunger. 50When they called out to Simon to be at peace with them, he did so and then cast them out from there, purifying the citadel from its defilements. 51They entered it on the twenty-third day of the second month of the one hundred and seventy-first year with praise and palm branches, and with lyres, cymbals, and stringed instruments, and with hymns and songs, because a great enemy had been defeated and cast out of Israel. 52Thus Simon ordered that each year they should commemorate this day with jubilation. When the temple mount was fortified along with the citadel, he himself and his men lived there. 53Then Simon noted that his son John had reached adulthood. So he appointed him commander of all the army, and he lived in Gazara.

A Tribute to Simon

Then in the one hundred and seventy-second year, King Demetrius gathered his troops and went into Media to enlist help for himself to wage war against Trypho. 2When Arsaces, king of Persia and Media, learned that Demetrius had entered his borders, he sent one of his officers to capture him alive. 3So he set out and attacked the camp of Demetrius, and captured him and brought him to Arsaces, who put him in prison.

4 The land of Judah was peaceful all the days of Simon,
   And he sought the good of his nation,
   And his leadership and his glory pleased them all his days.
5 Then in all his glory he took Joppa for a harbor
   And made an entrance to the islands of the sea.
6 He enlarged his nation's borders
   And gained control of his country.
7 He also gathered many captives
   And ruled Gazara and Beth-zur and the citadel.
8 When he removed from it the uncleanness,
   No one opposed him.
9 They farmed their land in peace,
   And the land gave forth its produce,
   And the trees of the plain their fruit.
10 Elders sat in the streets,
    Talking together of good things;
    And the young men wore the glories and apparel of war.
11 He supplied the cities with food
    And furnished them with weapons of defense,
    Until his fame spread to the ends of the earth.
12 He established peace in the land,
And Israel rejoiced with great delight.
Each one sat under his vine and fig tree,
And no one made them afraid.
He caused war to cease in the land,
And kings were defeated in those days.
He fortified all the humble among his people;
He demanded adherence to the law
And removed all the lawless and evil men.
He beautified the sanctuary
And multiplied the vessels of the sanctuary.

Alliances Renewed with Rome and Sparta.

16 When it was heard in Rome and as far away as Sparta that Jonathan had died, they were in great sorrow. 17 But when they heard that his brother Simon had been made high priest in his place and was ruling over the land and the cities in it, 18 they wrote to him on bronze plaques to renew the friendship and alliance they had built with him and with his brothers Judas and Jonathan. 19 These tablets were read before all the people gathered in Jerusalem.

20 This is a copy of the letters the Spartans sent:

“The leaders and the city of the Spartans, to Simon, the high priest, and the elders and the priests, and to all the Jewish people, our brothers, greetings. 21 The ambassadors who were sent by you to our people told us about your glory and honor, and we were overjoyed at their coming. 22 So we recorded what was said by them in our public decrees as follows: ‘Numenius, son of Antiochus, and Antipater, the son of Jason, ambassadors of the Jews, came to renew their friendship with us. 23 Our citizens were pleased to receive them honorably and to place a copy of their words in the public archives, so the people of the Spartans might have a record of them. They also sent a copy of this to Simon the high priest.’ ”

24 Later, Simon dispatched Numenius to Rome with a large gold shield that weighed a thousand minas, to verify the alliance with them.

A Bronze Plaque for Simon.

25 The people heard these words and they said, “How can we show our gratitude to Simon
For he, his brothers, and his father's house stood strong and waged war with the enemies of Israel by themselves, and secured her freedom.” So they wrote these words on bronze tablets and put them on the pillars on Mount Zion,

On the eighteenth day of Elul, in the hundred and seventy-second year, which is the third year of the great high priest Simon in the court of God's people, at the large gathering of the priests and people and the rulers of the nation and the elders of the land, the following was made known to us:

Since there have often been wars in the country, Simon the son of Mattathias, priest of the sons of Joarib, with his brothers, placed themselves at risk and opposed their nation's adversaries, so their sanctuary and the law would be protected; and they honored their nation with great glory. Jonathan also rallied their nation, was made their high priest, and was brought before his people. When their adversaries chose to invade their country and seize their sanctuary, Simon set out to wage war for his country. He spent large amounts of his own money, and supplied weapons to the soldiers in his nation's army, and paid them wages. Thus he strengthened the cities of Judea, and Beth-zur on the boundary of Judea, where the weapons of the enemy were kept; and he established there a garrison of Jews. He also strengthened Joppa by the sea and Gazara on the boundary of Azotus, where the enemy had previously lived. He moved the Jews there and supplied them with whatever they needed for their welfare.

When the people saw Simon's dependability and the glory he was committed to bring to his nation, they chose him as their ruler and high priest, because he did all these things and because of the righteousness and good faith he kept toward his nation. In every way he tried to honor his people. Under his rule, everything he touched prospered, and he drove out the Gentiles from the land. The men in the city of David in Jerusalem had made a citadel for themselves, from which they went out and defiled the vicinity of the sanctuary and caused great harm to its purity. Then he settled Jews in it and strengthened it for the security of the country and the city, and built up the walls of Jerusalem to greater heights.

In light of these accomplishments, King Demetrius established him in the high priesthood. He also made him one of his friends and showed him great honor. For he heard the Jews were called friends, allies, and brothers by the Romans and that they had received Simon's ambassadors with honor.

41 “Thus the Jews and the priests were pleased that Simon should be their ruler and high priest forever, until a faithful prophet should arise. 42 They were also pleased that he should be their governor, and take responsibility for the sanctuary and choose workers to meet its needs, and to look after the country, the weapons and the fortresses. 43 Indeed they decided he should look after the sanctuary and be obeyed by all, that all the contracts of the nation should be drafted with his signature, and that he should be vested in purple and gold.

44 “None of the people or the priests were to be allowed to repeal any of these things, or say anything in opposition to him, or hold an assembly of the people without him, or be clothed in purple, or wear a gold buckle. 45 Anyone who should do anything contrary to these decisions or nullify any of them was to be held liable.

46 “All the people resolved that Simon should act according to these decisions. 47 So Simon consented, agreeing to become high priest, and to be the governor and ethnarch of the Jews and priests and the guardian of all.”

48 They commanded that this decree be inscribed on bronze tablets and be put in a public place near the sanctuary. 49 Copies were also placed in the treasury, accessible to Simon and his sons.

Antiochus VII Seeks Simon's Help

Then Antiochus, son of King Demetrius, sent a letter from the islands of the sea to Simon, the high priest and ethnarch of the Jews, and to all the nation. 2 It contained the following:

“Antiochus the King to Simon, high priest and ethnarch, and the nation of the Jews, greetings. 3 Since certain troublemakers gained the mastery over the kingdom of our fathers, I wish to lay claim to the kingdom so I can establish it as it was before. I have recruited a multitude of troops and prepared war ships. 4 I plan to go throughout the nation, that I may pursue those who laid our country to ruin and desolated many of its cities. 5 Now therefore, I validate your tax remissions, which the kings before me forgave you, and whatever other payments they remitted for you. 6 I also authorize you to make your own coinage as money for your nation, 7 and allow Jerusalem and the sanctuary to be free. All the weapons you prepared and the fortresses you built, which you seized, let them remain with you. 8 Every money you owe the royal treasury, as well as future debts, let them be remitted from now on and for all time. 9 As soon as we regain control of our kingdom, we will honor you and your nation and the temple with great glory, that your glory may be evident in all the earth.”

10 In the one hundred seventy-fourth year, King Antiochus went to the land of his fathers and all his soldiers went with him. Few sided with Trypho. 11 When Antiochus went after him, he fled to Dora by sea, 12 for he knew that calamity had come upon him. His armies deserted him. 13 Then Antiochus set up camp opposite Dora with one hundred and twenty thousand fighting men and eight thousand cavalry. 14 He encircled the city, and the ships joined the battle from the sea. So he pressed hard against the city by land and sea and did not allow anyone to leave or enter.

The Jews Receive Rome's Support

15 Then Numenius and his men came from Rome with letters to the kings and their countries, in which the following was contained:

16 “Lucius, the Roman consul, to Ptolemy the king, greetings. 17 The ambassadors of the Jews came to us as friends and allies to renew their longstanding friendship and alliance. They were sent from Simon, the high priest, and by the Jewish people, 18 and brought a gold shield of a thousand minas. 19 Therefore it pleased us to write the kings and their countries, that they not seek to hurt them or wage war against them and their cities and country, or form alignments with those who fight them. 20 It seems right to accept the shield from them. 21 If therefore any troublemakers have escaped from their country to you, give them over to Simon the high priest, that he might prosecute them according to their law.”

22 The consul wrote identical letters to King Demetrius, and to Attalus, Ariarathes, and Arsaces, 23 and to all the nations, to Sampsames, and the Spartans, and to Delos, Myndos, Sieyon, Caria, Samos, Pamphylia, Lycia, Halicarnassus, Rhodes, Phaselis, Cos, Side, Arados, Gortyna, Cnidus, Cyprus, and Cyrene. 24 They also sent a copy to Simon the high priest.

Antiochus VII Turns on Simon

25 Meanwhile, King Antiochus besieged Dora a second time, repeatedly launching his forces against it and building engines of war. He put Trypho in confinement, so he could neither go out or go in. Then Simon sent Antiochus two thousand chosen men as allies, along with silver, gold, and considerable weaponry. But Antiochus decided not to accept these things; he broke all the former agreements he had made with Simon, becoming estranged from him. Then he sent Athenobius, one of his friends, to confer with him, saying, “You control Joppa, Gazara, and the citadel in Jerusalem; they are cities of my kingdom. You desolated their territory and caused great damage in the land; and you rule over many places in my kingdom. Now therefore, give back the cities you took and the taxes from the places you rule outside the boundaries of Judea. Otherwise, give me five hundred talents of silver for them, as well as five hundred talents more for the destruction you caused and for the tribute of the cities; or else we will wage war and defeat you.”

When Athenobius, the friend of the king, entered Jerusalem and saw the glory of Simon and the sideboard plated with gold and silver, a magnificent display, he stood amazed. Then he reported the words of the king to him. Thus Simon answered and said to him, “We have not taken any foreign land, nor have we captured foreign property, but only the inheritance of our fathers, which years ago was seized unjustly by our adversaries. But now that we have occasion, we are holding firmly to the inheritance of our fathers. And as for Joppa and Gazara, which you want, their people were causing great damage to our people and our country. For them we will give you one hundred talents.” Athenobius said not a word in reply, but returned to the king in anger. When he relayed to him these words, plus Simon's splendor and everything he witnessed, the king was extremely enraged.

Now Trypho had boarded a ship and escaped to Orthosia. So the king made Cendebeus his commander-in-chief of the seacoast and gave him infantry soldiers and cavalry. He then ordered him to encamp opposite Judea, and further ordered him to build Kedron and strengthen its gates, and to wage war against the people. But the king himself pursued Trypho. When Cendebeus arrived in Jamnia, he began to harass the people. He also invaded Judea, took people captive, and killed them. Then he built up Kedron and stationed cavalry and soldiers there, so they could march through the roads of Judea, making roads as the king commanded him.
Then John traveled from Gazara and told his father Simon the damage Cendebeus was inflicting. So Simon called his two oldest sons, Judas and John, and said to them, “My brothers and I and my father's house have fought Israel's battles from our youth until this very day. Things have gone well for us, so as to rescue Israel many times over. Now I have become old, and you by His mercy are men of maturity. Take over my position and my brother's role and go fight for our country, and may the help sent from heaven be yours.”

Thus John chose twenty thousand fighting men and cavalry from the country. Together they marched toward Cendebeus and encamped overnight in Modein. They arose early, marching to the plain. Behold, a huge army was marching out to meet them, infantry and cavalry, and there was a stream between them. John and his army faced off against them, and when he saw that his troops were afraid to ford the stream, he crossed first. His soldiers saw him and crossed behind him. He then divided up the men, putting the cavalry in the middle of the infantry, for the enemy's cavalry was very large. When they sounded the trumpet, Cendebeus and his army were routed, and numbers of them fell wounded. The rest of them fled into the fortress. Then Judas, the brother of John, was wounded, but John pursued them until Cendebeus reached Kedron, where he had done construction. When they ran into the towers in the fields of Azotus, John set them afire, and roughly two thousand of their men perished. Then he returned to Judea in peace.

John Succeeds Simon

Now Ptolemy, the son of Abubus, had been made governor to rule over the plain of Jericho. He had large hoards of silver and gold, for he was the son-in-law of the high priest. He was optimistic and full of determination to seize control of the country. So he developed an evil strategy to seize Simon and his sons by trickery.

Now Simon was paying a visit to the cities throughout the country, concentrating on their needs. So he went down to Jericho along with his sons Mattathias and Judas in the one hundred and seventy-seventh year, in the eleventh month, the month of Shebat. The son of Abubus received them with deceit in the little fortress called Dok, which he had erected, and he gave them a grand feast and hid the men there. So when Simon and his sons became drunk, Ptolemy and his soldiers emerged and grabbed their weapons. When they encountered Simon in the banquet hall, they murdered him along with his two sons and certain of his

Ptolemy then drafted a report to the king about these things and asked that he might send him soldiers to help, and to secure their country and cities. He also dispatched soldiers to Gazara to seize John, and sent letters to military tribunes to come to him, so he might give them silver, gold, and gifts. Then he sent others to capture Jerusalem and the temple hill. But somebody ran ahead and told John in Gazara that his father and his brothers had been killed and that “he has sent men to kill you as well.” When John heard this, he was deeply shocked. He captured the soldiers who came to crush him and killed them; for he discovered they were there to kill him.

The rest of John's words and his war history and brave acts, which he did so courageously, plus the heightening of the walls which he built, and his other accomplishments, behold, they are written in the book of his high priesthood, from when he was first made high priest following his father.

The Second Book of the Maccabees

Author—The author is unknown, but it is certainly not the author of 1 Maccabees. This author was most probably a Jew from Palestine who abbreviated or summarized a five-volume work by Jason of Cyrene (2:19–32), who wrote in Greek.

Date—About 124 BC or later. The bulk of Jason's five-volume work spans 180–160 BC.

Major Theme—God takes care of the Jewish people by rewarding those who are faithful to the Law and punishing evildoers. This is a story of the weak overcoming the mighty because they pray to God, trust in Him, and obey His laws. The main character, Judas Maccabeus, brings deliverance to the persecuted Jewish community through his victories.

Background—The story begins with two letters from Jerusalem to the Jews in Alexandria, Egypt, urging them to celebrate the rededication of the temple in Jerusalem (the feast of Hanukkah) and to resist the pagans. The author then proceeds to summarize the five-volume work of Jason of Cyrene concerning the exploits of Judas Maccabeus and his family.

Outline

I. Introduction (1:1–2:32)
   A. Letter to the Jews in Egypt (1:1–9)
   B. Letter to Aristobulus (1:10–2:18)
   C. Foreword by the author (2:19–32)

II. The Evil Plot of Simon and the Conversion of Heliodorus (3:1–4:6)

   A. The wicked high priests Jason and Menelaus (4:7–5:27)
   B. The campaign against Judaism (6:1–17)
   C. The martyrdoms of Eleazar and the seven brothers and their mother (6:18–7:42)
   D. Judas's victories and the purification of the temple (8:1–10:9)

IV. The reigns of Antiochus V Eupator (164–162 BC) and Demetrius I Soter (161–150 BC): The Later Campaigns of Judas Maccabeus (10:10–15:36)
   A. Judas's victories against the Idumeans, Timothy, and Lysias (10:10–13:26)
   B. Plot against Judas's life frustrated (14:1–15:36)

Letter to the Jews in Egypt

1 “The Jewish brothers in Jerusalem and the land of Judea, to their Jewish brothers in Egypt: Greetings and good peace.†

2 “May God do good to you, and may He remember His covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, His faithful servants. 3 May He give all of you a heart to worship Him and do His will with a strong heart and willing soul. 4 May He open your heart to His law and His commandments, and may He bring you peace. 5 May He hear your prayers and be reconciled to you, and may He not forsake you in an evil time. 6 We are now praying for you here.

7 “In the one hundred and sixty-ninth year, in the reign of Demetrius, we Jews wrote to you at the culminating point of the affliction that came upon us, in those years from the time Jason and his followers revolted against the holy land and the kingdom,† 8 and burned the gate and shed innocent blood. We prayed to the Lord and we were heard. So we offered sacrifice and fine flour, lit the lamps, and set out the loaves. 9 Now then, celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles in the month of Chislev, in the one hundred and eighty-eighth year.”†

Letter to Aristobulus and Those in Egypt

10 “Those in Jerusalem and in Judea, and the senate and Judas, to Aristobulus, who is from the family of the anointed priests and is the teacher of Ptolemy the king, and to the Jews who are in Egypt, greetings and good health.†

Thanksgiving for Protection

11 “Since we were saved by God from great dangers, we thank Him abundantly as those drawn up in battle order against a king. 12 For He drove out those who fought against the holy city. 13 And when Antiochus their leader reached Persia with a force around him that seemed irresistible, they were cut to pieces in the temple of Nanea through a deception employed by the priests of Nanea.† 14 For Antiochus, together with his friends, arrived at the temple to marry her, for the sake of obtaining most of its treasures as a dowry. 15 When the priests of the temple of Nanea set out the treasures, and Antiochus, with a few men, had come inside the enclosed wall of the sacred precinct, they closed the temple as soon as he entered it.
Then they opened the secret door of the ceiling and threw stones. They struck down the governor and his men, dismembered them, and took their heads and threw them to the people outside.† 17Blessed in every way be our God, who delivered up the ungodly men.

The Holy Fire

18“Since on the twenty-fifth day of Chislev we will celebrate the purification of the temple, we thought it needful to notify you that you might also celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles and the feast of the fire, when Nehemiah, who built the temple and the altar, offered sacrifices.† 19For when our fathers were led captive to Persia, the pious priests of that time took some of the fire off the altar and hid it secretly in the hollow of a dry well, where they sealed it, so the place would be unknown to anyone. 20But after enough years had passed, when it pleased God, Nehemiah was sent away by the king of Persia, and he appointed the descendants of the priests who hid the fire to get it. When they reported to us that they had not found the fire but rather a thick liquid, he commanded them to dip it out and bring it.† 21But when the things of the sacrifices were brought to be offered, Nehemiah told the priests to sprinkle the liquid on the wood and the things laid upon it.† 22When this was done and some time had elapsed, and the sun, which had been clouded over, shone forth, a great fire flared up, causing everyone to marvel. 23While the sacrifice was being consumed, the priests and everyone offered prayer. Jonathan led and all the rest responded, as did Nehemiah.

The Prayer of Nehemiah

24“The prayer was offered as follows: ‘O Lord, Lord God, Creator of all things, fearful, mighty, righteous, and merciful, the only King and Good One,† 25You only are bountiful, alone righteous, almighty, and eternal. You save Israel from every evil, and You chose our fathers and sanctified them. 26Accept this sacrifice on behalf of all Your people Israel, and protect Your portion, and sanctify it. 27Gather our scattered people, free those enslaved among the Gentiles, look upon the rejected and despised, and make the Gentiles know that You are our God. 28Torment the oppressors and those insolent with arrogance. 29Plant Your people in Your holy place, as Moses said.’

30Then the priests sang hymns, 31and when the things of the sacrifice were consumed, Nehemiah ordered that the remaining liquid should be poured upon large stones. 32When this was done, a flame flared up; but when a light from the altar shone in turn, the flame went out. 33 Now when this became known, the matter was reported to the king of the Persians. He was told that in the place where the exiled priests had hidden the fire, the liquid had appeared from which Nehemiah and his men purified the sacrifice. 34 So the king investigated the matter, enclosed the place, and made it sacred. 35 Then the king exchanged many excellent gifts with those he favored. 36 Nehemiah and his men called this ‘nephthar,’ which means ‘purification,’ but by most people it is called ‘nephtha.’

Jeremiah Hides the Text

“One finds in the records, as it is noted, that Jeremiah the prophet ordered those migrating to take some of the fire.† 2 The prophet also gave the law to those migrating and commanded them not to forget the Lord's ordinances, nor be led astray in their thoughts when they happened to see the gold and silver statues and their adornment. 3 He also spoke other such words and urged them not to depart from the law in their hearts.

4“ It was also written that the prophet received an oracle and ordered that the tabernacle and the ark should accompany him when he went to the mountain where Moses had gone up and had seen the inheritance of God. 5 So when Jeremiah went there and found a cave, he brought the tabernacle, the ark, and the altar of incense, and then sealed up the entrance.† 6 Some who followed him came to mark the way, but they were unable to find it. 7 Now when Jeremiah learned of this, he rebuked them and said, ‘The place shall be unknown until God gathers His people again and shows His mercy. 8 Then the Lord will disclose these things, and the glory of the Lord and the cloud will be seen, as they were shown to Moses, and as Solomon deemed it worthy that the place should be specially consecrated.’

9“ It was also made clear that Solomon in his wisdom offered sacrifice for the consecration and completion of the temple. 10 Just as Moses prayed to the Lord and fire came down from heaven and consumed the sacrifice, so Solomon also prayed, and the fire came down and consumed the whole burnt offerings.† 11 Moses said, ‘They were consumed because the sin offering had not been eaten.’ 12 Likewise Solomon also celebrated the eight days.

Memoirs of Nehemiah

13 “The same things are reported in the records and in the memoirs of Nehemiah, and also that he founded a library and gathered books about the kings and the prophets, and the writings of David, and letters of kings about votive offerings. Likewise Judas also collected all the books, lost on account of the war that came upon us; so they are in our possession. Thus if you have need of them, send people to bring them to you.

14 “Since then we are about to celebrate the purification, we write to you. Therefore you will do well to celebrate the days. For it is God who saved all His people, and gave back the inheritance to all, and the kingdom, the priesthood, and the consecration, as He promised through the law. For we hope in God that He will have mercy upon us soon and gather us from everywhere under heaven into His holy place; for He delivered us from great evils and has purified the place.”

Author's Introduction

19 Now the account of Judas Maccabeus and his brothers, the purification of the great temple, and the consecration of the altar, and moreover, the wars against Antiochus Epiphanes and his son Eupator, and the interventions that came from heaven to those who behaved courageously on behalf of Judaism, who although few in number plundered the whole country and pursued the barbarian multitudes, and recovered control of the temple famous throughout the world, freed the city, and restored the laws that were about to be dissolved, while the Lord with great goodness was merciful to them— all this, which was made clear by Jason of Cyrene in five books, we shall attempt to abridge into a single book.

20 We realize that a confused mass of material and subject matter makes it too hard on most people who wish to plunge into the narrative of history. Thus we have aimed to help those who wish to read with delight, to make it easy for those who are inclined to memorize, and to appeal to those who read for profit. Therefore for us who have undertaken the difficult task of brevity, this is no easy matter, but one demanding sweat and loss of sleep, as is the case with one who prepares a banquet seeking the benefit of others. All the same, for the sake of the gratitude of many we will gladly endure the uncomfortable toil, leaving the intricate examination of exact details to the compiler, while devoting our labor to arriving at the outlines of the abridgement.

21 Just as the architect of a new house must be concerned with the whole construction, while the one who decorates it and paints it needs to consider only what is suitable for its adornment, so it seems to me is the case with us. It is fitting for the originator of a history
31 but one who pursues brevity of narrative must be permitted to forgo exhaustive treatment. Therefore from hereon let us begin our narrative, adding only so much to what has already been said; for it is foolish to lengthen the preface of a history, but cut short the history itself.

Disagreement between Onias and Simon

When the holy city was inhabited in complete peace, because the laws were very well observed on account of the godliness of the high priest Onias and his hatred of wickedness, it happened that the kings themselves honored the place and glorified the temple with very magnificent gifts. Even Seleucus, the king of Asia, provided revenue at his own expense for all the services of the sacrifices.

But a certain Simon, from the tribe of Benjamin, who had been made protector of the temple, was at variance with the high priest about the administration of the city market. Thus when he could not prevail over Onias, he went to Apollonius, son of Tarsus, who at that time was governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia. He reported to him the untold wealth in the temple treasury at Jerusalem, so much that the funds could not be counted. Furthermore they did not belong to the account of the sacrifices, and it was possible they could fall under the authority of the king.

Heliodorus Dispatched to Jerusalem

When Apollonius met the king, he informed him about the money that was disclosed to him. So the king chose Heliodorus, who was over his affairs, and sent him with orders to remove the aforesaid money. Thus Heliodorus immediately set out on his journey, seemingly to make an inspection of the cities of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, but actually to carry out the king's purpose.

When he arrived in Jerusalem and was kindly received by the high priest of the city, he told about the disclosure and why he had come, and inquired whether this was truly the case. The high priest informed him of the deposits belonging to widows and orphans, and also some money of Hyrcanus, son of Tobias, a man held in very high regard—the value of which totaled four hundred talents of silver and two hundred of gold. All this was contrary to the report of the ungodly Simon. He also told Heliodorus that it was altogether impossible to wrong those who trusted in the holiness of the place and in the dignity and inviolability of the temple honored throughout all the world. 13 But because of the king’s orders, Heliodorus said the money must by all means be taken to the king’s treasury. 14 So he set a day to go in and direct the inspection of these funds.

There was no little anguish throughout the whole city. 15 The priests prostrated themselves before the altar in their priestly garments and appealed to heaven, to Him who gave the law concerning deposits, to keep them safe for those who deposited them. 16 To see the appearance of the high priest was to be wounded at heart, for his face and the change of his color revealed the anguish in his soul. 17 For alarm and a trembling of body had come upon the man, through which the pain in his heart became evident to those who saw him. 18 People also rushed out of their houses in crowds to make a public supplication, because the place was about to be brought into contempt.† 19 Women, girded with sackcloth beneath their breasts, amassed in the streets. Some of the virgins who were kept inside ran together to the gates, some to the walls, and others peeked out the windows. 20 All stretched out their hands to heaven and made entreaty.† 21 There was something pitiable in the prostrations of the entire populace and in the anxiety and great anguish of the high priest.

The Lord Stops Heliodorus

22 So they called upon the Almighty Lord to keep safe and secure what had been entrusted for those who had placed them in trust; 23 but Heliodorus continued with what had been decided. 24 So when he arrived at the treasury with his bodyguard, the Lord of spirits and all authority was already present. He caused such a great manifestation that all who dared to accompany him were panic-stricken at God's power. They turned about and fled in feebleness and terror. 25 For a certain horse appeared to them, having a fearful rider. It was arrayed with a very beautiful pack-saddle, and it rushed furiously at Heliodorus and struck at him with its front hooves. He who sat thereon was seen wearing a full armor of gold.† 26 Two other young men also appeared to him, remarkable in bodily strength, very beautiful in grandeur, and illustrious in dress. They stood on each side of him and pummeled him continually, inflicting him with many wounds.†

27 Suddenly Heliodorus fell to the ground, and a deep darkness overcame him. His men then picked him up and put him on a stretcher, 28 and carried him away—this man who had just entered the treasury with a great retinue and all his bodyguard, but now was not able to help himself. So they came to know, and it was clearly proven to be the power of Almighty God.

He was speechless because of the divine visitation, being thrown on the ground, deprived of all hope of recovery. The people blessed the Lord, who acted marvelously for His own place. The temple, which a little while earlier had been full of fear and trouble, was now filled with joy and gladness, because the Almighty Lord had appeared.

Certain friends of Heliodorus quickly entreated Onias the high priest to call upon the Most High to grant life to him who was lying there, about at his last breath. So the high priest, suspecting the king might think some foul play was perpetrated by the Jews regarding Heliodorus, offered sacrifice for his recovery. While the high priest was making the offering of atonement, the same young men again appeared to Heliodorus, dressed in the same apparel. They stood and said, “Be very grateful to Onias the high priest, for on his account the Lord has granted you your life. Now since you were punished by heaven, report to all men the majestic power of God.” Then having said this, they became invisible.

Heliodorus Gives Thanks to God

Then Heliodorus offered sacrifice to the Lord and made very great vows to Him who had spared his life. So after he gladly received Onias, he returned with his forces to the king. Then he bore testimony to all men about the deeds of the great God which he had seen with his own eyes. When the king asked Heliodorus what kind of man would be suitable to send on another journey to Jerusalem, he replied, “If you have any enemy or plotter against you, send him there, for you will receive him back thoroughly punished, if he should escape at all. For truly there is some power of God about that place. For He who has His dwelling in heaven watches over that place and aids it, and destroys those who come to do it harm.”

So this was how things turned out concerning Heliodorus and the preservation of the treasury.

Simon's Rage

The previously mentioned Simon, who informed about the money and his homeland, spoke evil things against Onias, claiming it was Onias himself who terrified Heliodorus and created the calamity. 2 Simon dared to say that Onias, the man who was the benefactor of the city, the protector of his fellow countrymen, and a zealot for the laws, plotted the whole matter. 3 But when Simon's hatred progressed to the point that even murders were committed by those he approved, 4 Onias realized the danger of Simon's love of strife, and that Apollonius, son of Menestheus and governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, was even intensifying Simon's malice. 5 So he went to the king, not to accuse his fellow citizens, but to look out for the common good, both public and private. 6 For he saw that without the king's attention, matters could not reach a peaceful settlement, and that Simon would not cease from his fury.

Jason Makes the Jews Learn Greek Customs

7 When Seleucus died and Antiochus, also called Epiphanes, succeeded to the kingdom, Jason the brother of Onias obtained the high priesthood by corruption. 8 For through a petition, he promised the king three hundred and sixty talents of silver, and from another source of revenue, eighty talents. 9 In addition to this, he promised to pay one hundred and fifty more if the king gave him permission to establish a gymnasium as a place for training young men, and for enrolling the men of Jerusalem as citizens of Antioch. 10 When the king assented and Jason seized the high priesthood, he at once changed his countrymen over to the Greek way of life. 11 He set aside the royal benefits to the Jews brought about through John, the father of Eupolemus, the ambassador who established friendship and alliance with the Romans. He also renounced and destroyed conformity to the laws, and created a new civic life contrary to the customs. 12 For he eagerly founded a gymnasium under the citadel itself, and persuaded the most noble of the young men to wear the Greek cap.

13 So there was the fullest expression of Hellenization and the adoption of foreign customs because of the surpassing wickedness of Jason, who was ungodly and not a true high priest. 14 Therefore the priests were no longer eager to serve at the altar, but they despised the temple and neglected the sacrifices. Instead, they hastened to take part in the unlawful proceedings in the wrestling-school after the invitation to the discus. 15 They counted the honors of their fathers as nothing, but regarded Greek honors as the best. 16 For this reason, difficult circumstances overtook them, and those whose way of life they admired and wished altogether to assimilate became their enemies and punished them. 17 For to act in an ungodly way against the divine laws is no light thing; but the following events will make this clear.
When the quadrennial games were being held at Tyre and the king was present, the vile Jason sent ambassadors, since they were Antiochian citizens from Jerusalem, to carry three hundred silver drachmas for a sacrifice to Hercules. Those who carried the money, however, considered it inappropriate and best not to use the money for sacrifice, but to expend it for another purpose. So this money, intended by the sender for the sacrifice to Hercules, was by the decision of those who carried it applied to the construction of battleships.

When Apollonius the son of Menestheus was sent to Egypt to share in the festal proclamation of King Philometor, Antiochus learned that Philometor had become hostile to his government. So he was concerned for his own safety. Therefore, after he reached Joppa, he went on to Jerusalem. He was magnificently received by Jason and the city, being ushered in with torches and shouts. Then he encamped in Phoenicia.

Menelaus Buys the High Priesthood

Then after a period of three years, Jason sent Menelaus, son of the previously mentioned Simon, to carry the money to the king and to complete the records of necessary business. But when he was commended to the king, Menelaus honored him with an appearance of authority and obtained the high priesthood for himself, outbidding Jason by three hundred talents of silver. After he received the king's orders, although in no way worthy of the high priesthood, he returned, carrying the rage and savage cruelty of a tyrant and a wild beast and having the wrath of a barbarian. Thus Jason, after he undermined his own brother, was undermined by another, and was driven as a fugitive into the land of the Ammonites.

So Menelaus took hold of the high priesthood, but he did not pay regularly any of the money promised to the king. Thus when Sostratus the commander of the citadel kept demanding payment, since the collection of revenue was his responsibility, the two of them were summoned before the king on this account. Menelaus left his own brother Lysimachus as his court official in the high priesthood, while Sostratus left Crates in charge of his Cyprian troops.

Onias Is Murdered

While these things were taking place, it came about that the cities of Tarsus and Mallus revolted because they were given as a gift to Antiochis, the king's concubine. 31 So the king went quickly to put down the rebellion. He left Andronicus, a man highly regarded, to act as his regent. 32 But Menelaus, thinking he had gained a convenient opportunity, pilfered some of the gold vessels from the temple and gave them to Andronicus. As it happened, he had already sold other vessels to Tyre and the neighboring cities. 33 But when Onias found out exactly what had taken place, he condemned these acts, after he departed to a safe place at Daphne, located near Antioch.† 34 Therefore Menelaus took Andronicus aside and urged him to kill Onias. Thus Andronicus went to Onias and persuaded him with deceit. He welcomed him with sworn pledges and gave him his right hand. Although Onias was suspicious, Andronicus persuaded him to come out of his place of sanctuary. Then, with no sense of justice, he immediately put him to death.

35 For this reason, not only the Jews, but also many of the other nations, took offense and were angry at the unjust murder of the man. 36 So when the king returned from the region of Cilicia, the Jews in the city pleaded with him regarding the senseless murder of Onias, and the Greeks also felt the common hatred of the crime. 37 Therefore Antiochus was grieved at heart and filled with pity; and he wept on account of the decency and good behavior of the deceased. 38 Inflamed with anger, he immediately stripped off the purple robe from Andronicus and tore off his garments. Then he led him around the whole city to that very place where he sinned against Onias, and there he put the bloodstained man to death. Thus the Lord repaid him with the punishment he deserved.†

Menelaus Tried for Lysimachus's Murder

39 When much sacrilegious plunder by Lysimachus took place in the city with the consent of Menelaus, and when the report of this spread abroad, the people gathered together against Lysimachus, because many of the gold vessels had already been carried away. 40 Thus, since the crowds were stirring and completely filled with wrath, Lysimachus armed about three thousand men and began an unjust attack, led by a certain Auranus, a man advanced in years but no less advanced in stupidity. 41 So when the Jews became aware of the assault of Lysimachus, some picked up stones and clubs, and others took handfuls of ashes lying about, and threw them in utter confusion at Lysimachus and his men. 42 As a result, they wounded many of them, killed some, and forced them all to flee. Then they killed the temple robber himself near the treasury.
But a judgment concerning this was presented against Menelaus. For when the king arrived at Tyre, three men sent by the council of elders presented the case before him. But Menelaus, who was already defeated, promised considerable wealth to Ptolemy son of Dorymenes if he won over the king. Therefore Ptolemy took the king aside into a certain courtyard, as if to offer him refreshment, and persuaded him to change his mind. For he indeed acquitted Menelaus, the cause of all the evil, but he sentenced to death those unfortunate men who would have been freed uncondemned even if they pleaded before Scythians. So those who had spoken for the city, the people, and the holy vessels quickly suffered the unjust penalty. For this reason, even the Tyrians were indignant over the crime and provided magnificently for their funeral expenses. But Menelaus, because of the covetousness of those in power, remained in office, increased in malice, and brought about great treachery against his fellow citizens.

Around this time, Antiochus set out for his second assault into Egypt. So it came about throughout the entire city of Jerusalem that for almost forty days there were apparitions of horsemen dressed in apparel interwoven with gold and moving quickly through the air, in companies fully armed with spears and drawn swords—troops of horsemen set in battle array and making attacks and counterattacks on this side and on that, with the movement of shields and a multitude of spears, and the shooting of arrows, and the brightness of gold ornaments, and breastplates of all sorts. Therefore all the men prayed that the appearance might be for the good.

Jason's Assault on Jerusalem

But when a false report was circulated that Antiochus was dead, Jason took no less than a thousand men and suddenly made an assault upon the city. When the men on the wall were driven off and the city was finally taken, Menelaus was banished into the citadel. But Jason kept slaughtering his own fellow citizens without mercy, not comprehending that success against his kinsmen was his very unlucky day, for he imagined that he was winning trophies over his enemies rather than over people of the same race. Yet he did not get the upper hand of the government, but in the end gained disgrace from his plot, and took refuge again among the Ammonites.

In the end, his life reached an ugly conclusion. He was accused before Aretas the ruler of the Arabs, but fled from city to city. He was pursued by all, detested as a rebel against the laws, and abhorred as an executioner of his homeland and fellow-citizens. Finally he was cast ashore in Egypt. Thus he who so often banished many from their homelands himself perished in a strange land; for he had set sail to the Lacedaimonians to obtain protection because of their kinship. So he who cast out many without a burial was unmourned, for he had no funeral of his own, nor did he share a place in the tomb of his fathers.

Antiochus Kills and Desecrates

When the news of what happened reached King Antiochus, he took it to mean that Judea was in revolt. So inwardly he became like a wild beast, left Egypt, and took the city in war. He commanded his soldiers to cut down without mercy whomever they met and to slaughter those who went into their houses. So there was a killing of young and old, a killing of boys, women, and children, and a slaughtering of virgins and infants. Eighty thousand were destroyed in a total of three days, forty thousand in hand-to-hand combat; and no fewer were sold into slavery than were slain.

Not satisfied with these things, Antiochus dared to enter the most holy temple in all the earth. He had as his guide Menelaus, who had become a traitor both to the laws and to his country. With defiled hands he took the holy vessels, and with profane hands he pulled down the things dedicated by other kings to increase the glory and honor of the place. Antiochus was haughty, but was unaware that, because of the sins of those who lived in the city, the Lord was momentarily angered, and therefore was withholding grace as a temporary punishment of the place. However, if the people of the city had not been involved in so many sins, this man would have been scourged and brought to ruin as soon as he had come, as was Heliodorus, whom Seleucus the king had sent to inspect the treasury. But the Lord did not choose the nation because of the place, but the place because of the nation. Therefore the place also itself shared in the misfortunes that befell the nation, and later had a share in its benefits; and what was forsaken in the wrath of the Almighty was restored again in all its glory by the reconciliation of the great Lord.

At any rate, Antiochus carried off eighteen hundred talents from the temple and hurried away to Antioch. In his arrogance he thought he could sail on the land and walk on the sea because of the lifting up of his heart. But he also left governors to afflict the people. In Jerusalem he left Philip, a Phrygian by race, more barbarous in character than the one who appointed him; 23 and in Gerizim, Andronicus. In addition to these he left Menelaus, who lورد it over his fellow citizens worse than did the others, having a hateful disposition toward the Jewish citizens. 24 Antiochus sent Apollonius, commander of the Mysians, with an army of twenty-two thousand men, with orders to slaughter all the grown men and to sell the women and young boys as slaves. 25 After he arrived in Jerusalem and pretended to be peace-loving, this man waited until the holy day of the Sabbath; then, finding the Jews not at work, he commanded his men to take up arms.† 26 He put to the sword all those who came out to see them; then he rushed into the city with his armed men and killed great numbers of people.

27 But Judas Maccabeus, with about nine others, withdrew into the desert so as not to share in the defilement. He kept himself and those with him alive in the mountains as do wild animals, by continually eating food that grew wild.

Persecution of the Jews

6 Not long afterward, the king sent an Athenian senator to compel the Jews to leave behind the laws of their fathers and not to live by the laws of God. 2 He also insisted they pollute the temple in Jerusalem by calling it the temple of Olympian Zeus, and to call the one in Gerizim the temple of Zeus the Hospitable, as did the people who lived at one time in that place.† 3 The intensity of evil was hard to deal with and extremely hateful, 4 for the temple was filled with debauchery and reveling by the Gentiles, who relaxed with friends and had intercourse with women within the sacred precincts, and still further brought unfitting things inside. 5 The altar was filled with disgusting things forbidden by the laws. 6 A man could neither keep the Sabbath, nor observe the feasts of his fathers, nor simply confess himself to be a Jew.

7 When the month came for the king's birthday, the Jews were led by bitter constraint to partake of the sacrifices; and when the feast of Dionysus came, they were forced to walk in procession for Dionysus wearing ivy wreaths.† 8 Moreover, a decree laid down by Ptolemy was sent to the nearby Greek cities that the same manner of conduct be imposed on the Jews to partake of the sacrifices; 9 but they should slaughter those who chose not to change over to Greek customs. One could see, therefore, their present misery.

10 For instance, there were two women brought for circumcising their children. They publicly paraded these women around the city, with their babes hanging from their breasts, then they threw them down from the city wall. 11 Others who came together in the nearby caves to keep the seventh day secretly were betrayed to Philip and were all burned together, because they piously kept themselves from crying out for help on account of their regard for the most holy day.†

12 Now I urge those who read this book not to be discouraged by these calamities, but to recognize that these punishments were for the discipline of our people, but not for their destruction.† 13 For it is an act of great kindness for the Lord not to allow our people to act ungodly for long, but to punish them immediately. 14 But the Lord does not act the same way with other nations. He waits patiently until they attain the completion of their sins, then punishes them. Thus He does not judge us in this way, 15 so as to take vengeance on us afterwards when we have reached the end of our sinning. 16 For this very reason He never withdraws His mercy from us. Although He disciplines us with calamities, He does not abandon His own people. 17 Let what I have said serve as a reminder, but we must continue the narrative.

Eleazar Is Martyred

18 Eleazar, one of the scribes in high position, a man already advanced in years and of a noble presence, was forced to open his mouth to eat swine's flesh. 19 But welcoming an honorable death rather than a defiled life, he spat out the flesh and approached the rack of his own accord. 20 He did as men should do who refuse what is not lawful to eat, even for the love of life.

21 Those in charge of the unlawful sacrifice, because of their longtime acquaintance with him, took the man aside privately and urged him to bring meat proper for him to use, pretending to prepare it for himself as though he were eating the flesh of the sacrifice commanded by the king. 22 Thus by doing this he might be saved from death, and be treated kindly on account of his long friendship with them. 23 But making an honorable resolve worthy of his years and the dignity of his old age and gray hair, which he had reached through the distinction of his excellent life even from childhood, and moreover according to the holy God-given laws, he turned himself over to them quickly, telling them to send him immediately to Hades.
“For to pretend such things,” he said, “is not worthy of our time of life, lest many of the young should suppose that Eleazar in his ninetieth year has gone over to a foreign religion,† and because of my pretense for the sake of living a brief moment longer, they should be led astray through me, while I earn only pollution and defilement in my old age. 26 For even if for the present I should avoid the punishment of men, yet whether I live or die, I shall not escape the hands of the Almighty. 27 Therefore by manfully giving up my life now, I will show myself worthy of my old age, and leave to the young a noble example of how to die a good death willingly and bravely for the venerable and holy laws.”

After he said this, he went straight to the rack, and those who had just demonstrated good will toward him now showed hostility, because they took the words he had spoken to be madness. 30 When he was about to die from the blows, he groaned and said, “It is evident to the Lord in His holy knowledge that, though I could have been saved from death, I am enduring terrible sufferings in my body from this beating, but in my soul I gladly suffer these things because I fear Him.”

31 So in this manner he died, leaving in his death an example of his noble character and a memorial of his virtue, not only to the young but to the many people of his nation.

A Mother and Her Sons Are Martyred

It came about also that seven brothers with their mother were arrested and forced by the king to be bound and tortured with whips and cords until they partook of the unlawful swine’s flesh.† 2 One of them, acting as spokesman, said, “What do you intend to ask and learn from us? For we are ready to die rather than transgress the laws of our fathers.”

3 The king became enraged, and commanded that pans and caldrons be heated. 4 These were heated immediately; and he commanded them to cut out the spokesman’s tongue, and to scalp him and cut off his hands and feet, while the rest of the brothers and the mother watched. 5 When he was utterly helpless, the king ordered them to take him to the fire, while he was still breathing, and to fry him in a pan. As the smoke from the pan spread out broadly, the brothers and their mother encouraged one another to die bravely, saying, 6 “The Lord God is taking notice of us and in truth is encouraging us, as Moses proclaimed in his song which he sang, bearing witness against the people to their faces: ‘And God will have compassion on His servants.’ ”†
After the first brother died in this manner, they brought forward the second for their sport. They tore away the skin of his head with the hair, and asked him, “Will you eat pork rather than have your body punished limb by limb?” But he replied in the language of his fathers and said to them, “No.” Therefore this brother in turn underwent the same torture as the first. So when he was at his last breath, he said, “You accursed wretch! You set us free from this present life, but the King of the world will raise us to an everlasting renewal of life, because we die for His laws.”

SAINTS OF THE OLD TESTAMENT

Immediately after quoting the Lord’s proclamation to Moses, “I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob,” Jesus asserts, “God is not the God of the dead, but of the living” (Mt 22:32). Thus He affirms that the great patriarchs of the Old Testament still live, as do all the righteous men and women of old who lived in anticipation of the coming Messiah. Hebrews 11 reviews the wonderful deeds of many of these Old Testament saints, and we then read that “we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses” (Heb 12:1).

For the New Testament Church, then, these “witnesses” were the saints of the Old Testament. Eusebius of Caesarea, the church historian, writing early in the fourth century, called these great saints “Christians in fact, if not in name.” He went on to say:

It is obvious that they knew God’s Christ Himself, since He appeared to Abraham, instructed Isaac, spoke to Jacob, and conversed freely with Moses and the Prophets who came later, as I have already shown. Hence, you will find that those divinely favored men were even honored with the name of “Christ,” according to the word which says of them, “Touch not my Christs [Greek christoi, anointed ones], and do My Prophets no harm” (Ps 104:15).

HONORING THE SAINTS

The Church’s natural and fitting veneration of the saints of the Old Testament is very evident in a hymn sung on the second Sunday preceding Christmas, the Sunday of the Holy Forefathers:

Come feast-lovers, let us extol with hymns the assembly of the forefathers—Adam the first father, Enoch, Noah, and Melchizedek, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob; and those after the Law—Moses, Aaron, Joshua, and Samuel; and with them Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Daniel, and the twelve Prophets, with Elijah and Elisha, and all the rest.

Besides being remembered on these two Sundays, many Old Testament saints have their own days of commemoration, such as Jeremiah (May 1); Job (May 6); Isaiah (May 9); Elijah (July 20); Samuel (August 20); Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (August 21); Joshua (September 1); Moses (September 4); Baruch (September 28); Hannah (December 9); Daniel (December 17); and Joseph (son of Jacob) and King David (first Sunday after Christmas).

The church fathers often extol these Old Testament heroes. St. John Chrysostom repeatedly urged his flock to emulate the patient endurance of “the great and noble Job.” St. Gregory of Nyssa writes, “Noah was a righteous man, the Scriptures say, and Abraham was faithful, Moses meek, Daniel wise, Joseph chaste, Job blameless, and David perfect in patience.”

Eleazar and the Maccabean martyrs, whose story is told in 2 Maccabees 6:18—7:42, deserve special attention. This Jewish scribe and seven brothers, along with their mother, Solomonia, valiantly defied the sacrilegious commands of King Antiochus IV Epiphanes, who was fiercely persecuting the Jews. For their defiance, they were brutally executed in Jerusalem in about 167 BC. These unwaveringly faithful Jews are prototypes of all the Christian martyrs. In their commemoration on August 1, they are called “great martyrs, before the martyrs of Christ.”

The Church’s high esteem for the Old Testament saints is also seen in her custom of depicting the forefathers and prophets around the base of the interior central dome of a church. And by remembering these saints in her liturgical calendar, the Orthodox Church demonstrates her understanding that the Body of Christ transcends limitations of time and space. This awareness is clearly expressed at every Divine Liturgy: “And again we offer unto You this reasonable service for all those who in faith have gone before us to their rest: patriarchs, prophets, apostles, preachers, evangelists, martyrs, confessors, ascetics, and every righteous spirit made perfect in faith.”

For Orthodox Christians, it is the experience of worshipping God with all the saints that powerfully confirms their continuing presence in our midst.

After him, the third fell prey to their sport. When it was demanded, he quickly put out his tongue and courageously stretched forth his hands, and said bravely, “I received these from heaven, and because of His laws I disregard them, and from Him I hope to get them back again.” 12As a result the king himself and those with him were astonished at the young man's spirit, for he regarded his sufferings as nothing.

13When he died, they tortured and tormented the fourth in the same way. 14So when he was near death, he said, “One may be chosen to die at the hands of men and to look for the hope that God gives of being raised again by Him. But for you there shall be no resurrection to life.”

15Next they led forward the fifth and tormented him. 16But he looked at the king and said, “Because you have authority among men, mortal though you are, you do what you please; but do not think that God has forsaken our people. 17Continue, and behold how His mighty power will torture you and your seed!”

18After him they led forward the sixth. When he was about to die, he said, “Do not deceive yourself, for we are suffering these things on our own account because of our sins against our own God. Therefore things worthy of wonder have happened. 19But do not think that you shall be innocent for trying to fight against God!”

20The mother was especially admirable and worthy of good memory. Though she saw her seven sons perish in the span of a single day, she bore it courageously because of her hope in the Lord. 21She encouraged each of them in the language of their fathers. Filled with a noble spirit, she stirred her womanly reasoning with manly courage, saying to them, 22“I do not know how you came into being in my womb. It was not I who gave you breath and life, nor I who arranged in order the elements within each of you. 23Therefore the Creator of the world, who formed man in the beginning and devised the origin of all things, will give both breath and life back to you again in His mercy, since you now disregard yourselves for the sake of His laws.”

24Antiochus supposed that he was being treated with contempt, and suspected her speech was insulting him personally. Thus, since the youngest brother was still alive, not only did he appeal to him in words, but at the same time guaranteed him with oaths that he would make him rich and enviable if he would turn away from his fathers, and that he would consider him a friend and entrust him with public affairs. 25But when the young man refused to pay any attention to him, the king called his mother to him and urged her to advise the boy to save himself. 26 But she leaned close to him and mocked the cruel tyrant, speaking in their native tongue, saying, “My son, have mercy on me. I carried you for nine months in my womb, and nursed you for three years. I reared you and brought you up to this point in your life, and have taken care of you. 28 I beseech you, my child, to look at heaven and earth and see everything in them, and know that God made them out of nothing; so also He made the race of man in this way. 29 Do not fear this executioner! But be worthy of your brothers and accept death, that in God's mercy I may receive you back again with your brothers.”

30 While she continued speaking, the young man said to the king, “What are you waiting for? I will not obey the king's command, but I obey the command of the law, given to our fathers through Moses. 31 But you, who have invented all manner of evil against the Hebrews, will not escape the hands of God, 32 for we are suffering because of our own sins. 33 So if for the sake of reproof and discipline, our living Lord is angry for a little while, He will again be reconciled with His own servants. 34 But you, O unholy man and most defiled of all men, do not be elated in vain and puffed up by uncertain hopes when you raise your hand against the children of heaven. 35 You have not yet escaped the judgment of the almighty, all-seeing God. 36 For now our brothers have endured a brief suffering and then passed on into everlasting life under God's covenant. But you, by God's judgment, will receive just punishments for your haughtiness. 37 Like my brothers, I give up body and soul for the laws of our fathers, crying out to God, that He may soon show His mercy to our nation, and by afflictions and calamities make you confess that He alone is God, 38 and through my brothers and me bring to an end the wrath of the Almighty which has justly come upon our entire nation.”

39 Then the king became bitterly enraged at his contempt and treated him worse than the others. 40 So, putting his trust completely in the Lord, he died in his innocence. 41 Last of all, the mother died, after her sons.

42 Let this be enough, then, about the eating of sacrifices and the extreme tortures.

The Revolt of Judas Maccabeus

But Judas, also called Maccabeus, and those with him secretly infiltrated the villages and summoned their kinsmen. They called together those who had continued in the Jewish religion and took them as companions. So they gathered about six thousand men. 2 They invoked the Lord to look upon the people, who were trampled underfoot by all, to have compassion on the temple, which had been profaned by ungodly men, to have mercy on the city, which was being destroyed and was about to be leveled to the ground, and to hearken to the blood that cried out to Him. They also invoked Him to remember the lawless destruction of the sinless babies and the blasphemies committed against His name, and to show His hatred of evil.

As soon as Maccabeus had his army in order, he was not to be withstood by the Gentiles, for the wrath of the Lord had turned to mercy. He came without notice to towns and villages and set them on fire. At opportune times he regained places and put to flight not a few of the enemy. He found the night the best time for such hostilities. So talk of his manliness spread everywhere.

Nicanor Attacks Judea

When Philip realized that Judas was making progress little by little and that he was advancing with more frequent efficiency, he wrote to Ptolemy, the governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, for aid to the king's government. And Ptolemy quickly appointed Nicanor the son of Patroclus, the foremost of his friends. He sent him in command of no fewer than twenty thousand Gentiles of all nations to get rid of all the people of Judea. He sent Gorgias with him, a general and a man experienced in the affairs of war. Nicanor determined to make up for the king the taxes due to the Romans—two thousand talents—from the capture of the Jews. He immediately sent word to the cities by the sea, inviting them to buy Jewish slaves and promising to hand over ninety slaves for a talent, not expecting that the judgment of the Almighty was about to fall upon him.

Now word came to Judas concerning Nicanor's impending attack; and when he told those with him about the arrival of the army, those who were cowardly and distrustful of God's justice ran off and removed themselves from that place. Others sold all their remaining property, and at the same time entreated the Lord to rescue those sold by the ungodly Nicanor before he even met them. They entreated Him, not for their own sake, but for the sake of the covenants made with their fathers, and because they were called by His holy and magnificent name. But Maccabeus gathered those around him, six thousand in number, and exhorted them neither to be panic-stricken by the enemy nor to fear the great multitude of Gentiles who were unjustly coming against them, but to contend bravely. He also exhorted them to keep before their eyes the lawless outrage committed against the holy place by the Gentiles, and the torture of the mocked city, and still more the dissolution of their ancestral way of life. 18“For they trust in arms and bold acts,” he said, “but we trust in Almighty God, who with only one nod is able to overthrow both those who come against us and the entire world.”

19He also spoke to them of the times help came to their forefathers, how the one hundred and eighty-five thousand perished under Sennacherib, 20and how in the time when the battle took place in Babylonia against the Galatians, eight thousand in all entered the fray, along with four thousand Macedonians. But when the Macedonians were perplexed, the eight thousand destroyed the one hundred and twenty thousand because of the help that came to them from heaven. Then they took many spoils.

Judas’ Victories

21With these words he gave them good courage and prepared them to die on behalf of their laws and their homeland. Then he divided his forces into four parts. 22He appointed his brothers, Simon and Joseph and Jonathan, each to command a division, putting fifteen hundred soldiers under each. 23In addition, he appointed Eleazar to read aloud from the holy book and gave the watchword, “The help of God.” Then he led the first division himself and joined battle with Nicanor.

24When the Almighty became their ally, they slew more than nine thousand of the enemy, and wounded and crippled most of Nicanor's army, and forced them all to flee. 25They seized the money of those who came to buy them as slaves. After they pursued them for some distance, they were compelled to return because of the hour; 26for they did not continue their pursuit because it was the day before the Sabbath. 27So when they had collected their arms and stripped the spoils from their enemy, they kept the Sabbath, greatly blessing and giving thanks to the Lord, who had brought them safely through the day and appointed it for them as a beginning of mercy. 28Then after the Sabbath they gave a portion of the spoils to those who were tortured and to the widows and orphans, and distributed the rest among themselves and their children. 29When they had done this, they made a common supplication and besought the merciful Lord to be reconciled at last with His servants.

30Moreover, of the forces on the side of Timothy and Bacchides, who contended against them, they killed more than twenty thousand of them and became the masters of exceedingly high fortresses. They divided a great many spoils, giving shares equal to their own to those who had been tortured and to the orphans and widows, and also to the aged. 31 After they collected the enemy's weapons, they organized them all carefully in convenient places, and carried the rest of the spoils to Jerusalem. 32 They killed the commander of Timothy's forces, a most unholy man and one who had greatly troubled the Jews. 33 While they were celebrating the victory in the city of their fathers, they burned those who had set fire to the temple gates: Callisthenes and some others, who had fled into one small house; so they received a recompense worthy of their impiety.

34 The thrice-sinful Nicanor had brought the thousand merchants for the purchase of the Jews, 35 but he was humbled with the help of the Lord by the opponents he regarded as of the least account. Thus, after he succeeded primarily in the destruction of his own army, he took off his glorious military apparel and made his way inland alone like a fugitive until he reached Antioch. 36 There, he who had undertaken to establish taxes for the Romans by the capture of the people of Jerusalem proclaimed that the Jews had a Defender, and therefore were invulnerable, because they followed the laws appointed beforehand by Him.

God Punishes Antiochus

9 About that time, it happened that Antiochus returned in dishonor from the region of Persia. 2 For he had entered the city called Persepolis and attempted to rob the temples and control the city. Therefore when the citizens rushed to the city's aid with arms, Antiochus and his men were routed; and it came about that Antiochus was put to flight by the citizens and made a shameful return home. 3 Now while he was in Ecbatana, news came to him about what had happened to Nicanor and the forces of Timothy. 4 Swollen with rage, he supposed that he would also vent upon the Jews the evil done to him by those who had banished him. Wherefore he commanded his charioteer to drive without stopping to complete the journey. But the judgment of heaven came upon him, for in his arrogance he said, “When I arrive there I will make Jerusalem a common burial place of the Jews.”

5 But the all-seeing Lord, the God of Israel, struck him with an incurable and unseen plague. For as soon as he stopped speaking, a deadly pain seized him in his inward parts, with sharp internal torments— 6 and this very justly, for he had tortured the inward parts of others with many and unusual afflictions. 7 Yet by no means did he cease from his haughtiness, but was even more filled with arrogance, breathing fire in his rage against the Jews and giving orders to hasten the journey. So it came to pass that he fell out of his chariot as it rushed along, and the fall was so hard that it tortured every limb of his body.

He who had just been thinking that he could command the waves of the sea because of his superhuman arrogance, and imagined he could weigh the high mountains in a balance, was brought down to earth and carried in a litter. Thus he conveyed plainly to all the manifest power of God. Accordingly, worms swarmed up from the ungodly man's body, and his flesh rotted away while he was still alive, anguishing and in pain. Because of his odor, the whole army was repulsed by his rottenness, and because of his intolerable smell no one was able to carry the man who a little while before thought he could touch the stars of heaven. Then he was broken down, and began to cease from much of his arrogance and to come to a recognition of the divine scourge; for he was bent over with pain at every moment. When he could no longer endure his own stench, he spoke these words: “It is right to be subject to God, and no mortal should think that he is equal with God.”

Then this disgusting man prayed to the Lord, who would no longer have mercy on him, saying that the holy city, which he had been hastening to level to the ground and make into a common burial place, he was now proclaiming to be free. Moreover, the Jews, whom he did not consider worthy of a burial place, but to be thrown out along with their children for the wild animals and the birds to eat, he would make them all equal to citizens of Athens. Furthermore, the holy temple, which he had plundered in times past, he would adorn with the finest offerings, and restore—many times over—all the holy vessels; and the taxes assigned to the sacrifices he would pay from his own revenues. In addition to this, he also would become a Jew and visit every inhabited place to proclaim the might of God.

A Final Letter to the Jews

But when his sufferings did not cease at all, for the judgment of God came upon him justly, he was driven to despair over what had happened to him. Thus he wrote the Jews the letter recorded below, in the form of a supplication. It contained the following words:

“To the good Jewish citizens, Antiochus your king and general sends many greetings and good wishes for your health and welfare. If you and your children are strong and your interests are served, then I am glad. With my hope in heaven, I kindly remember your respect and goodwill.

“Now as I was returning home from the region of Persia, I was struck with a difficult illness and now consider it necessary to be concerned about the common safety of all. 22 But I am not giving up hope for myself, for I have great hope of escaping from this illness. 23 Nevertheless, I observed that even my father, when he led his army into the upper countries, appointed his successor, 24 that if anything unexpected should arise or any unwelcome news should come, the people throughout the realm would not be troubled; for they would know to whom the government was left.

25 “In addition to this, I understand how the rulers, close at hand and the neighbors of my kingdom, keep watching for opportunities and waiting to see how things will turn out. Thus I have appointed my son Antiochus to be king. Oftentimes when I hastened off to the upper provinces, I entrusted and commended him to most of you. So I have written to him what is written here.

26 “Therefore I urge you and request that you remember my acts of kindness for both the common and private good, and maintain your present goodwill toward me and my son. 27 For I am persuaded that he, following my policy, will treat you kindly and considerately.”

28 So the murderer and blasphemer suffered very grievously, as he had treated others. For he died a miserable death in the mountains of a foreign land. 29 Then Philip, who grew up with him, took this body home. But fearing the son of Antiochus, he went instead to Ptolemy Philometor in Egypt.

Judas Maccabeus Purifies the Temple

With the Lord leading them on, Maccabeus and those with him received back the temple and the city. 2 They took down the altars fabricated in the marketplace by the foreigners, and also destroyed the sacred precincts. 3 When they had purified the temple, they made another altar and, striking fire out of stones, they offered sacrifices—the first in two years. They offered incense and lit lamps and set out the bread of the Presence.

4 When they had done this, they fell prostrate and besought the Lord so as never again to fall into such calamities, but if they should ever sin, they might be chastised by Him with gentleness and not be handed over to blasphemous and barbarous nations. 5 It happened on the anniversary of the same day the temple was profaned by the foreigners, that the purification of the temple took place: on the twenty-fifth day of the same month, which was Chislev.†

They celebrated it for eight days with rejoicing, in the manner of the Feast of Tabernacles, remembering how a short time before they had spent the feast living in mountains and caves like wild animals.‡

Therefore, carrying ivy-wreathed wands, beautiful olive branches, and even palm branches, they offered hymns of praise to Him who made possible the purifying of His own place.‡

They decreed by a common edict and vote that the whole Jewish nation should celebrate these days every year. 9

Such then was the end of Antiochus, called Epiphanes.

The Reign of Antiochus V Begins

Now we will tell what took place under Antiochus Eupator, the son of that ungodly man, and will set forth and encompass briefly the calamities of the wars.†

For this man inherited the kingdom and appointed a certain Lysias as chief governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia.

Then Ptolemy, called Macron, led the way in protecting the rights of the Jews because of the wrongdoing that happened to them, and he attempted to maintain peaceful relations with them. 13

For this reason he was accused before Eupator by the king's friends. He heard himself called a traitor at every turn because he abandoned Cyprus, entrusted to him by Philometor, and defected to Antiochus Epiphanes. Since he could not exercise his noble authority honorably, he took poison and ended his life.

The Idumeans Fall to Judas

When Gorgias became governor of the region, he maintained mercenary troops and attacked the Jews at every turn. 15

At the same time, the Idumeans, in possession of vital strongholds, were harassing the Jews. They received fugitives from Jerusalem and endeavored to keep up the war. 16

But Maccabeus and his men made supplication and implored God to be their ally, then rushed against the strongholds of the Idumeans. 17

They attacked them aggressively, gained possession of the places, and drove back all who fought upon the wall. They slaughtered everyone they encountered, killing no fewer than twenty thousand.

But at least nine thousand fled into two very strong towers, which were well equipped, containing everything necessary to withstand a siege. 19

So Maccabeus left behind Simon,
Joseph, and also Zacchaeus and those with him, a force sufficient to besiege them. Then he went to more urgent places. But those around Simon, who were money lovers, were bribed by some of those in the towers. When they had received seventy thousand drachmas, they allowed some of them to slip away. When news of what happened reached Maccabeus, he gathered the leaders of the people and accused them of selling their brothers for money by releasing their enemies to fight against them. Then he killed these men who had become traitors and immediately seized the two towers. Faring well at arms in everything he undertook, he destroyed more than twenty thousand in the two fortresses.

Maccabeus Victorious over Timothy.

Now Timothy, who had been defeated previously by the Jews, gathered a very massive and powerful force of mercenaries and assembled cavalry from Asia in no small number. Then he arrived as though he would take Judea captive. As he drew near, Maccabeus and his men made supplication to God as they sprinkled earth on their heads and girded their loins with sackcloth. They fell prostrate before the foot of the altar and implored Him to be merciful to them and to be an enemy to their enemies and an adversary to their adversaries, as the law plainly shows. Then arising from prayer, they took up their weapons and advanced a considerable distance from the city. When they came near the enemy, they were by themselves. But as dawn was breaking, the armies attacked one another. The one had the guarantee of prosperity and victory, with their virtue and the Lord as their place of refuge, but the other depended on rage as their leader in the fight.

When the battle was strongly contested, there appeared to the enemy from heaven five majestic men on horses with golden bridles, and they were leading the Jews. They took Maccabeus between them and shielded him with their own armor. They kept him from being wounded and cast arrows and thunderbolts on the enemy. Wherefore, confused with blindness and full of disorder, they were cut to pieces. Twenty thousand five hundred were slaughtered along with six hundred cavalry.

Timothy himself fled to a stronghold called Gazara, especially well garrisoned, where Chaereas was commander. Maccabeus and his men eagerly besieged the stronghold for four days, but the men within it trusted in the security of the place. So they kept blaspheming beyond measure and uttering disgusting words. Now when the fifth day dawned, twenty young men in the army of Maccabeus burned with anger because of the blasphemies. So they bravely attacked the wall and with savage fury struck down everyone they encountered. Others likewise went up during the distraction against those inside and burned down the towers. They kindled fires and burned the blasphemers alive. Others broke through the gates, let in the rest of the force, and took control of the city. They killed Timothy, who was hiding in a well, and his brother Chaereas and Apollonius. When they had done this, they blessed the Lord with hymns and praises, thanking Him who shows great kindness to Israel and gives them victory.

The Defeat of Lysias

Shortly afterward, Lysias, who was the king's guardian and kinsman and in charge of the government, was greatly upset at what had happened, and gathered about eighty thousand infantry and all his cavalry to come against the Jews. He purposed to make the city a home for Greeks, to levy taxes on the temple, as he did on the sacred places of the other nations, and to put the high priesthood up for sale every year. He took no account at all of God's power, but was elated with his countless thousands of infantry and his thousands of cavalry, plus his eighty elephants. Thus he entered Judea and drew near Beth-zur, a fortified place about twenty miles from Jerusalem, and besieged it.

When Maccabeus and his men heard of this, that Lysias was besieging the strongholds, they and all the people begged the Lord with lamentations and tears to send a good angel to save Israel. Maccabeus himself was the first to bear arms, and he pleaded with the others to join with him in risking their lives to go help their brothers. Then they eagerly set out together. But in that place, while they were still near Jerusalem, a horseman appeared before them, clothed in white and brandishing a full armor of gold. Then together they all blessed the merciful God and were strengthened in heart, ready to bring damage not only on humans but on the most savage of beasts or walls of iron. Because the Lord had mercy on them, they advanced with their weapons, having with them their ally from heaven. They hurled themselves against the enemy like lions and overthrew eleven thousand of them, as well as sixteen hundred cavalry, and forced all of them to flee. Most of them escaped, wounded and naked, and Lysias himself escaped by a disgraceful flight.

A Peace Accord with the Jews
But as Lysias was not lacking in intelligence, he discussed the loss that had happened to him. He realized the Hebrews were unconquerable, because the Almighty God was their ally.

So he sent a message and persuaded them to settle everything on just terms. Moreover, perhaps he could also persuade the king and compel him to become their friend. Then Maccabeus agreed to everything Lysias urged, since he was concerned about what was best for all. For whatever Maccabeus gave to Lysias in writing concerning the Jews, the king granted.

Four letters were written to the Jews from Lysias, encompassing the following:

“Lysias to the people of the Jews, greetings. John and Absalom, who were sent by you, have given us your signed communication and asked about the matters addressed in it. Accordingly, I reported to the king whatever was necessary to bring him, and he granted whatever was possible. If you will keep your goodwill toward the government, I will try in the future to promote your welfare. So in behalf of these things and their details, I have ordered that these men and my representatives confer with you. Farewell. The one hundred and forty-eighth year, the twenty-fourth of Dioscorinthius.”

Now the king's letters contained the following:

“King Antiochus to Lysias his brother, greetings. Since our father has departed to the gods, we desire the subjects of the kingdom be undisturbed in caring for their own affairs. We understand the Jews do not approve of our father's change to Greek customs, but choose their own way of life and ask that their customs be granted them. Since therefore we prefer for this nation to be free from disturbance, our decision is for their temple to be returned to them and for them to live according to the customs of their forefathers. Therefore, you will do well to send word to them and give them assurances of friendship, so they may know our policy. Be in good spirits, and continue gladly to help them in their own affairs.”

The king's letter to the nation was as follows:

“King Antiochus to the Jewish senate and the rest of the Jews, greetings. If you are healthy, this would be as we desire. We are also in good health. Menelaus has told us you wish to return home and attend to your own affairs. Therefore, those who return home by the thirtieth of Xanthicus will have our pledge of friendship, with freedom from fear, for the Jews to enjoy their own food and laws as before; and none of them shall be troubled in any way for things done in ignorance. I have also sent Menelaus to encourage you. Farewell. The one hundred and forty-eighth year, the fifteenth of Xanthicus.”

The Romans also sent them a letter, which read as follows:

“Quintus Memmius and Titus Manius, legates of the Romans, to the people of the Jews, greetings. We also approve of those things concerning which Lysias the kinsman of the king has granted you. But the matters he decided to report to the king, as soon as you have considered these things, send someone promptly that we may explain what is suitable for you, for we are on our way to Antioch. For this reason make haste and send someone to let us know your intentions. Farewell. The one hundred and forty-eighth year, the fifteenth of Xanthicus.”

Judas Prevails in Joppa and Jamnia

When these agreements had been made, Lysias returned to the king, and the Jews went back to their farming. But some of the governors of various locales—Timothy and Apollonius son of Gennaeus, as well as Hieronymus and Demophon, and in addition Nicanor the commander of the Cyprians—would not allow the Jews to enjoy tranquility and live in peace.

Then the people of Joppa did so great an ungodly deed as this: they invited the Jews who lived among them, together with their wives and children, to embark on ships equipped for sea, as though they harbored no ill will toward them. Now this was done by the common vote of the city. But when the Jews welcomed this, wishing to live in peace and suspecting nothing, the men of Joppa took them out to sea and drowned at least two hundred of them.

When Judas learned of the cruelty visited on his countrymen, he summoned his men. So when he had called upon God, the righteous judge, he attacked the murderers of his brothers. He set the harbor on fire by night, burned the ships, and put to the sword those who fled there. But since the gates of the city were closed, he departed, intending to come again and root out the whole community of Joppa. However, when he learned that the people in Jamnia intended to wipe out the Jews who were living among them in the same way, attacked the Jamnian people by night and set the harbor and the fleet on fire; therefore, the glow of the light was visible as far as Jerusalem, thirty miles away.

Defeat of the Nomads

When they had gone about a mile from there on their march against Timothy, Arabs attacked him with no less than five thousand infantry and five hundred cavalry. After a strongly contested battle, Judas and his men, with God's help, were successful. The defeated nomads pleaded with Judas to grant them pledges of friendship. They promised to give him livestock and to benefit them in other ways. So Judas, supposing they could indeed be useful in varied ways, agreed to make peace with them. Then after he accepted their pledges, they returned to their tents.

He also attacked a certain town named Caspin, strongly fortified with earthworks and walls, and inhabited by a mixed population of Gentiles. Those within it trusted in the security of the walls and their supply of provisions. They behaved very contemptuously toward Judas and his men, insulting them and even blasphemying and saying unlawful things. But Judas and his men called upon the great Lord of the world, who overthrew Jericho without battering rams or engines of war in the times of Joshua. Then Judas and his men assaulted the walls. They overpowered the city by the will of God and inflicted such indescribable slaughter that the adjoining lake, a quarter of a mile wide, seemed to be filled with blood.

Victory over Timothy's Garrison

From there, they went ninety-five miles and continued on to Charax, to the Jews who were called Toubiani. They did not overtake Timothy in that region, for by then he had departed from there without accomplishing anything; but in one place Timothy left a very strong garrison. Dositheus and Sosipater, who were commanders under Maccabeus, marched out and crushed those men Timothy left in the stronghold, over ten thousand soldiers. But Maccabeus organized his army in divisions—setting men in command of the divisions—and hastened after Timothy, who had with him one hundred and twenty thousand infantry and two thousand five hundred cavalry.

When Timothy learned of the approach of Judas, he sent the women and the children ahead with the baggage to a place called Carnaim; for that place was hard to attack and difficult to access because of the narrowness of all its places. But when Judas’ first division appeared, alarm and fear came over the enemy at the manifestation to them of Him who sees all things. They ran off in flight, rushing headlong in every direction, so as to be often hurt by their own men and stabbed by the points of their own swords. Judas pursued them with great vigor, piercing the sinful men with the sword and killing as many as thirty thousand of them.

Timothy himself fell into the hands of Dositheus and Sosipater and their soldiers. With great trickery he pleaded with them to let him go safely, because he held the parents of most of them and some of their brothers, to whom no regard would be shown. So when with many words he had confirmed his solemn promise to restore them unharmed, they released him for the sake of rescuing their brothers.

Other Campaigns

Then Judas marched against Carnaim and the temple of Atargatis, and destroyed twenty-five thousand people. After the rout and slaughter of these, he also marched on Ephron, a fortified town where Lysias lived with countless people of all nations. Strong young men were set as guards before the walls and fought mightily. Many provisions of war engines and missiles were stored there. But the Jews called upon the Lord, who with power crushes the strength of His enemies. Thus they took possession of the city and killed as many as twenty-five thousand of those within it.

Moving away from Ephron, they hurried on to Scythopolis, seventy-five miles from Jerusalem. But when the Jews who lived there testified to the goodwill the people of Scythopolis had shown them and their civilized treatment of them in times of trouble, they thanked them and encouraged them also to be favorable to the Jewish race in the future. Then Judas and his men arrived at Jerusalem, the Feast of Weeks being close at hand.

After this feast, also called Pentecost, they marched against Gorgias, the governor of Idumea. He came out against them with three thousand infantry and four hundred cavalry. After they engaged in battle, it happened that a few of the Jews were killed. But a certain Dositheus, one of Bacenor’s men, a man on horseback and a strong man, grabbed hold of Gorgias. He took hold of his cloak and was dragging him off by sheer strength. He intended to take the accursed man alive, but one of the Thracian cavalry chased him down.
and severed his arm. So Gorgias fled to Marisa.

Now Esdris and his men had been fighting for a long while and were tired. So Judas called on the Lord to show Himself as their ally and leader in battle. They began to sound the battle cry in the language of their forefathers and sang hymns. Then he charged against the troops of Gorgias when they least expected it, and set them to flight.

Prayers for the Fallen

Then Judas retrieved his army and entered the city of Adullam. As the seventh day was dawning, they purified themselves according to custom and spent the Sabbath there. The following day, as was now necessary, Judas and his men left to gather up the bodies of those killed in battle, to bring them back to rest with their kindred in the tombs of their forefathers. But under the tunics of each of the dead, they uncovered sacred tokens of the Jamnian idols, which the Jews are forbidden by law to wear. So the reason these men died in battle became clear to everyone. Thus they all blessed the ways of the Lord, the righteous judge, who reveals the hidden things. They turned to supplication and prayed that the sin they had committed might be completely blotted out.

The noble Judas exhorted his people to guard themselves from sin, for with their own eyes they had seen what happened to those who died in battle because of their sin. He then took up an offering from his soldiers amounting to two thousand silver drachmas, and sent it to Jerusalem to present as a sin offering. In doing so he acted properly and with honor, taking note of the resurrection. For if he were not looking for the resurrection of those fallen, it would have been utterly foolish to pray for the departed. But since he was looking to the reward of splendor laid up for those who repose in godliness, it was a holy and godly purpose. Thus he made atonement for the fallen, so as to set them free from their transgression.

The Death of Menelaus

In the one hundred forty-ninth year, Judas and his men got word that Antiochus Eupator was marching against Judea with a huge army, and with him his guardian, Lysias, who was in charge of the government. Each of them had a Greek army of one hundred ten thousand infantry, five thousand three hundred horsemen, twenty-two elephants, and three hundred chariots armed with scythes.
Menelaus also joined forces with them. It was a great irony that he encouraged Antiochus, not for the preservation of his homeland, but for his expectation to be established in authority. But the King of kings aroused anger in Antiochus against this sinful man. So when Lysias pointed out that this man was the cause of all the trouble, he commanded them to take him to Beroea, to put him to death as was the custom there. For there is a tower in that place, fifty cubits high and filled with ashes. It also has a contrivance continuing around it on all sides that inclines steeply into the ashes. There they all shove anyone guilty of sacrilege or who has done excessive evils to their destruction. Thus it happened that Menelaus the lawbreaker died by such a destiny. He was even deprived of a burial in the ground. Now this was altogether just, for since he committed many sins against the sacred altar, whose fire and ashes were holy, he should get death for himself in ashes.

The Jews Prevail near Modein

The king was coming with barbarous arrogance to face the Jews with things far worse than anything done by his father. But when Judas learned of this, he charged the people to call upon the Lord day and night, asking Him to help them now as He had formerly; for they were about to be deprived of their law, their homeland, and their temple. They prayed He would not allow the people who had just begun a new life to fall into the hands of the blaspheming Gentiles. After they all made the same petition together and constantly implored the merciful Lord with weeping, fasting, and prostrations for three days, Judas encouraged them and commanded them to stand firm.

Then he consulted privately with the elders and determined to march out, to let the matter be decided by the help of God before the king's army could enter Judea and take possession of the city. So, committing the results to the Creator of all and urging those with him to fight nobly to the death for the laws, the temple, the city, the country, and the commonwealth, he positioned his army near Modein. After he gave his men the watchword, “God's Victory,” and chose his best young men, he besieged the royal palace by night, killing as many as two thousand men in the camp. He also slew the leading elephant and its rider. As a result, they filled the camp with terror and disorder and departed victoriously. This all happened by daybreak, because the protection of the Lord was with him.
18 Thus the king tasted the courage of the Jews and plotted a strategy against their positions. 19 He marched against Beth-zur, a stronghold of the Jews, but was turned back. He attacked again, but was beaten. 20 Judas then sent supplies to the men inside the fortress. 21 But Rhodocus, a man from the Jewish army, tipped off the enemy with secret information. Thus he was sought after, caught, and imprisoned. 22 The king spoke a second time with the people in Beth-zur, gave assurances, received their pledges, and departed. He then attacked Judas and his forces, but was vanquished.

23 He then learned that Philip, whom he had left in charge of the government in Antioch, had lost his sanity. He was disheartened and summoned the Jews, and yielded and gave an oath to honor all their rights. Thus he settled with them and offered sacrifice, respected the temple, and treated the place humanely. 24 He welcomed Maccabeus, and Hegemonides was left as governor from Ptolemais to Gerar. 25 Then he went to Ptolemais, but the people of Ptolemais were indignant over the treaty with the Jews. In fact, they were so enraged they sought to annul its provisions. 26 But Lysias took the public stage and defended the treaty as best he could. He did persuade them, and gaining their goodwill, he returned to Antioch. This is the outcome of the king's strategy and settlement.

Alcimus Accuses Judas.

14 After three years’ time, word reached Judas and his soldiers that Demetrius, the son of Seleucus, had killed Antiochus and Lysias his guardian, then had sailed into the harbor of Tripolis with a powerful army and fleet and taken possession of the country.

3 Now there was a certain Alcimus, formerly a high priest, who had willfully defiled himself in the times of social and political disturbance. He realized there was no way for him to live in safety or to approach the holy altar ever again. 4 So he went to King Demetrius sometime in the one hundred and fifty-first year and presented him a crown of gold and a palm branch, as well as some of the customary olive branches from the temple. During that day he remained peaceful. 5 But he seized an opportunity in his own stupidity when he was invited by Demetrius to a session of the council and was questioned about the disposition and intentions of the Jews.
Thus he said to the council: "Those of the Jews who are called Hasideans, whose leader is Judas Maccabeus, are maintaining war and stirring up rebellion, and will not allow the kingdom to attain stability. Wherefore I have set aside my paternal glory—meaning my high priesthood—and now have come here. I came here first out of my honest concern for the well-being of the king, and second out of consideration for my own fellow-citizens; for through the rashness of those just mentioned, our entire nation is suffering misfortune. Because you, O king, are acquainted with the details of these things, please take care of our country and our hard-pressed people with the gracious love for mankind that you have for everyone. For as long as Judas is alive, it will be impossible for the government to experience peace."

Nicanor Sent to Kill Judas.

After he said this, the rest of the king's friends who bore malice against Judas aroused even greater anger in Demetrius. Immediately he chose Nicanor, the commander of a squadron of elephants, appointing him governor of Judea. He sent him off with the charge to kill Judas, scatter his soldiers, and establish Alcimus as high priest of the great temple. The Gentiles who had fled before Judas throughout Judea joined Nicanor, for they thought the setbacks and calamities of the Jews would bring prosperity to themselves.

The Jews got word of Nicanor's coming and the assault of the Gentiles. So they sprinkled their heads with earth and prayed to Him who establishes His people forever, and always helps His own inheritance by making Himself present. At the command of Judas their leader, they immediately moved the army from there and met the enemy in battle at a village called Dessau. Simon, the brother of Judas, had encountered Nicanor in battle, but was halted because of the unexpected silence of those adversaries.

A Short-Lived Alliance.

Nevertheless, when Nicanor heard of the bravery of Judas and his men and their courage in battle for their country, he pulled back from deciding the matter by bloodshed. So he sent forth Posidonius, Theodotus, and Mattathias to offer and receive pledges of friendship. After an extensive investigation of the terms, the leader communicated the terms to the people, and it appeared they were of one mind; and they agreed to the treaty. So they set aside a day to meet privately. From each army a chariot came forward, and seats of honor... were set in place. 22 Judas appointed battle-ready men at strategic places lest the enemy attempt sudden trickery, but the consultation was held in a fitting way.

23 Nicanor remained in Jerusalem and did nothing improper, but he dismissed the crowd of people that had gathered. 24 He also kept Judas in his presence continually, for he was heartily attached to the man. 25 He encouraged him to marry and have children. Thus Judas got married, settled down, and lived a normal life.

A Rekindled Enmity

26 When Alcimus became aware of their goodwill for each other, he took the treaty that was made and went to King Demetrius. He told him Nicanor was disloyal to the government, since he had appointed Judas, the plotter against the kingdom, to be his successor. 27 The king became enraged. Provoked by the false accusations of that depraved man, he wrote to Nicanor that he was most displeased with the treaty and ordered him to send Maccabeus as a prisoner to Antioch at once.

28 When this message reached Nicanor, he was upset and very grieved that he had to break the agreement when the man had not done wrong. 29 But since he could not act in opposition to the king, he watched for a strategic opportunity to carry out the command. 30 Maccabeus noticed that Nicanor was becoming more harsh in his treatment of him and more rude when they met than was customary. Judas decided Nicanor's sour behavior was not at all propitious, so he gathered up a good number of his men and hid from him.

31 When Nicanor realized he had been boldly outmaneuvered by the man, he went to the great and holy temple and found the priests offering the customary sacrifices. He commanded them to hand him over. 32 They declared under oath they did not know the whereabouts of the man he sought. 33 So Nicanor stretched out his right hand toward the temple and swore this oath: “If you will not hand over Judas to me as a prisoner, I will raze this shrine of God to the ground, destroy the altar, and erect at this place a splendid temple to Dionysus.” 34 After he said this, he departed. Then the priests reached out their hands to heaven, calling upon the everlasting Defender of our nation, saying, 35 “O Lord of all, while You have need of nothing, You were pleased to have a temple for Your dwelling in our midst.† Now then, O Holy One, O Lord of all holiness, preserve forever undefiled this house so recently purified.”
Razis the Elder Dies

Razis was one of the elders of Jerusalem and was denounced before Nicanor as a man who loved his fellow-citizens, a man held in high esteem and called a father of the Jews because of his goodwill. For in past times when there was isolation from the Gentiles, he was brought to judgment for practicing the Jewish religion. But with all zeal he risked his life, body and soul, for his religion. Nicanor wished to make obvious his ill-will for the Jews. So he sent more than five hundred soldiers to arrest Razis, for he thought that by arresting him he would produce calamity among the Jews. Thus when the soldiers were about to capture the tower and were forcing open the door of the courtyard, they commanded that the doors be set on fire. When Razis was surrounded, he fell upon his own sword, for he preferred to die bravely rather than fall into the hands of sinners and suffer outrages unworthy of his own noble birth.

However, in the tension of the confrontation, he did not fall with exactness on his sword. As the crowd rushed through the doors, he took courage and jumped up on the wall, bravely throwing himself down into the throng. But as people quickly stepped back, there was an open space, and he landed in the midst of the empty area. He was still alive. In a blaze of anger, he stood up; and though his blood gushed like a spring and his injuries were severe, he darted through the crowd. He climbed up on a steep rock, and with his blood completely drained out of him, he tore out his intestines, took them in both hands and threw them at the crowd as he called on the Lord of life and spirit to return them to him again. Such was the manner of his death.

Nicanor's Failed Plan

When Nicanor learned that Judas and his men were in the province of Samaria, he decided to attack them in utter safety on their day of rest. But the Jews who were forced to accompany him said, “By no means should you so cruelly and barbarously bring destruction. Show respect for the Sabbath day, which He who sees all things has honored with holiness above other days.” Then the thrice-sinful man asked if there were a Lord in heaven who ordered the keeping of the Sabbath day. When they declared, “It is the living Lord Himself, the Ruler in heaven, who commanded the keeping of the seventh day,” he responded, “I am a ruler on earth. I command you to take up your weapons and complete the “king's business.” Nevertheless, he was unsuccessful in carrying out his heinous plan.

Judas Maccabeus Mobilizes His Men

6 In his utter vanity and arrogance, Nicanor decided to put up a public monument of victory over Judas and his army. 7 But Maccabeus never ceased to trust the Lord and fully hope that He would help him. 8 So he encouraged his men to have no fear of any attack from the Gentiles, but to bear in mind how help had come to them from heaven in times past. Now they should anticipate the victory the Almighty would give to them. 9 He also exhorted them out of the law and the prophets, calling to mind the battles they had won, making them more eager to fight. 10 Then after he revived their courage, he gave his commands and at the same time emphasized the Gentiles’ faithlessness and their failure to keep their oaths. 11 So he issued each of them armor—not so much of the surety of shields and spears as with the encouragement of courageous speech. Then he inspired them all by telling about a dream, a kind of vision, worthy of believing.

12 The vision he saw was this: Onias, who had been high priest, a true gentleman of modest and noble manner, one well-spoken and from childhood formed in all that pertains to virtue, was praying with hands outstretched for the whole nation of the Jews. 13 Then in the same manner another man appeared, distinguished by his gray hair and glory, and having about him a certain astonishing and majestic preeminence. 14 Onias then spoke, saying, “This is Jeremiah, the prophet of God, a man who loves his brothers and prays fervently for the people and the holy city.” 15 Stretching forth his right hand, Jeremiah gave a sword of gold to Judas, and as he presented it to him, he addressed him as follows: “Take this sacred sword, a gift from God, by which you will strike down your enemies.”

16 Encouraged by Judas’ words, a man so good and able in stirring up virtue and courage in the souls of young men, they determined not to plan out a campaign. Instead they would wage war bravely, at once, deciding the matter with hand-to-hand combat with all manliness, because the city, the sanctuary, and the temple were at risk. Their main concern was not first for wives and children, or even for brothers and relatives; their greatest fear was for the consecrated temple. 17 As for those who remained in the city, they were distressed and worried about the conflict in the open country.

Nicanor's Demise
Everyone was now living in suspense over the outcome of the war. The enemy was nearby; their army was prepared for battle. And their elephants were strategically positioned, and the cavalry was deployed on the flanks. Maccabeus noted carefully the great masses before him, the variety of their armaments, and the savageness of the elephants. So he reached out his hands toward heaven and called on the Lord, the Wonderworker; for he knew it is not by weapons alone, but by the Lord's decision that victory is won by those worthy of it.

Thus he cried out to Him in the following manner: “O Lord, in the time of Hezekiah the king of Judea, You sent Your angel, and he killed as many as one hundred and eighty-five thousand in the camp of Sennacherib. So now, O Ruler of the heavens, send us a noble angel to go before us spreading fear and trembling. By the strength of Your arm, may those who speak blasphemy as they come against Your holy ones be struck down.” With these words he completed his prayer.

Nicanor and his men marched ahead with trumpets and battle songs, but Judas and his men joined the enemy in battle with invocations and prayers. They fought with their hands and prayed to God in their hearts, and struck down at least thirty-five thousand men. So they were deeply gladdened by God's visitation.

When the battle was ended and they were marching home with joy, they recognized Nicanor, in full armor, lying dead. With tumultuous shouts, they blessed the Lord in the language of their fathers. Then Judas, who was in body and soul ever the chief defender of his fellow-citizens and who from youth maintained goodwill toward his countrymen, commanded them to sever Nicanor's head and arm and take them back to Jerusalem.

When he arrived there, he called his countrymen together and stationed the priests before the altar. Then he sent for those in the citadel. Before them, he displayed the head of the defiled Nicanor and that slanderous man's hand, which he had boastfully stretched out against the holy house of the Almighty. He cut out the tongue of the godless Nicanor and announced he would feed it to the birds bit by bit, and hang up the rewards of his folly opposite the sanctuary. Then everyone lifted their eyes to heaven and blessed the Lord who visited them, saying, “Blessed is He who kept His own place undefiled.” Judas then fastened Nicanor's head to the wall of the citadel, a visible symbol to all present of the Lord's help.

So they all decreed by public vote never to allow this day to be unobserved, but to celebrate it on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, called Adar in the Syrian language—the day before Mordecai's day.
This is the way things turned out for Nicanor. So from that time on the city has been controlled by the Hebrews. Thus I will end my story here. If I have written well and made my point in the narrative, this is what I myself desired. But if it was done poorly and is just average, this is the best I could do. For as it is disagreeable to drink wine only or water only, whereas wine mingled with water is pleasing and delightful and brings greater joy, so also the written style of the account delights the ears of those who read it. This then shall be the end.†

The Third Book of the Maccabees

Author—The author is an unidentified Alexandrian Jew who wrote the book in Greek.

Date—Early first century BC is a likely date, considering the book's literary affinities and textual similarities with 2 Maccabees.

Major Theme—As with the previous Maccabean works, the predominant message is that God remains faithful to His chosen people, blessing and preserving them in tribulation. The book was written to console, exhort, and teach the Egyptian Jews in the midst of their tribulations, and to inspire faith in the providence of God (4:21) by recounting how the Jews had been delivered from similar trials in the past.

Background—The title of the work is a misnomer, for the contents do not deal with the exploits of the Maccabean heroes. Instead, the book recounts the struggles of Egyptian Jews who suffered under Ptolemy IV Philopater (221–203 BC).

The book begins by describing the attempt of King Ptolemy to enter and desecrate the Holy of Holies in the Jerusalem temple. When the desecration is averted by divine intervention through the prayers of Simon the high priest (1:1–2:24), the king returns to Egypt determined to wreak vengeance on Israel for his humiliation in Jerusalem. The remainder of the work describes the persecution of the Jews, the miracles wrought on their behalf, and their subsequent deliverance by God.

Outline

I. The Battle of Raphia and Ptolemy’s Attempt to Desecrate the Temple (1:1–29)

II. The Prayer of Simon the High Priest for God's Help Is Answered (2:1–24)

III. King Ptolemy’s Cruel Treatment of the Jews (2:25–5:51)

IV. Eleazar’s Prayer of Intercession; Two Angels Rescue the Jews (6:1–29)

V. Ptolemy Repents and Favors the Jews; They Celebrate (6:30–7:23)

The Battle at Raphia

1 When Philopator heard from those who returned that the regions he ruled had been captured by Antiochus, he issued orders to all his infantry and cavalry forces, took his sister Arsinoe along with him, and set out toward the area near Raphia, where the forces of Antiochus were positioned. Now a certain Theodotus, intending to carry out a plan he had developed, took the finest of the Ptolemaic weapons issued earlier to him and crossed by night to Ptolemy's tent with the intention of killing him by himself, and in that way ending the war. But Dositheus, called the son of Drimylos, by birth Jew who afterward changed his religion and apostatized from the traditions of his fathers, removed the king and put in his place a certain unimportant man in the tent. That man suffered the vengeance intended for the king.

When a fierce battle took place and things were going rather well for Antiochus, Arsinoe went and exhorted the soldiers with her cries and tears. With her hair disheveled, she urged them to be brave and to defend themselves and their children and wives. She promised to give each of them two minas of gold if they were victorious. So it happened the enemy was defeated in hand-to-hand combat, and many were taken captive. But having prevailed against the plot, Ptolemy decided to visit and encourage the neighboring cities. In doing so and by enriching their sacred precincts with gifts, he built up the morale of the conquered people.

Ptolemy Tries to Enter the Temple.

When the Jews sent representatives to him from the senate, they greeted him, brought him gifts, and congratulated him on the way things turned out. He was favorable to them and eager to visit them soon. When he came to Jerusalem, he sacrificed to the Almighty God and made thank offerings and did what was appropriate in the place. In coming into the holy place, he was astonished at its excellence and beauty, and he admired the good order of the temple and conceived a desire to enter into the inner sanctuary. They told him, however, it was inappropriate for him to do this, since even citizens of their own nation were not allowed to enter, nor even all the priests. Only the high priest who was first over all of them could enter, but only once a year. Ptolemy, though, was not at all persuaded. Even when the law was read to him, still he would not stop insisting that he should enter, saying, “Even if others are deprived of this honor, I must not be deprived.” Then he asked why nobody ever prevented him from going into all the other shrines. Someone said without thinking that it was improper to take that as a portent. When that happened, he said that he would enter anyway, whether they liked it or not.

Then the priests, fully vested, prostrated themselves and supplicated God Most High to 2 help them in the present circumstances, to turn away the impulse of the man of evil design. The temple was filled with their cries and tears. † 17 Those who remained in the city rushed out, supposing that something mysterious was happening. † 18 Even the virgins who had remained in their chambers rushed out with their mothers and sprinkled dust on their hair, filling the streets with wailing and groaning. 19 Those, too, who were recently brought to their bridal chambers abandoned the modesty that was appropriate for them and raced through the city in a disorderly manner. 20 At that point, mothers and nurses even abandoned their newborns here and there, some at home and others in the streets, and without looking back crowded into the most high temple. †

21 The prayers of those gathered were of varied forms because of what the king was plotting in such an unholy way. 22 Besides, more aggressive citizens would in no way tolerate the carrying out of his plan or the fulfillment of his intention. † 23 They shouted to their neighbors to make a run on the weapons and to die courageously for the law of their fathers. They created a great disturbance in the place and were barely restrained by the aged and the elders. They took up the same posture of prayer as the others.

24 In the meantime, the multitude returned to prayer as before. 25 The elders close by the king made many attempts to divert his haughty mind from the plan he had concocted. † 26 But in his arrogance he dismissed everything they said and began to approach the place, determined to complete his plan. 27 When those around the king observed this, they turned to one another and called upon Him who is all-powerful to come to their aid in this current struggle and not to ignore this lawless and arrogant act. † 28 But because of the continual impassioned shouting of the crowds, it seemed that not only those present but also the very walls and the earth itself were echoing the cry, for they all preferred death to the profaning of the temple. †

A Priestly Prayer Stops Ptolemy

2 The high priest Simon bent his knees before the temple and stretched out his hands with great dignity, calmly offering the following prayer: † 2 "O Lord, Lord, King of the heavens and Master of all creation, Holy One among the holy ones, the only Ruler, the Almighty: attend to us who are grievously oppressed by an unholy and irreverent man who is arrogant in his audacity and power. † 3 For You, the Creator of all and Ruler over all, are a righteous
Master, and You judge those who do anything with insolence and arrogance. In the past You destroyed those who acted unjustly, among whom were the giants who trusted in their physical strength and boldness, whom You destroyed by bringing the great flood of water upon them. You burned up with fire and brimstone the inhabitants of Sodom, who acted in arrogance and were notorious for their evil acts, and You made them an example for those who came after them. You made known Your might and power among men and brought many different acts of punishment on the arrogant Pharaoh, who enslaved Your holy people Israel.

For when he chased after them with horse-drawn chariots and a myriad of troops, You overwhelmed him in the depths of the sea, and brought across to safety those who trusted in You, the King of all creation. So when they considered the works of Your hands, they praised You, the Almighty God.

You, O King, created the endless and measureless earth and chose this city. You sanctified this holy place for Your name and hallowed it by its magnificent appearance, even though You have no need of anything. You made its structure solid for the glory of Your great and honorable name.

Because You love the house of Israel, You promised that if we should suffer setbacks and if distress should overtake us, You would hear our supplication when we come into this place to pray. Indeed, You are faithful and true. But often when our fathers were afflicted, You helped them in humility and saved them from great evils. Behold, O holy King, how we are oppressed because of our manifold sins, subjected to our enemies and lying in helplessness. In our downfall this arrogant and ungodly man continues to desecrate the holy place which is dedicated to the name of Your glory on the earth. Your dwelling place, the heaven of the heavens, is unapproachable by men. But since You by Your grace consented to grant Your glory upon Your people Israel, You hallowed this place. Do not punish us for the defilement caused by these men, and do not chastise us for this profanity. Do not allow these lawless people to brag in their anger and exult in the pride of their tongues, saying that they trampled the house of holiness as the houses of abominations are trampled.

Wipe away our sins, disperse our errors, and display Your compassion at this hour. Let Your mercies come upon us quickly. Grant praise in the mouth of us who have fallen and are crushed in our souls, and bring us peace.”
Then God, who watches over all, our Holy Forefather among the holy ones, heard this lawful supplication and scourged the man who raised himself up in arrogance and audacity.

He shook him on one side and the other, as a reed is shaken by the wind, so that he lay powerless on the ground. Besides being paralyzed in his limbs, he was unable to cry out, since he was struck by a righteous judgment.†

Therefore his friends and bodyguards alike were struck by an overwhelming fear, seeing the severe punishment that overtook him. Fearing he would die, quickly they dragged him away. Later, when he recovered, he still did not repent after being chastised, but went his way making bitter threats.†

Ptolemy Assaults the Jews

Then Ptolemy crossed over to Egypt, where he increased his evil, assisted by the aforementioned drinking companions and comrades, who were unacquainted with anything righteous.†

He was not content with his countless acts of indecency, but audaciously proceeded to spread many evil reports throughout the region. Many of his friends observed the king's intentions and adjusted themselves to conform to his will.

He undertook to spread abroad a public blame against the Jewish nation, and raising a plaque on the tower at the palace, he carved this inscription: No one shall enter the temple who does not sacrifice, but all the Jews shall be gathered for a census for taxation and reduced to servant status. Those who oppose this will be taken by force and put to death.†

Those registered are to be branded by fire on their bodies with the ivy leaf symbol of Dionysus, and they will also return to their former status.”†

But so as not to appear an enemy to all, he wrote underneath: “If some of them prefer to join those initiated into the mysteries, they will have equal rights of citizenship with the Alexandrians.”

Some, then, obviously hated the price required to maintain godliness in the city. So they gave themselves up willingly, for they expected greater glory from the association they were about to have with the king.†

But most of them prevailed with a noble spirit and did not abandon their faith. They paid money to save their lives and fearlessly exerted themselves to be saved from the census.†

They remained hopeful of finding help, while loathing those who isolated themselves from them. They considered them betrayers of the nation, and therefore, deprived them of friendship and assistance.†

When the ungodly king heard this, he reached such a point of rage that he was angry not only at the Jews of Alexandria, but even more so against those in the countryside. So he commanded that they all be brought together in one place and put to death by the worst possible means.† 2While these things were being organized, an antagonistic rumor was circulated against the Jewish nation by men who conspired to harm them. This was on the pretext the Jews hindered others from the observance of their customs.†

3The Jews, though, maintained their goodwill and unswerving faith toward the throne. 4But because they worshiped God and lived by His precepts, they kept themselves separate from others with regard to food, and therefore appeared hateful to some. 5But they adorned their way of life with the good deeds of righteous people, and thus established themselves as honorable to all men. 6Yet those of other nations took no account of the good works the Jews offered the nation, which was the common talk of all men. 7Instead they droned on about the differences in worship and foods, saying the Jews were not committed to the king or the authorities, but were hostile and in great opposition to his leadership. Therefore they attached no ordinary blame to them.

8Now there were Greeks in the city who had not been harmed in any way by the Jews, yet they observed the growing crowds and unprecedented tumult surrounding these people. But they could not help them because they lived in weakness under tyranny. But they attempted to comfort them and, being grieved, hoped for a change in the situation.† 9For it was incomprehensible to ignore such a large group which had done no wrong. 10But already certain neighbors and business associates drew them aside, gave them pledges of protection, and offered more serious efforts toward their defense.

🌐 Ptolemy's Decree.

11Then the king, who exalted himself in his current prosperity and did not consider the power of the Almighty God, assumed he could persist continually in the same purpose. So he wrote this letter against them:†

12“King Ptolemy Philopator, to the commanders and soldiers in Egypt and the surrounding region, greetings and health.† 13I myself and my government are well. 14When our expedition to Asia took place, as you know, and was brought to completion according to expectation by the help of the gods not lightly given, 15we thought it fit not by force of the spear, but by equity and great benevolence, to foster the peoples inhabiting Coelesyria and
Phoenicia and to willingly treat them well. We distributed large revenues to the priests around the cities, and also went to Jerusalem to honor the temple of those guilty people, who never cease from their folly. They accepted our presence in word, yet were insincere in their deeds. For when we were eager to enter their inner shrine and honor it with extraordinary and most beautiful votive offerings, we were carried away by arrogant old men who prevented us from entering. But they were spared the exercise of our strength because of the benevolence we have toward all men. Yet as they kept up their obvious hostility toward us, they became unique among the nations, because they lifted their heads against kings and benefactors and did not want to consider any deed as sincere.

But we adapted ourselves to their foolishness and crossed into Egypt with victory. We met all nations with kindness and did what was proper. Yet in this matter we proclaimed forgiveness to all of their kinsmen in Jerusalem. Then because of our confederacy with them and the many things we entrusted to them in sincerity from of old, we dared to make a change and grant them the honor of Alexandrian citizenship. So in this way they would be partakers of the things that are always sacred.

They, however, took it in a different spirit. With their innate malice, they rejected it and turned aside to evil. Not only did they reject the priceless citizenship, but they even showed loathing in word and silence toward the few among them who were sincerely disposed toward us. So quite in keeping with their infamous way of life, they suspected that we would quickly reverse our policy. Therefore we placed great trust in the signs that these men were ill-disposed toward us in every way. Thus we took precautions against the possibility that a sudden disturbance might rise up against us later, for we considered these impious men to be betrayers behind our backs and barbarian enemies. So we have ordered that as soon as this letter arrives, those who live there with their wives and children should be sent to us immediately by force in iron shackles, bound securely on all sides, for a fatal and shameful massacre as is fitting to traitors. When they have been punished, we are certain that our government will be established afterward in tranquility and security.

But whoever conceals any of the Jews, from old man to infant or even sucklings, will be killed with the cruelest tortures, along with his entire household. Whoever is willing to give information will receive the estate of the one who is punished, as well as two thousand drachmas of royal silver, and will be crowned with freedom. Every place without exception where a Jew is found concealed will become desolate and burned with fire, and will become useless for all time for every mortal creature."

This is the manner in which the letter was written.†

Deportation to Alexandria

Wherever this decree arrived, a feast at public expense was arranged for the Gentiles with shouting and rejoicing, as the hatred they had harbored against the Jews before now appeared openly.‡ But for the Jews, there was unceasing sorrow and lamentable crying with tears; everywhere their hearts burned, and with groans they bewailed the unexpected destruction that was suddenly inflicted on them. §But was there any district or city, or any inhabited place whatsoever, or any streets, that were not filled with their mourning and wailing? ¶For they were being sent off by the commandants of the city in such a bitter and ruthless spirit that even when some of their enemies saw them receive such unusual punishments before their eyes, they considered them a common object of pity, and wept for their miserable expulsion and the uncertainty of their lives.¶A large group of old men, covered with gray hair, was forced to march swiftly, despite the sluggishness of their old age. With shameless violence they were driven on a harsh journey.∥Young women who had just stepped into their bridal chamber to enter married life exchanged delight for wailing. With their perfumed hair sprinkled with dust, they openly raised a lamentation instead of wedding hymns, as they were carried away together by the violence of the Gentiles. In shackles and in view of the public, they were dragged along violently to the boat of embarkation.∥Their husbands, in their vigorous youthful prime and with nooses encircling their necks instead of flowers, passed the remaining days of their wedding feast in lamentations rather than feasting and youthful celebration, as they saw the grave already before their feet. But they were brought on board like wild animals in iron-bound restraints, some fastened by their necks to the benches of the ships, others with their feet secured in unbreakable fetters. In addition they had the thick deck above them; thus, darkness covered their eyes on all sides, and they were treated like betrayers during the entire voyage.

Death Threat

When they were brought to the place called Schedia and their voyage was completed according to the king's decree, he directed that they be confined outside the city in the hippodrome, which had an immense outside perimeter. He also commanded that at the appointed time, they be made a public example for those returning to the city and those going from the city to the country. Thus they could not communicate with the king's forces, or in any way claim to be within the boundaries of the city. But as this took place, the king heard that their Jewish compatriots from the city often went out secretly to lament the shameful suffering of their brothers. Growing furious, he commanded that these visitors be treated in precisely the same way as the others, so they would not be spared any of their punishment. He further commanded that every tribe be registered by name, not for the toilsome servitude just mentioned, but so they would suffer the prescribed tortures and be put to death in a single day. Their registration took place, then, with bitter haste and zealous diligence. It took forty days from sunrise to sunset, yet still remained incomplete.

The king was filled with great and constant joy as he established banquets to extol all his idols, with a mind that wandered far away from the truth. With a profane mouth, he praised mute things that were unable to speak or offer help, and spoke improper things against the Almighty God. But after the aforementioned interval of time, the scribes suggested to him that he would no longer be able to accomplish the registration of the Jews because their number was so large. They said that although there were still many of them in the country, some of whom were gathered in their houses and others elsewhere in the region, it was impossible for all the commanders in Egypt to register them. But the king threatened the scribes more harshly, claiming they were bribed to provide the Jews a mechanism of escape. But he was clearly convinced when they proved what they said, for they showed him that the paper and writing pens they used were depleted. This was the activity of God's invincible providence helping the Jews from heaven.

Hermon and His Elephants

Then the king, filled with wrath and anger and inflexible in every respect, summoned Hermon, the keeper of the elephants. On the following day, he ordered that he take all the elephants—five hundred in number—and get them drunk with plenty of unmingled wine and abundant handfuls of frankincense. Then after they had grown wild from the bounteous abundance of drink, he was to lead them where the Jews would meet their fate. When he had issued these directives, he resumed his feasting, alone with those of his friends and of the army who were particularly hostile toward the Jews. Then Hermon, caretaker of the elephants, obediently carried out all his orders. 5 The servants responsible for the Jews went out at evening, binding the hands of these unfortunate people, and managed to keep them in custody all night. They expected the whole nation would meet a final destruction. 6 But the Jews, thinking they were deprived of all protection from the Gentiles because of being bound on all sides, called out to the Lord Almighty, Sovereign of all authority, their merciful God and Father. With tears and with a cry not easily silenced, they prayed† that He divert the unholy plot against them with a vengeance by a glorious appearance, and save them from the fate now present before them. 9 Their supplication went up earnestly to heaven.

10 Now Hermon got his pitiful elephants drunk by filling them up with a great abundance of wine and frankincense. Then he came to the court early in the morning to make his report to the king. 11 But God sent on the king a deep sleep, that good gift from the beginning of time which he has cast on those He favors during both night and the day.† 12 Thus the king was restrained from his awful plan by the sweet and deep sleep from the Lord. He was disappointed in his lawless and unbending scheme. 13 But when the Jews escaped the appointed hour, they praised their holy God, and again beseeched Him who is easily reconciled to show the strength of His almighty hand to the haughty Gentiles.†

14 By now it was almost the middle of the tenth hour, and the man in charge of banquet invitations arranged the guests together, came forward, and nudged the king.† 15 As soon as he finally roused him, he made a report about what was happening and informed him that the hour of the banquet had already passed. 16 But as the king considered this, he returned to his drinking, and commanded those around him at the banquet to locate opposite him. 17 When this was done, he urged them to give themselves to still more eating and drinking, so the effect of the banquet would be still more raucous. 18 As the festivities progressed, the king summoned Hermon and with a direct threat asked why the Jews had made it alive through the present day. 19 But when Hermon declared that while it was still night he had done what was ordered, the king's friends confirmed this. 20 Then overcome with a savagery worse than that of Phalaris, the king said that because of the day's sleep they received favor; but without delay on the coming day, Hermon must ready the elephants for the extermination of the godless Jews.† 21 So when the king had spoken, all the guests present willingly and joyfully agreed with the plan; then each departed for home. 22 However, they did not use the night for sleep, but to devise all sorts of insults for those they assumed had met their doom.†

29But Hermon and all the king's friends told him, "The beasts and the troops are ready, O king, according to your eager purpose." 30But at these words, he was filled with deep anger, because his whole plot had been scattered from his mind by God's providence. Then he glared at them and threatened, 31“If your parents or children were here, I would furnish them as a lavish feast for the wild beasts, instead of these innocent people, who have shown me and my fathers complete and unbending loyalty in everything asked of them.† 32In fact, if it were not for my familiarity with you and your usefulness, you would be deprived of life rather than them.”

33Thus, Hermon endured an unexpected and dangerous threat, and his eyes shifted and his countenance fell. 34Then one by one the king's friends slunk away sullenly, and each one returned to his own business.† 35But when the Jews heard what the king said, they praised God as the revealed Lord and King of kings, since this happened to them because of His help.†

The Ambivalent King

36Meanwhile, the king restarted the banquet. He encouraged the guests to resume their merrymaking as before.† 37Then he summoned Hermon and threatened him, saying, “How many times must you be given orders about these same things, you worthless wretch? 38Equip the elephants once again to crush the Jews tomorrow.” 39But his administrators who were reclining together with him, curious as to his unstable mind, urged him, saying,†

40 “How long, O king, are you going to tease us as if we were irrational, for you commanded now for the third time to destroy them? Then again you took back your command and what seemed good to you. 41 Because of this, the city is in turmoil, expecting you to act, and is in danger of being torn apart by the growing crowds.”

42 At this point, the king, a Phalaris in every way, was filled with insanity, and counting as nothing his changes of mind concerning the care of the Jews, swore a firm oath to send them to Hades without delay, mangled by the feet and knees of the wild beasts.† 43 He would then attack the Jewish land and abruptly level it to the ground with fire and the spear, and burn down for all time the temple where they made sacrifices, which had been made inaccessible to him.† 44 Then his friends and officials departed joyfully, and confidently assigned the forces to the key places in the city to keep watch.

45 Then the keeper of the elephants brought the beasts almost to a state of madness, so to speak, with the sweetest drinks of wine mixed with frankincense; and he equipped them with frightful devices. 46 So about dawn, when the city was filled with countless hordes of onlookers filling the hippodrome, he went into the court and urged the king to fulfill his purpose. 47 The king then worked up his depraved mind into a fit of wrath, and rushed out in full strength with all the beasts. With hardened heart, he wanted to see with his own eyes the lamentable and evil crushing of the Jews.

48 The Jews saw the cloud of dust stirred up by the elephants as they came out of the gate, the armed forces behind them. They also heard the trampling of the throng and loud, boisterous noise. 49 They considered this the last moment of their lives and the end of their wretched uncertainty. Turning to one another in sorrow, they kissed each other with tears, and embracing their loved ones, they fell on their necks, parents and children and mothers and daughters, women with infants at their breasts drawing their last milk. 50 Nonetheless, when they recalled the help from heaven they had received earlier, they suddenly threw themselves face down, women taking the infants from their breasts,† 51 and they cried out in a loud voice, beseeching the Master of all to have mercy on them. For they were standing at the very gates of Hades.

The Prayer of Eleazar
Now there was a certain man, Eleazar, famous among the priests of the land, who reached the prime of his life in old age and adorned his life with every virtue. He directed the elders around him to call on the holy God, and he prayed as follows:†

“O King, mighty in power, O Most High, the Almighty God, who governs all creation in mercy;† look upon the seed of Abraham and the descendants of the saintly man Jacob, because a dedicated portion of Your people, O Father, are being unjustly destroyed as strangers in a foreign land. Pharaoh abounded in chariots and was the master of this Egypt when he arose with unlawful boldness, a boasting tongue, and an arrogant army. But You destroyed him by drowning him in the sea and appeared as a light of mercy to the nation Israel. Sennacherib also boasted in his countless forces, because this oppressive king of the Assyrians had already taken the whole world under his authority by the spear. Then he was lifted up against Your holy city and spoke grievously with pride and insults. But You shattered him, O Master, and made Your power visible to many nations. Then when the three companions in Babylon willingly gave their lives to fire—for they would not bow to vain things—You sent dew upon the fiery furnace and saved them to their last hair. You sent them back unharmed and turned the flames against their adversaries.† Daniel was thrown to the lions below ground as food for lions because of jealous slander. But You brought him unharmed back up to daylight.† Jonah was decomposing in the belly of the deep-sea monster. But You, O Father, watched over him and returned him unharmed to all his kin.† So now, O hater of insolence, O merciful Defender of all, appear speedily to those of the family of Israel, under outrageous abuse by abominable and lawless Gentiles.

“Even if our life has become enmeshed in unrighteousness during our captivity, save us from the hand of our adversaries, O Master, and destroy us by whatever death You choose. Only do not allow these vain-minded men to praise their useless things as they destroy those You love, saying, ‘Not even their God could rescue them.’ But You, who have all strength and authority, O Eternal One, look down on us now. Have mercy on us, who are being deprived of life like traitors by the thoughtless insults of lawless men. Let the Gentiles cower at Your unconquerable power this day, O Honorable One who has the power to save the race of Jacob. This entire multitude of babes and their parents beseech You with tears. Let it be revealed to all the Gentiles, O Lord, that You are with us, and that You did not turn Your face from us. For as You said, ‘Not even in the land of their enemies did I neglect them.’ Do this for us, O Lord.”†
When Eleazar finished his prayer, the king arrived at the hippodrome with the beasts and with all the haughtiness of his army. Then the Jews who saw him cried out in a loud voice to heaven, so much so that the valleys nearby echoed and brought unrestrained fear on the whole army. Then the Almighty God, most glorious and full of truth, manifested His holy face and thrust open the doors of heaven, from which two glorious angels descended, terrible in form, and visible to all except the Jews. They attacked the enemy forces, filled them with confusion and fright, and bound them with immovable fetters. The king's body was seized with a tremor, and he even forgot his contemptible vocabulary. Then the beasts turned against the armed forces who were behind them, and they trampled and killed them.

The king's wrath was turned to compassion and tears because of the plot he devised earlier, for he heard the wailing and saw all the people who fell to destruction. So, weeping with anger, he threatened his friends, shouting, “You act as if you were the king yourselves, and you exceed tyrants in your savagery and attack even me, your benefactor. You scheme to deprive me of my reign and my life itself with secret plots which are unprofitable to the kingdom. Who drove these people from their houses—who faithfully kept our strongholds—and stupidly gathered all of them here? Who so unlawfully entangled in terrible dangers these, who from the beginning differed from all other nations in their goodwill toward us and repeatedly accepted the worst pitfalls known to man? Release them! Undo their unjust bonds. Send them back home in peace and beg forgiveness for what you did to them. Set free the sons of the heavenly and living Almighty God, who has provided uninterrupted tranquility for our affairs from the time of our fathers until now.” Thus he said these things. So the Jews, who were released immediately, kept praising their holy God and Savior, for they had at last escaped death.

Then the king returned to the city and summoned the man in charge of the treasury. He commanded that he provide wine and everything else necessary so the Jews could feast for seven days. For the king thought it fitting that they celebrate their deliverance and rejoice in the very place they expected to meet their doom. Then those who had been treated disgracefully and were close to death, or rather stood at death's door, were given a special invitation. They organized a feast of deliverance from the bitter and mournful fate of death. Filled with joy, their celebration took the place of desolation and grave clothes.†

They ceased their chanting of lamentations and took up an ode of their fathers, praising their wonderworking God and Savior. They halted all wailing and lamenting and formed choirs as a symbol of joy and peace.†

Similarly, the king called a great feast to celebrate these things, and ceaselessly and magnificently gave thanks to heaven for his unplanned experience of personal salvation. 34 Those who believed previously that the Jews were going to be made food for the birds unto destruction, and thus registered them with glee, sighed as they were covered with shame, for their fire-breathing aggression was shamefully extinguished.

35 But the Jews, as we said before, formed the aforementioned choir and spent their time feasting with psalms of a joyful thanksgiving.†

They established a public ritual to commemorate these things within their entire community for the generations to come. They structured this observance as a festival, not for drunkenness and gluttony, but because of the salvation which they received from God. 37 They then requested that the king dismiss them to return back home.

38 Now their registration took place from the twenty-fifth of Pachon until the fourth of Epiphi, that is, forty days. They faced destruction from the fifth of Epiphi until the seventh, that is, three days.†

During this time the Lord over all things manifested His mercy with great glory and saved them all, together and unharmed. 40 Thus they feasted with everything provided by the king until the fourteenth day, when they also petitioned to be sent away. 41 The king immediately granted their request and wrote for them the letter, copied below, to the commanders in each city, magnanimously stating his concern for them:†

A Letter of Support from the King

“King Ptolemy Philopator, to the commanders in Egypt and to all those in authority in our government, greetings and health. 2 We ourselves are well, as are our children, with the great God guiding our affairs as we desire.†

Some of our friends through malignity kept urging us and finally persuaded us to gather the Jews in our kingdom to have them punished in a body with unusual punishments, as if they were rebels.†

They argued that until this was accomplished, our government would never be stable because of their ill-will toward all nations. 5 They led them out cruelly in fetters as slaves, or rather as traitors, and without making any inquiry or investigation, they attempted to attack them, girding themselves with..."
fierceness more savage than that of the Scythians.† 6But because of the fairness we have toward all men, we threatened them severely for these things. Yet we barely spared their lives, because we recognized that the heavenly God surely protects the Jews, as a father protects his sons and fights on their behalf. 7We considered the steadfast goodwill they had toward us and toward our brothers, and justly acquitted them from every manner of charge. 8Then we ordered our people to go about their business, each in his own place, with no one harming them or reproaching them undeservedly about what happened. 9For you know that if we plot any evil against them or trouble them at all, we will have not man but God the Most High, the Master of all power, unfavorable to us in vengeance for these things and inescapable in everything forever. Farewell.”†

The Traitors Are Punished

10When they received this letter, the Jews did not hasten to depart immediately, but rather petitioned the king that those of the race of Jews who transgressed the law of the Holy God should receive the punishment they deserved.† 11They proclaimed that those who transgressed the divine commands on account of their appetites would never again be favorable toward the king's government. 12So he accepted the truth of what they said and deferred to them, giving them permission in all things to destroy those who had transgressed the law of God throughout his kingdom with boldness and without any royal authority or supervision. 13Then their priests and the whole multitude extolled the king and, as was appropriate, responded with an alleluia, and departed in joy.† 14As they went their way, they punished and killed anyone of their race they encountered who had defiled himself, putting him to public shame.† 15So on that day they killed more than three hundred men, and they held a joyous festival because they had overtaken those who were defiled. 16Then those who had held firmly to God to the point of death received the pleasure of their deliverance. They left the city wreathed in all sorts of sweet-smelling flowers, with joyful shouts of thanks in praises and melodious hymns to the God of their fathers, the everlasting Savior of Israel.

17But when they reached Ptolemais, called the Rose-bearing City because of the special character of the place, the fleet had waited there for seven days according to the plan they determined.† 18They held a feast of deliverance there for the king, who liberally supplied them with everything they needed for their journey home. 19When they reached land in peace with proper giving of thanks, they also decided to again set apart these days for joyful festivity during their stay. 20 They marked these days on a column inscribed and set in the banquet site, consecrating it as a place of prayer. Then they went away safely through land, sea, and river, each to his own home, free and overjoyed by the command of the king.† 21 They had more honor than before among their adversaries, were held in esteem and awe, and none of them lost any of their belongings. 22 Instead, they reclaimed all of their own things which had been registered. If anyone held something of theirs, they returned it with the greatest fear, since the Almighty God had done perfectly magnificent works to gain their deliverance.† 23 Blessed is the Savior of Israel unto ages of ages! Amen.

The Book of the Psalms

Authors—Among the authors of the Psalms are David, the temple musicians, and Moses.

Date—Generally from 1000 BC, the time of David, to several centuries thereafter.

Major Theme—The songs of God's people. Each psalm has its own theme, as noted in the titles.

Background—

1. Types of psalms: The Psalms are of many types, including: (a) prophecies of the coming Messiah, (b) prayers for the king, (c) personal laments, (d) songs of praise, and (e) hymns for special feasts.

2. The prayer book of the Church: The Psalms have become for the Church, as for ancient Israel, a book of prayer and praise. All find their fulfillment in Christ, the Son of God. Not only do the Psalms predict specific events of Christ's life, but in them He Himself intercedes for and with His people before the Father. The Psalms can also be seen as a dialogue between the Church, the body of Christ, and Christ her Head. Therefore, they make the most sense to us when they are prayed or sung (chanted), not simply read.

3. Uses in the Church: The Book of Psalms, or Psalter, is used in the Orthodox Church in three primary ways:

   a. In the daily cycle of prayers. The liturgical tradition appoints certain psalms as “fixed” portions of the daily services. These will be pointed out in the notes throughout the text as psalms for morning prayers, evening prayers, and prayers of the hours.

   b. In the weekly order of the morning and evening services (Matins [Orthros] and Vespers). When these are done in their entirety, as in the monasteries, all the psalms are chanted in the course of each week, starting at Saturday Vespers and concluding at Matins the following Saturday.

   c. In the observance of the Church year, the liturgical tradition selects particular psalms or verses for special feasts or seasons as prophetic statements illustrating the work of Christ for us. For example, the Passion Song of Psalm 21 (“They pierced My hands and My feet”) is used in the Church on Great and Holy Friday. Thus, using the Psalms is crucial to our understanding of the fullness of Christ's ministry to His people.

4. Purpose: The Psalms serve many functions. They (a) foretell coming events; (b) recall history; (c) frame laws for life; (d) reveal what must be done to obey God's word; (e) are a treasury of good doctrine; and (f) help overcome the passions that exercise dominion over our souls, through the power of poetic expression to capture and gradually transform our thoughts.

Psalm 1

Blessed is the man
Who walks not in the counsel of the ungodly,
Nor stands in the way of sinners,
Nor sits in the seat of the troublesome;
2 But his will is in the law of the Lord,
And in His law he meditates day and night.
3 He shall be like a tree
Planted by streams of waters,
That produces its fruit in its season;
And his leaf shall not wither,
And whatever he does shall prosper.
4 Not so are the ungodly, not so,
But they are like the dust the wind drives from the face of the earth.
5 Therefore the ungodly shall not rise in the judgment,
Nor sinners in the counsel of the righteous;
6 For the Lord knows the way of the righteous,
But the way of the ungodly shall perish.

Psalm 2

Why do the nations rage,
And the people meditate on vain things?
2 The kings of the earth set themselves,
And the rulers gather together
Against the Lord and against His anointed, saying,
3 “Let us break their bands,
And cast away their yokes from us.”
4 He who sits in the heavens shall laugh at them;
The Lord shall mock them.
5 Then shall He speak to them in His wrath
And trouble them in His anger,
6 “But I was established as King by Him
Over His holy hill of Zion,
Declaring the Lord's decree.
7 The Lord said to Me,
“You are My Son,
Today I have begotten You;
8 Ask of Me, and I will give You
The nations for Your inheritance
And the ends of the earth for Your possession.

2 You shall shepherd them with an iron staff;
You shall shatter them like a potter's vessel.' ”

3 And now, O kings, understand;
Be instructed, all you judges of the earth.

4 Serve the Lord with fear
And rejoice in Him with trembling.

5 Lay hold of His instruction, lest the Lord be angry,
And you perish from the righteous way
When His fury shall be quickly kindled.

Blessed are all who trust in Him.

Psalm 3

A psalm by David, when he fled from the face of his son, Absalom.†ω

O Lord, why do those who afflict me multiply?
Many are those who rise up against me.

2 Many are those who say to my soul,
“There is no salvation for him in his God.” (Pause)

3 But You, O Lord, are my protector,
My glory and the One who lifts up my head.

4 I cried to the Lord with my voice,
And He heard me from His holy hill. (Pause)

5 I lay down and slept;
I awoke, for the Lord will help me.

6 I will not be afraid of ten thousands of people
Who set themselves against me all around.

7 Arise, O Lord, and save me, O my God,
For You struck all those who were foolishly at enmity with me;
You broke the teeth of sinners.

8 Salvation is of the Lord,
And Your blessing is upon Your people.

Psalm 4

For the End; in psalms; an ode by David.†ω
You heard me when I called, O God of my righteousness.

You strengthened my heart when I was in distress;
Have mercy on me, and hear my prayer.

3 How long, O you sons of men,
Will you be slow of heart?
Why do you love vain things
And seek after lies?

4 Know that the Lord made His Holy One wondrous;
The Lord will hear me when I cry to Him.

5 Be angry, and do not sin;
Have remorse upon your beds
For what you say in your hearts. (Pause)

6 Offer the sacrifice of righteousness,
And hope in the Lord.

7 There are many who say, “Who will show us good things?”
O Lord, the light of Your face was stamped upon us.

8 You put gladness in my heart;
From their season of wheat, wine, and oil they were multiplied.

9 I will both sleep and rest in peace,
For You alone, O Lord, cause me to dwell in hope.

Psalm 5

1 For the End; concerning the inheritance; a psalm by David.†Ω

Give ear to my words, O Lord,
Hear my cry.

2 Give heed to the voice of my supplication,
My King and my God,
For to You will I pray, O Lord.

3 In the morning You shall hear my voice;
In the morning I will stand before You,
And I will watch.

4 For You are not a God who wills lawlessness,
Nor shall the evildoer dwell with You.

5 The lawless shall not stand before Your eyes;
You hate all the workers of lawlessness;

7 You shall destroy all who speak falsehood;
The Lord abhors the man of violence and deceit.

8 But as for me, in the fullness of Your mercy I will come into Your house;
In fear of You I will worship toward Your holy temple.

2 Lead me, O Lord, in Your righteousness because of my enemies;
Make straight Your way before me.

9 For there is no truth in their mouth;
Their heart is vain;
Their throat is an open grave;
They deal deceptively with their tongues.

10 Judge them, O God.
Let them fall by their false accusations;
Cast them out in the multitude of their ungodliness;
For they provoked You, O Lord.

11 But let all who hope in You be glad;
They will greatly rejoice forever,
For You will dwell in them;
And all who love Your name will boast in You.

12 For You will bless the righteous;
O Lord, You crowned us with the shield of Your goodwill.

Psalm 6

1 For the End; in hymns, concerning the eighth; a psalm by David.†ω

O Lord, do not reprove me in Your anger, Nor discipline me in Your wrath.

3 Have mercy on me, O Lord, for I am weak;
Heal me, O Lord, for my bones are troubled;

4 And my soul is greatly troubled;
But You, O Lord, how long?

5 Return, O Lord, and deliver my soul.
Save me because of Your mercy.

6 For there is no remembrance of You in death;
And in Hades who will give thanks to You?

7 I am weary with my groaning;
Every single night I will dampen my bed;
I will drench my couch with my tears.

My eye is troubled by anger;
I grow old among all my enemies.

Depart from me, all you workers of lawlessness;
For the Lord heard the voice of my weeping;

The Lord heard my supplication;
The Lord received my prayer.

Let all my enemies be ashamed and greatly troubled;
Let them turn back and be suddenly ashamed.

Psalm 7

A psalm by David, which he sang to the Lord concerning the words of Cush, the son of Benjamin.

O Lord my God, in You I hope; Save me from all who pursue me, and deliver me,

Lest like a lion he snatch away my soul
While there is none to redeem or save.

O Lord my God, if I have done this,
If there is wrongdoing in my hands,

If I dealt back evil to those dealing evil to me,
Then may I fall empty because of my enemies,

Then may the enemy pursue and overtake my soul,
And trample down my life to the ground,
And make my glory settle in the dust. (Pause)

Arise, O Lord, in Your anger;
Be exalted to the very boundaries of my enemies;
Awaken, O Lord my God, in the ordinance You commanded,

So the congregation of the peoples shall surround You,
And because of this, return on high.

The Lord shall judge the people;
Judge me, O Lord, according to my righteousness,
And according to the innocence within me.

Bring an end to the wickedness of sinners,
And keep straight the righteous;
For God examines hearts and reins.

‡ My righteous help is from God,
Who saves the upright in heart.

‡ God is a righteous, strong, and patient judge,
Not bringing down wrath every single day.

‡ If You do not return, he will polish his sword;
He stretched his bow and readied it,

‡ And he readied his instruments of death
And prepared his arrows to kindle a fire.

‡ Behold, he suffered the pains of childbirth in unrighteousness;
He conceived pain and brought forth lawlessness;

‡ He opened up a pit and dug it out,
And he will fall into the hole he made.

‡ The pain shall return on his own head,
And his wrongdoing shall come down on his crown.

‡ I will give thanks to the Lord according to His righteousness
And will sing to the name of the Lord Most High.

Psalm 8

For the End; concerning the winepresses; a psalm by David.†ω

O Lord, our Lord, how wondrous is Your name in all the earth,
For Your splendor is exalted far beyond the heavens.

‡ From the mouths of babies and nursing infants
You prepared praise because of Your enemies,
That You may destroy the enemy and avenger.

‡ For I shall look at the heavens, the works of Your fingers,
The moon and stars You established.

‡ What is man that You remember him,
Or the son of man that You visit him?

‡ You made him a little lower than the angels;
You crowned him with glory and honor.

‡ You set him over the works of Your hands;
You subjected all things under his feet,

‡ All sheep and oxen,
And besides these, also the animals of the field,
the birds of heaven and the fish of the sea,
And the things passing through the paths of the seas.
O Lord, our Lord, how wondrous is Your name in all the earth.

Psalm 9 (9, 10)

For the End; concerning the hidden things of the Son; a psalm of David.

I will give thanks to You, O Lord, with my whole heart;
I will tell of all Your wondrous things;
I will be glad and rejoice in You;
When my enemy turns backward,
They shall be feeble and perish before Your face.
For You maintain my judgment and my right;
You sit upon the throne, judging in righteousness.
You rebuke the nations, and the ungodly man destroys himself;
You blotted out their name, in their lifetime and unto ages of ages;
The swords of the enemy are completely forsaken,
And You pulled down their cities;
Their memory was destroyed with a noise.
But the Lord abides forever;
He prepared His throne in judgment,
And He shall judge the world in righteousness;
He shall judge the peoples in uprightness.
The Lord is also a refuge for the poor man,
A helper in seasons of affliction;
And let those who know Your name put their hope in You;
For You, O Lord, do not forsake those who seek You.
Sing to the Lord who dwells in Zion.
Proclaim His dealings among the nations,
For He who avenges blood remembers them;
He does not forget the cry of the poor.
Have mercy on me, O Lord, and see how my enemies have humbled me,
You who raise me up from the gates of death,
That I may proclaim all Your praises
In the gates of the daughter of Zion.
I will rejoice in Your salvation.

The nations are trapped in the destruction they caused;
Their foot is caught in the trap they hid.
The Lord is known in the judgments He makes;
The sinner is caught in the works of his hands. (Pause)

Let sinners be turned back into Hades,
And all the nations who forget God.

For the poor man shall not be forgotten in the end;
The patience of the poor shall not perish forever.
Arise, O Lord, and do not let man prevail;
Let the nations be judged in Your presence.

Set a lawgiver over them, O Lord,
And let the nations know that they are men. (Pause)

Why do You stand afar off, O Lord?
Why do You disregard me in times of affliction?
When the ungodly man behaves arrogantly, the poor are set afire;
Let him be caught in the counsels he ponders.

For the sinner praises himself in the desires of his soul,
And the unjust man blesses himself.
The sinner provokes the Lord;
He will not seek Him out because of the fullness of His wrath;
God is not before him.
His ways are defiled in every season;
Your judgments are removed from his face;
He shall rule over all his enemies,
For he said in his heart, "I will not be shaken;
From generation to generation I will be without trouble."
His mouth is full of cursing, bitterness and deceit;
Suffering and pain are under his tongue.
He lies in ambush with the wealthy;
He kills the innocent in hidden places;
His eyes look intently at the poor;
He lies in ambush in a hiding place, like a lion in his den;
He lies in wait to seize the poor man,
To seize the poor man to drag him away;
He will humble him in his snare;
But he will bend down and fall when he rules over the poor.
For he said in his heart, “God forgets;
He turned His face so as never to see it.”
Arise, O Lord God, let Your hand be lifted high,
And do not forget Your poor.
Why has the ungodly man provoked God?
For he said in his heart, “You will never call me to account for this.”
But You do see, You do perceive the suffering and pain,
That You might deliver them into Your hands;
Therefore, the poor man will be left to You;
You give help to the orphan.
Break the arm of the sinner and the evil man;
His sin shall be sought, and because of it he will not be found;
The Lord will reign,
But you, O nations, you will perish from His earth.
The Lord hears the desire of the poor;
Your ear heeds the readiness of their heart,
To judge the orphan and the humble,
That man may no longer increase his great boasting upon the earth.

Psalm 10 (11)

† For the End; a psalm by David.

In the Lord I trust. How will you say to my soul,
“Flee to the mountains like a sparrow”?
See, the sinners stretch tight their bow;
They prepare their arrows in the quiver,
That in a moonless night they may shoot down the upright in heart.
For the things You created, they destroyed.
But what did the righteous man do?
The Lord is in His holy temple;
The Lord, His throne is in heaven;
His eyes are fixed upon the poor man,
His eyelids examine the sons of men.

5 The Lord examines the righteous man and the ungodly man,
And he who loves unrighteousness hates his own soul.

6 He shall rain down snares upon sinners;
Fire and brimstone and a raging wind shall be the portion of their cup.

7 The righteous Lord loves righteousness;
His face beholds the upright.

Psalm 11 (12)

For the End, concerning the eighth; a psalm by David.†ω

Save me, O Lord, for the holy man has ceased;
The truthful are diminished from among the sons of men.

3 Each one speaks useless things to his neighbor;
Deceptive lips speak with a double heart.

4 May the Lord destroy all deceptive lips
And the tongue that speaks boastful things,

5 Saying, “We will make our tongue powerful;
Our lips are our own;
Who is lord over us?”

6 “Because of the suffering of the needy,
And because of the groaning of the poor,
Now I will arise,” says the Lord;
“I will establish them in salvation;
I will declare it boldly.”

7 The words of the Lord are pure words,
Like silver fired in a furnace of earth,
Purified seven times.

8 You shall guard us, O Lord;
You shall preserve us from this generation forever.

9 The ungodly walk in a circle;
In Your exaltation, You highly exalted the sons of men.

Psalm 12 (13)
Psalm 13 (14)

1How long, O Lord? Will You forget me to the end?
How long will You turn Your face from me?
How long will I take counsel in my soul,
Having grief in my heart daily?
How long will my enemy be exalted over me?

2Look upon me and hear me, O Lord my God;
Enlighten my eyes, lest I sleep in death,
Lest my enemy say,
“I prevailed against him”;
Those who afflict me greatly rejoice, if I am shaken.

3But I hope in Your mercy;
My heart shall greatly rejoice in Your salvation;
I will sing to the Lord, who shows kindness to me;
I will sing to the name of the Lord Most High.

Psalm 14 (15)

1The fool says in his heart, “There is no God.”
They are corrupt, they are abominable in their habits;
There is none, not even one, who does good.

2The Lord stooped down from heaven to look upon the sons of men,
To see if there were any who understood or sought God.

3All turned aside and were altogether corrupted;
There was not even one doing good, no, not one.
Their throat is an open tomb;
They deal deceptively with their tongues;
The poison of serpents is under their lips,
Whose mouth is full of curses and bitterness;
Their feet are swift to shed blood;
Affliction and suffering are in their ways,
And the way of peace they have not known;
There is no fear of God before their eyes.
Psalm 14 (15)

1 A psalm by David.

Lord, who shall dwell in Your tabernacle?
Who shall live in Your holy mountain?

2 He who walks blamelessly, and works righteousness,
And speaks truth in his heart,

3 Who does not deceive with his tongue,
Neither does evil to his neighbor;
And does not find fault with those nearest him.

4 He disdains those who do evil in his presence,
But he holds in honor those who fear the Lord;
He swears an oath to his neighbor and does not set it aside.

5 He does not lend his money at interest,
And he does not take a bribe against the innocent.

6 He who does these things shall never be shaken.

Psalm 15 (16)

1 A pillar inscription; by David.

Reserve me, O Lord, because I hope in You.

2 I said to the Lord, "You are my Lord;
You have no need of my good things."

3 To the saints on His earth,
In them He magnified all His will.

4 Their diseases were multiplied;
They hastened after these things;
I will not join in their assemblies of blood,
nor will I remember their names with my lips.

5 The Lord is the portion of my inheritance and my cup;
You are He who restores my inheritance to me.

5 Portions fell to me among the best,
And my inheritance is the very finest.

2 I will bless the Lord who caused me to understand;
Moreover, until night my reins also instructed me.

2 I saw the Lord always before me;
Because He is at my right hand, that I may not be shaken.

2 Therefore my heart was glad,
And my tongue rejoiced exceedingly;
My flesh also shall dwell in hope.

2 For You will not abandon my soul to Hades
Nor allow Your Holy One to see corruption.

2 You made known to me the ways of life;
You will fill me with gladness in Your presence;
At Your right hand are pleasures forevermore.

Psalm 16 (17)

A prayer of David.†ω

Listen, O Lord of my righteousness;
Attend to my supplication;
Give ear to my prayer that is not with deceitful lips.

2 From Your face let my judgment come;
Let my eyes behold uprightness.

2 You tested my heart, when You visited me in the night;
You tried me in the fire, and found nothing unjust in me.

2 That my mouth might not speak of the works of men,
I held to hard ways because of the words of Your lips.

2 Restore my steps in Your paths,
That my footsteps may not slip.

2 I cried out, because You listened to me, O God;
Incline Your ear to me, and hear my words.

2 Magnify Your mercies,
O You who save those who hope in You
From those who rise up against Your right hand.

2 Keep me as the apple of Your eye;
In the shelter of Your wings, You will shelter me
From the face of the ungodly who trouble me.

My enemies surrounded my soul;
Their fat enclosed them;
Their mouth spoke arrogantly.
Casting me out, they now surround me;
They set their eyes to bend down to the earth.

They seized me like a lion ready to tear its prey,
Like a young lion lurking in secret places.

Arise, O Lord, outrun them and trip up their heels;
Rescue my soul from the ungodly,
And Your sword from the enemies of Your hand.

O Lord, destroy them from the earth;
Scatter them in their life.
Their belly is filled with Your hidden things;
They are satisfied with their sons,
And they leave their possessions to their children.

As for me, in righteousness I shall behold Your face;
I shall be satisfied when Your glory is revealed.

Psalm 17 (18)

1 For the End; by the child of the Lord, David; what things he spoke to the Lord, even the words of this ode, in the day the Lord delivered him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul;†

2 thus he said:

“I will love You, O Lord, my strength.

3 The Lord is my foundation, my refuge, my deliverer;
My God is my helper, on Him I will hope,
My champion, the horn of my salvation, and my protector.

4 I will call upon the Lord and praise Him,
And I shall be saved from my enemies.

5 The anguish of death surrounded me;
The floods of the lawless troubled me greatly;

6 The anguish of Hades encircled me;
The snares of death ran me down.

2 In my affliction I called upon the Lord,
And I cried out to my God;
He heard my voice from His holy temple,
And my cry shall come before Him, into His ears.

8 Then the earth was shaken and was trembling;
And the foundations of mountains were stirred up,
And they were shaken, because God was angry with them.

2 Smoke ascended in His wrath,
And burst into flame from His face;
Coals were kindled by Him.

2 He bowed heaven and descended,
And darkness was under His feet.

2 And He rode upon the cherubim, and flew;
He flew upon the wings of the wind.

2 He made darkness His hiding place;
His tabernacle was around Him,
Dark water in the clouds of the sky.

2 Because of the brightness before Him, the clouds,
The hail and the fiery coals passed through.

2 The Lord thundered from heaven,
The Most High gave forth His voice;
And He sent forth His arrows, and scattered them;
And He multiplied lightning, and threw them into utter confusion.

2 Then the springs of the waters were seen,
And the foundations of the world were uncovered
By Your rebuke, O Lord,
By the breathing of the breath of Your wrath.

2 He sent from on high, and He took me;
He drew me out of many waters.
He will deliver me from my strong enemies,
and from those who hate me,
Because they were too strong for me.
They overran me in the day of my misfortune,
But the Lord became my support,
And He led me into a wide place;
He will deliver me, because He willed it for me.
He will deliver me from my strong enemies
and from those who hate me.
The Lord will reward me according to my righteousness;
And according to the purity of my hands He will recompense me,
Because I kept the ways of the Lord
And did not act impiously against my God;
For all His judgments are before me,
And I did not remove His ordinances from me.
I will also be blameless before Him,
And I will keep myself from my lawlessness.
The Lord will reward me according to my righteousness,
According to the purity of my hands before His eyes.
With the holy You will be holy;
And with the innocent man You will be innocent;
And with the elect You will be elect;
And with the crooked You will be crooked.
For You will save a humble people,
And You will humble the eyes of the arrogant.
For You will light my lamp, O Lord;
O my God, You will enlighten my darkness.
For in You I shall be delivered from ordeals,
And in my God I shall leap over a wall.
My God, His way is blameless;
The teachings of the Lord are tried by fire;
He is the shield of all who set their hope on Him.
For who is God besides the Lord?
And who is God besides our God?
It is God who girds me with power,
And He made my way blameless;
Who makes my feet like a deer
And sets me on high places;
Who teaches my hands to make war;
And You make my arms a bronze bow;
And You gave me the shield of Your salvation;
And Your right hand supported me;
And Your instruction restored me to the end;
And Your instruction will teach me.
You widened my steps under me,
And my footsteps were not feeble.
I shall pursue my enemies and overtake them;
And I shall not turn back until they faint;
I shall wound them until they cannot stand;
They shall fall under my feet.
For You armed me with strength for war;
You entangled under my feet all who rose up against me,
And You gave me the back of my enemies;
And You destroyed all who hate me.
They cried out, but there was none to save them;
Even to the Lord, but He did not answer them.
I will grind them fine, like the dust that blows in the wind;
I will smooth them out, like mud in the streets.
Deliver me from the contradictions of the people;
You will establish me as the head of the Gentiles;
A people I never knew served me;
The moment they heard, they obeyed me;
Sons who are strangers lied to me;
Sons who are strangers became old,
And they became lame because of their beaten path.
The Lord lives, and blessed is my God.
Let the salvation of my God be exalted,
My deliverer from the rage of my enemies;
Because of those who rise up against me, You will exalt me;
You will deliver me from the unrighteous man.
Therefore I will give thanks to You among the Gentiles, O Lord,
And sing to Your name,
He who magnifies the salvation of His king
And shows mercy to His anointed,
To David and his seed forever."

Psalm 18 (19)

For the End; a psalm by David.

The heavens declare the glory of God;
The firmament shows the creation of His hands.
Day to day utters speech,
And night to night reveals knowledge.
There is no speech nor language
Where their voices are not heard.
Their proclamation went forth into all the earth,
And their words to the ends of the world.
In the sun He set His tabernacle;
And it rejoices exceedingly
Like a bridegroom coming forth from his bridal chamber,
Like a strong man to run a race.
Its rising is from one end of heaven,
And its circuit runs to the other end;
And nothing shall be hidden from its heat.
The law of the Lord is blameless, converting souls;
The testimony of the Lord is trustworthy, making children wise;
The ordinances of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart;
The commandment of the Lord is bright, enlightening the eyes;
The fear of the Lord is pure, enduring unto ages of ages;
The judgments of the Lord are true, being altogether just.
More to be desired are they than gold and a very precious stone,
Sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb.
For indeed Your servant keeps them;
In keeping them there is great reward.
Who will understand his transgressions?
Cleanse me from hidden sins,
And spare your servant from unnatural sins;
If they have no dominion over me, then I shall be blameless,
And I shall be cleansed from great sin.
Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart
Be always pleasing before You,
O Lord, my helper and my redeemer.

Psalm 19 (20)

For the End; a psalm by David.†

May the Lord hear you in the day of affliction;
May the name of the God of Jacob defend you.
May He send you help from His holy place,
And may He support you from Zion.
May He remember every sacrifice of yours,
And may your whole burnt offering be honored. (Pause)
May He give you according to your heart,
May He fulfill all your counsel.
We will greatly rejoice in Your salvation,
And in the name of our God we will be magnified.
Now I know the Lord has saved His anointed;
He will hear him from His holy heaven;
The salvation of His right hand is mighty.
Some glory in chariots, some in horses,
But in the name of the Lord our God we shall be magnified.
Their feet were tied together; so they fell;
But we rose up and were restored.
O Lord, save Your King,
And hear us in the day we call upon You.

Psalm 20 (21)
O Lord, the king shall be glad in Your power,
And in Your salvation he will greatly rejoice.
You gave him his soul's desire,
And You did not deprive him of his lips' request. (Pause)
For You anticipated him with blessings of goodness;
You placed a crown of precious stones on his head.
He asked You for life, and You gave it to him,
Length of days unto ages of ages.
Great is his glory in Your salvation;
Glory and majesty You shall place upon him.
For You shall give him blessing unto ages of ages;
You shall fill him with the joy of Your presence.
For the king hopes in the Lord,
And in the mercy of the Most High he will not be shaken.
May Your hand be found on all Your enemies;
May Your right hand find all who hate You.
You shall make them like a fiery furnace
In the time of Your presence;
The Lord shall throw them into confusion in His wrath,
And the fire shall devour them.
You shall destroy their offspring from the earth
And their seed from among the sons of men.
For they vented all their evils against You;
They reasoned through a counsel they could not establish.
For You shall make them turn their back;
Among Your remnants, You shall make ready their countenance.
Be exalted, O Lord, in Your power;
We will sing and praise Your mighty deeds.

Psalm 21 (22)

1For the End; concerning help in the morning; a psalm by David.

O God, my God, hear me; why have You forsaken me?
The words of my transgressions are far from my salvation.

3 O my God, I will cry out by day, but You will not hear me;
And by night, but not for a lack of understanding in me.

4 But You dwell among the saints, O praise of Israel.

5 Our fathers hoped in You;
They hoped in You, and You delivered them.

6 They cried out to You and were saved;
They hoped in You and were not ashamed.

7 But I am a worm, and not a man;
A reproach of man and despised by the people.

8 All who see me mock me;
They speak with their lips and shake their head,

9 Saying, "He hoped in the Lord, let Him rescue him;
Let Him save him since He delights in him."

10 For You are He who drew me from the womb,
My hope from my mother's breasts;

11 I was cast upon You from the womb,
From my mother's womb You are my God.

12 Do not stand off from me, for affliction is near;
There is no one to help.

13 Many young bulls surrounded me;
Fat bulls encircled me.

14 They opened their mouths against me
Like a raging and roaring lion.

15 I am poured out like water,
And all my bones are shattered;
My heart is like wax, melting into my stomach.

16 My strength is dried up like an earthen vessel;
My tongue cleaves to my throat;
And You led me into the dust of death.

17 For many dogs surrounded me;
An assembly of evildoers enclosed me;
They pierced my hands and my feet.

18 I numbered all my bones,
And they look and stare at me.
2 They divided my garments among themselves,
And for my clothing they cast lots.
зи But You, O Lord, do not remove Your help from me;
Attend to my aid.
зи Deliver my soul from the sword
And my only-begotten from the hand of the dog;
źni Save me from the lion's mouth,
My humiliation from the horns of the unicorns.
zähl I will declare Your name to my brethren;
In the midst of the church I will sing to You.
zähl You who fear the Lord, praise Him.
All you seed of Jacob, glorify Him;
Fear Him, all you seed of Israel.
zähl For He has not despised nor scorned the beggar's supplication,
Nor has He turned away His face from me;
And when I cried out to Him, He heard me.
zähl My praise is from You in the great church;
I will pay my vows before those who fear Him.
zähl The poor shall eat and be well-filled,
And those who seek Him will praise the Lord;
Their hearts will live unto ages of ages.
zähl All the ends of the world shall remember and turn to the Lord;
And all families of the Gentiles shall worship before You,
zähl For the kingdom is the Lord's;
And He is the Master of the Gentiles.
zähl All the prosperous of the earth ate and worshiped;
All going down into the earth shall bow down before Him,
And my soul lives with Him.
zähl And my seed shall serve Him;
The coming generation shall be told of the Lord,
zähl And they will declare His righteousness
To a people who will be born, because the Lord made them.

Psalm 22 (23)

1A psalm by David.țΩ
The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

2 He makes me to lie down in green pastures; He leads me beside the still waters.

3 He restores my soul; He leads me in the paths of righteousness For His name's sake.

4 Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for You are with me; Your rod and Your staff, they comfort me.

5 You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies; You anoint my head with oil; My cup runs over.

6 Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me All the days of my life; And I will dwell in the house of the Lord to the end of my days.

Psalm 23 (24)

1 A psalm by David; on the first day of the week.†Ω

The earth is the Lord's, and its fullness, The world and all who dwell therein.

2 For He founded it upon the seas And prepared it upon the rivers.

3 Who shall ascend to the mountain of the Lord? Who shall stand in His holy place?

4 He who has innocent hands and a pure heart; He who does not lift up his soul to vanity;

He who does not swear deceitfully to his neighbor.

5 He shall receive blessing from the Lord And mercy from the God of his salvation.

6 This is the generation of those who seek Him, Who seek the face of the God of Jacob. (Pause)

7 Lift up the gates, O you rulers, And be lifted up, you everlasting doors, And the King of glory shall enter.
Who is this King of glory?
The Lord strong and mighty,
The Lord powerful in battle.
Lift up the gates, O you rulers,
And be lifted up, you everlasting doors,
And the King of glory shall enter.
Who is this King of Glory?
The Lord of hosts, He is the King of glory.

Psalm 24 (25)

A psalm by David.

To You, O Lord, I lift up my soul, O my God.
I trust in You; let me not be ashamed;
Let not my enemies laugh at me.
For all who wait upon You shall not be ashamed;
Let those be ashamed who act lawlessly in vain.
Make known Your ways to me, O Lord,
And teach me Your paths.
Lead me in Your truth and teach me,
For You are the God of my salvation,
And on You I wait all the day.
Remember Your compassion, O Lord,
And Your mercy, for they are from of old.
Do not remember the sins of my youth, nor of my ignorance;
But remember me according to Your mercy,
Because of Your loving-kindness, O Lord.
Good and upright is the Lord;
Therefore He will instruct sinners in His way.
He will guide the gentle in judgment;
He will teach the gentle His ways.
All the ways of the Lord are mercy and truth
For those who seek His covenant and His testimonies.
For Your name's sake, O Lord,
Pardon my sin, for it is great.
Who is the man who fears the Lord?
He will instruct him in the way He chooses.
His soul shall dwell among good things;
His seed shall inherit the earth.
The Lord is the strength of those who fear Him,
And to those who fear Him, His name is the Lord,
And He will show them His covenant.
My eyes are always toward the Lord,
For He shall pluck my feet out of the trap.
Look upon me and have mercy on me,
For I am only-begotten and poor.
The afflictions of my heart have been widened;
Bring me out of my distresses.
Look on my humiliation and my pain
And forgive all my sins.
Look on my enemies, because they multiply,
And they hate me with unjustified hatred.
Keep my soul, and deliver me;
Let me not be ashamed, because I hope in You.
The innocent and the upright cleave to me
Because I wait upon You, O Lord.
Redeem Israel, O God,
Out of all his afflictions.

Psalm 25 (26)

Of David.

Judge me, O Lord, for I walk in my innocence,
And by hoping in the Lord, I shall not weaken.
Prove me, O Lord, and test me,
Try my reins and my heart in the fire.
For Your mercy is before my eyes,
And I was well-pleasing in Your truth.
I have not sat down with vain councils,
Nor will I go in with those who transgress the law.
I hate the assembly of evildoers,
And I will not sit with the ungodly.
I will wash my hands in innocence;
So I will go about Your altar, O Lord,
That I may hear the voice of praise
And tell of all Your wondrous works.
O Lord, I love the beauty of Your house,
And the place where Your glory dwells.
Do not destroy my soul with the ungodly,
Nor my life with men of blood,
In whose hands is lawlessness;
Their right hand is full of bribes.
But as for me, I walk in my innocence;
Redeem me and have mercy on me.
For my foot stands in uprightness;
In the churches I will bless You, O Lord.

Psalm 26 (27)

Of David; before he was anointed.

The Lord is my light and my savior; whom shall I fear?
The Lord is the defender of my life; whom shall I dread?
When the wicked drew near against me to eat up my flesh,
those who afflict me and are my enemies, they weakened and fell.
Though an army should array itself against me, my heart shall not be afraid;
Though war should rise up against me, in this I shall hope.
One thing I ask from the Lord; this I will seek,
That I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life,
And behold the delights of the Lord,
And visit His temple.
For He hid me in His tabernacle in the day of my troubles;
He sheltered me in the secret place of His tabernacle;
He set me high upon a rock.
And now, behold, He has lifted up my head above my enemies;
I went around and offered in His tabernacle a sacrifice of joy;
I will sing to the Lord, and praise Him with the harp.

2 O Lord, hear my voice, wherein I cry;
Have mercy on me and hear me.

3 My heart speaks to You; my face seeks You;
Your face, O Lord, I will seek.

2 Do not turn away Your face from me;
Do not turn away from Your servant in wrath;
Be my helper; do not utterly cast me away,
Nor forsake me, O God my savior.

3 For my father and my mother forsook me,
But the Lord laid hold of me.

2 Instruct me, O Lord, in the way of Your law;
Set me on a straight path because of my enemies.

3 Do not deliver me to the souls of those who afflict me,
For unjust witnesses rise up against me;
And injustice lies to itself.

2 I believe I shall see the Lord's goodness in the land of the living.

2 Wait on the Lord;
Be courageous, and strengthen your heart,
And wait on the Lord.

Psalm 27 (28)

1 Of David.†ω

To You, O Lord, I cry;
O my God, may You not pass over me in silence;
May You never be silent to me,
Else I would become like those who go down into the pit.

2 Hear the voice of my supplication when I pray to You
And when I lift up my hands toward Your holy temple.

2 May You not associate my soul with sinners,
Nor destroy me with the workers of injustice,
Who speak peace with their neighbor,
But evil is in their hearts.

4 Give them according to their works,
According to the wickedness of their pursuits;
Give them according to the works of their hands;
Return to them their due reward.

5 Because they do not understand the works of the Lord,
Nor the deeds of His hands,
You will destroy them, and never rebuild them.

6 Blessed is the Lord,
Because He heard the voice of my supplication.

7 The Lord is my helper and my champion;
In Him my heart hoped, and I was helped,
And my flesh revived;
And I will give thanks to Him willingly.

8 The Lord is the strength of His people,
And the protector of the salvation of His anointed.

9 Save Your people, and bless Your inheritance;
And shepherd them, and raise them up forever.

Psalm 28 (29)

1 A psalm by David; the final day of the Feast of Tabernacles.†ω

Bring to the Lord, O you sons of God,
Bring to the Lord the sons of rams;
Bring to the Lord glory and honor.

2 Bring to the Lord the glory due His name;
Worship the Lord in His holy court.

3 The voice of the Lord is upon the waters;
The God of glory thundered;
The Lord is upon the many waters.

4 The voice of the Lord is strong;
The voice of the Lord is full of majesty.

5 The voice of the Lord shatters cedars,
And the Lord shall grind to powder the cedars of Lebanon;

6 And He shall grind them fine like the young bull, and like Lebanon,
But His beloved shall be like a son of unicorns.

7 The voice of the Lord cuts through fiery flames;
The voice of the Lord shakes the desert,
And the Lord will shake the desert of Kadesh.
The voice of the Lord causes deer to calve,
And uncovers the thickets;
And in His temple, everyone speaks of His glory.
The Lord shall dwell in the deluge,
And the Lord shall sit as King forever.
The Lord will give strength to His people;
The Lord will bless His people with peace.

Psalm 29 (30)

For the End; the psalm of an ode at the consecration of the house; by David.

I will exalt You, O Lord, for You lifted me up,
And did not let my enemies rejoice over me.
O Lord my God, I cry to You, and You will heal me.
O Lord, You brought my soul out of Hades;
You saved me from those who go down to the pit.
Sing praises to the Lord, you saints of His,
And give thanks at the remembrance of His holiness;
For there is wrath in His anger,
But life in His will;
Weeping will lodge at evening,
But great joy in the morning.
As for me, I said in my prosperity,
“"I shall not be shaken forever.”
O Lord, in Your will, grant beauty and power;
You turned away Your face, and I was troubled.
I shall cry to You, O Lord,
And to God I shall make supplication.
What profit is there in my blood,
When I go down into decay?
Will the dust confess You?
Or will it declare Your truth?
The Lord heard, and had mercy on me;
The Lord became my helper.

You turned my lamentation into dancing for me;
You tore up my sackcloth and clothed me with gladness,
That my glory may sing praise to You,
And not be pierced with sadness;
O Lord my God, I shall give thanks to You forever.

Psalm 30 (31)

For the End; a psalm by David; of ecstasy.

In You, O Lord, I hope; may I not be ashamed forever;
In Your righteousness deliver and rescue me.

Incline Your ear to me;
Rescue me speedily;
Be to me a God who protects me,
And a house of refuge to save me.

For You are my strength and my refuge,
And for Your name's sake You will guide and sustain me;

For You will bring me out from the snare they hid for me;
For You are my protector.

Into Your hands I shall entrust my spirit;
You redeemed me, O Lord God of truth.

You hate those who maintain their empty vanities,
But I hope in the Lord.

I will greatly rejoice and be glad because of Your mercy,
For You beheld my humiliation;
You saved my soul from distress,

And did not shut me up into the hands of the enemy;
You set my feet in a wide place.

Have mercy on me, O Lord, for I am afflicted;
My eye is troubled with anger;
So are my soul and my stomach.

For my life is wasted with grief
And my years with sighing;
My strength is weakened with poverty,
And my bones are troubled.

I became a reproach among all my enemies,

And especially to all my neighbors,

And a fear to all my acquaintances;

Those who saw me outside fled from me.

I am forgotten like one whose heart is lifeless;

I was made like a vessel that is utterly broken.

For I heard the blame of many who dwell round about

When they were gathered together against me,

When they plotted to take my life.

But as for me, I hope in You, O Lord;

I said, “You are my God.”

My times are in Your hands;

Deliver me from the hand of my enemies,

And from those who persecute me.

Make Your face shine upon Your servant;

Save me in Your mercy.

O Lord, do not let me be ashamed, because I call upon You;

Let the ungodly be ashamed,

And lead them down into Hades.

Let deceitful lips become speechless

When they speak lawlessness against the righteous

With arrogance and contempt.

How great, O Lord, is the abundance of Your goodness

You hide for those who fear You,

Which You will work for those who hope in You

In the sight of the sons of men.

You shall hide them in the secret of Your presence from the disturbance of men;

You will shelter them in Your tabernacle from the contradiction of tongues.

Blessed is the Lord,

For He magnified His mercy in a fortified city.

But I said in my ecstacy,

“Indeed, I am cast away from the countenance of Your eyes.”

Therefore You heard the voice of my supplication

When I cried to You.
24 Love the Lord, all you His saints,
For the Lord seeks out truth,
And He repays those who act with great arrogance.
25 Be courageous, and let your heart be strengthened,
All who hope in the Lord.

Psalm 31 (32)

By David; concerning understanding.†

Blessed are those whose transgressions are forgiven,
And whose sins are covered.

Blessed is the man whose sin the Lord does not take into account,
And in whose mouth there is no deceit.

Because I kept silent, my bones grew old
From my groaning all the day long;

For day and night Your hand was heavy upon me;
I became miserable when the thorn pierced me. (Pause)

I made known my sin,
And I did not hide my transgression;
I said, “I will confess my transgression to the Lord,”
And You forgave the ungodliness of my sin. (Pause)

For this cause, everyone who is holy will pray to Him in a well-fitted time;
Surely they will not draw near to Him in a flood of many waters.

You are my refuge from the oppression of those who surround me;
O my exceeding joy, redeem me from those who encircle me. (Pause)

“I will give you understanding, and I will teach you in the way you should walk;
I will fix My eyes on you.

Do not be like the horse and the mule, which have no understanding;
You squeeze their jaws with bit and bridle,
Lest they come near you.”

Many are the scourges of the sinner,
But he who hopes in the Lord, mercy shall encircle him.

Be glad in the Lord and rejoice greatly, O righteous ones,
And boast, all you upright in heart.

Psalm 32 (33)
Rejoice greatly in the Lord, O righteous ones;
Praise is fitting for the upright.

Give thanks to the Lord on the lyre;
Sing praises to Him on a ten-stringed instrument.

Sing to Him a new song;
Sing praises beautifully with a shout.

For the word of the Lord is right,
And all His works are done in faithfulness.

He loves mercy and judgment;
The earth is full of the Lord's mercy.

By the word of the Lord the heavens were established,
And all the host of them by the breath of His mouth,
Who gathers the waters of the sea together as in a wineskin,
Who put the abysses in storehouses.

Let all the earth fear the Lord,
And let all the world's inhabitants be shaken by Him;
For He spoke, and they were made;
He commanded, and they were created.

The Lord scatters abroad the counsels of the nations,
And He sets aside the reasoning of peoples;
And He rejects the counsels of rulers.

The counsel of the Lord abides forever,
The thoughts of His heart from generation to generation.

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord,
The people He chose as an inheritance for Himself.

The Lord looked attentively from heaven;
He saw all the sons of men.

From His prepared dwelling-place,
He looked upon all who dwell on the earth,
He who alone fashioned their hearts,
He who understands all their works.

A king is not saved by his large army,
And a giant shall not be saved by his immense strength;
A horse is a false hope for salvation,
And it shall not be saved by its enormous power.
Behold, the eyes of the Lord are on those who fear Him,
On those who hope in His mercy,
To deliver their souls from death
And to keep them alive in famine.
Our soul shall wait for the Lord;
He is our helper and protector;
For our heart shall be glad in Him,
And we hope in His holy name.
Let Your mercy, O Lord, be upon us,
As we hope in You.

Psalm 33 (34)

1 By David; when he changed his countenance before Abimelech, who let him go, and he departed.

I will bless the Lord at all times; His praise shall continually be in my mouth.

2 My soul shall be praised in the Lord;
Let the gentle hear, and be glad.

3 Oh, magnify the Lord with me,
And let us exalt His name together.

4 I sought the Lord, and He heard me;
And He delivered me from all my sojourning.

5 Come to Him, and be enlightened,
And your face shall never be ashamed.

6 This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him,
And saved him from all his afflictions.

7 The Angel of the Lord shall encamp around those who fear Him,
And He will deliver them.

8 Oh, taste and see that the Lord is good;
Blessed is the man who hopes in Him.

9 Fear the Lord, you His saints,
For there is no want for those who fear Him.

10 Rich men turned poor and went hungry;
But those who seek the Lord shall not lack any good thing. (Pause)

Come, you children, listen to me;
I will teach you the fear of the Lord.

Who is the man who desires life,
Who loves to see good days?

Keep your tongue from evil,
And your lips from speaking deceit.

Shun evil and do good;
Seek peace and pursue it.

The eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous,
And His ears are open to their supplications.

The Lord's face is against those who do evil,
So as to destroy their remembrance from the earth.

The righteous cried, and the Lord heard them;
And He delivered them from all their afflictions.

The Lord is near those who are brokenhearted,
And He will save the humble in spirit.

Many are the afflictions of the righteous,
But He will deliver them from them all.

The Lord shall guard all their bones;
Not one of them shall be broken.

The death of sinners is evil,
And those who hate the righteous shall go wrong.

The Lord will redeem the souls of His servants,
And all who hope in Him shall not go wrong.

Psalm 34 (35)

By David.

O Lord, judge those who injure me; Make war on those who make war on me.

Take hold of weapon and shield, and rise up to my help.

Bring forth the sword, and confine those in opposition who pursue me;
Say to my soul, “I am your salvation.”

Let those who seek my soul be dishonored and shamed;
Let those who plot evils against me be turned backward and disappointed.
5 Let them be like dust in the wind's face,
And let the Angel of the Lord afflict them.
6 Let their way be dark and slippery,
And let the Angel of the Lord pursue them.
7 For without cause they hid the destruction of their trap for me;
In vain they reproached my soul.
8 Let a trap they do not know catch them,
And they themselves shall fall into the same trap.
9 But my soul shall greatly rejoice in the Lord;
My soul shall delight in His salvation.
10 All my bones shall say, "O Lord, who is like You?
You who deliver a poor man from hands stronger than he,
And a poor and needy man from those who plunder him."
11 Unjust witnesses rose up against me,
Asking me things I knew nothing about;
12 They repaid me evil for good,
And bereavement for my soul.
13 But I put on sackcloth when they troubled me,
And I humbled my soul with fasting;
And my prayer will return into my bosom.
14 Like a neighbor, like our brother, so they were well-pleasing;
Like one who laments and is of a sad countenance, so I humbled myself.
15 But they were delighted, and were gathered together against me;
Whips were gathered together against me, but I did not know it;
They were torn asunder, yet they were not pierced to the heart.
16 They tempted me; they mocked and sneered at me;
They gnashed their teeth at me.
17 O Lord, when will You look on this?
Restore my soul from their malice,
My only-begotten from the lions.
18 I will give thanks to You, O Lord, in the great church;
I will praise You among a mighty people.
19 Let them not rejoice over me, those who are unjustly my enemies,
Those who hate me without a cause, and wink with their eyes.
20 For they spoke peace to me,
But in their wrath they schemed deceit,
² And opened wide their mouth at me,
Saying, “Well done! Well done! Our eyes saw it!”
² You saw this, O Lord; do not keep silence;
O Lord, do not be far from me.
² Arise, O Lord, attend to my judgment,
My God and my Lord, to my cause.
² Judge me according to Your righteousness, O Lord my God,
And let them not rejoice against me;
² Let them not say in their hearts, “Well done! Well done, our soul!”
Let them not say, “We swallowed him up!”
² May those who rejoice at my troubles be altogether dishonored and shamed;
Let those who boast against me be clothed with shame and humiliation.
² Let those who desire my righteousness greatly rejoice, and be glad,
And let them say continually, “The Lord be magnified,”
Those who desire His servant’s peace.
² And my tongue shall meditate on Your righteousness,
And on Your praise all the day long.

Psalm 35 (36)

1 For the End; by David, the servant of the Lord.

The transgressor, so as to sin, says within himself,

“There is no fear of God before his eyes”;
³ For he acts deceitfully before Him,
Lest He discover his lawlessness and hate it.
⁴ The words of his mouth are lawlessness and deceit;
He is unwilling to understand how to do good;
⁵ He devises lawlessness on his bed;
He sets himself in every way not good,
And he does not abhor evil.
⁶ O Lord, Your mercy is in heaven,
And Your truth reaches to the clouds;
⁷ Your righteousness is like the mountains of God;
Your judgments are a great deep;
Men and cattle You will save, O Lord.

How You multiply Your mercy, O God!
The sons of men shall hope under the shelter of Your wings.

They shall be intoxicated with the fatness of Your house,

And You will give them drink from the abundant water of Your delight.

For with You is the fountain of life;

In Your light we shall see light.

Extend Your mercy to those who know You,

And Your righteousness to the upright in heart.

Let not the foot of arrogance come against me,

And may the hand of sinners not shake me.

Those who work lawlessness fall there;

They are cast out, and unable to stand.

Psalm 36 (37)

Of David.

Do not be envious of those who do evil,

Nor be jealous of those who work lawlessness;

For like grass they shall be dried up quickly,

And like green vegetables they shall swiftly wither.

Hope in the Lord, and work goodness;

Dwell in the land, and you shall be nurtured by its riches.

Delight in the Lord,

And He will give you the requests of your heart.

Reveal your way to the Lord,

And hope in Him; and He will do it.

He shall bring forth your righteousness as light,

And your judgment as the noonday sun.

Submit to the Lord, and supplicate Him;

Do not be envious of him who prospers in his way,

Nor of him who transgresses the law.

Cease from wrath and forsake anger;

Do not be envious so as to do evil;

Because evildoers will be destroyed,
But those who wait on the Lord, these shall inherit the earth.

For in a little while the sinner shall no longer be present,
And you will look for his place, but not find it.

But the gentle shall inherit the earth,
And they will delight in the fullness of peace.

The sinner will closely observe the just man
And gnash at him with his teeth.

But the Lord shall laugh at him,
Because He foresees his day will come.

The sinners draw the sword
And stretch their bow,
To cast down the poor and needy,
To slay the upright in heart.

May their sword enter their heart,
And may their bows be shattered.

Better the little with the just man
Than the great riches of sinners;

For the arms of sinners shall be shattered,
But the Lord supports the righteous.

The Lord knows the ways of the blameless,
And their inheritance shall be forever.

They shall not be ashamed in an evil time,
And in days of famine they shall be filled.

But the sinners shall perish,
And the enemies of the Lord altogether,
When they glorify and exalt themselves;
Like smoke they shall vanish away.

The sinner borrows, but will not repay;
However, the righteous man is compassionate, and gives;

For those who bless Him shall inherit the earth,
But those who curse Him shall be utterly destroyed.

The steps of a man are guided aright by the Lord,
And he shall desire His way.

When he falls, he shall not be broken to pieces,
For the Lord supports him with His hand.
I was young, but indeed I grew old;
Yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken,
Nor his seed begging bread.

Day in and out, he is merciful and lends,
And his seed shall be a blessing.

Turn away from evil, and do good,
And dwell unto ages of ages;

For the Lord loves judgment,
And He will not abandon His holy ones;
They shall be kept forever.

But the lawless shall be banished,
And the seed of the ungodly shall be utterly destroyed.

The righteous shall inherit the earth
And dwell upon it unto ages of ages.

The mouth of the righteous shall meditate on wisdom,
And his tongue shall speak of judgment;

The law of God is in his heart,
And his steps shall not be tripped up.

The sinner observes the righteous man
And seeks to put him to death;

But the Lord will not leave him in his hands,
Nor condemn him, when He judges him.

Wait on the Lord, and keep His way,
And He shall exalt you to inherit the earth;
You shall see the sinners when they are utterly destroyed.

I saw the ungodly greatly exalted
And lifting himself up like the cedars of Lebanon;

And I passed by, and behold, he was not;
And I sought for him,
But his place was not found.

Keep innocence, and behold uprightness,
For this is the remnant for the peaceful man.

But transgressors shall be utterly destroyed together;
The remnant of the ungodly shall be utterly destroyed.

Now the salvation of the righteous is from the Lord,
And He is their protector in time of affliction;
And the Lord shall help them, and deliver them;
And He shall deliver them from sinners,
And save them, because they hope in Him.

Psalm 37 (38)

1 A psalm by David; for remembrance concerning the Sabbath.

O Lord, do not rebuke me in Your wrath, Nor chasten me in Your anger.

For Your arrows are fixed in me,
And Your hand rests on me;

There is no healing in my flesh because of Your wrath;
There is no peace in my bones because of my sins.

For my transgressions rise up over my head;
Like a heavy burden they are heavy on me.

My wounds grow foul and fester
Because of my folly.

I suffer misery, and I am utterly bowed down;
I go all the day long with a sad face.

For my loins are filled with mockeries,
And there is no healing in my flesh.

I am afflicted and greatly humbled;
I roar because of the groaning of my heart.

O Lord, all my desire is before You,
And my groaning is not hidden from You.

My heart is troubled; my strength fails me,
And the light of my eyes, even this is not with me.

My friends and neighbors draw near and stand against me,
And my near of kin stand far off;

And those who seek my soul use violence,
And those who seek evil for me speak folly;
And they meditate on deceit all the day long.

But I like a deaf man do not hear,
And I am like a mute who does not open his mouth.

I am like a man who does not hear,
And who has no reproofs in his mouth.

For in You, O Lord, I hope;

You will hear, O Lord my God.

For I said, “Let not my enemies rejoice over me,

For when my foot was shaken, they boasted against me.”

For I am ready for wounds,

And my pain is continually with me.

For I will declare my transgression,

And I will be anxious about my sin.

But my enemies live, and are become stronger than I;

And those who hate me unjustly are multiplied;

Those who repaid me evil for good

Slandered me, because I pursue righteousness;

And they threw away my love as though it were a stinking corpse.

Do not forsake me, O Lord;

O my God, do not depart from me;

Give heed to help me,

O Lord of my salvation.

Psalm 38 (39)

1 For the End, for Jeduthun; an ode by David.†

I said, “I will guard my ways, that I may not sin with my tongue;

I set a guard on my mouth

When the sinner stood against me.”

I was deadened and humbled; and I kept silent, even from good;

And my grief was stirred anew.

My heart was hot within me,

And in my meditation, fire will be kindled.

I spoke with my tongue,

“O Lord, make me to know my end,

And what is the measure of my days,

So as to know what I lack.

Behold, You made my days as a handbreadth,

And my existence is as nothing before You;
But all things are vanity, and every man living. (Pause)

2 Nevertheless man walks about like a phantom; Surely in vain they stir themselves up; He stores up treasure, but does not know for whom he will gather it.

3 And now what is my patience? Is it not the Lord? And my support is from You.

4 Deliver me from all my transgressions; You made me a reproach to the undiscerning. I was dumb and opened not my mouth; For You are He who made me.

5 Take away Your scourges from me; Because of the strength of Your hand I fainted. With rebukes You chasten a man for his transgression, And You cause his soul to waste away like a spider web; But every man stirs himself up in vain. (Pause) "Hear my prayer, O Lord, And give ear to my supplication; Do not be silent at my tears, For I am a sojourner before You, And a stranger, as were all my fathers. Do not forsake me, that I may revive Before I depart and am no longer here."

Psalm 39 (40)

1 For the End; a psalm by David.

I waited patiently for the Lord, and He heeded me; And He heard my supplication, 2 And brought me up out of a miserable pit And from miry clay; And He established my feet on a rock And kept straight my steps. 4 He put a new song in my mouth, A hymn to our God;
Many will see and be afraid,
And shall hope in the Lord.

5 Blessed is the man whose hope is the name of the Lord,
And who did not look into vanities and false frenzies.

6 Many, O Lord my God, are the wonders You performed,
And in Your thoughts there is no one who shall be likened to You;
I declared and said, “They are multiplied beyond number.

7 Sacrifice and offering You did not will;
But a body You prepared for me;
A whole burnt offering and a sin offering You did not require.”

8 Then I said, “Behold, I come
(it is written of me in the volume of the book);

2 I willed to do Your will, O my God,
And Your law in the midst of my heart.”

9 I proclaimed righteousness in the great church;
Behold, I shall not restrain my lips,
O Lord, You know.

11 I did not hide Your righteousness in my heart;
I declared Your truth and Your salvation;
I did not hide Your mercy and Your truth from the great congregation.

12 O Lord, do not remove Your compassion from me;
May Your mercy and Your truth take hold of me continually.

13 For evils without number surrounded me;
My transgressions overpowered me, and I could not see;
They multiplied more than the hairs of my head,
And my heart failed me.

14 Be pleased, O Lord, to deliver me;
O Lord, give heed to help me.

15 May those who seek my soul to make away with it
Be disgraced and confounded together;
May those who wish evil for me be turned back and disgraced;

16 May those who say to me, “Well done! Well done!”
Receive their shame immediately.

17 May all who seek You, O Lord,
Rejoice exceedingly, and be glad in You;
And may those who love Your salvation
Say continually, “The Lord be magnified.”

But I am poor and needy; the Lord will take care of me.
You are my helper and my protector; O my God, do not delay.

Psalm 40 (41)

1 For the End; a psalm by David.

Blessed is he who understands the poor and needy;
The Lord will deliver him in an evil day.

2 May the Lord keep him, and give him life,
And make him blessed on the earth,
And not deliver him into the hands of his enemies.

3 May the Lord help him on his bed of pain;
You turned his bed from sickness to wholeness.

4 O Lord, I said, “Have mercy on me;
Heal my soul, for I have sinned against You.”

5 My enemies speak evil things against me,
“When will he die, and his name perish?”

6 And if he comes to see us, he speaks in vain;
His heart gathered lawlessness to itself;
He went forth and spoke the same.

7 All my enemies whisper together against me;
Against me they devise evils for me;

8 They testify a lawless word against me,
“Since he is asleep, will he rise up again?”

9 For even the man of my peace, in whom I hoped,
He who ate my bread, dealt deceptively with me;

10 But You, O Lord, have mercy on me,
And raise me up; and I will repay them.

11 By this I know You are pleased with me,
Because my enemy did not rejoice over me.

12 And because of my innocence, You supported me,
And established me before You forever.

13 Blessed is the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting.
Amen! Amen!

Psalm 41 (42)

For the End; for understanding; for the sons of Korah.†ω

As the deer longs for the springs of waters,
So my soul longs for You, O God.

My soul thirsts for the living God;
When shall I come and appear before the face of God?

My tears were my bread day and night,
When they said to me each day, “Where is your God?”

I remembered these things, and poured out my soul within me;
For I shall enter the place of the wondrous tabernacle, even the house of God,
To celebrate a festival with a voice of great joy and praise.

Why are you so sad, O my soul? And why do you trouble me?
Hope in God, for I will give thanks to Him;
My God is the salvation of my countenance.

My soul within me was troubled;
Therefore I will remember You
From the land of the Jordan and Hermon,
From the small mountain.

Deep calls to deep at the sound of Your waterfalls;
All Your waves and billows went over me.

By day the Lord shall command His mercy,
And by night His ode will be with me,
A prayer to the God of my life.

I will say to God, “You are my protector. Why have You forgotten me?
Why do I go about with a sad face when my enemies afflict me?”

Those who afflict me revile me when they break my bones,
When they speak to me each day, saying, “Where is your God?”

Why are you so sad, O my soul? And why do you trouble me?
Hope in God, for I will give thanks to Him.
My God is the salvation of my countenance.

Psalm 42 (43)
A Psalm by David.

Judge me, O God, and pass judgment in my cause against an unholy nation;
Deliver me from the unjust and deceitful man.

For You, O God, are my strength;
Why do You cast me off?
Why do I go about with a sad face when my enemy afflicts me?

Send out Your light and Your truth;
They guided me and led me to Your holy mountain
And to Your tabernacles.

And I will come to the altar of God,
To the God who makes glad my youth;
I will give thanks to You with the lyre, O God, my God.

Why are you sad, O my soul? And why do you trouble me?
Hope in God, for I will give thanks to Him;
My God is the salvation of my countenance.

Psalm 43 (44)

For the End; a psalm for the sons of Korah; for understanding.

God, we heard with our ears; Our fathers proclaimed it to us,
The work You performed in their days, in days of old.

Your hand utterly destroyed the nations, and You planted them;
You afflicted and cast out peoples.

For they did not inherit the land with their sword,
And their arm did not save them;
But it was Your right hand and Your arm,
And the light of Your countenance,
Because You took pleasure in them.

You Yourself are my King and God,
Who commands salvation for Jacob;
In You we shall push back our enemies,
And in Your name we shall scorn those who rise up against us.

For I will not hope in my bow,
And my sword will not save me;
For You saved us from those who afflict us,
And You disgraced those who hate us.
We shall praise God all day long,
And we shall give thanks to Your name forever. (Pause)
But now You rejected and disgraced us,
And You will not go out with our armies;
You turned us back from our enemies,
And those who hate us took spoil for themselves.
You gave us as sheep to be eaten,
And You scattered us among the nations.
You bound Your people without honor,
And there was no abundance given to ransom them.
You made us a reproach to our neighbors
And a scorn and derision to those around us;
You made us a byword among the nations
And a shaking of the head among the peoples.
All day long my disgrace is before me,
And the shame of my face covers me,
Because of the voice of him who reviles and chatters,
Because of the face of the enemy and persecutor.
All these things came upon us, but we have not forgotten You,
And we did not act unjustly with Your covenant;
Our heart did not draw back,
Yet you turned our steps from Your way.
You humbled us in a place of affliction,
And the shadow of death covered us.
If we forget the name of our God,
And spread out our hands to a foreign god,
Would not God search this out?
For He knows the secrets of the heart.
For Your sake we are put to death all day long,
We are counted as sheep for the slaughter.
Awake; why do You sleep, O Lord?
Arise; and do not reject us to the end.
Why do You turn away Your face,
And forget our poverty and our affliction?

For our soul was humbled to the dust,
And our belly was joined to the ground.

Arise, O Lord; help us,
And redeem us for Your name's sake.

Psalm 44 (45)

1 For the End, concerning things that shall be changed; to the sons of Korah for understanding; an ode concerning the Beloved One.

My heart overflowed with a good word;
I tell my works to the King;
My tongue is the pen of a swift-writing scribe.

2 You are more beautiful than the sons of men;
Grace was poured out on Your lips;
Therefore God blessed You forever.

3 Gird Your sword upon Your thigh, O Mighty One,
In Your splendor and Your beauty.

4 And stretch Your bow, and grant prosperity, and reign
Because of truth, gentleness, and righteousness,
And Your right hand shall guide You wondrously.

5 Your arrows are sharp, O Mighty One (The peoples shall fall under You),
In the heart of the King's enemies.

6 Your throne, O God, is forever and ever;
Your royal scepter is a scepter of uprightness.

7 You loved righteousness and hated lawlessness;
Therefore God, Your God, anointed You
With the oil of gladness more than Your companions.

8 Myrrh and stacte and cassia pour forth from Your garments,
From the ivory palaces from which they gladdened You.

9 There are daughters of kings in Your honor;
The queen stood at Your right hand in apparel interwoven with gold,
And adorned and embroidered with various colors.

10 Listen, O daughter, behold and incline your ear,
And forget your people and your father's house;
For the King desired your beauty,
For He is your Lord.
And the daughters of Tyre shall worship Him with gifts;
The rich among the people shall entreat your favor.
All her glory as the King's daughter is within,
Adorned and embroidered with golden tassels.
The virgins behind her shall be brought to the King;
Her neighbors shall be brought to You;
They shall be brought with gladness and rejoicing;
They shall be led into the temple of the King.
In place of your fathers, sons shall be born to you;
You shall make them rulers over all the earth.
They shall remember your name from generation to generation;
Therefore, peoples shall give thanks to you
Forever and unto ages of ages.

Psalm 45 (46)

1 For the End; for the sons of Korah; a psalm concerning hidden things.

God is our refuge and power;
A help in afflictions that severely befall us.
Therefore we will not fear when the earth is troubled,
And when the mountains are removed into the hearts of the seas.
Their waters roared and were troubled;
The mountains were troubled by His might. (Pause)
The torrents of the river gladden the city of God;
The Most High sanctified His tabernacle.
God is in her midst; she shall not be shaken;
God shall help her early in the morning.
The nations were troubled; kingdoms fell;
He uttered His voice; the earth shook.
The Lord of hosts is with us;
The God of Jacob is our protector. (Pause)
Come, behold the works of the Lord,
The wonders He wrought on the earth.
Psalm 46 (47)

For the End; a psalm for the sons of Korah. *

Oh, clap your hands, all you nations;
Shout to God with the voice of rejoicing;
For the Lord Most High is fearsome,
A great King over all the earth.
He subdued the peoples under us
And the nations under our feet.
He chose us for His inheritance,
Jacob's beauty, which He loved. (Pause)
God ascended with a shout,
The Lord with the sound of the trumpet.
Sing praises to God; sing praises;
Sing praises to our King; sing praises;
For God is King of all the earth;
Sing praises with understanding.
God reigns over the nations;
God sits on His holy throne.
The rulers of the people gather together
With the God of Abraham,
For God's mighty ones of the earth are greatly exalted.

Psalm 47 (48)

A psalm of an ode for the sons of Korah; for the second day of the week. *

Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised
In the city of our God, in His holy mountain,
Well-rooted in joy throughout the earth,
The mountains of Zion, the sides of the north,
The city of the great King;
God is known in her palaces
When He helps her.
For behold, the kings assembled;
They came together;
They saw her; thus they marveled;
They were troubled; they were shaken;
Trembling laid hold of them;
There were labor pains, like a woman giving birth.
You shall wreck the ships of Tarshish with a violent wind.
As we heard, so we saw
In the city of the Lord of hosts,
In the city of our God;
God established her forever. (Pause)
We pondered Your mercy, O God,
In the midst of Your temple.
According to Your name, O God,
So is Your praise to the ends of the earth;
Your right hand is full of righteousness.
Let Mount Zion be glad;
Let the daughters of Judah greatly rejoice
Because of Your judgments, O Lord.
Encircle Zion and embrace her;
Describe her towers in detail;
Set your hearts on her power
And observe her palaces,
That you may describe them to another generation.
For He is God, our God,
Forever and unto ages of ages;
He will shepherd us unto the ages.
Hear this, all you nations;
Give ear, all you inhabitants of the world,
Both earthborn and the sons of men,
Rich and poor together.
My mouth shall speak wisdom,
And the meditation of my heart, understanding;
I will incline my ear to a parable;
I will open my riddle on the harp.
What should I fear in an evil day?
The lawlessness at my heel surrounds me.
Those who trusted in their power
And those who boast in the abundance of their wealth,
A brother does not redeem; shall a man redeem?
He will not give his ransom to God
And the price of his soul's redemption.
And he rested forever, and shall live to the end,
Because he will not see decay when he sees wise men die.
Foolish and senseless men die together,
And they leave their wealth to strangers;
And their graves will be their homes continually,
Their dwelling places from generation to generation.
They called their lands after their own names.
A man being in honor did not understand;
He was compared to the senseless cattle, and became like them.
Their road is a snare for them,
Yet afterwards, men will be well pleased with their sayings.
Like sheep, they are put in Hades; death will shepherd them;
And the upright shall gain dominion over them in the morning;
And their help shall be made old in Hades away from their glory.
Yet God will redeem my soul
From the hand of Hades when He shall receive me. (Pause)
Do not be afraid when a man becomes rich,
And when the glory of his house is increased;
For when he dies, he shall carry nothing away;
Neither will his glory descend with him;
For his soul shall be blessed in his lifetime;
He will acknowledge You when You do him good.
He shall enter the generations of his fathers;
He shall not see light forever.
A man being in honor did not understand;
He was compared to the senseless cattle, and became like them.

Psalm 49 (50)

A psalm for Asaph.†

The God of gods, the Lord, spoke, and summoned the earth
From the sun's rising to its very setting.
From Zion in beauty's splendor,
God will come openly;
He is our God, and He shall not be silent;
A fire shall be kindled before Him,
And there shall be a mighty storm round about Him.
He shall summon heaven above
And the earth to judge His people;
Gather His holy ones to Him,
Who establish His covenant upon sacrifices;
And the heavens declare His righteousness,
For God is Judge. (Pause)
Hear, O my people, and I will speak to you,
O Israel, and I will testify against you;
I am God, your God.
I will not find fault with your sacrifices,
Because your whole burnt offerings are continually before Me.
I will not accept a young bull from your house,
Nor he-goats from your flocks.
For all the wild animals of the forest are Mine,
The cattle and the oxen in the hills.
I know all the birds of heaven,
And the ripe fruit of the field is with Me.
If I were hungry, I would not tell you;
For the world is Mine, and all its fullness.
Will I eat the flesh of bulls,
Or drink the blood of goats?
Offer to God a sacrifice of praise,
And pay your vows to the Most High.
Call upon Me in the day of affliction,
And I will deliver you; and you shall glorify Me. (Pause)
To the sinner God says,
"Why do you declare My ordinances,
And take up My covenant in your mouth?
You hate My instruction,
And cast My words behind you.
If you see a thief, you run with him,
And you keep company with adulterers.
Your mouth is filled with evil,
And your tongue weaves deceits.
You sit and speak against your brother,
And place a stumbling block before your mother's son.
You do these things, and I keep silent;
You think I am lawless like you;
But I shall rebuke you, and contradict you to your face.
Understand these things, you who forget God,
Lest He snatch you away, and there be none to deliver;
A sacrifice of praise shall glorify Me,
And there is the way whereby I will show him the salvation of God."

Psalm 50 (51)

1For the End; a psalm by David;

2when Nathan the prophet came to him, at the time he went in to Bathsheba.

Have mercy on me, O God, according to Your great mercy;
And according to the abundance of Your compassion, blot out my transgression.
Wash me thoroughly from my lawlessness
And cleanse me from my sin.

For I know my lawlessness,
And my sin is always before me.

Against You only have I sinned
And done evil in Your sight;
That You may be justified in Your words,
And overcome when You are judged.

For behold, I was conceived in transgressions,
And in sins my mother bore me.

Behold, You love truth;
You showed me the unknown and secret things of Your wisdom.

You shall sprinkle me with hyssop, and I will be cleansed;
You shall wash me, and I will be made whiter than snow.

You shall make me hear joy and gladness;
My bones that were humbled shall greatly rejoice.

Turn Your face from my sins,
And blot out all my transgressions.

Create in me a clean heart, O God,
And renew a right spirit within me.

Do not cast me away from Your presence,
And do not take Your Holy Spirit from me.

Restore to me the joy of Your salvation,
And uphold me with Your guiding Spirit.

I will teach transgressors Your ways,
And the ungodly shall turn back to You.

Deliver me from bloodguiltiness, O God, the God of my salvation,
And my tongue shall greatly rejoice in Your righteousness.

O Lord, You shall open my lips,
And my mouth will declare Your praise.

For if You desired sacrifice, I would give it;
You will not be pleased with whole burnt offerings.

A sacrifice to God is a broken spirit,
A broken and humbled heart God will not despise.

Do good, O Lord, in Your good pleasure to Zion,
And let the walls of Jerusalem be built;
Then You will be pleased with a sacrifice of righteousness,
With offerings and whole burnt offerings;
Then shall they offer young bulls on Your altar.

Psalm 51 (52)

For the End; concerning understanding; by David;†

When Doeg the Edomite came and reported to Saul and said, “David went to the house of Abimelech.”

Why do you boast in evil, O mighty man,
And in lawlessness all the day long?
Your tongue devises wrongdoing;
You work deceit like a sharpened razor.
You love evil rather than good,
Wickedness rather than speaking righteousness.
You love all the words of destruction;
You love a deceitful tongue.
Therefore, God shall destroy you completely;
He shall pluck you up and remove you from your dwelling,
And uproot you from the land of the living. (Pause)
The righteous also shall see and fear,
And shall laugh at him, saying,
“Behold, this man did not make God his helper,
But hoped in the abundance of his riches;
And he was made powerful in his vanity.”
But I am like a fruitful olive tree in the house of God;
I hope in God's mercy
Forever and unto ages of ages.
I will give thanks to You forever for what You did,
And I will wait on Your name;
For it is good in the sight of Your holy ones.

Psalm 52 (53)

For the End; for Mahaleth; concerning understanding; by David.†

The fool said in his heart, “There is no God.”
They are corrupt and abominable in lawlessness;
There is none who does good.

3 God looked from heaven upon the sons of men
To see if there were any who understood or sought God.

4 All turned aside; they were all together rendered useless;
There is none who does good, not even one.

5 Do all the workers of lawlessness not know?
They eat up my people as they eat bread, and do not call upon God.

6 They were in great fear where no fear was,
For God scattered the bones of men-pleasers;
They were put to shame, because God scorned them.

7 Who will bring the salvation of Israel out of Zion?
When God brings back the captivity of His people,
Jacob will greatly rejoice, and Israel will be glad.

Psalm 53 (54)

1 For the End; in hymns; concerning understanding; by David;†ω

2 when the Ziphites came and said to Saul, “Is not David hiding with us?”

Save me, O God, in Your name,
And judge me in Your power.

4 O God, hear my prayer;
Give ear to the words of my mouth.

5 For strangers rise up against me,
And the powerful seek after my soul;
They have not set God before them. (Pause)

6 For behold, God is my helper;
The Lord is the protector of my soul.

7 He will return evils to my enemies;
Utterly destroy them in Your truth.

8 I will sacrifice to You voluntarily;
I will give thanks to Your name, O Lord, for it is good.

9 You delivered me from all my afflictions,
And my eye looked upon my enemies.
Give ear to my prayer, O God,
And do not despise my supplication;

2 Attend to me, and hear me.
I am vexed in my prayer, and troubled

3 By the enemy's voice and by the sinner's affliction;
For they turned their lawlessness upon me,
And in wrath they were indignant with me.

4 My heart was troubled within me,
And the terror of death fell on me.

5 Fear and trembling came upon me,
And the darkness covered me.

6 I said, "Who will give me wings like a dove,
And I will fly away, and be at rest?

7 Behold, I fled far away,
And lodged in the wilderness." (Pause)

8 I wait for the One who saves me
From faintheartedness and storm.

9 Drown them in the sea, O Lord, and divide their tongues;
For I see lawlessness and strife in the city.

10 Day and night, it shall surround her upon her walls;
Lawlessness and trouble and wrongdoing are in her midst;

11 And usury and treachery
Have not ceased from her squares.

12 For if an enemy reviled me,
I would have endured it;
And if one hating me boasted against me,
I would have hidden from him.

13 But it was you, a man my equal,
My guide and my friend,

14 Who together with me sweetened our meals;
In God's house we walked in unity.
Let death come upon them,
And let them go down alive into Hades;
Because evils are in their dwellings, in the very midst of them.

But I cried out to God,
And the Lord heard me.

Evening and morning and midday, I shall tell;
I shall proclaim, and He will hear my voice.

He will redeem my soul in peace from those who draw near to me,
For they were with me in abundance.

God shall hear, and humble them,
He who exists before the ages. (Pause)
For there is no change in them,
And they have not feared God.

He stretched forth His hand in punishment;
They defiled His covenant.

They were scattered by the wrath of His face,
And His heart drew near;
His words were softened above oil,
And they are arrows.

Cast your care upon the Lord,
And He shall support you;
He will never allow the righteous to be moved.

But You, O God, will bring them down into the pit of decay;
Men of blood and deceit
Shall not live even half their days.
But I will hope in You, O Lord.

Psalm 55 (56)

For the End, for the people far from the holy places; by David; for a pillar inscription, when foreigners conquered him in Gath.

Have mercy on me, O Lord, for man tramples me down;
All day long he afflicts me in war.

All day my enemies trample me down,
For many are those who war against me from on high.
I will not fear by day,
But I will hope in You.

I will praise God with my words all day long;
In God I hope; I will not be afraid; what will flesh do to me?

All day long they make my words repulsive;
All their thoughts are against me for evil.

They will dwell near and hide;
They will watch my heel
As they wait for my soul.

In no way will You save them;
In wrath You will bring down peoples, O God.

I declare my life to You;
You set my tears before You, as also in Your promise.

My enemies shall be turned back
In whatever day I may call upon You;
Behold, I know You are my God.

In God I will praise His word;
In the Lord I will praise His word.

In God I hope; I will not be afraid;
What will man do to me?

In me, O God, are vows
I will render in praise to You;

For You delivered my soul from death,
And my feet from slipping;
That I may be well-pleasing before God in the light of the living.

Psalm 56 (57)

For the End; corrupt not; by David; for a pillar inscription, when he escaped from the face of Saul to the cave.†ω

Have mercy on me, O God, have mercy on me,
For my soul trusts in You;
And in the shadow of Your wings I will hope,
Until lawlessness shall pass away.

I will cry out to God most High;
My God who is my benefactor.

He sent from heaven and saved me;
He gave over to disgrace those who trample me down. (Pause)

God sent out His mercy and His truth,

And delivered my soul from the midst of young lions.

Although troubled, I fell asleep;
As for the sons of men, their teeth are a weapon and arrows,
And their tongue is a sharp dagger.

Be exalted, O God, above the heavens,
And Your glory above all the earth.

They prepared a trap for my feet,
And they bowed down my soul;
They dug a pit before my face,
But they fell into it. (Pause)

My heart is ready, O God,
My heart is ready;
I will sing, and I will sing a psalm.

Awake, my glory;
Awake, harp and lyre;
I will arise at dawn.

I will give thanks to You, O Lord, among the peoples;
I will sing to You among the Gentiles.

For Your mercy is magnified to the heavens,
And Your truth to the clouds.

Be exalted, O God, above the heavens;
And Your glory above all the earth.

Psalm 57 (58)

For the End; corrupt not; by David; for a pillar inscription.

If, then, you truly speak of righteousness,
Do you judge rightly, O you sons of men?

For in your heart you work lawlessness in the earth;
Your hands weave unrighteousness.

Sinners are alienated from the womb;
From birth they are led astray; they speak lies.

Their anger is according to the likeness of a serpent;
Like a deaf asp that stops its ears,

Which will not listen to the sound of charms,
Nor to an enchantment of a skillful charmer.

God shattered their teeth in their mouths;
The Lord broke the teeth of the lions.

They shall pass along like water running through;
He will bend His bow until they are weakened.

Like melting wax they will be destroyed;
Fire fell on them, and they never saw the sun.

Before your thorns are aware of its prickly shrub,
He will swallow you up, as if you were alive, as if in His anger.

A righteous man shall be glad when he sees the vengeance of the ungodly;
He shall wash his hands in the blood of the sinner.

A man will say, “If indeed there is fruit for the righteous man,
Then it is God who judges them on the earth.”

Psalm 58 (59)

For the End; corrupt not; by David; for a pillar inscription, when Saul sent and watched his house, that he might kill him.†

Rescue me from my enemies, O God,
And redeem me from those who rise up against me.

Deliver me from the workers of lawlessness
And save me from men of blood.

For behold, they hunt for my soul;
Mighty men set upon me.

Neither is it for my lawlessness, nor for my sin, O Lord;

I run without lawlessness, and keep a straight path;
Rise up and meet me, and see.

And You, O Lord God of hosts, the God of Israel,
Give heed, and examine all the Gentiles;
Do not be merciful to all who work lawlessness. (Pause)

They shall return at evening,
And hunger like dogs; and they shall encircle the city.

Behold, they shall speak with their mouth,
And a sword is in their lips; for they say, “Who hears?”

But You, O Lord, shall laugh at them;
You shall hold all the nations in contempt.

O my strength, I shall keep watch with You,
For You are my protector, O God.

As for my God, His mercy shall go before me;
God will show it to me among my enemies.

Do not kill them, lest they forget my people;
Scatter them by Your power,
And bring them down, O Lord my protector.

For the sin of their mouth, for the word of their lips,
Let them also be taken in their arrogance;
And from their vow of evil and lie, their end will be proclaimed

In a wrath of destruction, and let them be no more;
And they shall know God is Jacob's Lord,
And the Lord of the ends of the earth.

They shall return at evening, and hunger like dogs;
And they shall encircle the city.

They shall be scattered to and fro so as to eat,
But if they are not satisfied, they shall also grumble.

But I will sing of Your power,
And greatly rejoice in Your mercy in the morning;
For You are my protector,
And my refuge in the day of my affliction.

You are my helper; I will sing to You;
For You, O God, are my protector;
You are my mercy, O my God.

Psalm 59 (60)

1For the End; for things yet to be changed; for a pillar inscription; by David; for teaching,‡

2when he burned Mesopotamia of Syria, and Syrian Soba, and Joab returned and struck
Twelve thousand in the Valley of Salt.

O God, You drove us off and destroyed us;
You were angry, and had mercy on us.

4 You made the earth quake, and You troubled it;
Repair its ruins, for it was shaken.

5 You showed Your people difficult things;
You made us drink the wine of bewildermend.

6 You gave a sign to those who fear You,
So they may flee from the face of the bow. (Pause)

2 That Your beloved may be rescued,
Save with Your right hand, and hear me.

2 God spoke in His holy place:
I will greatly rejoice, and divide Shechem,
And I will measure out the valley of the tabernacles.

2 Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine,
And Ephraim is the strength of my head;
Judah is my king.

2 Moab is the cauldron of my hope;
Over Edom I will extend my shoe;
Foreign tribes were subjected to me.

2 Who will bring me into a fortified city?
Who will lead me as far as Edom?

2 Will not You, O God, who drove us away?
And will not You, O God, go out with our armies?

2 Give us help from affliction,
For the salvation of man is useless.

2 But in God we shall work power,
And He will utterly scorn those who afflict us.

Psalm 60 (61)

1 For the End; in hymns; by David.

H ear my supplication, O God;
Attend to my prayer.

3 From the end of the earth I cried out to You
When my heart was discouraged;
You lifted me high on a rock.

4 You guided me, for You became my hope,
A tower of strength from the face of the enemy.

5 I will dwell in Your tabernacle unto the ages;
I will be covered with the shelter of Your wings. (Pause)

6 For You, O God, hear my prayers;
You give an inheritance to those who fear Your name.

7 You will add days to the days of the king,
His years as the days of generation to generation.

8 He will abide before God forever;
Who will seek out His mercy and truth?

9 So I will sing praise to Your name unto ages of ages,
That I may pay my vows day to day.

Psalm 61 (62)

1 For the End, for Jeduthun; a psalm by David.†

S hall not my soul be submissive to God?
For from Him is my salvation.

3 For He is my God and my savior,
My protector; I shall be shaken no more.

4 How long will you attack a man?
All of you murder him;
You attack him as you would a leaning wall and a broken hedge.

5 They also planned to remove my honor;
They ran with a lie;
They blessed with their mouth, and they cursed with their heart. (Pause)

6 However, be submissive to God, O my soul,
For my patient endurance is from Him.

7 For He is my God and my savior,
My protector; I shall never be moved.

8 In God is my salvation and my glory;
He is the God of my help, and my hope is in God.

9 Hope in Him, all you congregation of people;
Pour out your hearts before Him;
God is our helper. (Pause)

But the sons of men are useless;
The sons of men are liars with the yokes of wrongdoing;
They are altogether useless.

Do not hope in wrongdoing,
And do not hunger for booty;
If riches flow in,
Do not set your heart on them.

God spoke once;
I heard these two things:
That power is of God, and to You, O Lord, is mercy;
For You will repay every man according to his works.

Psalm 62 (63)

1 A psalm by David, when he was in the desert of Judea.†

God, my God, I rise early to be with You;
My soul thirsts for You.
How often my flesh thirsts for You
In a desolate, impassable, and waterless land.

So in the holy place I appear before You,
To see Your power and Your glory.
Because Your mercy is better than life,
My lips shall praise You.

Thus I will bless You in my life;
I will lift up my hands in Your name.
May my soul be filled, as if with marrow and fatness,
And my mouth shall sing praise to You with lips filled with rejoicing.

If I remembered You on my bed,
I meditated on You at daybreak;
For You are my helper,
And in the shelter of Your wings I will greatly rejoice.
My soul follows close behind You;
Your right hand takes hold of me.
But they seek for my soul in vain;
They shall go into the lowest parts of the earth.

They shall be given over to the edge of the sword;
They shall be a portion for foxes.

But the king shall be glad in God;
All who swear by Him shall be praised,

For the mouth that speaks unrighteous things is stopped.

Psalm 63 (64)

For the End; a psalm by David.

Hear my voice, O God, in my supplication;
Deliver my soul from fear of the enemy.

You sheltered me from the conspiracy of evildoers,
From the multitude of those who work lawlessness,

Who sharpen their tongue like a sword;
They stretched their bow, a bitter thing,

To strike down the blameless man in secret;
Suddenly they will shoot him, and not be afraid.

They made an evil word strong in themselves;
They told of hiding snares;

They said, “Who will see them?”

They searched out lawlessness;
In searching they grew weary.

A man shall draw near, and the heart is deep;

And God shall be exalted.

Their blows became a childish barb,

And their tongues were utterly weakened in them.

All who saw them were troubled,

And every man was afraid.

And they proclaimed the works of God,

And understood His deeds.

The righteous man shall be glad in the Lord, and shall hope in Him;

And all the upright in heart shall be praised.

Psalm 64 (65)
For the End; a psalm by David; an ode; sung by Jeremiah and Ezekiel regarding the situation of the sojourners, when they were about to depart.

It is fitting to sing a hymn to You in Zion, O God,
And a vow shall be rendered to You in Jerusalem.

Hear my prayer;
To You all flesh shall come.

The words of lawless men overpowered us,
And You will show mercy to our ungodliness.

Blessed is he whom You choose and help;
He shall dwell in Your courts.

We shall be filled with the good things of Your house;
Holy is Your temple, wondrous in righteousness.

Hear us, O God our savior,
The hope of all the ends of earth
And of those far off at sea,

He who prepares mountains in His strength,
Who is girded with power,

Who troubles the depth of the sea,
The sounds of its waves.

The nations shall be troubled,
And those who inhabit the ends of the earth
Shall be afraid because of Your signs;
You shall gladden the outgoings of morning and evening.

You visited the earth and watered it;
You enriched it abundantly;
The river of God is filled with waters;
You prepared their food, for thus is Your preparation thereof.

Water its furrows; multiply its fruits;
With its raindrops the earth will be gladdened when it produces fruits.

You will bless the crown of the year with Your goodness,
And Your fields will be filled with fatness;
The desert fruits will be made fat,
And the hills will be girded with rejoicing.
And the valleys shall abound in wheat;
They will shout and truly sing hymns.

Psalm 65 (66)

For the End; an ode of a psalm of resurrection.†Ω

Shout to God, all the earth;
Sing now to His name;
Give glory to His praise.

Say to God, “How fearful are Your works;
In the greatness of Your power Your enemies will lie to You;
Let all the earth worship You and sing to You;
Let them sing to Your name.” (Pause)

Come and see the works of God;
He is more fearful in His counsels than the sons of men,
Who turns the sea into dry land;
They will cross over the river on foot.
There we will be glad in Him,
In Him who as Lord shall rule in His power forever;
His eyes will look at the Gentiles;
Let not those who provoke Him be exalted in themselves. (Pause)

Bless our God, you Gentiles,
And make the voice of His praise to be heard,
Who established my soul in life,
And who did not permit my feet to be moved.

For You, O God, tested us;
You tried us in the fire, as silver is purified by fire.
You brought us into the snare;
You laid affliction on our back.
You put men on our heads;
We went through fire and water,
And You led us into a refreshing place.
I will go into Your house with whole burnt offerings;
I will pay You the vows
My lips uttered,
And my mouth spoke in my affliction;
I will offer You whole burnt offerings full of marrow;
With incense and rams,
I will offer oxen with a young he-goat. (Pause)
Come and hear, and I will describe to you,
All who fear God,
What things He did for my soul.
I cried to Him with my mouth,
And I exalted Him with my tongue.
If I regarded wrongdoing in my heart,
Let not the Lord hear me.
Therefore God heard me;
He gave heed to the voice of my supplication.
Blessed be God, who has not turned away my prayer,
Nor His mercy from me.

Psalm 66 (67)

1For the End, in hymns; a psalm of an ode.†

May God be gracious to us, and bless us;
May He cause His face to shine upon us, (Pause)
2That we may know His way on the earth,
Your salvation among all the Gentiles.
Let the peoples give thanks to You, O God;
Let all the peoples praise You.
Let the Gentiles be glad and greatly rejoice,
For You shall judge the peoples in uprightness,
And lead the Gentiles on the earth. (Pause)
Let the peoples give thanks to You, O God;
Let all the peoples praise You.
The earth yielded her fruit;
May God, our God, bless us.
May God bless us,
And let all the ends of the earth be in fear of Him.

Psalm 67 (68)
Let God arise, and let His enemies be scattered,
And let those who hate Him flee from before His face.

As smoke vanishes, so let them vanish;
As wax melts before the fire,
So let the sinners perish from the face of God.

And let the righteous be glad;
Let them greatly rejoice before God;
Let them be glad with merriment.

Sing to God; sing to His name;
Make ready the way for Him
Who rides upon the sunset;
His name is the Lord;
And greatly rejoice before Him.

Let them be troubled before His face,
He who is the father of orphans and the judge of widows;
God is in His holy place.

God settles the solitary in a house;
With courage He leads out those in bondage,
Likewise those who rebel, who dwell in tombs.

O God, when You went forth before Your people,
When You passed through the desert,
The earth shook; truly the heavens let the rain fall,
Before the face of the God of Sinai,
Before the face of the God of Israel.

You, O God, willingly grant rain to Your inheritance,
And it was weakened, but You restored it.
Your creatures are dwelling in it;
In Your goodness, O God, You provide for the poor.
The Lord will give His word
To those proclaiming the gospel with great power,
He who is the King of hosts of the beloved,
That He may divide the booty for the beauty of the house.
If you fall asleep in the midst of your portions,
You will have the wings of a dove, all covered with silver,
And her back with yellow gold. (Pause)

When the heavenly One appoints kings over it,
They shall become as white as the snow on Zalmon.

The mountain of God is a fertile mountain,
A mountain richly curdled with milk, a fat mountain.

Why do you think about other mountains richly curdled with milk?

This is the mountain God consented to dwell in;
Truly the Lord will lodge in it to the end.

God's chariot is ten thousand-fold,
Thousands abounding in numbers;
The Lord is among them at Sinai in the holy place.

You ascended on high, You led captivity captive;
You received gifts for mankind,
Truly for the disobedient, so they may dwell there.

The Lord God is blessed;

Blessed is the Lord from day to day;
The God of our salvation will bring prosperity upon us. (Pause)

Our God is the God who saves us,
And the issues of death belong to the Lord's Lord.

But God will crush the heads of His enemies,
The hairy head of those who continue in their transgressions.

The Lord said, "I will return from Bashan;
I will return in the depths of the sea,
So your foot may be dipped in blood,
The tongue of your dogs in the blood of your enemies."

Your processionals were seen, O God,
The processionals of my God and my King in the holy place.

The rulers drew near, singers followed after;
In the midst of them came young maidens playing timbrels.

Bless God in the churches,
The Lord from the fountains of Israel.

There is the young Benjamin in ecstasy;
The rulers of Judea are their leaders,
The rulers of Zebulun and Naphtali.
2 Give command, O God, to Your power;
Strengthen, O God, what You accomplished in us.
2 Because of Your temple at Jerusalem,
Kings will bring gifts to You.
2 Rebuke the wild beasts of the reed,
The herd of bulls among the heifers of the peoples,
Lest they shut out those proven in silver;
Scatter the nations that desire wars.
2 Ambassadors shall come out of Egypt;
Ethiopia shall draw near to stretch out its hand to God.
2 Sing to God, you kingdoms of the earth, sing to the Lord. (Pause)
2 Sing to God, who rides upon the heaven of heavens towards the east;
Behold, He will speak with His voice, a voice of power.
2 Give glory to God;
His magnificence is over Israel,
And His power is in the clouds.
2 God is wondrous in His saints;
The God of Israel shall give power and strength to His people.
Blessed is God.

Psalm 68 (69)

1 For the End, concerning things that shall be changed; by David.†

Save me, O God, for the waters flood my soul.
2 I am stuck in the mire of the sea, and there is no place to stand;
I came into the depths of the sea, and the storm overwhelmed me.
3 I grow weary with crying; my throat is hoarse;
My eyes fail me from hoping in my God.
4 Those who hate me without a cause multiplied even more than the hairs of my head;
My enemies who persecute me unjustly have become strong;
Then I paid for things I did not steal.
5 O God, You know my foolishness,
And my transgressions are not hidden from You.
6 O Lord, O Lord of hosts, let not those who wait for You be put to shame because of me;
O God of Israel, let not those who seek You feel ashamed because of me.
For Your sake I bore disgrace;
Humiliation covered my face.
I am become a stranger to my brothers,
An alien to my mother's sons;
For the zeal of Your house consumed me,
And the insults of those who disgraced You fell on me.
I bent down my soul with fasting,
And it became a disgrace for me.
I also made sackcloth my garment,
And I became a byword to them.
Those who sit at the gate were talking against me,
And those who drink wine were singing about me.
But I, O Lord, pray with my prayer to You;
It is the time of Your goodwill, O God, in the abundance of Your mercies;
In the truth of Your salvation, hear me.
Save me from the mire, that I may not be stuck therein;
Deliver me from those who hate me, and from the depths of the waters.
Let not a storm of water drown me;
Neither let the deep swallow me up,
Nor the well enclose its mouth upon me.
Hear me, O Lord, for Your mercy is good;
According to Your abundant compassion, look upon me.
Turn not Your face from Your child,
For I am afflicted; hear me speedily.
Give heed to my soul, and redeem it;
Deliver me because of my enemies.
For You know my disgrace
And my shame and humiliation;
All who afflict me are before You.
My soul expected disgrace and trouble,
And I waited for someone to sympathize with me; but no one was there,
And for comforters, but I found not one.
They gave me gall for my food,
And they gave me vinegar for my drink.
Let their table become a snare before them,
And a recompense and a stumbling block.

Let their eyes be darkened so they may not see,
And bend down their backs continually;

Pour out Your anger upon them,
And let the fury of Your wrath lay hold of them.

Let their dwelling place be laid waste,
And let no one live in their tents.

For they pursued closely the one You slew,
And they added to the pain of my wounds.

Add lawlessness to their lawlessness,
And let them not enter into Your righteousness;

Let them be blotted out from the book of the living,
And not be written with the righteous.

I am poor and suffering,
And the salvation of Your presence, O God, lays hold of me.

I will praise God's name with a song;
I will magnify Him in praise,
And this shall be more pleasing to God
Than a young bull with horns and hooves.

Let the poor behold this, and be glad;
Seek God, and your soul shall live,
For the Lord hears the poor,
And does not despise His prisoners.
Let heaven and earth praise Him,
The seas and everything that moves in them.
For God shall save Zion,
And the cities of Judah shall be built;
And they shall dwell therein, and inherit it;
And the seed of His servants shall possess it,
And those who love His name shall dwell in it.

Psalm 69 (70)

1 For the End; by David; in remembrance, Ω

2 that the Lord may save me.
O God, make haste to help me.

May those who seek my soul be dishonored and shamed;
May those who plot evils against me be turned back and disgraced;
May those be turned back immediately who shame me, saying, “Well done! Well done!”
May all who seek You greatly rejoice and be glad in You,
And let those who love Your salvation always say,
“Let God be magnified.”
But I am poor and needy;
O God, help me.
You are my helper and deliverer, O Lord; do not delay.

Psalm 70 (71)

By David; of the sons of Jonadab and the first ones taken captive.

O God, in You I hope; may I never be put to shame.
Deliver me in Your righteousness, and set me free;
Incline Your ear to me and save me.
Be to me a God for protection
And a strong place for salvation,
For You are my foundation and my refuge.
O my God, deliver me from the hand of the sinner,
From the hand of those who transgress the law and act unjustly;
For You are my patience, O Lord;
The Lord is my hope from my youth.
By You I have been supported from birth;
From my mother's womb You have been my protector;
My song shall be always of You.
I am become as a wonder to many,
And You are my strong helper.
Let my mouth be filled with Your praise,
That I may sing of Your glory
And of Your magnificence all the day long.
Do not abandon me in the time of old age;
When my strength fails, do not forsake me.
For my enemies speak against me,
And those who watch for my soul plot together,
Saying, “God forsook him;
Pursue and lay hold of him,
For there is no deliverer.”
O God, do not stand far off from me;
O my God, give heed to help me.
Let those who falsely accuse my soul be shamed and forsaken;
Let those who seek evils for me be covered with shame and reproach.
But I will hope continually,
And I will add to all Your praise.
My mouth shall proclaim Your righteousness,
Your salvation all the day,
For I am not acquainted with learning.
I shall enter into the power of the Lord;
O Lord, I shall remember Your righteousness, Yours alone.
You taught me, O God, from my youth,
And from then until now I will proclaim Your wonders.
And even to old age and to my last breath,
O God, do not abandon me,
Until I proclaim Your arm to every coming generation,
Yes, Your mighty deeds and Your righteousness.
O God, I proclaim the magnificent things You did,
Even to the highest heaven;
O God, who is like You?
How great and evil are the afflictions You showed me,
And You returned, and made me live;
And You raised me up again from the depths of the earth.
You multiplied Your greatness,
And You returned and comforted me;
You brought me up again from the depths of the earth.
Truly, I will give thanks to You with the instrument of a psalm, O God;
I will sing to You with the lyre, O Holy One of Israel.
My lips will greatly rejoice when I sing to You;
So will my soul, which You redeemed.
My tongue shall meditate on Your righteousness all the day long,
When those who seek evils for me are dishonored and shamed.

Psalm 71 (72)

For Solomon.

O God, give Your judgments to the King, And Your righteousness to the King’s Son,
That He may judge Your people in righteousness
And Your poor with judgment.
Let the mountains raise up peace for Your people
And the hills in righteousness.
He shall judge the poor of the people,
And shall serve the sons of the poor;
He shall humble the false accuser,
And He shall continue as long as the sun
And before the moon from generation to generation;
And He shall come down like rain on the fleece,
Like raindrops falling on the earth.
In His days, righteousness and abundance of peace shall flourish,
Until the moon is removed.
And He shall rule from sea to sea,
And from the river to the ends of the inhabited earth.
The Ethiopians shall bow down before Him,
And His enemies shall lick the dust.
The kings of Tarshish and their islands will come bearing gifts;
The kings of Arabia and Saba will bring presents.
All the kings of the earth shall worship Him;
All the Gentiles shall serve Him.
For He rescued the poor from the hand of a strong man,
And the needy, for whom there was no helper.
He shall spare the poor and needy,
And He shall save the souls of the needy;
He shall redeem their souls from usury and injustice,
And precious shall be their name in His sight.
He shall live, and there shall be given Him from the gold of Arabia;
They shall pray continually because of Him,
All the day long shall they bless Him.

He shall be a support on the earth upon the summits of the mountains;
His fruit shall be exalted more than Lebanon,
And they shall flourish from the city like the grass of the earth.

Let His name be blessed unto the ages;
His name shall remain before the sun,
And all the tribes of the earth shall be blessed in Him;
All the Gentiles shall bless Him.

Blessed is the Lord God,
The God of Israel, who alone does wondrous things.
And blessed is the name of His glory forever and unto ages of ages,
And all the earth shall be filled with His glory. Amen! Amen!

The hymns of David the son of Jesse are ended.

Psalm 72 (73)

A psalm for Asaph.

How good is God to Israel,
To the upright in heart.
But as for me, my feet were almost shaken;
My steps had nearly slipped.
For I was jealous of the lawless
When I beheld the peace of sinners.
For there is no upward gaze at their death
Nor steadfastness in their chastening.
They are not in difficulties as other men,
And they shall not be chastened with other men.
For this reason arrogance mastered them;
They clothed themselves with their wrongdoing and ungodliness;
Their wrongdoing shall go forth as from fatness;
They passed through to their heart’s intent.
They thought and spoke in evil;
They spoke in wrongdoing to the height.
They set their mouth against heaven,
And their tongue passed through the earth.

For this reason my people shall return here;
Days of fullness shall be found in them.

They said, “How does God know?
Is there knowledge in the Most High?”

Behold, these are sinners, and they prosper;
They possess wealth in this age.

And I said, “Surely in vain have I kept my heart righteous,
And washed my hands with the innocent.”

For all day long I was scourged,
And my reproof persisted through the night.

If I should speak, I would describe it thus:
Behold, I am breaking covenant with the generation of your children.

And I sought to understand this;
It was difficult in my sight,

Until I came into God's holy place
And understood their end.

Surely, for their deceits You appointed deceits for them;
You cast them down in their exaltation.

Oh, how they came into desolation suddenly!
They ceased to be; they perished in their lawlessness.

Like a dream to one who is awakened,
So, O Lord, You shall despise their image in Your city.

For my heart was kindled,
And my reins were changed,

And I was despised, and did not know;
I became like a beast before You.

And I am continually with You;
You hold fast my right hand;
With Your counsel You guide me,
And with glory You take hold of me.

For what is there in heaven for me but You,
And what do I desire on earth besides You?

My heart and my flesh fail,
O God of my heart; and God is my portion forever.
For behold, those who keep themselves far away from You shall perish; You destroy away from You all who act unfaithfully.

But as for me, it is good to cling to God,
To put my hope in the Lord,
That I may proclaim all Your praises
In the gates of the daughter of Zion.
Of understanding; for Asaph.†

O God, why have You rejected us to the end?
Why has Your anger raged against the sheep of Your pasture?

2 Remember Your congregation You acquired from the beginning,
That You redeemed the rod of Your inheritance,
This Mount Zion, where You encamped.

3 Lift up Your hands against their arrogance to the end,
Against everything the enemy prostituted in Your holy places.

4 Those who hate You boasted in the midst of Your feast;
They set up their signs, yes signs, and they did not know.

5 As into an entrance hall,

6 As in a thicket of trees, they cut down its doors with axes;
With battle axes and hammers, they broke it down.

7 They burned down Your sanctuary;
They defiled the tabernacle of Your name to the ground.

8 Their kindred said in their heart together,
"Come, let us abolish all the feasts of God from the earth."

9 We do not see our signs;
There is no longer any prophet, and He will no longer know us.

10 How long, O God, will the enemy reproach?
Will the adversary provoke Your name to the end?

11 Why do You turn away Your hand,
Your right hand from the midst of Your breast to the end?

12 But God is our King before the ages;
He worked salvation in the midst of the earth.

13 You strengthened the sea by Your power;
You crushed the heads of dragons upon the water.

14 You shattered the heads of the dragon;
You gave him as food for the Ethiopian peoples.

15 You broke apart fountains and torrents;
You dried up the rivers of Etham.

16 The day is Yours, and the night is Yours;
You created the light and the sun.
2 You made all the boundaries of the earth;
Summer and winter, You formed these things.
3 Remember this: the enemy insulted the Lord,
And a foolish people provoked Your name.
4 May You not deliver to wild beasts the soul who gives thanks to You;
May You not forget the souls of Your poor to the end.
5 Look upon Your covenant,
For the dark places of the earth are filled with the houses of lawlessness.
6 Let not the humbled and the disgraced be turned away;
The poor and needy shall praise Your name.
7 Arise, O God, judge Your cause;
Remember the insults against You by the foolish man all the day long.
8 Do not forget the voice of Your suppliants;
The arrogance of those who hate You rises against You continually.

Psalm 74 (75)

For the End; do not corrupt; a psalm of an ode for Asaph.†

We shall give thanks to You, O God;
We shall give thanks, and call upon Your name.
I shall describe all Your wonders.
“When I seize the opportunity,
I shall judge these rightly.
4 The earth is dissolved and all its inhabitants;
I made firm its pillars.” (Pause)
5 I said to those who transgress the law, “Do not transgress the law,”
And to those who sin I said, “Do not exalt yourselves;
6 Do not boast in yourselves;
Do not accuse God of wrongdoing.”
7 For judgment comes neither from the sunrise nor the sunset
Nor from mountains of the deserts,
8 For God is judge;
This one He brings down low, and that one He raises up.
9 For the cup in the Lord’s hand
Is full of unmixed wine, a drink poured out;
And He tipped it from side to side,
But its dregs were not emptied out;
All sinners of the earth shall drink them.

But I shall greatly rejoice forever;
I shall sing to the God of Jacob.

All the horns of sinners I shall crush,
But the horns of the righteous man shall be exalted.

Psalm 75 (76)

1 For the End; in hymns; a psalm for Asaph, an ode to the Assyrian.†

In Judah God is known;
His name is great in Israel.

2 His place was made in peace
And His dwelling in Zion.

There He broke the power of the bows,
Weapon and sword and battle. (Pause)

You give light wondrously
From the everlasting mountains.

All the foolish in heart were troubled;
All the men of wealth slept their sleep
And found nothing in their hands.

At Your rebuke, O God of Jacob,
Those who mounted horses fell asleep.

You are fearsome, and who shall stand against You?
From that time on is Your wrath.

You caused judgment to be heard from heaven;
The earth was afraid, and kept quiet
When God arose for judgment,
To save all the gentle on the earth. (Pause)

For a man shall give thanks to You from his heart,
And he shall celebrate a feast to You with his whole heart.

Pray and return to the Lord Your God;
All around Him shall bring gifts
2 To the fearsome One, and to Him who takes away the spirits of rulers,
To the fearsome One among the kings of the earth.

Psalm 76 (77)

1 For the End, concerning Idithun; a psalm for Asaph.†ω

With my voice I cried to the Lord,
With my voice to God, and He gave heed to me.

3 In the day of my affliction I sought out God
With my hands before Him by night,
And I was not deceived;
My soul refused to be comforted.

4 I remembered God and was glad;
I complained, and my spirit became discouraged. (Pause)

5 I stayed awake through all the watches of the night;
I was troubled and did not speak.

6 I thought of the days of old,
And I remembered the eternal years; and I meditated.

7 By night I communed with my heart,
And my spirit searched.

8 Will the Lord cast me off unto the ages?
And will He be favorable no more?

9 Or will He cut off His mercy completely,
From generation to generation?

10 Or will God forget to be merciful?
Or will He in His wrath withhold His mercies? (Pause)

11 I said, “Now I am beginning to see;
This change is by the right hand of the Most High.”

12 I remembered the Lord’s works,
For I will remember Your wonders of old,

13 And I will meditate on all Your works;
And I will consider Your ways.

14 O God, Your way is in the holy place;
Who is so great a God as our God?

15 You are the God who does wonders;
You made known Your power among the peoples;
You redeemed Your people with Your arm,
The sons of Jacob and Joseph. (Pause)
The waters saw You, O God;
The waters saw You and were afraid,
And the depths were troubled,
A multitude like the sound of waters.
The clouds uttered their voice,
For Your arrows passed through them;
The voice of Your thunder was in the wheel;
Your lightning gave light to the world;
It was shaken, and the earth was made to tremble.
Your way is in the sea,
And Your paths are in many waters;
And Your footsteps shall not be known.
You led Your people as sheep
By the hand of Moses and Aaron.

Psalm 77 (78)

1 Concerning understanding; for Asaph.†

Give heed, O my people, to my law;
Incline your ear to the words of my mouth;
I shall open my mouth in parables;
I shall speak of hidden things from of old.
What things we heard, these we also knew,
And our fathers described them to us.
It was not hidden from their children in a different generation,
Who declare the praises of the Lord
And His mighty deeds
And His wondrous things He did.
He raised up a testimony in Jacob
And appointed a law in Israel,
Whatever He commanded our fathers
To make these things known to their children,
That a different generation may know,
Children yet to be born;
And they will arise, and declare these things to their children,

So they may put their hope in God,
And not forget the works of God,
And seek out His commandments,

So they may not become like their fathers,
A generation rebellious and embittered,
A generation that did not keep its heart right,
And its spirit was not faithful with God.

The sons of Ephraim who bend and shoot their bows
Turned back in the day of battle.

They did not keep God's covenant,
And they did not desire to walk in His law;
And they forgot His good deeds
And His wonders He showed them

In the sight of their fathers,
The marvelous things He did
In the land of Egypt, in the field of Zoan.

He parted the sea and led them through;
The waters stood like a dam,
And He led them with a cloud by day,
And all night by the light of a fire.

He split the rock in the desert
And gave them water to drink as in a great deep;
And He brought out water from the rock,
And He brought it down like the waters of rivers.

And they still continued to sin against Him;
They rebelled against the Most High in a place without water,
And they tested God in their hearts
By asking food for their souls;
And they slandered God and said,

*Why is God unable to prepare a table in the desert?
Since He struck the rock, and waters flowed,
And brooks flooded,
Is He also unable to give us bread
Or to prepare a table for His people?”

Therefore, the Lord heard and was enraged,
And fire was kindled in Jacob,
And wrath arose against Israel,
Because they did not believe in God,
Nor put their hope in His salvation.
And He commanded the clouds above
And opened the doors of heaven;
And He rained manna for them to eat
And gave them the bread of heaven;
Man ate the bread of angels;
He sent them food in abundance.
He took away the south wind from heaven,
And with His power He brought in the southwest wind;
He rained flesh on them like dust
And winged birds like the sand of the sea,
And they fell in the midst of their camp,
All around their tents;
And they ate and were well filled,
And He brought them their own desire;
They were not deprived of their desire.
While their food was still in their mouth,
The wrath of God rose up against them,
And killed their wealthy ones
And shackled Israel’s chosen ones.
In all these things they still sinned
And did not believe in His wonders;
And their days ended in folly
And their years with haste.
When He killed them, they sought Him out,
And turned back, and rose up early before God;
They remembered God was their helper,
And the Most High God their redeemer.
But they deceived Him with their mouth
And lied to Him with their tongue,

For their heart was not right with Him,
Neither were they faithful to His covenant.

But He is merciful
And will atone for their sins, and not destroy them;
And He will multiply them, and turn away His anger;
And He will not kindle all His wrath.

For He remembered they are flesh,
A spirit that is passing and not returning.

How many times did they rebel against Him in the desert,
And provoke Him to wrath in the desert?

And they turned away and tempted God,
And provoked the Holy One of Israel.

They did not remember His hand
And the day He redeemed them from the hand of those afflicting them,

How He wrought His signs in Egypt,
And His wonders in the plains of Zoan,
And how He turned their rivers and rainfalls into blood,
So they could not drink;

He sent them the dog-fly, and it devoured them,
And the frog, and it destroyed them.

He gave their fruit to the mildew
And their labors to the locust;

He killed their vineyard with hail
And their mulberry trees with frost;

And He delivered their cattle to the hail
And their property to the fire;

He sent forth the wrath of His anger to them,
Anger and wrath and affliction,
Sent forth through evil angels;

He made a path for His wrath;
He did not spare their souls from death,
And their cattle He enclosed in death;

And He struck every firstborn in Egypt,
The firstfruit of their labor in the tents of Ham.
And He brought His people out like sheep,
And He led them like a flock in the desert;
And He guided them in hope, and they were not afraid;
And the sea covered up their enemies.
He brought them into the mountain of His holiness,
This mountain His right hand acquired;
And He cast out the nations from before their face,
And distributed them a measure of land as an inheritance;
And He settled the tribes of Israel in their tents.
They tested and rebelled against the Most High God,
And did not keep His testimonies;
And they turned away and broke His covenant, just as their fathers did,
And they changed into a crooked bow;
And they provoked Him to anger with their high places,
And moved Him to jealousy with their carved images.
God heard and despised them,
And He utterly disdained Israel;
And He rejected the tabernacle at Shiloh,
His dwelling place, where He settled among men.
He gave their strength into captivity
And their beauty into the hands of the enemy;
And He gave His people over to the sword
And despised His inheritance.
Fire consumed their young men,
And their virgins were not lamented;
Their priests fell by the sword,
And their widows were not lamented.
Then the Lord awoke as from sleep,
Like a strong man drunk from wine;
And He struck His enemies from behind;
He gave them eternal reproach.
And He rejected the dwelling of Joseph
And did not choose the tribe of Ephraim;
He chose the tribe of Judah,
This Mount Zion that He loves;
And He built His sanctuary as the place of unicorns;
He founded it forever on the earth.

He chose David for His servant
And took him from the sheepfolds;

He took him from behind sheep that gave birth
To shepherd Jacob His people
And Israel His inheritance;

And he shepherded them in the integrity of his heart
And guided them with the skillfulness of his hands.

Psalm 78 (79)

A psalm for Asaph.

God, the nations entered Your inheritance;
They defiled Your holy temple;
They left Jerusalem in ruins.

They left the dead bodies of Your servants
As food for the birds of heaven,
The flesh of Your saints for the wild animals of the earth;

Their blood flowed like water around Jerusalem,
And there was no one to bury them.

We were made a disgrace to our neighbors,
A scorn and a mockery to those around us.

How long, O Lord? Will You be angry to the end?
Will Your jealousy burn like fire?

Pour out Your wrath on the nations that do not know You,
And on the kingdoms that did not call upon Your name;

For they devoured Jacob
And made his dwelling place desolate.

Do not remember our transgressions of old;
Let Your mercies quickly overtake us,
For we have become very poor.

Help us, O God our savior;
Because of the glory of Your name, O Lord, save us,
And be merciful to our sins because of Your name;
Let the nations never say, "Where is their God?"
And let it be known among the nations before our eyes:
There is vengeance for the shed blood of Your servants.
Let the groaning of those in prison enter before You;
According to the greatness of Your arm,
Preserve the sons of those who were killed.
Repay our neighbors sevenfold into their bosom
Their reproach by which they reviled You, O Lord.
For we are Your people and the sheep of Your pasture;
We shall give thanks to You freely and openly forever;
From generation to generation we will proclaim Your praise.

Psalm 79 (80)

For the End, concerning things that shall be changed; a testimony for Asaph, a psalm concerning the Assyrian.

Give heed, O You who shepherd Israel;
Reveal Yourself, O You who lead Joseph like a flock,
Who sit upon the cherubim.

Raise up Your power
Before Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh,
And come for our salvation.

O God, convert us,
And reveal Your face, and we shall be saved.

O Lord God of hosts,
How long will You be angry with the prayer of Your servant?
Will You feed us the bread of tears,
And will You give us as drink tears in measure?
You made us an offense to our neighbors,
And our enemies sneered at us.
O Lord God, convert us,
And reveal Your face, and we shall be saved. (Pause)
You removed a vineyard from Egypt;
You cast out the nations and planted it;
You prepared the way before it,
And You planted its roots; and the earth was filled.

Its shade covered the mountains,
And its vines the cedars of God;

Its branches reached to the sea
And its shoots as far as the river.

Why did You pull down its hedge,
And all who pass on the road gather its grapes?

A wild swine from the forest laid it waste,
A solitary wild beast devoured it.

O God of hosts, convert us now;
Look down from heaven and behold,
And visit this vineyard
Which Your right hand planted, and perfect it.

And visit the son of man, whom You strengthened for Yourself.

It was set on fire and uprooted,
But they shall perish at the rebuke of Your face.

Let Your hand be upon the man of Your right hand,
And upon the son of man, whom You strengthened for Yourself;

Then we will not turn away from You;
You will give us life, and we will call upon Your name.

O Lord God of hosts, convert us,
and reveal Your face, and we shall be saved.

Psalm 80 (81)

1 For the End; concerning the winepresses; a psalm for Asaph.

Rejoice in God our helper;
Rejoice greatly in the living God.

Take up a psalm and sound a timbrel,
a pleasant psaltery with a harp;

Sound a trumpet in the new moon
On this honorable day of our feast;

For this is an ordinance for Israel
And a judgment by the God of Jacob.

He made it a testimony in Joseph
When he went out from the land of Egypt;
He heard a tongue he knew not;
He removed his back from forced labors;
His hands served in the basket.
You called upon Me in affliction, and I delivered you;
I heard you in the secret place of the storm;
I tested you at the water of Rebellion. (Pause)
Listen, O My people, for I testify to you;
Listen, O Israel, if you hear Me:
There shall be no new god among you,
Nor shall you worship an alien god;
I am the Lord your God,
Who brought you up from the land of Egypt;
Open wide your mouth, and I will fill it.
But My people did not hear My voice,
And Israel would pay no attention to Me.
And I sent them away because of the desires in their hearts;
They shall walk in their ways of living.
If My people had heard Me,
If Israel had walked in My ways,
I would have humbled their enemies quickly;
And I would have laid My hand on those oppressing them.
The Lord's enemies lied to Him,
And their time shall be forever.
He fed them with the finest of wheat
And satisfied them with honey from the rock.

Psalm 81 (82)

A psalm for Asaph.

God stood in the assembly of gods;
He judges in the midst of gods, saying,
“How long will you judge unjustly,
And favor the persons of sinners?” (Pause)
Judge an orphan and a poor man;
Justify a humble and poor man;
Rescue a poor and needy man;
Deliver them from a sinner's hand.
They do not know nor understand;
They carry on in darkness;
All the foundations of the earth shall be shaken.

I said, “You are gods,
And you are all sons of the Most High.
But you die like men,
And like one of the rulers, you fall.”

Arise, O God; judge the earth,
For You shall inherit all the Gentiles.

Psalm 82 (83)

An ode of a psalm for Asaph.

God, who can be likened to You? Be not silent nor appeased, O God,
For behold, Your enemies made a noise,
And those who hate You raised up their heads.
They devised a wicked judgment against Your people,
And they plotted against Your saints.
They said, “Come, and let us destroy them from among the people,
And let the name Israel be remembered no more.”

For they plotted together in unity;
They established a covenant against You:
The tents of the Edomites and the Ishmaelites,
Moab and the Hagarenes,
Gebal and Ammon and Amalek,
And foreigners with the inhabitants of Tyre;
And even Assyria joined with them;
They came to the aid of the sons of Lot. (Pause)
Deal with them as with Midian and Sisera,
As with Jabin at the Brook Kishon;
They were destroyed at Endor;
They became like dung on the earth.
Make their rulers like Oreb and Zeeb,
And all their rulers like Zebah and Zalmunna,
Who said, “Let us inherit the holy place of God for ourselves.”
O my God, turn them like a wheel,
Like straw before the face of the wind,
Like fire that burns through a thicket,
Like a flame that sets mountains on fire;
Thus You shall pursue them with Your storm,
And You shall trouble them in your wrath.
Fill their faces with disgrace,
And they shall seek Your name, O Lord.
Let them be disgraced and troubled unto ages of ages,
And let them be shamed and destroyed;
And let them know Your name is the Lord,
That You alone are Most High over all the earth.

Psalm 83 (84)

For the End, concerning the winepresses; a psalm for the sons of Korah.

How beloved are Your dwellings, O Lord of hosts.
My soul longs and faints for the courts of the Lord;
My heart and my flesh greatly rejoice in the living God.
For even the sparrow found a house for herself,
And the turtledove a nest for herself, where she will lay her young,
Your altars, O Lord of hosts,
My King and my God.
Blessed are those who dwell in Your house;
They shall praise You unto ages of ages. (Pause)
Blessed is the man whose help is from You, O Lord;
He purposed ascents in his heart
In the valley of weeping, into the place he appointed;
For there the lawgiver shall give blessings.
They shall go from strength to strength;
The God of gods shall be seen in Zion.
O Lord God of hosts, hear my prayer;
Give ear, O God of Jacob. (Pause)
O God, our protector, behold,
And look upon the face of Your anointed.

For one day in Your courts is better than a thousand;
I chose to be an outcast in the house of my God,
Rather than to dwell in the tents of sinners.

For the Lord God loves mercy and truth;
He will give grace and glory;
The Lord's hand will not remove good things from those who walk in innocence.

O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man who hopes in You.

Psalm 84 (85)

1 For the End; a psalm for the sons of Korah.‡Ω

O Lord, You were pleased with Your land; You turned back the captivity of Jacob;

You forgave the transgressions of Your people;
You covered all their sins. (Pause)

You ended all Your wrath;
You turned from the wrath of Your anger.

Turn us, O God of our salvation,
And turn away Your anger from us.

Will You be angry with us forever,
Or will You prolong Your anger from generation to generation?

O God, You will turn and give us life,
And Your people will be glad in You.

Show us Your mercy, O Lord,
And grant us Your salvation.

I will hear what the Lord God will speak in me,
For He will speak peace
To His people and to His holy ones,
And to those who turn their heart to Him.

His salvation is very close at hand to those who fear Him,
That glory may dwell in our land.

Mercy and truth met together;
Righteousness and peace kissed each other;

Righteousness shall go before Him
And establish His footsteps as our pathway.

Psalm 85 (86)

1 A prayer by David.

I ncline Your ear, O Lord, and hear me,
For I am poor and needy.
Guard my soul, for I am holy;
O my God, save Your servant, who hopes in You.
Have mercy on me, O Lord,
For all the day long I will cry to You.
Gladden the soul of Your servant, O Lord,
For to You, O Lord, I lift up my soul.
For You, O Lord, are kind and good,
And very merciful to all who call upon You.
Give ear, O Lord, to my prayer
And heed the voice of my supplication.
In the day of my affliction I cried to You,
For You heard me.
There is none like You among the gods, O Lord,
And there are no works like Your works.
All the Gentiles You made shall come
And worship before You, O Lord,
And they shall glorify Your name;
For You are great, doing wonders;
You alone are the great God.
Lead me in Your way, O Lord,
And I will walk in Your truth;
Gladden my heart so as to fear Your name.
I will give thanks to You, O Lord my God, with my whole heart,
And I shall glorify Your name forever;
And You rescued my soul from the lowest Hades.
O God, lawless men rose up against me,
And a gathering of strong men sought my soul;
And they did not set You before them.
But You, O Lord, are compassionate and merciful,
Longsuffering and very merciful and truthful.
Look upon me and have mercy;
Give Your strength to Your servant,
And save the son of Your handmaid.
Work a sign in my midst for good,
And let those who hate me see it and be disgraced;
For You, O Lord, helped me and comforted me.

Psalm 86 (87)

Psalm 87 (88)
O Lord God of my salvation, I cry day and night before You.

2 Let my prayer come before You;
Incline Your ear to my supplication, O Lord.

3 For my soul is filled with sorrows,
And my soul draws near to Hades;

4 I am counted among those who go down into the pit;
I am like a helpless man, free among the dead,

5 Like slain men thrown down and sleeping in a grave,
Whom You remember no more,
But they are removed from Your hand.

6 They laid me in the lowest pit,
In dark places and in the shadow of death.

7 Your wrath rested upon me,
And You brought all Your billows over me. (Pause)

8 You removed my acquaintances far from me;
They made me an abomination among themselves;
I was betrayed, and did not go forth.

9 My eyes weakened from poverty;
O Lord, I cry to You the whole day long;
I spread out my hands to You.

10 Will You work wonders for the dead?
Or will physicians raise them up, and acknowledge You?

11 Shall anyone in the grave describe Your mercy
And Your truth in destruction?

12 Shall Your wonders be known in darkness,
And Your righteousness in a forgotten land?

13 But I cry to You, O Lord,
And in the morning my prayer shall come near to You.

14 Why, O Lord, do You reject my soul,
And turn away Your face from me?

15 I am poor and in troubles from my youth;
But having been exalted, I was humbled and brought into despair.

16 Your fierce anger passed over me,
And Your terrors greatly troubled me;

17 They compassed me like water all the day long;
They surrounded me at once.

You removed far from me neighbor and friend,
And my acquaintances because of my misery.

Psalm 88 (89)

1 Concerning understanding; for Ethan the Israelite.

O Lord, I will sing of Your mercies forever;
I will proclaim Your truth with my mouth from generation to generation;

2 For You said, “Mercy shall be built up forever;
Your truth shall be prepared in the heavens.

3 I made a covenant with My chosen ones;
I swore to David My servant,

5 I shall prepare your seed forever,
And I shall build your throne from generation to generation.” (Pause)

6 The heavens shall confess Your wonders, O Lord,
And Your truth in the church of the saints.

7 For who in the clouds shall be compared to the Lord,
And who among the sons of God shall be compared to the Lord?

8 God is glorified in the counsel of saints;
He is great and fearful toward all around about Him.

9 O Lord God of hosts, who is like You?
You are powerful, O Lord, and Your truth is around You.

10 You are master of the sea's strength,
And You calm the surging of its waves.

11 You humbled the arrogant man as though he were wounded,
And with the arm of Your power You scattered Your enemies.

12 The heavens belong to You, and the earth is Yours;
You founded the world and all its fullness.

13 You created the north wind and the seas;
Tabor and Hermon shall greatly rejoice in Your name.

14 Your arm rules with power;
Let Your hand be strengthened; let Your right hand be exalted.

15 The foundation of Your throne is righteousness and judgment;
Mercy and truth shall go before Your face.
Blessed are the people who know glad shouting;
O Lord, they shall walk in the light of Your face,
And shall greatly rejoice in Your name the whole day long;
And they shall be exalted in Your righteousness.
For You are the boast of their power,
And in Your good pleasure our horn shall be exalted.
For our defense is from the Lord
And from the Holy One of Israel, our King.
Then You spoke to Your holy ones in a vision,
And You said, "I established help for a mighty one;
I raised up a chosen one from My people;
I found David My servant;
I anointed him with My holy oil.
For My hand shall support him,
And My arm shall strengthen him.
The enemy shall have no advantage against him,
And the son of lawlessness shall not continue doing evil to him;
I will cut his enemies to pieces before his face,
And I shall put to flight those who hate him.
My truth and My mercy are with him,
And in My name shall his horn be exalted;
I will put his hand in the sea
And his right hand in the rivers.
He shall call upon Me, saying,
'You are my Father,
My God, and the protector of my salvation';
I shall make him, my firstborn,
Higher than the kings of the earth.
I shall keep My mercy for him forever,
And My covenant shall be trustworthy with him.
I shall establish his seed unto ages of ages
And his throne as the days of heaven.
If his sons forsake My law
And do not walk in My judgments,
If they profane My ordinances
And do not keep My commandments,
I shall visit their transgressions with a rod
And their sins with a whip;
But I will not turn away My mercy from him,
Nor will I act unjustly with My truth,
Nor will I profane My covenant,
And I will not reject the things that proceeded from My lips.

Once for all I swore in My holy place,
That I would not lie to David:
His seed shall remain forever,
And his throne as the sun before Me,
And as the moon that is established forever
And is a faithful witness in heaven.” (Pause)

But You pushed him away and scorned him;
You rejected Your anointed;
You overturned the covenant of Your servant;
You profaned his sanctuary to the ground.
You pulled down all his walls;
You put cowardice in his stronghold;
All who traveled through there robbed him;
He was a disgrace to his neighbors.
You exalted the right hand of his enemies;
You delighted all his adversaries;
You turned away Your help from his sword,
And did not support him in his war.
You deprived him of purification;
You broke his throne to pieces on the ground;
You shortened the days of his time;
You poured down shame upon him. (Pause)

How long, O Lord: will You turn away to the end?
Will Your wrath always burn like fire?
Let my substance be remembered, as to what sort it is,
For did You create all the sons of men in vain?
What kind of man is there who will live and not see death?
Will he deliver his soul from the hand of Hades? (Pause)
Where, O Lord, are Your mercies of old,
Which in Your truth You swore to David?
Remember, O Lord, the reproach of Your servants I bore in my bosom,
The reproach of many nations,
Wherewith Your enemies scorned, O Lord,
Wherewith they scorned the change of Your anointed.
Blessed is the Lord forever.
Amen! Amen!

Psalm 89 (90)

1 A prayer of Moses, a man of God.†

O Lord, You became a refuge to us in generation and generation;
Before the mountains were made,
And before the earth and the world were formed,
And from everlasting to everlasting, You are.
Do not let man be turned back to humiliation,
And You said, “Return, you sons of men.”
For a thousand years in Your sight
Are like yesterday, which passed,
And like a watch in the night.
Years shall be objects of contempt to them;
In the morning let man pass by like grass;
In the morning let him blossom, and pass by;
In the evening let him fall off, be dried up and withered.
For we fainted in Your wrath,
And in Your wrath we were troubled.
You set our transgressions before You,
Our time in the light of Your face.
For all our days failed,
And in Your wrath we fainted;
Our years were spent in thought like a spider.
As for the days of our years, their span is seventy years,
But if we stay strong, perhaps eighty;
And most of them are labor and pain;
For meekness came upon us, and we shall be chastened.

Who knows the power of Your wrath,
And who knows Your anger because of Your fear?

So make known Your right hand to us, that we may number our days,
And our heart may be bound with wisdom.

Return, O Lord; how long?
And be entreated concerning Your servants.

We were filled with Your mercy in the morning,
And in all our days we greatly rejoiced and were glad;

Gladden us in return for the days You humbled us,
For the years we saw evil things.

And behold Your servants and Your works,
And guide their sons;

And let the brightness of the Lord our God be upon us,
And prosper for us the works of our hands.

Psalm 90 (91)

The praise of an ode by David.†

He who dwells in the help of the Most High
Shall lodge in the shelter of the God of heaven.

He shall say to the Lord, “You are my protector and my refuge,
My God; I will hope in Him;

For He shall free me from the snare of the hunters,
And from every troubling word.”

He shall overshadow you with His shoulders,
And under His wings you shall hope;
His truth shall encircle you with a shield.

You shall not be frightened by fear at night,
Nor from an arrow that flies by day,
Nor by a thing moving in darkness,
Nor by mishap and a demon of noonday.

A thousand shall fall at your side
And ten thousand at your right hand,
Yet it shall not come near you;
But you shall observe with your eyes,
And you shall see the reward of sinners.

For You, O Lord, are my hope;
You made the Most High your refuge.

Evils shall not come to you,
And a scourge shall not draw near your dwelling;

For He shall command His angels concerning you,
To keep you in all your ways;

In their hands they shall bear you up,
Lest you strike your foot against a stone;

You shall tread upon the asp and the basilisk,
And you shall trample the lion and the dragon.

“For he hoped in Me, and I will deliver him;
I will shelter him, because he knew My name.

He shall call upon Me, and I will hear him;
I am with him in affliction,
And I will deliver and glorify him.

With length of days I will satisfy him,
And show him My salvation.”

Psalm 91 (92)

A psalm of an ode; for the Sabbath day.

It is good to give thanks to the Lord
And to sing to Your name, O Most High,

To proclaim Your mercy in the morning
And Your truth at night,

On the harp of ten strings, with an ode on the lyre.

For You make me glad, O Lord, with Your work,
And I will greatly rejoice in the works of Your hands.

How magnificent are Your works, O Lord;
Your thoughts are exceedingly deep.

A man without discernment shall not know these things,
And a senseless man shall not understand them.

When sinners grow like grass,
And all the workers of lawlessness have arrogant looks,
It is so that they may be destroyed unto ages of ages.
2 But You, O Lord, are Most High forever;
3 For behold, Your enemies shall perish,
And all who work lawlessness shall be scattered abroad;
4 And my horn shall be exalted like the unicorn,
And my old age shall be blessed with rich mercy;
5 My eye looked upon my enemies,
And my ear shall hear of evildoers who rise up against me.
6 The righteous shall flourish like a palm tree;
He shall be multiplied like the cedar in Lebanon.
7 Those planted in the house of the Lord
Shall blossom forth in the courts of our God;
8 They shall still be increased in a rich old age,
And shall be prospering
9 So as to proclaim, “The Lord my God is upright,
And there is no wrongdoing in Him.”

Psalm 92 (93)

For the day before the Sabbath, when the earth was settled; the praise of an ode by David.†ω

The Lord reigns; He clothed Himself with majesty;
The Lord clothed and girded Himself with power;
And He established the world, which shall not be moved.
Your throne is prepared from of old;
You are from everlasting.
The rivers, O Lord, lift up;
The rivers lift up their voices;
Because of the voices of their many waters,
Marvelous are the billows of the sea;
Wondrous is the Lord on high.
Your testimonies are very much believed;
Holiness is proper to Your house, O Lord,
Unto length of days.
1 A psalm by David; for the fourth day of the week.†

The Lord is the God of vengeance;
The God of vengeance declares Himself boldly.

2 Be exalted, O You who judge the earth;
Render the arrogant their reward.

3 How long will sinners, O Lord,
How long will sinners boast,

4 How long will they utter and speak wrongdoing,
How long will all who work lawlessness speak?

5 They humbled Your people, O Lord,
And they maltreated Your inheritance;

6 They killed the widow and the resident alien,
And they murdered the orphans,

7 And said, "The Lord will not see;
Nor will the God of Jacob understand."

8 Now understand, all you without discernment among the people,
And all you fools, at length be discerning.

9 He who planted the ear, shall He not hear?
Or He who formed the eye, shall He not see?

10 He who chastises the nations, shall He not reprove them,
He who teaches man knowledge?

11 The Lord knows the thoughts of men are vain.

12 Blessed is the man whom You instruct, O Lord,
And whom You teach from Your law,

13 So You may give him rest from evil days,
Until a pit is dug for the sinner.

14 For the Lord will not reject His people,
And He will not forsake His inheritance

15 Until righteousness returns to judgment,
And all the upright in heart possess it. (Pause)

16 Who will rise up for me against evildoers,
Or who will side with me against the workers of lawlessness?
If the Lord had not helped me,
My soul would have almost sojourned in Hades.
If I said, “My foot slipped,”
Your mercy, O Lord, helped me.
O Lord, according to the abundance of grief in my heart,
Your encouragements consoled my soul.
Shall a throne of lawlessness be present with You,
A throne that frames trouble by an ordinance?
They shall hunt for the soul of a righteous man
And shall condemn innocent blood.
And the Lord has become a place of refuge for me,
And my God, the helper of my hope;
And repay their lawlessness to them,
And according to their wickedness,
The Lord our God shall destroy them.

Psalm 94 (95)

1 The praise of an ode by David.†

Come, let us greatly rejoice in the Lord;
Let us shout aloud to God our savior;
Let us come before His face with thanksgiving,
And let us shout aloud to Him with psalms.
For the Lord is a great God,
A great King over all the gods;
For in His hand are the ends of the earth,
And the heights of the mountains are His;
For the sea is His, and He made it,
And His hands formed the dry land.
Come, let us worship and fall down before Him,
And let us weep before the Lord who made us;
For He is our God,
And we are the people of His pasture
And the sheep of His hand.
Today, if you hear His voice,
“Do not harden your hearts as in the Rebellion,
During the day of testing in the desert,
Where your fathers tempted Me;
They tested Me, and saw My works.
For forty years I was treated with contempt by that generation,
And I said, ‘They always go astray in their heart,
And they do not know My ways’;
So I swore in My wrath,
‘They shall not enter My rest.’ ”

Psalm 95 (96)

1 When the house was built after the captivity; an ode by David.†

Oh, sing a new song to the Lord,
Sing to the Lord, all the earth;
Sing to the Lord; bless His name;
Proclaim His salvation from day to day;
Declare His glory among the Gentiles,
His wonders among all peoples.
For the Lord is great, and is greatly to be praised;
And He is to be feared above all the gods;
For all the gods of the nations are demons,
But the Lord made the heavens;
Thanksgiving and beauty are before Him;
Holiness and majesty are in His holy place.
Bring to the Lord, O families of the Gentiles,
Bring to the Lord glory and honor;
Bring to the Lord the glory of His name;
Take up sacrifices and enter into His courts;
Worship the Lord in His holy court;
Let all the earth be shaken before Him.
Say among the Gentiles, “The Lord is King,
For He established the world, which shall not be shaken.
He shall judge the peoples with uprightness.”
Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth greatly rejoice;
Let the sea be shaken and all its fullness.
Then the fields and every thing in them shall rejoice;
Then all the trees of the forest shall greatly rejoice
Before the face of the Lord; for He is coming,
For He is coming to judge the earth;
He shall judge the world in righteousness,
And the peoples with His truth.

Psalm 96 (97)

1By David; when His earth is restored.†

The Lord reigns; let the earth greatly rejoice;
Let the many islands be glad.

2Clouds and darkness surround Him;
Righteousness and judgment are the right ordering of His throne.

3Fire shall go out before Him
And burn up His enemies on every side.

4His lightning gave light to the world;
The earth saw and was shaken.

5The mountains melted like wax at the presence of the Lord,
At the presence of the Lord of all the earth.

6The heavens proclaimed His righteousness;
All the peoples saw His glory.

7Let all who worship the carved images be shamed,
All who boast in their idols;
Worship Him, all you His angels.

8Zion heard and was glad,
And the daughters of Judah greatly rejoiced
Because of Your judgments, O Lord;

9For You are the Lord Most High over all the earth,
Exalted exceedingly over all the gods.

10You who love the Lord, hate evil;
The Lord keeps the souls of His saints;
He shall deliver them from the hand of sinners.

11Light dawned for the righteous
And gladness for the upright in heart.

Be glad in the Lord, O righteous ones,
And give thanks at the remembrance of His holiness.

Psalm 97 (98)

1A psalm by David.†Ω

Sing a new song to the Lord,
For He did wondrous things;
His right hand and His holy arm
Saved peoples for Him.

2 The Lord made known His salvation;
He revealed His righteousness in the sight of the Gentiles.

3 He remembered His mercy to Jacob
And His truth to the house of Israel;
All the ends of the earth saw the salvation of our God.

4 Shout aloud to God, all the earth;
Sing and greatly rejoice, and sing psalms;

5 Sing to the Lord on a lyre,
On a lyre and with the voice of a psalm;

6 With trumpets of metal and the sound of a trumpet of horn,
Shout aloud before the Lord our King.

7 Let the sea be shaken and its fullness,
The world and those who dwell in it.

8 The rivers shall clap their hands together;
The mountains shall greatly rejoice;

9 For He comes to judge the earth;
He shall judge the world in righteousness
And the peoples with uprightness.

Psalm 98 (99)

1A psalm by David.†Ω

The Lord reigns; let the peoples be angry;
The Lord sits upon the cherubim; let the earth be shaken.

2 The Lord is great in Zion,
And He is exalted above all the peoples;

Let them give thanks to Your great name,
For it is fearful and holy.

The King’s honor loves judgment;
You prepare uprightness;
You work judgment and righteousness in Jacob.

Exalt the Lord our God,
And worship at the footstool of His feet;
For He is holy.

Moses and Aaron are among His priests,
And Samuel is among those who call upon His name;
They called upon the Lord, and He heard them;
He spoke to them in a pillar of cloud;
They kept His testimonies
And the ordinances He gave them.

O Lord our God, You listened to them;
O God, You were very merciful to them,
While avenging all their ways of living.

Exalt the Lord our God
And worship at His holy mountain;
For the Lord our God is holy.

Psalm 99 (100)

A psalm of thanksgiving.

Shout aloud to the Lord, all the earth;
Serve the Lord with gladness;
Come before Him with great joy.
Know this: the Lord, He is God;
He made us, and not we ourselves;
We are His people and the sheep of His pasture.
Enter into His gates with thanksgiving
And into His courts with hymns;
Give thanks to Him; praise His name;
For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting,
And His truth is from generation to generation.

Psalm 100 (101)

A psalm by David.*

O Lord, I will sing to You of mercy and judgment;
I will sing and understand in a blameless way;
When will You come to me?
I walked in the innocence of my heart in the midst of my house.
I have not set any lawless thing before my eyes;
I hated those who commit transgressions;
A crooked heart shall not cleave to me;
As for the evil man who turned away from me,
I did not know him.
He who secretly slanders his neighbor,
This one I chased away;
The one with an arrogant eye and insatiable heart,
With this one I did not eat.
My eyes were on the faithful of the earth, so they might dwell with me;
He who walks in a blameless way, this one ministered to me.
He who acts arrogantly did not dwell in the midst of my house;
He who speaks unjustly did not prosper before my eyes.
In the morning I slew all the sinners of the earth,
So as to destroy from the city of the Lord all the workers of lawlessness.

Psalm 101 (102)

A prayer by a poor man, when he was depressed and poured out his supplication before the Lord.*

Hear my prayer, O Lord,
And let my cry come to You.
Do not turn Your face from me;
In the day when I am afflicted, incline Your ear to me;
In the day when I call upon You, hear me quickly.
For my days vanish like smoke,
And my bones burned up like firewood.
I was cut down like grass, and my heart became withered,
For I forgot to eat my bread.
Because of the sound of my groaning,
My bones cleaved to my flesh.
I have become like a pelican in a desert;
I have become like an owl in a ruined house;
I kept watch, and have become
Like a sparrow alone on a housetop.
My enemies reproached me all day long,
And those who praised me swore against me.
For I ate ashes like bread,
And mixed my drink with weeping
Because of the wrath of Your countenance and Your anger;
For You lifted me up and broke me down.
My days were far spent like a shadow,
And I am withered like grass.
But You, O Lord, remain forever,
And Your remembrance is from generation to generation.
When You rise up, You shall have compassion on Zion,
For it is time to have compassion on her, because the time is come;
For Your servants took pleasure in her stones,
And they shall have compassion for her dust.
And the Gentiles shall fear the name of the Lord,
And all the kings of the earth Your glory;
For the Lord shall build Zion,
And He shall be seen in His glory.
He regarded the prayer of the humble,
And He did not despise their supplication.
Let this be written for another generation,
And the people who are created shall praise the Lord;
For He looked down from the height of His holy place;
The Lord looked upon the earth from heaven,
To hear the groaning of those bound,
To set free the sons of the slain,
To declare the Lord's name in Zion,
And His praise in Jerusalem,

When the peoples and the kingdoms
Are gathered together to serve the Lord.

He replied to Him in the way of strength,

Declare to me the fewness of my days;

Take me not away in the midst of my days;

Your years are throughout all generations.

In the beginning, O Lord, You founded the earth,
And the heavens are the works of Your hands.

They shall perish, but You shall remain,
And all things shall grow old like a garment,
And like a cloak You shall change them,
And they shall be changed;

But You are the same, and Your years shall not fail.

The children of Your servants shall dwell there,
And their seed shall be led to prosperity forever.”

Psalm 102 (103)

1 By David.

B less the Lord, O my soul,
And everything within me, bless His holy name.

B less the Lord, O my soul,
And forget not all His rewards:

Who is merciful to all your transgressions,
Who heals all your diseases,

Who redeems your life from corruption,
Who crowns you with mercy and compassion,

Who satisfies your desire with good things;
And your youth is renewed like the eagle’s.

The Lord shows mercies
And judgment to all who are wronged.

He made known His ways to Moses,
The things He willed to the sons of Israel.

The Lord is compassionate and merciful,
Slow to anger, and abounding in mercy.

He will not become angry to the end,
Nor will He be wrathful forever;
Nor did He deal with us according to our sins,
Nor reward us according to our transgressions;
For according to the height of heaven from earth,
So the Lord reigns in mercy over those who fear Him;
As far as the east is from the west,
So He removes our transgressions from us.
As a father has compassion on his children,
So the Lord has compassion on those who fear Him,
For He knows how He formed us;
He remembers we are dust.
As for man, his days are like grass,
As a flower of the field, so he flourishes;
For the wind passes through it, and it shall not remain;
And it shall no longer know its place.
But the mercy of the Lord is from age to age upon those who fear Him,
And His righteousness upon children’s children,
To such as keep His covenant
And remember His commandments, to do them.
The Lord prepared His throne in heaven,
And His Kingdom rules over all.
Bless the Lord, all you His angels,
Mighty in strength, who do His word,
So as to hear the voice of His words.
Bless the Lord, all you His hosts,
His ministers who do His will;
Bless the Lord, all His works,
In all places of His dominion;
Bless the Lord, O my soul.

Psalm 103 (104)

1 By David.
Bless the Lord, O my soul.

O Lord my God, You are magnified exceedingly;
You clothe Yourself with thanksgiving and majesty,

2 Who cover Yourself with light as with a garment,
Who stretch out the heavens like a curtain;

3 You are He who covers His upper chambers with waters,
Who makes the clouds His means of approach,
Who walks on the wings of the winds,

4 Who makes His angels spirits
And His ministers a flame of fire.

5 He established the earth on its stable foundation;
It shall not be moved unto ages of ages.

6 The deep like a garment is His covering;
The waters shall stand upon the mountains;

7 At Your rebuke they shall flee;
At the sound of Your thunder, they shall be afraid.

8 The mountains rise up, and the plains sink down
To the place You founded for them.

9 You set a boundary they shall not pass over;
Neither shall they return to cover the earth.

10 You are He who sends springs into the valley;
The waters shall pass between the mountains;

11 They shall give drink to all the wild animals of the field;
The wild asses shall quench their thirst;

12 The birds of heaven shall dwell beside them;
They shall sing from the midst of the rocks.

13 You are He who waters the mountains from His higher places;
The earth shall be satisfied with the fruit of Your works.

14 You are He who causes grass to grow for the cattle,
And the green plant for the service of man,
To bring forth bread from the earth;

15 And wine gladdens the heart of man,
To brighten his face with oil;
And bread strengthens man's heart.

16 The trees of the plain shall be full of fruit,
The cedars of Lebanon, which You planted;
There the sparrows shall make their nests;
The house of the heron takes the lead among them.
The high mountains are for the deer;
The cliff is a refuge for the rabbits.
He made the moon for seasons;
The sun knows its setting.
You established darkness, and it was night,
Wherein all the wild animals of the forest will prowl about;
The young lions roar and snatch their prey,
And seek their food from God.
The sun arises, and they are gathered together;
And they shall be put to bed in their dens.
Man shall go out to his work
And to his labor until evening.
O Lord, Your works shall be magnified greatly;
You made all things in wisdom;
The earth was filled with Your creation.
There is this great and spacious sea:
The creeping things are there without number;
The living things are there, both small and great;
There the ships pass through;
There is this dragon You formed to play therein.
All things wait upon You,
That You may give them food in due season.
When You give it to them, they shall gather it;
When You open Your hand, all things shall be filled with Your goodness.
But when You turn Your face away, they shall be troubled;
When You take away their breath, they shall die
And return again to their dust.
You shall send forth Your Spirit, and they shall be created,
And You shall renew the face of the earth.
Let the glory of the Lord be forever;
The Lord shall be glad in His works;
He looks upon the earth and makes it tremble;
He touches the mountains, and they smoke.

I will sing to the Lord all my life;
I will sing to my God as long as I exist;

May my words be pleasing to Him,
And I shall be glad in the Lord.

May sinners cease from the earth,
And the lawless, so as to be no more.

Bless the Lord, O my soul.

Psalm 104 (105)

1 Alleluia.

Give thanks to the Lord and call upon His name;
Report His works among the Gentiles;
Sing to Him, and play a stringed instrument to Him;
Describe all His wonderful works.
Praise His holy name;
Let the heart of those who seek the Lord be glad;
Seek the Lord and be strengthened;
Seek His face continually.
Remember the wonders He performed,
Of His marvels and the judgments of His mouth,
O seed of Abraham, His servants,
O sons of Jacob, His chosen ones.
He is the Lord our God;
His judgments are in all the earth.
Remember His covenant forever,
And His word He commanded for a thousand generations,
Which He established with Abraham,
And His oath with Isaac;
And He established it as an ordinance with Jacob
And as an everlasting covenant with Israel,
Saying, “I shall give you the land of Canaan
As the portion of your inheritance.”
When they were few in number,
The smallest and sojourners in the land,
And passed through from nation to nation,
From a kingdom to a different people,
He allowed no man to wrong them;
And He reproved kings on their behalf:
“Do not touch My anointed ones,
And do not act wickedly towards My prophets.”
And He called a famine upon the land;
He shattered all their provision of bread;
He sent a man before them;
He sold Joseph into slavery.
They humbled his feet with fetters;
His soul passed into the iron
Until his word came to pass;
The revelation of the Lord tried him in the fire.
The king, the ruler of the people, sent and released him,
And he acquitted him.
He made him lord of his house
And ruler of all his domain,
To instruct his rulers as himself
And to teach his elders wisdom.
And Israel came into Egypt,
And Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham;
He increased His people greatly,
And made them stronger than their enemies.
He changed their heart to hate His people,
To deal craftily with His servants.
He sent Moses His servant;
He sent Aaron, whom He chose.
He put among them the words of His signs
And of His wonders in the land of Ham.
He sent darkness, and it grew dark;
And they rebelled against His words.
He turned their waters into blood,
And He killed their fish.
Their land produced frogs
In the chambers of their kings.
He spoke and the dog-fly came,
And gnats in all their borders.
He gave them hail for rain;
Fire burned up their land;
And He smote their vineards and their fig trees,
And He shattered every tree in their domain.
He spoke, and the locust came,
And the caterpillar without number,
And ate up all the grass in their land,
And devoured the fruit of their land.
And He smote all the firstborn in their land,
The firstling of all their labor.
He led them out with silver and gold,
And there was not among their tribes one who was feeble.
Egypt was gladdened by their exodus,
For fear of them fell upon them.
He spread a cloud as a cover for them,
And a fire to give them light at night.
They asked, and the quails came,
And He filled them with the bread of heaven.
He split the rock, and the waters flowed;
The rivers ran in the waterless places.
For He remembered His holy word
Which He gave to His servant Abraham.
He brought out His people with exceeding joy,
And His chosen ones with gladness.
And He gave them the lands of the nations,
And they inherited the labors of the peoples,
So they might keep His ordinances,
And seek out His law.

Psalm 105 (106)

1Alleluia.
Give thanks to the Lord, for He is good,
For His mercy endures forever.

2 Who shall tell the mighty deeds of the Lord,
Who shall make all His praises heard?

3 Blessed are those who keep His judgment,
And do righteousness at all times.

4 Remember us, O Lord, because of the goodwill of Your people;
Visit us with Your salvation,

5 So as to see it in the goodness of Your chosen ones;
So as to be glad with the joy of Your nation,
So as to praise You in the midst of Your inheritance.

6 We sinned with our fathers;
We committed lawlessness; we acted wrongfully.

7 Our fathers did not understand Your wonders in Egypt;
They did not remember the multitude of Your mercy,
But rebelled when they went up to the Red Sea.

8 But He saved them because of His name,
So they might know His power;

9 And He rebuked the Red Sea, and it was dried up;
And He led them in the sea as though it were a desert.

10 He saved them from the hands of those who hated them,
And redeemed them from the hand of the enemy;

11 So the water covered those who afflicted them;
There was not one left among them.

12 Then they believed His words
And sang His praise.

13 They were quick to forget His works;
They did not wait for His counsel;

14 And they desired exceedingly in the desert,
And tempted God in a waterless place.

15 So He gave them their request
And fully satisfied their souls.

16 They also angered Moses in the camp,
And Aaron the holy one of the Lord;
The earth was opened and swallowed Dathan,
And buried the assembly of Abiram;
A fire kindled in their assembly;
The flame burned up the sinners.
They made a calf in Horeb,
And bowed down and worshiped the graven image;
Thus they changed their glory
Into the likeness of a calf that eats grass.
They forgot the God who saved them,
Who did great things in Egypt,
And marvelous things in the land of Ham,
Fearful things at the Red Sea.
And He said He would destroy them
Had not Moses His chosen one
Stood among them in the destruction before Him,
To turn away His wrath so as not to destroy them.
Then they despised the desired land;
They did not believe His word,
But murmured in their tents;
They did not listen to the Lord's voice.
So He raised His hand against them,
To overthrow them in the desert;
And to overthrow their seed among the nations,
And to scatter them among the countries.
They were consecrated to Baal-Peor,
And ate sacrifices of the dead;
So they provoked Him with their ways of living,
And destruction multiplied among them.
Then Phinehas stood among them and made atonement,
And the destruction ceased;
And it was reckoned as righteousness to him
From generation to generation forever.
They also provoked Him to anger at the water of Rebellion,
And Moses was afflicted because of them;
For they embittered His spirit,
And he spoke offensively with his lips;

34 They did not destroy the nations the Lord said to destroy,

35 But mingled with the nations
And learned their works;

36 And they served their graven images,
And this became a snare for them;

37 They also sacrificed their sons
And their daughters to demons,

38 And shed innocent blood,
The blood of their sons and daughters,
Whom they sacrificed to the graven images of Canaan;

39 So the land was polluted with their blood;

40 It was also defiled by their works;
Thus they acted unfaithfully in their ways of living.

41 And the Lord was very angry with His people,
And He abhorred His inheritance;

42 Then He delivered them into the hands of the nations,
And those who hated them ruled over them.

43 Their enemies also afflicted them,
And they were humbled under their hands.

44 He delivered them many times,
But they rebelled against Him with their counsel,
And were humbled by their transgressions.

45 And He saw them in their afflictions;
He listened to their supplications,

46 And He remembered His covenant,
And felt regret according to the multitude of His mercy;

47 So He aroused compassion for them
Among all who made them captives.

48 Save us, O Lord our God,
And gather us from the nations,
So we may give thanks to Your holy name,
And boast in Your praise.

49 Bless the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting.
And all the people shall say, “Amen! Amen!”
1 Alleluia.

Give thanks to the Lord, for He is good,
For His mercy endures forever.

2 Let those redeemed by the Lord say so,
Whom He redeemed from the hand of the enemy.

3 He gathered them from the countries,
From the east and the west and the north and the south.

4 They were led astray in the desert, in a place without water;
They did not find a road to an inhabited city;

5 While hungering and thirsting,
Their soul fainted in them;

6 And they cried out to the Lord in their affliction,
And He delivered them from their distresses;

7 And He led them in a straight path,
So they might go to a city of habitation.

8 Let them give thanks to the Lord for His mercies
And His wonders to the sons of men;

9 For He fed the empty soul
And filled the hungry soul with good things,

10 Those sitting in the darkness and shadow of death,
Bound in poverty and fetters;

11 For they rebelled against the teachings of God
And provoked the counsel of the Most High;

12 Thus their heart was humbled by troubles;
They were weak, and there was no one to help them;

13 Then they cried out to the Lord in their afflictions,
And He saved them from their distresses;

14 And He brought them out of darkness and the shadow of death,
And broke their chains to pieces.

15 Let them give thanks to the Lord for His mercies,
His wonders to the sons of men;

16 For He crushed the gates of bronze
And shattered the bars of iron.

 Heb: "And He helped them out of their lawless ways,
For they were humbled because of their transgressions.

 Heb: "Their soul abhorred all manner of food,
And they drew near the gates of death;

 Heb: "Then they cried to the Lord in their afflictions,
And He saved them from their distresses;

 Heb: "He sent His Word and healed them,
And delivered them from their corruptions.

 Heb: "Let them give thanks to the Lord for His mercies
And His wonders to the sons of men,

 Heb: "And let them offer a sacrifice of praise;
And let them proclaim His works with exceeding joy.

 Heb: "Those who go down to the sea in ships,
Who do business in many waters,

 Heb: "These see the works of the Lord
And His wonders in the deep;

 Heb: "He spoke, and a stormy wind arose,
And its waves were lifted up;

 Heb: "They mount up to the heavens
And descend into the deep;
Their soul is consumed with evils;

 Heb: "They were troubled; they were shaken like one drunk with wine,
And all their wisdom was consumed;

 Heb: "Then they cried to the Lord in their affliction,
And He brought them out of their distresses.

 Heb: "He also commanded the storm, and it became a breeze,
And its waves were still;

 Heb: "Then they were glad, for they were silent,
And He guided them to the haven of their desire.

 Heb: "Let them give thanks to the Lord for His mercies
And His wonders to the sons of men;

 Heb: "Let them exalt Him in the assembly of the people
And praise Him in the seat of the elders.

 Heb: "He turned rivers into a desert
And streams of water into dry ground,
A fruitful land into salt water,
Because of the evils of those living there.
He turned the desert into pools of water,
And a land without water into streams of water;
Then He caused the hungry to dwell there
And established a city for habitation;
They sowed fields and planted vineyards,
And produced much fruit;
So He blessed them, and they were multiplied exceedingly,
And their cattle did not diminish.
But they were diminished and maltreated
By the affliction of evils and pain.
Contempt was poured out on princes,
And He made them wander in an impassible place, where there was no road.
Yet He helped the poor man out of his poverty,
And made his families like a flock.
The righteous shall see this and be glad,
And all lawlessness shall stop its mouth.
Who is wise and shall keep these things,
And shall understand the mercies of the Lord?

Psalm 107 (108)

1 The ode of a psalm; by David.

My heart is ready, O God, my heart is ready;
I will sing and give praise in my glory.
Awaken, lute and harp;
I shall awaken early in the morning.
I will give thanks to You among the peoples, O Lord,
And I will sing to You among the Gentiles;
For great is Your mercy above the heavens,
And Your truth even to the clouds.
Be exalted above the heavens, O God,
And Your glory above all the earth.
That Your beloved ones may be delivered,
Save with Your right hand, and hear me.
God spoke in His place,
"I shall be exalted, and I will divide Shechem,
And measure out the valley of tents;
Gilead is Mine, and Manasseh is Mine;
And Ephraim is the strength of My head;
Judah is My king.
Moab is the cauldron of My hope;
I will stretch out My shoe over Edom;
Foreign tribes were subjected to Me."
Who will bring me into a fortified city?
Who will lead me as far as Edom?
Will not You, O God, who drove us away?
And will You not go out with our armies, O God?
Give us help from affliction,
For the salvation of man is worthless.
In God we shall do a mighty thing,
And He shall despise our enemies.

Psalm 108 (109)

O God, do not pass over my praise in silence,
For the mouth of the sinner and the mouth of the deceitful man opened against me;
They spoke against me with a deceitful tongue;
And they surrounded me with words of hatred,
And warred against me without cause.
Instead of loving me, they falsely accused me,
But I continued to pray;
So they repaid me evil for good,
And hatred for my love.
Set a sinner over him,
And let the devil stand at his right hand.
And when he is judged, may he go forth condemned,
And let his prayer become sin.

8 Let his days be very few,
And may a different man receive his office;

2 Let his children be fatherless
And his wife a widow;

20 Let his children wander about and be beggars;
Let them be cast out of their houses.

20 Let the creditor search out whatever possessions he has;
Let strangers plunder his labors;

20 Let there be no helper for him,
Nor a compassionate one for his fatherless children;

20 Let his children be utterly destroyed;
In a single generation, let his name be blotted out.

20 May the lawlessness of his fathers be remembered before the Lord,
And may the sin of his mother not be blotted out;

20 Let them be continually before the Lord,
And may the remembrance of them be utterly destroyed from the earth,

20 Because he did not remember to show mercy,
But persecuted a poor and needy man,
And one pierced to the heart, that he might kill him.

20 And he loved cursing, and it came to him,
And he did not desire blessing, so it shall be far from him.

20 So he clothed himself with cursing like a garment,
And it entered like water into his bowels
And like oil into his bones;

20 Let it be for him like a garment that clothes him,
And like a belt that girds him continually.

20 This is the work of those who falsely accuse me before the Lord,
And of those who speak evil things against my soul.

20 But You, O Lord, O Lord, deal mercifully with me for Your name's sake,
For Your mercy is good.

20 Save me, for I am poor and needy,
And my heart is troubled within me.

20 I was removed like a shadow when it declines;
I was shaken off like the locusts.
My knees were weak from fasting,
And my flesh was changed because of the oil.
And I became an object of reproach to them;
They saw me; they shook their heads.
Help me, O Lord my God;
Save me according to Your mercy;
Then let them know this is Your hand,
And You, O Lord, did this.
They themselves shall curse, but You shall bless;
Let those who rise up against me be put to shame,
But let Your servant be glad.
Let those who falsely accuse me be clothed with shame,
And let them be covered with their dishonor like a double cloak.
I will give thanks to the Lord abundantly with my mouth,
And in the midst of many I will praise Him,
Because He stood at the right hand of a poor man,
To save me from those who persecute my soul.

Psalm 109 (110)

A psalm by David.†

The Lord said to my Lord, “Sit at My right hand, Until I make Your enemies the footstool of Your feet.”
The Lord shall send forth the rod of Your power from Zion,
And rule in the midst of Your enemies.
With You is the beginning in the day of Your power,
In the brightness of Your saints;
“I have begotten You from the womb before the morning star.”
The Lord swore and will not repent,
“You are a priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.”
The Lord at Your right hand crushed kings in the day of His wrath;
He shall judge among the nations; He shall fill them with dead bodies;
He shall crush the heads of many on earth.
He shall drink from the brook on the way;
Therefore, He shall raise His head high.
Psalm 110 (111)

1 Alleluia.†Ω

I will give thanks to You, O Lord, with my whole heart,
In the council of the upright and in the assembly.

2 Great are the works of the Lord,
Sought out in all things with regard to His will;

3 Thanksgiving and majesty are His work,
And His righteousness continues unto ages of ages.

4 He made a remembrance of His wonders;
The Lord is merciful and compassionate;

5 He gave food to those who fear Him;
He shall remember His covenant forever.

6 He declared the strength of His works to His people,
So as to give them the inheritance of the nations.

7 The works of His hands are truth and judgment;
Faithful are all His commandments,

8 Established unto ages of ages,
Made in truth and uprightness.

9 He sent redemption to His people;
He commanded His covenant forever;
Holy and fearful is His name.

10 The beginning of wisdom is the fear of the Lord;
A good understanding is in all who practice it.
His praise continues unto ages of ages.

Psalm 111 (112)

1 Alleluia.†Ω

Blessed is the man who fears the Lord;
He will delight exceedingly in His commandments;

2 His seed shall be mighty on earth;
The generation of the upright shall be blessed;

3 Glory and riches shall be in his house,
And his righteousness continues unto ages of ages.
For the upright, light springs up in darkness,
For he is merciful, compassionate, and righteous.
A good man is compassionate and lends;
He will manage his words with judgment,
For he shall be unshaken forever;
A righteous man shall be in everlasting remembrance.
He shall not be afraid because of an evil report;
His heart is prepared to hope in the Lord.
His heart is established; he is not afraid
As he surveys his enemies.
He dispersed; he gave to the poor;
His righteousness continues unto ages of ages;
His horn shall be exalted with glory.
The sinner shall see this, and be angry;
He shall gnash his teeth, and be consumed;
The desire of sinners shall perish.

Psalm 112 (113)

Alleluia.

Praise the Lord, O ye servants;
Praise the name of the Lord;
Blessed be the name of the Lord
From this present time and unto the ages;
From the rising of the sun to its setting,
Praise the name of the Lord.
The Lord is high above all the nations;
His glory is above the heavens.
Who is like the Lord our God,
Who dwells in the highest,
And who looks upon the humble things
In heaven and on earth?
He raises the poor man from the earth
And lifts up the poor from the dunghills
So as to seat him with rulers,
With the rulers of His people;
2 He settles the barren woman in a home,
To be a joyful mother of children.

Psalm 113 (114, 115)

1*Alleluia.†Ω*

In the exodus of Israel from Egypt,
The house of Jacob from a foreign people,
2 Judah became His sanctuary,
And Israel His authority.
3 The sea saw them and fled,
The Jordan turned back;
4 The mountains skipped like rams,
The hills like flocks of lambs.
5 What is it to you, O sea, that you fled,
And to you, O Jordan, that you turned back?
6 What is it to you, O mountains, that you skipped like rams,
And you, O hills, like flocks of lambs?
7 The earth shook because of the Lord's face,
Because of the face of Jacob's God,
8 When He turned the rock into pools of waters
And flinty ground into fountains of waters.
9 Not to us, O Lord, not to us,
But to Your name give glory,
For Your mercy and Your truth,
10 Lest the nations say,
"Where is their God?"
11 Our God is in heaven above;
And both in heaven and on earth,
All things whatsoever He wills, He does.
12 The idols of the nations are silver and gold,
The work of men's hands;
13 They have a mouth, but they shall not speak;
They have eyes, but they shall not see;
They have ears, but they shall not hear;
They have noses, but they shall not smell;
They have hands, but they shall not feel;
They have feet, but they shall not walk;
They shall make no sound with their throats.

May those who make them become like them,
And all who trust in them.

The house of Israel hoped in the Lord;
He is their help and their protector.

The house of Aaron hoped in the Lord;
He is their help and their protector.

Those who feared the Lord hoped in the Lord;
He is their help and their protector.

The Lord remembered us and blessed us;
He blessed the house of Israel;
He blessed the house of Aaron;
He blessed those who feared the Lord,
The least with the greatest.

May the Lord increase you,
Both you and your children;
You are blessed by the Lord,
Who made heaven and earth.

The heaven of heaven belongs to the Lord,
But He gave the earth to the sons of men.

The dead shall not praise You, O Lord,
Neither do all who descend into Hades;
But we who live shall bless the Lord,
From this present time and unto the ages.
3 The pains of death surrounded me;
The dangers of Hades found me;
I found affliction and grief.
4 Then I called upon the Lord's name,
“O Lord, save my soul.”
5 The Lord is merciful and righteous,
And our God has mercy.
6 The Lord is He who watches over children;
I was humbled, and He saved me.
2 Return, O my soul, to your rest,
Because the Lord showed you kindness;
8 For He delivered my soul from death,
My eyes from tears,
And my feet from slipping.
9 I shall be well pleasing before the Lord in the land of the living.

Psalm 115 (116:10–19)

1 Alleluia.

I believed; therefore, I spoke; I was greatly humbled.
2 I said in my ecstasy,
“Every man is a liar.”
3 What shall I give back to the Lord
For all He rendered to me?
4 I will take up the cup of salvation,
And call upon the name of the Lord.
5 Precious in the sight of the Lord
Is the death of His holy ones.
6 O Lord, I am Your servant;
I am Your servant and the son of Your handmaid.
You broke apart my bonds;
7 I will offer a sacrifice of praise;
8 I shall pay my vows to the Lord
In the presence of all His people,
9 In the courts of the Lord's house,
Psalm 116 (117)

1 Alleluia.

P raise the Lord, all you Gentiles;
Praise Him, all you peoples,
2 For His mercy rules over us;
And the truth of the Lord endures forever.

Psalm 117 (118)

1 Alleluia.

G ive thanks to the Lord, for He is good;
For His mercy endures forever.
2 Let the house of Israel say that He is good,
For His mercy endures forever.
3 Let the house of Aaron say that He is good,
For His mercy endures forever.
4 Let all who fear the Lord say that He is good,
For His mercy endures forever.
5 In affliction I called upon the Lord,
And He heard me in a broad place.
6 The Lord is my helper;
I shall not be afraid of what man will do to me.
7 The Lord is my helper;
I shall look upon my enemies.
8 It is good to trust in the Lord
Rather than to trust in man;
9 It is good to hope in the Lord
Rather than to hope in rulers.
10 All the nations surrounded me,
But in the name of the Lord I defended myself against them;
11 They circled and surrounded me,
But in the name of the Lord I defended myself against them;
12 They surrounded me like bees around a honeycomb,
And they were inflamed like fire in a thorn bush;
But in the name of the Lord I defended myself against them.

‡ I was shoved and disheartened, that I might fall,
But the Lord took hold of me.

† The Lord is my strength and my song,
And He became my salvation.

‡ The sound of exceeding joy and salvation is in the tents of the righteous;
The right hand of the Lord worked its power;
‡ The right hand of the Lord exalted me;
The right hand of the Lord worked its power.

‡ I shall not die, but live,
And tell of the Lord's works.

‡ The Lord chastened and corrected me,
But He did not give me up to death.

‡ Open the gates of righteousness to me;
I will enter therein and give thanks to the Lord.

‡ This is the gate of the Lord;
The righteous shall go in through it.
‡ I will give thanks to You, for You heard me,
And You became my salvation.

‡ The stone the builders rejected,
the same became the head of the corner;
‡ And this came about from the Lord,
And it is wonderful in our eyes.
‡ This is the day the Lord made;
Let us greatly rejoice, and be glad therein.

‡ O Lord, save us now;
O Lord, prosper us now.

‡ Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord;
We blessed you from the house of the Lord.
‡ God is the Lord, and He revealed Himself to us;
Appoint a feast for yourselves, decked with branches,
Even to the horns of the altar.
‡ You are my God, and I will give thanks to You;
You are my God, and I shall exalt You;
I will give thanks to You, for You heard me;
And You became my salvation.

Give thanks to the Lord, for He is good;
For His mercy endures forever.

Psalm 118 (119)

1

Blessed are the blameless in the way
Who walk in the law of the Lord.

2 Blessed are those who search out His testimonies;
They shall search for Him with their whole heart.

3 For those who work lawlessness
Do not walk in His ways.

4 You commanded us regarding Your commandments,
That we should be very diligent to keep them.

5 Would that my ways were led,
That I might keep Your ordinances.

6 Then I would not be ashamed
When I regard all Your commandments.

7 I will give thanks to You, O Lord, with an upright heart,
When I learn the judgments of Your righteousness.

8 I shall keep Your ordinances;
Do not utterly forsake me.

9 How shall a young man keep his way straight?
When he keeps Your words.

10 I searched for You with my whole heart;
Do not drive me away from Your commandments.

11 I hid Your teachings in my heart
So as not to sin against You.

12 Blessed are You, O Lord;
Teach me Your ordinances.

13 With my lips I declared
All the judgments of Your mouth.

14 I delight in the way of Your testimonies
As much as in all riches.

≥ I shall meditate on Your commandments,
And I shall understand Your ways.

≥ I shall meditate on Your ordinances;
I shall not forget Your words.

≥ Reward Your servant;
I shall live, and keep Your words.

≥ Unveil my eyes,
And I shall understand the wonders in Your law.

≥ I am a sojourner on the earth;
Do not hide Your commandments from me.

≥ My soul longed to desire
Your judgments in every season.

≥ You rebuke the arrogant;
Those who turn aside from Your commandments are accursed.

≥ Take away reproach and contempt from me,
For I searched Your testimonies.

≥ For rulers sat and spoke against me,
But Your servant meditated on Your ordinances.

≥ For Your testimonies are my meditation,
And Your ordinances are my counsels.

≥ My soul cleaves to the earth;
Give me life according to Your word.

≥ I made known my ways and You heard me;
Teach me Your ordinances.

≥ Cause me to understand the way of Your ordinances,
And I shall meditate on Your wonders.

≥ My soul fainted because of its listlessness;
Establish me in Your words.

≥ Remove the way of unrighteousness from me,
And with Your law have mercy on me.

≥ I chose the way of truth;
I have not forgotten Your judgments.

≥ I cleave to Your testimonies;
O Lord, do not disappoint me.
I ran on the path of Your commandments,
When You enlarged my heart.
Give me as law, O Lord, the way of Your ordinances,
And I shall always search them.
Cause me to understand, and I shall search out Your law;
And I shall keep it with my whole heart.
Guide me in the path of Your commandments,
For I desire it.
Incline my heart to Your testimonies
And not to greediness.
Turn away my eyes that I may not see vanity;
Give me life in Your way.
Establish Your teaching in Your servant
In regard to Your fear.
Take away my blame, which I have suspected,
For Your judgments are good.
Behold, I long for Your commandments;
Give me life in Your righteousness.
And may Your mercy come upon me, O Lord,
Your salvation according to Your teaching.
And I shall answer those who insult me with a word,
For I hope in Your words.
Do not take away the word of truth completely from my mouth,
For I hope in Your judgments.
So I shall keep Your law always,
Forever and unto ages of ages.
And I walk in a broad space,
For I searched Your commandments.
I spoke of Your testimonies
Before kings, and I was not ashamed.
And I meditate on Your commandments,
Which I love exceedingly.
And I raise my hands to Your commandments, which I love,
And I meditate on Your ordinances.
Remember Your word to Your servant,
In which You give me hope.

This comforted me in my humiliation,
For Your teaching gives me life.

The arrogant transgressed exceedingly,
But I did not turn away from Your law.

I remembered Your judgments of old, O Lord,
And I was comforted.

Despondency held me because of sinners
Who abandon Your law.

Your ordinances were sung to me
In the place of my sojourning.

I remembered Your name in the night, O Lord,
And I kept Your law.

This happened to me in the night,
Because I searched Your ordinances.

You are my portion, O Lord;
I said I will keep Your law.

I sought Your presence with my whole heart;
Have mercy on me according to Your teaching.

I considered Your ways,
And I turned my feet toward Your testimonies.

I prepared myself, and I was not troubled,
That I might keep Your commandments.

The ropes of sinners ensnared me,
But I did not forget Your law.

At midnight I arose to give thanks to You
Because of the judgments of Your righteousness.

I am a companion of all who fear You
And keep Your commandments.

O Lord, the earth is full of Your mercy;
Teach me Your ordinances.

O Lord, You dealt with Your servant in goodness,
According to Your word.

Teach me goodness, instruction, and knowledge,
For I believe Your commandments.
Before I was humbled, I transgressed;
Therefore, I kept Your teaching.
You are good, O Lord, and in Your goodness
Teach me Your ordinances.
The unrighteousness of the arrogant multiplied against me,
But I will search out Your commandments with my whole heart.
Their heart was curdled like milk,
But I meditated on Your law.
It is good for me that You humbled me,
That I might learn Your ordinances.
The law of Your mouth is good for me,
Rather than thousands of pieces of gold and silver.
Your hands made and fashioned me;
Instruct me, and I will learn Your commandments.
Those who fear You will see me and be glad,
Because I hope in Your words.
I know, O Lord, Your judgments are righteousness,
And You humbled me with truth.
Let Your mercy be for my comfort,
According to Your teaching to Your servant.
Let Your compassions come to me, and I shall live;
For Your law is my meditation.
Let the arrogant be shamed, for they transgressed unjustly against me;
But I shall meditate on Your commandments.
Let those who fear You turn to me,
And those who know Your testimonies.
Let my heart be blameless in Your ordinances,
That I may not be disappointed.
My soul earnestly longs for Your salvation,
And I hope in Your word.
My eyes strained to look at Your teaching,
Saying, “When will You comfort me?”
I am like a leather bag in a frost;
I did not forget Your ordinances.
How many are the days of Your servant?
When will You execute judgment for me upon those who persecute me?

Transgressors described their meditations to me,

But these are not like Your law, O Lord.

All Your commandments are truth;

They persecuted me unjustly; help me.

They almost ended my life on earth,

But I did not forsake Your commandments.

Give me life according to Your mercy,

And I shall keep the testimonies of Your mouth.

Forever, O Lord,

Your word continues in heaven.

Your truth continues from generation to generation;

You laid the foundation of the earth, and it continues.

By Your arrangement each day continues,

For all things are Your servants.

If Your law were not my meditation,

I would have perished in my humiliation.

I will never forget Your ordinances,

For in them You give me life, O Lord.

I am Yours; save me,

For I search Your ordinances.

Sinners waited for me to kill me;

I understood Your testimonies.

I saw the limit of every accomplishment;

Your commandment is exceedingly broad.

How I love Your law, O Lord;

It is my meditation the whole day long.

You make me wiser than my enemies with Your commandment,

For it is mine forever.

I understand more than all my teachers,

For Your testimonies are my meditation.

I understand more than the elders,

For I search Your commandments.

I withheld my feet from every evil way,

That I might keep Your words.
I did not turn away from Your judgments,
For You taught me Your law.

How sweet to my taste are Your teachings,
More than honey and the honeycomb in my mouth.

I gained understanding because of Your commandments;
Therefore, I hate every unrighteous way.

Your word is a lamp to my feet
And a light to my paths.

I swore and confirmed
That I would keep the judgments of Your righteousness.

I was humbled exceedingly;
O Lord, give me life according to Your word.

Be well-pleased with the freewill offerings of my mouth, O Lord,
And teach me Your judgments.

My soul is always in Your hands,
And I have not forgotten Your law.

Sinners set snares for me,
But I did not wander from Your commandments.

I inherited Your testimonies forever,
For these are the exceeding joy of my heart.

I inclined my heart to do Your ordinances
Forever for a reward.

Transgressors I hate,
But I love Your law.

You are my helper and my protector;
I hope in Your word.

Turn away from me, you evildoers,
And I shall search out the commandments of my God.

Uphold me according to Your teaching, and give me life;
And may You not disappoint my expectation.

Help me, and I shall be saved;
And I shall meditate always in Your ordinances.

You set at naught all who departed from Your ordinances,
For their thought is unrighteous.

I counted as transgressors all the sinners of the earth;
For this reason I always love Your testimonies.

Nail my flesh with the fear of You,

For I fear You because of Your judgments.

I work judgment and righteousness;

Do not deliver me to those who wrong me.

Take Your servant to that which is good;

Do not let the arrogant falsely accuse me.

My eyes strained to look at Your salvation
And at the teaching of Your righteousness.

Deal with Your servant according to Your mercy
And teach me Your ordinances.

I am Your servant; cause me to understand,
And I shall know Your testimonies.

It is time for the Lord to act;
They broke Your law.

For this reason I love Your commandments
More than gold and topaz.

Therefore I directed myself to all Your commandments;
I hated every unrighteous way.

Wondrous are Your testimonies;
For this reason my soul searches them out.

The revelation of Your words gives light,
And it causes children to understand.

I opened my mouth and drew in my breath,
For I longed for Your commandments.

Look upon me and have mercy on me,
According to the judgment of those who love Your name.

Direct my steps according to Your teaching
And let no lawlessness rule over me.

Ransom me from the slander of men,
And I will keep Your commandments.

Make Your face shine upon Your servant
And teach me Your ordinances.

My eyes poured down streams of tears
Because they did not keep Your law.
Righteous are You, O Lord,
And upright is Your judgment.
You commanded Your testimonies exceedingly
In righteousness and truth.
The zeal of Your house caused me to yearn for home,
For my enemies forgot Your words.
Your teaching is exceedingly purified in fire,
And Your servant loves it.
I am young, and beheld as nothing,
But I have not forgotten Your ordinances.
Your righteousness is righteousness forever,
And Your law is truth.
Affliction and trouble found me,
But Your commandments are my meditation.
Your testimonies are righteousness forever;
Give me understanding, and I shall live.
I cry out with my whole heart; hear me, O Lord;
I shall search Your ordinances.
I cry out to You; save me,
And I shall keep Your testimonies.
I arose at midnight and cried out;
I hoped in Your words.
My eyes awoke before dawn
That I might meditate on Your teachings.
Hear my voice, O Lord, according to Your mercy;
Give me life according to Your judgment.
Those who persecute me in lawlessness drew near;
They are far removed from Your law.
You are near, O Lord;
All Your commandments are truth.
From the beginning I knew Your testimonies,
That You established them forever.
Behold my humiliation and deliver me,
For I have not forgotten Your law.
Plead my cause and redeem me;
Give me life because of Your word.

 Salvation is far from sinners,

 For they have not searched Your ordinances.

 Your compassions are many, O Lord;

 Give me life according to Your judgment.

 Many are those who pursue and afflict me,

 But I did not turn away from Your testimonies.

 I saw those acting foolishly, and I yearned for You;

 For they did not keep Your teachings.

 Behold, I love Your commandments;

 O Lord, in Your mercy, give me life.

 The beginning of Your words is truth,

 And all the judgments of Your righteousness are forever.

 Rulers persecuted me without cause,

 But my heart feared because of Your words.

 I shall greatly rejoice in Your teachings,

 Like one finding great spoil.

 I hate and abhor unrighteousness,

 But I love Your law.

 I praise You seven times a day

 For the judgments of Your righteousness.

 Great peace have all who love Your law,

 And it is not an offense to them.

 I long for Your salvation, O Lord,

 And I love Your commandments.

 My soul keeps Your testimonies,

 And I love them exceedingly.

 I keep Your commandments and Your testimonies,

 For all my ways are before You, O Lord.

 Let my supplication draw near before You, O Lord;

 Give me understanding according to Your teaching.

 May my petition come before You;

 Deliver me according to Your teaching.

 My lips shall overflow in song

 When You teach me Your ordinances.
My tongue shall speak of Your teaching,
For all Your commandments are righteousness.
Let Your hand be for saving me,
For I chose Your commandments.
I long for Your salvation, O Lord,
And Your law is my meditation.
My soul shall live and praise You,
And Your judgments shall help me.
I went astray like a lost sheep;
Seek Your servant, for I have not forgotten Your commandments.

Psalm 119 (120)

An ode of ascents.

To the Lord in my affliction
I cried out, and He heard me.
O Lord, deliver my soul from unjust lips
And from a deceitful tongue.
What should be given You, and what added to You,
Against a deceitful tongue?
The arrows of the Mighty One are sharpened
With hot coals from the desert.
Woe is me! My sojourning was prolonged;
I dwelt with the tents of Kedar.
My soul sojourned a long time as a resident alien.
With those who hate peace, I was peaceful;
When I spoke to them, they made war against me without cause.

Psalm 120 (121)

An ode of ascents.

I lifted my eyes to the mountains; From where shall my help come?
My help comes from the Lord,
Who made heaven and earth.
Let not your foot be moved;
Neither let Him who keeps you slumber.
Behold, He who keeps Israel
Shall neither slumber nor sleep.

The Lord shall keep you;
The Lord is your shelter at your right hand.

The sun shall not burn you by day
Nor the moon by night.

The Lord shall keep you from all evil;
The Lord shall keep your soul.

The Lord shall keep your coming in and your going out
From this present time and unto the ages.

Psalm 121 (122)

An ode of ascents.

I was glad when they said to me, “Let us go into the house of the Lord.”

Our feet stand in your courts,
O Jerusalem.

Jerusalem is built as a city
Whose compactness is complete.

There the tribes went up,
The tribes of the Lord, a testimony to Israel,
To give thanks to the name of the Lord.

For thrones sat there for judgment,
Thrones over the house of David.

Ask now for things regarding the peace of Jerusalem,
And there is prosperity for those who love you;

Let there now be peace in your power
And prosperity in your citadels.

For the sake of my brothers and my neighbors,
I indeed spoke peace concerning you;

For the sake of the house of the Lord our God,
I sought good things for you.

Psalm 122 (123)

An ode of ascents.
I lift my eyes to You, Who dwell in heaven.

2 Behold, as the eyes of servants look to the hands of their masters, As the eyes of the maidservant look to the hands of her mistress, So our eyes look to the Lord our God Until He shall have compassion on us.

3 Have mercy on us, O Lord, have mercy on us, For we are greatly filled with contempt;

4 Our soul is greatly filled with it. We are a disgrace to those who prosper, And a contempt to the arrogant.

Psalm 123 (124)

1 An ode of ascents.

“If the Lord had not been with us,”

Let Israel now say,

2 “If the Lord had not been with us,

When men rose up against us,

3 Then they would have swallowed us alive,

When their anger raged against us,

4 Then the water would have drowned us;

Our soul would have passed through a torrent,

5 Then our soul would have passed through

A water that is overwhelming.”

6 Blessed is the Lord, Who did not give us as prey to their teeth.

7 Our soul was delivered like a sparrow

From the snare of the hunters;

The snare was broken, and we were delivered.

8 Our help is in the name of the Lord, Who made heaven and earth.

Psalm 124 (125)

1 An ode of ascents.

Those who trust in the Lord are like Mount Zion;
He who dwells in Jerusalem shall be unshaken forever.

2 The mountains surround her,
And the Lord surrounds His people
From this present time and unto the ages.

3 The Lord will not permit the rod of sinners
To be upon the inheritance of the righteous,
Lest the righteous stretch out
Their hands in lawlessness.

4 Do good, O Lord, to the good,
And to the upright in heart;
5 But those who turn aside to crooked ways,
The Lord shall lead away with the workers of lawlessness.
Peace be upon Israel.

Psalm 125 (126)

An ode of ascents.

When the Lord returned the captives of Zion,
We became like those who are comforted.

2 Then our mouth was filled with joy,
And our tongue with exceeding joy.
Then they shall say among the Gentiles,
"The Lord did great things with them."

3 The Lord has done great things with us;
We were glad.

4 Return, O Lord, our captivity
Like streams in the south.

5 Those who sow with tears
Shall reap with exceeding joy.

Then they shall say among the Gentiles,
"The Lord did great things with them."

Psalm 126 (127)
Psalm 127 (128)

1 An ode of ascents; for Solomon.

Unless the Lord builds the house,
Those who build it labor in vain;
Unless the Lord guard the city,
Those who guard it stay awake in vain.

It is in vain for you to rise early,
To awaken from your rest,
You who eat the bread of grief,
When He gives His beloved ones sleep.

Behold, children are the Lord's inheritance;
The fruit of the womb His reward.

Like arrows in the hand of a mighty one,
So are the children of those who were outcasts.

Blessed is the man who shall fulfill his desire with them;
They shall not be ashamed, when they speak to their enemies at the gate.

Psalm 127 (128)

Blessed are all who fear the Lord,
Who walk in His ways.

You shall eat the fruits of your labor;
You are blessed, and it shall be well with you.

Your wife shall be like a vine, prospering on the sides of your house;
Your children like newly planted olive trees
Around your table.

Behold, so shall the man be blessed who fears the Lord.

May the Lord bless you from Zion,
And may you see the good things of Jerusalem
All the days of your life;
May you see your children's children.

Peace be upon Israel.

Psalm 128 (129)

Psalm 128 (129)

An ode of ascents.
“Many times they warred against me from my youth,”

Let Israel now say;

2 “Many times they warred against me from my youth,
Yet they did not overcome me.
3 The sinners schemed behind my back;
They prolonged their lawlessness.”
4 The righteous Lord cut in pieces the necks of sinners.
5 Let all who hate Zion
Be shamed and turned back.
6 Let them become like grass on the housetops,
Which withers before it is plucked up;
7 Like grass with which the reaper does not fill his hand,
Nor the gatherer of sheaves, his bosom;
8 Neither do those who pass by say to them,
“The Lord's blessing be upon you;
In the Lord's name, we bless you.”

Psalm 129 (130)

1 An ode of ascents.

Out of the depths I have cried to You, O Lord;
2 O Lord, hear my voice;
Let Your ears be attentive
To the voice of my supplication.
3 If You, O Lord, should mark transgression,
O Lord, who would stand?
4 For there is forgiveness with You.
5 Because of Your law, O Lord, I waited for You;
My soul waited for Your word.
6 My soul hopes in the Lord,
From the morning watch until night;
From the morning watch until night,
Let Israel hope in the Lord.
7 For with the Lord there is mercy,
And with Him is abundant redemption;
Psalm 130 (131)

An ode of ascents, by David.

O Lord, My heart is not exalted, Neither are my eyes raised up;
Neither am I carried along in great things,
Nor in things too marvelous for me.
If I were not humble-minded,
But exalted my soul,
Like a child weaned from his mother,
So You would reward my soul.
Let Israel hope in the Lord
From this present time and unto the ages.

Psalm 131 (132)

An ode of ascents.

R emember David, O Lord,
And all his meekness,
How he swore to the Lord,
How he vowed to the God of Jacob,
“I shall not enter my dwelling,
I shall not recline on my bed,
I shall not close my eyes in sleep
Nor my eyelids for dozing,
Nor give any rest to my temples,
Until I find a place for the Lord,
A tabernacle for the God of Jacob.”
Behold, we heard of it in Ephrathah;
We found it in the plains of the wood;
Let us enter into His tabernacles;
Let us worship at the place where His feet stood.
Arise, O Lord, into Your rest,
You and the ark of Your holiness;
Your priests shall clothe themselves in righteousness;
Your saints shall greatly rejoice.
For Your servant David's sake,
Do not turn away from the face of Your anointed.
The Lord swore to David this truth, and He shall not reject it,
“I shall set upon your throne one from the fruit of your loins.
If your sons keep My covenant
And these testimonies I shall teach them,
Then their sons shall sit upon your throne forever.”
For the Lord has chosen Zion;
He chose her for His dwelling:
“This is My place of rest unto ages of ages;
Here I shall dwell, for I have chosen her.
Blessing, I shall bless her provision;
I shall satisfy her poor with bread;
And I shall clothe her priests with salvation,
And her saints shall rejoice exceedingly with great joy;
There I shall cause to spring up a horn for David;
There I prepared a lamp for my anointed;
His enemies I shall clothe with shame;
Upon him shall My sanctification flourish.”

Psalm 132 (133)

An ode of ascents; by David.
Behold now, what is so good or so pleasant
As for brothers to dwell together in unity?
It is like fragrant oil running down upon the beard,
The beard of Aaron,
Running down upon the border of his garment;
It is like the dew of Hermon, running down upon the mountains of Zion;
For there the Lord commanded the blessing
And life forever.

Psalm 133 (134)
An ode of ascents.

Behold now, bless the Lord,
All you servants of the Lord,
Who stand in the house of the Lord,
In the courts of the house of our God.

2 In the nights, lift up your hands to the holy of holies
And bless the Lord.

3 May the Lord bless you from Zion,
He who made heaven and earth.

Psalm 134 (135)

1 Alleluia.†

Raise the name of the Lord,
O you servants; praise the Lord,

2 You who stand in the house of the Lord,
In the courts of the house of our God.

3 Praise the Lord, for the Lord is good;
Sing to His name, for it is good;

4 For the Lord chose Jacob for Himself,
Israel for His special treasure.

5 For I know the Lord is great,
And our Lord is above all the gods.

6 All things whatsoever the Lord willed, He did,
In heaven and on the earth,
In the seas and in all deep places,

7 Bringing clouds from the furthest part of the earth;
He made lightning for the rain,
Bringing winds from His storehouses.

8 He struck the firstborn of Egypt,
From man to cattle;

9 He sent forth signs and wonders in your midst, O Egypt,
Among Pharaoh and all his servants.

10 He struck many nations
And destroyed mighty kings,
² Sihon king of the Amorites,
And Og king of Bashan,
And all the kingdoms of Canaan;
² And He gave their land as an inheritance,
An inheritance for Israel His people.
²³ O Lord, Your name abides forever,
O Lord, Your memorial unto generation and generation.
²⁴ For the Lord will judge His people,
And He shall comfort His servants.
²⁵ The idols of the nations are silver and gold,
The works of men's hands;
²⁶ They have a mouth, but they shall not speak;
They have eyes, but they shall not see;
²⁷ They have ears, but they shall not hear;
They have noses, but they shall not smell;
They have hands, but they shall not feel;
They have feet, but they shall not walk;
They have no sound in their throat;
For neither is there breath in their mouth.
²⁸ May those who made them become like them,
And all who trust in them.
²⁹ O house of Israel, bless the Lord;
O house of Aaron, bless the Lord;
²⁰ O house of Levi, bless the Lord;
You who fear the Lord, bless the Lord.
²¹ Blessed be the Lord out of Zion,
He who dwells in Jerusalem.

Psalm 135 (136)

¹Alleluia.

Give thanks to the Lord, for He is good,
For His mercy endures forever;
² Give thanks to the God of gods,
For His mercy endures forever;

2 Give thanks to the Lord of lords,
For His mercy endures forever;

4 To Him who alone does great wonders,
For His mercy endures forever;

5 To Him who made the heavens with understanding,
For His mercy endures forever;

6 To Him who made firm the earth on the waters,
For His mercy endures forever;

7 To Him who alone made the great lights,
For His mercy endures forever,

8 The sun for authority over the day,
For His mercy endures forever,

9 The moon and stars for authority over the night,
For His mercy endures forever;

10 To Him who struck down Egypt with their firstborn,
For His mercy endures forever;

11 To Him who led Israel out of their midst,
For His mercy endures forever,

12 With a strong hand and an upraised arm,
For His mercy endures forever;

13 To Him who divided the Red Sea into parts,
For His mercy endures forever,

14 And led Israel through the midst of it,
For His mercy endures forever,

15 And who overthrew Pharaoh and all his host in the Red Sea,
For His mercy endures forever;

16 To Him who led His people through the wilderness,
For His mercy endures forever;
2 Sihon king of the Amorites,
For His mercy endures forever,
3 And Og king of Bashan,
For His mercy endures forever,
4 And who gave their land as an inheritance,
For His mercy endures forever,
5 An inheritance for Israel His servant,
For His mercy endures forever.
6 For in our humiliation the Lord remembered us,
For His mercy endures forever;
7 And He redeemed us from our enemies,
For His mercy endures forever;
8 Who gave food to all flesh,
For His mercy endures forever.
9 Give thanks to the God of heaven,
For His mercy endures forever;
10 Give thanks to the Lord of lords,
For His mercy endures forever.

Psalm 136 (137)

1 By David.†ω

By the rivers of Babylon,
There we sat and wept
When we remembered Zion.
2 Upon the willows in her midst,
We hung up our musical instruments;
3 For there our captors asked us for words from our songs,
And those who carried us off said to us,
"Sing us the songs of Zion."
4 How shall we sing the Lord's song
In a foreign land?
5 If I forget you, O Jerusalem,
May my right hand be forgotten;
6 May my tongue be glued to my throat
If I do not remember you,
If I do not prefer Jerusalem
In the beginning of my merriment.

>O Lord, remember the sons of Edom
On that day in Jerusalem,
When they were saying, “Empty it out,
Empty it out,
Even to its foundation!”

> O wretched daughter of Babylon,
Blessed is he who shall deal with you
As you dealt with us;

> Blessed is he who shall get the upper hand
And dash your infants against the rock.

Psalm 137 (138)

1By David.

I will give thanks to You, O Lord, with all my heart,
For You hear the words of my mouth;
And I shall sing to You in the presence of angels.

> I shall bow down and worship toward Your holy temple,
And I will give thanks to Your name
For Your mercy and Your truth;
For You magnified Your teaching above every name.

> On the day I shall call out to You, hear me speedily;
You shall treat my soul with great care in Your power.

> O Lord, let all the kings of the earth give thanks to You,
For they heard all the words of Your mouth;

> And let them sing in the ways of the Lord,
For the glory of the Lord is great;

> For the Lord is high, and He watches over the lowly things;
But the high things He knows from afar.

> If I walk in the midst of affliction, You shall make me live;
You stretched out Your hand against the wrath of my enemies,
And Your right hand saved me.
The Lord shall repay them on my behalf.
O Lord, Your mercy endures forever;
Do not forsake the works of Your hands.

Psalm 138 (139)

1For the End; a psalm by David.††

O Lord, You test me and know me;
2You know my sitting down and my rising up;
You understand my thoughts from afar;
3You search out my path and my portion,
And You foresee all my ways.
4For there is not a word on my tongue,
5But behold, O Lord, You know it altogether,
The last things and the first things;
You fashioned me, and placed Your hands on me.
6Your knowledge has become too wondrous for me;
It has become too overwhelming; I am unable to grasp it.
7Where could I go from Your Spirit,
Or flee from Your face?
8If I should ascend into heaven, You would be there;
If I should descend into Hades, You would be there;
9If I should take up my wings at dawn
And pitch camp at the furthest part of the sea,
10Even there Your hand would lead me,
And Your right hand would hold me.
11And I said, “Perhaps darkness shall cover me,”
But the night shall be light to my delight;
12For darkness shall not be dark because of You,
And the night shall be bright as day;
As its darkness, so also shall be its light.
13For You possess my heart, O Lord;
You took hold of me from my mother's womb.
14I will give thanks to You,
For I am fearfully and wondrously made;
Marvelous are Your works,
And my soul knows this very well.
My bone you made in secret was not hidden from You.
And my substance was in the lowest parts of the earth;
Your eyes saw me when I was unformed,
And all men shall be written in Your book;
They shall be formed day by day,
When as yet there were none among them.
Your friends, O God, became very honorable to me;
Their principalities became very strong;
I shall count them,
And they shall be multiplied more than the sand;
I awakened, and I am still with You.
If You should slay sinners, O God,
You would turn aside from me, O men of blood.
For You will say regarding their reasoning,
“They shall receive your cities in vain.”
Have I not hated those who hate You, O Lord?
And was I not wasting away because of Your enemies?
I hated them with perfect hatred;
They became my enemies.
Test me, O God, and know my heart;
Examine me, and know my paths,
And see if there is a lawless way in me,
And lead me in the way everlasting.

Psalm 139 (140)

1For the End; a psalm by David.†

Deliver me, O Lord, from the evil man,
Rescue me from the unjust man,
Who devised wrongdoing in their heart;
They arrayed themselves for war all day long;
They sharpened their tongue like a serpent;
The venom of asps was under their lips. (Pause)
5 Keep me, O Lord, from the hand of the sinner;
Deliver me from unjust men
Who plotted to trip up my steps;
4 The arrogant hid a trap for me,
And they stretched out ropes as snares for my feet;
They set a stumbling block for me near my path. (Pause)
2 I said to the Lord, “You are my God;
Give ear, O Lord, to the voice of my supplication.
8 O Lord, O Lord, the power of my salvation,
You overshadowed my head in the day of war.
2 Because of my desire, O Lord, do not hand me over to the sinner;
They plotted against me; do not forsake me, lest they be exalted. (Pause)
2 “As for the head of those who encircle me,
The toil of their lips shall cover them.
2 Coals shall fall upon them;
You shall overthrow them with fire;
Do not let them withstand hardships.”
2 A talkative man shall not prosper on earth;
Evils shall hunt the unjust man to destruction.
2 I know the Lord will maintain the cause of the poor man
And the justice of the needy.
2 Surely the righteous shall give thanks to Your name,
And the upright shall dwell in Your presence.

Psalm 140 (141)

1 A psalm by David.†

O Lord, I have cried to You; hear me; Give heed to the voice of my supplication when I cry to You.

2 Let my prayer be set forth before You as incense,
The lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice.

3 Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth,
A door of enclosure about my lips.

4 Incline not my heart to evil words,
To make excuses in sins
With men who work lawlessness;
And I will not join with their choice ones.

The righteous man shall correct me
With mercy, and he shall reprove me;

But let not the oil of the sinner anoint my head,

For my prayer shall be intense in the presence of their pleasures.

Their judges are swallowed up by the rock;
They shall hear my words, for they are pleasant.

As a clod of ground is dashed to pieces on the earth,
So our bones were scattered beside the grave.

For my eyes, O Lord, O Lord, are toward You;
In You I hope; take not my soul away.

Keep me from the snares they set for me,
And from the stumbling blocks of those who work lawlessness.

Sinners shall fall into their own net;
I am alone, until I escape.

Psalm 141 (142)

1 Understanding; by David, when he was in the cave; a prayer.

I cried to the Lord with my voice, With my voice I prayed to the Lord.

I shall pour out my supplication before Him;
I shall declare my affliction in His presence.

When my spirit fainted within me,
Then You knew my paths;
For on the way I was going, they hid a trap for me.

I looked on my right, and saw
There was no one who knew me;
Refuge failed me,
And there was no one who cared for my soul.

I cried to You, O Lord;
I said, “You are my hope,
My portion in the land of the living.

Attend to my supplication,
For I was humbled exceedingly;
Deliver me from my persecutors,
For they are stronger than I.

Bring my soul out of prison

To give thanks to Your name, O Lord;

The righteous shall wait for me, until You reward me.”

Psalm 142 (143)

1A psalm by David, when his son persecuted him.†

O Lord, hear my prayer; Give ear to my supplication in Your truth;

Answer me in Your righteousness;

2 Do not enter into judgment with Your servant,

For no one living shall become righteous in Your sight.

3 For the enemy persecuted my soul;

He humbled my life to the ground;

He caused me to dwell in dark places as one long dead,

4 And my spirit was in anguish within me;

My heart was troubled within me.

5 I remembered the days of old,

And I meditated on all Your works;

I meditated on the works of Your hands.

6 I spread out my hands to You;

My soul thirsts for You like a waterless land. (Pause)

7 Hear me speedily, O Lord;

My spirit faints within me;

Turn not Your face from me,

Lest I become like those who go down into the pit.

8 Cause me to hear Your mercy in the morning,

For I hope in You;

Make me know, O Lord, the way wherein I should walk,

For I lift up my soul to You.

2 Deliver me from my enemies, O Lord,

For to You I flee for refuge.

20 Teach me to do Your will, for You are my God;

Your good Spirit shall guide me in the land of uprightness.

21 For Your name’s sake, O Lord, give me life;
In Your righteousness You shall bring my soul out of affliction.

In Your mercy You shall destroy my enemies;
You shall utterly destroy all who afflict my soul,
For I am Your servant.

Psalm 143 (144)

1By David; against Goliath.†

Blessed is the Lord my God,
Who trains my hands for battle,
My fingers for war;
2 He is my mercy and my refuge,
My helper and my deliverer,
My protector in whom I hope,
Who subjects my people under me.
3 O Lord, what is man, that You are made known to him,
Or the son of man, that You consider him?
4 Man is become like vanity,
His days like a passing shadow.
5 O Lord, bow down Your heavens and descend;
Touch the mountains, and they shall smoke;
6 Flash lightning, and You shall scatter them;
Shoot Your arrows, and You shall trouble them.
7 Send forth Your hand from on high;
Deliver me and save me from great waters,
From the hand of the sons of foreigners,
8 Whose mouth speaks empty things,
And their right hand is the right hand of wrongdoing.
9 O God, I shall sing a new song to You;
I shall play to You on a harp of ten strings,
10 To Him who gives salvation to kings,
Who redeems David His servant from the evil sword.
11 Deliver me and save me from the hand of the sons of foreigners,
Whose mouth speaks empty things,
And their right hand is a right hand of wrongdoing,
Whose sons are like new plants
Matured in their youth,
Their daughters beautified,
Adorned like a temple;
Their storehouses are full,
Bursting forth with abundance on all sides;
Their sheep give many births,
Multiplying in their streets;
Their oxen are fat;
There is no gap in their fence or passage,
Nor outcry in their streets.
They call the people blessed, whose lot this is;
But rather, blessed is the people
Whose God is the Lord.

Psalm 144 (145)

1 A praise by David.

I shall exalt You, my God and my King, And I shall bless Your name forever and unto ages of ages.

2 Every day I shall bless You
And praise Your name forever and unto ages of ages.

3 Great is the Lord and exceedingly praiseworthy,
And His greatness has no limit.

4 Generation and generation shall praise Your works,
And they shall declare Your power.

5 They shall speak of the magnificence of the glory of Your holiness,
And they shall describe Your wonders.

6 They shall also speak of the power of Your awesome deeds
And describe Your great majesty.

7 They shall overflow with the memory of Your rich goodness,
And shall greatly rejoice in Your righteousness.

8 The Lord is gracious and merciful,
Longsuffering and abundant in mercy.

9 The Lord is good to all,
And His mercies are upon all His works.
O Lord, let all Your works praise You
And Your holy ones bless You.
They shall tell of Your kingdom's glory,
And they shall speak of Your power,
That all the sons of men may know Your power
And the glory of Your kingdom's magnificence.
Your kingdom is a kingdom of all the ages,
And Your dominion is from generation to generation.
The Lord is faithful in His words
And holy in all His works.
The Lord supports all who stumble
And restores all who are broken down.
All eyes hope in You,
And You give them their food in due season.
You open Your hand
And fill every living thing with Your pleasure.
The Lord is righteous in all His ways
And holy in all His works.
The Lord is near to all who call on Him,
To all who call upon Him in truth.
He shall do the will of those who fear Him,
And He shall hear their supplications and save them.
The Lord keeps all who love Him,
But all the sinners He shall utterly destroy.
My mouth shall speak the Lord's praise,
And let all flesh bless His holy name
Forever and unto ages of ages.

Psalm 145 (146)

Alleluia; of Aggeus and Zacharias.

raise the Lord, O my soul.
I shall praise the Lord while I live;
I shall sing to my God as long as I exist.
Do not trust in rulers and in the sons of men,
In whom there is no salvation.

4 His breath shall go out of him, and he shall return to his earth;
On that day all his thoughts shall perish.

5 Blessed is he whose help is the God of Jacob;
His hope is in the Lord his God,

2 Who made heaven and earth,
The sea and everything in them,
Who keeps truth forever,

2 Who executes justice for the wronged,
Who provides food for the hungry.
The Lord frees those bound.

2 The Lord restores those broken down.
The Lord gives wisdom to the blind.
The Lord loves the righteous.

2 The Lord keeps watch over resident aliens.
He shall adopt the orphan and the widow,
But He shall destroy the way of sinners.

10 The Lord shall reign forever:
Your God, O Zion, to all generations.

Psalm 146 (147:1–11)

1 Alleluia; of Aggeus and Zacharias.

Praise the Lord, for a psalm is a good thing;
Let praise be sweet to our God.

2 The Lord is building Jerusalem,
And He shall gather together the dispersion of Israel;

2 He heals the brokenhearted
And He binds up all their wounds.

2 He numbers the multitude of stars
And calls them all by name.

3 Great is our Lord, and great is His strength;
His understanding exceeds every measure.

2 The Lord raises up the gentle,
But humbles sinners to the ground.
Begin with thanksgiving to the Lord;
Sing to our God with the harp,
To Him who covers heaven with clouds,
Who prepares rain for the earth,
Who makes grass grow on the mountains
And the green growth for the service of men,
To Him who gives the cattle their food
And who gives food to the nestlings of ravens
When they call upon Him.
He shall not take pleasure in the strength of a horse,
Nor be pleased with the legs of a man;
The Lord is pleased with those who fear Him,
And with those who hope in His mercy.

Psalm 147 (147:12–20)

Alleluia; of Aggeus and Zacharias.

P raise the Lord, O Jerusalem;
Praise your God, O Zion,
For He strengthens the bars of your gates;
He blesses your children within you;
He who grants your borders peace,
And fills you with the finest of wheat;
He who sends His teaching to earth
Until His word shall run swiftly,
Giving snow like wool,
Sprinkling mist like ashes,
Casting His ice like morsels;
Who shall withstand His winter?
He shall send His word and melt them;
His wind shall blow, and the waters shall flow,
He who declares His word to Jacob,
His ordinances and judgments to Israel.
He did not do so with other nations,
Nor did He show His judgments to them.
Psalm 148

1 Alleluia; of Aggeus and Zacharias. ♯

P raise the Lord from the heavens;
Praise Him in the highest.

2 Praise Him, all you His angels;
Praise Him, all you His hosts.

3 Praise Him, sun and moon;
Praise Him, all you stars and light.

4 Praise Him, you heavens of heavens,
And you waters above the heavens.

5 Let them praise the Lord's name,
For He spoke, and they were made;
He commanded, and they were created.

6 He established them forever and unto ages of ages;
He set forth His ordinance, and it shall not pass away.

7 Praise the Lord from the earth,
You dragons and all the deeps,

8 Fire and hail, snow and ice,
Stormy wind, which perform His word,

9 Mountains and all the hills,
Fruitful trees and all cedars,

10 Wild animals and all cattle,
Creeping things and flying birds,

11 Kings of the earth and all peoples,
Princes and all judges of the earth,

12 Young men and maidens,
Elders with younger,

13 Let them praise the Lord's name,
For His name alone is exalted;
His thanksgiving is in earth and heaven.

14 And He shall exalt the horn of His people,
A hymn for all His saints,

For the children of Israel, a people who draw near to Him.
Psalm 149

1 Alleluia.

Sing to the Lord a new song,
His praise in the assembly of His holy ones.
2 Let Israel be glad in Him who made him,
And let the children of Zion greatly rejoice in their King.
3 Let them praise His name with dance;
With tambourine and harp let them sing to Him;
4 For the Lord is pleased with His people,
And He shall exalt the gentle with salvation.
5 The holy ones shall boast in glory,
And they shall greatly rejoice on their beds;
6 The high praise of God shall be in their mouth
And a two-edged sword in their hand,
7 To deal retribution to the nations,
Reproving among the peoples,
8 To shackle their kings with chains
And their nobles with fetters of iron,
9 To fulfill among them the written judgment:
This glory have all His holy ones.

Psalm 150

1 Alleluia.

Praise God in His saints;
Praise Him in the firmament of His power;
2 Praise Him for His mighty acts;
Praise Him according to the abundance of His greatness.
3 Praise Him with the sound of a trumpet;
Praise Him with the harp and lyre;
4 Praise Him with timbrel and dance;
Praise Him with strings and flute;
5 Praise Him with resounding cymbals;
Praise Him with triumphant cymbals;
Let everything that breathes praise the Lord.

Alleluia.

Psalm 151

1 This is a psalm written with David's own hand, although outside the number, when he fought in single combat with Goliath.†

I was small among my brothers And the youngest in my father's house;

I tended my father's sheep.

My hands built a musical instrument;

My fingers tuned a lyre.

And who shall tell my Lord?

The Lord Himself, He Himself hears.

He sent forth His Angel

And took me from my father's sheep;

And he anointed me with his anointing oil.

My brothers were handsome and tall,

But the Lord took no pleasure in them.

I went out to meet the foreigner,

And he cursed me with his idols;

But I drew his own sword and beheaded him,

And removed disgrace from the children of Israel.

The Book of Job

Author—An unknown and gifted ancient who had inspiration and knowledge that only God could reveal to him. The authorship is attributed to an Israelite because of the repeated use of God's covenant name: YHWH. As transliterated from the Hebrew, it is commonly rendered, “Yahweh.”

Date—There is some evidence that the life of Job was much earlier than the actual writing of the book. He is thought to have lived during the time of the patriarchs—Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—approximately 1600 BC.

Major Theme—The justice of God in light of human suffering. The major theme of the Book of Job is the profound theological problem of how the suffering of a just man relates to God in the midst of his testing. The theme of theodicy is explored throughout the book, with Job's friends attempting to provide the explanation for his suffering. The character of Job is a type of Christ who suffers unjustly and is rewarded for his godliness.

Background—Although this book is considered a Wisdom book, it is written as a poetic dialogue in a prose-narrative literary style. It is the longest ancient Hebrew poem that has ever been known to be composed. There was much difficulty throughout history with the various translations of this book because of the unusual language and style.

The Septuagint (Greek) translation is four hundred lines shorter than the accepted Hebrew text, perhaps because sections were omitted that were not understood. The ancient Syriac (Peshitta), Aramaic (Targum), and Latin (Vulgate) had similar translation difficulties.

In the Church, Job's words have been given a unique place at the end of the Divine Liturgy: “Blessed be the name of the Lord” (1:21).

Outline

I. Prologue (1:1–2:18)
   A. Job's blessings (1:1–5)
   B. Job's testing (1:6–2:18)

II. The Dialogues and Speeches (3:1–27:23)
   A. Job's lament (3:1–26)
Faithful Job and His Children

There was a man in the land of Ausitis whose name was Job. That man was true, blameless, righteous, and God-fearing, and he abstained from every evil thing. Now he had seven sons and three daughters, and his cattle consisted of seven thousand sheep, three thousand camels, five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred female donkeys in the pastures. Moreover he possessed a very large number of house servants. His works were also great on the earth, and that man was the most noble of all the men of the East.

His sons would visit one another and prepare a banquet every day, and invite their three sisters to eat and drink with them. When the days of their drinking were ended, Job sent and purified them; and he rose early in the morning and offered sacrifices for them according to their number, as well as one calf for the sins of their souls. For Job said, “Lest my sons consider evil things in their mind against God.” Therefore Job did this continually.

Satan Is Permitted to Test Job

Then as it so happened one day that behold, the angels of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and the devil also came with them. The Lord said to the devil, “Where did you come from?” So the devil answered the Lord and said, “I came here after going about the earth and walking around under heaven.” Then the Lord said to him, “Have you yet considered my servant Job, since there is none like him on the earth: a blameless, true, and God-fearing man, and one who abstains from every evil thing?” So the devil answered and said before the Lord, “Does Job worship the Lord for no reason? 10 Have You not made a hedge around him, around his household, and around all that he has on every side? You have blessed the work of his hands, and his cattle have increased in the land.† 11 But stretch out Your hand and touch all he has, and see if he will bless You to Your face.” 12 Then the Lord said to the devil, “Behold, whatever he has I give into your hand; but do not touch him.” Thus the devil went out from the Lord.

Job Loses His Children and Property

13 Now there was a day when Job’s sons and daughters were drinking wine in the house of their elder brother,‡ 14 and behold, a messenger came to Job and said, “The yokes of oxen were plowing, and the female donkeys were feeding beside them. 15 Then raiders came and took them captive and killed the servants with the sword; and I alone have escaped to tell you!” 16 While he was still speaking, another messenger came and said to Job, “Fire fell from heaven and burned up the sheep, and likewise consumed the shepherds; and I alone have escaped to tell you!” 17 While he was still speaking, another messenger came and said, “Horsemen formed three bands against us, surrounded the camels, took them captive, and killed the servants with the sword. I alone have escaped to tell you!” 18 While he was still speaking, another messenger came and said, “Your sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine with their elder brother, 19 and suddenly a great wind came from the desert and struck the four corners of the house; and it fell on your children, and they died; and I alone have escaped to tell you!”

20 Then Job arose, tore his robe, and shaved off the hair of his head; and he fell to the ground and worshiped, saying,‡ 21 “Naked I came from my mother’s womb, and naked shall I return. The Lord gave, and the Lord has taken away. As it seemed good to the Lord, so also it came to pass. Blessed be the name of the Lord.”

22 In all these things that happened, Job did not sin against the Lord or charge God with folly.†

Job Loses His Health

2 Then again as it so happened another day, the angels of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and the devil also came among them to present himself before the Lord.‡
The Lord said to the devil, “Where did you come from?” Then the devil said before the Lord, “I came here from walking around under heaven and going about all the earth.”

Then the Lord said to the devil, “Have you considered my servant Job, since there is none like him on the earth: an innocent, true, blameless, and God-fearing man, and one who abstains from every evil thing? Moreover he still holds fast to his integrity, though you told me to destroy his possessions without cause.”

Then the devil answered the Lord and said, “Skin for skin. Whatever a man has he will pay in full for his life. Yet truly, stretch out Your hand and touch his bones and his flesh, and see if he will bless You to Your face.”

So the Lord said to the devil, “Behold, I give him over to you; only spare his life.” Thus the devil went out from the Lord and struck Job with malignant sores from head to foot.

So he took a potsherd to scrape away the discharge and sat on a dunghill outside the city.

When a period of time passed, his wife said to him, “How long will you hold out, saying, ‘Behold, I will wait a little longer, looking for the hope of my salvation’? Listen, your memory is wiped out from the earth: your sons and daughters, the pangs and pains of my womb, which I suffered in vain and with hardships. You yourself are sitting down, spending the nights in the open air among the rottenness of worms; and I go about as a wanderer and a handmaid from place to place and from house to house, waiting for the setting of the sun, so as to rest from my labors and pains that now beset me. But say a word against the Lord and die!”

Then Job looked at her and said, “You have spoken as one of the foolish women speaks. If we accepted good things from the Lord's hand, shall we not endure evil things?” In all these things that happened to him, Job did not sin with his lips against God.

Job's Friends Visit Him

Now when Job's three friends heard of all the evil things that had come upon him, each one came to him from his own place—Eliphaz the Temanite king, Bildad the Shuhite ruler, and Zophar the Naamathite king. For they came to him with one accord: to visit and comfort him. Now when they saw him from a distance, they did not recognize him; and they cried with a loud voice and wept. Each one tore his robe and sprinkled dust on his head.

So they sat down with him on the ground seven days and seven nights, and no one spoke to him, for they saw that his affliction was terrible and very great.
After this, Job opened his mouth and cursed his day, saying:

3 “May the day perish on which I was born,
And the night in which they said, ‘Behold, a male child.’

4 May that day be darkness,
And may the Lord not regard it from above;
Nor may the light come upon it.

5 May darkness and the shadow of death seize it;
May a cloud settle on it.

6 May that day and night be cursed;
May darkness carry it away;
May it not come into the days of the year;
May it not be numbered with the days of the month.

7 But may that night be sorrow,
And may no gladness come upon it, nor joy.

8 But may he who curses that day curse it,
Even he who is about to subdue the great sea-monster.

9 May the stars of that night be darkened,
And may it remain dark.
May it not come into the light,
And may it not see the morning star arise;

10 Because it did not shut up the doors of my mother’s womb,
For it would have removed sorrow from my eyes.

11 Why did I not die in the womb?
Why did I not perish immediately when I came from the womb?

12 Why did the knees receive me,
And why did I nurse the breasts?

13 For now I would have been lying down and quiet;
I would have slept and been at rest

14 With kings and counselors of the earth
Who were insolent with their swords,

15 Or with rulers who had abundant gold
And filled their houses with silver.
Or I would have been like an untimely birth
Proceeding from his mother's womb,
Or like infants who never saw the light.
There the ungodly have burnt out the fury of wrath;
There the weary in body are at rest.
There men of ancient times have ceased together
To hear the voice of those who collect taxes.
The small and great are there,
And the servant who feared his master.
Why is light given to those in bitterness,
And life to souls in pain;
Who long for death, but do not obtain it,
Digging for it like treasures;
And would be very joyful if they could obtain it?
Death is a rest to such a man,
For God is against him.
For groaning comes before my food;
And I weep and am oppressed with terror.
For the terror I was concerned about came to me,
And what I feared happened to me;
Neither was I at peace or quiet, nor at rest,
For wrath came upon me."

Eliphaz Accuses Job.

Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered and said:

"Have you been often spoken to in distress?
But now who shall endure the force of your words?
For though you instructed many,
And strengthened the hands of the weak one;
And raised up the sick with your words,
And imparted courage to feeble knees,
Yet now pain has come upon you and touched you;
And you are anxious.
Is not your fear, your hope,
And the integrity of your way of life changed into folly?

2 Can you remember anyone pure who has perished,
Or true people who were altogether uprooted?²

3 According to what I have seen,
those who plow harmful things and those who sow them
Will reap pain for themselves.

4 They will perish by the command of the Lord,
And they will be destroyed by the breath of His wrath.

5 The strength of the lion, the voice of the lioness,
And the exulting cry of dragons are extinguished.

6 The old lion has perished for lack of prey,
And the cubs of the lioness have left one another.

7 “But if there had been any truth in your words,
None of these evils would have befallen you.
Shall not my ear receive extraordinary things from him?

8 But just as when terror falls upon men
With dread at a noise in the night,²

9 Shivering and trembling befell me
And caused my bones to shake.

10 Then a spirit came before my face,
And my hair and flesh shook with fear.

11 I arose, but could not recognize it.
I looked, and there was no form before my eyes,
But rather a gentle breeze, and a voice, saying,

12 'What? Shall a mortal man be pure in the Lord's sight,
Or blameless before Him in his works?

13 If He puts no trust in His servants,
And if He observes a perverse way in His angels,

14 How much more those who dwell in houses of clay,
Of whom we also are formed of the same clay?

15 Does not He smite them like a moth?

16 They no longer exist from morning till evening;
They have perished, for they cannot help themselves.

17 For He blows upon them, and they are withered.
They have perished for lack of wisdom.'
5 "But call out, if there is anyone who will obey you,
Or if you shall see any of the holy angels.\textsuperscript{2}

2 For wrath destroys a foolish man,
And envy slays one who is deceived.

3 I have seen foolish people taking root,
But suddenly their mode of life consumed them.

4 May their children be far from salvation,
May they be derided at the gates of worse people,
And may there be no one to deliver them.

5 For the righteous will eat what they have gathered,
But they themselves will not be delivered from calamities.
Their strength will be exhausted.

6 For trouble does not come from the earth,
Nor does suffering spring from the mountains;

7 Yet man is born for trouble
As the young bird is born to fly to high places.

8 But surely as for me, I will beseech the Lord,
And call upon the Lord and Master of all,

9 Who does great, incomprehensible,
And marvelous things without number.

10 He causes rain on the earth
And sends water on all the places under the heaven.

11 He sets the lowly on high
And raises up the lost.

12 He frustrates the counsels of the crafty
So their hands cannot carry out their plans.

13 He catches the wise in their craftiness
And subverts the counsel of the cunning.

14 Let them encounter darkness in the daytime,
And may they grope at noontime as though it were night.

15 May they perish in war,
But may the weak escape from the hand of the mighty.

16 May the weak have hope,
And may the mouth of the unrighteous be stopped.

“But blessed is the man whom God corrects;
Therefore, do not reject the chastening of the Almighty.
For He causes a man to be in pain,
But He restores him again.
He smites, but His hands heal.
Six times He shall deliver you out of troubles,
And in seven no harm shall touch you.
In famine He shall deliver you from death,
And in war He shall free you from the power of the sword.
He shall hide you from the scourge of the tongue,
And you shall not be afraid of evils when they come.
You shall laugh at the unrighteous and the lawless,
And you shall not be afraid of the wild animals of the earth.
For the wild animals of the field shall be at peace with you.
Then you shall know your house will be at peace with you;
And in your dwelling place there shall be nothing amiss.
You shall also know your seed shall be many,
And your children shall be like the grass of the earth.
You shall come to the grave as grain reaped in its season,
Or as a heap of threshed wheat harvested at the proper time.
Behold, we have searched this out;
This is what we have heard.
Know for yourself if you have done anything wrong.”

Mercy Has Rejected Me.

But Job answered and said:

“I wish there were someone who would weigh the wrath upon me,
And at the same time lift up my griefs on a scale.
For indeed they would be heavier than the sand of the seashore;
But as it seems, my words are worthless.
For the arrows of the Lord are in my body,
Whose anger drinks my blood;
For when I begin to speak, they pierce me.
5 What then? Will the wild donkey bray for no reason
   If he is not seeking food?
   Or will the ox moo at the manger when it has fodder?

6 Will bread be eaten without salt?
   Or is there any taste in empty words?

7 My soul cannot stop groaning,
   For I see my food to be like the smell of a lion.

8 "Would that my request would come about,
   And the Lord would grant my hope.

9 Let the Lord begin and wound me,
   But let Him not utterly destroy me.

10 May the grave be my city upon the walls which I have leaped.
   I will not turn away from it,
   For I have not lied about the holy words of my God.

11 What strength do I have, that I should continue?
   For how long would my soul endure?

12 Is my strength the strength of stones?
   Or is my flesh made of bronze?

13 Or have I not trusted in Him?
   But help is far from me.

14 "Mercy has rejected me;
   And the visitation of the Lord has disregarded me.

15 My relatives pay no attention to me.
   They pass me by like a wave,
   Or as though I were a failing brook.

16 Those who once reverenced me
   Now look upon me like snow or frozen ice.

17 For when it melts at the approach of the heat,
   It is no longer recognized for what it was.

18 Thus I have been forsaken by all,
   But I am also lost and homeless.

19 Look at the ways of Temanites,
   You who mark the paths of Sabeans.

20 Those who put their trust in cities and wealth
   Will be debtors to shame.
But you have also come to me without mercy,
That seeing my wound you were afraid.
What? Have I ever made any demand of you?
Or do I need your strength
To deliver me from enemies,
Or to rescue me from the hand of the mighty?
"Teach me, and I will keep quiet.
Tell me wherein I have erred.
But as it seems, the words of a true man are worthless,
For I do not ask strength of you.
Neither will your rebuke cause me to cease my words,
Nor will I endure the sound of your word.
Nevertheless you attack the orphan,
And you jump on your friend.
Now therefore, after I looked on your faces, I will not lie.
Sit down now, and may there be no wrongdoing;
And come together again with a righteous man.
There is no wrongdoing on my tongue,
Or does not my throat cultivate understanding?

My Life Is Vain

Is not the life of a man on earth an ordeal?
Is not his life also like the life of a hired man working by the day,
Or like a servant who fears his master,
Or like one who grasps for a shadow,
Or like a hired man who eagerly looks for his wages?
So I have been enduring months of futility,
And agonizing nights have been appointed for me.
When I lie down, I say, 'When will it be day?'
When I arise, I say, 'When will it be evening?'
I am full of pains from evening to morning.
My body is covered with loathsome worms,
And I am wasting away
As I scrape off clods of dust from my eruption.
"My life is lighter than speech
And perishes with an empty hope.

Remember then, my life is a breath,
And my eye will no longer return to see good.

The eye of him who sees me will not see me again;
Your eyes are on me, I am no more.

I am like the cloud that cleared away from the sky,
For if a man goes down to Hades, he shall not come up again.

He shall not return to his own house,
Nor shall his place know him anymore.

Now then, neither will I restrain my mouth.
I will speak by necessity,
Because I will disclose the bitterness of my soul
When I am oppressed.

Am I a sea, or a serpent,
That You set a guard over me?

I said, ‘My bed will comfort me,
And on my couch I will counsel privately with myself.’

You scare me with dreams and terrify me with visions.

You will separate life from my spirit,
Yet keep my bones from death.

For I will not live forever, that I should patiently endure.
Let me alone, for my life is vain.

“What is man, that You should exalt him,
Or that You should set Your heart on him,
Or that You should visit him every morning
And judge him till the time of rest?

How long will You neither let me alone,
Nor let me go until I swallow my saliva in grief?

If I have sinned, what can I do to You,
O You who understand the heart of men?

Why have You set me as Your accuser?
Why am I a burden to You?

Why then have You not forgotten my lawlessness
And purged my sin?
But now I will depart into the earth,
Then Bildad the Shuhite answered and said:

"How long will you speak these things,
And the breath of your mouth be filled with words?
Will the Lord do wrong when He judges,
Or will He who made all things trouble righteousness?
If your sons sinned against Him,
He sent them away because of their lawlessness.
But come early in the morning
And make your supplication to the Lord Almighty.
If you are pure and true, He will hear your supplication
And restore to you the dwelling of the righteous.
Though your beginning shall be small,
Your latter end will be abundantly great.
For inquire about the former generation
And search among the race of our fathers;
For we are of yesterday and know nothing,
Because our life on earth is a shadow.
Will they not teach you and proclaim to you,
And bring forth words from their heart?
"Can the papyrus bloom without water,
Or can the reeds flourish without moisture?"
While it is still on the root and not yet harvested,
Does not any vegetation wither before it receives moisture?
So shall be the end of all who forget the Lord,
For the hope of the ungodly shall perish.
For his house shall be without inhabitants,
And his tent shall turn out to be a spider's web.
If he props up his house, it will not stand,
And when he takes hold of it, it will not endure.
For it is moist under the sun,
And his branch shall come forth out of his rottenness.
He shall lie down upon a pile of rocks
And shall live in the midst of flints.
If he is swallowed up, his place shall deny him.
You have not seen such things,
"That such is the destruction of the ungodly,
And out of the earth another will grow up again.
For the Lord will not cast off the innocent,
Nor will He accept any gift of an ungodly man.
He will fill the mouth of the true with laughter
And their lips with thanksgiving.
But their enemies will be clothed with shame,
And the dwelling of an ungodly man will be no more."

Then Job answered and said:

“I know that is true,
But how can a mortal man be righteous before the Lord?
If he should wish to enter into judgment with Him,
The Lord would not listen to him,
For he could not answer to one out of a thousand of His charges.
He is wise in mind and mighty and great.
Who has hardened himself against Him and endured?
He who makes the mountains old, and men do not know it;
He who overturns them in His wrath;
He who shakes the earth under heaven from its foundations,
And its pillars tremble;
He who commands the sun, and it does not rise;
He who seals off the stars;
He who stretches out heaven;
He who walks on the sea as on firm ground;
He who makes Pleiades, Hesperus, and Arcturus,
And the chambers of the south;
He who does great and unsearchable things,
Glorious and marvelous things without number.
If He goes beyond me, I do not see Him;
If He passes by me, I do not perceive Him;
If He takes away, who can turn Him back?
Who can say to Him, ‘What have You done?’
For if He turns away His wrath,
The great sea creatures under heaven lie prostrate beneath Him.
“Would then that He would hear me, or judge my words.
For though I be righteous, He will not listen to me.
I will entreat His judgment.
If I should call, and He hears me,
I would not believe He is listening to me.
Let Him not destroy me with darkness,
But He has caused my great destruction to no purpose.
For He will not allow me to draw breath,
But has filled me with bitterness.
For if He is strong in power,
Who then can resist His judgment?
For though I were righteous, my mouth will be impious;
And though I were blameless, I will be perverse.
“If I am ungodly, I do not know it in my soul,
But my life is taken away.
Therefore I said, ‘Wrath destroys the great and the mighty.’
The wrongdoers die violently,
But the righteous are laughed to scorn.
For they are delivered into the hands of the ungodly man.
He covers the faces of the judges of the earth.
If it is not He, who else could it be?
“Now my life passes swifter than a runner;
My days have fled away, and they do not see it.
Do the ships leave a mark of their path?
Or does a flying eagle leave a trace of its soaring as it seeks its prey?
If I say, ‘I will forget to speak,’
I will bow down my face and groan.
I shake with fear in all my limbs;
I know You will not leave me as innocent.
But since I am ungodly, why have I not died?
If I should wash myself with snow
And cleanse myself with pure hands,
You have fully immersed me in filth,
And my garment detests me.
“For You are not a man, as I am,
With whom I could contend,
That we should go to judgment together.
Would that we had a mediator who would cross-examine
And hear the case between us.
Let Him remove the rod from me,
And do not let the fear of Him distress me.
Then I will not be afraid, but will speak,
For I am not conscious of any guilt.

Lord, Why Have You Judged Me?

Since I am weary and groaning in my soul,
I will let loose my words to Him.
Because I am distressed,
I will speak in the bitterness of my soul.²
I will say to the Lord, 'Do not teach me to be ungodly.
Why have You thus judged me?
Is it good before You if I do wrong,
And that You renounce the work of Your hands,
And give heed to the counsel of the ungodly?
Do You see as the mortal sees?
Do You see as man sees?
Is Your life human life?
Are Your years like the years of a man,
That You examined my lawlessness
And searched out my sins?
You know I have not acted impiously,
But who is he who can deliver from Your hands?
Your hands fashioned and made me;
Then You changed Your mind and struck me.³
2 Remember that You fashioned me as clay,
But You are turning me back to earth again.‡
Ξ Did You not squeeze me out like milk
And curdle me like cheese?
Ξ You clothed me with skin and flesh,
And knit me together with bones and sinews.
Ξ You granted me life and mercy,
And Your visitation has guarded my spirit.
Ξ ‘Since You have these things in Yourself,
I know You are able to do all things;
For nothing is impossible for You.
Ξ For if I sin, You watch me;
And because of my lawlessness
You will not consider me innocent.
Ξ For if I am ungodly, woe to me,
And if I am righteous, I cannot lift up my head;
For I am full of dishonor.
Ξ I am trapped like a lion for slaughter;
For again You have changed, and You are destroying me.
Ξ You renewed my affliction upon me,
And dealt with me in great wrath;
For You brought severe ordeals upon me.
Ξ ‘Why then did You bring me out of the womb?
Why did I not die, and no eye see me?
Ξ Why have I become as though I had not been?
For why was I not carried from the womb to the grave?
Ξ Is not the time of my life short?
Allow me to rest a little³
Ξ Before I go to the place from which I shall not return,
To an obscure and dark land,
Ξ To a land of eternal darkness, where there is no light,
Neither can any one see the life of mortals.’ ” ⁴

Job Rebuked by Zophar.
Then Zophar the Naamathite answered and said:

2 “He who speaks much should also listen in turn,
   Or does the fluent speaker think himself to be righteous?
   Blessed is the short-lived offspring of a woman.

3 Do not be wordy in your speech,
   For there is no one to reply to you.

4 Do not say, ‘I am pure in my works
   And blameless before Him.’

5 But how does the Lord speak to you?
   He will open His lips against you.

6 Then He will declare to you the power of wisdom,
   For it shall be double in your case.
   At that time you will know a worthy recompense
   Has come to you from the Lord because of your sins.

7 Will you find the traces of the Lord?
   Have you reached the outer extremities
   Of what the Almighty has made?

8 Heaven is high, and what will you do?
   And what do you know,
   For there are even deeper things in Hades?

9 Do you know those dimensions
   That are longer than the earth and broader than the sea?

10 If He should overthrow everything,
   Who then will say to Him, ‘What have You done?’

11 For He knows the works of the lawless;
   And when He sees wrongs, He shall not overlook them.

12 But man vainly swims in words,
   And a mortal born of a woman is equal to a donkey in the desert.

13 If you have made your heart pure
   And stretch out your hands toward Him,

14 If something lawless is done by your hands,
   Put it far away from you;
   And do not let any wrongdoing lodge in your dwelling.

15 For in this way, your face will shine forth like pure water,
For you will cleanse away the filth. You will not fear.

Then you will forget this hardship
Like a wave that has passed away;
And you will not be terrified.

Your prayer will be like the morning star.
At midday, life will rise to you.

You will be confident because you have hope;
And peace shall bring light to you out of anxiety and care.

You will also be at rest,
And there will be no one to fight against you.
Many will change their mind about you and supplicate you.

But salvation will forsake them, for their hope will be lost,
And the eyes of the ungodly will melt away.”

Job Chides His Critics

Then Job answered and said:

Moreover you are men.
Surely wisdom will die with you?

But I also have a heart as well as you.

“A righteous and blameless man
Has become an object of mockery.
For it had been ordained that he should fall
Under the power of others at the appointed time,
And his houses should be plundered by the lawless.

Let not, however, any one be persuaded
That, if he is evil, he will be held innocent.

Let not those who provoke the Lord
Be persuaded there will be no trial for them.

But now ask the four-footed animals if they may speak to you,
And the birds of the air if they may report it to you.

Tell the earth if it may interpret it to you,
And the fish of the sea will explain to you.

Who among all these does not know
The hand of the Lord created them,
That in His hand is the life of every living thing,
And the breath of every man?
For indeed, the ear discerns words,
And the palate tastes wheat.
In length of time is wisdom,
And in long life, knowledge.
"With Him are wisdom and power;
With Him are counsel and understanding.
If He tears down a house, who will build it up again?
If He closes a door against men, who will open it?
If He withholds the water, He will dry up the earth;
If He lets it loose, He will destroy and ruin it.
With Him are might and strength.
He has knowledge and understanding.
He leads counselors away captive
And makes fools of judges.
He sets kings upon thrones
And binds their waist with a belt.
He sends priests away into captivity
And overthrows the mighty of the earth.
He changes the lips of the faithful
And knows the understanding of elders.
He pours dishonor on rulers
And heals the humble.
He uncovers deep things out of darkness
And has brought into light the shadow of death.
He leads the nations astray and destroys them.
He overthrows the nations and leads them away.
He changes the hearts of rulers
And leads them astray in a way they have not known.
May they grope in darkness,
And may they go astray like a drunken man.
Behold, my eye has seen all these things,
And my ear has heard them.
What you know, I also know;
I am not of lesser understanding than you.

Nevertheless I will speak to the Lord
And will reason before Him if He wills.

For you are all dishonest physicians and healers of diseases.

But would that you were silent,
For it would lead you to wisdom.

Hear the conviction of my mouth
And heed the judgment of my lips.

Do you not speak before the Lord
And utter deceit before Him?

Will you draw back?
But you yourselves be judges.

Would it be well for you if He searched you out?

For if you make every effort to join yourselves to Him,

He will surely rebuke you if you also secretly show favoritism.

Will not His terror make you dizzy
And His fear fall upon you?

In the end, your insolence will go away like ashes
And your body like clay.

“Be silent, that I may speak
And put my anger to rest,

So I may take my flesh in my teeth
And put my life in my hand.

Though the Mighty One should lay His hand upon me,
And already He has begun,
I will speak and reason before Him.

This will turn for me into salvation,
For there shall be no deceit before Him.

Listen, listen to my words,
For I will report them in your hearing.

Behold, I am near my judgment:
I know I shall appear righteous.

Who is he who will judge me,
That I should now be silent and be wanting?
Grant me two things,
Then I will not hide my face from You:
Withdraw Your hand far from me,
And let not the fear of You terrify me.
Then You will call, and I will obey You;
Or You will speak, then I will give You an answer.
How many are my sins and transgressions?
Teach me what they are.
Why do You hide Yourself from me
And regard me as Your enemy?
Will You take heed of me as a leaf shaken by the wind?
Or will You set Yourself against me as grass blown by the wind?
For You wrote evil things against me
And compassed me with the sins of my youth.
You have put my foot in the stocks,
Have watched all my works,
And have penetrated into the roots of my feet,
Which have become old like a wineskin
Or like a moth-eaten garment.
For mortal man born of woman Is short-lived and full of wrath.
He falls like a flower that blooms,
And like a shadow, he does not continue.
Have You not taken account of him
And brought him to judgment before You?
For who shall be pure from uncleanness? No one.
Even if his life is but one day upon the earth,
You appointed a time for him, and he cannot exceed it.
Depart from him that he may rest,
And let him be pleased with his life as a hired laborer.

For there is hope for a tree, even if it is cut down,
That it will sprout again, and its tender shoots will not fail.
For though its root may grow old in the earth
And its stump may die in the rocky ground,
Yet at the scent of water it will bud
And bring forth a crop like one newly planted.
But a man who dies is utterly gone,
And when a mortal has fallen, he is no more.
For in time the sea is drawn down,
And a river stops flowing,
And the river bed dries up.
So too, when man falls asleep in death, he will not rise,
For the dead will not awake until heaven is dissolved.
“For would that You had kept me in the grave,
That You had hidden me until Your wrath ceases,
And that You would appoint me a set time
In which You would remember me.
For will man live again
After he completes his course of life and dies?
I will wait until I arise.
Then You will call, and I will answer You,
But do not cast away the works of Your hands.
For You have numbered my practices,
And not one of my sins will escape You.
You sealed up my lawlessness in a bag
And marked if I transgressed unwillingly.
“Truly a mountain falls and crumbles in pieces;
And a rock wears out in its place.
Waters wear away stones,
And overflowing torrents wash away the soil of the earth;
And You destroy the duration of man.
You push him to his end, and he is gone.
You set your face against him and send him away.
If his children multiply themselves, he does not know it,
And if they be few, he does not perceive it.
But the muscles of his body feel pain,
And his soul grieves.
For the ancient Hebrews, death meant a return to the same earth from which all are taken: “For earth you are, and to the earth you shall return” (Gn 3:19; Job 7:21). Nevertheless, a general idea developed that the souls of the dead do continue, though only in a shadowy, semi-comatose kind of existence in a netherworld called sheol, or Hades (Gn 37:34, 35; Pss 114:3, 138:8; Is 14:9–11), a land of “oblivion” (Ps 87:10–12; Job 14:18–22). In sheol—the depths or abyss of the earth, “the Pit”—even the righteous dead abide, without any power of deliverance (Job 7:6–10; Ps 88:48; Is 38:18; Ezk 26:19–21). Yet there was at least a general hope that one’s memory would be kept alive by one’s community and descendants (Ps 111:1–6; Pr 10:7; Dt 25:5, 6).

Only gradually did God reveal glimpses of a glorious life after death to His people, a hope that would become available to all through the power of Christ’s Resurrection. An early hint of this coming hope was revealed to Job. Amid his terrible suffering, Job asks, “If a man dies, shall he live again?” And through a flash of divine insight, he says: “I will wait until I arise” (Job 14:14). Psalms also begin to reflect upon personal resurrection to everlasting life (Ps 15:8–11; 48:15; 70:20–23; 90:1–16).

The first indications of a corporate resurrection of the people of Israel are given in the 8th century BC through Hosea (Hos 6:1–3; 13:14) and Isaiah (Is 26:19). In the early 6th century BC, Ezekiel receives the dramatic vision of a miraculous reconstitution of “the whole house of Israel” on the plain covered with dry bones (Ezk 37:1–14). The Church reads this passage triumphantly on Great and Holy Saturday. Why? Because it is prophetic of the freeing of all the souls from Hades by Christ on that day (1Pt 3:19; Eph 4:8–10) and the general resurrection of all the dead on the last day.

By the late first century BC, as seen in the Wisdom of Solomon, immortality is directly linked with living in wisdom and righteousness: “Kinship with Wisdom is immortality” (WSol 8:17); “The righteous shall live forever” (WSol 5:15; see also 1:13–15; 2:22, 23; 6:17–21). Various passages from this book (WSol 3:1–9; 4:7–15; 5:15–6:3) are read at Vespers in commemoration of some of the more prominent saints.

At the time of Christ, the Sadducees rejected belief in an afterlife (see Mt 22:23), while the Pharisees did believe in resurrection and immortality (Acts 23:6–8). It was the Pharisees’ view which came to dominate in later Judaism. Lazarus’ sister Martha knew about a general “resurrection at the last day” (Jn 11:24), but Jesus declares to her that resurrection and eternal life come only through Him (Jn 11:25; see 3:14–16; 4:14; 6:40, 47–58; 14:1–6).

Christ promises that believers will be with Him after their death (Lk 23:42, 43; see 2Co 5:8; Php 1:21–23). The souls of believers are further enlightened in Christ, as they experience a foretaste of the eternal heavenly kingdom. Yet all the departed still await the general resurrection, the day when their souls will be reunited with their bodies, which are transformed into a glorified state (1Co 15:50–54) like Christ’s own body (Php 3:20, 21; 1Jn 3:2).

15 Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered and said:"

"Will a wise man give as an answer a breath of understanding,
And does he satisfy the pain in his belly,
Arguing with sayings which are not necessary
And with words wherein is no profit?
Have you not moreover cast off fear
And accomplished such words before the Lord?
You are guilty because of the words of your mouth,
Nor have you discerned the words of the mighty.
May your mouth convict you, and not I;
For your lips will testify against you.
What? Are you the first man who was born?
Or were you made before the beaches?
Have you heard the doctrine of the Lord,
And has wisdom come only to you?
What do you know that we do not?
What do you understand that we do not also?
Both the aged and the very old are among us,
Much older than your father.
You have been punished for only a few of your sins;
You have spoken haughtily and exceedingly.
Why has your heart dared,
Or what are your eyes set on,
That you have vented your anger before the Lord
And brought forth such words from your mouth?

“For who is the mortal that shall be blameless,
Or who is born of a woman that shall be righteous,
Since He does not trust His saints
And heaven is not pure in His sight?

Alas then, detestable and unclean is a man
Who drinks wrongdoings like water!

“But I will tell you, listen to me;
I will tell you what I have now seen,
What wise men say.
They did not hide anything received from their fathers.
To them alone the earth was given,
And no stranger came among them.

All the life of an ungodly man is spent in anxiety,
And the years granted an oppressor are numbered.

Fear is in his ears,
And when he at last seems to be at peace,
His destruction comes.

Let him not believe he will return from darkness,
For he has already been given over to the power of the sword.

He has been appointed to be food for vultures,
And he knows in himself that he lives in a dead body;
And a dark day will carry him away like a whirlwind.

Trouble and anguish will come upon him,
And like a general he will fall in the first rank.

For he lifted his hands against the Lord
And acted defiantly against the Almighty Lord.

He ran in His sight with insolence,
With the thickness of his wide shield.

“For he covered his face with his fat
And put a collar upon his thighs.

May he lodge in deserted cities
And enter uninhabited houses;
And what they prepared, others will carry away.

Let him not grow rich, nor let his possessions remain;

Let him not cast a shadow upon the earth,

Neither let him escape the darkness.

Let the wind wither his blossom, and let his flower fall off.

Let him not believe he will endure,

For futility will be his reward.

His harvest will perish before its gathering,

And his branch will not flourish.

May he be gathered prematurely like unripe grapes,

And may he fall off like the blossom of an olive tree.

For death is the witness of the ungodly man,

And fire will burn the houses of those who take bribes.

So he will conceive sorrows, his end will be vain,

And his belly shall bear deceit.”

---

Job's Friends Are Bad Comforters

Then Job answered and said:

“16 I have heard many such things;

You are all bad comforters.

What order is there in words of wind?

Or what troubles you, that you answer thus?

I also could speak as you do,

If indeed your soul were in my soul's place.

Then I would attack you with words

And shake my head at you.

But would there were strength in my mouth:

Then I would not spare the movement of my lips.

---

The Lord Has Rejected Me

“If I should speak, I would feel the pain of my wound,

But if I also should be silent, how would I be less wounded?

But now He has made me weary and a worn-out fool,

And you have laid hold of me.

My falsehood has become a testimony.
It rises up and argues against me to my face.

2 He vented His wrath and struck me down;
He gnashed at me with His teeth;
The arrows of the raiders fell on me.
3 He attacked me with the sharp darts of His eyes;
He struck me on the cheek;
With one accord they ran me down.
4 For the Lord delivered me into the hands of an unjust man
And cast me upon the ungodly.
5 When I was at peace, He rejected me.
He took me by the hair of my head and pulled it out.
He set me up as a mark.
6 They surrounded me with spears aimed at my mind.
Without sparing me, they poured out my gall on the ground.
7 Running at me with all their strength,
They knocked me down, head over heels.
8 I sewed sackcloth on my skin,
And my strength is spent on the ground.
9 My belly is on fire because of weeping,
And shade is on my eyelids.
10 Yet there was no wrongdoing in my hands,
And my prayer is pure.
11 O earth, do not cover the blood of my flesh,
Nor may my cry have a place.
12 Now behold, my witness is in the heavens,
And the One who knows me thoroughly is on high.
13 May my supplication come before the Lord,
And may my eyes pour out tears in His presence.
14 May there be rebuttal for a man before the Lord,
As a son of man with his neighbor.
15 For my years are numbered,
And I shall go the way of no return.
16 “I am perishing, carried away by the wind;
And I ask for a burial-place, but cannot obtain it.
17 I am tired of entreating, yet what have I done?
Strangers have stolen my possessions.
Who is he? Let him join hands with me.
For You hid their heart from discernment;
Therefore, You will not exalt them.
He will declare evils as their portion,
But my eyes melt away because of my children.

Where Is My Hope?

"But You made me a byword among the people,
And I have become an object of laughter to them.
For my eyes are petrified because of Your wrath,
And I am greatly besieged by everyone.
Amazement seizes true men because of this,
And the righteous man rises against the lawless man.
May the faithful man hold to his way,
And may those who have clean hands take courage.
"Nevertheless, all of you stick together,
And indeed come, for I did not find you to be true.
My days have passed in groaning
And my heartstrings are broken.
Light turned night into day.
It is near at the appearance of darkness.
If I tarry, Hades is my home,
And my bed is spread in darkness.
I called upon death to be my father
And decay to be my mother and my sister.
Where then is my hope,
Or where shall I see my good things?
Will they go down with me to Hades,
Or shall we go down together in the tomb?"

Bildad Speaks of the Ungodly

Then Bildad the Shuhite answered and said:

"How long will you keep talking?
Pay close attention so we may also speak."
Why have we been silent before you
Like four-footed animals?

Wrath possesses you. Suppose you die;
Would the earth under heaven be uninhabited,
Or the mountains be overturned from their foundations?

"The light of the ungodly will go out,
And their flame will not go up.

His light shall be dark in his dwelling,
And his lamp beside him shall be put out.

May the least of men pounce on his goods,
And let his counsel stumble him.

For his foot has been caught in a snare,
And he is entangled in a net.

May snares come upon him.

He shall strengthen those who thirst for his destruction.

A snare is hidden in the ground for him,
And a capture awaits him on the beaten paths.

May sorrows destroy him on every side;
And may many enemies come about him.

And plague him with severe hunger,

For a destruction out of the ordinary is prepared for him.

May the toes of his feet be devoured,
For death will consume his beauty.

May health be banished from his dwelling,
And may distress seize him because of a royal decree.

It shall dwell in his tent at night,
And his goodly appearance shall be sown with brimstone.

His roots shall be dried out from below,
And his crop shall be trampled from above.

His memory shall perish from the earth,
And his name shall be remembered no more.

May he be driven from light into darkness.

He shall not be known among his people,
Nor his house preserved on the earth;
But others shall live among his possessions.
The last groaned for him, and wonder seized the first.

These are the dwellings of wrongdoers, and this is the place of those who do not know the Lord."

How Long Will You Weary Me?

Then Job answered and said:

2 "How long will you weary my soul
And take me down with words?

3 Only know how the Lord has dealt with me thus.
You speak against me, and while shaming me,
You press hard on me.

4 Yes indeed, I have truly erred; my error lodges with me.
When I speak words which I should not have spoken,
My words go astray and are unseasonable.

5 Alas! You exalt yourselves against me
And attack me with disgrace.†

6 Know therefore that the Lord has troubled me
And raised His stronghold against me.

7 Behold, I laugh at disgrace and I will not speak.
Nor I will cry out, for judgment is nowhere to be found.‡

8 I am walled in round about and cannot cross over,
For He has set darkness before my face.

9 He stripped me of my glory
And took the crown from my head.

10 He has torn me apart on every side, and I am gone.
He has uprooted my hope like a tree.

11 He handled me vehemently in wrath
And has counted me like an enemy.

12 His raiders came against me with one accord.
They encircled my paths and lay in wait.

13 "My brothers stood far from me
And recognized strangers rather than me.
So my friends became unmerciful.

14 My relatives acted as though they did not know me,
And my close friends have forgotten me.

 Así As for my neighbors and the maidservants of my house,

 Así I was a stranger before them.

 Así I called my servant, but he gave no answer,

 Así Though I begged him with my mouth.

 Así I also entreated my wife,

 Así And summoned the children of my concubines and flattered them.

 Así But they rejected me forever.

 Así When I arise, they speak against me.

 Así Those who know me detest me,

 Así And those whom I truly love turned against me.

 Así The muscles of my body have decayed under my skin,

 Así And my bones are held in my teeth.

The Lord Is Everlasting

 Así “Have mercy on me, have mercy on me, O friends,

 Así For the hand of the Lord has touched me.

 Así Why do you persecute me as the Lord does,

 Así And are not satisfied because of my flesh?

 Así “For who may commit my words to writing,

 Así To put them in a book forever;

 Así With an iron pen and lead,

 Así Or to engrave them in rocks?

 Así For I know He is everlasting,

 Así He who is about to set me free on the earth

 Así And to raise up my skin that endures these things;

 Así For these have been accomplished for me by the Lord;

 Así Which I myself am conscious of,

 Así And my eyes have beheld, and not those of another.

 Así All has been accomplished for me in my bosom.

 Así If you shall say, ‘What shall we say before him? Then we will find in him the root of the matter.’

 Así Indeed, be afraid to cover up your evil,

 Así For wrath will come upon lawless men;

 Así Then they will know where their substance is.”
Then Zophar the Naamathite answered and said:†

*I did not suppose you would answer in that way;
Nor do you understand more than I.

I will heed the discipline of my humiliation,
And the spirit of my understanding causes me to answer.

*Have you not heard these things of old—
From the time man was put on the earth?

For the gladness of the ungodly is a disastrous fall,
And the joy of transgressors is destruction.

Though his gifts ascend to heaven
And his sacrifice touches the clouds,

Just when he already seems to be established,
Then he shall utterly perish;
And those who knew him will say, ‘Where is he?’

Like a dream he flew away and cannot be found;
And he fled like a vision of the night.

The eye observed him, but will see him no more;
Nor will his place any longer behold him.

May his children perish,
And may his vile hands kindle the fire of sorrows.

His bones were full of his youthful vigor,
Which will lie down with him in the dust.

Though evil is sweet in his mouth,
And he will hide it under his tongue;ў

Though he will not spare it and will not forsake it,
But will hold it fast in the midst of his throat,

Yet he shall be unable to help himself,
For the gall of an asp is in his belly.

His wealth gathered unjustly shall be vomited up,
And a messenger will drag him out of his house.

May he nurse on the anger of serpents;
And may a snake's tongue kill him.
May he not see the milk of the pastures,
Nor his supplies of honey and butter.
In vain he has labored unprofitably for wealth,
Of which he will not taste;
For it is like tough meat that he cannot chew.
For he crushed the houses of many weak people.
He plundered their dwelling and caused it to cease.
“There is no salvation in his possessions,
For he will not be saved by what he desired.
Nothing is left for him to eat;
Therefore, his good things will not flourish.
But when he at last seems to be satisfied, he will be distressed,
For every trouble will come upon him.
If he were to satisfy his stomach in some way,
Let God send the fury of wrath upon him,
And may He bathe him in sorrows.
He will not be saved from the power of the sword;
May a bronze bow wound him.
May an arrow pass through his body,
And may lightning strike his dwelling.
May terrors come upon him.
May total darkness await him.
A fire that will not go out will consume him.
May a stranger ruin his house.
May heaven uncover his lawlessness,
And may the earth rise up against him.
May destruction bring his house to an end,
And may a day of wrath come upon him.
This is the portion of an ungodly man from the Lord,
And the heritage appointed to him from the One who watches him.”

Job Pronounces Judgment on the Ungodly

Then Job answered and said:

“Listen carefully to my words,
That I may not have this consolation from you.

3 Bear with me and I will speak;
Then you will stop laughing at me.

4 “What? Is there any one who does not blame me?
Or why should I not be furious?

5 Look at me and be astonished,
And put your hand over your mouth.

6 For even when I remember, I am alarmed,
And pains take hold of my flesh.

7 Why do the ungodly live and become old, even in wealth?

8 Their offspring is according to their desire,
And their children are before their eyes.

9 Their houses flourish, and they have no cause for fear;
Neither is there any affliction from the Lord upon them.

10 Their ox does not miscarry,
For it is preserved safe during pregnancy
And does not suffer a mishap.

11 They remain as an unfailing herd,
And their children dance,

12 Taking up the psaltery and harp;
And they celebrate at the sound of song.

13 They spend their life in their good things
And fall asleep in the rest of the grave.

14 Yet such a man says to the Lord,
‘Depart from me. I do not wish to know Your ways.’

15 What is a sufficient reason for us to serve Him?
What benefit is it for us to meet Him?’

16 For their good things are in their power,
For He does not take notice of the works of the ungodly.

17 “Nevertheless, the lamp of the ungodly will be put out.
Destruction shall come upon them,
And the sorrows of wrath will seize them.

18 They are like chaff before the wind,
And they are like dust a storm carries away.

19 May his possessions fail to supply his children.
God will recompense him, and he will not know it.

May his eyes see his own slaughter,
And may he not be saved by the Lord.

For is his will not in his house with himself?
But the number of his months has been apportioned.

“Is it not the Lord who teaches understanding and knowledge?
Does not He judge murders?
One shall die in the strength of his simplicity,
And wholly at ease and prosperous.
His innards are full of stiff fat,
And the marrow of his bones is dissipated.
Another dies under bitterness of soul,
Not eating any good thing.
They lie down together in the earth,
And decay covers them.
Thus I know you press me recklessly.
You will say, ‘Where is the house of the ruler?
Where is the shelter of the dwelling place of the ungodly?’
Ask those who travel the road,
And do not overlook their signs.
For the evil man makes light of the day of destruction,
But they shall be led away in the day of His wrath.
Who will tell him his way to his face?
Who will recompense him for what he has done?
Yet he is brought to the grave,
And a vigil is kept over the coffin.
The pebbles of the valley have been sweet to him.
Every man shall depart after him,
As countless have departed before him.
How then can you comfort me with empty words,
Since I have no rest from you?”

Eliphaz Accuses Job of Vice

Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered and said:
"Is it not the Lord who teaches understanding and knowledge?"

For what concern is it to the Lord
If you were blameless in your works?
Or what profit is it to Him to make plain your ways?
Will He argue with you while you plead your case?
Will He enter into judgment with you?
Is not your vice plentiful,
And are not your sins innumerable?
For you have taken pledges from your brethren for no reason
And taken away the clothing of the naked.
Neither have you given the thirsty water to drink,
But have even withheld a morsel from the hungry.
You have also admired the personality of some
And have transplanted those already settled on earth.
You have sent widows away empty
And have mistreated orphans.
Therefore snares are all around you,
And a serious war has troubled you.
The light has turned to darkness for you,
And water has covered you as you fell asleep.
"Does not He who dwells on high take notice of all?
Does He not humble those who move about with insolence?
But you say, 'What does the Mighty One know?
Will He judge down into the darkness?
A cloud is His hiding place, so He cannot see
As He travels through the circle of heaven.'
Will you keep to the old path
Which wrongdoers have trod,
Who were seized before their time
And whose foundations were swept away by a flood;
Who said, 'What will the Lord do to us?'
Or, 'What will the Almighty bring upon us?'
Yet He filled their houses with good things;
But the counsel of the ungodly is far from Him.
"The righteous have seen it and laughed,
And the innocent mocked them.

Surely their substance has perished,
And fire will consume what is left.

Eliphaz Exhorts Job to Be Strong

“Be strong, therefore. If you endure,
Then your fruit shall be in good things.
Receive utterance from His mouth
And lay up His words in your heart.
If you return and humble yourself before the Lord,
You have caused wrongdoing to be far from your dwelling.
Then you will lay up treasure for yourself
Like a mound on a rock,
And you shall be like the gold of Ophir
On a rock in the brooks.
So the Almighty will be your helper from enemies,
And He will restore you as pure as silver purged by fire.
For then you will speak freely before the Lord,
Looking up cheerfully to heaven.
When you pray to Him, He will hear you,
And He will allow you to pay your vows.
He will restore righteousness to your dwelling,
And there shall be light on your paths.
You will say, ‘He behaved arrogantly, but he humbled himself,
And He will save him who bows down with his eyes.’
He will deliver the innocent,
And you will save yourself in the purity of your hands.”

Job Will Pursue the Lord

Then Job answered and said:

“Indeed, I know pleading is out of my reach,
For His hand is heavy upon my groaning.
Who then would know, that I might find Him,
And might bring this matter to an end?
I would state my case before Him
And fill my mouth with arguments.

Would that I knew the words He would answer me
And could understand what He would tell me.

Though He would come on me in His great strength,
He would not use the occasion to threaten me.

For truth and rebuke are from Him,
And He would bring my judgment to an end.

“Though I should proceed to this important end
Until I no longer exist,
Still what would I know about the last things?

When He worked on the left hand,
I could not understand it.
His right hand will encompass me,
But I will not see it.

For He knows my way already,
And He has weighed me as gold.

I will go forth in His commandments;
For I have kept His ways and will not turn aside.

I will not disregard His commandments;
But I have hidden His words in my bosom.

“If He too has thus judged,
Who is he that has opposed Him?
Whatever He has willed, that He has done.

Therefore I pursue Him zealously,
And when I was instructed, I thought of Him.

Therefore let me be serious before His face.
I will consider and be afraid of Him.

For the Lord softened my heart,
And the Almighty has alarmed me.

For I did not know darkness would come upon me,
But thick darkness covered my face.

The Way of the Wicked.

24 Why have the times escaped the Lord's notice?

2 “Why have the ungodly stepped over the boundary,
Snatching away the flock with the shepherd?

They have led away the donkey of the orphans
And have taken the widow's ox as a pledge.

They have turned aside the weak from the right way;
The gentle of the land have hidden themselves together.

They departed like donkeys in the field.
Contrary to me, they went forth to their own pursuits.
Their bread was sweet to their little ones.

For they harvested a field that was not their own before the time,
And the weak worked the vineyard of the ungodly
Without pay or food.

They caused many naked to sleep without clothing,
And they took away the covering of their life.

They are wet with the showers of the mountains
And have huddled around the rock for want of shelter.

They have snatched the orphan from the breast
And have humiliated the banished.

They have unjustly caused them to sleep without clothing,
And they have taken away the morsel from the hungry.

They have wrongfully laid snares in narrow places
And have not known the way of righteousness.

They have cast the weak out of the city and their own houses,
And the soul of the infants sighed greatly.
Why then has He not visited them?

“They are ones on the earth who do not know the Lord,
And they do not understand the way of righteousness,
Nor do they walk in His paths.

But He knows their works and delivered them into darkness;
And one shall be like a thief in the night.

For the eye of the adulterer watches for the darkness,
Saying, 'No eye will perceive me';
And he puts a covering on his face.

In the dark he breaks into houses;
In the daytime they seal themselves up;
They do not know the light.
For in due time, the shadow of death will be the same to them,
Because they shall know the troubles of the shadow of death.

“He is swift on the face of the waters;
May his portion be cursed on earth.
May their plants wither on earth,
For they have taken away from the orphans
Even the smallest portions.

Then his sin is recalled to memory,
And he vanishes like a mist of dew;
But what he has done, may it be recompensed to him,
And may every wrongdoer be crushed like rotten wood.

For he has not treated the barren woman well,
And showed no mercy to the feeble woman.

“In his anger, he overthrows the weak;
Therefore when he rises up,
No one believes his own life is safe.

When he falls sick, let him not hope to recover,
But let him perish by disease.

For his exaltation mistreated many,
But he has withered as mallows in the heat,
Or as an ear of corn falling on its own from the stalk.

“If it is not so, who says I speak falsely
And will make my speech worth nothing?”

Bildad Asks How Man Can Be Righteous

Then Bildad the Shuhite answered and said:

“What beginning or fear is His—
He who makes all things in the highest heaven?
For may no one imagine there is a respite for pirates.
Upon whom will there not be an ambush from Him?
How shall a mortal be righteous before the Lord?
Or how may he who is born of a woman purify himself?
If He orders the moon, then it does not shine,
And the stars are not pure in His sight.
26 But Job answered and said:†

2 "To whom are you attached,
Or whom are you going to help?
Is it not He who has great strength
And whose arm is powerful?
3 To whom have you given counsel?
Is it not to Him who has all wisdom?
Or whom will you follow?
Is it not One who has the greatest power?
4 To whom have you spoken words?
Whose breath came forth from you?
5 "Will giants be born under the water
And those inhabiting them?
6 Hades is naked before Him,
And destruction has no covering.
7 He stretches out the north wind upon nothing;
He hangs the earth on nothing.
8 He binds up the water in His clouds,
Yet the cloud is not broken under it.
9 He grasps the face of His throne
And spreads His cloud over it.
10 He encompassed the face of the water by an ordinance
Until the end of light and darkness.
11 The pillars of heaven were spread all over
And stood amazed at His rebuke.
12 He checked the sea with His power,
And by His understanding He wounded the sea-monster.
13 For the bars of heaven fear Him,
Because He put to death the rebellious dragon by a command.
14 Behold, these are parts of His way,
And we will hearken to the least of His words.
Moreover Job continued his speech and said:

2 As the Lord lives who thus judges me,
And the Almighty who embittered my soul,

3 Surely as long as my breath is in me
And the divine breath is in my nostrils,

4 My lips will not speak lawless things,
Nor shall my soul practice wrongdoings.

5 May it not be I who set forth the opinion that you are righteous.
Until the day I die, I will not put away my integrity from me.

6 I hold fast to my righteousness and am not letting it go;
For I am not conscious in myself of having done anything wrong.

7 “Surely not, but rather may my enemies
Be as the destruction of the ungodly,
And those who rise up against me
As the destruction of the lawless.

8 For what hope is there for an ungodly man that he holds to it?
Will he trust in the Lord and be saved?

9 Will the Lord hear his prayer
When distress comes upon him?

10 Has he any confidence before Him,
Or will the Lord hear him when he calls on Him?

11 “But indeed, I will tell you what is the hand of the Lord.
I will not lie concerning what is with the Almighty.

12 Behold therefore, all of you know
You are adding vanity to vanity.

13 “This is the portion from the Lord for the ungodly man,
And the possession of oppressors
Shall come upon them from the Almighty.

14 If their children be many, they will be for slaughter;
And if they reach manhood, they will beg.

15 Those who survive him shall be buried in death,
And no one will have pity on their widows.

ĕ Though he gathers silver like dust
And shall prepare gold like clay,

ĕ The righteous will acquire these things,
And the true ones will possess his wealth.

ĕ His house goes away like a moth
And like a spider's web.

ĕ The rich man will lie down and not continue;
He opens his eyes, but is no more.

ĕ Pains happen to him like a flood,
And thick darkness takes him away in the night.

ĕ A burning wind will take him up, and he will be gone;
And it will scatter him from his place.

ĕ It will blow against him and not spare;
He will try in vain to flee from its force.

ĕ It will strike him with its power,
And whistle him from his place.

\[ \text{The Richness of the Earth} \]

28 "Indeed, there is a place for silver, from whence it comes,
And a place for gold, from whence it is refined. ĕ

ĕ Certainly, iron is taken from the earth,
And copper is hewn out like a stone.

ĕ He set an order to darkness
And examines accurately every limit.

A stone is darkness and the shadow of death.

ĕ There is a narrow channel of the brook because of dust;
So those who forget the right way
Are weakened because of mortal men.

ĕ As for the earth, from it will come bread,
But underneath, it is turned up as by fire;

ĕ Its stones are the source of sapphires,
And its dust contains gold.

ĕ There is a path no bird knows,
Nor has the eye of a vulture seen it.
The sons of the arrogant have not trodden it,
Nor has the lion passed over it.
He has stretched forth his hand to quarry stones
And has overturned the mountains by the roots.
He has broken asunder the whirlpools of rivers,
And my eye has seen every valued thing.
He has uncovered the depths of the rivers
And has brought his power to light.

>Where Is Wisdom Found?<

“Where can wisdom be found?
What is the place of understanding?
Mortal man has not known its way,
Nor is it found among men.
The deep said, ‘It is not in me’;
And the sea said, ‘It is not with me.’
One shall not give massive piles of gold instead of it,
Nor can silver be weighed in exchange for it.
It cannot be compared with the gold of Ophir,
With the precious onyx or sapphire.
Neither gold nor crystal will equal it,
Nor can it be exchanged for vessels of gold.
No mention shall be made of coral and quartz,
But you must hold up wisdom above the most valued things.
The topaz of Ethiopia cannot equal it,
Nor can it be compared with pure gold.
“From where then is wisdom found,
And what is the place of understanding?
It has been hidden from every man
And concealed from the birds of the sky.
Destruction and Death said,
‘We have heard about its fame.’
God has well established its way,
And He knows its place.
For He watches over the whole earth under heaven,
Knowing the things in the earth, all He has made—
The weight of the winds and the measures of the water.
When He made them, He numbered them
And made a way for the claps of thunder.
Then He saw wisdom and declared it;
He prepared it and traced it out.
He said to man, 'behold, the fear of God is wisdom,
And to abstain from evils is understanding.'

The Glories of the Past

Job continued further and said in his speech:

"Who may put me in months past,
As in the days when God protected me—
As when His lamp shone upon my head,
And by His light I walked in the darkness;
As when I steadfastly pursued my ways,
When God's visitation was over my house;
As when I lived in abundance,
And my children were around me;
As when my roads spread out with butter,
And the mountains flowed with milk for me;
As when I went early in the city,
And took my seat in the open square;
The young men saw me and hid,
And all the old men stood up.
The great men refrained from talking
And put their finger to their mouth.
Those who heard me blessed me,
And their tongue stuck to their throat.
The ear heard and blessed me,
And the eye saw me and turned aside.
For I saved the poor from the hand of the oppressor
And helped the orphan who had no helper.
The blessing of the perishing man came upon me,
And the widow’s mouth blessed me.
I put on righteousness
And clothed myself with judgment like a robe.
I was the eye of the blind and the foot of the lame.
I was the father of the weak,
And I searched out the cause I did not know.
I broke the molars of the wrongdoers
And plucked the spoil from the midst of their teeth.
"Then I said, ‘My age shall continue as the stem of a palm tree,
And I shall live a long while.’
My root was spread out to the waters,
And the dew would settle on my harvest.
My glory was fresh within me,
And my bow prospered in its hand.
"Men heard and listened to me
And kept silence for my counsel.
At my word they did not speak again,
And they were very glad when I spoke to them.
They waited for my speech
As the thirsty earth for the rain.
If I laughed at them, they did not believe it,
And the light of my countenance did not fail.
I chose the way for them and sat as a ruler;
And I dwelt as a king in the army,
As one who comforts mourners.

The Present Seems Futile

"But now they laugh me to scorn, Men younger than I, whose fathers I disdained;
Whom I did not deem worthy to be put
With the dogs of my pastures.

Indeed, what profit is the strength of their hands to me?
For them the full term of life was lost.
In want and famine, they are childless.
Yesterday they fled to a waterless desert in anguish and misery.
They are those who surround the noisy salt places,
Who have salty herbs for their food,
And who are also considered worthless
And deficient of every good thing,
And chew on the roots of trees because of their great hunger.

Thieves have risen up against me,
Whose houses were holes in the rocks,
Who cry out among the rustling bushes
And live under the wild shrubs.

They are the sons of fools and dishonored men,
Whose name and fame were extinguished from the earth.

“But now I am their lyre,
And they have me as their byword.

They detest me and keep their distance.
They do not hesitate to spit in my face.

For He has opened His quiver and afflicted me.
They have cast off restraint in my presence.

They rose up against me by the right hands of their offspring;
And they stretched out their foot
And directed against me their paths of destruction.

My paths are ruined, for they stripped off my garment.

He shot me down with His arrows
And used me as He wished.
I am overwhelmed with pains.

My pains are turned upon me.
My hope is gone like the wind
And my salvation like a cloud.

“Even now my soul will be poured forth upon me,
And the days of pains seize me.

By night my bones are set on fire,
And my sinews are broken up.

With great force He took hold of my garment,
And like the collar of my tunic He surrounded me.

You regarded me as clay in the earth,
And my portion is with ashes.
I cry out to You, but You do not answer me.

They stood and observed me.

You attacked me without mercy
And scourged me with a strong hand.

You appointed pains for me
And cast me away from salvation.

For I know death will destroy me,
For the earth is the house for every mortal.

Would that I might lay hands on myself,
Or at least ask another, and he would do it for me.

Yet I wept over every man without strength
And groaned when I saw a man in distress.

But while I held firmly to good things,
Days of evils happened to me instead.

My stomach churns and will not be quiet,
And days of poverty have come upon me.

I go groaning without restraint;
I stand up and cry out in the church.

I have become a brother of sirens
And a companion of sparrows.

My skin has been greatly darkened,
And my bones are burned by the heat.

My lyre turned into mourning
And my song into my weeping.

Job Sets Forth His Integrity

† Job Sets Forth His Integrity

31 I have made a covenant with my eyes,
And I will not think upon a virgin.

What has God apportioned from above,
And what is the inheritance of the Mighty One from on high?

Is not destruction for the wrongdoer,
And alienation for those who do lawlessness?

Will He not see my way and count all my steps?

If I have walked with scorners,
Or if my foot has hastened to deceit,
May He weigh me therefore with a just scale,
For He knows my integrity.

If my foot has turned from the way,
Or if my heart has followed after my eyes,
Or if gifts have touched my hands,
Then may I sow and others eat.
Yes, may I be uprooted on the earth.

“*If my heart has followed after another man’s wife,
Or if I have laid wait at her door,
Then also may my wife please another,
And may my children be humiliated.
For the rage of anger is uncontrolable
In defiling another man’s wife.
For it is a fire burning on every side,
And whomever it comes upon, it destroys at the roots.
*If I have despised the judgment of my servant or handmaid
When they judged me,
* What then will I do when the Lord brings me to trial and visits me?
How shall I answer Him?
Did not He who made me in the womb make them?
So we were fashioned in the same womb.
* *But the weak did not miss whatever they happened to need,
And I did not cause the eyes of the widow to fail.
* If I ate my morsel by myself
And did not share it with the orphan
* (But from my youth I nourished them as a father,
And from my mother’s womb I guided the widow);
* If I have neglected the naked as he was perishing
And did not clothe him;
* If the weak did not bless me,
And if their shoulders were not warmed with the fleece of my lambs;
* If I raised my hand against the orphan,
Trusting that my strength was far superior to his,
* Then let my shoulder fall from my collarbone;
Let my arm be torn from its socket.
For the fear of the Lord seized me,
And I cannot endure His burden.
If I have made gold my strength
Or trusted the precious stone,
If I have rejoiced because my wealth was great,
And if I, too, laid my hand on countless treasures:
(Or do I not see the shining sun eclipsed and the moon waning?)
For this does not depend upon them);
If my heart has been secretly deceived,
And if I have laid my hand upon my mouth and kissed it,
Then may this also be reckoned to me
As the greatest lawlessness;
For I have lied against the Lord most high.
"If I, too, was glad at the fall of my enemies,
And my heart said, 'Good! Well done!'
Then may my ear hear my curse,
And may I be a byword among my people in my affliction.
If my handmaids have often said,
'Who may give us his meat to be satisfied?'
(But I was very kind.
For the stranger did not spend the night outside;
And my door was opened to everyone who came);
If I sinned involuntarily, then covered my sin,
(For I did not stand in awe of great multitude,
So as not to confess before them);
And if I permitted a poor man to go out of my door
With an empty bosom
(Who may listen to me?);
And if I had not feared the hand of the Lord,
And as to the document I had against someone,
I would place it as a crown on my shoulders and read it,
And if I did not tear it up and return it,
Having taken nothing from the debtor;
"If at any time the land groaned against me
And its furrows wept together,
If I have eaten its strength alone without paying,
Or if I also grieved the soul of the owner of the land
By casting him out,
Then may the nettle come to me instead of wheat,
And bramble instead of barley."

Thus Job ceased speaking.

Elihu Is Angered at Job and His Friends

Job's three friends also ceased answering him, for he was righteous before them.

Then Elihu the son of Barachel the Buzite, of the family of Ram, of the country of Ausitis, became furious; and he was very angry with Job, because he declared himself to be righteous before the Lord. He was also very angry with Job's three friends, because they found no answer to Job, and yet affirmed he was an ungodly man. Now because they were years older than he, Elihu waited to speak to Job. So when Elihu saw there was no answer in the mouth of these three men, his wrath was aroused. So Elihu the son of Barachel the Buzite answered and said:

"I am young in years, and you are the elder;
Therefore I was silent
And dared not declare my knowledge to you.

I said, 'It is not time that speaks,
Though in many years, men know wisdom.'

But there is a spirit in mortals,
And the breath of the Almighty is that which teaches them.

The long-lived are not always wise,
Nor do the old men always know judgment.

"Therefore I say, 'Listen to me,
I also will declare what I know.'

Pay close attention to my words,
For I will speak in your hearing, while you examine my words,
And until I shall understand you.
So behold, not one of you answered Job in argument;
Lest you say, 'We have found wisdom added to the Lord.'
But you permitted a man to speak such words.
“They were dismayed and answered no more; They made their words obsolete. I waited, for they did not speak. Because they stood still, they did not answer.”

Then Elihu continued and said:

‘Again I will speak, for I am full of words; The spirit within my stomach is killing me. Indeed, my stomach is like a wineskin of sweet new wine, Bound up and ready to burst, Or like the blowpipe of a coppersmith, ready to bellow. I will speak, that I may find relief in opening my lips. I will not feel shame before any man, Neither indeed will I feel shame before any mortal. For I do not know how to flatter persons, Or else the moths would eat me.

Elihu Claims He Speaks for God

Nevertheless, hear my words, Job, And pay close attention to what I say.² For behold, I have opened my mouth And my tongue has spoken. By my words, my heart shall be found pure; And the understanding of my lips will think pure thoughts. The divine Spirit has made me, And the breath of the Almighty is that which teaches me.² Give me an answer to these things if you can. Endure and stand firm against me, and I against you. You and I were formed out of the clay; Thus, we have been formed out of the same substance. My fear will not distract you, Neither shall my hand be heavy on you. “However you said in my hearing (I heard the voice of your words), For you say, ‘I am pure, for I have not sinned. I am blameless, for I have not acted lawlessly.
Yet He has found a charge against me;
He has counted me as His enemy.

He has put my feet in the stocks,
And He watches all my paths.’

“For how can you say,
‘I am righteous, yet He has not listened to me’?
For He that is above mortals is eternal.

But you say, ‘Why has He not heard every word of my cause?’

For when the Lord speaks once,
Or in another time in a dream,
Or in a meditation of the night
(As when dreadful fear falls upon men
While slumbering on their bed),
Then He unveils the hearts of men
And frightens them with such fearful visions
So as to turn man from his wrongdoing;
Thus He delivers his body from a fall.
He keeps back his soul from death
And does not allow him to fall in war.

“Again He also chastens him with sickness on his bed,
And the multitude of his bones grow numb.
He is not able to receive any food,
Though his soul may long for it,
Until his flesh wastes away
And he shows his bones bare.
His soul also draws near to death
And his life to Hades.

“If there are a thousand death-bringing messengers,
None of them shall wound him.
If he purposes in his heart to turn to the Lord,
And declares to man his fault, and shows his folly,
He will support him, that he might not fall into death;
And He will renew his body like fresh plaster upon a wall,
And fill his bones with marrow.
He will make his flesh young like a child’s
And restore him among men in full manhood.

He shall pray to the Lord, and his prayer shall be accepted.

He shall come to prayer with an innocent face
And with an utterance of thanksgiving,
For He will restore righteousness to men.

Even then, a man shall blame himself, saying,
'I am to blame because of what I did,
Yet He has not examined my guilt
To the extent of my unworthiness.'

Save my soul from going down to corruption,
So my life shall see the light.

"Behold all these things:
The Mighty One works three ways with a man.

But He has delivered my soul from death
That my life may praise Him in the light.

"Give ear, Job; listen to me;
Hold your peace, and I will speak.

If you have anything to say, answer me;
Speak, for I desire you to be declared as righteous.

If not, listen to me;
Hold your peace, and I will teach you wisdom."

Elihu Proclaims God's Justice

Elihu continued and said:

* Hear me, O wise men who are present,
And pay close attention to what is good.

* For the ear tests words as the palate tastes food.

* Let us choose judgment for ourselves;
Let us know among ourselves what is good.

* For Job has said, 'I am righteous,
And the Lord has taken away my judgment.'

* But he spoke untruth in my judgment when he said,
'My wound is severe, though I am without wrongdoing.'

* What man is like Job,
Who drinks scorn like water?

2 For he says, 'I have not sinned, nor committed ungodliness,
Nor had anything in common with the workers of lawlessness,
So as to walk with ungodly men.'

2 For you should not say, 'There shall be no visitation of a man,'
Whereas there is a visitation on him from the Lord.

22 “Therefore listen to me, you wise in heart:
May it be far from me to act in an ungodly way before the Lord
And to pervert righteousness before the Almighty.

2 Yes, He renders to a man as each one of them does,
And in a man's path He will find him.

2 Do you think the Lord will do wrong,
Or will the Almighty who made the earth pervert judgment?

2 Who is He who created everything under heaven
And all things therein?

2 If He should wish to hold and restrain His breath within Himself,
2 All flesh would die together,
And every mortal would return to the ground
From which he was formed.

2 Take heed to this, lest He warn you;
Pay close attention to the voice of His words.

2 Behold then the one who hates lawless things
And destroys the evil ones.
He is forever righteous.

2 He is ungodly who says to a king,
'You act contrary to the law,'
And to rulers, 'O, most ungodly one.'

2 Such a man is not ashamed
Before the face of an honorable man,
Nor does he know how to give honor to the great,
So as to show proper respect.

2 But it will prove to be in vain for them to cry out
And beg the favor of a man;
For they dealt unlawfully when they turned aside the weak.

22 “For He is the observer of the works of man,
And nothing of what they do escapes Him.

22 There is no place for the workers of lawlessness to hide themselves.

23 He need not further consider a man,
For the Lord gazes upon all men.

24 He comprehends unsearchable things,
Glorious also and extraordinary things without number.

25 He discloses their works;
And He will overthrow them in the night,
And they will be brought low.

26 He extinguishes the ungodly,
For they are visible before Him,

27 Because they turned aside from the law of God
And would not regard His ordinances,

28 So as to bring before Him the cry of the needy;
For He will hear the cry of the poor.

29 He will provide quietness, and who shall condemn Him?
And He will hide His face, and who shall see Him?
Whether it be done against a nation or a man jointly,

30 To cause a hypocrite to be king,
Because of the discontent of the people.

31 "For there is one that says to the Mighty One,
'I have received blessings; I will not take in pledge;
I will see apart from myself;
Show me if I have done unrighteousness,
And I will do so no more.'

32 Will He not take vengeance for it from you,
Because you failed to listen to your conscience?
For you will choose, and not I;
Therefore, speak what you know.

Elihu Rebukes Job Sternly

34 "For this reason wise men in heart shall say this,
And a wise man listens to my word.

35 But Job has spoken without understanding,
And his words are without knowledge.
But learn, Job, and no longer answer like that of foolish men,
That we add not to our sins;
For lawlessness will be counted against us
If we speak many words against the Lord.”

Elihu continued, saying:

2 “What is this you consider as judgment?
Who are you to say, ‘I am righteous before the Lord’?

3 Or will you say, ‘What did I do, if I have sinned?’

4 “I will answer you and your three friends.
Look up to heaven and see,
And observe the cloud as higher than you.

5 If you have sinned, what will you do?
If you have acted very lawlessly, what can you do?

6 If you have sinned, what will you give Him?
Or what did He receive from your hand?

7 Your ungodliness may affect a man such as you,
Or your righteousness a son of man.

8 “Those who are slandered by a multitude will cry out;
They will cry out for help because of the strength of the many.

9 But no one says, ‘Where is the God who made me,
Who appoints the night watches,
Who distinguishes me from the four-footed animals of the earth
And from the birds of heaven?’

10 There they will cry out, but no one answers,
Because of the insolence of evil men.

11 For the Lord does not desire to look on wrongdoing,
12 For He, the Almighty, is the observer
Of those who perform lawless deeds,
But He will save me.
Decide before Him if you can praise Him as it is now possible.

13 But now, He is not visiting His wrath,
Nor even taking notice of very much transgression;
14 Yet Job opens his mouth in vain;
In ignorance he burdens us with words.”
Elihu also proceeded and said:

2 'Wait for me yet a little while, that I may teach you,
For there is yet more for me to say.
3 I will gather my knowledge from afar
And truly speak of righteousness in my works.
4 You were not hearing unjust words without good reason.
5 “But know that the Lord who is mighty in strength of heart
Does not cast off an innocent man.
6 He will not give life to the ungodly,
But He will give judgment to the poor.
7 He will not turn away from the righteous,
But will seat them on the throne with kings;
For He will lift them in triumph, and they will be exalted.
8 But if they are bound in fetters,
They shall be held in the cords of poverty.
9 He will tell them their works and their transgressions,
For such will act with violence.
10 He also will hear the righteous,
And He said they will turn from wrongdoing.
11 If they give ear and serve Him,
They shall spend their days in good things
And their years in dignity.
12 But He does not save the ungodly,
Because they are not willing to know the Lord,
And because they refused to listen when they were admonished.
13 “For the hypocrites in heart will marshal anger against themselves,
And they will not cry for help, because He has bound them.
14 Therefore, may their soul die in youth,
And their life be wounded by messengers of death,
15 Because they afflicted the weak and helpless;
And He will make manifest the judgment of the gentle.
16 “Besides, He deceived you by the mouth of the enemy.
There is an abyss and a pouring over beneath it,
And your table descended full of fatness.

There is an abyss and a pouring over beneath it,
And your table descended full of fatness.

Judgment shall not fail from the righteous,
But there shall be anger against the ungodly
Because of the ungodliness of the gifts they received for wrongdoings.

Let not your heart willingly turn you aside
From the petition of the weak who are in distress.

Do not lure away all the mighty men at night
So the people should go up instead of them.

"But guard yourself, lest you do what is wrong,
For you chose this because of poverty.

Behold, the Mighty One shall prevail by His strength.
Who is so powerful as He?

Who is he who examines His works?
Or who can say, 'He has done unjustly'?

God's Works Are Great

Remember, His works are great,
Because of which men began to exist.

Everyone has seen for himself
How many mortals are wounded.

Behold, the Mighty One is great,
And we do not know Him.
The number of His years is also endless.

For He numbers the drops of rain,
And they shall be poured out in rain to form a cloud.
The ancient clouds shall drop down
And overshadow innumerable mortals.

He has fixed a time for cattle,
And they know the appointed time for their rest.
Yet your mind is not astonished by these things,
Nor does your heart leap out from your body.

For one should perceive the outspreadings of a cloud
And the measure of His tabernacle.

Behold, He stretches His bow against him
And covers the bottom of the sea.

For by these He will judge the peoples.

He will give food to him who has strength.

He has hidden light in His hands

And given orders to the cloud by which it is diverted.

The Lord will proclaim it to His friend,

But there is also a portion for unrighteousness.

"At this also my heart was troubled and flows from its place.

Listen attentively to the thunder of the Lord's wrath

And the discourse coming from His mouth.

His dominion is under the whole heaven

And His light to the ends of the earth.

Behind Him a voice will cry aloud.

He will thunder with His voice of outrage,

Yet He will not change them when His voice is heard.

The Mighty One will thunder marvelously with His voice,

For He does great things we cannot comprehend.

For He commands the snow, 'Fall upon the earth,'

And likewise there is the winter,

The rain and the winter storms of His might.

He seals up the hand of every man

That everyone may know his weakness.

The wild animals go into their shelters

And are at rest in their lairs.

From the secret chambers comes the whirlwind,

And cold from the mountaintop.

By the breath of the Mighty One, He will send frost,

And He freezes the waters as He wishes.

And when the cloud obscures what He chooses,

His light will disperse the cloud.

He will swirl the encircling clouds by His governance

To perform all their works,

Moving them to do whatever He commands.

This has been appointed by Him on the earth,

Whether for correction or for His earth,
Or if He shall find him an object for mercy.

“Pay close attention to this, O Job.

Stand still and consider the power of the Lord.

We know that God has appointed His works,

Having made light out of darkness.

He knows the division of the clouds

And the violent falls of evil men.

But your robe is warm,

And there is quiet upon the land.

Will you establish with Him the foundations

For the ancient heavens?

They are strong like a molten mirror.

“What is this to you? Teach me what we will say to Him,

And let us cease speaking many words.

Have I a book or scribe by me

That I may stand and put man to silence?

But the light is not visible to all.

It shines far off in the ancient heavens,

As that which is from Him in the clouds.

From the north come the clouds, shining like gold;

In these great things are the glory and honor of the Almighty.

We do not find another like Him in His strength.

Do you not think He who judges righteously listens?

Therefore men shall fear Him,

And the wise in heart shall fear Him.”

The Lord Speaks to Job.

After Elihu had ceased from speaking, then the Lord spoke to Job out of the whirlwind and clouds, saying:

“Who is this who hides counsel from Me,

And holds words in his heart

And thinks to conceal them from Me?

Gird your waist like a man;

I will question you, and you shall answer Me.”
“Where were you when I laid the foundations of the earth?
Tell Me, if you have understanding.

Who determined its measurements? Surely you know.
Or who stretched the line upon it?

To what were its foundations fastened,
Or who laid its cornerstone,

When the stars were made
And all My angels praised Me in a loud voice?

“I shut up the sea with doors
When it burst forth and issued from the womb.

I made the clouds its garment and wrapped it in mist.
I fixed My limit for it and set bars and doors.

I said, ‘This far you may come, but no further,
And here your waves must stop.’

“Did I order the morning light in your time,
And did the morning star see its appointed place,

To lay hold of the ends of the earth
And to shake the ungodly out of it?

Or did you take clay of the ground and form a living creature,
And set it with the power of speech upon the earth?

Have you removed light from the ungodly
And crushed the arm of the arrogant?

“Have you come upon the fountain of the sea
And walked in the tracks of the deep?

Do the gates of death open to you for fear,
And did the doorkeepers of Hades quake when they saw you?

Have you been instructed in the breadth of the earth under heaven?
Tell Me now, what is the extent of it?

“In what kind of land does the light dwell,
And what kind is the place of darkness?

If you would bring Me to their boundaries,
And also if you understand their paths,

Then I know you were born at that time,
And the number of your years is great.

"Have you come upon the storehouses of snow?
Have you seen the storehouses of hail?
Are they stored for you against the time of your enemies,
For the day of wars and battles?
From where does the frost proceed?
From where does the south wind scatter over the earth?
"Who prepared a course for the violent rain
Or a path for the thunders?
Who causes it to rain on a land where there is no man,
Or an uninhabited wilderness, where there is not a man in it,
To satisfy the untrodden and uninhabited land
And cause it to spring forth a crop of tender grass?
Who is the rain's father,
And who has begotten the drops of dew?
From whose womb comes the ice,
And who has given birth to the frost in heaven,
Which descends like flowing water?
Who made firm the face of the abyss?
"Do you understand the band of the Pleiades,
And have you opened the fence of Orion?
Will you open up Mazzaroth in its season,
And the evening star with his rays?
Will you guide them?
Do you know the movements of heaven
Or the events which take place together under heaven?
"Will you call a cloud with your voice,
And will it obey you with a violent shower of much rain?
Can you send out lightnings, and they shall go?
They shall say to you, 'What do you want?'
Who has given to women wisdom in weaving
Or knowledge of embroidery?
Who can number the clouds by wisdom,
And who bowed heaven down to earth?
For it is spread like a cloud of dust,
And I have joined it together as one hewn stone to another.

"Will you hunt prey for the lions
Or satisfy the lives of the serpents?
They fear in their dens,
And live in the forests, and lie in wait.
Who provides food for the raven?
For its young ones wander
And cry to the Lord in search of food.

"Do you know the time when the wild rock goats bear young,
And do you mark when the deer gives birth?
Do you number the full months of childbearing,
And have you relieved their pangs?
Have you reared their young without fear,
And have you sent away their pangs?
Their young ones will break forth;
They will be multiplied with offspring;
They depart and do not return.
Who set the wild donkey free?
Who loosed his bonds?
I made the wilderness his dwelling
And the salt lands his house.
He scorns the great multitude of the city;
He does not heed the blame of the tax collector.
He will survey the mountains as his pasture,
And he seeks out every green thing.
Will the wild ox be willing to serve you?
Will he bed by your manger?
Can you bind his yoke with ropes,
Or will he plow furrows for you in the field?
Do you trust him because his strength is great?
Or will you commit your works to him?
Will you trust him to bring home your seed
And gather it to your threshing floor?
The wings of the falcon wave proudly,
But are her wings and pinions like the kindly stork's?
Moreover the Lord God answered Job and said:

Ě For the falcon leaves her eggs on the ground
And warms them in the dust.
Ě She has forgotten that a foot will scatter them,
Or that wild animals will trample them.
Ě She hardens herself against her young ones
As though they were not hers.
She labors in vain without concern,
Ĕ Because God deprived her of wisdom
And did not endow her with understanding.
Ě When she lifts herself on high,
She scorns the horse and its rider.
Ě Have you given the horse strength?
Have you clothed his neck with a mane?
Ĕ Have you put on him a suit of armor
And made his breast glorious with courage?
Ě He paws exultingly in the valley
And goes forth with strength into the plain.
Ĕ He mocks at battle when he sees it,
Nor does he turn back from the sword.
Ě The bow and the sword resound against him,
And his rage would destroy the earth.
Ĕ He will not believe until the trumpet sounds,
Ĕ For at the blast of the trumpet he says, 'Good! Well done!'
He smells the battle from afar with its leaping and shouting.
Ĕ Does the hawk remain steady by your understanding,
And spread its rigid wings looking toward the south?
Ĕ Does the eagle mount up at your command,
And the vulture remain sitting over its nest
Ĕ On the crag of a hidden rock?
Ĕ From there it spies out the prey;
Its eyes observe from afar.
Ě Its young ones roll themselves in blood;
And where the slain are, immediately they are found.
“Will anyone pervert judgment with the Mighty One?
He who rebukes God will answer for it.”

Job Responds.

3 Then Job answered the Lord and said:

4 “Why am I still judged and admonished,
Even if I rebuke the Lord, hear such things, and am nothing?
But what answer will I give to these things?
I will put my hand over my mouth.
5 I have spoken once.
I will not do so a second time.”

The Lord Calls Job to Account.

6 The Lord yet answered Job out of the cloud and said:

7 “No rather, gird up your waist like a man,
For I will question you, and you shall answer Me.
8 “Do you not reject My judgment?
Do you think I have dealt with you in any other way
Than might appear to you to be righteous? 2
2 Have you an arm like the Lord’s?
Or can you thunder with a voice like His?
20 Assume now majesty and power,
And clothe yourself with glory and honor.
21 Send forth messengers with wrath
And humble every insolent man.
22 Extinguish the arrogant man
And consume at once the ungodly.
23 Hide them together in the earth
And fill their faces with disgrace.
24 Then I will also admit
That your own right hand can save you.
25 “But look now at the wild animals with you.
They eat grass like oxen. 1
26 Behold now, his strength is in his loins,
And his power is in the center of his stomach.

He sets up his tail like a cypress;
His nerves are tightly knit.

His ribs are like ribs of bronze,
And his backbone like bars of iron.

This is the ruler of the Lord's creation,
Made to be mocked at by His angels.

When he goes up to a rough mountain,
He causes joy to the four-footed animals in Tartarus.

He lies under trees of every kind,
Alongside the papyrus, and reed, and bulrush.

The great trees shade him with their branches;
So do the branches of the willow.

If there should be a flood, he will not notice it;
He is confident, though the Jordan beats against his mouth.

Though he takes it in his eyes,
Or one pierces his nose with a snare.

Will you catch the serpent with a hook
And put a halter about his nose?

Or will you fasten a ring in his nose
Or pierce his lip with a hook?

Will he speak to you in prayer,
Softly with the voice of a suppliant?

Will he make a covenant with you?
Will you take him as a servant forever?

Will you play with him as with a bird,
Or will you cage him as a sparrow for a child?

Do the nations feed upon him?
Will they apportion him among the nations of the Phoenicians?
All the ships come together would not be able
To bear the mere skin of his tail,
Or carry his head with fishing vessels.

Once you lay your hand on him,
Remembering the battle waged by his mouth,
Let it not be done again.
"Have you not seen him? Have you not wondered at what has been said of him?"

2 Do you not fear because I am prepared?

Who then is able to stand against Me?

3 Who will stand against Me and endure,

Since everything under heaven is Mine?

4 “I will not be silent because of him,

Though because of his power, one shall pity his antagonist.

5 Who will remove his outer coat?

Who may enter within the fold of his breastplate?

6 Who will open the doors of his face,

With his terrible teeth all around?

7 His entrails are as brazen plates,

And the texture of his skin as a sýmrite stone.

8 One part clings to another

So no air comes between them.

9 A man will be joined to his brother.

They stick together and cannot be parted.

10 His sneezings flash forth light,

And his eyes are like the appearance of the morning star.

11 Out of his mouth go burning lights;

Sparks of fire shoot out.

12 Smoke goes out of his nostrils

As from a boiling pot with fire of coals.

13 His breath kindles coals,

And a flame goes out of his mouth.

14 Strength dwells in his neck,

And destruction runs before him.

15 The muscles of his body are joined together.

They are firm on him and cannot be moved.

16 His heart is as hard as stone,

And it stands like an unyielding anvil.

17 When he turns, he is a terror

To the four-footed wild animals which leap upon the earth.

18 Though the sword reaches him, it cannot avail;

Nor does spear or javelin.
2 He regards iron as straw,
And bronze as rotten wood.

3 The arrow cannot wound him;
The sling-stone becomes like grass to him.

4 Hammers are regarded as straw,
And he laughs at the threat of javelins.

5 His bed is like sharp skewers,
And all the gold of the sea under him
Is like a great amount of clay.

6 He makes the deep boil like a brazen pot,
And he regards the sea like a pot of ointment.

7 The lowest part of the deep is as a captive.
He reckons the deep as his walking range.

8 On earth there is nothing like him,
Who was made to be mocked at by My angels.

9 He beholds every high thing;
He is king over all that are in the waters.”

Job's Confession and Repentance

Then Job answered the Lord and said:§

2 “I know You can do all things,
And nothing is impossible for You.

3 For who is he who hides counsel from You?
Who keeps back his words
And thinks to hide them from You?
Who will tell me what I knew not,
Things too great and wonderful, which I did not know?

4 But hear me, O Lord, that I also may speak.
I will ask You, and please teach Me.

5 “I have heard of You by the hearing of the ear,
But now my eye sees You.

6 Therefore I depreciate myself, and I waste away.
I regard myself as dust and ashes.”

The Lord Rebukes and Redeems Job's Friends
So it was, after the Lord had spoken these words to Job, that the Lord said to Eliphaz the Temanite, “You have sinned, you and your two friends, for you have not spoken before Me what is true, as My servant Job has." 8Now therefore, take for yourselves seven bulls and seven rams, go to my servant Job, and offer up for yourselves a burnt offering; and my servant Job shall pray for you. For I will only accept him, but for his sake, I would have destroyed you; because you have not spoken what is true regarding my servant Job.” 9So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite went and did as the Lord commanded them; and He redeemed their sin for Job's sake.†

Job's Wealth Is Restored

10Then the Lord restored Job's losses when he prayed for his friends, and He forgave their sin. But the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before. 11Then all his brothers and all his sisters heard about everything that happened to him, and they came to him. So did all who knew him from the first. They ate food and drank with him and comforted him; and they wondered at all the Lord brought upon him. Each one gave him a lamb and four drachms’ weight of uncoined gold.†

12Now the Lord blessed the latter days of Job more than his beginning. He had fourteen thousand sheep, six thousand camels, one thousand yoke of oxen, and one thousand donkeys. 13He also had seven sons and three daughters. 14And he named the first, Day, the second, Cassia, and the third, Amalthia's Horn. 15In all the land, there were found no women so beautiful as the daughters of Job, and their father gave them an inheritance among their brothers. 16After this affliction, Job lived one hundred and seventy years, and all the years he lived were two hundred forty-eight; and Job saw his children and grandchildren for four generations. 17So Job died, old and full of days. 18It is written that he will rise with those whom the Lord resurrects.†

21Now these were the kings who reigned in Edom, over which country he also ruled. First, there was Balak the son of Beor, and the name of his city was Dennaba. But after Balak, there was Jobab, who is called Job. After him, there was Asom, who was ruler out of the country of Teman. After him, there was Adad the son of Barad, who destroyed Midian in the plain of Moab; and the name of his city was Gethaim. 22 Now his friends who came to him were: Eliphaz, of the children of Esau, king of the Temanites; Bildad, ruler of the Shuhites; and Zophar, king of the Minians.

The Proverbs of Solomon of Solomon

Author—Solomon was the principal contributor to this collection.

Date—970–931 BC

Major Theme—“The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom” (9:10). Proverbs is thought to be the foundation for the Beatitudes (Mt 5). In the first nine chapters, the wisdom of God is personified as a companion of God from the beginning and is revealed in the Second Person of the Trinity, Jesus Christ. The personification of wisdom in 8:22–35 is applied to the Theotokos, the Mother of God, in the Church's Divine Liturgy.

Background—Hebrew proverbs are often written as individual couplets with two lines of equal length. Two common types are (1) the synonymous proverb, which expresses the same basic thought in both lines; and (2) the antithetical proverb, which offers a contrast, such as between wise and foolish or virtuous and evil. The main writings of Solomon reflect the antithetical proverb.

In the “words of the wise” (22:20–24:39), there is a prevalence of two- or three-verse units. The style changes in the end, with the acrostic poem where wisdom is personified as a woman, honoring the wife of noble character.

VI. Numbered Proverbs (30:16–35)

VII. The Words of a King (31:1–9)

VIII. The Ideal Wife (31:10–30)

To Know Wisdom.

1 The Proverbs of Solomon, the son of David,

Who reigned in Israel,
To know wisdom and instruction,
And to understand words of discernment;
To receive both subtlety of words,
And to understand true righteousness and upright judgment;
So as to give astuteness to the simple,
And both perception and understanding to a young man;
For a wise man who hears these things will be wiser,
And the man of understanding will gain direction.

Wisdom Begets the Fear of God

He will understand both a parable and a hidden saying,
Both wise words and riddles.²
The fear of God is the beginning of wisdom,
And there is good understanding in all who practice it;²
And godliness toward God is the beginning of perception,
But the ungodly despise wisdom and instruction.
Hear, my son, the instruction of your father,
And do not reject the laws of your mother.²
For you will receive a crown of grace on your head
And a gold chain around your neck.
My son, do not let the ungodly lead you astray,
And do not consent if they invite you, saying,²
“Come with us; take part in bloodshed,
And let us hide a righteous man in the earth unjustly;
And let us swallow him, just as Hades does the living,
And let us take away his remembrance from the earth;
Let us seize his valuable property,
And let us fill our houses with spoils;
Cast your lot with us
And let us acquire a common bag;
Let there be one purse for us.”
Do not walk in the way with them,
But turn away your foot from their paths.
For their feet run to evil,
And they make haste to shed blood.
For nets are not spread before birds for no reason,
For those who participate in murder store up evils for themselves;
And evil is the destruction of lawless men.
These are the ways of all who accomplish lawless things,
For they take away their own soul in ungodliness.

Wisdom Speaks Out

Wisdom sings in the streets;
She moves boldly in the squares.
She preaches on high city walls
And sits at the gates of lords.
At the gates of a city she boldly says,
"So long a time as the simple hold fast to righteousness,
They shall not be ashamed;"
But those without discernment, since they are desirous of arrogance,
And are become ungodly, they hate perception,
And are become subject to reproofs.
Behold, I shall bring forth upon you the utterance of my breath,
And I shall teach you my word.
Since I called, but you did not obey,
And spoke at length, but you paid no attention,
But made my counsels invalid,
And were not persuaded by my reproofs;
Consequently, I will laugh at your annihilation,
And will exult when ruin comes to you,
And when confusion reaches you unawares,
And overthrow comes like a whirlwind,
And when tribulation and anguish come to you,
And when destruction comes to you.
For it shall be, when you shall call upon me,
I will not listen to you;
Evil men will seek me, but not find me,
For they hate wisdom, and choose not the fear of the Lord.
Neither do they wish to follow my counsels,
But despise my reproofs.
Therefore, they shall eat the fruits of their own way
And be filled with their own ungodliness.
For since they wrong the simple, they shall be killed,
And a close examination shall destroy the ungodly.
But he who obeys me shall dwell in hope,
And shall be at rest without fear from every evil."

It Is Wise to Obey

2 My son, if you receive the words of my commandment
And hide them within yourself,
Your ear will be obedient to wisdom,
And you will incline your heart to understanding;
You will entrust it to your son as an admonition.

3 For if he calls upon wisdom,
And you utter your voice for understanding;
If you seek perception with a strong voice,
If you seek her as silver
And search for her as treasure,
Then you will understand the fear of the Lord
And find the knowledge of God.

5 For the Lord gives wisdom,
And from His face come knowledge and understanding;
And He stores up salvation for the upright;
He will protect their journey,
That He might guard the ways of His ordinances;
And He will carefully guard the way of those who reverence Him.

Then you will understand righteousness and judgment,
And accomplish successfully every good path for yourself.

Holy Thinking

"For if wisdom comes into your mind,
And the perception in your soul seems to be good,
Then good counsel will guard you,
And holy thinking will keep you;
That it might rescue you from an evil way
And from a man who speaks nothing trustworthy.

Woe to those who forsake the paths of uprightness

So they may walk in the ways of darkness,

Who delight in evils

And rejoice in evil perversion,

Whose ways are crooked

And their paths devious,

So they may cause you to be far from the straight way

And a stranger to righteous judgment.

My son, do not lay hold of evil counsel,

Nor forsake the teaching of your youth

And forget the divine covenant;

For it establishes its house with death,

And its paths beside Hades with the dead;

All who journey there do not return,

Nor do they lay hold of straight paths;

For they do not comprehend the years of life.

For if they walked in good paths,

They would find the smooth paths of righteousness.

The inhabitants of the land will be good,

And the simple will be left in it;

For the upright will dwell in the land,

And the holy will be left in it.

The ways of the ungodly shall perish from the land,

And the lawless shall be banished from it.

The Laws of Wisdom

My son, do not forget my laws,

But let your heart keep my words;

For length of days, and years of life and peace

They will add to you.

Do not let almsgiving and faithfulness forsake you,

But hang them upon your neck;

And you will find grace

And provide good things before the Lord and men.
5 Trust in God with all your heart,
And do not exalt your own wisdom.

6 In all your ways know wisdom,
That she may cut a straight path for you;
And your foot will not stumble.

7 Do not rely on your own discernment,
But fear God, and turn away from every evil.

8 Then there shall be healing for your body
And care for your bones.

9 Honor the Lord from your righteous labors,
And offer Him the firstfruits from the fruits of your righteousness,

10 That your storehouses may be filled with abundance of grain,
And your winepresses may gush with wine.

11 My son, do not despise the instruction of the Lord,
Neither grow weary under His reproof.

12 For whom the Lord loves He instructs,
And chastises every son He receives.

13 Blessed is a man who finds wisdom,
And a mortal who sees discernment;

14 For the profits gained from wisdom are better
Than the treasures of gold and silver.

15 And wisdom is more valuable than precious stones,
And nothing evil will withstand her;

16 She is well known to all who come near her,
And no honor is worthy of her.

17 For length of days and years of life are in her right hand,
And in her left hand are riches and glory;

18 Righteousness proceeds from her mouth,
And she carries law and mercy upon her tongue.

19 Her ways are good ways,
And all her paths are in peace.

20 She is a tree of life for all who cleave to her,
And she is security for those who lean upon her as upon the Lord.
God by wisdom founded the earth
And prepared the heavens with discernment.\(^\text{1}\)
With perception the depths were broken up,
And the clouds flowed with dew.

The Cure for Carelessness

My son, do not be careless,
But keep my counsel and thinking,\(^\text{2}\)
That your soul may live,
And grace may be around your neck.
And there will be healing for your flesh
And care for your bones,
That you may walk confidently in peace in all your ways,
And your foot may not stumble.
For if you sit down, you will be without fear,
And if you lie down, your sleep will be pleasant.
And do not be afraid of intimidation when it comes upon you,
Nor of the attack of the ungodly when it comes at you;
For the Lord will be over all your ways,
And He will plant your feet firmly, that you may not be shaken.
Do not withhold doing good to the needy,
When you may give a helping hand;
Do not say, when you are able to do good,
“Come back tomorrow, and I will give you something”;
For you do not know what the next day will bring forth.
Do not devise evil things against your friend
Who dwells beside you and trusts in you.
Do not be ready to quarrel with a man in vain,
Lest he do you some harm.
Do not incur the reproach of evil men,
Neither seek their ways;
For every lawless man is unclean before the Lord,
And he does not sit among the righteous.
The curse of God is in the houses of the ungodly,
But He blesses the dwellings of the righteous.
The Lord opposes the arrogant,
But He gives grace to the humble.
The wise shall inherit glory,
But the ungodly exalt dishonor.

Obedient Thinking

4 Hear, my children, the instruction of your father,
And pay attention, that you might know his thinking;
2 For I offer a good gift to you;
Do not forsake my law.
3 For I was a son, and I was obedient to my father,
And beloved in the presence of my mother,
4 Who taught me, saying,
“Let our word become firmly planted in your heart;
5 Guard our commandments; do not forget them;
Neither disregard the word of my mouth,
6 Nor forsake it, and it shall cleave to you;
Love it, and it will keep you.
7 Secure it, and it shall exalt you;
Honor it, that it may embrace you,
8 And give your head a crown of graces,
And cover you with a crown of delight.”

The Paths of Wisdom

2 Hear me, my son, and receive my words,
And the years of your life shall be increased,
That many ways of life may be yours;
3 For I teach you the ways of wisdom
And set you on upright paths.
4 For if you walk, your steps shall not be confined;
And if you run, you will not grow weary.
5 Lay hold of my instruction; do not let go,
But guard it for yourself as your life.
6 Do not go in the ways of the ungodly,
Neither be zealous for the ways of the lawless;
In whatever place they encamp, do not go there,
But turn aside from them and pass by.
For they cannot sleep unless they do evil;
Their sleep is taken away, and they do not rest;
For they feed on the bread of ungodliness,
And they are drunk with the wine of lawlessness.
But the ways of the righteous shine like a light;
They go before and give light until full daylight.
But the ways of the ungodly are dark;
They do not know how they stumble.

My son, give heed to my word
And incline your ear to my words,²
That your fountains may not fail you;
Guard them in your heart;
For they are life to those who find them
And healing for all their flesh.
Keep your heart with all watchfulness,
For from these words are the issues of life.
Put away from yourself a crooked mouth
And remove unrighteous lips far from you.
Let your eyes look straight forward,
And let your eyelids assent to righteous things.
Make straight paths for your feet
And direct your ways aright.
Do not turn aside to the right or to the left,
But turn your foot from an evil way;
For God knows the ways on the right hand,
But those on the left are perverse;
And He shall make your paths straight
And guide your steps in peace.

My son, hold fast to wisdom
And incline your ear to my words,\textsuperscript{12} That you may guard good thinking;
And I command you with the perception of my lips.
\textsuperscript{2} Do not join yourself to a base woman,
For honey drips from the lips of a prostitute,
Or for a season she is pleasing to your taste;
\textsuperscript{4} Afterward, however, you will find her more bitter than gall
And sharper than a two-edged sword.
\textsuperscript{5} For feet lacking discernment lead those using her down into Hades with death;
Her footsteps are not planted,
\textsuperscript{6} For she does not travel the ways of life;
And her paths are slippery and not easy to discern.

\textbf{The Perils of Sex outside of Marriage.}

\textsuperscript{2} Now therefore, my son, hear me,
And do not make my words invalid;\textsuperscript{2}
\textsuperscript{8} Make your way distant from her
And do not come near the doors of her house,
\textsuperscript{9} That you may not give away your life to others
And your existence to the merciless;
\textsuperscript{10} That strangers may not be filled with your strength,
And your labors go into the houses of strangers,
\textsuperscript{11} And you should feel regret at the last,
When the flesh of your body is consumed;
\textsuperscript{12} And you will say, “How I hated instruction
And turned my heart away from reproofs;
\textsuperscript{13} I did not hear the voice of my instructor and teacher,
Nor did I incline my ear;
\textsuperscript{14} Little by little I was in every evil
In the midst of the church and congregation.”

\textbf{The Sanctity of Marriage.}

\textsuperscript{15} Drink waters from your vessels
And from the fountains of your spring.\textsuperscript{15}
\textsuperscript{16} Do not let the waters from your fountain be spilled by you,
But let your waters pass through your wide places;
Let them be only for you,
And let no stranger partake with you;
Let the fountain of your water be for you alone,
And rejoice together with the wife of your youth.
Let your loving deer and graceful colt keep company with you,
And let her alone go before you and be with you at all times;
For in living with her love, you will be great.

Another Warning

Do not be intimate with a strange woman,
Neither cling to the embrace of a woman not your own;
For the ways of man are before the eyes of God,
And He keeps close watch on all his paths.
Lawless women ensnare a man,
But each man is bound by the chains of his own sins.
Such a man dies with the uninstructed
And is cast forth from the abundance of his own substance;
And he is destroyed by lack of discernment.

A Careless Tongue

My son, if you assume the debt of your friend,
You will deliver your hand to an enemy;
For a man's own lips become a strong snare to him,
And he is conquered by the utterances of his own mouth.
My son, do what I command you, and you will save yourself;
For you came into the hands of evil things through your friend;
Do not be faint,
But provoke even your friend, for whom you assumed a debt;
Do not give sleep to your eyes
Nor slumber to your eyelids
That you may be saved, as a gazelle from the snares,
And as a bird from a trap.

Laziness: A Dead-End Road

Compare yourself with the ant, O sluggard,
And be zealous when you see his ways,
And become wiser than he.

For although he has no tilled land,
Neither anyone to compel him,
Nor any master to rule him,
Yet he prepares all his food in the summer
And makes his provisions abundant in the winter.

Or go to the honeybee,
And learn how she is a worker
And how solemnly she does her work,
Whose labors kings and common people use for health;
And she is desirable to all and glorious;
And although she is weak in bodily strength,
She leads the way in honoring wisdom.

How long, O sluggard, will you be idle,
And when will you arise from sleep?
You sleep a little; you sit down a little; you doze a short while;
And you fold your hands on your chest a little;
Then poverty comes to you as an evil traveler
And neediness as a swift runner.
But if you are diligent, your harvest shall come to you as a fountain,
And neediness as an evil runner shall desert you.

A man who is without discernment and is lawless does not walk in good ways.
But he winks with an eye; he makes a sign with his foot,
And teaches with the wave of his hand.

And with a perverse heart, he constantly schemes evil things;
Such a man causes trouble in a city.
Therefore his destruction comes suddenly,
A deep and incurable wound.
For he rejoices in everything the Lord hates,
And he shall be broken because of his soul's uncleanness:
A haughty eye, an unrighteous tongue,
Hands that shed righteous blood,
A heart that devises evil thoughts,
And feet that hasten to do evil;
As a false witness he kindles injustice
And causes quarrels between brethren.

My son, guard the laws of your father,
And do not depart from the rules of your mother.
But fasten them to your soul continually
And wear them as a collar upon your neck.

Playing with Fire

When you walk about, bring along this commandment
And let it be with you;
And as you sleep, let it guard you,
That when you arise, it may speak to you.

For a commandment of law is a lamp and a light,
And the way of life is reproof and instruction,
That you may keep yourself from a married woman
And from the slanderous tongue of a strange woman.
Do not let the desire of beauty conquer you;
Neither be caught by her eyes,
Nor captivated by her eyelids;
For the value of a prostitute is only one loaf,
And such a woman hunts for the precious souls of men.

Shall anyone bind fire to his bosom
And his garments not burn?
Or will anyone walk about on coals of fire
And not burn his feet?
Likewise is the one who goes in to a married woman;
He shall not be guiltless, nor any who touch her.
It is not surprising if anyone who steals is caught,
For he steals that he may fill his hungry soul;
But if he is caught, he will repay sevenfold,
And by giving all his goods, he shall deliver himself.
But the adulterer through his lack of discernment
Obtains the destruction of his soul;
He bears both pain and dishonor,
And his disgrace will not be wiped away forever.
For the anger of her husband is full of jealousy;
He will not spare in the day of judgment;
He will not take any ransom in exchange for his hatred,
Nor will he be reconciled by many gifts.

A Son with Discernment

My son, guard my words,
And hide my commandments within yourself;
My son, honor the Lord, and you shall be strong,
And fear none other but Him.
Guard my commandments
And you will live, and my words as the pupils of your eyes;
And put them around your fingers,
And write them upon the breadth of your heart.
Say that wisdom is your sister,
And gain discernment as a friend for yourself,
So they may keep you from a strange and evil woman,
If she comes at you with flattering words.

A Son without Discernment

For she looks from a window of her house into the streets
Upon whom she might see among the undiscerning children,
A young man lacking discernment
Passing by near the corner on the pathways of her house;
And she speaks in the darkness at evening,
When there is silence on a dark night;
And the woman meets him, having the appearance of a prostitute;
She makes the heart of young men throb.
She is excited and debauched,
And her feet do not rest at home.
For at times she is outside roaming about,
And another time she is in the streets near every corner laying a trap.
Then laying hold of him, she kisses him,
And with a shameless face she says to him,

“I have a peace offering;
Today I pay my vows;

For this reason I came out to meet you;
Longing for your face, I found you;

I spread my bed with sheets
And covered it with tapestry from Egypt.

I sprinkled my bed with saffron
And my house with cinnamon;

Come, and let us enjoy love until morning;
Come, and let us embrace in love;

For my husband is not at home,
But is gone on a long journey

Taking a bag of money in his hand;
He will return to his house after many days.”

So she leads him astray with much conversation,
And with snares from her lips she compels him.

And being cajoled, he follows her
As an ox is led for slaughter

And as a dog to bonds,
Or as a deer struck with an arrow in the liver;

And he hastens even as a bird into a snare,
Not knowing he runs for his life.

Now therefore, my son, hear me,
And hold fast to the words of my mouth;

Do not let your heart turn aside to her ways,
For she wounded and cast down many,
And those whom she slew are innumerable;

Her house is the road to Hades,
Leading down to the chambers of death.

Divine Wisdom for Mankind

You shall proclaim wisdom
That discernment may obey you;

For she is on the lofty summit
And stands in the midst of the paths.

3 For she sits beside the gates of princes
And sings at the entrances,

4 “You, O men, I exhort,
And I utter my voice to the sons of men;

5 Understand astuteness, O simple ones,
And put it in your heart, O uninstructed ones.

6 Obey me, for I speak sacred things,
And from my lips I will bring forth things that are true.

2 For my mouth shall speak the truth,
But false lips are an abomination before me.

8 All the words of my mouth are with righteousness;
There is nothing in them crooked or twisted.

2 All things are evident to those who understand
And true to those who find knowledge.

2 Lay hold of instruction and not silver,
And knowledge rather than tested gold,
And choose perception rather than pure gold.

2 For wisdom is better than precious stones,
And every costly thing is not worthy of her.

2 I, wisdom, dwell with counsel,
And I call upon knowledge and understanding.

2 The fear of the Lord hates unrighteousness,
And both rudeness and arrogance, and the ways of wicked men;
And I hate the perverted ways of evil men.

2 Counsel and safety are mine;
Discernment is mine, and strength is mine;

2 By me, kings reign,
And princes write of righteousness;

2 By me, noblemen become great,
And by me, monarchs have power in the land.

2 I love those who love me,
And those who seek me shall find me.

2 Riches and glory belong to me,
And abundant possessions, and righteousness;
It is better to enjoy my fruits than gold and precious stones,
And my fruits are better than choice silver.
I walk in the ways of righteousness,
And I am conversant with the paths of judgment;
That I may distribute substance to those who love me,
And may fill their treasuries with good things.

Divine Wisdom and the Father

“If I declare to you the things that happen daily,
I will also remember to recount the things of old.
The Lord created me in the beginning of His ways for His works;
He established me in the beginning before time.
Before He made the earth, and before He made the abysses,
Before the going forth of the fountains of waters,
Before the mountains were created;
And He begot me before all hills.
The Lord made the fields and the uninhabited places
And the inhabited heights under heaven.
When He prepared heaven, I was present with Him,
And when He set apart His throne upon the winds.
When He made strong the things above the clouds,
And made sure the fountains under heaven,
And made strong the foundations of the earth,
I was working beside Him;
I was He in whom He rejoiced;
Daily and continually I was gladdened by His face.
When He completed the world, He rejoiced,
And He rejoiced in the sons of men.
Now therefore, my son, hear me:
Blessed is the man who shall hearken to me
And the man who shall guard my ways;
Who watches daily at my doors,
Who keeps watch at the doors of my entryways;
For my issues are the issues of life,
And grace is prepared from the Lord.
But those who sin against me act ungodly toward their own souls,
And those who hate me love death.”

Wisdom's Invitation

Wisdom built her house,
And she supported it with seven pillars.
She offered her sacrifices;
She mixed her wine in a bowl
And prepared her table.
She sent her servants,
Inviting people to the bowl with a lofty proclamation, saying,
“He who is without discernment,
Let him turn aside to me”;
And to those in need of discernment, she says,
“Come, eat my bread
And drink the wine I mixed for you;
Forsake lack of discernment, and you shall live;
Seek discernment so you may live,
And keep straight your understanding with knowledge.”

Wisdom: Let Us Attend!

He who chastises evil men shall receive dishonor to himself,
And he who reproves the ungodly man shall be blamed himself.
Do not reprove evil men, so they may not hate you;
Reprove a wise man, and he will love you.
Give the opportunity to a wise man, and he will be wiser;
Instruct a righteous man, and he shall continue to receive it.
The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom,
And the counsel of saints is understanding;
For to know the law is characteristic of a good mind.
For in this manner you will live a long time,
And the years of your life shall be increased.
My son, if you become wise in yourself,
you shall also be wise toward your neighbor;
But if you prove to be evil, you alone will go through troubles.
He who supports himself with lies will shepherd winds
And chase flying birds;
For he abandoned the ways of his own vineyard
And strayed from paths of his own farming;
And he will pass through a waterless desert,
A land assigned to drought,
And he gathers barrenness with his hands.
A woman in need of a morsel is without discernment and overbold;
She has no sense of shame.
She sits upon the doors of her own house,
Upon a seat openly in the streets,
Calling to those who pass by
And who go straight along their paths,
“He who is very lacking in discernment, let him turn aside to me;
And he who is in need of discernment, I exhort, saying,
‘Grasp with pleasure the secret bread
And the sweet water of theft.’ ”
But he does not know that the inhabitants of the earth perish beside her,
And he happens upon a snare of Hades.
But hurry off, do not continue in that place,
Neither set your eye toward her;
For you shall pass through strange water
And cross beyond a strange river;
And keep away from strange water,
And do not drink from a strange fountain;
That you may live a long time
And add years of life to yourself.

The Wisdom of Solomon

A wise son makes his father glad,
But a son without discernment is a grief to his mother.
Treasures do not benefit lawless men,
But righteousness delivers from death.
The Lord will not let the soul of the righteous man starve,
But He overthrows the life of the ungodly.
Poverty humbles a man,
But the hands of courageous men enrich others.†

A son who is instructed will be wise,
And he will use a man without discernment as a servant.

A son with understanding is kept safe from the heat,
But a lawless son is blasted by the wind at harvest time.†

The blessing of the Lord is upon the head of a righteous man,
But untimely grief will cover the mouth of the ungodly.

The remembrance of the righteous is with eulogies,
But the name of an ungodly man is extinguished.

The wise man in heart will receive the commandments,
But the man unguarded in speech will be overthrown in his perverseness.†

He who walks in sincerity walks confidently,
But he who perverts his ways will be known.

He who winks his eyes deceitfully gathers grief for men,
But he who reproves boldly is a peacemaker.

A fountain of life is in the hand of a righteous man,
But the mouth of an ungodly man will hide destruction.

Hatred stirs up strife,
But love covers all who are not lovers of strife.†

He who brings forth wisdom from his lips
Beats a heartless man with a rod.

The wise will hide perception,
But the mouth of a rash man approaches destruction.†

The acquisition of riches is a fortified city,
But poverty is the destruction of the ungodly.

The works of the righteous produce life,
But the fruits of the ungodly produce sins.

Instruction guards righteous ways of life,
But instruction incapable of criticism goes astray.

Righteous lips cover hatred,
But those who bring forth abuse are very lacking in discernment.

You will not escape sin by a multitude of words,
But you of discreet lips will be forbearing.†

The tongue of a righteous man is silver tried in the fire,
But the heart of an ungodly man shall fail.

The lips of righteous men understand lofty things,
But men without discernment die in want.

The blessing of the Lord is upon the head of a righteous man;
It enriches him, and grief of heart will not be added to it.

A man without discernment does evil things with laughter,
But wisdom gives birth to discernment in a man.

The ungodly man is carried about in destruction,
But the desire of the righteous man is acceptable.

The ungodly man is destroyed by the passing storm,
But the righteous man turns aside and shall be saved forever.

As an unripe grape is harmful to the teeth and smoke to the eyes,
So is a lawless woman to the men who use her.

The fear of the Lord increases days,
But the years of the ungodly will be shortened.

Gladness continues for the righteous,
But the hope of the ungodly perishes.

The fear of the Lord is the stronghold of a holy man,
But destruction is for those who work evil.

A righteous man will never fail,
But the ungodly shall not inhabit the earth.

The mouth of a righteous man distills wisdom,
But the tongue of an unrighteous man utterly destroys.

The lips of righteous men distill grace,
But the mouth of the ungodly is perverse.

The Fruits of Righteousness

11 Deceitful scales are an abomination before the Lord,
But a righteous weight is acceptable to Him.

Wherever arrogance enters, there also is dishonor,
But the mouth of the humble meditates on wisdom.

When a righteous man dies, he leaves regret,
But the destruction of the ungodly is immediate and brings joy.

Righteousness cuts straight and blameless paths,
But ungodliness embraces wrongdoing.
The righteousness of upright men delivers them,
But lawless men are taken to their destruction.

When a righteous man dies, his hope does not perish,
But the boast of the ungodly perishes.

A righteous man escapes from a snare,
But the ungodly man is handed over in his place.

There is a snare for citizens in the mouth of the ungodly,
But the perception of the righteous is prosperous.

A city stays upright in the good things of the righteous,
But it is razed to the ground by the mouths of the ungodly.

A man in need of discernment treats citizens with contempt,
But a man of discernment keeps quiet.

A double-tongued man reveals deliberations heard in council,
But a man faithful in spirit conceals matters.

Those for whom there is no leadership fall like leaves,
But there is salvation in much counsel.

A wicked man does evil whenever he meets a righteous man,
And he hates the sound of stability.

A thankful woman raises up glory to her husband,
But a throne of dishonor is a woman who hates righteousness.

Lazy men are in need of wealth,
But courageous men support themselves with wealth.

A merciful man does good to his soul,
But an unmerciful man utterly destroys his body.

An ungodly man does unrighteous works,
But the seed of the righteous is a reward of truth.

A righteous son is begotten unto life,
But the persecution of an ungodly man is unto death.

Perverse ways are an abomination to the Lord,
But all who are blameless in their ways are acceptable to Him.

He who joins hands with the unrighteous will not go unpunished,
But he who sows righteousness will receive a faithful reward.

Like a ring in the nose of a wild swine,
So is beauty to an evil-minded woman.

Every desire of the righteous is good,
But the hope of the ungodly is destruction.†

There are those who sow their own things and produce more things,
And there are those who gather but have less.

Every sincere soul is blessed,
But an angry man is not graceful.‡

May the one who hoards grain leave it to the nations,
But may blessing be upon the head of the one who shares it.

He who plans good things seeks good grace,
But he who seeks evil, it will capture him.

He who trusts in riches, this man will fall,
But he who helps the righteous, this man will rise.

He who does not deal graciously with his own house will inherit the wind,
And a man without discernment will be servant to one with discernment.

A tree of life springs up from the fruit of righteousness,
But the souls of the lawless will be taken away before their time.∥

If the righteous man is scarcely saved,
Then where shall an ungodly man and a sinner appear?∥

The Riches of Righteousness

He who loves instruction loves perception,
But he who hates correction is without discernment.†

He who finds grace from the Lord becomes better,
But a lawless man will be passed over in silence.†

A man will not prosper by lawlessness,
But the roots of righteous men will not be pulled out.

A courageous wife is a crown to her husband,
But as a worm in a tree, so an evildoing wife destroys her husband.†

The thoughts of the righteous are judgments,
But the ungodly devise deceits.‡

The words of the ungodly are deceitful,
But the mouth of the upright shall deliver them.

If he does not turn, an ungodly man is destroyed,
But the houses of the righteous remain.

The mouth of a man of understanding is praised by a man,
But the slothful of heart are treated with contempt.†∥
It is better for a man in dishonor to serve himself
Than for him to surround himself with honor while in need of bread.

A righteous man has compassion on the lives of his cattle,
But the affections of the ungodly are without mercy.

He who works his own land will be satisfied with bread,
But those who pursue vain things are in need of discernment.

He who is gladdened by wines in passing his time
Shall leave dishonor in his own strongholds.

The desires of the ungodly are evil,
But the roots of the godly are in strongholds.

By the sin of his lips a sinner falls into snares,
But a righteous man escapes from them.

He whose looks are gentle will show mercy,
But he who contends in the gates will afflict souls.

By the fruits of his mouth, the soul of a man will be filled with good things,
And the recompense of his lips will be given to him.

The ways of undiscerning men are right in their own eyes,
But a wise man hearkens to counsels.

A man without discernment immediately proclaims his wrath,
But an astute man hides his own dishonor.

A righteous man declares his honesty openly,
But the witness of the unrighteous is deceitful.

There are those who wound with a sword as they speak,
But the tongues of the wise heal.

Truthful lips establish a testimony,
But a hasty witness has an unrighteous tongue.

There is deceit in the heart of a man who devises evil things,
But those who counsel peace shall be glad.

Nothing unrighteous will ever be pleasing to the righteous,
But the ungodly will be filled with evil things.

Lying lips are an abomination to the Lord,
But he who shows faithfulness is acceptable to Him.

A man of understanding is a throne of perception,
But the heart of the undiscerning will meet with curses.

The hand of the chosen shall prevail easily,
But the deceitful shall be for captivity.

∴ A fearful word troubles the heart of a righteous man,
But a good message makes him glad.

∴ A righteous arbiter shall be his own friend,
But the decisions of the ungodly are unreasonable.

∴ Evil things shall pursue sinners,
And the way of the ungodly will lead them astray.

∴ A deceitful man will not gain his prey,
But a pure man is a precious possession.

∴ In the ways of righteousness there is life,
But the ways of remembering wrongs are unto death.†

The Godly and the Ungodly

13 An astute son is obedient to his father,
But a disobedient son is for destruction.‡

‡ A good man eats from the fruits of righteousness,
But the souls of the lawless will destroy themselves before their time.†

† He who guards his mouth keeps his own soul,
But he who is hasty with his lips will dismay himself.‡

‡ Every idle man has desire,
But the hands of the courageous are diligent.‡

† A righteous man hates an unrighteous word,
But an ungodly man is ashamed and will not have confidence.

‡ Righteousness guards the simple,
But sin makes the ungodly worthless.

† There are those with nothing who make themselves rich,
And there are those, though very rich, who humble themselves.

§ The ransom of a man's soul is his own wealth,
But the poor man does not withstand a threat.‡

‡ Light is with the righteous continually,
But the light of the ungodly is extinguished.

⊗ Deceitful souls are led astray in sins,
But the righteous have compassion and are merciful.†

⊗ An evil man does evil things with arrogance,
But those who know themselves are wise.‡
Property hastily gained with lawlessness becomes diminished,
But he who gathers for himself with godliness will be increased;
A righteous man has compassion and lends.

A man who begins to give aid heartily is better
Than he who only promises and leads another to hope;
A good desire is a tree of life.

He who despises a matter will be despised by it,
But he who fears the commandment, this man is in good health.

To a deceitful son there shall be nothing good,
But for a wise servant, his deeds shall be prosperous,
And his way shall be led aright.

The law of the wise is a fountain of life,
But the man without understanding will die by a snare.

A good understanding gives grace,
And to know the law is to be of a good mind,
But the ways of scorners are destructive.

Every astute man acts with knowledge,
But the man without discernment spreads out his own evil.

A rash king falls into evil things,
But a faithful messenger rescues him.

Instruction removes poverty and dishonor,
And he who gives heed to rebukes will be glorified.

The desires of the godly gladden the soul,
But the works of the ungodly are far from knowledge.

He who walks with the wise shall be wise,
But he who walks with those without discernment will be known.

Evil things shall pursue sinners,
But good things will overtake the righteous.

A good man will inherit sons of sons,
But the wealth of the ungodly will be stored up for the righteous.

The righteous shall live in wealth many years,
But the unrighteous will be destroyed suddenly.

He who spares the rod hates his son,
But he who loves him instructs him with care.

A righteous man eats and satisfies his soul,
But the souls of the ungodly are in want.

Righteousness at Home

14 Wise women build houses,
But those without discernment destroy them with their hands. ¹

² He who walks uprightly fears the Lord,
But he who is crooked in his ways will be dishonored.

³ From the mouth of a man without discernment comes a rod of arrogance,
But the lips of wise men guard themselves. ²

⁴ Where there are no oxen, the stalls are clean,
But where there are abundant crops, the strength of an ox is evident.

⁵ A faithful witness does not lie,
But an unrighteous witness kindles lies.

⁶ You will seek wisdom in the company of evil men, and you will not find it;
But perception is easily found with the discerning. ³

⁷ All things are contrary to a man without discernment,
But the weapons of perception are wise lips. ⁴

⁸ The wisdom of astute men will know their ways,
But the folly of men without discernment is in their deceit. ⁵

⁹ The houses of the lawless are due for purification,
But the houses of the righteous are acceptable.

¹⁰ If the heart of a man is controlled by feelings, his soul is sorrowful,
But when he rejoices, it is not mingled with arrogance.

¹¹ The houses of the ungodly will be destroyed,
But the tents of the upright shall stand.

¹² There is a road that seems to be right with men,
But the ends of it reach into the depths of Hades. ⁶

¹³ Sorrow does not mingle with gladness,
But in the end, this joy turns to sorrow.

¹⁴ A bold-hearted man will be filled with his own ways,
But a good man with all his thoughts. ⁷

¹⁵ A simple man believes in every word,
But an astute man comes to repentance. ⁸ ⁹

¹⁶ A wise man fears and turns away from evil,
But a man without discernment persuades himself to mingle with a lawless man.
A quick-tempered man acts with recklessness,
But a man with discernment bears many things.

Men without discernment will share in evil,
But the astute will take hold of perception.

Evil men will slip and fall in the presence of good men,
And the ungodly shall serve at the gate of the righteous.

Friends will hate poor friends,
But the friends of the rich are many.

He who dishonors the poor sins,
But he who has mercy on the poor is very blessed.

Deceivers devise evil things,
But good men devise mercy and truth.

Devisers of evil things do not understand mercy and faithfulness,
But mercies and faithfulness are with devisers of good things.

To everyone who is careful there is an abundance,
But he who is pleasure-taking and slothful shall be in want.

The crown of the wise is astuteness,
But the pastime of the undiscerning is evil.

A faithful witness will rescue a soul from evil men,
But a deceitful man kindles lies.

In the fear of the Lord there is hope of strength,
And to His children there remains support.

The command of the Lord is a fountain of life,
For it causes one to turn from the snare of death.

The glory of a king is in a large nation,
But the destruction of a ruler is in a lack of people.

A longsuffering man is strong in discernment,
But the fainthearted man is strongly without discernment.

A man with a gentle spirit is a healer of the heart,
But a sensual heart is the moth of the bones.

He who oppresses the poor provokes his Maker,
But he who honors Him has mercy upon a poor man.

In his evil an ungodly man will be rejected,
But a righteous man has confidence in his own holiness.

There is wisdom in the good heart of a man,
But wisdom is unknown in the heart of those without discernment.†

Righteousness exalts a nation,
But sins diminish tribes.

A wise servant is acceptable to a king,
And by his own versatility he removes dishonor.

Righteous Responses

15 Wrath destroys even men of discernment;
But a humble answer turns away anger,
And a grievous word stirs up wrath.†

2 The tongue of the wise understands good things,
But the mouth of those without discernment proclaims evil things.

3 The eyes of the Lord are in every place;
They keep watch over both the evil and the good.†

4 The healing of the tongue is a tree of life,
And the one who guards it will be filled with the Spirit.†

5 A son without discernment treats the instruction of his father with contempt,
But the one who guards his commandments is more astute.

6 In abundant righteousness there is much strength,
But the ungodly shall utterly perish from the earth.

7 In the houses of the righteous there is much strength,
But the fruits of the ungodly shall perish.

8 The lips of the wise are bound by perception,
But the hearts of those without discernment are not safe.††

9 The sacrifices of the ungodly are an abomination to the Lord,
But the prayers of the upright are acceptable with Him.

10 The ways of the ungodly are an abomination to the Lord,
But He loves those who pursue righteousness.

11 The instruction of the simple is known by those who pass by,
But those who hate reproofs will die shamefully.

12 Hades and destruction are manifest before the Lord;
How can the hearts of men not be also?

13 An uninstructed man will not love those who reprove him,
And he will not keep company with the wise.†

14 When one's heart is glad, his face is cheerful,
But when it is in grief, his face is sad.

The upright heart seeks perception,

But the mouth of the uninstructed will know evil things.

The eyes of evil men are waiting for evil things all the time,

But good men are at rest continually.

Better is a small portion with the fear of the Lord

Than great treasures with lack of fear.

Better is a dinner of herbs with friendship and grace

Than a fatted calf with hostility.

An angry man stirs up contention,

But a longsuffering man even calms the rising quarrel.

A longsuffering man will extinguish condemnations,

But the ungodly man stirs up more.

The ways of idle men are strewn with thorny plants,

But the thorny plants of the courageous are worn smooth.

A wise son gladdens a father,

But a son without discernment treats his mother with contempt.

The paths of one without understanding are in need of discernment,

But a man with discernment walks uprightly.

Those not honoring councils defer their deliberations,

But counsel remains in the hearts of those who resolve to do it.

The evil man will not obey counsel,

Nor will he speak anything appropriate, even something for the common good.

The thoughts of a wise man are his ways of life,

That he might turn aside and be saved from Hades.

The Lord will destroy the houses of the arrogant,

But He will strengthen the boundary of a widow.

The thinking of the unrighteous man is an abomination to the Lord,

But the words of the holy are sacred.

He who receives bribes utterly destroys himself,

But he who hates the receiving of bribes saves himself.

Sins are cleansed by almsgiving and faithfulness,

And by the fear of the Lord everyone turns aside from evil.

The hearts of the righteous care about faithfulness,

But the mouth of the ungodly answers evil things.
16 The ways of righteous men are acceptable before the Lord,
And through them even enemies become friends.
God is far from the ungodly,
But He hears the prayers of the righteous.
Better is a small yield with the righteous
Than abundant fruits with the unrighteous.
Let the heart of a man think righteous things
That he may make his steps straight under God.
The eye that beholds good things gladdens the heart,
But a good report enriches the bones.
He who rejects instruction hates himself,
But he who gives heed to reproofs loves his soul.
The fear of God is instruction and wisdom,
And the beginning of glory will respond to it.

Humility, Discernment, and Righteousness

16 All the works of the humble are evident before the Lord,
But the ungodly will be destroyed in the evil day.
Every high-hearted man is unclean before the Lord,
And he who joins hands with the unrighteous will not go unpunished.
The beginning of a good way is to do righteous things,
And this is more acceptable to God than to offer sacrifices.
He who seeks the Lord will find knowledge with righteousness,
And those who seek Him rightly will find peace.
All the works of the Lord are with righteousness,
But the ungodly man is kept for an evil day.
There is an oracle on the lips of a king,
And his mouth does not err in judgment.
The weight of a scale is righteousness before the Lord,
For His works are righteous standards.
He who does evil things is an abomination to a king,
For the throne of a ruler is prepared with righteousness.
Righteous lips are acceptable to a king,
And he loves upright words.
The wrath of a king is a messenger of death,
But a wise man will appease him.

The son of a king is in the light of life,
And those acceptable to him are as a cloud of the latter rain.

The abodes of wisdom are more to be chosen than gold,
And the abodes of discernment are more to be chosen than silver.

The paths of life turn away from evil,
And the ways of righteousness are length of life;

He who receives instruction shall be in good things,
And he who heeds rebukes shall become wise;

He who guards his own ways shall keep his own soul,
And he who loves his life shall use his mouth sparingly.

Arrogance goes before destruction
And folly before a fall.

A gentle mind with humility is better
Than he who divides spoils with the arrogant.

A man wise in his deeds is a discoverer of good things,
But he who trusts in God is the most blessed.

Men call the wise and understanding worthless,
But those pleasing in speech will increase in understanding.

Understanding is a fountain of life to those who possess it,
But the instruction of those without discernment is evil.

The heart of a wise man shall understand the things from his own mouth,
And he shall carry knowledge upon his lips.

Good words are a honeycomb,
And their sweetness is a healing of the soul.

There are ways that seem right to a man;
However, their ends look to the depths of Hades.

A man labors diligently for himself
And expels destruction from himself;
However, a perverse man carries destruction on his lips.

A man without discernment digs up evil things for himself
And stores up fire on his own lips.

A perverse man spreads evil things,
And a torch of deceit kindles evils and separates friends.

A lawless man makes a trial of friends.
And leads them in ways not good.

A man sets his eyes to calculate perverse things
And determines every evil thing with his lips;
This man is a furnace of wickedness.

Old age is a crown of dignity,
But it is found in the ways of righteousness.

A patient man is better than a strong man,
And he who controls his temper is better than he who captures a city.

All evil things come into the bosoms of the unrighteous,
But all righteous things come from the Lord.

Family and Friends

Better is a morsel with enjoyment in peace
Than a house full of many good things and unrighteous sacrifices with quarreling.

A servant with discernment shall rule over masters without discernment,
And will divide portions among brethren.

As silver and gold are tested in a furnace,
So are chosen hearts before the Lord.

An evil man heeds the tongue of the lawless,
But a righteous man pays no attention to false lips.

He who laughs at the poor provokes the One who made him,
And he who rejoices in destruction will not be unpunished;
But he who has compassion will be shown mercy.

The crown of old men is children of children,
And the boasting of children is their fathers.

The entire world of goods belongs to the faithful,
But to the faithless, not even a penny.

Faithful lips will not adapt to a man without discernment,
Nor lying lips to a righteous man.

Instruction awards benefits to those using it,
And wherever it turns, it prospers them.

He who hides wrongdoings seeks love,
But he who hates to cover them will separate friends and close relatives.

A threat breaks the heart of a man with discernment,
But a man without discernment, though flogged, has no perception.
Every evil man stirs up controversy,
But the Lord will send him a merciless messenger.

Care will befall a thoughtful man,
But men without discernment devise evil things.

He who repays evil for good,
Evil will not be removed from his house.\textsuperscript{1}

The foundation of righteousness gives authority to words,
But discord and quarreling precede poverty.

He who judges the unrighteous as righteous, and the righteous as unrighteous,
He is unclean and abominable before God.\textsuperscript{1}

Why do goods belong to a man without discernment?
For a heartless man is unable to gain wisdom.

He who makes his own house lofty seeks destruction,
And the one who turns away from learning will fall into evils.

Let a friend be with you on every occasion,
And let brethren be useful in necessities,
For they are begotten for this reason.\textsuperscript{1} \textsuperscript{a}

A man without discernment applauds and rejoices over himself,
As also the one who gives himself as surety for his friend.

He who loves sin rejoices in quarrels,
And the hard-hearted man does not assemble with good men.

A changeable man will fall into evils with his tongue,
And a heart without discernment is grief to the one possessing it.\textsuperscript{1}

A father does not delight in an uninstructed son;
But a son with discernment gladdens his mother.

A cheerful heart makes a man healthy,
But the bones of a sorrowful man dry him up.

The ways of a man who receives gifts unrighteously do not prosper,
And the ungodly man shuns the ways of righteousness.

The face of a wise man shows understanding,
But the eyes of the man without discernment are upon the ends of the earth.

A son without discernment is wrath to a father
And grief to her who bore him.

It is not good to punish a righteous man,
Nor is it holy to plot against righteous princes.
18 He who refrains from uttering a harsh word is intelligent,
And a longsuffering man has discernment.†
20 Wisdom shall be imputed to a man without understanding who asks for wisdom,
And anyone who holds his peace will seem to have discernment.‡

Words and Works

18 A man seeks a pretext when he wishes to separate from his friends,
But he shall be reproached at every opportunity.‡
2 A man lacking understanding has no need of wisdom,
For he is rather led by lack of discernment.
3 When an ungodly man comes into the depth of evil things, he acts contemptuously,
But dishonor and reproach come upon him.
4 A word in the heart of a man is deep water,
And a river and a fountain of life spring up from it.‡
5 It is not good to admire the person of the ungodly,
Nor is it holy to pervert righteousness in judgment.
6 The lips of a man without discernment lead him into evil things,
And his rash mouth calls upon death.
7 The mouth of a man without discernment is destruction to him,
And his lips are the snare of his soul.‡
8 Fear destroys slothful men,
And the souls of cowardly men shall hunger.‡
9 He who does not heal himself by his works,
He is the brother of him who maltreats himself.
10 The name of the Lord is of great strength,
And when the righteous run to it, they are exalted.†
11 The substance of a rich man is a strong city,
And its glory casts a great shadow.
12 Before its destruction, the heart of a man exalts itself,
And before its glory, it humbles itself.
13 He who replies to a word before he hears it
Lacks discernment, and this is a reproach to him.
14 A servant with discernment calms the anger of a man,
But who can support a discouraged man?‡
15 A heart of discernment gains perception,
And the ears of the wise seek understanding.
² The gift of a man enlarges him
And seats him beside princes.
² When a prosecutor speaks first, he seems righteous,
But when the defendant examines his case, he is reproved.
² An allotment of land ends controversies,
And it determines the boundary between princes.
² A brother aided by his brother is like a strong and fortified city,
And he is strong like a well-founded palace.
² From the fruits of his mouth a man fills his stomach,
And from the fruits of his lips he will fill himself to the full.
² Life and death are in the hand of a tongue,
And those who rule over it will eat the fruits thereof.
² He who finds a good wife finds benefits
And receives cheerfulness from God.
² He who casts out a good wife casts out good things,
And he who keeps adulteresses is without discernment and is ungodly.

Mercy and Malice

₁₉ A man's lack of discernment maltreats his ways,
And in his heart he blames God.
² Wealth adds many friends,
But the poor man is even forsaken by an existing friend.
² A false witness shall not be unpunished,
And he who accuses unrighteously shall not escape.
² Many men serve in the presence of kings,
But every evil man becomes a reproach to another man.
² Every man who hates his poor brother,
He shall be far from friendship.
² Good understanding will draw near those who know it,
And a man with discernment will find it.
² He who does many evil things perfects wickedness,
And he who provokes with words,
He shall not be saved.
² He who gains discernment loves himself,
And he who guards discernment will find good things.

A false witness shall not be unpunished,
And he who kindles evil will perish by it.

Luxury is not profitable for a man without discernment,
And it is not good if a servant begins to rule with arrogance.

A merciful man is longsuffering,
And his boast goes against the lawless.

The anger of a king is like the roar of a lion,
But as dew upon the grass, thus is his grace.

A son without discernment is a disgrace to his father,
And vows paid from the wage of a prostitute are not pure.

Fathers divide the house and property to their children,
But a wife is suited to her husband by God.

Cowardice possesses a weak man,
And the soul of the idle man will be hungry.

He who guards the commandment keeps his soul,
But he who despises his ways shall perish.

The one who has mercy on the poor lends to God,
And He will repay him according to his gift.

Instruct your son, for thus he shall be hopeful,
But do not lift up your soul in arrogance.

A malicious man shall be punished severely,
And if he commits injury, he will also add this to his soul.

Hear, my son, the instruction of your father,
That you may become wise in your last days.

There are many thoughts in the heart of a man,
But the counsel of the Lord abides forever.

Mercy is fruit to a man,
And a poor righteous man is better than a rich liar.

The fear of the Lord is unto life for a man,
And he shall lodge without fear in places where knowledge is not examined.

A man who hides his hands in his bosom unrighteously,
He will not even bring them up to his mouth.

When a pestilent man is punished, a man without discernment becomes more astute,
But if you reprove a discerning man, he will understand perception.
He who dishonors his father and pushes away his mother,
He will be shamed and reproached.

A son who forsakes guarding his father's instruction,
He will think about evil sayings.

He who becomes surety for an undiscerning child despises the ordinance,
And the mouth of the ungodly swallows judgments.

Lashes are prepared for the intemperate
And punishments for the shoulders of those without discernment.

Double Standards or Single-Mindedness

20 Wine is an intemperate thing, and strong drink is full of violence;
And all who commingle with it will not be wise.

The threat of a king does not differ from the anger of a lion,
And he who provokes him sins against his own soul.

It is glory for a man to turn away from reproaches,
But every man without discernment is entangled with such things.

A lazy man who is reproached feels no shame;
Likewise also is he who borrows bread in harvest.

Counsel is deep water in the heart of a man,
And a man with discernment will draw it out.

Man is important, and a man who shows mercy is noble,
But it is difficult to find a faithful man.

He who lives blamelessly in righteousness,
He will leave blessed children behind him.

When a righteous king sits upon the throne,
No evil thing can oppose his presence.

Who will boast about having a pure heart?
Or who will declare boldly being clean from sins?

The lamp of him who reviles his father or mother shall be put out,
And the pupils of his eyes shall see darkness.

A portion gained hastily in the beginning
Will not be blessed at the end.

Do not say, “I will avenge myself on the enemy,"
But wait on the Lord, that you may be helped.

A weight, great and small, and a double standard,
Both are also unclean before the Lord.

And the one who uses these things in his pursuits will be entangled;

But a young man with holiness, his road is straight.

The ear hears and the eye sees;

Both are also works of the Lord.

Do not love to speak ill,

That you may not be taken away;

Open your eyes,

And you will be filled with bread.

A double standard is an abomination to the Lord,

And a deceitful scale is not good before Him.

Steps are made straight for a man by the Lord,

But how can a mortal man understand His ways?

It is a snare for a man to quickly sanctify something of his own things as holy,

Then after making this vow, to come to a change of heart.

A wise king is a winnower of the ungodly,

And he casts them upon the wheel of torture.

The breath of man is the light of the Lord,

Who searches the inner man.

Mercy and truth are a guard for the king,

And they will encircle his throne with righteousness.

Wisdom is an ornament to young men,

And the glory of old men is their gray hair.

Bruises and fractures happen to evil men,

And plagues shall come into their inner man.

Godliness: Willing to Do God's Will.

As a flow of water, so is the heart of the king in the hand of God;

Wherever He wills to incline it, there he turns it.

Every man appears righteous to himself,

But the Lord makes hearts right.

To do righteous things and to speak the truth

Are more pleasing before God than the blood of sacrifices.

A high-minded man is bold-hearted in his arrogance,

And the lamp of the ungodly is sin.
He who produces treasures with a lying tongue
Pursues worthless things upon the snares of death.
Destruction shall entertain the ungodly,
For they are not willing to do righteous things.†
To the crooked, God sends crooked ways,
For His works are pure and upright.
It is better to dwell in a corner in the open air
Than with wrongdoing in plastered rooms and in a shared house.
The soul of the ungodly will not be shown mercy by anyone among men.
When the intemperate man is punished, the simple man becomes more astute,
And a wise man of understanding shall receive knowledge.‡
A righteous man understands the hearts of the ungodly,
And he despises the ungodly in their evils.
He who closes his ears that he might not listen to the weak,
He will also call upon someone, and there will be no one listening.
A secret gift calms anger,
But he who refrains from giving gifts stirs up strong anger.
It is the joy of the righteous to do judgment,
But a holy man is unclean before evildoers.‡
A man who wanders from the way of righteousness
Shall rest in an assembly of giants.
A man in need loves merriment,
Loving wine and oil as wealth.
A lawless man is the outcast of a righteous man.
It is better to live in a desert
Than with a contentious, talkative, and quick-tempered woman.
A treasury of desire will rest upon the mouth of a wise man,
But men without discernment shall swallow it.
The way of righteousness and mercy shall find life and glory.
A wise man assaults fortified cities
And pulls down the stronghold the ungodly trust.†
He who guards his mouth and tongue
Keeps his soul from tribulation.ω
A troublemaker is called rash, arrogant, and boastful,
And he who bears malice is called lawless.
Desires kill a slothful man,
For his hands choose not to do anything. ²

The ungodly man desires evil all day long,
But the righteous man shows mercy and compassion unsparingly.

The sacrifices of the ungodly are an abomination to the Lord,
For they offer them lawlessly. ³

A false witness shall perish,
But an obedient man will speak guardedly.

An ungodly man resists shamelessly to the face,
But the upright man himself understands his ways.

There is no wisdom, there is no courage,
There is no counsel for the ungodly. ⁴

The horse is prepared for the day of war,
But help is from the Lord.

Rich Man, Poor Man

A good name is to be chosen more than much wealth,
And good grace more than silver and gold. ⁵

The rich man and the poor man meet with one another,
But the Lord made both.

An astute man, seeing an evil man severely punished, is himself instructed,
But those passing by without discernment suffer loss.

The fear of the Lord and riches and glory and life
Are the offspring of wisdom. ⁶

Thorns and snares are in the ways of the crooked,
But he who guards his own soul will keep away from them. ⁷

The rich will rule over the poor,
And servants will lend to their own masters.

He who sows worthless things will reap evil things,
And bring to an end the plague of his works.

God blesses a cheerful man and a giver,
And he will bring to an end the vanity of his works. ⁸

He who shows mercy to a poor man shall himself be supported,
For he gave his own bread to the poor man.

He who gives gifts to a poor man gains victory and honor for himself;
However, he who buys him takes away his soul.

Cast out a pestilent man from the assembly,
And contention will go out with him;
For whenever he sits in the assembly, he dishonors everyone.

The Lord loves holy hearts,
And all the blameless are acceptable to Him;

A king governs lips.

And the eyes of the Lord maintain perception,
But the lawless man despises His words.

A slothful man makes excuses and says,
"There is a lion in the way, and murderers in the streets."

The mouth of a lawless man is a deep pit,
And the man hated by the Lord shall fall into it.

Evil ways are before a man,
And he does not love to turn away from them,
But it is necessary to turn away from a crooked and evil way.

Folly fastens itself to the heart of a child,
For the rod and instruction are far from him.

He who oppresses a poor man increases his possessions,
Yet he gives them to a rich man to lessen them.

Incline your ear to the words of the wise and hear my word,
And establish your heart, that you may know they are good.

And if you apply them to your heart,
They will gladden you and at the same time be upon your lips;
That your hope might be in the Lord,
And His way might be known to you.

And register them upon the breadth of your heart for yourself threefold,
For counsel and knowledge.

Therefore, I teach you a true word and good knowledge to be obeyed,
That you might answer words of truth to those who question you.

Do not rob the poor, for he is needy,
And do not dishonor the helpless at the gates;
For the Lord will judge his cause,
And you will deliver your soul from violence.

Do not be a companion to an angry man
And do not associate with a quick-tempered friend, \(^1\)

Lest you learn his ways
And receive a snare for your soul.

Do not give yourself as surety because you respect a person,
For if you do not have the wherewithal to make compensation,
They will take your bed out from under you.

Do not remove the eternal landmarks your fathers established. \(^1\)

An observant man and one astute in his business
Should be present with kings,
And he should not be present with slothful men.

Understanding and Priorities

If you sit down to dine at a table of princes,
Understand carefully the things put before you; \(^2\)

And apply your hand,
Knowing you should prepare certain things;
And if you are insatiable, do not desire its delicacies,
For these things belong to a false life.

If you are poor, do not measure yourself with a rich man,
But keep away from this in your thinking;
If you fix your eye on him, he will disappear,
For wings like an eagle's are prepared for him,
And he returns to the house of his master.
Do not dine with an envious man,
Neither desire his foods;
For as someone who may swallow a hair,
So he eats and drinks.

Neither invite him in, nor eat your morsel with him;
For he will vomit it forth and maltreat your good words.
Speak nothing into the ears of a man without discernment,
Lest he treat your wise words with contempt.

Do not remove the eternal landmarks,
And do not enter the possession of orphans.
For the Lord who redeems them is mighty,
And He will judge their cause with you.
Give your heart to instruction,
And prepare your ears for words of perception.
Do not withhold instruction from a child,
For if you should strike him with a rod, he would not die;
For you shall strike him with a rod
And deliver his soul from death.
My son, if your heart becomes wise,
You will also gladden my heart;
And your lips shall spend time with the words on my lips,
If they be upright.
Do not let your heart envy sinners,
But be in fear of the Lord the whole day long.
For if you keep these words, you shall have offspring,
And your hope will not depart from you.

A Father's Counsel on Wine and Women

Hear, my son, and become wise,
And direct aright the thoughts of your heart.
Do not be a wine-bibber,
Neither provide contributions of meats or goods at drinking parties.
For every drunkard and fornicator shall become impoverished,
And every sluggard shall clothe himself with tattered and ragged garments.
Hear, my son, your father who begot you,
And do not despise your mother because she has grown old.
A righteous father rears his child well,
And his soul rejoices in a wise son.
Let your father and mother be glad in you,
And let her who bore you rejoice.
My son, give me your heart,
And let your eyes observe my ways;
For a house of prostitution is a pierced vessel
And a strange and empty well;
For he shall perish suddenly,
And every lawless man shall be destroyed.
Who has woe? Who has tumult? Who has condemnation?
Who has unpleasantness and gossip?
Who has afflictions with no purpose?
Whose eyes are pale?

Is it not those who linger long with wines?
Is it not those who hunt for the whereabouts of drinking parties?

Do not be drunk with wine, but keep company with righteous men,
And keep company in public walks;

For if you set your eyes to the bowls and cups,
Afterward you will walk about more naked than ground meat.

And at last, he stretches himself out as one bitten by a serpent,
And the venom spreads through him as one bitten by a horned serpent.

When your eyes behold a strange woman,
Then your mouth will speak twisted things;

And you will lie down as in the heart of the sea
And as a pilot in a great storm;

And you will say, “They beat me, but I did not suffer,
And they mocked me, but I knew it not;

When will it be morning,
That I may go seek those with whom I may company?”

Issues of Life and Death

24 My son, do not envy evil men,
Neither desire to be with them;

For their heart ponders a lie,
And their lips speak of sufferings.

A house is built with wisdom,
And it is built up with understanding.

Storehouses are filled with perception
From all honorable and good riches.

It is better to be a wise man of strength
And a man having discernment, than to be a man who has a large estate.

War comes with the skill of a commander,
But help comes with the heart of a counselor.

Wisdom and good thinking are in the gates of the wise;
The wise do not turn away from the mouth of the Lord,
But they deliberate with councils;

Death happens to the uninstructed,

And a man without discernment shall die in his sins;

And uncleanness will pollute a pestilent man

In an evil day and a day of tribulation, until he dies.

Rescue those being led into death,

And saw off the bonds of those being cast out; do not spare them help;

If you say, “I do not know this man,”

Know that the Lord knows the hearts of all;

And He who formed every breath knows all things,

Who will render to each man according to his works.

My son, eat honey, for the honeycomb is good,

That your throat may be sweetened.

Thus you shall discern wisdom for your soul,

For if you find it, there will be a good end to your life:

And hope will not abandon you.

Do not bring an ungodly man to the dwelling of the righteous,

Neither be deceived by the full satisfaction of the stomach.

For a righteous man will fall seven times and rise again,

But the ungodly shall weaken in evils.

If your enemy falls, do not rejoice over him,

And do not exalt yourself at his stumbling;

Because the Lord will see this, and it will not please Him,

And He will turn His anger from him.

Do not rejoice in evildoers,

Nor envy sinners;

For there is no future for evil men,

And the lamp of the ungodly shall be put out.

Fear God, my son, and the king,

And disobey neither of them;

For suddenly they will take retribution on the ungodly,

And who will know the punishments of both?

A son who guards the word will be free from destruction,

For he receives it fully.

Let no lie be spoken from your tongue to the king,
And let no lie come from his tongue.

The tongue of the king is a sword and not of flesh,
And whoever it delivers, it will annihilate;

For if his anger is sharpened,
It destroys men with its sinews.

And it devours the bones of men,
And it burns like a flame,
So as to be inedible for the nestlings of eagles.

Now I say the following to you, the wise, to observe,
"It is not good to be partial in judgment."

He who says about an ungodly man, "He is righteous,"
Shall be accursed to people and despicable to nations;

But those who reprove him shall appear more excellent,
And a good blessing shall come upon them;
And they will kiss the lips that answer good words.

Prepare your works for your going forth,
And prepare yourself for the field;

And walk behind me,
And you shall build up your house.

Do not be a false witness against your countryman,
Neither open wide your lips;

Do not say, "I will treat him as he treated me,
And I shall avenge myself on him wherein he wronged me."

A man without discernment is like a field,
And a man in need of discernment is like a vineyard;

If you leave it alone, it will remain dry and barren,
Altogether covered with grass and forsaken,
And its stone walls will be razed to the ground.

Afterward, I repented;
I observed that I might choose instruction.

I doze a little, and I sleep a little,
And I fold my arms across my chest a little.

If you do this, your poverty shall go before you,
And want, like a strong runner.
These are the miscellaneous instructions of Solomon which the friends of Hezekiah, the King of Judah, wrote out.

2 The Glory of God hides a word,
And the glory of the king honors deeds.

3 Heaven is high, and earth is deep,
But the heart of the king is incapable of disproof.

4 Beat drossy silver,
And it will be made entirely clean.

5 Slay the ungodly from before the king,
And his throne shall be established in righteousness.

6 Do not brag on yourself in the presence of the king,
Neither stand in the places of princes;

7 For it is better that it be said to you, "Come up to me,"
Than for you to be humbled in the presence of a prince.

8 Speak the things your eyes see.

9 Do not enter into a quarrel quickly,
That you may not be sorry in the end.

10 When your friend reproaches you,
Retreat and do not despise him,

11 Lest your friend continue to reproach you,
And your quarrel and enmity shall not depart,
But be equal to death for you.

12 Grace and friendship free a man;
Keep these for yourself, that you may not be reproached,
But guard your ways peaceably.

13 As a golden apple in a small necklace of sardius stone,
Thus it is to speak a wise word.

14 As a very expensive sardius stone set in a golden earring,
So is a wise word to an obedient ear.

15 As the falling of snow in harvest is beneficial against the heat,
So is a faithful messenger to those who send him;
For he benefits the souls of those who use him.

16 As winds, clouds, and rains are evident,
So are those who boast in a false gift.
There is prosperity for kings in patience,
And a mild tongue breaks bones.
When you find honey, eat what is sufficient,
Lest being filled, you should vomit it up.‡
Seldom visit your own friend's house,
Lest he become fed up with your company and hate you.
As a club, a sword, and a pointed arrow,
So also is the man who testifies as a false witness against his friend.
The tooth of an evil man and the foot of a lawless man
Shall perish in an evil day.
As vinegar is bad for a festering wound,
So calamity befalling the body grieves the heart.
As a moth in a garment and a worm in wood,
So the grief of a man damages the heart.
If your enemy is hungry, feed him,
And if he is thirsty, give him drink.‡
For by doing this, you shall heap coals of fire on his head,
And the Lord will reward you with good things.
The north wind stirs up clouds,
And a shameless face provokes the tongue.
It is better to dwell in a corner on a housetop
Than in a house shared with an abusive woman.
As cold water is agreeable to a thirsty soul,
So is good news from a far-off land.
As if someone would stop a spring and corrupt an outlet of water,
So it is unseemly for a righteous man to fall before the ungodly.
It is not good to eat too much honey,
But it is necessary to honor words held in honor.
As an unfortified city whose walls are broken down,
So is a man who does something without counsel.‡

The Undiscerning Man

As dew in harvest and as rain in summer,
So honor is not for a man without discernment.‡

‡ As birds and sparrows fly,
So a curse will not come upon anyone without a cause.

2 As a whip for a horse and a prod for a donkey,
So is a rod for a lawless nation.

4 Do not answer an undiscerning man in relation to his lack of discernment,
Lest you become like him.

5 But answer an undiscerning man contrary to his lack of discernment,
So he may not appear wise to himself.

6 He shall drink reproach at his own feet
Who sends a word through an undiscerning messenger.

7 Remove the motion of the legs
And a proverb from the mouth of men without discernment.

8 He who binds a stone in a sling
Is like one who gives glory to a man without discernment.

9 Thorny plants grow in the hand of a drunkard
And slavery in the hand of men without discernment.

10 All flesh of men without discernment grievously suffers many things,
For their illusion is brought to nothing.

11 As when a dog returns to his own vomit and becomes despicable,
So is a man without discernment who returns to his own evil by his own sin.

12 There is shame that brings on sin,
And there is shame that is glory and grace.

13 I saw a man who seemed to himself to be wise,
But a man without discernment has more hope than he.

The Slothful Man

14 A slothful man who is sent on his way says,
"There is a lion in the way."!

15 As a door turns upon its hinge,
So does a slothful man upon his bed.

16 When a slothful man hides his hand in his bosom,
He shall be unable to bring it to his mouth.

17 A slothful man appears wiser to himself
Than he who satisfactorily brings back a message.

The Scheming Man
As he who lays hold of a dog's tail,
So is he who is the mouthpiece of another's cause.
As those who need correction speak to others,
He who first replies to the word shall be tripped up,
So are all who set a trap for their own friends;
But when they are discovered, they say, "I did it in jest."
A fire rages among many trees,
But where there is no disagreement, contentment is at rest.
As a fireplace is for coals and wood for a fire,
So a contentious man kindles violence.
The words of a talebearer are mild
And they strike into the innermost affections.
Money given with deceit is like a sharp piece of broken pottery;
So smooth lips hide a heart that causes pain.
A weeping enemy promises everything with his lips,
But in his heart he devises deceits.
If your enemy entreats you with a loud voice,
Do not consent, for there are seven vices in his soul.
He who hides enmity contrives deceit,
But being well known in the assemblies, he exposes his own sins.
He who digs a pit for his neighbor shall fall into it,
And he who rolls a stone rolls it upon himself.
A lying tongue hates the truth,
And an unguarded mouth causes confusion.

Wisdom for Today

Do not boast about tomorrow,
For you do not know what the next day will bring forth.
Let your neighbor praise you, and not your own mouth;
A stranger, and not your own lips.
A stone is heavy, and sand is cumbersome;
But the wrath of a man without discernment is heavier than both.
Wrath is merciless and anger passionate,
But jealousy supports nothing.
Open reproofs are better than hidden love.
The wounds of a friend are more trustworthy
Than the voluntary kisses of an enemy.

A satiated soul mocks honey combs,
But to a hungry soul, even bitter things appear sweet.

As when a bird flies down from its own nest,
So is a man enslaved whenever he becomes a fugitive from his own place.

The heart delights in perfumes, wines, and incenses,
But the soul is broken by mishaps.

Do not abandon your friend or the friend of your father,
And when you have misfortune, do not go to your brother's house;
A friend nearby is better than a brother far away.

My son, become wise, that my heart may be glad,
And turn away from your reproachful words.

An astute man hides when evils are at hand,
But when men without discernment are at hand, they will pay the penalty.

If a haughty man passes by, take away his garment,
For he lays waste the goods of another.

Whoever blesses a friend early in the morning with a loud voice,
He will not seem different from one who curses him.

Continual dripping on a rainy day drives a man from his house;
In like manner, a contentious woman also drives a man from his own house.

The north wind is a harsh wind,
And a prosperous man is called harsh.

Iron sharpens iron,
And a man sharpens the countenance of his friend.

Whoever plants a fig tree will eat its fruit,
And whoever guards his own master will be honored.

As faces are not like other faces,
So neither are the hearts of men.

Hades and destruction are not satiated;
In like manner the eyes of men are also insatiable.

He whose eye is fixed is an abomination to the Lord,
And the uninstructed are intemperate with the tongue.

Proving by fire is a way of testing for silver and gold,
But a man is tested by the mouth of those who praise him.
A lawless heart seeks evil things,
But an upright heart seeks knowledge.

If you should whip a man without discernment in the midst of the council and dishonor him,
You would not remove his lack of discernment.

Know thoroughly the souls of your sheep,
And you will set your heart on your flocks,

Since strength and might are not in man forever,
Neither are they transmitted from generation to generation.

Take care of the green plants in the field, and cut the herbs short,
And gather the grass of the mountains.

That you may have the wool of sheep for clothing,
Honor the field, so there may be lambs for you.

My son, you have strong sayings from me for your life
And for the life of your servants.

The Lawful and the Lawless

An ungodly man flees when no one is pursuing,
But a righteous man is confident as a lion.

Condemnations arise because of the sins of the ungodly,
But an astute man quenches them.

A bold man harasses the poor with ungodliness.
As a driving and unprofitable rain,

So those who forsake the law praise ungodliness,
But those who love the law surround themselves with a wall.

Evil men do not understand judgment,
But those who seek the Lord shall understand it in everything.

A poor man walking in the truth is better than a rich liar.
A wise son keeps the law,
But he who cherishes luxury dishonors his father.

He who increases his wealth with usury and unjust gains
Gathers it for him who shows mercy to the poor.

He who turns away his ear so as not to hear the law,
He also makes his prayer repulsive.

He who leads upright men astray in an evil way,
He shall fall into destruction;
And lawless men shall pass by good things,
But they shall not enter into them.
A rich man is wise in his own eyes,
But a poor man shall disapprove of his thoughts.
Great glory arises because of the help of the righteous,
But in places of the ungodly, men are conquered.
He who hides his own ungodliness shall not prosper,
But he who leads his own rebuttal shall be loved.
Blessed is the man who shall be discreet in all things because of godly fear,
But the man who hardens his heart shall fall into evils.
A hungry lion and a thirsty wolf
Is he who, being poor, tyrannizes over poor people.
A king in need of revenues is a great oppressor,
But he who hates unrighteousness shall live a long time.
He who becomes surety for a man charged with murder
Shall be a fugitive and unsafe.
Instruct your son, and he shall love you;
And he shall give honor to your soul,
Lest he follow a lawless people.
He who walks righteously shall be helped,
But he who walks in crooked ways shall be entangled therein.
He who works his own land shall be satisfied with bread,
But he who pursues leisure shall be filled with poverty.
A trustworthy man shall be blessed in many things,
But an evil man shall not go unpunished.
He who does not respect righteous people is not good;
Such a man will sell another for a morsel of bread.
An envious man hastens to be rich,
But does not know that a merciful man shall have the mastery over him.
He who reproves a man’s ways
Shall have more grace than he who flatters him.
He who casts off his father or mother and thinks he does not sin,
He is the accomplice of an ungodly man.
A greedy man judges rashly,
But he who trusts in the Lord shall be careful.
He who trusts in an arrogant heart, such a man is without discernment,
But he who walks in wisdom, such a man shall be saved.

He who gives to the poor shall not be in want,
But he who turns away his eye from them shall be in much distress.

The righteous lament in the places of the ungodly,
But in their destruction the righteous shall be increased.

The Wise and the Unwise

29 A reproving man is better than an obstinate man,
For when the latter is suddenly consumed, there shall be no remedy.

2 When the righteous are praised, the people shall rejoice,
But when the ungodly rule, men lament.

3 When a man loves wisdom, his father rejoices,
But he who keeps prostitutes shall destroy his wealth.

4 A righteous king will establish a country,
But a lawless man razes it to the ground.

5 He who prepares a net for the presence of his own friend
Casts it around his own feet.

2 It is a great snare to a man when he sins,
But a righteous man shall be in joy and gladness.

7 A righteous man understands how to judge on behalf of the poor,
But the ungodly man will not consider such knowledge;
For he has no understanding heart for a poor man.

8 Pestilent men burn down a city,
But wise men turn away wrath.

2 A wise man judges people fairly,
But when a worthless man is angry, he laughs at them, and does not fear.

9 Bloodthirsty men will hate a holy man,
But the upright will seek his soul.

2 A man without discernment brings forth his whole mind,
But a wise man distributes his in part.

2 When a king obeys an unrighteous word,
All those under him are lawless.

2 When a creditor and a debtor meet with one another,
The Lord watches both of them.
30 My son, fear my words,
And when you receive them, repent;
The man says these things to those who believe in God, then I cease speaking.
For I am the most lacking of all men in discernment,
And the discernment of men is not in me;
God gives me wisdom,
And I know holy things.
Who ascends into heaven and descends?
Who gathers the winds in His bosom?
Who wraps up the water in a garment?
Who rules over all the ends of the earth?
What is His name, and what is the name of His children,
That you might acknowledge it?
All the words of God are tried in fire,
And He defends those who fear Him.
Do not add to His words,
That He might not reprove you, and you become a liar.
Two things I ask from You:
Do not take away grace from me before I die;
Make a vain word and a lie be far from me;
But give me neither riches nor poverty,
And appoint what is necessary and sufficient for me;
Lest being full, I become a liar and say, “Who sees me?”
Or being poor, I steal, and swear by the name of God.
Do not deliver a servant into the hands of his master,
Lest he curse you, and you be destroyed.
An evil offspring curses his father
And does not bless his mother;
An evil offspring judges himself righteous,
But is not washed from his uncleanness.
An evil offspring has haughty eyes
And exalts himself with his eyelids;
An evil offspring has teeth like swords
And molars like knives, so as to destroy
And to devour the poor from the earth,
And their needy from among men.

Lessons from the Animals.
The leech had three dearly loved daughters,
And these three did not satisfy her,
And the fourth did not satisfy her, for her to say, “It is enough.”

Hades and the love of a woman
And Tartarus and the earth not satisfied with water,
And water and fire will not say, “It is enough.”

The eye that mocks his father and dishonors the old age of his mother,
Let the ravens of the valleys pick it out,
And the young eagles devour it.

Now there are three things I cannot understand,
And a fourth I do not know:
The track of a flying eagle,
And the ways of a serpent upon a rock,
And the paths of a ship passing through the sea,
And the ways of a man in his youth.

Such is the way of an adulterous woman,
Who, when she commits adultery, washes herself and says she did nothing wrong.

The earth is shaken by three things,
And is unable to bear a fourth:
If a servant reigns,
Or a man without discernment is satiated with food,
Or if a maidservant casts out her own mistress,
Or a hateful woman marries a good man.

Now there are four very small things upon earth,
But these are wiser than the wise:
The ants, which are not strong,
Yet they prepare provisions in the summer;
The rabbits, which are not a strong tribe,
Yet they make their own homes in the rocks;
The locust, which is without a king,
Yet he marches out as one commanded in an orderly manner.
And the spotted lizard, which supports himself with his hands and is easily caught,
Yet he dwells in the fortresses of kings.
There are three things which walk easily,
And a fourth that strides well:
The cub of a lion, stronger than other animals
And does not turn away, neither fears any animal;
A cock, walking about boldly among the hens;
A he-goat, leading a flock;
And a king, speaking publicly to the people.
If you abandon yourself to merriment
And stretch forth your hand with contention, you will be dishonored.
Churn milk, and it will become butter;
And if you squeeze someone's nose, blood will come out;
And if you draw out words, condemnations and contentions will emerge.

My words were spoken by God,
The oracular response of a king, whom his mother instructed.

“A Mother's Wisdom

What, my child, will you keep? What? The words of God.”
My firstborn son, I say to you, “What, the child of my womb?
What, the child of my vows?”
Do not give your wealth to women,
Nor your heart or life to remorse.
Do all things with counsel;
Drink wine with counsel;
Princes are prone to anger, but let them not drink wine,
Lest while they drink, they forget wisdom,
And be unable to judge the weak uprightly.
Give strong drink to those in sorrow,
And wine to drink for those in pain,
So they may forget their poverty
And no longer remember their grief.
Open your mouth for the word of God,
And judge all men fairly;
Open your mouth and judge righteously,
And plead the cause of the poor and helpless.

“A Virtuous Wife

Who will find a courageous wife?
For such a one is more valuable than precious stones.†

The heart of her husband trusts in her;
She will not be at a loss for fine spoils,
For she provides good things for her husband all her life.
† She weaves wool and linen cloth
And is productive with her hands.
† She is like a ship trading afar off,
So she procures her livelihood.
† She also rises before dawn
And gives food to her household,
And appoints tasks for her maidservants.
† Seeing a farm, she buys it,
And from the fruits of her hands she plants her plot of land.
† Strongly girding her loins,
She strengthens her arms for work.
† She experiences work as a good thing,
And her lamp is not quenched all night.
† She extends her arms to do profitable things,
And she applies her hands to the spindle.
† She opens her hands to the poor
And reaches out with her fruit to the needy.
† Her husband is not anxious about those at home
When he spends a long time elsewhere,
For all her household are clothed.
† She makes a double upper garment for her husband
And garments of fine linen and purple for herself.
† Her husband is respected at the gates
And when he sits in council with the elders who inhabit the land.
† She makes and sells fine linens
And girdles to the Canaanites.
† She opens her mouth carefully and lawfully
And controls her tongue.
† She clothes herself with strength and dignity
And rejoices in the last days.
† She runs her household carefully,
And she does not eat the bread of idleness.

She opens her mouth wisely and lawfully,
And her charity raises her children, and they become rich,
And her husband praises her,

“Many daughters acquire riches; many do mighty things,
But you excel and surpass all.”

Desires to please are deceitful, and the beauty of a wife is vain;

For a wise wife is blessed,
And let her in fear praise the Lord.

Give to her from the fruits of her hands,
And let her husband praise her at the gates.

The Book of Ecclesiastes

Author—The “Teacher” or “Preacher” has traditionally been identified as Solomon, because only he was the son of David, king of Israel in Jerusalem (1:1, 12), who achieved great fame for his wisdom, wealth, and achievements (12:9–12; 3Kg 10:23, 24).

Date—According to Jewish tradition, Solomon wrote the Song of Songs in his youth, Proverbs in his middle years, and Ecclesiastes in his old age. Following this line of reasoning, he would have written this book about 935 BC.

Major Theme—Without God, all of life is vanity.

Background—Early Judaism accepted the book as holy and read it on the third day of the Feast of Tabernacles. The early Church identified Solomon as the author, and some included the book in the list of books to be read in the churches (see St. Athanasius, Festal Letter 39; St. Augustine, Christian Doctrine Bk. 2:8).

Outline

I. Everything Human Is Vain, for It Is without Profit (1:1–18)
II. There Is No Profit under the Sun (2:1–12:8)
III. Conclusion: Fear God and Keep His Commandments (12:9–14)

The words of the Preacher, the son of David, king of Israel in Jerusalem.†

The Vanity of Life

2 “Vanity of vanities,” says the Preacher;
“Vanity of vanities, all is vanity!”†

3 What advantage does a man have in all his labor
In which he toils under the sun?‡

4 A generation comes and a generation goes,
But the earth stands forever.

5 The sun rises and the sun sets
And returns to its place.

6 The wind rises and goes toward the south
And swirls towards the north.
The wind whirls in a circular motion
And returns full circle.

7 All the rivers flow to the sea,
Yet the sea shall not be filled.
To the place where the rivers flow,
There they return again.

8 All words are wearisome,
And a man will not be able to say them.
Neither will the eye be satisfied with seeing,
Nor will the ear be filled with hearing.‡

9 What has been is what will be,
And what has been done is what will be done.
There is nothing new under the sun.

10 Who will speak and say,
“See, this is new”?
For it has already been in the ages
That have passed before us.

11 There is no remembrance of former things,
And indeed, there shall be no remembrance of later things
By the things that will come after that.

Futility of Man's Wisdom

12 I, the Preacher, was king over Israel in Jerusalem.† 13 I gave my heart to seek out and to prepare myself in wisdom concerning all the things done under heaven; for God has given painful distraction to the sons of men to be occupied therewith. 14 I beheld all the works done under the sun, and behold, all is vanity and is the choice of one's spirit.‡

‡ That which has become crooked cannot be made straight,
And what is lacking cannot be counted.‡

16 I spoke in my heart, saying, “Behold, I have become great, and have acquired wisdom beyond all before me in Jerusalem; and my heart has experienced much wisdom and knowledge.” 17 I gave my heart to know wisdom and knowledge, to learn proverbs and understanding. And this, too, was waywardness of spirit.‡

‡ For in the abundance of wisdom
There is abundance of knowledge,
And he who increases knowledge will increase suffering.

The Vanity of Merriment

2 I said in my heart, “Come now, I will test you with merriment and see if this is good; and behold, this, too, is vanity.”
4 I searched in my heart that I might excite my flesh as with wine. And my heart guided me with wisdom to grasp what is foolishness, until I might see what is good for the sons of men, that which they should do under the sun all the days of their life.
6 I made myself gardens and parks and planted all kinds of fruit trees in them.
7 I acquired male and female servants, and servants were born in my house; and I had abundant possessions of herds and flocks, more than all before me in Jerusalem.
8 I also gathered silver and gold for myself and the abundant treasures of kings and countries. I provided male and female singers for myself, the delights of the sons of men, and male and female cupbearers.
9 So I became great and advanced beyond all before me in Jerusalem; my wisdom established me.

Whatever my eyes desired,
I did not keep from them.
I did not withhold my heart from any merriment.
For my heart was made glad in all my labor,
And this was my portion from all my labor.

Then I looked on all the works my hands had done
And on the labor in which I had toiled,
And indeed all is vanity
And is the choice of one's spirit.
There was no profit under the sun.

Wisdom Excels Foolishness

Then I turned myself to consider
Wisdom, madness, and foolishness,
For who is the man who will follow after counsel,
Whatever it is, to do it?

Then I saw that wisdom excels foolishness
As light excels darkness.

The wise man's eyes are in his head,
But the senseless man walks in darkness;
And I indeed know
That one event happens to all of them.

So I said in my heart,
"As it happens to the senseless man,
So it also happens to me.
Why then have I gained abundant wisdom?"

Then I said in my heart,
"This indeed is also vanity,
Because the senseless man speaks of his abundance."

For there is no remembrance forever
Of the wise man or of the senseless man,
Since now as in the days to come,
All things are forgotten.
And how will the wise man
As well as the senseless man face death?

Thus I have hated life, because the work done under the sun was evil before me; for all is vanity and is the choice of one's spirit.

Then I hated all my labor in which I toiled under the sun, for I must leave it to the man who comes after me. For who knows whether he shall be a wise man or a senseless man? Yet he will have authority over all my labor in which I toiled and wherein I grew wise under the sun. Indeed, this also is vanity. So I turned my heart and despairs of all the labor wherein I toiled under the sun. For there is a man whose labor is with wisdom, knowledge, and courage, yet this man shall give his portion to one who has not labored therein. This also is vanity and a great evil. For what does a man have for all his labor and his purpose of heart wherein he labors under the sun? For all his days are sorrowful, and the distraction of life is his, for even in the night his heart takes no rest. This also is vanity.

There is nothing better for a man than that he should eat and drink and that his soul should enjoy good in his labor. This also I saw was from the hand of God.\textsuperscript{†} 25 For who will eat or who will drink without Him? \textsuperscript{26} And He gives wisdom, knowledge, and gladness to a man who is good in His sight. But to him who commits sin He gives the job of gathering and collecting, that he may give to the man who is good in God's sight. This is also vanity and is the choice of one's spirit.

\textit{A Time for Everything.}

To everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven:\textsuperscript{†}

\begin{itemize}
\item A time to give birth
\item And a time to die;
\item A time to plant
\item And a time to pluck what is planted.
\item A time to kill
\item And a time to heal;
\item A time to pull down
\item And a time to build up.
\item A time to weep
\item And a time to laugh;
\item A time to mourn
\item And a time to dance.
\item A time to throw stones
\item And a time to gather stones;
\item A time to embrace
\item And a time to refrain from embracing.
\item A time to seek
\item And a time to lose;
\item A time to keep
\item And a time to throw away.
\item A time to tear
\item And a time to sew;
\item A time to keep silent
\item And a time to speak.
\end{itemize}
And a time to hate;
A time of war
And a time of peace.

The Gifts of God

9What profit has the worker from all his labors? 10I have seen altogether the tasks which God has given to the sons of men to be engaged in. 11He made everything beautiful in its time, and He indeed put eternity in their hearts in such a way that man may not find out the work God made from the beginning to the end. 12I know there is nothing better for them than to rejoice and do good in their lives. 13Indeed, every man should eat and drink and experience the good in all his labor—this is God’s gift to him.

‡ I know that whatever things God does,
They shall be forever.
Nothing can be added to or taken away from these things,
For God did them that men would fear before Him.

‡ What is has already been,
And what is to be has already been;
And God will require an account of what is past.

God Judges All

‡ Moreover I saw under the sun the place of judgment.
The ungodly man was there.
I also saw the place of the righteous man.
The ungodly man was not there.
‡ I said in my heart,
“God will judge both the righteous man and the ungodly man,
For there is a time for every action and every work.”

18I said in my heart, “Concerning the speech of the sons of men, God will judge them so as to show them that indeed, they are themselves like animals.” 19For what happens to the sons of men also happens to animals: one thing befalls them; as is the death of the one, so also is the death of the other, and there is one breath to all. So what advantage does a man have over an animal? For all things are vanity. 20All go to one place: all are from the dust, and all return to the dust. 21Who knows the spirit of the sons of men, whether it goes upward, and the spirit of the animal, whether it goes downward to the earth? 22So I saw that there was no good except that a man should rejoice in his works; for that is his portion. For who shall bring him to see what happens after him?{1}

Those Oppressed

Then I returned and saw all the oppressions done under the sun.

Behold, the weeping of the oppressed!
But they have no comforter.
On the side of the oppressors was power,
But they have no comforter.{2}

So I praised those who were already dead
More than the living,
As many as are alive until now.

Better than both these is he who has not yet been born,
Who has not seen all the evil work done under the sun.

Again I saw all the labor and all the courage of the worker, that this is the zeal of a man because of his companion. This is also vanity and is the choice of one's spirit.

The senseless man folds his hands
And consumes his own flesh.

Better is a handful of rest
Than two handfuls of labor,
And it is the choice of one's spirit.

Then I returned and saw vanity under the sun:

There is one, and there is not a second one,
And he has neither son nor brother.
And there is no end to all his labor,
Neither is his eye satisfied with wealth.
But he never asks,
“For whom do I labor and deprive myself of goodness?”
This also is vanity and a painful distraction.{5}

The Treasure of Friendship

Two are better than one
Because they have a good reward for their labor.
For if they fall, one will lift up his companion.
But woe to him who is alone when he falls,
For there is not a second one to help him up!

If two lie down together, both stay warm,
But how can one stay warm alone?
If one is added strength, two will stand before him,
And a threefold cord is not quickly broken.

An Unlikely King

Better is a poor and wise youth
Than an old and senseless king
Who will no longer take advice.

For this youth shall come from the house of prisoners to reign,
Even though in his kingdom he was born poor.
I saw all the living who walk under the sun,
And they were with the youth
Who will be established in the king's place.

There was no end of all the people
Over whom he was made king;
Yet those who come afterward will not rejoice in him.
Surely this also is vanity and is the choice of one's spirit.

Draw Near to God

Walk carefully when you go to the house of God. And draw near to hear, rather than to offer the sacrifice of senseless men; for they do not know that they do evil.

Do not be hasty with your mouth,
And do not let not your heart be quick
To utter a word before God;
For God is in heaven, and you are on earth;
Therefore, let your words be few.

For a dream comes in a multitude of distractions,
And the voice of a senseless man is with a multitude of words.
When you make a vow to God, do not delay to pay it,
For His will is not in senseless men.
So pay whatever you vowed.
Better not to vow than to vow and not pay.

Do not let your mouth cause your flesh to sin, and do not say in the presence of God, “It was a mistake.” Why should God be angry at your voice, and destroy the work of your hands?

For in a multitude of dreams there are vanities and many words, but you should fear God.

The Vanity of Riches

If you see the oppression of the poor and the violation of judgment and righteousness in the land, do not marvel at the matter; for there is a high official to watch over a high official, and higher ones over them! Moreover, the abundance of the earth is for all: even a king depends on work in the field.

He who loves silver will not be satisfied with silver; Nor he who loves the harvest, with its abundance. This also is vanity.

In the abundance of good things They who eat them also increase, But what virtue does the owner have from them, Except to see them with his eyes?

The sleep of a servant is sweet, Whether he eats little or much; But the abundance of the rich will not permit him to sleep.

There was a sickness I saw under the sun: Wealth kept for its owner to his hurt. That wealth shall perish in painful distraction, And he begets a son; But there is nothing in his hand. As he came from his mother's womb, Naked shall he return, to go as he came; And he shall take nothing from his labor That it may go with him in his hand. This also is a painful sickness, For as he came, so shall he go; And what is his gain, for which he labored for the wind? All his days are in darkness and sorrow.
And in much anger, sickness, and gall.

17 Behold, I have seen good: It is a fine thing for a man to experience goodness in all his labor in which he toils all the days of his life that God has given him; for it is his portion.

18 As for every man to whom God has given wealth, possessions, and authority—to eat from it, to receive his portion, and to rejoice in his labor—this is the gift of God. 19 For he will not remember the many days of his life, because God distracted him in the merriment of his heart.

6 There is an evil I have seen under the sun, and it is abundant among men:† 2 A man to whom God shall give wealth, possessions, and glory, so he lacks nothing for his life from all the things he shall desire; yet God does not give him power to eat of it, but a stranger consumes it. This is vanity and a grievous sickness.

3 If a man begets a hundred children, and he shall live many years—however many the days of his years shall be—yet his soul is not to be filled with goodness, and he also has no burial. I say that a miscarried child is better than he, 4 for it came in futility and departs in darkness; and its name shall be covered with darkness. 5 Though it has not seen the sun or known anything, it has more rest than that man. 6 Even if he lived a thousand years twice, but has not seen goodness, do not all go to one place?

2 All the labor of man is for his mouth, And yet his soul is not satisfied.

3 For what advantage does the skilled man Have over the unskilled man, Since even this poor man knows how to keep himself alive?

4 Better is the sight of the eyes Than the wandering of the soul. This also is vanity and is the choice of one's spirit.

5 If anything has come to be, Its name has already been used; And it is known what man is, That he is unable to dispute with him Who is stronger than he.

6 Since there are many words that multiply vanity, What advantage does man have?
For who knows what is good for man in his life? For all his days in life, which pass like a shadow, are spent in vanity. Who can tell a man what will happen under the sun after he is gone?

The Value of Wisdom

A good name is better than good olive oil,

And the day of one's death
Than the day of one's birth.†

It is better to go to the house of mourning
Than to go to the house of drinking,
For this is the end of every man;
And the living will take it to heart.

Sorrow is better than laughter,
For by a sad countenance the heart is made better.

The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning,
But the heart of senseless men is in the house of merriment.

It is better to hear the rebuke of a wise man
Than for a man to hear the song of senseless men.†

For like the crackling of thorns under a pot,
So is the laughter of senseless men.

This also is vanity.

Oppression makes a learned man dizzy
And destroys his vigorous heart.

The end of matters is better than their beginning,
And a patient man is better than one haughty in spirit.

Do not be hasty in your spirit to be angry,
For anger rests in the bosom of senseless men.

Do not say, “Why were the former days better than these?”
For you do not inquire wisely concerning this.

Wisdom is good with an inheritance,
And profitable to those who see the sun.

For wisdom in its shadow is as the shadow of silver,
But the abundance of the knowledge of wisdom
Will give life to him who has it.
Behold the works of God,
For who can put in order him
Whom God made crooked?

In the day of what is good, live in that goodness,
But in the day of trouble, consider also
That God made one harmonious with the other,
That a man may not find out anything
That will come after him.

I saw everything in my days of vanity:
There is a righteous man
Who perishes in his righteousness,
And there is an ungodly man
Who remains alive in his vice.

Do not be overly righteous,
Nor be overly wise,
Lest you be confounded.

Do not be very ungodly,
Nor be hardened,
Lest you die before your time.

It is good that you lay hold of this
And do not let your hand let go of it:
For the one who fears God, all things will turn out well.

Wisdom will help the wise
More than ten rulers in the city.

For there is not a righteous man on earth
Who does good and does not sin.

Also do not take to heart all the words people say,
Lest you hear your servant cursing you.

For very often he will act in an evil manner against you,
And many times he will afflict your heart,
Just as you have cursed others.

I proved all this by wisdom.
I said, “I will be wise,”
But it was far from me.
As for what is far off and exceedingly deep,
Who will find it out?

I and my heart went about to know,
And to search and seek out wisdom
And the account of things,
And to know the foolishness, hardness, and madness
Of the ungodly man.

I find more bitter than death
The woman who is a snare and her heart a net;
And her hands are her chains.
A man who is good in the sight of God will escape from her,
But the sinner will be caught by her.

“Behold, I found this,” says the Preacher,
“Adding one thing to the other to find out the reason,
Which my soul still seeks, but cannot find:
I found one man among a thousand,
But a woman among all these, I have not found.
Except behold, I found this,
That God makes man upright,
But they have sought out many schemes.”

Who knows the wise?
And who knows the interpretation of a thing?
A man’s wisdom makes his face shine,
And a man shameless in face will be hated.

Obey Those Who Rule.

Keep the king’s commandment and spare no effort for the sake of your oath to God. You will go out from his presence, but do not stand with an evil thing, for the king will do whatever he pleases.

Insofar as a king has authority, he speaks,
And who will say to him,
“Why will you do this?”

He who keeps his commandment will not know an evil thing,
And a wise man’s heart knows the time of judgment.

For to every matter there is a time and a judgment,
Because the knowledge of a man lies heavily upon him.

2 For there is no one who knows what is going to be;
For who will tell him how it shall be?

3 No one has the authority over his spirit to withhold his spirit,
And no one has authority in the day of his death.
There is no discharge in that war,
And ungodliness will not save those given to it.

9 I saw all this and gave my heart to every work done under the sun wherein one man has authority over another man to injure him.

(Death Visits All)

10 Then I saw the ungodly buried in their tombs and brought from their holy place and praised in the city for what they had done. But this also is vanity. 11 For no controversy comes quickly against those who do evil; therefore, the heart of the sons of men is fully determined within them to do evil. 12 Whoever sins does evil from that time on and for a long time afterwards; nevertheless, I know that it shall be well for those who fear God so long as they have fear before Him. 13 But it shall not be well with the ungodly man; he will not prolong his days, which are as a shadow, because he does not have fear before God.

14 There is a vanity that is done on earth: there are the righteous as when the work of the ungodly overtakes them, and there are the ungodly as when the work of the righteous overtakes them. I said that this also is vanity. 15 So I praised merriment, because a man has nothing better to do under the sun than to eat, drink, and be merry; for this will be present with him in his labor all the days of his life that God gives him under the sun.

16 For this reason I committed my heart to know wisdom and to see the distractions done on earth; nevertheless, he receives no sleep, day or night. 17 Then I saw all the works of God, that a man cannot discover how He does His work under the sun. No matter how much a man labors to discover it, yet he will not find it out. And no matter how much a wise man may speak of knowing it, he will not be able to find it out.

9 For I gave my heart to all this, and my heart saw all this, that the righteous and the wise and their works are in the hand of God. Whether it be love or hatred, man does not know it, although all things are before him.

Vanity is in all things:
One event happens to the righteous man and the ungodly man,
To the good man and the evil man,
To the pure man and the impure man,
To the man who sacrifices and the man who does not sacrifice.
As is the good man, so is the man who sins;
As is he who takes an oath, so is he who fears an oath.

There is this evil in everything done under the sun, that one event happens to all. And truly the heart of the sons of men is full of evil; madness is in their heart while they live, and afterwards they go to the dead. For who has fellowship with all the living? There is hope, for a living dog is better than a dead lion.†

For the living know they will die,
But the dead know nothing;
And they have no more reward,
For the memory of them is forgotten.
Also their love, hatred, and envy have now perished;
And they have no portion forever
In all that is done under the sun.
Go, eat your bread with merriment
And drink your wine with a happy heart;
For now God is well pleased with your works.†
Let your garments be always white,
And let your head lack no oil.

Experience life with the wife whom you love all the days of your vain life which He gave you under the sun all your days of vanity; for that is your portion in life and in the labor you performed under the sun. Whatever your hand finds to do, do it with all your might; for there is no work or reasoning or knowledge or wisdom in Hades where you are going. I returned and saw under the sun that:

The race is not to the swift,
Nor the battle to the strong,
Nor bread to the wise,
Nor wealth to men of understanding,
Nor favor to men of knowledge;
For time and chance will happen to them all.

For man also does not know his time:
Like fish taken in a cruel net,
Like birds caught in a snare,
So the sons of men are snared in an evil time
When it falls suddenly upon them.

Wisdom Is Better Than Strength

I saw this wisdom under the sun, and it is great to me. There was a little city with a few men in it; and a great king came against it and surrounded it and built great barricades around it. Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and by his wisdom he rescued the city; yet no one remembered that poor man. Then I said:

"Wisdom is better than strength,
But the poor man's wisdom is despised,
And his words are not heard.

The words of the wise are heard in quietness
More than the shouting of those who rule in foolishness.

Wisdom is better than weapons of war,
But one sinner destroys much goodness."

Dead flies will corrupt the preparation of seasoned olive oil,
And a little wisdom is more valuable
Than the glory of great foolishness.

A wise man's heart is at his right hand,
But the heart of a senseless man is at his left.

When a senseless man also walks along the way,
His heart will fail him,
And everything he considers is foolishness.

If the spirit of the ruler rises against you,
Do not leave your place;
For soothing puts an end to great sins.

There is an evil I saw under the sun
When an offense proceeds from a ruler.

The senseless man devotes himself to great heights,
And rich men shall sit in a lowly place.
I saw servants on horses
And princes walking on the ground like servants.

He who digs a pit will fall into it,
And he who pulls down a wall will be bitten by a serpent.

He who removes stones will be worn out by them,
And he who cuts down trees will be endangered by them.

If the ax head falls off, then his countenance is troubled,
And he will put forth more strength;
And in that case skill is of no advantage to the man.

If the serpent bites when it is not charmed,
Then there is no advantage to the charmer.

The words of a wise mouth are gracious,
But the lips of a fool shall swallow him up.

The words of his mouth begin with foolishness,
And the end of his talk is evil madness.

A senseless man multiplies words.
No man knows what is to be;
And who will tell him what will be after him?

The labor of fools wears them out,
For they do not even know how to go to the city!

Woe to you, O city whose king is young
And whose princes feast in the morning!

Blessed are you, O land,
When your king is the son of nobles
And your princes feast at the proper time in strength.
They will not be dishonored.

Because of laziness the roofing will be brought low,
And through idleness of hands the house will leak.

They make bread for laughter,
And wine delights the living;
But all will listen to money.

Do not curse the king, even in your conscience;
Do not curse the rich, even in your bedroom;
For a bird of the air will carry your voice,
And a bird in flight will tell the matter.
Cast your bread upon the face of the water,

For you will find it after many days.\(^2\)

\(^2\) Give a portion to seven and also to eight,

For you do not know what evil there will be on the earth.

\(^3\) If the clouds are full of rain, they pour it out upon the earth,

And if a tree falls to the south or to the north,

In the place where the tree falls, there it shall lie.

\(^4\) He who observes the wind will not sow,

And he who sees the clouds will not reap.

\(^5\) As you do not know the way of the wind,

Or how the bones grow in the womb of her who is with child,

So you do not know the works of God,

Even all things whatever He will do.

\(^6\) In the morning sow your seed,

And in the evening do not withhold your hand;

For you do not know which will prosper,

Either this or that,

Or whether both alike will be good.

\(^7\) The light is sweet,

And it is good for the eyes to behold the sun.

\(^8\) For if a man lives many years

And rejoices in them all,

Yet let him remember the days of darkness,

For they shall be many.

All that comes is vanity.

Follow God in Your Youth

\(^9\) Be glad, O young man, in your youth,

And let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth.

Walk in the ways of your heart

And in the sight of your eyes;
But know for all this
That God will bring you into judgment.

Therefore remove anger from your heart
And pass by evil with your flesh,
For youth and lack of understanding are vanity.

12 Remember your Creator in the days of your youth,
Before the difficult days come
And the years arrive when you say, "

2 While the sun and the light,
The moon and the stars
Are not darkened,
And the clouds do not return after the rain;

3 In the day when the keepers of the house tremble,
And the men of strength are led astray;
When the women who grind the grain become idle
Because they are few;
When the women who look out the windows
Will remain in darkness;

4 When the doors are shut in the marketplace,
And the sound of grinding is low;
When one rises up at the sound of a sparrow,
And all the daughters of song are brought low.

5 Also they will look from the height,
And there are terrors in the way;
When the almond tree blossoms,
The grasshopper grows fat,
And the caper plant is scattered.

For man goes to his eternal home,
And the mourners go about the marketplace.

6 Remember your Creator until the silver cord is removed,
And the golden flower is pressed together,
And the pitcher is shattered at the fountain,
And the wheel runs together at the well;

7 Then the dust returns to the earth as it was,
And the spirit returns to God who gave it.
“Vanity of vanities,” says the Preacher,
“All is vanity.” ²

⁹ Because the Preacher was wise more than others, he taught the people knowledge; and the ear will search out his well-ordered proverbs. ¹⁰ The Preacher sought diligently to find desirable words, and what was written is upright; they are words of truth.

¹¹ The words of the wise are like pointed sticks, like nails firmly fastened; they are given from the collections and abound from them by one Shepherd. ¹² Moreover, my son, guard yourself, for there is no end to the making of many books, and much study is weariness of the flesh.

¹³ Hear the conclusion of the whole matter:

Fear God
And keep His commandments,
For this is the whole man.
² For God will bring every work into judgment,
Including everything that has been overlooked,
Whether it be good or evil.

The Song of Songs

Author—Traditionally, Solomon, who is referred to seven times (1:1, 5; 3:7, 9, 11; 8:11, 12).

Date—About 965–960 BC, according to early Jewish tradition.

Major Theme— The love between husband and wife. The Song of Songs is a hymn used by the Jewish people for centuries to celebrate human love at wedding feasts. The theme is symbolic of God's love for His faithful people and their reciprocal love. Christians have tended to emphasize the allegorical interpretation of Christ's love for His Bride, the Church.

Background—Typical of ancient Middle Eastern love poetry, the Song of Songs shares the extensive use of sensuous imagery drawn from nature. The closest parallels appear to be found in Proverbs (5:15–20; 6:24–29; 7:6–23). The description of love in 8:6, 7 seems to confirm that the Song belongs to biblical wisdom literature and that it is wisdom's description of an amorous relationship.

Outline

I. Title: Solomon's Song of Songs (1:1)

II. The First Meeting: Love's Desire (1:2–2:7)

III. The Second Meeting: Aspiring Courtship (2:8–3:5)

IV. The Third Meeting: Solomon's Wedding Procession (3:6–5:1)

V. The Fourth Meeting: The Bride's Search for Her Lover (5:2–6:3)

VI. The Fifth Meeting: Union of Spouses (6:4–8:4)

VII. Strength of Devoted Love (8:5–7)

VIII. The Conclusion (8:8–14)

The Bride.

The Song of Songs, which is Solomon's.†

† Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth,
For your love is better than wine;‡

‡ And the smell of your ointments is better than all spices.
Your name is ointment poured forth;
Therefore, the young maidens love you.‡
‡ They draw you.

Companions

We will run after you
For the smell of your ointments.

The Bride

The king brought me into his chamber.

Companions

Let us be extremely joyful and glad in you.
We will love your breasts more than wine;
Uprightness loves you.†

The Bride

5 I am black and beautiful,
O daughters of Jerusalem,
As the tents of Kedar,
As the curtains of Solomon.†
6 Do not look at me because I am black,
For the sun gave me a tan.
The sons of my mother fought with me
And made me keeper in the vineyards.
But I have not kept my own vineyard.‡
7 Tell me, you whom my soul loves,
Where you shepherd your flock,
Where you rest them at noonday;
Lest I become as one
Who encompasses herself
With the herds of your companions.‡

The Groom

8 If you do not know yourself,
Fairest among women,
Go forth on the heels of the flocks,
And tend your young goats by the shepherds' tents.
*I have likened you, my beloved,
To my horses in the chariots of Pharaoh.
Your cheeks are as beautiful as turtledoves,
Your neck as a small necklace.

We will make for you figures of gold
With studs of silver.

While the king was at the table,
My spikenard gave forth its smell.
My beloved is to me a bundle of myrrh;
He shall take rest in between my breasts.
To me, my beloved is a cluster of grapes from Cyprus
In the vineyards of En Gedi.

Behold, you are beautiful, my beloved;
Behold, you are beautiful;
Your eyes are doves.

Behold, you are beautiful, my beloved,
And indeed lovely;
Our bed is shaded.
The beams of our houses are cedars;
Our ceilings are cypress wood.

I am a flower of the plain,
A lily of the valleys.

As a lily among thorns,
So is my beloved among the daughters.

As the apple among the trees of the woods,
So is my beloved among the sons.

I desired to be in his shadow and to sit down;
And his fruit was sweet in my mouth.

Bring me into the house of wine;
Set love before me.

Strengthen me with cakes of raisins;
Refresh me with apples,
For I am wounded with love.

His left hand shall be under my head,
And his right hand shall embrace me.

I implore you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
By the hosts and powers of the field,
That you rouse not nor wake my love
Until he wishes.

The voice of my beloved!
Behold, he comes leaping on the mountains
And skipping over the hills.

My beloved is as a gazelle or a young stag
On the mountains of Bethel.
Behold, he stands behind our wall,
Looking through the windows
And peering through the lattices.

My beloved answers and says to me,
"Rise up and come, my companion, my fair one, my dove.

For behold, the winter is past,
And the rain is gone;
It has departed.

The flowers are seen in the land;
The time of pruning has arrived;
The voice of the dove is heard in our land.

The fig tree has put forth its young figs,
And the vines are in bloom and give forth their fragrance.
Arise and come, my companion, my fair one, my dove,¹
² And come, my dove, to the shelter of the rock,
And take hold of the wall.
Show me your face,
And cause me to hear your voice;
For your voice is sweet,
And your face is beautiful."¹

Companions

Catch us the foxes,
The little ones that spoil the vineyard,
For our vines are in bloom.

The Bride

My beloved is mine, and I am his,
He who shepherds his flock among the lilies.²
Until the day dawns and the shadows depart,
My beloved, turn back, and be as likened to
A gazelle or a young stag
On the mountains of the ravines.³

In the night on my bed
I sought him whom my soul loves;
I sought him, but did not find him.
I called him, but he did not hear me.
² I will rise now and go about the city,
In the marketplaces and the streets.
I will seek him whom my soul loves.
I sought him, but did not find him.⁴
² The watchmen who do their rounds in the city
Found me, and I said to them,
"Have you seen him whom my soul loves?"⁴
⁴ Scarcely had I departed from them
When I found him whom my soul loves.
I held him and would not let him go
Until I brought him into my mother's house,
Into the chamber of her who conceived me.

I implore you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
By the hosts and powers of the field,
That you rouse not nor wake my love
Until he wishes.

Companions

Who is this who comes up from the desert
Like pillars of smoke,
Offering incense, myrrh, and frankincense,
With all the fragrant powders of the perfumer?

Behold the bed of Solomon;
Sixty mighty men round about it
From the mighty ones of Israel,

All holding a sword
And trained in war.
Every man has his sword upon his thigh
Because of fear in the night.

King Solomon made a palanquin for himself
From the trees of Lebanon.

He made its pillars of silver
And its back of gold,
Its covering crimson,
Its interior a mosaic of love,
Because of the daughters of Jerusalem.

Go forth and look at King Solomon,
At the crown with which his mother crowned him
In the day of his wedding,
And in the day of the gladness of his heart.

The Groom

Behold, you are beautiful, my companion,

Behold, you are beautiful.
Your eyes are like doves behind your veil;
Your hair is as flocks of goats
Coming down from Gilead.†

‡ Your teeth are as flocks of shorn sheep
That went up from the washing,
All of them bearing twins,
And none among them is barren.‡

³ Your lips are like a thread of scarlet,
And your manner of speech is pleasant.
As the rind of a pomegranate
Are your cheeks behind your veil.‡

⁴ Your neck is like the tower of David,
The one built on courses of stone.
A thousand shields hang upon it,
All the arrows of the mighty men.‡

⁵ Your two breasts are like two fawns,
Twins of a gazelle, that feed among the lilies.‡

⁶ Until the day dawns and the shadows depart,
I will go my way to the mountain of myrrh
And to the hill of frankincense.‡

⁷ You are altogether beautiful,
And there is no blemish in you.‡

⁸ Come from Lebanon, my bride, come from Lebanon.
Beginning with faithfulness, you shall come and pass through
From the top of Senir and Hermon,
From the dens of lions
And the mountains of leopards.‡

² My sister, my bride, you ravished my heart;
You have ravished my heart with one look from your eyes,
With one jewel of your necklace.‡

²² My sister, my bride,
How beautiful are your breasts.
How much more beautiful are your breasts than wine,
And the fragrance of your garments than all the spices.‡

²² Your lips, my bride, drip as the honeycomb;
Honey and milk are under your tongue;
And the fragrance of your garments
Is as the scent of Lebanon."
My dove, my perfect one;
For my head is wet with dew,
And my locks of hair with the drops of the night."

I have taken off my tunic; how can I put it back on?
I have washed my feet; how can I dirty them?

My beloved put his hand by the opening of the door,
And my heart was stirred by him.

I arose to open to my beloved;
My hands dripped with myrrh,
My fingers with choice myrrh,
Upon the handles of the door.

I opened it for my beloved,
But my beloved had passed by.

My soul went after him because of his word,
And I sought him, but did not find him;
I called him, but he did not answer me.

The watchmen who encircled the city found me.
They struck and wounded me;
The guards of the walls removed my veil.

I implore you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
By the hosts and powers of the field,
If you find my beloved, what should you tell him?
That I am wounded with love.

Companions

What is your beloved more than another beloved,
My beautiful one among women?
What is your beloved more than another beloved,
That you implore us?

The Bride

My beloved is a shining and fiery light,
Chosen from countless thousands.

His head is like refined gold;
His locks of hair are shiny and black,
Like a raven's feathers.

His eyes are like those of doves
Sitting by pools of water,
Having eyes bathed in milk and fitly set.

His cheeks are like bowls of spices
Pouring forth perfumes.

His lips are lilies dripping choice myrrh.

His hands are like elaborate gold
Set with precious stones.

His stomach is like an ivory tablet
Inlaid with sapphire stones.

His legs are like pillars of marble
Established on golden feet.

His appearance is like Lebanon,
Choice as the cedar trees.

His mouth is most sweet and altogether desirable.

This is my beloved, my companion,
O daughters of Jerusalem!

Where has your beloved gone,
You beautiful one among women?

Where has your beloved turned his attention?
For we will seek him with you.

My beloved has gone down to his garden,
To the beds of spice,
To shepherd his sheep in the gardens
And to gather lilies.

I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine,
He who shepherds his sheep among the lilies.
You are beautiful, my companion,
You are my good pleasure;
You are as beautiful as Jerusalem;
You are as awesome as an army set in array.

Turn away your eyes from before me,
For they have ravished me.
Your hair is like flocks of goats
Coming down from Gilead.†

Your teeth are as flocks of sheep
That are sheared,
Which came up from the washing.
All of them bear twins,
And none among them is barren.

Your lips are like scarlet thread,
And your manner of speech is lovely.
Your cheeks outside your veil
Are like the rind of a pomegranate.

There are sixty queens
And eighty concubines,
And maidens without number.‡

My dove, my perfect one is the only one;
And she is the only one of her mother,
The choice of the one who bore her.
The daughters saw her
And considered her blessed.
The queens and the concubines will also praise her.

Who is she who looks forth as the early morning,
Beautiful as the moon,
Choice as the sun,
Awesome as armies set in array?‡

I went down to the orchard of nut trees
To see the fruits of the valley,
To see if the vineyard had blossomed
And if the pomegranates had put forth blossoms.

There I will give my breasts to you:²

≡ My soul did not know it.

It made me as the chariots of Amminadab.

Companions

Return, return, O Shulamite;
Return, return, and we will look at you.

The Groom

What will you see in the Shulamite,
She who comes as the troops of armies?²

² Why are your feet beautiful in your sandals,
O daughter of Nadab?

The curves of your thighs are like small necklaces,
The work of a skilled craftsman.¹

Not lacking mixed wine.

Your stomach is like a heap of wheat
Set about with lilies.

² Your two breasts are like two fawns,
The twins of a gazelle.

³ Your neck is like a tower of ivory,
And your eyes are like pools in Heshbon
By the gates of a daughter of many.

Your nose is like the tower of Lebanon
Pointing towards Damascus.

⁴ Your head crowns you like Carmel,
And the locks of your hair are like a purple garment.

The king is held captive by your curls.

² How beautiful and how sweet you are, O love,
With your delights!

⁵ This greatness of yours is like the palm tree,
And your breasts like a cluster of grapes.
I said, “I will climb up the palm tree,
And grasp hold of its high branches.”
Indeed your breasts shall be like clusters of the vine,
And the fragrance of your nose like apples,
And your mouth like a good wine
That goes down smoothly for my beloved,
Fit for my lips and teeth.

I am my beloved’s
And his desire is towards me.
Come, my beloved, let us go forth into the field;
Let us lodge in the villages;
Let us rise early in the morning in the vineyards;
Let us see if the vine has flowered,
If the blossoms have appeared,
If the pomegranates have blossomed.
There I will give you my breasts.
The mandrakes have put forth an aroma,
And fruits of all kinds, new and old,
Are at our doors.
O my beloved, I have kept them for you.

Who would have granted you, my brother,
To nurse at my mother’s breasts?
I would have found you outside;
I would have kissed you,
And no one would despise me.
Then I would take you along
And lead you to my mother’s house,
Into the chamber of her who conceived me;
I would give you spiced wine to drink,
The juice of my pomegranates.
His left hand would be under my head,
And his right hand would embrace me.
I implore you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
By the hosts and powers of the field,
Do not rouse nor wake my love
Until he wishes.

Who is she who comes up, is made white,
And leans on her beloved?

Under an apple tree I raised you up.
There your mother travailed in labor for you;
There she who travailed in labor for you
Gave you birth.

Set me as a seal upon your heart,
As a seal upon your arm;
For love is as strong as death,
Jealousy as cruel as Hades.
Her sparks are sparks of fire,
Even the flames thereof.

Much water will not be able to quench love,
Nor will rivers drown it.
If a man should give all his possessions for love,
Men would utterly despise them.

Our sister is small and has no breasts;
What will we do for our sister
In the day when she is spoken for?
If she is a wall, let us build silver battlements upon her;
And if she is a door, let us carve cedar panels for her.

I am a wall, and my breasts are as towers;
I was in his eyes as one who found peace.
Solomon had a vineyard in Baal Hamon;
He entrusted his vineyard to keepers.

A man was to bring a thousand silver coins for its fruit.†

‡ My vineyard before me is mine;

O Solomon, you shall have a thousand,

And those who keep its fruit, two hundred.

The Groom

‡ You who dwell in the gardens,

The companions give heed to your voice;

Cause me to hear.‡

The Bride

‡ Escape, my beloved, and be like the gazelle

Or the fawn of a deer

On the mountains of spices.

The Wisdom of Solomon

Author—An unknown Jewish believer of the larger Greek community of Alexandria, Egypt.

Date—30–10 BC.

Major Theme—The greatness of Wisdom. The Wisdom of Solomon was written to offer edification to a Jewish community during times of political, military, and religious upheaval. Its aim was to encourage the Jews to be faithful to their covenant with God. The work was also intended to attract pagans and apostate Jews back to Judaism.

Background—The content of this rich theological work has prepared for and deeply influenced the Church's teachings on the Incarnation of Christ, as well as its understanding of God, salvation, and the nature of the Church itself. The Wisdom of Solomon is frequently found in the Old Testament readings of the Church lectionary, especially during Holy Week. This inspired writing was used in the early Church to further instruct those most recently baptized. Chronologically, it was the last book written in the Old Testament Canon, and it serves as a bridge to the New Testament in terms of theology and preparation for the Advent of Christ.

Outline

I. Wisdom Bestows Eternal Life (1:1–6:21)

III. Wisdom Guides God’s Chosen People during the Exodus (11:1–19:22)

Seek the Lord

Love righteousness, you who judge on the earth.

Think about the Lord in goodness

And seek Him with sincerity of heart;²

² Because He is found by those who do not tempt Him,

And He is manifest to those who do not disbelieve Him.

² For dishonest reasoning separates people from God,

And when His power examines someone,
It convicts the undiscerning;

4 For wisdom will not enter the soul that plots evil,

Nor will it dwell in a body involved in sin.†

5 For a holy spirit of discipline flees from deceit

And sends away undiscerning reasoning;

It will put wrongdoing to shame when it comes near.†

God Examines Our Actions

6 For wisdom is a spirit that loves mankind,

But she will punish a blasphemer because of his words;

For God is the witness of his thoughts,

The true examiner of his heart, and the hearer of his tongue;

7 Because the Spirit of the Lord fills the world,

And He who holds all things together knows what is said.†

8 Therefore no one who speaks unrighteous things

Will escape notice,

Nor will justice, when it cross-examines, pass him by.

9 For there shall be a close examination

Into the deliberations of an ungodly man,

And a report of his words will come to the Lord

As proof of his lawlessness;

8 For the zealous ear hears all things,

And the noise of murmuring is not hidden.

8 Therefore keep yourself from useless murmuring

And refrain your tongue from evil speech;

For no secret word will go unpunished,

And a lying mouth will destroy one's soul.

God Made Life, Not Death

8 Do not be zealous for death by the deceit of your life,

Nor bring destruction upon yourself by the works of your hands.

8 For God did not make death,

Neither does He have pleasure over the destruction of the living.†

8 For He created all things that they might exist,

And the generations of the world so they might be preserved;
For there was no poison of death in them,
Nor was the reign of Hades on the earth.

2 For righteousness does not die.
3 But the ungodly summoned death by their words and works;
Although they thought death would be a friend, they were dissolved.
For they made a covenant with death,
Since they were deserving to share it in common.

An Ungodly View of Life

For they said among themselves, as they reasoned incorrectly:

*Our life is short and painful,
And there is no cure for the death of a man;
For no one has been known to return from Hades;
2 Because we were born by chance,
And after this we shall be as though we never existed;
For the breath in our nostrils is smoke,
And our speech is the spark kindled by the beating of our heart.
3 When the spark is extinguished, our body will turn to ashes,
And our breath will disperse like empty air.
4 Then our name will be forgotten in due time,
And no one will remember our works;
So our life will pass away like the trace of a cloud
And be scattered like fog,
Driven away by the rays of the sun
And oppressed by its heat.
5 For our appointed time is the passing of a shadow,
And there is no return from our death;
Because it is sealed up, no one can turn back.
6 Come, therefore, and let us enjoy the good things that exist,
And make the most of creation as quickly as possible,
As we did in our youth.
7 Let us be filled with expensive wine and perfumes,
And let no flower of springtime pass us by.
8 Let us crown ourselves with rosebuds
Before they wither away.

Let none of us fail to share in our arrogance.
Let us leave signs of our gladness everywhere,
Because this is our portion, and this is our lot.

Let us oppress the righteous poor man;
Let us not spare a widow,
Nor respect the aged gray hair of an old man.

Let our might be our law of righteousness,
For what is weak is shown to be useless.

Hatred of the Righteous

"Let us lie in ambush for the righteous man,
Because he is useless to us and opposes our deeds;
He denounces us for our sins against the law
And accuses us of sins against our upbringing.\(^1\)
He claims to have knowledge of God,
And he calls himself a child of the Lord.
He has become for us as a refutation of our purposes;
Even seeing him is a burden to us,
Because his life is unlike that of others;
For his paths go in a different direction.
We are considered by him as a hybrid,
And he avoids our ways as something immoral.
He considers the last things of the righteous as blessed
And pretends that God is his Father.

Let us see if his words are true,
And let us put these last things to the test at the end of his life.
For if the righteous man is a son of God, He will help him,
And deliver him from the hand of those who oppose him.\(^2\)
Let us test him with insult and torture
That we may know his gentleness
And test his patient endurance.
Let us condemn him to a shameful death,
For there shall be a visitation because of his words.”

So they reasoned these things
And were led astray,
For their malice blinded them.

But they did not know the mysteries of God,
Nor hope for the wages of holiness,
Nor judge the reward of blameless souls.

For God created man for immortality
And made him an image of His own eternity.

But death entered the world by the envy of the devil,
And those of his portion tempt it.

The Hope of the Righteous

But the souls of the righteous are in the hand of God,
And no torture will ever touch them.

In the eyes of the undiscerning they seemed to have died,
And their departure was considered to be misfortune,
And their passage from us to be their destruction;
But they are at peace.

For though in man’s view they were punished,
Their hope is full of immortality.
Though chastened in a few things,
Great kindness will be shown them,
For God tested them and found them worthy of Himself.

He tested them like gold in a furnace
And accepted them as a whole burnt offering.
In the time of their visitation they will shine forth,
And they will run about like sparks through straw.
They will judge nations and rule over peoples,
And the Lord shall reign over them unto the ages.
Those who trust in Him will understand truth,
And the faithful shall continue with Him in love,
Because grace and mercy are upon His elect.

The Plight of the Ungodly

But the ungodly shall experience
The punishment they themselves plotted,
They who rejected the righteous man
And rebelled against the Lord.\(^1\)

\(\hat{=}\) For whoever despises wisdom and instruction is miserable,
And their hope is vain, their labors are useless,
And their works are worthless.
\(\hat{=}\) Their wives are foolish,
And their children are evil, their existence accursed.

The Blessing of Virtue

\(\hat{=}\) Blessed is the undefiled barren woman
Who has not known sexual promiscuity;
She shall have fruit in the visitation of souls.\(^1\)
\(\hat{=}\) Blessed also is the eunuch who has done no lawless deed,
Nor thought evil things against the Lord;
For a chosen grace of faith will be given to him,
And a delightful portion in the temple of the Lord.
\(\hat{=}\) For the fruit of good labors is of good report,
And the root of discernment is infallible.

Children of the Ungodly

\(\hat{=}\) But the children of adulterers shall not reach maturity,
And the seed of a lawless bed shall perish.
\(\hat{=}\) For even if they live a long time
They shall be considered as nothing,
And in the end their old age will be accounted a dishonor.
\(\hat{=}\) But if they should die young, they would have no hope
Nor consolation in the day of decision.
\(\hat{=}\) For the end of an unrighteous generation is grievous.

When Virtue Is Present

Childlessness with virtue is better than this,

For immortality is in its memory;
Because it is known both by God and by man.\(^4\)
\(\hat{=}\) When virtue is present, people imitate it,
And when it goes away, they long for it.
Throughout one's lifetime,
Virtue leads the struggle for undefiled prizes,
Wearing a crown and conquering.†

3 But the prolific multitude of the ungodly are useful to no one,
And none of their illegitimate seedlings will grow a deep root
Or establish a sure footing.

4 For although they may flourish in their branches for a time,
Yet without a sure footing they will be shaken by the wind
And uprooted by the force of the winds.

5 Their twigs shall be broken off before they reach maturity,
And their fruit will be useless,
Not ripe for eating or good for anything.

6 For children born from lawless unions
Are witnesses of evil against their parents
In their close examination.†

But though a righteous man may die before his time,
He shall be at rest.

8 For old age is not honored for its length of existence,
Nor measured by its number of years;

9 But discernment is gray hair for mankind,
And a spotless life is the maturity of old age.

The Righteous Enoch

นม There was once a man pleasing to God and loved by Him,
And while living among sinners he was taken up.†

11 He was caught up lest evil change his understanding
Or deceit deceive his soul.

นม For envy arising from lack of judgment obscures what is good,
And a whirling of desire undermines an innocent heart.

13 He was made perfect,
For in a short time he fulfilled long years,

14 For his soul was pleasing to the Lord;
Therefore, He took him early from the midst of evil.
Yet peoples saw this but did not understand,
Nor take such a thing to heart,
That the Lord's grace and mercy are with His elect
And that He watches over His holy ones.

A Study in Contrasts

But a righteous man who is dead
Shall condemn the ungodly who are living,
And a youth who is quickly perfected
Shall condemn the ripe old age of a wrongdoer.
For they will see the end of the wise man,
But will not understand what the Lord purposed for him
Or why He kept him safe.
They will see and despise him,
But the Lord will laugh them to scorn.
After this they shall be dead without honor
And an insult among the dead continually;
Because He will dash them headlong and speechless to the ground
And shake them from the foundations.
They shall be left dry and barren to the very end;
They shall be in pain,
And their memory shall perish.
They will come with dread
In the day of reckoning for their sins,
And their lawless deeds will convict them to their face.

Then the righteous man will stand with confidence
In the presence of those who afflict him;
And those who reject his labors,
When they see him, will be shaken with dreadful fear;
And they shall be amazed at his unexpected salvation.
They will speak among themselves with regret,
And in anguish of spirit they will groan and say,
"This is the man whom we fools once held in derision
And made a byword of disgrace.
We considered his life to be madness
And his death as without honor."
How has he been numbered among the sons of God?
And how is his portion among the saints?

Therefore we went astray from the way of truth,
For the light of righteousness did not shine on us,
And the sun did not rise upon us.

We were satisfied with the paths of lawlessness,
And we traveled through impassable deserts;
But the way of the Lord we have not known.

What has arrogance profited us?
And how has our wealth with its false pretension helped us?

“All those things have passed by like a shadow
And like news that escapes notice;
Like a ship that passes through the waves of water,
Which after passing through, no trace can be found,
Nor the pathway of its keel in the waves;
Or like a bird, when it flies through the air,
No proof of its journey is found;
And the light air, whipped by the beating of its pinions
And divided by the force of its rushing motion,
Is traveled through by the movement of its wings,
But after this no sign of its approach is found therein;
Or like an arrow, when it is shot at an object,
The divided air immediately comes together,
So that no one knows its pathway.
Thus we also, after we are born, come to an end,
Yet have no sign of virtue to show,
But have been entirely consumed in our vice.”

Because the hope of the ungodly man
Is like dust carried by the wind
And like a light frost driven away by a storm,
It is dispersed like smoke before the wind,
And it passes like the remembrance of a guest
Who stays only one day.
But the righteous live forever,
And their reward is with the Lord;
And their care is by the Most High.

Therefore they shall receive a kingly dwelling of dignity

And a crown of beauty from the hand of the Lord,

Because He will shelter them with His right hand

And protect them with His arm.

He will take His zeal as His full armor

And will turn His creation into weapons against His enemies.

He will wear righteousness as a breastplate

And put on impartial judgment as a helmet.

He will take holiness as an unconquerable shield

And sharpen His relentless wrath for a sword;

And creation will fight with Him against the senseless.

Well-aimed flashes of lightning will strike

And leap to their object as from a well-drawn bow of clouds;

And hailstones full of anger will be hurled

As from an engine of war.

The water of the sea will be vexed with them,

And the rivers will wash over them severely.

A powerful wind will oppose them,

And like a storm it will winnow them away.

Lawlessness will lay waste all the earth,

And wrongdoing will overturn the thrones of rulers.

To Kings and Rulers

Listen therefore, O kings, and understand;

Learn, O judges of the ends of the earth.

Give ear, you that rule over multitudes,

And take pride in yourself over a multitude of nations.

For power was given to you from the Lord,

And your lordship from the Most High,

Who will make a careful search of your works

And examine closely your plans.

Because as servants of His kingdom,

You did not judge rightly;
Neither did you keep His law,
Nor did you walk according to the plan of God;
He shall come upon you terribly and quickly,
Because severe judgment falls on those who govern.
For the least is pardoned in mercy,
But the powerful shall be strongly examined.
For the Master of all will not shrink back
From anyone's presence,
Nor respect greatness;
Because He Himself made both small and great,
And cares for all alike.
But a strict inquiry is imminent for the mighty.
Therefore to you, O tyrants, my words are directed,
That you may learn wisdom and not fall away.
For they will be made holy who keep holy things piously,
And those who are taught holy things will find a defense.
Therefore long for my words;
Yearn for them, and you will be instructed.

Wisdom's Radiance

Wisdom is radiant and unfading
And is easily perceived by those who love her;
For she is found by those who seek her.
She comes upon those who long to know her beforehand.
He who rises early in the morning to seek her
Will not grow weary,
For he will find her sitting at his gates.
For to think deeply about her
Is the perfection of discernment,
And he who keeps watch for her
Will soon be free from worry;
Because she goes about seeking those worthy of her,
And she appears to them favorably in their paths
And meets them in every thought.
For the beginning of wisdom
Is a very genuine desire for instruction,
And careful attention to instruction is the love of her.†

Now this love is the keeping of her laws,
And giving heed to her laws is the assurance of incorruption;

And incorruption brings one near to God.

So desire for wisdom leads to a kingdom.

Therefore if you take pleasure in thrones and scepters, O tyrants,
Honor wisdom, that you may reign forever.

I will tell you what wisdom is and how she came to be,
And I will hide no mysteries from you;
But I will search her out from the beginning of creation
And make her knowledge clear.

I will not pass by the truth,

Nor indeed travel with envy, which causes one to waste away,
Because envy will have no share in wisdom.

But a multitude of wise men is the salvation of the world,
And a prudent king is the stability of his people.‡

Therefore be instructed by my words, and you will profit.

The King Is a Mere Man

Now I also am a mortal, the same as all men,

And earthborn, a descendant of the first-formed man;

For in the womb of a mother I was engraved as flesh.†

In a period of ten months, I was constructed with blood
From the seed of a man and the pleasure of marriage.†

When I was born, I breathed the common air,
Then fell upon the earth the same as all;
And as my first sound, I cried like everyone else.

I was nursed with care in swaddling cloths.‡

Th is king had a different beginning of existence,
For there is one entrance into life for all,
And a common departure.‡

Solomon's Love of Wisdom

Therefore I prayed, and discernment was given to me;
I appealed to God, and the spirit of wisdom came to me.†

I preferred her to scepter and thrones,
And regarded wealth as nothing in comparison to her.

Nor did I liken her to any priceless stone,
Because all gold is only a little sand in her sight.
And silver will be counted as clay before her.

I loved her more than health and beauty,
And I chose her instead of light,
Because her light is sleepless.

All good things came to me together with her,
And in her hands countless wealth.

I was gladdened by all of them
Because wisdom rules them;
But I did not know she was their mother.

So I learned both honestly and ungrudgingly,
And I do not hide her wealth,

For it is an unfailing treasure for men
Who, when they get it, obtain friendship with God,
For they demonstrate her gifts that come from instruction.

May God grant me to speak according to His purpose
And to think worthily of what I was given,
For He is also the guide of wisdom and the corrector of the wise.

For both we and our words are in His hand,
And so are all insights and knowledge of handicrafts.

For He gives me knowledge of the things that exist:
To know the truthful structure of the world,
The operative power of its elementary principles,
The beginning, end, and middle of the times,
The changes of the solstices and the transitions of the seasons,
The cycles of the year and the arranging of the stars,
The natures of animals and the tempers of beasts,
The force of winds and the reasoning of mankind,
The distinction of plants and the strength of roots,
And to know whatever is hidden and whatever is visible.
For wisdom, the artisan of all things, taught me.
So in herself, wisdom is a spirit that is rational,
Holy, only-begotten, manifold, subtle, easily moved, clear,
Undefiled, manifest, invulnerable, loving what is good, keen.

Unhindered, beneficent, man-loving, steadfast, unfailing,
Free from worry, all-powerful, all-surveying,
And penetrating all spirits that are rational, pure, and most subtle.

For wisdom moves from one place to another
More easily than motion itself,
And because of her purity, she penetrates all things.

So she is the exhalation of the power of God
And the emanation of the pure glory of the Almighty;
Therefore nothing defiled enters her.

For she is the radiance of eternal light,
A spotless mirror of the operative power of God
And the image of His goodness.

Though she is one, she can do all things;
So while remaining in herself, she renews all things;
And in every generation, she passes into holy souls
And makes them friends of God and prophets.

Thus God loves nothing as much
As the one who lives with wisdom.

For wisdom is more beautiful than the sun
And more than every constellation of stars.
Compared with light she is found to be superior,
For night succeeds the light,
But evil cannot overcome wisdom.

At Home with Wisdom

Wisdom stretches out from one end of the earth to the other,
And she governs all things well.

I loved her and sought her from my youth,
And desired to take her as a bride for myself;
And I became a lover of her beauty.

She glorifies her noble birth by living with God,
And the Master of all loves her.

4 For she is the initiate of the knowledge of God
And one who chooses His works.

5 Now if riches are a possession to be desired in life,
What is richer than wisdom, who works all things?

2 And if discernment shows itself in action,
Who more than wisdom is its craftsman?

2 If anyone loves righteousness,
The products of righteousness are the virtues.
For wisdom teaches self-control, discernment, righteousness and courage,
Concerning which things there is nothing more valuable in the life of man.

8 But also, if anyone longs for great experience,
She knows the things of old and portrays the things to come;
She understands subtlety of words and the solution of riddles;
She has foreknowledge of signs and wonders
And the outcomes of times and seasons.

2 Therefore I decided to take her to live with me,
Knowing she would give me good counsel
And encouragement in cares and sorrows.

2 But because of her I will have glory among the multitudes
And honor in the presence of the elders, though I am young.

2 I will be found keen in judgment
And be admired in the sight of rulers.

2 When I am silent, they will wait for me,
And when I speak, they will give heed to me;
And when I speak longer,
They will put their hand over their mouth.

2 I will have immortality because of her
And will leave an eternal remembrance
For those who exist after me.

2 I shall govern peoples,
And nations will be subject to me.

2 Dread tyrants shall be afraid of me when they hear of me;
Among the people I will show myself
To be good and courageous in war.
When I enter my house, I shall find rest with her,
For association with her has no bitterness,
Neither does living with her have any sorrow,
But only gladness and joy.

When I considered these things within myself
And thought about them in my heart,
That in kinship with wisdom there is immortality,
And in friendship with her there is good pleasure,
And in the labors of her hands there is unfailing wealth,
And in the shared training of her company there is discernment,
And in the fellowship of her words there is good repute—
Thus I searched about that I might take her for myself.

As a child I was good by nature and received a good soul;
And much more, since I was good,
I entered an undefiled body.

Yet I knew otherwise that I would not be self-controlled
Unless God gave me wisdom,
And that it was a mark of discernment
To know whose gift she was—
So I entreated the Lord and besought Him,
And with all my heart, I said:

Solomon's Prayer for Wisdom

"O God of our fathers and the Lord of mercy,

Who made all things by Your word;
And in Your wisdom built a man,
That by You He might be the master of what is created,
And manage the world in holiness and righteousness,
And pass judgment with uprightness of soul:
Give me the wisdom that sits by Your throne,
And do not reject me from among Your servants;
Because I am Your servant and the son of Your maidservant,
A weak man and lasting but a short time,
And inferior in the understanding of judgment and laws."
For though one is perfect among the sons of men,
Yet if Your wisdom is absent from him,
He will be regarded as nothing.

You chose me to be the king of Your people
And to be the judge over Your sons and daughters.

You gave command to build a temple on Your holy mountain
And an altar in the city of Your habitation,
A copy of Your holy tabernacle
Which You prepared from the beginning.

With You is wisdom, who knows Your works
And was present when You made the world,
And who understands what is pleasing in Your sight
And what is upright within Your commandments.

Send her forth from Your holy heavens,
And send her from Your glorious throne,
That she might be present with me and labor
And that I might know what is well-pleasing to You.

For she knows and understands all things,
And she will guide me wisely in my actions
And guard me with her glory.

Then my works shall be acceptable,
And I will judge Your people righteously
And shall be worthy of my father's throne.

For what man will know the counsel of God?
Or who will think about what the Lord wills?

For the reasoning of mortals is cowardly,
And our intents are unsafe;

For a corruptible body weighs down the soul,
And this earthly tent burdens a heart full of thoughts.

We can barely form a conjecture of the things upon the earth,
And the things at hand we find with toil;
But who has searched out the things in the heavens?

Who has known Your counsel,
Unless You have given him wisdom
And sent him Your Holy Spirit from on high?
And thus the paths of those on earth were made straight,

And mankind was taught what pleases You;

So they were saved by wisdom.”

Wisdom in History: Adam

Wisdom took care of the first-formed father of the world

When he alone was created;

And she delivered him from his transgression

And gave him strength to rule all things.

Cain

But when an unrighteous man departed from her in his wrath,

He perished in anger for murdering his brother.

Noah

When the earth was flooded because of him,

Again wisdom saved it

And piloted the righteous man by a cheap piece of wood.

Abraham

Also when the nations in evil concord were confused,

Wisdom knew the righteous man

And preserved him blameless before God,

And kept him strong in the time of his affection for his child.

Lot

Wisdom rescued a righteous man

When the ungodly were perishing,

For he escaped the fire that descended on the five cities,

Concerning which a testimony still remains:

A barren land continually blackened with smoke,

Trees bearing fruit which does not ripen in season,

And a pillar of salt standing as a monument

To an unbelieving soul.

For since they passed by wisdom,

They not only were injured by not knowing good things,
But also left behind for the living a memorial of their folly,
So they could not forget their fall.

Wisdom rescued from troubles those who served her.

She guided a righteous man on straight paths
When he fled from his brother's wrath.
She showed him the kingdom of God
And gave him knowledge of holy things.
She prospered him in hardships
And increased the fruit of his labors.
When they dishonored him in their covetousness,
She stood by him and made him rich.
She protected him from his enemies,
Kept him safe from those who plotted against him,
And arbitrated a strong contest for him,
So he might know that godliness is more powerful than anything.

When a righteous man was sold,
Wisdom did not abandon him,
But delivered him from sin.
She went down with him into a pit,
And she did not leave him in chains
Until she brought him the scepter of a kingdom
And authority over those who tyrannized him.
She showed those who blamed him to be lying
And gave him everlasting glory.

She delivered a holy people and a blameless seed
From a nation of oppressors.
She entered the soul of a servant of the Lord
And opposed fearful kings with signs and wonders.
She gave to holy men the reward of their labors.
She guided them in a marvelous way.
And became for them a shelter by day
And a flame of stars by night.†

She carried them across the Red Sea
And led them through deep water;
But she drowned their enemies
And cast them up from the depth of the abyss.

Therefore the righteous stripped the ungodly,
And they sang, O Lord, to Your holy name
And praised with one accord Your defending hand;
Because wisdom opened the mouth of the dumb
And made the tongues of infants speak clearly.‡

\[Wisdom in the Wilderness\]

Wisdom prospered their works by the hand of a holy prophet.

They traveled through an uninhabited desert
And pitched their tents in impassable places.

They held their ground in wars
And defended themselves against their enemies.

They thirsted and called upon You,
And water was given them from a flinty rock,
And a quenching of thirst from a hard stone;‡

For through the things by which their enemies were punished,
They themselves when in need
Had kindness shown to them.

In place of a spring of an ever-flowing river,
Troubled and defiled with blood,
In rebuke of the decree to slay the infants—
You gave them abundant water unexpectedly,
Showing through their thirst at that time
How You punished their enemies.

For when they were tested,
Though they were disciplined in mercy,
They learned how the ungodly were tormented
When judged in wrath.‡
For You tested them, admonishing them like a father,
But You examined the ungodly
Like a severe king passing sentence.
Whether present or absent,
They were likewise consumed,
For twofold grief possessed them
And a groaning over the memory of all that happened.
For when they heard that through their own punishments
The holy people had kindness shown to them,
They understood it was the Lord's doing.
For they marveled at the outcome of the man
They had cast out mockingly and exposed long before,
For they did not thirst for godliness as do the righteous.
In return for the wrongdoing of their senseless reasoning,
In which they were led astray
And worshiped irrational serpents and worthless animals,
You sent upon them a multitude of animals in vengeance,
So they might learn that one is punished
By the things by which he sins.
For Your all-powerful hand,
Which created the world out of unformed matter,
Did not lack the resource to send upon them
A multitude of bears or bold lions,
Or newly created unknown beasts full of anger,
Either snorting a breath of fire
Or scattering like chaff a thick cloud of smoke,
Or flashing terrible sparks from their eyes.
Not only could their damage utterly destroy men,
But their mere outward appearance could terrify and kill them.
Even without these, men could fall in a single breath
When they are pursued by justice
And scattered like chaff by the breath of Your power;
But You have ordered all things by measure, number, and weight.

The God Who Loves Mankind
For great power is always present with You,
And who can oppose the might of Your arm?
Because the entire world before You
Is like a small additional weight on scales,
And like a drop of dew early in the morning
That falls on the ground.†
But You are merciful to all, for You can do all things;
And You overlook the sins of men to bring them to repentance.
For You love all the things that exist,
And You detest nothing of the things You made;
For You would not even make anything You hated.‡
How could anything continue to exist unless You willed it?
Or how could anything be preserved
Unless it was called into existence by You?§
You spare all things, because they are Yours,
O Master who love human beings.
For Your immortal Spirit is in all things.
For this reason You correct little by little those who fall away,
And You remind and warn them of the sins they commit
So they may be freed from evil and believe in You, O Lord.†

The Canaanites’ Vice
For You hated the inhabitants of Your holy land long ago,‡
Because they practiced very hateful works of sorcery and unholy rites.
These unmerciful murderers of children
Who ate sacrificial meals of human flesh and blood,
These initiates in the midst of an orgy,
These parents and murderers of helpless children—
You willed to destroy by the hands of our fathers,
That the land most precious of all to You
Might be a worthy colony of the servants of God.
But even these You spared, since they were men,
And sent wasps as forerunners of Your army
That You might destroy them little by little.
You were not powerless to give the ungodly
To the righteous in regular battle,
Or to destroy them by terrible wild beasts
Or by one severe word;
But judging them little by little
You gave them a chance for repentance,
For You were not unaware that their generation was evil,
Their vice implanted,
And their reasoning would not change forever.
For they were an accursed seed from the beginning,
Nor did You give them amnesty for their sins
Because You feared anyone.

God Our King

For who will say, “What have You done?”
Or who will oppose Your judgment?
Who will bring a charge against You
For destroying the nations You made?
Or who will stand before You
To plead as an advocate for unrighteous men?
For neither is there any god except You,
Whose care is for all things,
So You may show that You do not judge unjustly;
Nor can any king or tyrant meet You face to face
Concerning those You punish.
You are righteous and order all things uprightly,
And You consider it alien to Your power
To pass sentence on him who should not be punished.
For Your strength is the origin of righteousness,
And it causes You who are the Lord of all to spare all.
For to him who disbelieves the perfection of Your power,
You show forth Your strength
And rebuke the insolence among those who know it.
But You who gain the mastery by Your strength
Judge with gentleness,
For You govern us with great forbearance;
And power is present with You to use when You will it.

God Chastens His Children

Through such works You taught Your people
That the righteous man should love mankind;
And You made Your children hopeful
By offering them repentance over their sins.₁

For if You punished the enemies of Your children
And those liable to death with so much attention and deliberation,
And granted them time and opportunity to depart from their evil,
With how much strictness did You judge Your children,
To whose fathers You gave oaths and covenants of good promises?
So then You chastened us,
But our enemies with ten thousand whips,
That we may care about Your goodness when we judge
But expect Your mercy when we are judged.₂

The Egyptians Were Judged

Therefore those who lived unjustly in their foolishness of life
You tormented by means of their own abominations.₂
For they went far astray on the paths of error,
Taking up gods which were despised even among their enemies,
Being deceived after the manner of foolish children.
Therefore to those thoughtless children
You sent Your judgment to mock them;
But those who were not warned by this light gesture of censure
Will be put to the test by the deserved judgment of God.
For when they suffered, they were indignant
At those they imagined to be gods,
Realizing they were being punished because of them.
They also came to recognize the true God
Whom they refused to know long ago;
Therefore, the utmost of condemnation came upon them.

The Futility of False Gods
For all men while ignorant of God were useless in their condition.

So from the good things that are seen
They were unable to know Him who exists,
Nor did they know the Craftsman by paying attention to His works.\(^1\)

\(^2\) But they supposed that the gods who rule the world
Were either fire or wind or swift air,
Or the circle of the stars or violent water or the luminaries of heaven.

\(^3\) If while delighting in their beauty men assumed them to be gods,
Let them know how much better than these things is their Lord,
For the Creator of beauty created them;\(^2\)

\(^4\) And if they were amazed at their power and working,
Let them understand from them
How much more powerful than these is He who made them.

\(^5\) For from the greatness and beauty of created things
The Creator is seen by analogy.\(^2\)

\(^6\) Nevertheless there is little reason for complaint against them,
For perhaps they go astray while seeking God and wish to find Him.\(^1\)

\(^7\) For as they live among His works, they examine them closely
And are persuaded by what they see,
Because the things they see are beautiful.

\(^8\) However, they are not to be excused;\(^2\)

\(^9\) For if they were able to know so much
With their ability to investigate the world,
How is it possible they did not quickly find
The Lord of all these things?

\(^10\) But they are miserable, and so are their hopes in dead things,
Those who call “gods” the works of men’s hands,
Gold, silver, and the practice of craftsmanship,
And the likeness of animals,
Or a worthless stone of an ancient hand.

\(^11\) But also, if some carpenter saws down an easily moved tree
And skillfully scrapes away all its bark,
He then builds a useful vessel beautifully made by his skill
For the service of the living.\(^2\)
And uses up the cast-off pieces of his trade
To prepare his food and be filled.

But a cast-off piece from among them, useful for nothing,
That grew up with the tree, crooked and full of knots,

He takes and carves with care in his leisure
And forms it with intelligent skill,
And models it in the likeness of a man.

Or he likens it to some worthless animal
And smears it with bright red paint,
Making its surface red,
Covering every blemish in it with paint.

Then he makes a room fitting for it
And puts it on a wall and fastens it with iron nails
That it may not fall.

He takes care of it, knowing that it cannot help itself;
For it is an image that has need of help.

When he prays about his possessions,
His marriage and his children,
He is not ashamed to speak to a lifeless thing,
And he appeals to a weak thing concerning his health.

Concerning life he prays to something dead;
Concerning aid he supplicates something ignorant;
And concerning a journey, something that cannot take a step;

Concerning means of livelihood,
Profit and success with his hands;
He requests bodily strength
From something powerless with its hands.

The Use of Wood

Again, someone getting ready for a voyage

And about to sail through wild waves
Cries out loud to a piece of wood
More fragile than the ship that carries him.²

For it was desire for gain that contrived that boat,
And wisdom was the craftsman who built it;

But Your providence, O Father, governs its course,
Because You have given it a path in the sea
And a safe track in the waves,

Showing that You can save from every danger,
And that even without skill one may embark upon the sea.

For You do not will that the works of Your wisdom be useless;
Therefore, men trust their lives even to the smallest piece of wood,
And passing through the waves on a ship
They are brought safely through.

For even in the beginning, when arrogant giants perished,
The hope of the world took refuge in a boat,
And piloted by Your hand it left to the world the seed of a family.

For the wood was blessed through which righteousness comes.

But what was made by human hands itself is accursed,
And so is he who made it—
He because he made it,
And the perishable thing because it was called a god.

For equally hateful to God are the ungodly man and his ungodliness.

For what was done will be punished along with him who did it.

Therefore there shall also be a visitation upon the idols of the nations,
Because, though the wood was part of God's creation,
It was made into an abomination
And became a stumbling-block for the souls of men
And a trap for the feet of fools.

For the invention of idols was the beginning of fornication,
And the conception of them the corruption of life,

For neither were they from the beginning
Nor shall they be forever.

For by the vainglory of mankind they entered the world,
And therefore their speedy end has been planned.

For a father consumed with untimely grief
When his child was soon taken from him
Made an image of the once-dead human being
And honored him now as a god,
And handed down to those under him secret mysteries and initiations.

Then the ungodly custom, strengthened by time, was kept as a law,
And at the command of tyrants carved images were worshiped.

When men could not honor a tyrant before his face
Because he lived far away,
They imagined his face from a distance
And made a visible image of the honored king,
That by their zeal they might flatter the one absent as though present.

Then the ambition of the craftsman encouraged
Even those who did not know the king to increase their worship.

For wishing perhaps to please the one who ruled over him,
He skillfully forced the likeness into a more beautiful form,
And the multitude, attracted by the popularity of his work,
Now considered him as an object of worship
Whom a short time before they honored as a man.

But this became a trap for their life,
Because men, in bondage either to calamity or to kingly power,
Conferred on stones and wood a name not shared with another.

Further, it was not enough for them
To be deceived about the knowledge of God,
But they live in a great conflict of ignorance,
And they call such evils peace.

For they either hold child-murdering rites of initiation,
Or celebrate secret mysteries,
Or engage in the frantic revelry of special customs.

Moreover, they keep neither life nor marriages pure,
But one either kills another in ambush,
Or one causes another grief when he corrupts his marriage.
Everything is mixed together:
Blood and murder, theft and treachery,
Depravity, unfaithfulness, tumult, perjury,
Confusion over what is good, ingratitude, corruption of family,
Breakup of marriages, disorder, adultery, and debauchery.
For the worship of idols not to be named
Is the beginning, cause, and end of every evil.
For either they are driven to a frenzy in their celebrations,
Or prophesy lies,
Or live unrighteously, or readily swear falsely;
For since they trust in lifeless idols,
They swear with wrong motives and expect to suffer no harm.
But justice will catch up with them on two counts:
Because they thought wrongly about God in their devotion to idols,
And by treating holiness with contempt
They swore unjustly in deceit.
For it is not the power of making oaths,
But the punishment of those who sin
That always prosecutes the transgression of the unrighteous.

Our Merciful God.

But You, our God, are kind, true, patient,
And govern all things in mercy.
For even if we sin, we belong to You and know Your might;
But we will not sin,
Because we know that we are counted as belonging to You.
For to know You is complete righteousness,
And to know Your might is the root of immortality.
For neither have the evil practices of human art deceived us,
Nor a form stained with diverse colors,
The barren labor of painting,
Whose appearance creates a desire in fools
That longs for the lifeless form of a dead image.
Lovers of evil things and fit for such objects of hope
Are those who either make or desire or worship them.

Idols of Clay.

For even when a potter compresses soft earth,
He laboriously forms each vessel for our service;
But he models from the same clay
Both vessels that serve clean uses and likewise those to the contrary.

But what will be the function of one or the other

Is the decision of the craftsman.¹

² So, working evil, he forms a worthless god from the same clay,

He who a little while before was made from the earth

And in a short while returns to the earth from which he was taken,

When the soul that was loaned to him

Is demanded in return at death.

² But he is not concerned that he is about to be sick

Or that his life will be ending shortly;

So he competes with goldsmiths and melters of silver

And imitates bronze-workers;

And he considers it a glory that he forms false gods.

² His heart is ashes, and his hope as cheap as dirt;

And his life is more dishonored than his clay.²

² Because he disregards the One who formed him,

And who inspired him with an operative soul,

And breathed into him a life-giving spirit.²

² But he considered our life to be a plaything

And life a festival held for profit;

For he says, “One must make a living however one can,

Even by evil means.”

² For this man, more than all others, knows that he sins

When he fabricates from earthly matter

Easily broken vessels and carved images.²

The Egyptian Enemies

² Yet more foolish and infantile are the enemies

Who oppressed Your people,

² Because they thought that all the idols of the nations were gods,

Though these have neither the use of their eyes for vision,

Nor noses for inhaling air,

Nor ears to hear with,

Nor fingers on their hands for touching;

And their feet are useless for walking.²
2 For a man made them,
And he whose spirit is borrowed formed them;
For no man can form a god like himself.

2 A man who works a dead thing with lawless hands is mortal,
For he is better than his objects of worship,
Because he is alive, but they never are.

26 The enemies of Your people worship the most hateful animals,
For they are worse than all others in stupidity.

27 Not even as animals are they so beautiful in appearance
That one would desire them,
But they escaped both the praise of God and His blessing.

16 Therefore they were worthily punished through creatures like these,
And were tormented through a multitude of wild animals.†

2 Instead of such punishment You showed kindness to Your people
And prepared quails as food with a delicious taste to satisfy their hunger;‡

3 That those men, when they desired food,
Might turn away their necessary hunger
Because of the ugly look of the creatures sent upon them,
While Your people, being in need for a brief period,
Might partake of food with a delicious taste.

4 For it was necessary for those enemies
That unavoidable need come upon them and tyrannize them,
While to Your people it was only shown
How their enemies were being tormented.

5 For even when the terrible rage of wild animals
Came upon Your people,
And they were being destroyed by the bites of twisting serpents,
Your wrath did not continue to the end.‡

6 They were troubled for a short while as a warning,
And received a pledge of salvation
In remembrance of Your law's command.‡

7 For the one who turned to it was saved, not by what he saw,
But by You, the Savior of all.

8 So in this You persuaded our enemies
That You are the One who saves from every evil.
For the bites of locusts and flies killed them,
And no healing was found for their life,
Because they deserved to be punished by such things.
But the teeth of poisonous serpents
Did not overcome Your children,
For Your mercy came to their aid and healed them.
For they were goaded to remind them of Your oracles
And were quickly saved,
Lest they should fall into deep forgetfulness
And be continually unmindful of Your kindness.
For neither herb nor medicinal plaster healed them,
But it was Your word, O Lord, which heals all men.
For You have authority over life and death,
And bring men down to the gates of Hades
And lead them back again.
A man in his malice kills another,
But he cannot bring back a departed spirit
Nor return a soul that is taken.

God Judges Egypt

To escape from Your hand is impossible;
For the ungodly who refuse to know You
Were flogged by the strength of Your arm.
They were pursued by rains, hail, and thunderstorms
And consumed by fire.
For the fire, very contrary to expectation,
Was more effective in the water, which extinguishes everything;
For the world is a defender of the righteous.
For at one time the flame was subdued
That it might not burn up the creatures sent against the ungodly,
But seeing this they might know
That they were struck by the judgment of God;
And at another time even under water
The flame burned more intensely than fire
To destroy the harvest of the unrighteous land.
Instead of these things You fed Your people the food of angels,
And without their labor You provided them
With ready-made bread from heaven,
Fitting for every pleasure and suitable to every taste.
For Your provision manifested sweetness toward Your people,
And the bread served the need of those who took it
And changed to what one wished.
Snow and ice endured fire without melting
So they might know that fire destroyed the harvest of their enemies,
The fire that burned in the hail
And flashed like lightning in the rain—
Again that fire which forgot its own natural power
That the righteous might be fed.
For the creation serves You who made it
And increases its intensity to punish the unrighteous,
But in kindness relaxes itself on behalf of those who trust in You.
Therefore also at that time,
It explored as though in a mine Your all-nourishing bounty
And served the will of those who supplicated You,
That Your children whom You loved, O Lord, might learn
That it is not the production of crops that feeds man,
But Your word that maintains those who believe in You.
For what was not destroyed by fire
Was melted when simply warmed by a small ray of the sun,
To make it known that one must get up before sunrise
To give You thanks,
And to intercede before You at the dawning of the light.
For the hope of an unthankful man will melt like the wintry frost
And flow away like useless water.

Great are Your judgments and hard to explain;
Therefore, ignorant souls have gone astray.
For when lawless men thought they exercised power
Over Your holy nation,
They themselves were prisoners of darkness and long night,
Shut in under their roofs, exiles from eternal providence.

For when they thought they escaped notice
With their secret sins behind a curtain of forgetfulness,
They were scattered and in a terrible state of shock
And thrown into confusion by apparitions.¹

For not even the inmost part of the house that held them
Protected them from fear,
But troubling noises sounded all around them,
And gloomy apparitions with downcast faces appeared to them.

No force of fire had the strength to give them light,
Nor did the very bright lights of the stars
Tarry to illuminate that hateful night.

Now a self-acting fire full of fear alone shone through to them,
But they were greatly terrified when that apparition was not perceived;
So they considered the things they were seeing to be worse.

The delusions of their magic were ineffective,
And so was the arrogant certainty of their pretense to have insight.¹

For those who promised to drive away
The fears and troubles of a sick soul
Were themselves sick with an absurd timidity.

For even if nothing dreadful frightened them,
Yet, scared by the passing of beasts and hissing of serpents,
They perished full of fear,
Even refusing to look at the air, which could not be avoided.²

For evil is a cowardly thing,
And condemned by its own witness;
And tormented by conscience,
It always welcomes things full of trouble.

For fear is nothing but the betrayal
Of the assistance that comes from reasoning;¹

And the expectation from within considers itself to be weaker
Than ignorance of the cause which supplies the torment.
But they slept the same sleep throughout the night,
Which was actually powerless,
And which assaulted them from the inmost parts of a powerless Hades.

They were driven by the monsters of apparitions
And were paralyzed by the betrayal of their soul;
For sudden and unexpected fear was poured out on them.

So then whoever was there fell down
And thus was kept shut up in a prison not made of iron.

For whether someone was a farmer or a shepherd
Or a worker who labored in the wilderness,
He was overtaken by force and endured inescapable punishment;
For all were bound with one chain of darkness.

Whether there came a whistling wind,
Or the musical sound of birds in wide-spreading branches,
Or the motion of violently rushing water,
Or the hard crash of rocks thrown down,

Or the unseen running of leaping animals,
Or the roar of fierce wild animals,
Or an echo reflected from the hollow of mountains,
It paralyzed them with terror.

For the whole world was illumined with bright light
And embraced unhindered works,

While over those men alone heavy night was spread,
An image of darkness that was about to receive them;
But they were heavier than darkness to themselves.

Light Shines on Israel.

But for Your holy ones there was a very great light.

Their enemies heard their voice but did not see their form;
And they considered them blessed because they had also not suffered;
For Your holy ones did not harm those
Who previously wronged them.
So they were thankful and begged for grace
For being at variance with them.
3 Therefore You provided a flaming pillar of fire
As a guide for their unknown journey,
And a harmless sun for their glorious exile.

4 For their enemies deserved to be deprived of light
And imprisoned in darkness,
Those who imprisoned Your children,
Through whom the incorruptible light of the law
Was to be given to the world.

Death Visits Egypt

5 When they resolved to kill the babes of Your holy ones
And one child was exposed and rescued,
You took away as a rebuke a multitude of their children;
And You destroyed them together in the violent water.

6 That night was made known beforehand to our fathers
So they might rejoice with sure knowledge in the oaths they trusted.

7 The salvation of the righteous and the destruction of enemies
Were expected by Your people,

8 For You punished our enemies with the same means
By which You called and glorified us.

9 For in secret the holy children of good people offered sacrifices,
And in harmony with the divine law made a covenant,
That the saints would share alike in good things and in dangers;
And already they were singing the praises of their fathers.

10 But the discordant cry of their enemies resounded,
And their pitiful outcry and mourning for their children spread abroad.

11 The servant was punished with the same penalty as the master,
And the common man suffered the same thing as the king.

12 They all together by the one name of death
Had innumerable dead persons,
For there were not enough living even to bury them;
Because in one critical moment their valued children were destroyed.

13 For they disbelieved everything because of their sorceries,
But at the destruction of their firstborn,
They acknowledged the people to be God's son.
For while gentle silence embraced everything
And night at its own speed was half over,
Your all-powerful Word leaped from heaven, from the royal throne,
Into the midst of a doomed land,
A relentless warrior carrying the sharp sword
Of Your irrevocable command.
And He stood and filled all things with death
And touched heaven while standing on earth.
Then immediately apparitions in terrifying dreams troubled them,
And unexpected fears set upon them,
And they threw themselves to the ground half-dead,
One apparition here and another there,
To make known to them the reason they were dying.
For the dreams which disturbed them revealed this beforehand,
So they might not die without understanding
Why it was they suffered.

Aaron Prays for Israel

The experience of death also touched the righteous,
And a plague came upon the multitude in the desert;
But the wrath did not last long.
For a blameless man hastened and acted as their champion.
He carried the instrument of his ministry:
Prayer and the atonement of incense,
And withstood the anger and put an end to the calamity,
Showing that he was Your servant.
He conquered the wrath not by strength of body,
And not by the power of weapons,
But by a word he subdued the punisher,
Because he remembered the oaths and covenants of the fathers.
For when the dead had already fallen on one another in heaps,
He stood in the midst and drove back the wrath
And cut off its path to the living.
For the whole world was on his long robe,
And the glories of the fathers were a carved work
Arranged in four rows of stones;
And Your majesty was on the diadem on his head.
To these the destroyer yielded
And these he feared;
For the trial of his wrath alone was enough.

The Foolishness of Egypt

But unmerciful anger came upon the ungodly to the end,
For God knew of them and their future beforehand,
That they would allow Your people to depart
And eagerly send them forth,
But then change their minds and pursue them.
For while they were yet mourning
And lamenting at the graves of their dead,
They made another foolish decision
And pursued as fugitives
Those whom they had begged and had sent away.
For a deserved destiny drew them to this end
And made them forget what had happened,
So they might fill up the punishment
Which was lacking in their torments,
And that Your people might attempt an incredible journey,
But that they themselves might come upon a strange death.

Creation Serves Its God

For the whole creation in its kind was fashioned again from above
To serve Your commands,
That Your servants might be kept unharmed.
The cloud was seen overshadowing the camp
And the emerging of dry land out of the water previously present,
An unhindered way out of the Red Sea
And a grassy plain out of the violence of rough water,
Through which those sheltered by Your hand
Passed with the whole nation
After observing marvelous wonders.
For they grazed like horses
And leaped about like lambs,
Praising You, O Lord, who saved them.

For they still remembered their sojourn in a foreign land,
How instead of the birth of animals the land brought forth small flies,
And instead of things living in water
The river vomited forth a multitude of frogs.

Afterwards they also saw a new kind of birds,
When led by their passion they requested meats for self-indulgence;
For their relief, quails came up from the sea.

The Punishment of Egypt

The punishments did not come upon the sinners
Without previous signs in the violence of thunder,
And they suffered justly because of their own evils;
For they practiced a very bitter hatred of strangers.
Others did not welcome those unknown to them when they arrived,
But these enslaved foreign benefactors.
And not only this, but there shall be a certain visitation
Because they received foreigners hatefully;
For after receiving them with festivals,
They mistreated with terrible sufferings
Those who had already shared the same rights.
They were also stricken with blindness
Like those at the doors of the righteous man,
When, clothed in darkness, each sought the way through his own doors.

God Dwells with His People

For the elements combined among themselves in different ways,
Which can be accurately conjectured from the sight of what took place,
As on a harp the sounds of the rhythm differ in expression
While always remaining the same in sound.
For land animals were changed into water creatures,
And creatures that swim crossed over to the land.
In water, fire prevailed with its own power,
And water forgot its quenching properties.

Flames, on the contrary, did not consume

The flesh of perishable animals that walked among them,

Nor was the species of immortal food capable of being melted

Like easily melted ice.

For in everything, O Lord, You have exalted and glorified Your people,

And have not neglected to be present with them in every time and place.

The Wisdom of Sirach

Author—Jesus ben Sirach. He was a Jewish scribe who was apparently an instructor at a Jewish academy, probably in Jerusalem, where he taught religion and ethics.

Date—About 180 BC

Major Theme—All true wisdom comes from the Lord. The book is in the tradition of Proverbs: “The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.” Wisdom is God's gift to men. Though profound, the teaching is not complicated, and it touches the heart.

Background—Jesus ben Sirach wrote his lectures down in a manuscript. That manuscript, written in Hebrew, got very little circulation until his grandson translated it into Greek. Then, about three centuries later, a translation was made into Syriac from the Hebrew text. Ben Sirach is well-acquainted with the Law and the Prophets. According to 1:11–20, wisdom comes from a blessed, joyful reverence for and knowledge of God.

Outline

I. Prologue
II. Fearing God and Keeping His Commandments (1:1–42:14)
III. God's Wisdom Revealed in Creation (42:15–43:33)
IV. Walking in Wisdom (44:1–50:29)
V. A Prayer of Thanksgiving (51:1–30)

The Prologue†

Of the many great things given to us through the law and the prophets and through others who followed them, we should praise Israel for instruction and wisdom. Not only should those who read gain understanding, but also those who love learning should be able to help outsiders understand both through speaking and writing.

Thus my grandfather Jesus especially devoted himself to reading the law and the prophets and other books of the fathers. So he acquired sufficient skill in these, and himself was led to write something fitting for instruction and wisdom, that lovers of learning might become involved in these things as well, and especially, in addition to this, might live a life according to the law.
Therefore you are encouraged to read with good will and attention and to do your reading with allowances made in cases where, although we worked hard in translating, we may seem to render a phrase inadequately. For what was said in Hebrew in itself does not have equal force when it is translated into another language. Not only this, but also the law itself and the prophets and the rest of the books differ not a little as originally spoken.

For when I arrived in Egypt in the thirty-eighth year of the reign of King Euergetes, and spent some time there, I found a book filled with instruction. Thus I made it a necessity for myself to apply some diligence and loving labor to the translation of this book. So I employed my skill day and night to complete and publish it for lovers of learning who live in a foreign land, and have prepared themselves beforehand to live according to the law.

Wisdom Is from the Lord

All wisdom comes from the Lord
And is with Him forever.†

1 Who can count the sand of the seas,
The drops of rain, and the days of eternity?
2 Who can search out the height of heaven,
The breadth of the earth, the abyss, and wisdom?
3 Wisdom was created before all things,
And the insight of prudence was from eternity.‡
4 To whom has the root of wisdom been revealed?
And who has come to know her great deeds?
5 There is one who is wise and is feared exceedingly,
He who sits upon His throne.‡
6 The Lord Himself created wisdom.
He saw and numbered her
And poured her out on all His works,‡
7 In the midst of all flesh according to His gift;
And He provided her for those who love Him.

The Fear of the Lord

2 The fear of the Lord is glory and boasting,
And gladness and a crown of rejoicing.

The fear of the Lord will cheer the heart
And will give gladness, joy, and long life.

For those who fear the Lord, it shall be well to the utmost,
And on the day of his death, he will be blessed.

The beginning of wisdom is to fear the Lord,
And she was joined with the faithful in the womb.

She constructed a foundation of life among men
And will be trusted among their seed.

The gratification of wisdom is to fear the Lord,
And she intoxicates them with her fruits.

She will fill every house of theirs with objects of desire
And their storehouses with her harvest.

The fear of the Lord is the crown of wisdom,
Making peace and soundness of health to flourish.

The Lord saw and numbered her,
And poured out the power of comprehension;
And He exalted the glory of those who hold fast to her.

The root of wisdom is to fear the Lord,
And her branches are length of days.

Warnings to the Wise

Unjust anger cannot be justified,
For anger's decisive influence causes his fall.

A patient man will hold fast until the proper time,
Then afterwards gladness shall burst forth for him.

He shall conceal his words until the proper time,
And the lips of many will tell of his understanding.

In the treasures of wisdom are the parables of knowledge,
But godliness is an abomination to a sinner.

If you desire wisdom, keep the commandments,
And the Lord will supply it to you.

For the fear of the Lord is wisdom and instruction,
And His good pleasure is faith and gentleness.

Do not disobey the fear of the Lord,
And do not come to Him with a divided heart.

Do not be a hypocrite in the sight of men,
And be careful with your lips.

Do not exalt yourself, lest you fall
And bring dishonor to your soul.

The Lord shall reveal your secrets,
And in the midst of the assembly He will strike you down,
Because you did not come in the fear of the Lord
And your heart was full of deceit.

God's Faithfulness and Mercy

My son, if you draw near to serve the Lord,

Prepare your soul for temptation.

Set your heart right and be steadfast,
And do not strive anxiously in distress.

Cleave to Him and do not fall away,
That you may be honored at the end of your life.

Accept whatever is brought upon you,
And in exchange for your humiliation, be patient;

Because gold is tested in fire
And acceptable men in the furnace of abasement.

Believe in Him, and He will help you;
Make your ways straight and hope in Him.

You who fear the Lord, wait for His mercy,
And do not turn aside, lest you fall.

You who fear the Lord, believe in Him,
And your reward will not fail.

You who fear the Lord, hope for good things
And for everlasting gladness and mercy.

Consider the ancient generations and see:
Who believed in the Lord and was put to shame?
Or who stood fast in His fear and was forsaken?
Or who called upon Him and was overlooked?

Because the Lord is compassionate and merciful,
He forgives sins and saves in time of affliction.

Woe to cowardly hearts and weakened hands,
And to a sinner who walks on two paths!

Woe to a fainting heart, because it does not believe!
Therefore it will not be sheltered.

Woe to you who have lost your patient endurance!
What will you do when the Lord visits you?

Those who fear the Lord will not disobey His words,
And those who love Him will keep His ways.

Those who fear the Lord will seek His approval,
And those who love Him will be filled with the law.

Those who fear the Lord will prepare their hearts
And will humble their souls before Him.

We will fall into the hands of the Lord
And not into the hands of men;
For as His majesty is, so is His mercy.

Honoring Parents

Give heed to me, O children, for I am your father,

And do what I tell you, that you may be saved.

For the Lord honored the father over the children
And strengthened the judgment of the mother over her sons.

He who honors his father atones for his sins;
And he who honors his mother
Is like one who stores up treasure.

He who honors his father
Will be gladdened by his own children,
And when he prays, he will be heard.

He who honors his father will have a long life,
And he who obeys the Lord will give rest to his mother;
And he will serve his parents as his masters.

Honor your father and mother in word and deed,
That a blessing may come upon you from him.

For the blessing of a father establishes the houses of the children,
But the curse of a mother uproots their foundations.

Do not glory in the dishonor of your father,
For your father's dishonor is no glory to you.

For the glory of a man is from the honor of his father,
And it is a disgrace for children to dishonor their mother.

My son, help your father in his old age,
And do not grieve him in his life;

And if his understanding fails, be considerate,
And do not dishonor him in your prime.

For kindness to a father will not be forgotten,
And it will be credited to you instead of your sins.

It will be remembered in the day of your affliction;
Thus your sins will melt away like frost in warm weather.

He who forsakes his father is like a blasphemer,
And he who provokes his mother to wrath is cursed by God.

Wisdom at Work

My son, accomplish your works with gentleness,
And you will be loved by people the Lord accepts.

The greater you are, the more humble you must be,
And you will find grace before the Lord;:

Because great is the power of the Lord,
And He is honored by the humble.

Do not seek things too difficult for you,
Nor examine what is beyond your strength.;

Think about what is commanded you,
For you do not need what the Lord keeps hidden.

Do not meddle in what is none of your business,
For things beyond human insight have been shown to you.

Speculation has led many astray,
And evil suppositions have caused their minds to slip and fall.

Keep a Soft Heart

A hard heart will suffer ruin in the end,
And he who loves danger will perish in it;
A hard heart will be weighed down with pains,
And the sinner will add sin to sin.
There is no healing to aid an arrogant man,
For a plant of evil has taken root in him.
The heart of an intelligent man will ponder a parable,
And the ear of a pupil is a wise man’s desire.
Water will quench a blazing fire,
And almsgiving will atone for sins.
He who repays kindnesses is mindful of the hereafter,
And at the time of his fall he will find support.

Care of the Poor and Needy

My son, do not deprive the poor of his living,

And do not keep eyes in need waiting.

Do not grieve a soul who is hungry,
Nor provoke to anger a man in despair.

Do not trouble a heart that was made resentful,
And do not put off the gift of a man in need.

Do not reject a suppliant who is afflicted,
Nor turn your face away from a poor man.

Do not turn your eye away from a needy man,
And do not give a man occasion to curse you;

For if he curses you in the bitterness of his soul,
His Maker will hear his prayer.

Make yourself beloved in the assembly
And bow your head to a great man.

Incline your ear to a poor man
And answer him peaceably and with gentleness.
Deliver a person who has been wronged
From the hand of the wrongdoer,
And do not be fainthearted when you judge his case.

Be like a father to orphans
And like a husband to their mother;
And you will be like a son of the Most High,
And He will love you more than your mother.

‡ Wisdom exalts her children
And lays hold of those who seek her.
‡ Whoever loves her loves life,
And those who come to her early in the morning
Will be filled with gladness.
‡ He who holds fast to her will inherit glory,
And the Lord blesses every place she enters.
‡ Those who serve her will minister to the Holy One,
And the Lord loves those who love her.
‡ He who obeys her will judge the nations;
And he that gives heed to her will live with confidence.
‡ If he trusts in her, he will inherit her,
And his posterity will be in possession of her.
‡ At first she will walk with him on disturbing paths
And bring fear and dread upon him;
And she will torment him with her discipline
Until she can trust his soul
And test him with her ordinances.
‡ Then she will come straight back to him,
And will gladden him, and reveal her secrets to him.
‡ If he wanders away, she will forsake him
And hand him over to his ruin.

Shame and Sin

‡ Watch for a proper opportunity and keep yourself from evil;
And do not bring shame upon your soul.
‡ For there is a shame that brings sin,
And there is a shame which is glory and grace.
‡ Do not show partiality to someone to your own harm,
And do not let your respect for another cause you to fall.
‡ Do not withhold a word in time of need;
‡ For wisdom is made known by a word,
And instruction by a word of the tongue.

Do not speak against the truth,
And do not be put to shame by your ignorance.

Do not be ashamed to confess your sins,
And do not exercise force against the current of a river.

Do not subject yourself to a foolish man,
And do not show partiality to a ruler.

Fight to the death for the truth,
And the Lord God will fight for you.

Do not be rash with your tongue
And sluggish and neglectful in your works.

Do not be like a lion in your home
And act in pretense with your servants.

Do not let your hand be extended to receive
And shut when you should repay.

God Is the Lord

Do not set your heart on your possessions,

And do not say, “I am independent.”

Do not follow yourself and your strength
So as to walk in the desires of your heart;

And do not say, “Who will be lord over me?”
For the Lord will surely punish you.

Do not say, “I sinned, so what happened to me?”
For the Lord is patient.

Do not be so confident of atonement
That you add sin to sin;

And do not say, “His compassion is great;
He will atone for the multitude of my sins,”
For both mercy and wrath come from Him;
And His anger rests on sinners.

Do not delay to turn to the Lord,
And do not put it off from day to day;
For suddenly the wrath of the Lord will come forth,
And in the day of vengeance, you will perish.

Do not set your heart on dishonest wealth,
For it will profit you nothing in the day of distress.

Control of the Tongue

Do not winnow with every wind
And do not follow every road;
For a double-tongued sinner is of such a kind.
Be established in your understanding
And let your word be consistent.
Be quick to listen
And give your answer with patience.
If you have understanding, answer your neighbor,
But if not, let your hand be over your mouth.
There is glory and dishonor in speech,
And a man's tongue may cause him to fall.
Do not be called a slanderer,
And do not lie in ambush with your tongue;
For shame awaits a thief,
And a grievous condemnation will come upon
A double-tongued man.
In a great or in a small matter, do not go wrong.

Do not be an enemy instead of a friend;
For a bad name brings shame and disgrace,
And a double-tongued sinner is of such a kind.
Do not exalt yourself with your own counsel,
Lest your soul be torn in pieces as by a bull.
You will devour your leaves and lose your fruit,
And be left like a withered tree.
An evil soul will destroy him who possesses it
And make him an object of malignant joy to his enemies.

Friendships

Pleasant speech will multiply his friends,
And a gracious tongue will multiply many kind greetings.
Let those who live at peace with you be many,
But let your counselors be one in a thousand.
If you gain a friend, gain him in testing,
And do not be in a hurry to trust him.
For there is a friend who is such to his own advantage,
But he will not remain beside you in the day of your affliction.
There is also a friend who changes into an enemy
And will reveal a quarrel to your disgrace.
Again, there is a friend who is a companion at table,
But will not stand by you in your day of trouble.
Further, when you prosper, he will be like you
And speak boldly to your servants;
But if you are brought low, he will be against you,
And will hide himself from your presence.
Stay away from your enemies
And hold onto your friends.
A faithful friend is a strong shelter,
And he who finds one finds a treasure.
There is nothing that can take the place of a faithful friend,
And there is no way to measure his worth.
A faithful friend is a medicine of life,
And those who fear the Lord will find him.
He who fears the Lord guides his friendship rightly,
Because as he is, so also is his neighbor.

Instruction Brings Wisdom

My son, from your youth up, choose instruction,
And you will find wisdom also into old age.
Come to her as one who plows and sows,
And wait expectantly for her good fruits;
For in her work you will labor a little while,
Then you will quickly eat of her fruit.
She is very harsh on the undisciplined
And on the one who lacks the heart to continue with her.
She will be like a heavy stone of trial upon him,
And he will not delay to throw her off.

For wisdom is like her name and is not manifest to many.

Listen, my son, and accept my judgment,
And do not reject my advice.

Put your feet into her fetters and your neck into her collar.

Put your shoulder under her and carry her,
And do not be angry with her bonds.

Come to her with all your soul,
And keep her ways with all your strength.

Search for her and seek her out,
And she will become known to you;
And when you become self-controlled, do not let her go.

For in the end you will find her rest,
And she will turn to you in gladness.

Then her fetters will be as a strong protection for you,
And her collar a glorious robe.

For there is a golden adornment upon her,
And her bonds are a blue thread.

You will wear her as a glorious robe
And put her on yourself as a crown of exceeding joy.

If you are willing, my son, you will be taught,
And if you apply yourself, you will be prudent.

If you love to listen, you will wait with anticipation,
And if you incline your ear, you will be wise.

Stand in an assembly of elders,
And who is wise? Attach yourself to him.

Desire to listen to every divine narrative,
And do not let proverbs of understanding escape you.

If you see a man who has understanding,
Rise early in the morning
And let your foot wear out the threshold of his door.

Set your mind on the ordinances of the Lord
And practice His commandments.
He will strengthen your heart continually,
And the desire for wisdom will be given to you.
Do no evil things,
And evil will never overtake you.†

2 Stay away from wrongdoing,
And it will turn away from you.

3 My son, do not sow on the furrows of wrongdoing,
And you will not reap the same things sevenfold.

4 Do not seek authority from a lord
Nor the seat of honor from a king.

5 Do not declare yourself righteous before a lord,
Nor play the wise man before a king.

6 Do not try to be a judge
If you will not be strong enough to remove wrongdoing,
Lest you respect the presence of the powerful
And compromise your integrity.

7 Do not sin against the population of a city,
Nor disgrace yourself before the people.

8 Do not repeat your sin,
For you will not be unpunished even for one.

9 Do not say, “He will look upon the multitude of my gifts,
And when I bring an offering to God Most High, He will accept it.”

10 Do not be fainthearted in your prayer
And do not neglect to do alms.†

11 Do not laugh at a man who is in bitterness of soul,
For there is One who humbles and exalts.

12 Do not devise a lie against your brother,
Nor do the same against a friend.

13 Do not desire to tell any lie,
For the habit of lying never does any good.

14 Do not talk idly in the assembly of the elders,
And do not repeat yourself in prayer.
15 Do not hate hard work, especially farming,
Which was created by the Most High.
16 Do not number yourself among an assembly of sinners;
Remember that wrath will not tarry long.
17 Humble yourself greatly,
For the punishment of the ungodly is fire and worms.
18 Do not exchange a friend for money,
Nor a genuine brother for the gold of Ophir.†
19 Do not ignore a wise and good wife,
For her grace is worth more than gold.
20 Do not mistreat a servant who does his work in truth
Nor a hired worker who devotes himself to you.‡
21 Let your soul love an intelligent servant;
Do not deprive him of his freedom.
22 Do you have cattle? Take care of them;
And if they are profitable to you, keep them.‡
23 Do you have children? Correct them,
And make them obey from their youth.
24 Do you have daughters? Watch carefully over their chastity,
And do not be too easy on them.†
25 Give a daughter in marriage
And you will have completed a great work;
But give her to a man of understanding.
26 Do you have a wife after your own heart? Do not reject her,
But do not trust yourself to a wife whom you disregard.
27 Honor your father with all your heart,
And do not forget the birth pangs of your mother.
28 Remember that you were begotten through them,
And what can you give back to them
To the degree they gave to you?

The Priests and the Poor

29 Fear the Lord with all your soul
And honor His priests.‡
30 Love Him who made you
And do not forsake His ministers.

שם Fear the Lord and honor His priests,
And give them their portion as commanded:
The first fruits, the trespass offering,
The gift of the shoulder offering,
The sacrifice of sanctification,
And the firstfruits of the holy things.

 страх Stretch forth your hand to the poor,
That your blessing may be complete.

ר"ח Let the kindness of giving be shown
In the presence of all the living,
And do not withhold kindness from the dead.

ש Do not withdraw yourself from those who weep,
And mourn with those who mourn.

ך Do not hesitate to visit a sick man,
For by such visits you will be loved.

שׁ With all your words, remember the time you will die,
And you will never sin.

Kings and Commoners

8 Do not contend sharply with a powerful man,

Lest you fall into his hands.

2 Do not quarrel with a rich man,
Lest he resist your force,
For gold has destroyed many
And perverted the hearts of kings.

3 Do not contend sharply with a talkative man,
And do not heap wood on his fire.

4 Do not jest with an uncultivated man,
Lest your forefathers be insulted.

5 Do not insult a man who turns away from sin;
Remember that we are all valuable.

6 Do not dishonor a man in his old age,
For some of us are growing old as well.
Do not rejoice over any dead person;
Remember that we all must die.

Do not disregard a saying of the wise,
But be conversant with their proverbs;
Because from them you will gain instruction
And how to serve noble people.

Do not miss a saying of the old,
For they themselves learned from their fathers;
Because from them you will gain understanding
And be able to give an answer in time of need.

Do not kindle the coals of a sinner,
For you may be burned by his flame.

Do not let the presence of an insolent man
Arouse you from your seat,
Lest he lie in wait as an ambush against your words.

Do not lend to a man stronger than you;
But if you do, consider it lost.

Do not give surety beyond your ability to pay;
But if you do give surety, be as careful as one who has to pay.

Do not go to law against a judge,
For they will decide for him because of his reputation.

Do not travel on a journey with a reckless man,
Lest he weigh you down;
For he will do his will,
And you will perish with him in his folly.

Do not cause a fight with an angry man,
And do not go into a lonely place with him,
Because murder is as nothing in his eyes,
And where there is no help, he will strike you down.

Do not consult with a fool,
For he will not keep a matter confidential.

Do nothing confidential in the presence of a stranger,
For you do not know what he will give birth to.

Do not open your heart to everyone,
Lest unkindness be shown to you.
Do not be jealous of the wife of your bosom

And so teach her an evil lesson about yourself.
Do not give your soul to a woman
To let her trample on your strength.
Do not meet with a woman who is a courtesan,
Lest you fall into her snares.
Do not associate with a dancing-girl,
Lest you be caught in her schemes.
Do not gaze at a virgin,
Lest you stumble and pay damages for her.
Do not give your soul to prostitutes,
Lest you destroy your inheritance.
Do not look around in the streets of a city,
And do not wander about in its deserted sections.
Turn your eye away from a woman with a shapely figure,
And do not gaze at beauty belonging to another.
Many have been led astray by the beauty of a woman,
And erotic love is like a burning fire.
Never dine with another man's wife,
And do not share in parties with her over wine,
Lest your soul turn aside to her,
And you slip and with your spirit fall into destruction.

Friends and Neighbors

Do not forsake an old friend,
For a new one is not equal with him.
A new friend is like new wine;
Drink it with pleasure only after it ages.
Do not envy the honor given a sinner,
For you do not know what his end will be.
Do not delight in the pleasure of the ungodly;
Remember, they will not be declared righteous even in Hades.
Keep far away from a man who has the power to kill,
And you will not be anxious about the fear of death.
But if you come near him, do not offend him,
Lest he take away your life.
Know that you are stepping in the midst of snares
And walking about the battlements of a city.
Evaluate your neighbors as best you can
And consult with those who are wise.
Let your reasoning be with those who are wise,
And let all your talk be about the law of the Most High.
Let righteous men be your dinner companions,
And let your boasting be in the fear of the Lord.

Wise Leaders

A work will be praised for the skill of its craftsmen,
And a wise leader of people for the skill of his words.
A talkative man is regarded with fear in his city,
And a man who is reckless in his speech will be hated.
A wise leader will educate his people,
And the rule of an intelligent man will be well ordered.
As goes the leader of a people, so also are his officials,
And all the inhabitants of a city will reflect its ruler.
An undisciplined king will ruin his people,
But a city will be made habitable through the wisdom of its rulers.
The authority of the earth is in the hand of the Lord,
And He will raise up the right man for an appointed time.
The success of a man is in the hand of the Lord,
And He confers His honor upon the person of the scribe.
Do not cherish anger against your neighbor for any injury,
And do nothing by acts of insolence.

Beware of Arrogance

Arrogance is hateful before God and man,
And wrongdoing is offensive to both.
Dominion is transferred from nation to nation
Because of wrongdoing, insolence, and wealth.
How can he who is earth and ashes be arrogant?

Because even while living, his insides are decaying.

A physician scoffs at a long illness,
And a king today will also die tomorrow.

When a man dies, he will inherit
Reptiles, wild animals, and worms.

The beginning of a man’s arrogance is to depart from the Lord,
For his heart withdraws from the One who created him.

For the beginning of arrogance is sin,
And he who takes hold of it will pour out an abomination.

Therefore the Lord will bring them extraordinary distress
And completely destroy them.

The Lord pulls down the thrones of rulers
And seats the gentle in their place.

The Lord plucks out the roots of nations
And plants the humble in their place.

The Lord overthrows the lands of the nations
And destroys them to the foundations of the earth.

He removes some of them and destroys them,
And puts an end to their memory on the earth.

Arrogance was not created by mankind,
Nor fierce anger by the offspring of women.

What kind of seed is honored?
The seed of man.

What kind of seed is honored?
Those who fear the Lord.

What kind of seed is dishonored?
The seed of man.

What kind of seed is dishonored?
Those who transgress the commandments.

Among brothers their leader is honored,
And those who fear the Lord are honored in His eyes.

The fear of the Lord goes before the obtaining of authority,
But roughness and pride is the losing thereof.

The rich and the honored and the poor alike—
Their boasting is the fear of the Lord.

It is not right to dishonor an intelligent poor man,
Nor is it proper to honor a sinful man.

The nobleman, the judge, and the ruler will be honored,
But none of them is greater than the one who fears the Lord.

Free men will render service to a wise servant,
And an understanding man will not grumble.

Do not put your wisdom on display when you do your work,
Nor magnify yourself in the time of your trouble.

Better is he who works and has plenty
Than he who magnifies himself but has no bread.

My son, honor your soul with gentleness
And give it honor according to its worth.

Who will declare righteous the man who sins against his soul,
And who will honor the man who dishonors his life?

A poor man is honored for his knowledge,
While a rich man is honored for his wealth.

If a man is honored in poverty,
How much more in wealth,
And if a man is dishonored in wealth,
How much more in poverty?

The wisdom of a humble man will exalt his head,
And he will take his seat among the great.

Outward Appearances

Do not praise a man for his good looks,
And do not detest one because of his appearance.

The bee is small among winged creatures,
But her fruit is first among sweet things.

Do not boast about your fine clothes,
Nor magnify yourself in the day you are honored;
Because the works of the Lord are wondrous,
And His works are hidden from men.
Many tyrants have sat on the ground,
But one never thought of has worn a crown.

Many rulers have suffered exceeding disgrace,
And honored men have been betrayed into the hands of others.

Slow Down!

Do not find fault before you examine a situation.
First, understand it, and then make your judgment.

Do not answer before you have listened,
And do not interrupt someone while he is talking.

Do not argue about a matter that does not concern you,
And do not sit together with sinners when they judge a case.

My son, do not let your business involve too many things.
If you multiply them, you will not remain unpunished,
And if you pursue them, you will not overtake them;
And you will not escape by running away.

There is a man who works and works
And keeps on working, but is in much more poverty.

There is another who is sluggish and in need of help;
And he lacks strength and abounds in poverty.
But the eyes of the Lord look upon him for his good
And restores his well-being from his humble state.

He raises up his head,
And many are amazed at this.

Handling Riches

Good and bad, life and death, poverty and wealth—
These are from the Lord.

The gift of the Lord remains with the godly,
And His approval brings prosperity forever.

There is a man who grows rich
Because of his attention and restraint;
And this is the portion of his reward:
When he says, “I have found rest,
And now I will partake of my good things.”
Yet he does not know how much time will pass until he will die
And leave them behind to others.

Stand by your covenant and attend to it,
And grow old in your work.

Do not be amazed at the works of a sinner,
But trust in the Lord and remain at your work;
Because it is easy in the sight of the Lord
To make a poor man rich quickly and unexpectedly.

The blessing of the Lord is in the reward of a godly man,
And in an instant He makes his blessings flourish.

Do not say, “What do I need,
And what good things will be mine in the future?”

Do not say, “I am independent.
From now on, what will harm me?”

In the day of good things,
There is forgetfulness of bad things,
And in the day of bad things,
There is no remembrance of good things.

For it is easy in the judgment of the Lord
To reward a man on the day of his death according to his ways.

The ill-treatment of an hour makes one forget luxury,
And at the end of a man’s life,
There shall be a revelation of his works.

Consider no man happy before his death,
And a man will be known in his children.

Beware of Evildoers

Do not bring every man into your home,
For the plots of the deceitful are many.

The heart of an arrogant man is like a decoy partridge in a cage,
And like a spy he watches for your fall.

For he lies in wait and turns good into evil,
And he will attach blame to the good one chooses.

From a spark of fire a charcoal fire is kindled,
And a sinful man lies in wait for bloodshed.
Beware of an evildoer and his schemes,
Lest he bring lasting blame upon you.
Receive a stranger into your home
And he will upset you with troubles,
And alienate your family from you.

Showing Kindness

If you show kindness, know to whom you show it,

And you shall be thanked for your good deeds.

Do good to a godly man, and you will be repaid—
If not by him, then certainly by the Most High.

There shall be no good things for him who continues in evil things,
Or for him who does not give alms cheerfully.

Give to a godly man, but do not help the sinner.

Do good to a humble man, but do not give to an ungodly man.

Hold back his bread and do not give it to him,
Lest by it he lord it over you.
For you will receive twice as much evil coming back
For all the good you did for him.

For the Most High also hates sinners
And will render punishment on the ungodly.

Never Trust an Enemy

Give to the good man, but do not help the sinner.

A friend will not be revealed when you are prosperous,
Nor will an enemy hide himself when you are in adversity.

When a man prospers, his enemies are grieved,
But when he is in adversity, even a friend will separate himself.

Never trust your enemy,
For as copper becomes rusty, so is his evil.

Even if he acts humble and goes about with a humble posture,
Watch yourself, and be on your guard.
Then you shall be to him like him who wipes off a mirror,
And you will know that it is not corroded continually.

Do not let him stand by your side,
Lest he overthrow you and take your place.
Do not seat him on your right,
Lest he seek your seat of honor.

Then at last you will know the truth of my words,
And because of my words you will be pierced with sorrow.

Who will pity a snake charmer when he is bitten,
Or those who go near wild animals?

So no one will pity one who approaches a sinful man
And gets involved in his sins.

He will stay with you for a while,
But if you turn aside from him, he will not put up with you.

An enemy speaks sweetly with his lips,
But in his heart he will plan to throw you into a pit.
An enemy will shed tears, but if he finds an opportunity,
He will not be satisfied apart from shedding your blood.

If evil comes upon you,
You will find your enemy there ahead of you,
And as he pretends to help you,
He will pull your feet from under you.

He will shake his head and applaud with his hands;
And he will whisper many things and alter his expression.

Choosing Colleagues

Whoever touches pitch will be stained,
And whoever associates with an arrogant man will become like him.

Do not lift a weight too heavy for you,
Nor associate with a man stronger and richer than you.

What does a clay pot have in common with a copper kettle?
For the clay pot will strike against the kettle and will itself be broken.

A rich man does wrong and even proves himself to be the one wronged.
A poor man is wronged, and he must apologize.

If you can be useful to him, a rich man will make use of you;
But if you are in need, he will abandon you.
If you own anything, he will live with you,
And he will exhaust you, but will not feel sorry for you.

When he needs you, he will deceive you and smile at you;
And he will give you hope and say good things to you.

He will even say, “What do you need?”

He will shame you with his foods
Until he exhausts you two or three times.

Then at last he will mock you.

If he should see you after this, he will forsake you
And shake his head over you.

He will shame you with his foods
Until he exhausts you two or three times.

Then at last he will mock you.

If he should see you after this, he will forsake you
And shake his head over you.

Take heed, lest you be led astray
And be humiliated in your folly.

When a ruler invites you, be slow to accept,
And he will invite you more often.

Do not press upon him, lest you be rejected,
But do not withdraw at a distance, lest you be forgotten.

Do not intend to speak to him as an equal,
And do not trust his abundance of words;
For he will test you with a lot of talk,
And while he is smiling, he will scrutinize you.

He who does not guard your words is unmerciful,
And he will not hesitate to harm or imprison you.

Keep your words to yourself, and be very careful,
For you are walking near your own fall.

Like Attracts Like

Every living creature loves its like,
And every man his neighbor.

All flesh gathers together by species,
And every man clings to one like himself.

What wolf will associate with a lamb?
No more will the sinner with a godly man.

What peace is there between a hyena and a dog?
And what peace does a rich man have with a poor man?

The prey of lions are wild asses in the wilderness.
Similarly, the pastures of the rich are the poor.
Lowness of stature is an abomination to the arrogant;
Thus a poor man is an abomination to a rich man.

When a rich man is shaken, he is strengthened by friends;
But when a humble man falls, he is pushed away by friends.

When a rich man falls, there are many to help him;
And when he speaks abominable words, they justify him.
If a humble man falls, they criticize him further;
And when he speaks with intelligence, no place is given to him.

When a rich man speaks, everyone is silent,
And they exalt his word to the clouds.
A poor man speaks, and they say, “Who is this man?”
And if he stumbles, they push him down even further.

Wealth in which there is no sin is good,
But poverty is evil in the mouth of an ungodly man.

The heart of a man changes the expression on his face,
Either for good or for evil.

The mark of a heart filled with goodness is a cheerful face,
But the invention of proverbs requires laborious reasoning.

Blessed is a man who does not slip and fall because of his mouth,
And is not stung with pain caused by his sin.

Blessed is he whose soul does not condemn him,
And who has not fallen away from his hope.

Wealth is not fitting for a small-minded man,
And to what end is wealth for an envious man?

For he who gathers for himself, gathers for others,
And others will live in luxury with his goods.

If a man does evil to himself, for whom shall he do good?
And he will not rejoice in his wealth.

Warnings of Vices

When a man envies himself, there is no one worse off,
And this is the reward for his vice.

Even if he does good, he does it unintentionally.
And in the end he reveals his vice.

2 He who envies with his eye is evil;
He turns away his face and despises souls.

2 The eye of a greedy man is not satisfied with his share,
And useless wrongdoing dries up the soul.

2 The evil eye of a man is envious over his bread;
Thus it is lacking at his table.

2 My son, whatever you have, treat yourself well,
And offer sacrifices worthily to the Lord.

2 Remember that death does not delay,
And the covenant of Hades has not been shown to you.

2 Before you die, do good to a friend,
And reach out and give to him based on your ability.

2 Do not let a day go by without doing something good,
And do not let any of your desire for doing good escape you.

2 Will you not leave all your hard work to another,
And all your hard work to be divided by lot?

2 Give and receive and deprive yourself,
Because in Hades there is nowhere to seek luxury.

2 All flesh becomes old like a garment,
For the covenant from of old is, “You shall die by death.”

2 Like flourishing leaves on a thick tree,
Which sheds some leaves and puts forth others,
So also is the generation of flesh and blood:
One dies and another is born.

2 Every work of man decays and fails,
And he who made it will depart with it.

The Blessings of Wisdom

2 Blessed is the man who practices wisdom
And discourses with insight.

2 Whoever ponders the ways of wisdom in his heart
Will also reflect on her secrets.

2 Pursue wisdom like a tracker
And lie in wait on her paths.
He who looks intently through her windows
Will also listen at her doors.
He who lodges near her house
Will also fasten his tent peg to her walls.
He will establish his home according to her will,
And so lodge in a good dwelling place.
He will put his children in her shelter
And lodge under her branches.
He will be sheltered by her from the burning heat
And will dwell in her glory.

He who fears the Lord will do this,
And he who holds fast to the law will obtain wisdom.
She will come to meet him like a mother
And accept him like the wife of one's youth.
She will feed him the bread of understanding
And give him the water of wisdom to drink.
He will be supported by her and not fall;
And he will hold on to her and not be put to shame.
She will exalt him alongside his neighbors,
And in the midst of the assembly she will open his mouth.
He will find gladness and a crown of rejoicing
And will inherit an everlasting name.
But foolish men will not find her,
And sinful men will not see her.
She is far from the arrogant,
And lying men will not keep her in mind.
Praise is not proper in the mouth of a sinner,
Because it was not sent from the Lord.
For praise should be spoken in wisdom;
Then the Lord will prosper it.

Our Sin Is Our Fault

Do not say, “I fell away because of the Lord,”
For He will not do what He hates.
Do not say, “It was He who led me astray,”
For He has no need of a sinful man.

The Lord hates all abominations,
And they are not loved by those who fear Him.

He Himself created man in the beginning
And left him in the counsel of his will.

If you will, you will keep the commandments
And faithfully do His good pleasure.

He has set before you fire and water;
If you will, stretch forth your hand.

Life and death are before mankind,
And whichever he chooses, it will be given to him.

For great is the wisdom of the Lord;
He is mighty in power and sees all things.

His eyes are upon those who fear Him,
And He Himself knows every deed of man.

He has commanded no one to be ungodly,
And He has given no one license to sin.

Ungodly Children

Do not desire a multitude of useless children,

Nor rejoice in ungodly sons.

If they multiply, do not rejoice over them
If the fear of the Lord is not in them.

Do not trust in their life
Nor pay attention to their multitude;
For one godly child is better than a thousand.
And it is better to die childless than to have ungodly children.

For from one child with wisdom a city will be filled with people,
But a tribe of lawless men will make it desolate.

My eyes have seen many such things,
And my ear has heard worse things than this.

Rebuke and Mercy

In the congregation of sinners, a fire will be kindled,
And in a disobedient nation, wrath is kindled.
There was no atonement for the ancient giants
Who turned away from God because of their strength.†
He did not spare the cities where Lot sojourned,
Whom He detested because of their arrogance.‡
He had no mercy on a nation destined for destruction
Who were taken away because of their sins.
The same thing happened to the six hundred thousand foot-soldiers
Who gathered together in their hardness of heart.†
Even if there was only one stiff-necked man,
It would be a marvel if he were to remain unpunished.
For mercy and wrath belong to the Lord,
And He is mighty to forgive;
And He pours out wrath.
As great as His mercy, so also great is His rebuke,
And He will judge a man according to his works.‡
A sinner will not escape with his spoils,
And the patience of a godly man will not fare badly.
He will make a place for every act of mercy.
Each will find this out according to his works.

Do not say, “I will be hidden from the Lord,
And who will remember me from on high?
I will not be known among so many people,
For what is my soul in comparison to the immeasurable creation?‡
Behold, heaven and the highest heaven,
The abyss and the earth will be shaken at His visitation.
At the same time, the mountains and the foundations of the earth
Will shake with trembling when He looks upon them.
No heart will able to think about these things,
And who will ponder His ways?
There will be a sudden blast of wind which no man will see,
For most of His works will be done in secret.
Who will proclaim His works of righteousness,
Or who will endure them?
For His covenant is far off.”

This is what a man thinks
Who is diminished in heart and without discernment,
Who is deceived and thinks foolishly.

Listen to me, my son, and gain knowledge,
And pay close attention to my words in your heart.

I will reveal instruction with balance,
And I will proclaim knowledge with exactness.

The Majesty of Creation

By the judgment of the Lord, His works exist from the beginning,
And from their creation, He determined their boundaries.
He ordered His works forever,
And their principles according to their generations.
They neither hunger nor grow weary,
And they do not cease from their works.
Each does not afflict the one close to him,
And they will never disobey His word.
After this the Lord looked upon the earth
And filled it with His good things.
He covered its surface with the life of every living creature,
And to it they will return again.

Creation of Man

The Lord created man from the earth
And returned him to it again.
He gave them a certain number of days and an appointed time,
And He gave them authority over it.
He clothed them in strength like His own
And made them in His image.
He put the fear of man upon all flesh
And gave him dominion over wild animals and birds.
He gave mankind the ability to deliberate,
And a tongue, eyes and ears, and a heart to think with.
He filled them with the skill of comprehension
And showed them good and evil.

2 He set His eye upon their hearts

To show them the majesty of His works.

3 They will praise His holy name

So as to fully describe the majesty of His works.

The Covenant with Israel

2 He added knowledge to them

And gave them the law of life as a heritage.

3 He established an eternal covenant with them,

And He showed His judgments to them.

4 Their eyes saw His glorious majesty,

And their ears heard His glorious voice.

5 He said to them, “Beware of all unrighteousness,”

And He commanded each of them concerning his neighbor.

6 Their ways are before Him continually;

They will not be hidden from His eyes.

7 He appointed a ruler for every nation,

But Israel is the Lord's portion.

8 All His works are as the sun before Him,

And His eyes are continually on their ways.

9 Their wrongdoings are not hidden from Him,

And all their sins are before the Lord.

10 A man's almsgiving is like a seal with Him,

And He will treasure the kindness of a man like the pupil of His eye.

11 After this He will arise and repay them,

And He will reward them with retribution on their head.

12 But He provides a return to those who repent,

And He comforts those who lack endurance.

Return to the Lord

13 Turn to the Lord and forsake your sins,

And pray in His presence and reduce your offense.

14 Return to the Most High and turn away from wrongdoing,

And hate an abomination exceedingly.
Who will praise the Most High in Hades,
As do the living and those who give thanks?
Thanksgiving ceases from a dead man since he is no longer alive;
Only the living and the healthy will praise the Lord.
How great the mercy of the Lord is,
And His atonement for those who turn to Him.
For all things are not possible for man,
Because a son of man is not immortal.
What shines brighter than the sun? Yet this light fails,
And so will flesh and blood when it lays evil to heart.
He examines the host of the highest heaven,
But all men are earth and ashes.

A Song of God's Mercy

He who lives forever created everything;

The Lord alone will be declared righteous.
He permitted no one to proclaim His works,
For who can trace out His mighty works?
Who will measure His majestic power with a number,
And who will add to this measure
While describing His mercies?
There is no one who can add or subtract,
And there is no who can search out the wonders of the Lord.
When a man completes his search, then he starts over;
And when he stops, he will still be perplexed.
What is man and what use is he;
What is his good and what is his evil?
The number of a man's days is considered great
If he is one hundred years old.
But like a drop of water from the sea and a grain of sand,
So are a few years within a day of eternity.
Therefore the Lord is patient with them
And pours out His mercy upon them.
He sees and knows their end, that it is evil;
Therefore He makes full atonement for them.

The mercy of a man is upon his neighbor,

But the mercy of the Lord is upon all flesh,

Rebuking, training, and teaching them

Like a shepherd who returns his flock to the fold.

He has mercy on those who receive His discipline

And who are eager for His judgments.

Take Care to Be Wise

My son, do not bring disgrace on the good you have done,

Nor cause grief by your words when you make a gift.

Does not dew give relief from the burning heat?

In the same way, a word is better than a gift.

Indeed, is not a word better than a fitting gift?

And both are found in a gracious man.

A fool will insult and disgrace someone,

And the gift of an envious man makes his eyes waste away.

Before you speak, learn,

And before you get sick, take care of your health.

Before you make a judgment, examine yourself closely,

And in the hour of visitation you will find atonement.

Before you become sick, humble yourself;

And at the time of sinning, prove your conversion.

Let nothing hinder you from paying a vow promptly,

And do not wait until death to become righteous.

Before you make a vow, prepare yourself;

And do not become like a man who tempts the Lord.

Remember His anger on the day of your death,

At the time of vengeance, when He turns His face away.

Remember the time of hunger in the time of plenty,

And poverty and need in the days of wealth.

From morning until evening, time changes;

And all things are soon in the presence of the Lord.

A wise man will have the fear of God in everything he does;

And in these days of sin, he will guard against wrongdoing.
Every intelligent man knows wisdom
And praises the one who finds her.
The wise in words—they also make others wise,
And they pour forth accurate proverbs.

Self-Control

Do not walk after your own desires,
But restrain your appetites.
If you fill your soul with the desire for pleasure,
It will make you the laughingstock of your enemies.
Do not rejoice in great luxury,
Lest you become needy by its expense.
Do not become a beggar by feasting on borrowed money
When you have nothing in your purse.

The Reckless Soul

A working man who is a drunk will not become wealthy,
And he who despises small things will fail little by little.
Wine and women will draw away intelligent men,
And he who joins himself to prostitutes shall become very reckless.
Decay and worms will inherit him,
And his reckless soul will be carried away.

Don’t Gossip

He who trusts quickly is unwise in heart,
And he who sins will err against his own soul.
He who rejoices in evil shall be condemned,
And he who hates talkativeness will sin less.
Never repeat a word and you will lose nothing at all;
With friend or enemy, do not report it,
And unless it is a sin for you, do not reveal it.
For someone heard you and watched you,
And in time will hate you.
Have you heard a word? Let it die with you.
Take courage; it will not burst you.
But a fool will suffer birth-pangs because of such a word,
Like a woman in labor with a child.
Like an arrow stuck in the flesh of a thigh,
So is a word inside a fool.
Question a friend; perhaps he did not do it.
And if he did something, perhaps he will not repeat it.†
Question a neighbor; perhaps he did not say it.
And if he did say it, may he not say it twice.
Question a friend, for often it is slander.
So do not believe every word.
A person slips, but it was not his intention;
For who has not sinned with his tongue?
Question your neighbor before you threaten him,
And give place to the law of the Most High.

The Wise and the Clever.

All wisdom is the fear of the Lord,
And in all wisdom there is the doing of the Law.†
Wisdom is not the knowledge of evil,
Nor is there discernment in the counsel of sinners.
There is a cleverness that is an abomination,
And there is a fool who is lacking in wisdom.
Better is a man who is afraid but lacks understanding,
Than a man who abounds in discernment but transgresses the law.
There is a precise cleverness which itself is unjust;
And there is one who is offensive that justice may be revealed.
There is an evildoer bowed down in mourning,
But inwardly he is full of deceit.
He covers his face and pretends to be deaf,
But when no one notices, he will take advantage of you.
If he is prevented from sinning because he lacks strength,
When he later finds an opportunity, he will do evil.
A man will be known by his appearance,
And a man of intelligence will be known
By his countenance when you meet him.†
The clothing of a man and the way he laughs and walks
Give indication of who he is.

When to Speak.

There is a rebuke which is not timely,

And there is he who is silent but has discernment.

How much better it is to rebuke than to seethe with anger.

He who confesses his fault will be kept from loss.

Like the desire of a eunuch to violate a maiden,
So is the man who executes justice by violence.

There is a man who is silent but is found to be wise,
And there is a man who is hateful because he talks too much.

There is a man who is silent because he has no answer,
And there is a man who is silent because he knows when to speak.

A wise man will keep silent until it is the right time to speak,
But an arrogant and undiscerning man will speak out of turn.

The man who talks too much will be detested,
And the man who stands on his rights will be hated.

Buying and Selling.

There is prosperity in the midst of adversities,
But there is also a sum realized by a sale for a loss.

There is a gift that will not profit you,
And there is a gift where the repayment is double.

There is a loss because of glory,
And there is a man who raises his head from a humble state.

There is a man who buys much with little,
But pays for it sevenfold.

A wise man will make himself beloved through his words,
But the kindnesses of fools will be forgotten.

The gift of a senseless man will not benefit you,
For his eyes are many instead of one.

He will give little but insult much,
And he will open his mouth like a herald.

Today he will lend but tomorrow he will demand it back;
Such a man is hateful.

A Man without Grace

A fool will say, “I have no friend,
And I get no thanks for my good deeds.”
Those who eat my bread are worthless in their speech.”
How many will laugh scornfully at him, and how often?
A slip on the ground is better than a slip of the tongue;
Thus the downfall of evil will come speedily.
A man without grace is like a story told at the wrong time;
It will continue on the lips of the ignorant.
A parable from the lips of a fool will be rejected,
For he does not tell it at its proper time.

Commentary on Sinners

There is one who is hindered from sinning because of his poverty,
So when he rests, he will not be pierced with sorrow.
There is one who may lose his life through shame,
Or lose it because of his foolish countenance.
There is one who makes a promise to a friend because of shame,
And needlessly gains him as an enemy.
A lie is an evil disgrace in a man;
It will continue on the lips of the ignorant.
A thief is preferable to a continual liar;
Both, however, will inherit destruction.
The character of a liar brings dishonor,
And his shame is continually with him.

Ways of the Wise

A wise man will advance himself with his words,
And a man with discernment will please great men.
A man who works the earth will raise up his harvest,
And he who pleases great men will atone for wrongdoing.
Presents and gifts blind the eyes of the wise,
And like a muzzle on the mouth they turn aside rebukes.
Wisdom hidden and unseen treasure:
What profit is there in either of them?

Better is the man who hides his foolishness

Than a man who hides his wisdom.

Flee from Sin

My son, have you sinned?

No longer add to them, but pray about your former sins.

Flee from sin as you would from the presence of a snake,

For if you approach it, it will bite you;

Its teeth are like lion's teeth, destroying the souls of men.

All lawlessness is like a two-edged sword,

For there is no healing from its wound.

Panic and violence will lay waste to wealth.

Likewise, the house of an arrogant man will be laid waste.

The prayer of a poor man goes from his mouth to God's ears,

And His judgment comes speedily.

Whoever hates rebuke walks in the steps of a sinner,

But he who fears the Lord will return to Him with his heart.

A man powerful in speech is known from afar,

But an intelligent man knows when he slips.

He who builds his house with other people's money

Is like a man who gathers his stones in a storm.

The assembly of the lawless is like a bundle of kindling

Whose end is a flame of fire.

The way of sinners is paved with stones,

But at its end is the pit of Hades.

Wise or Foolish?

He who keeps the law controls his thoughts;

The end result of the fear of the Lord is wisdom.

He who is not astute cannot be taught,

But there is an astuteness that increases bitterness.

The knowledge of a wise man is like a flood,

And his counsel will flow abundantly as a fountain of life.
The inner workings of a fool are like a broken vessel,
For he will not hold onto any knowledge.
If a man of understanding hears a wise word,
He will praise it and add to it;
But if a self-indulgent man hears it, it displeases him,
And he turns his back on it.
The explanation of a fool is like a burden on a journey,
But grace will be on the lips of an intelligent man.
The utterance of a sensible person will be sought in the assembly,
And they will ponder his words in their heart.
Like a house that has disappeared,
So is wisdom to a fool,
And the knowledge of a foolish man is words
That will not stand up to examination.
To a foolish man, instruction is like chains on the feet
And like handcuffs on the right hand.
A fool raises his voice when he laughs,
But an astute man will smile quietly with some hesitation.
To a wise man instruction is like a golden ornament
And like a bracelet on the right arm.
The foot of a fool quickly enters a house,
But a man with much experience will stand respectfully outside.
A man without discernment peers into a house from the door,
But a well-educated man will stand outside.
A man shows his lack of education when he listens at the door,
But a prudent man will be grieved by this disgrace.
The lips of the unwise will describe things in detail,
But the words of the prudent will balance the scale.
The heart of fools is in their mouth,
But the mouth of the wise is in their heart.
When an ungodly man curses Satan,
He curses his own soul.
The whisperer defiles his own soul
And will be hated in his own neighborhood.
A lazy man may be compared to a filthy stone,
And everyone hisses at his dishonor.†

A lazy man may be compared to the filth of manure;
Everyone who picks it up will shake it off his hand.

A Father's Disgrace

The disgrace of a father is begetting an undisciplined son,
And a foolish daughter is born to his loss.‡

A sensible daughter will bring an inheritance to her husband,
But a shameful one is a grief to her father.

An arrogant daughter shames both father and husband,
And she will be dishonored by both.

An ill-timed statement is like mournful music,
But the chastising and instruction of wisdom are always timely.

The Fool

He who teaches a fool is like one who glues pottery together,
Or like trying to arouse one from a sound sleep.

He who tells something to a fool tells it to a drowsy man,
And at the end he will say, “What is it?”

If children live honestly, and have wherewithal,
They shall cover the baseness of their parents.

But children, being haughty, through disdain and want of nurture Stain the nobility of their kindred.

Weep for a dead man, for he left the light behind;
But weep over a fool, for he left intelligence behind.
Weep gladly for a dead man, because he is at rest;
But the life of the fool is worse than death.‡

Mourning for a dead man lasts seven days,
But mourning for a fool or an ungodly man lasts all his life.

Do not hold a conversation with a fool,
And do not visit with a senseless man.
Beware of him, so as to avoid trouble,
And you will not be defiled when he shakes himself off.
Stay away from him, and you will find rest
And not be exhausted by his insanity.†
What will be heavier than lead?
And what will be his name but “Fool”?
Sand, salt, and a piece of iron are easier to bear
Than a senseless man.
A wooden beam bound together in a building
Will not be broken loose in an earthquake;
So a heart strengthened by reasonable counsel
Will not be afraid in a crisis.
A heart settled on intelligent thought
Is like a plaster decoration on a smooth wall.
As fences set on a high place will not stand firm against the wind,
So a cowardly heart in the thought of a fool
Cannot stand firm against any kind of fear.

Building Friendships

He who pokes his eye will cause tears to fall,
And he who pierces a heart reveals its feeling.
Throwing a rock at birds scares them away,
And disgracing a friend will break up a friendship.
If you draw a sword against a friend,
Do not despair, for a restoration of friendship is possible.
If you open your mouth against a friend,
Do not worry, for reconciliation is possible.
But as for reviling or arrogance or revealing secrets or a treacherous blow—with behavior like this any friend will flee.
Gain your neighbor’s trust when he is poor,
So you may be fulfilled with him when he prospers.
Stand by him in his time of trouble,
That when he gets his inheritance, you may share it with him.
As the smoke and vapor of a furnace precede a fire,
So abuses precede bloodshed.
I will not be ashamed to shelter a friend,
And I will not hide from his face.
If anything bad happens to me because of him,
Everyone who hears about it will beware of him.
Who will set a guard over my mouth,
And a prudent seal over my lips,
That I may not fall because of them,
And that my tongue may not destroy me?

A Prayer for Wisdom

O Lord, Father and Master of my life,
Do not leave me to their counsel,
Nor let me fall because of them.

Who will set whips over my thoughts
And the discipline of wisdom over my heart,
So they may not spare me in my errors,
nor neglect me in my sins?

Lest my mistakes be multiplied
And my sins abound.
Then I would not fall before my adversaries,
And my enemy would not rejoice over me.

O Lord, Father and the God of my life, do not give me haughty eyes,

But turn me away from evil desire.

Do not let gluttony or lust overcome me,
Nor give me up to a shameless soul.

Warning to Children

My children, hear the teaching of my mouth,
For he who keeps it will not be conquered.

A sinner will be overtaken by his lips,
And a slanderer and arrogant man will be made to stumble by them.

Do not accustom your mouth to vows,
Nor make a habit of using the name of the Holy One.

For as a servant who is continually beaten will not lack bruises,
So also he who makes a vow and continually names the Holy One
Will never be cleansed from sin.

A man who swears many oaths will be filled with lawlessness,
And that plague will not depart from his house.
If he offends, his sin will be on him,
And if he overlooks it, he has sinned doubly.
If he swears in vain, he will not be declared righteous,
For his house will be filled with trouble.

There is a way of speaking comparable to death.
May it not be found in the inheritance of Jacob;
For all these things will be far from the godly,
And they will not be involved in sins.

Do not accustom your mouth to lewd expressions,
For this is sinful speech.

Remember your father and mother
When you sit in council with great men,
Lest you forget yourself in their presence
And by habit act foolishly.
Then you will wish you had never been born,
And you will curse the day of your birth.

A man accustomed to abusive words
Will never discipline himself as long as he lives.

Men of Sin

Two kinds of men multiply sins,
And a third kind will bring down wrath:
A soul heated like a burning fire
Will not be quenched until it is consumed;
A man whose whole body is given to fornication
Will not cease until the fire burns out.
To a man who is a fornicator, all bread is sweet.
He will not grow weary until he dies.

The man who transgresses against his marriage bed
Says to himself, “Who sees me?”
Darkness encircles me.
The walls of my house hide me,
And no one sees me.
Why should I be afraid?
The Most High will not remember my sins.”

His fear is the eyes of men.
Yet he does not know that the eyes of the Lord
Are ten thousand times brighter than the sun
And look upon all the ways of men,
And observe even the secret places.

Before all things were created,
Everything was known to Him,
And the end of all things is also known to Him.

This adulterer will be punished in the city streets,
And where he does not suspect it, he will be seized.

Women of Sin

So also the woman who forsook her husband
And brought in an heir by another man.

For she first disobeyed the law of the Most High;
And second, she transgressed against her husband;
And third, in her fornication she committed adultery
And bore children by a stranger.

She will be brought before the assembly,
And there shall be a visitation of her children.

Her children will not take root,
And her branches will not bear fruit.

She will leave behind her memory as a curse,
And her disgrace will not be blotted out.

Those left behind will know
There is nothing better than the fear of the Lord;
And there is nothing sweeter
Than to give heed to the Lord's commandments.

In Praise of Wisdom

Wisdom will praise herself, And in the midst of her people she will boast.

In the assembly of the Most High, she will open her mouth And boast in the presence of His host.

I came forth from the mouth of the Most High And covered the earth like a mist.
I pitched my tent in the high places
And my throne on the pillar of cloud.
I alone encircle the ring of heaven,
And I walk in the depth of the abyss.
In the waves of the sea, in all the earth,
And in every people and nation
I have gained a possession.
With all these, I have sought a place to rest;
In what inheritance will I lodge?
"Then the Creator of all things commanded me,
And He who created me gave me a place to live.
He said, 'Pitch your tent in Jacob
And receive an inheritance in Israel.'"
Before the age, He created me from the beginning,
And in the age to come I will not cease.
I serve before Him in His holy tabernacle;
Therefore, I am established in Zion.
In the beloved city likewise He gives me rest,
And my authority is in Jerusalem.
I am firmly rooted among an honored people,
Among the Lord's portion, His inheritance.
"Like a cedar tree I was raised on high in Lebanon,
Like a cypress tree in the mountains of Hermon.
I was exalted like a palm tree in En-Gedi
And like rose bushes in Jericho;
I was exalted like a beautiful olive tree in the plain
And grew tall like a plane-tree.
I gave forth the fragrance of aromatic spices
Like cinnamon and camel-thorn,
And I spread a fragrance like choice myrrh,
And like galbanum, onyx, and oil of myrrh,
And like the fragrance of frankincense in the tabernacle.
I spread forth my branches like a terebinth tree,
And my branches were glory and grace.
I yield grace like a vine,
And my flowers produce the fruit of glory and riches.

Therefore, being eternal, I am given to all my children who are named by Him.

"Come to me, you who desire me,
And take your fill of my fruits.

For the remembrance of me is sweeter than honey,
And my inheritance is sweeter than the honeycomb.

Those who eat me will hunger for more,
And those who drink me will thirst for more.

He who obeys me will not be put to shame,
And those who work with me will not sin."

All this is the book of the covenant of the Most High God—
The law Moses commanded us,
The inheritance of the congregations of Jacob.

Faint not to be strong in the Lord;
That He may confirm you, cleave unto Him:
For the Lord Almighty is God alone,
And beside Him there is no other Savior.

This law fills men with wisdom,
Like the Pishon and the Tigris at the time of firstfruits;
And it fills them with understanding,
Like the Euphrates and the Jordan at the time of harvest.

This law shines forth instruction like light,
Like the Gihon in the days of vintage.

As the first man did not know wisdom perfectly,
So the last man has not searched out her depths.

For her thoughts are deeper than the sea
And her counsel than the great abyss.

I went forth like a canal from a river
And like an aqueduct into a garden.

I said, "I will water my garden
And drench the garden beds."

And behold, my canal became a river,
And my river became a sea.

I will yet make instruction shine like the morning,
And I will make it shine far away.

And I will yet pour forth teaching like prophecy,
And I will leave it behind for future generations.

As you can see, I have not labored for myself alone,
But for all who seek wisdom.

Numbered Sayings

There are three things beautiful to see,
And they are beautiful before the Lord and men:
The harmony of brothers, friendship between neighbors,
And a wife and husband well-adjusted together.

My soul hates three kinds of men,
And I am very offended with their lifestyle:
A beggar who is arrogant, a rich man who is a liar,
And an old man who is an adulterer and lacks understanding.

Wisdom of the Aged

If you have gathered nothing in your youth,
How can you find anything in your old age?
Judgment is like beauty in gray hair,
And in elders, it is to know counsel.
Wisdom is like the beauty of old men,
And in those who are glorious, it is understanding and counsel.
The crown of old men is great experience,
For their boast is the fear of the Lord.

Ten Blessings

In my heart I have blessed nine suppositions,
And I will mention a tenth:
A father who delights in his children;
A man who lives to see the downfall of his enemies;
A husband who is blessed to live with an understanding wife;
A man who does not slip with his tongue;
A man who has not served a man less worthy than himself;
A man who is blessed to find discernment;
A man who is blessed to speak to ears that listen;
And a man who has found wisdom—how blessed he is!
But there is no one greater than a man who fears the Lord.
The fear of the Lord is more important than anything.
To what will it be compared?

\textit{An Evil Wife.}

Any wound, but not a wound of the heart!
Any evil, but not an evil wife!
Any misery, but not the misery of those who hate me!
Any vengeance, but not the vengeance of enemies!
There is no head worse than the head of a snake,
And there is no anger worse than the anger of an enemy.
I would rather live with a lion or a snake than with an evil wife.
The evil of a wife changes her appearance
And darkens her face like that of a bear.
Her husband will go to his neighbors for meals,
And he sighs bitterly and involuntarily.
Any evil is small compared to the evil of a wife.
May the portion of a sinner fall upon her!
A sandy hill of ascent for the feet of an old man—
Such is an overly talkative wife to a quiet husband.
Do not fall for the beauty of a woman,
And do not long for her beauty.
There is wrath, insolence, and great shame
When a wife supports her husband.
A downcast heart, a sad face, and a wounded heart
Are caused by an evil wife.
Drooping hands and weakened knees
Are caused by a wife who does not make her husband happy.
Sin had its beginning from a wife,
And because of her we all die.
Do not give water an outlet,
Nor boldness to an evil wife.
If she does not follow your good leadership,
Cut her off from yourself.
Happy is the husband of a good wife;

The number of his days will be doubled.⁰

A courageous wife makes her husband glad,
And his years will be full of peace.

A good wife is a good portion,
And she will be given in the portion
Of those who fear the Lord.

The good heart of a rich or a poor man
Is a cheerful face at all times.

Fallen Womanhood

My heart fears because of three things,
And I pray to God concerning a fourth:
The slander of a city, the gathering of a mob,
And a false accusation—all these are worse than death.⁰

There is also pain of heart and sorrow
When a wife is jealous over another woman,
And a tongue-lashing makes it known to all.

An evil wife is like an ox-yoke that shakes to and fro,
And to take hold of her is like grabbing a scorpion.

A drunken wife is very wrathful,
And she will not conceal her shame.

The fornication of a wife will be known
By her haughty looks and her eyelids.⁰

Keep strong watch over a headstrong daughter,
Lest she find some liberty and make the most of it.

Be on guard against her shameless eye,
And do not be amazed if she trespasses against you.

Her mouth will open like a thirsty traveler’s
And drink from any water nearby.
She will sit down before every tent peg
And open her quiver to any arrow.

A Blessed Wife
A wife's grace will delight her husband,
And her skill will put fat on his bones.‡
A silent wife is a gift from the Lord,
And there is nothing worth as much as a disciplined soul.
A modest wife is blessing upon blessing,
And there is no scale adequate to weigh a self-controlled soul.
Like the sun rising in the Lord's heaven
Is the beauty of a good wife in the ordering of her house.
Like a lamp shining on the holy lampstand
Is the beauty of a countenance in the prime of life.
Beautiful feet with a steady heart are like golden pillars on a silver base.

Three Griefs

My heart is grieved by two things,
And because of a third, anger arises within me:
A man of war in want because of poverty;
Men of intelligence who suffer contempt;
And a man who turns back from righteousness to sin.
The Lord will prepare this one for the sword.

The Merchant

With difficulty a merchant will deliver himself from wrongdoing,
And a peddler will not be acquitted from sin.‡
Many have sinned to make a profit,
And he who seeks riches will turn away his eyes.
As a stake will be driven tightly between fitted stones,
So sin will be wedged between selling and buying.
If a man does not hold steadfastly to the fear of the Lord,
His house will be soon overturned.

Tested by Reason

When a sieve is shaken, the refuse remains;
So a man's filth remains in the way he reasons.‡
As a furnace tests a potter's vessels,
So the test of a man is in the way he reasons.†

5 As fruit reveals how a tree is cultivated,
So a man's reasoning process reveals his heart.

7 Do not praise a man before he reveals the way he reasons,
For this is the way a man is tested.

6 If you pursue righteousness, you will attain it
And put it on like a glorious robe.‡

2 As birds flock with their own kind,
So also truth will return to those who practice it.

10 As a lion lies in wait for his prey,
So sin lies in wait for those who do wrong.

†Speaking Wisely

11 The talk of a godly man is always wise,
But a fool changes like the moon.

12 Among senseless men, limit your time;
Instead, spend it with men of understanding.

13 The talk of fools is offensive,
And they laugh at the lewdness of sin.‡

14 Speech filled with swearing will make one's hair stand on end,
And quarreling will make one stop his ears.

15 The quarreling of the arrogant leads to bloodshed,
And their abusive language is hard on the ears.

16 He who reveals secrets destroys his credibility,
And he will not find a friend for life.

17 Love your friend,
And be trustworthy with him;
But if you reveal his secrets, do not pursue him closely.

18 For as surely as a man has destroyed his enemy,
So you have destroyed the friendship of your neighbor.

19 As you might release a bird from your hand,
So you have let your neighbor go;
And you will not catch him.

20 Do not pursue him, for he has withdrawn far away
And has escaped like a deer from a snare.
28 For a wound can be bandaged and an insult forgiven,
But anyone who reveals secrets is without hope.
29 He who winks with his eye plots evil deeds,
And no one can draw him away from them.
30 His speech will be sweet in your presence,
And he will marvel at your words;
But later his speech will distort what you said,
And he will cause trouble with your words.
31 I hate many things, but none in comparison to him;
And the Lord will hate him.

Consequences of Sin

32 He who throws a stone into the air
Throws it on his head,
And a treacherous blow will distribute wounds.
33 He who digs a pit will fall into it,
And he who sets a snare will be caught in it.
34 He who does evil things will have it roll back on him,
And he will not know what hit him.†
35 Mockery and abuse come back on an arrogant man,
And vengeance lies in wait for him like a lion.
36 Those who rejoice at the fall of the godly
Will be caught in a trap,
And pain will consume them before their death.
37 Anger and wrath, these are also abominations,
And a sinful man shall possess both.
38 He who seeks revenge will find it from the Lord,
And He will surely punish his sins.†

Showing Mercy

39 Forgive a wrong done you by your neighbor;
Then your sins will be pardoned when you pray.‡
40 Can a man preserve wrath against his neighbor
And still seek healing from the Lord?‡
41 Can he show no mercy toward a man like himself
And still beg God for mercy for himself?\(^1\)

If he being flesh keeps his anger continually,
Who will atone for his sins?

Remember the end of your life
And cease from enmity;
Remember destruction and death
And stand fast in the commandments.\(^2\)

Remember the commandments
And do not vent your wrath against your neighbor;
Remember the covenant of the Most High
And overlook faults.

\[\text{Cease Quarreling and Evil Talk}\]

Refrain from quarreling and you will decrease your sins,
For a man who is hot-tempered will kindle quarreling.
A sinful man will trouble his friends,
And among those who live in peace he will inject unfriendliness.

The heat of a fire will be kindled according to the amount of wood;
So also the heat of a fire will be kindled according to the obstinacy of quarreling.
According to the strength of a man, so his anger shall be;
And according to his wealth, he will increase his wrath.

A hasty quarrel kindles a fire,
And a vigorous quarrel sheds blood.
If you blow on a spark, it will kindle a fire,
But if you spit on it, it will be quenched;
Yet both come out of your mouth.

Curse a slanderous and deceitful man,
For he has destroyed many who were at peace.
Slander has unsettled many
And scattered them from nation to nation;
And it has destroyed strong cities
And overthrown the houses of great men.
Slander has driven away courageous women
And robbed them of their labors.
He who devotes himself to slander will not find rest,
Nor shall he dwell in quietness.

2 The blow from a whip causes a wound,
But a blow from the tongue breaks bones.

3 Many have fallen by the edge of the sword,
But not so many as those who have fallen because of the tongue.

4 Blessed is the man who is sheltered from it,
Who has not passed through the anger of the tongue;
Who does not drag its yoke
And is not bound by its chains.

5 For its yoke is a yoke of iron,
And its chains are chains of bronze.

6 Its death is an evil death,
And Hades is preferable to it.

7 An evil tongue will not prevail over the godly,
And they will not be burned in its flame.

8 Those who forsake the Lord will fall into it,
And among them it will be kindled;
And it will not be quenched.
It will set upon them like a lion,
And like a leopard it will mangle them.

9 See that you fence in your possessions with thorns;
Lock up your silver and gold. ¹

10 Make balances and scales for your words
And bar and bolt the door of your mouth. ²

11 Beware lest you make a slip with your tongue,
Lest you fall victim before him who lies in wait.

Loans and Gifts

He who shows mercy will lend to his neighbor,

And he who makes him strong with a helping hand
Keeps the commandments. ¹

12 Lend to your neighbor in the time of his need,
And when you borrow, repay your neighbor on time.

¹ Keep your word and be trustworthy with him,
And on every occasion you will find what you need.

Many men, supposing a loan is like a windfall,
Cause trouble to those who help them.

He will kiss the lender's hand until he receives the loan,
And to get his neighbor's money he will lower his voice;
But at the time of repayment, he will put it off,
And repay only with words of indifference,
And blame the times.

If the lender is firm with him, he will barely get back half the loan,
And will consider it as a windfall.

If the borrower does not repay anything,
He has robbed him of his money,
And needlessly made him an enemy.
The lender will then repay him with curses and insults,
And dishonor instead of glory.

Many men, not because they are evil,
Have refused to lend;
They have become afraid of being needlessly robbed.

However, be patient with a man of humble circumstances,
And do not keep him waiting for your alms.

Because of the commandment, help a poor man,
And in his need, do not turn him away empty.

Lose your money for the sake of a brother and friend;
Do not let it rust under a stone and be lost.

Lay up your treasure according to the commandments of the Most High,
For this will profit you more than gold.

Store alms in your storerooms,
And they will deliver you from all affliction.

More than a mighty shield and better than a strong spear
Almsgiving will fight for you against your enemy.

A good man will go surety for his neighbor,
But a man who has lost his sense of shame will forsake him.

Do not forget the kindness his surety has done for you,
For he has given his life for you.

A sinner will overthrow the good things of his surety,
And the ungrateful man will forsake his deliverer on purpose.
Suretyship has destroyed many prosperous men
And tossed them about like waves of the sea.
Suretyship has driven influential men from their homes,
And they have wandered among foreign nations.
The sinner who chances upon suretyship
And the man who pursues profit-taking will fall into judgment.
Help your neighbor according to your ability,
But watch out for yourself lest you fall.
The principle of life is water, bread, and clothing,
And a house that offers privacy.
The life of a poor man under a shelter of logs
Is better than great food in another man’s house.
Be content with little or much,
And you will not hear your guest insulted.
Going from house to house is a bad way to live,
And where you are visiting, you dare not open your mouth.
You will entertain guests and give drink to the ungrateful,
And besides this you will hear bitter words:
“Come here, stranger; set the table,
And if you have any food at hand, feed me.”
“Get out, stranger, somebody more important is here;
My brother has come as my guest;
I need my house.”
These things are hard for a sensible man to take:
The rebuke of a household and the abuse of a creditor.

Raising Children

The man who loves his son will chastise him often,
So he may rejoice in him in his later years.¹
He who disciplines his son will profit by him
And boast of him among acquaintances.
The man who teaches his son will make his enemy jealous
And will rejoice exceedingly over him among friends.
When his father dies, it is as though he is not dead,
For he left behind one like himself.
While he lived, he saw and rejoiced in him,
And when he died, he was not grieved.
Before his enemies, he left behind an avenger,
And to his friends one who repays favors.
He who spoils his son will bandage his wounds,
And at every cry his heart will ache.
A horse not broken turns out to be stubborn,
And a son allowed to run wild turns out to be headstrong.
Pamper a child, and he will frighten you;
Play with him, and he will grieve you.
Do not laugh with him, lest you suffer with him
And gnash your teeth over him at last.
Do not give him authority while he is young.
Bruise his ribs when he is young,
Lest he become stubborn and disobey you.
Discipline your son and work with him,
So he will not embarrass you with his behavior.

A poor man with good health is better off
Than a rich man afflicted in his body.
Health and vigor are better than all gold,
And a strong body than immense wealth.
There are no riches greater than health of body,
And there is no gladness above joy of heart.
Death is better than a wretched life,
And eternal rest is better than chronic sickness.
Good things set out before a closed mouth
Are like offerings of food put on a grave.
What use is an offering of fruit to an idol?
For it can neither eat nor smell.
So is a man afflicted by the Lord:
He sees with his eyes and groans,
Like a eunuch embracing a virgin.

Gladness of Heart

Do not give yourself over to sorrow,
And do not distress yourself deliberately.

Gladness of the heart is the life of man,
And rejoicing by a man lengthens his life.

Love your soul and comfort your heart,
And put sorrow far away from you;
For sorrow has destroyed many,
And there is no profit in it.

Envy and anger will shorten your days,
And worry will bring premature old age.

A man with a good and cheerful heart
Will pay attention to the food he eats.
Losing sleep over wealth wastes away the body,

And anxiety about wealth removes sleep.

Sleepless anxiety will drive away slumber,
And severe illness makes an end to sleep.

A rich man labors to gather money,
And when he rests he fills himself with his luxuries.

A poor man labors to make a meager living,
And when he rests he becomes needy.

He who loves gold will not be called righteous,
And he who pursues profit will be led astray by it.

Many are driven to calamity for the sake of gold,
And their destruction has met them face to face.

It is a stumbling block for those possessed by it,
And every senseless man will be trapped by it.

Blessed is a rich man who is found blameless
And does not chase after gold.

Who is he? And we shall call him blessed,
For he has worked wonders among his people.

Who has been tested by it and found perfect?
He has ground for boasting.

Who was able to transgress but did not transgress?
Who was able to commit evil but did not do it?

His good things will be strengthened,
And the assembly will talk of his almsgiving.

Are you seated at table with a great man?
Do not gluttonize, and do not say,
“How much food there is upon your table!”

Remember that a greedy eye is a vice.
What has been created worse than the eye?
Therefore it sheds tears on every face.

Do not stretch out your hand for everything you see,
And do not crowd another at the dish.†

Understand the things of your neighbor by your own,
And in every matter be considerate.

Eat what is set before you like a human being,
And do not devour your food, lest you be despised.†

Be the first to stop eating for the sake of discipline,
And do not be greedy, so as not to cause offense.

And if you are seated in a large group of people,
Do not reach out your hand before they do.

How small an amount is sufficient for a man with discipline!
And he does not gasp for breath on his bed.†

Healthy sleep depends on moderate eating,
And he rises early and in good spirits;
But the distress of sleeplessness, nausea, and indigestion
Are with the glutton.

If you are stuffed with food,
Get up in the middle of the meal and stop eating.

Listen to me, my child, and do not disregard me,
And you will find my words to be important.

In all your works be prepared,
And no sickness will overtake you.

Lips will bless a man generous with his food,
And their witness to his goodness is trustworthy.

A city will grumble against the man stingy with his food,
And their witness to his stinginess is accurate.

Do not get your courage from wine,
For wine has destroyed many men.†

As a furnace tests steel in the tempering process,
So wine tests hearts in the quarrels of the arrogant.

Wine is like life to men,
If you drink it in moderation.
What is life without wine?
For it was created to give gladness to men.

Wine drunk at the proper time and with temperance
Is joyfulness of heart and gladness of soul.
Drinking too much wine is bitterness of soul,
With irritation and occasion for stumbling and falling.
Drunkenness increases the anger of a senseless man to his own hurt,
Reducing his strength and adding to his wounds.
Do not rebuke your neighbor at a wine party,
And do not despise him when he is enjoying himself.
Do not speak a word of insult against him,
And do not afflict him by making demands of him.

Did they appoint you as leader of the banquet?

Do not exalt yourself.
Among them be as one of them.
Take care of them and only then be seated.

Then having fulfilled all your duties, take your place,
That you may make merry for their sake,
And receive a crown because of your orderly behavior.

Speak, O elder, for this is fitting for you to do so with accurate knowledge;
But do not interrupt the music.

Where there is entertainment, do not pour out talk,
And do not display your cleverness at the wrong time.

A concert of music at a banquet of wine
Is like a seal of ruby in a gold ornament.
A seal of emerald in a gold setting
Is the melody of music with delicious wine.

Speak, young man, if there is need of you,
But no more than twice, and only if you are asked repeatedly.

Be brief; say much in a few words.
Act like a man who knows, yet holds his tongue.

Among the great do not act as their equal,
And when another is speaking, do little talking.

Lightning flashes before thunder,
And favor goes before a modest man.
Rise to leave in good time, and do not lag behind.
Run home and do not be remiss.

Amuse yourself there, and do what you intend,

But do not sin by speaking arrogantly;

And for these things, bless Him who created you

And satisfies you with His good things.

Wise and Sinful Men

The man who fears the Lord will receive instruction,

And those who rise early will find His approval.

He who seeks the Law will be filled with it,

But the hypocrite will be made to stumble by it.

Those who fear the Lord will discover judgment,

And like the light they will kindle righteous deeds.

A sinful man will turn aside correction

And find a rationalization according to his will.

A man of counsel will not neglect thought,

But a strange and arrogant man does not tremble in fear.

Do nothing without counsel,

And when you have acted, do not regret it.

Do not walk a path filled with obstacles,

And do not trip over stony ground.

Do not put your trust in an unexplored way,

And keep watch because of your children.

In every work entrust your soul to the Lord,

For this is the keeping of the commandments.

He who believes in the Law heeds the commandments,

And he who trusts in the Lord will not suffer loss.

Evil will not befall the man who fears the Lord,

But in trial He will deliver him again and again.

A wise man will not hate the law,

But he who pretends to keep it is like a ship in a storm.

A man of understanding will trust in the law,

And to him the law is trustworthy because it is a divine revelation.

Prepare what to say and thus you will be heard.

Draw on your training and make your reply.
5 The heart of a fool resembles a wagon wheel,
And his reasoning is like a turning axle.²
6 A lusty stallion is like a mocking friend;
He impregnates everyone who sits under him.

Reflecting on Creation

² Why is one day better than another,
When all the light of a day in the year is from the sun?²
8 They were separated by the knowledge of the Lord,
And He changed the seasons and feasts.
8 Some days He exalted and sanctified,
And some days He made ordinary.
10 All men are from the ground,
For Adam was created from the earth.
12 Some days He blessed and exalted,
And some days He sanctified and drew near to Himself.
Some days He has cursed and humbled
And removed from their place.
13 All His ways are according to His good pleasure.
Like clay in a potter's hand,
Thus men are in the hand of Him who made them,
To render to them according to His judgment.²

Opposites

² Good is the opposite of evil, and life is the opposite of death.
In the same way, a sinner is the opposite of a godly man.²
² Look, therefore, upon all the works of the Most High:
They also come in pairs, one the opposite of the other.
² I kept the last watch like one gleaning after the harvest.²
² By the blessing of the Lord I arrived in time,
And like a grape-picker I filled my winepress.
² Observe well that I did not labor for myself alone,
But for all who seek instruction.
Hear me, you leaders of the people,
And you rulers of the assembly, listen to me.
Do not give authority over yourself while you are still living
To your son or your wife, nor to your brother or a friend;
And do not give your property to another,
Lest you change your mind and need to beg for it.
While you are still alive and there is breath in you,
Do not change places with anyone.
For it is better that your children should ask from you
Than that you should look to the hands of your sons.
Be outstanding in all your works;
Do not put a blemish on your reputation.
On the day when the days of your life are fulfilled,
At the time of your death, distribute the inheritance.

Relating to Servants.

Fodder, the rod, and a burden are for a donkey,
And bread, instruction, and work are for a servant.
Make a servant work, and you will find rest;
Leave his hands idle and he will seek freedom.
Yoke and strap will bend the neck,
And racks and tortures are for an evil servant.
Put him to work that he may not be idle,
For idleness teaches much evil.
Set him to the work appropriate for him;
And if he is not obedient, put heavy chains on his feet.
And do not act superior toward any flesh,
And do nothing without judgment.
If you own a servant, let him be as yourself,
For with your blood you bought him.
If you own a servant, treat him as a brother.
For you will need him as your own soul.
If you treat him badly and he runs away,
Discerning Dreams

Vain hopes and lying belong to a man without understanding,

And dreams give wing to senseless men.
Like him who grasps after shadows and chases the wind,
So is he who pays attention to dreams.
The vision of dreams is this against that,
The likeness of a face opposite a face.
What will be cleansed from an unclean thing?
And what will be true from a false thing?
Divinations, omens, and dreams are worthless;
And like a woman in the pains of childbirth,
The heart becomes visible.
Unless visions are sent from the Most High in a visitation,
Do not give your heart to them.
For dreams have deceived many,
And those who hope in them have fallen away.
Without such lying, the law will be fulfilled,
And wisdom is perfection in the mouth of the faithful.

Benefits of Travel

A man who has traveled about knows many things,
And a man with much experience will speak with understanding.
A man who has not been tested knows little,
But he who has traveled about increases his astuteness.
I have seen many things in my travels,
And my understanding is more than I can express in words.
I have frequently been in danger of death,
But I have been saved because of these experiences.

The Blessings of God

The spirit of those who fear the Lord will live,
For their hope is in Him who saves them.
He who fears the Lord will fear nothing,
And he will not be cowardly, for the Lord is his hope.

Blessed is the soul of a man who fears the Lord.

To whom does he look? And who is his support?

The eyes of the Lord are upon those who love Him.

He is a powerful protection and a strong support:

A shelter from the burning heat,

A shelter from the noonday sun,

A guard from stumbling,

And help from a fall.

He raises up the soul

And gives light to the eyes.

He gives healing, life, and blessing.

Unacceptable Offerings

If a man sacrifices by means of wrongdoing,

The offering is a mockery,

And the gifts of the lawless are not accepted.

The Most High is not pleased with the offerings of the ungodly,

And a man does not atone for his sins with a multitude of sacrifices.

He who offers a sacrifice from the property of the poor

Is like one who kills a son in the sight of his father.

The bread of the needy is the life of the poor.

He who deprives them of it is a man of bloodshed.

Whoever takes away his neighbor's livelihood murders him,

And whoever deprives a hired worker of his wages sheds his blood.

If one builds up while another tears down,

What do they profit other than toil?

If one prays while another curses,

Whose voice will the Lord hear?

If a man washes himself after touching a corpse,

Then touches it again,

What does he profit by his washing?

So it is with a man who fasts over his sins

And goes and does the same sins all over again.

Who will hear his prayer?
What does his humbling profit him?

Acceptable Offerings

The man who keeps the law will abound in offerings;

He who heeds the commandments sacrifices a peace offering.²

² He who returns a kindness offers fine wheat flour,

And he who does alms sacrifices a praise offering.²

² To forsake evil is pleasing to the Lord,

And to forsake wrongdoing is atonement.

² Do not appear before the Lord empty-handed,

For all these offerings are made because of the commandment.

² A righteous offering anoints the altar,

And its fragrance rises before the Most High.

² The sacrifice of a righteous man is acceptable,

And its remembrance shall not be forgotten.

² Glorify the Lord with your generosity,

And do not reduce the firstfruits of your hands.

² In every gift let your face be cheerful,

And sanctify your tithe with gladness.²

² Give to the Most High as He has given to you,

And give to Him with generosity, according to your windfall.

² For the Lord is He who repays,

And He will repay you sevenfold.²

God's Justice and Mercy

² Do not bribe Him, for He will not accept it;

And do not offer an unrighteous sacrifice.

² For the Lord is the judge,

And there is no partiality with Him.

² He will not show partiality to a poor man,

But He will hear the petition of him who is wronged.²

² He will not overlook the supplication of an orphan,

Nor a widow when she pours out her story.

² Do not the tears of a widow run down her cheeks

As she cries out against him who caused them?
He whose service is pleasing to the Lord
Will be accepted by Him,
And his prayer will reach to the clouds.

The prayer of a humble man passes through the clouds,
And he will not be comforted until it reaches the Lord;¹
And he will not withdraw it until the Most High visits him,
Provides justice for the righteous,
And executes judgment.

So the Lord will not delay,
Neither will He be slow to help them,¹
Until He crushes the loins of the unmerciful
And repays vengeance upon the nations,
Until He destroys the multitude of the insolent
And crushes the scepter of the unrighteous,
Until He renders to a man according to his practices
And the works of men according to their devices,
Until He judges the cause of His people
And brings them joy with His mercy.
Mercy is beautiful in the time of His affliction,
Like rain in the time of drought.¹

A Prayer for Israel

Have mercy on us, O Lord, the God of all, and look upon us,
And put Your fear on all the nations.¹
Raise Your hand against foreign nations
And let them see Your power.
As in us You have been sanctified before them,
So in them may You be made great before us.
Let them know You as we also have known You,
For there is no God but You, O Lord.
Renew Your signs and work fresh wonders;
Glorify Your hand and Your right arm.
Stir up Your anger and pour out Your wrath;
Drive away the adversary and destroy the enemy.
Hasten the time and remember Your oath,
And let people declare Your mighty works.†

Let him who survives be devoured in Your fiery wrath,
And may those who harm Your people meet destruction.‡

Crush the heads of the rulers of the enemies
Who say, “There is no one but us.”

Gather together all the tribes of Jacob,
And grant them their inheritance as from the beginning.¶

Have mercy upon Your people called by Your Name, O Lord—
Upon Israel, whom You have likened to Your firstborn son.

Have pity on the city of Your sanctuary,
Jerusalem, the place of Your rest.

Fill Zion with the celebration of Your divine virtue
And Your people with Your glory.¶

Give testimony to what You created in the beginning
And raise up the prophecies spoken in Your name.

Reward those who wait for You
And let Your prophets be found trustworthy.

Hear, O Lord, the prayer of Your suppliants,
According to the blessing of Aaron over Your people;
And all on earth will know
That You are the Lord, the God of the ages.¶

Using Discernment

The stomach eats any kind of food,
But some food is better than others.

As the palate tastes the flavor of game,
So an understanding heart detects lying words.

A crooked heart will cause grief,
But a man with great experience will pay him back.

A woman will accept any son,
But one daughter is better than another.¶

A beautiful woman gladdens a man's face
And surpasses his every desire.

If there is mercy and gentleness on her tongue,
Her husband is not like other men.
✧ He who gains a wife gets his best possession,
A helper like himself and a pillar of support.²
✧ Where there is no wall, the property will be plundered,
And where a man has no wife, he will wander around and groan.²
✧ Who will trust a well-equipped thief
Who skips from city to city?
✧ Who will trust a man who has no home
And lodges wherever night overtakes him?

Choosing Companions

Every friend will say, “I too am your friend,”

But sometimes a friend is a friend in name only.¹
² Is it not a grief to the death
When a companion and friend turns to hatred?
³ O evil reasoning! Why were you involved
To cover the land with deceit?
⁴ A companion delights in the gladness of a friend,
But in time of affliction, he will be against him.
⁵ A companion labors to help a friend for his stomach’s sake,
And in a time of battle he will take up the shield.
⁶ Do not forget a friend in your soul,
And do not be unmindful of him with your wealth.

Choosing Counselors

Every counselor extols his own counsel,
And some offer advice in their own interest.²
² Protect yourself from a counselor
And know beforehand what is his interest;
For he will take thought for himself
Lest he cast his vote against you
² And say to you, “Your path is good.”
Then he will stand aside to see what will happen to you.
² Do not consult with a man who looks at you suspiciously,
And hide your counsel from those who envy you.
Also, do not consult with a woman about her rival,
Nor with a coward about battle,
Nor with a merchant about exchange,
Nor with a buyer about selling,
Nor with a slanderer about gratitude,
Nor with an unmerciful man about generosity,
Nor with an idler about any work,
Nor with a seasonal hired hand about completing his work,
Nor with a lazy servant about a big job.
Pay no attention to these in any counsel.

Instead, persevere with a godly man
Who you know keeps the commandments,
Whose soul accords with your soul
And will share in your suffering if you fall.

Stand firm on the counsel of your heart,
For no one is more faithful to you than it.

For a man's soul sometimes tells him more
Than seven watchmen sitting high on a watchtower.

And in all matters, pray to the Most High
That He may direct your way in truth.

Wisdom, False and True

A word is the beginning of every work,
And counsel comes before every action.

Four types of things appear
As a clue to a change of heart:

Good and evil, life and death;
And it is the tongue that continually rules them.

There is an astute man who is a teacher of many,
But is useless to his own soul.

A man who devises words craftily will be hated.
This man will go hungry,
For grace was not given to him from the Lord,
Because he is destitute of all wisdom.

There is a man wise in his own soul,
And the fruits of his understanding are trustworthy when he speaks.

A wise man will instruct his own people,

And the fruits of his understanding are trustworthy.

A wise man shall be filled with blessing,

And all who see him will consider him blessed.

The life of a man is numbered by days,

But the days of Israel are without number.

The wise man will inherit trust among his people,

And his name will live forever.

Gluttony

My son, while you are still living, test your soul,

And see what is bad for it, and do not give in to that.

For not everything is profitable for everyone,

And not every soul enjoys every thing.

Do not be gluttonous for every dainty food,

And do not give yourself over to food.

For overeating will bring sickness,

And gluttony will lead to nausea.

Many have died because of gluttony,

But the careful man will prolong his life.

Honoring the Physician

Honor the physician with the honor due him,

And also according to your need of him,

For the Lord created him.

Healing comes from the Most High,

And he will receive a gift from the king.

The physician's skill will lift up his head,

And he shall be admired in the presence of the great.

The Lord created medicines from the earth,

And a sensible man will not loathe them.

Is not water made sweet by wood

That its strength might be known?

And He gave skill to men
That He might be glorified in His wonders.†

2 By them He heals and takes away pain,
A druggist making a compound of them.

3 God's works are never finished,
And from Him health is upon the face of the earth.

2 My son, do not be negligent when you are sick,
But pray to the Lord and He will heal you.‡

2 Depart from transgression and direct your hands aright,
And cleanse your heart from every sin.

2 Offer a sweet-smelling sacrifice
And a memorial of the finest wheat flour;
And pour oil on your offering, as if you are soon to die.

2 And keep in touch with your physician,
For the Lord created him;
And do not let him leave you,
For you need him.

2 There is a time when success is also in their hands,
2 For they will pray to the Lord
To give them success in bringing relief and healing,
For the sake of preserving your life.†

2 He who sins before the One who made him,
May he fall into the hands of a physician.

Mourning the Departed

2 My son, let your tears fall for the dead,
And as one suffering grievously, begin the lament.
With the honor due him, wrap his body
And take care of his burial.†

2 Weep bitterly and lament fervently;
Do your mourning according to what he deserves
For a day or two to avoid slander;
Then be comforted for your grief.
2 For grief is a cause of death,
And a grief-stricken heart will sap your strength.
2 Grief also abides in misery,
And the life of a poor man weighs down his heart.

Do not give your heart to grief; Drive it away, remembering the end of life.

Do not forget, for there is no coming back; And you cannot help the dead man by grieving, But will only injure yourself.

Remember my end, since yours is also like it:

“Mine yesterday, yours today.”

When the dead man is at rest, let his remembrance cease, And be comforted for him in the exodus of his spirit.

Gratitude for Laborers

The wisdom of a scribe depends on his opportunity for quiet, For when he has little business, he will be made wise. How will he who handles the plow be made wise? For he boasts in the shaft of the goad, And he drives oxen and is occupied with their labors, And his talk is about young bulls. His heart is set on plowing furrows, And he keeps watch to feed his heifers. The same is true for every craftsman and architect Who works by night as well as by day— Those who engrave the signets of seals— He is diligent to make great variety; His heart set on creating a lifelike image And keeping watch to perfect his work. So too is the blacksmith sitting near the anvil, Examining closely his iron works, The breath of the fire melting his flesh As he struggles with the heat of the furnace. He inclines his ear to the sound of the hammer, And his eyes are focused on the likeness of the object. He sets his heart on the completion of his works And keeps watch to perfect its detail. The potter as well, sitting by his work
And turning the potter's wheel with his feet,
He is always careful about the quality of his work
And also the quantity of his output.

With his arm he molds the clay,
And with his feet he curves it.

His heart is set on finishing the glazing,
And he is careful to clean the furnace.

All these trust in their hands,
And each is skilled in his work.

Without them a city will not be livable,
Nor will anyone sojourn or live there.

Yet they will not be sought out for the council of the people,
And they will not gain prominence in the assembly.

They do not sit in the judge's seat,
Nor will they understand the sentence of judgment.

They cannot give instruction in discipline or judgment,
Nor will they be found using parables;

But they will keep the fabric of the world stable,
And their prayer is in the practice of their craft.

How different is the man who devotes himself to the study of the law of the Most High.

He will seek out the wisdom of all the ancients
And be occupied with their prophecies. ²

² He will preserve the discourse of notable men
And penetrate the subtleties of parables.

³ He will seek out the hidden meanings of proverbs
And be engaged in the riddles of parables.

⁴ He will serve in the midst of great men
And will appear before rulers.

He will travel through the land of foreign nations
And test the good and evil among men. ²

⁵ He will give his heart to rising early
Before the Lord who created him,
And will make supplication to the Most High;
And he will open his mouth in prayer
And make supplication for his sins.

6 If the great Lord wills,
He will be filled with the Spirit of understanding.
He will pour forth words of His wisdom,
And in prayer he will give thanks to the Lord.

2 He will direct his counsel and knowledge aright,
And he will reflect on His hidden things.

8 He will reveal instruction in his teaching
And boast in the law of the Lord’s covenant.

2 Many will praise his understanding,
And it will never be blotted out.
His memory will not disappear,
And his name will live through all generations.

10 Nations will proclaim his wisdom,
And the assembly will proclaim his praise.

11 If he lives long, he will leave a name greater than a thousand,
And if he goes to his rest, his work is completed.

Praise for God's Works

12 I have yet more to tell, and I will describe it in detail;
For I am filled like a full moon.

13 So hear me, O holy sons,
And bud forth like a rose
Springing up by a running stream.

14 Like frankincense, emit a sweet fragrance,
And blossom forth like a lily.
Send forth a fragrance
And sing a hymn of praise.
Bless the Lord in all His works;

15 Ascribe majesty to His name
And give thanks to Him in praise,
With songs on your lips and with lyres;
And thus you shall say in thanksgiving:

“All things are the works of the Lord,
For they are exceedingly good.
And every command shall be in His appointed time.”

No one say, “What is this? Why is that?”
For every question will be answered in His appointed time.

By His word the waters stood as a heap
And the reservoirs of the waters by the word of His mouth.

By His command all His good pleasure is done,
And no one will diminish His salvation.

The works of all flesh are before Him,
And nothing can be hidden from His eyes.

From age to age He looks upon them,
And nothing is marvelous to Him.

No one can say, “What is this? Why is that?”
For all things were created for their uses.

His blessing covers the dry land like a river
And drenches it like a flood.

As He turns fresh waters into salt,
So the heathen will inherit His wrath.

As His ways are straight to the holy,
So they are an occasion of stumbling to the lawless.

As from the beginning good things were created for the good,
So evil things for sinners.

The basic needs of a man's life
Are water, fire, iron, salt, and wheat flour,
And milk, honey, the blood of the grape, olive oil, and clothing.

As all these things are good for the godly,
So they turn into evil for sinners.

There are spirits created for vengeance,
And in His anger they strengthen their scourges.
In the time of consummation they will pour out their might
And appease the wrath of Him who made them.

Fire, hail, famine, and death:
All these things are created for vengeance.
The teeth of wild animals, scorpions and snakes,
And the avenging sword that drives the ungodly to destruction—
They shall be glad at His commandment
And be prepared for His service on earth;
And when their times come, they will not transgress His word.
Therefore from the beginning I was determined and resolved,
And left this in writing:
All the works of the Lord are good,
And He will supply every need in its hour.
No one can say, "This is worse than that,"
For all things will be well pleasing in their time.
So now sing praise with all your heart and voice,
And bless the name of the Lord.

Life's Afflictions

Hard work was created for every man

And a heavy yoke for the sons of Adam,
From the day they come forth from their mother's womb
until the day they return to the mother of all.
The conception of things to come and the day of death
Trouble their thoughts and cause fear of heart—
From the one sitting on a glorious throne
To the one humbled in earth and ashes,
From the one wearing purple and a crown
To the one clothed in burlap,
There is anger, envy, trouble, and unrest,
And fear of death and fury and strife.
When it is time for rest on his bed,
His night of sleep alters his knowledge.
He gets little or no rest, and afterward in his sleep,
As though on a day of watch,
He is troubled by the vision of his heart,
Like one who escapes from the face of battle.
In the exact time of need he awakes
And is amazed there was nothing to fear.

8 With all flesh, from man to animal,
And upon sinners seven times more, there will be:

9 Death and bloodshed; strife and the sword;
Distresses and famine; and ruin and affliction.

10 All these things were created for the lawless,
And because of them the flood came.

11 Whatever comes from the earth returns to the earth,
And whatever comes from the waters returns to the sea.

The Wise and Unwise

12 Every bribe and wrongdoing will be blotted out,
But faithfulness shall stand forever:†

13 The wealth of the unrighteous will dry up like a river
And sound forth and cease like great thunder in the rain.

14 A generous man will rejoice,
But transgressors will come to ruin.

15 The offspring of the ungodly shall not grow branches,
For they are unclean roots on a hard rock.

16 Weeds growing by any water or riverbank
Will be plucked out before any grass.

17 Grace is like a paradise in blessing,
And almsgiving endures forever.

18 The life of the self-reliant and the worker will be sweet,
But he who finds a treasure is better off than both.

19 Having children and building a city establish a name,
But a blameless wife is accounted better than both.†

20 Wine and music gladden the heart,
But love of wisdom is better than both.

21 The flute and harp give sweet melody,
But a pleasant tongue is better than both.

22 The eye will desire grace and beauty,
But the green shoots of grain are better than both.

23 A friend and companion meet at an appointed time,
But a wife meeting with her husband is better than both.
Brothers and help are for a time of affliction,
But almsgiving rescues better than both.
Gold and silver will make the foot secure,
But counsel is esteemed more valuable than both.
Wealth and strength will lift up the heart,
But the fear of the Lord is better than both.
There is no loss in the fear of the Lord,
And with it there is no need to seek for help.
The fear of the Lord is like a paradise of blessing
And covers a man better than any glory.
My child, do not live the life of a beggar,
For it is better to die than to beg.
When a man looks at another's table,
He is living an irrational life.
For he will pollute his soul with another's food.
But a rational and educated man will guard himself against that.
Begging will be sweet in the mouth of a shameless man,
But in his belly a fire will be kindled.

Dealing with Death

O death, how bitter is the memory of you
To a man at peace with his possessions,
To a man without distractions and prosperous in everything,
And still strong enough to enjoy his food.
O death, your judgment is good
To the man in need and failing in strength
In his extreme old age, distracted by everything,
And stubborn and short on patience.
Do not fear the judgment of death;
Remember those before you and after you.
This is the judgment from the Lord to all flesh,
And how can you reject the good pleasure of the Most High?
Whether you lived ten or a hundred or a thousand years,
There is in Hades no inquiry into your life.
The children of sinners are loathsome children,
And they frequent the dwellings of the ungodly.

The inheritance of the children of sinners will perish,
And with their seed the disgrace will continue.

The children will blame their godless father,
For because of him they will be denounced.

Woe to you, the ungodly men
Who forsook the law of God Most High.

And when you are born, you will be born to a curse,
And when you die, your portion will be a curse.

Whatever is from the earth shall return to the earth,
So the ungodly go from a curse to destruction.

The mourning of men is about their bodies,
But the evil name of sinners will be blotted out.

Have regard for your name,
For it will remain with you longer
Than a thousand great chests of gold.

The days of a good life are numbered,
But a good name will remain forever.

Observe instruction and live in peace, my children,
But hidden wisdom and invisible treasure—
What benefit are these?

A man who hides his foolishness
Is better than a man who hides his wisdom.

Shame, Proper and Improper

Therefore, be ashamed on the basis of my word,
For it is not good to protect every kind of shame,
And not everything is highly esteemed by all with confidence.

Be ashamed of fornication before father or mother;
Of a lie before your leader or ruler;
Of an offense before a judge or ruler;
Of lawlessness before the assembly of the people;
Of wrongdoing before your partner or friend;
Of theft in the place where you dwell.
Be ashamed before the truth of God and His covenant,
And of bad manners at the table;
Of contemptuous behavior in receiving and giving;
Of silence before those who greet you;
Of looking at a prostitute;
Of rejecting the appeal of a kinsman;
Of carrying off someone's portion or gift,
And of staring at another man's wife;
Of meddling with his maidservant—
And do not come near her bed.
Be ashamed of insulting words before friends,
And do not be insulting after making a gift;
Of repeating and telling what you hear
And revealing secrets.
So be truly modest
And find favor before every man.

Do not be ashamed of the following things,
And do not let partiality lead you to sin:
Of the Law and covenant of the Most High,
And of a judgment to acquit an ungodly man;
Of keeping accounts with a partner or a traveling companion,
And of dividing an inheritance among friends;
Of accurate scales and balances,
And the acquisition of much or little;
Of profit from business with merchants,
And of much discipline of children,
And of making the sides of an evil servant bleed.
Where there is an evil wife, a seal is good;
And where there are many hands, lock things up.
Whatever you deliver, do it by number or weight;
And put in writing everything you give or receive.
Do not be ashamed of the instructing of the unwise and foolish,
Or of the extremely old man who passes judgment on the young;
Then you will be truly instructed
And approved before all men.
A daughter keeps her father secretly wakeful,
For worry over her takes away his sleep;
Lest in her youth she passes the time to marry,
And lest in her marriage she be hated;
In her virginity lest she be defiled
Or become pregnant in her father's house;
Having a husband, lest she be unfaithful,
Or though married, lest she be childless.
Keep a strict watch over a headstrong daughter,
Lest she make you a laughingstock to your enemies,
A source of gossip in the city
And notorious among the people,
And a disgrace to you before the great multitude.
Do not look upon anyone for beauty
And do not sit in the midst of women.
For a moth comes out of garments,
And the evil of a woman comes from a woman.
The evil of a man is better
Than a woman who does what is good,
Yet brings shame and disgrace.

I shall now remember the works of the Lord,
And by the words of the Lord
I shall describe His works that I see.
The sun gives light and looks down on everything,
And its work is full of the Lord's glory.
The Lord did not enable His saints
To describe all His wonders,
Which the Lord Almighty established
That the universe might be established in His glory.
He traced out the abyss and the human heart
And understands their craftiness;
For the Most High possesses all knowledge
And sees into the signs of an age.\(^1\)
\footnote{1}{He proclaims what has been and what shall be}
And reveals the footstep of hidden things.

No thought escapes Him;
Not even one word is hidden from Him.\(^2\)
\footnote{2}{He has adorned the mighty works of His wisdom, For He is from everlasting to everlasting; Nothing can be added or taken away, And He needs no one to be His counselor.}

How precious are all His works,
And how sparkling to behold.

All these things live and endure forever, for every need,
And all are obedient.

All things are in pairs, one opposite the other,
And He made nothing incomplete.

One thing strengthens the good of another,
And who can have enough of beholding His glory?

\[\text{Sun, Moon, and Stars}\]

The exultation of the heavenly heights

Is the firmament of purity,
The form of heaven with the vision of glory.\(^1\)
\footnote{1}{The sun, when it appears, making proclamation as it goes forth, Is a wonderful instrument, a work of the Most High.}

At noon it dries up the land,
And who can endure its burning heat?

A man kindling a furnace works in burning heat,
But the sun burns the mountains three times as much,
Breathing out fiery steams,
And sending forth shining beams, it dims the eyes.

Great is the Lord who made it,
And by His command it hastens its journey.

He also made the moon to serve in its season
As a declaration of times and an everlasting sign.

2 From the moon comes the sign of a feast,
A light that wanes as it completes its course.

3 The month is named according to the moon,
Being increased wondrously in its phases,
A vessel encamped on high,
Shining in the firmament of heaven.

2 The glory of the stars is the beauty of heaven,
A world shining in the high places of the Lord.

Ξ By the words of the Holy One they stand according to His judgment
And do not grow weary in their watches.

The Majestic Creation

Ξ Behold the rainbow and bless Him who made it,
Exceedingly beautiful in its brightness.²

Ξ It circles heaven with its glorious arc,
And the hands of the Most High laid out its course.

Ξ By His command He makes the snow to fall,
And speeds the lightning by His judgment.†

Ξ Therefore the storehouses are opened
And the clouds fly forth like birds.

Ξ By His majesty He condenses the clouds,
And the hailstones break into pieces.

Ξ At His appearing the mountains are shaken,
And by His will the south wind blows.

Ξ The voice of His thunder makes the earth tremble,
And so do the hurricane from the north and the whirlwind as well.

Ξ He sprinkles the snow like birds flying down,
And its descent is like grasshoppers alighting.
The eye marvels at the beauty of its whiteness,
And the heart is astonished at its raining down.

Ξ He pours the hoarfrost like salt upon the earth,
And when it freezes, it becomes like pointed thorns.
Ξ A cold north wind blows
And ice freezes on the water,
And forms on every pool of water,
And clothes the water like armor.

‡ He consumes the mountains and burns up the desert,
And withers the green herbage like fire.

‡ A mist quickly heals it all,
And falling dew brings refreshment from the heat.

‡ By His reasoning He quieted the great deep
And planted islands in it.

‡ Those who sail the sea recount its dangers,
And we are amazed at the reports coming to our ears.

‡ For therein are the incredible and wondrous works,
A diversity of many living things,
And a created order of huge sea creatures.

‡ Because of Him His messenger has a prosperous journey,
And by His word all things are held together.

How Do We Praise Him?

‡ We will say many things and not reach the end,
But the sum of our words is seen in this: “He is the all.”

‡ How shall we ever be able to adequately praise Him?
For He is greater than all His works.

‡ Fearful is the Lord and exceedingly great,
And wondrous is His power.

‡ Glorify the Lord and exalt Him as much as you are able,
For He will surpass even that.

And when you exalt Him, put forth all your strength;
Do not grow weary, for you cannot exalt Him enough.

‡ Who has seen Him and will describe Him?
And who can magnify Him as He truly is?

‡ There are yet many hidden things greater than these,
For we have seen but few of His works.

‡ For the Lord made all things
And gives wisdom to the godly.

In Praise of Honored Men
Let us now praise honored men and our fathers.†

2 The Lord established His great glory
And majesty from the beginning through them.
3 There were those who ruled in their kingdoms
And were men renowned for their power,
Giving counsel through their understanding
And proclaiming prophecies.‡
4 There were leaders of the people by their counsels
And understanding of learning for the people,
Wise in their words of instruction.
5 There were composers of music,
And they set forth verse in writing,
6 Wealthy men with great resources,
Living in peace in their dwelling-places.
7 All these were honored in their generations
And in their days were a source of boasting.
8 There were those who left behind a name
That men might declare their praises.
9 There were also those whom no one remembers,
Who perished as if they never existed;
And they died as if they had not been born,
And so have their children after them.
10 Nevertheless, these were men of mercy,
Whose righteousness lives with God.
11 The good they did remains with their seed,
And their inheritance with their children's children.
12 Their seed stands with the covenants,
And their children as well for their sake.
13 Their seed shall remain forever,
And their glory will not be blotted out.
14 Their bodies were buried in peace,
And their name lives to all generations.
15 Peoples will tell of their wisdom,
And the assembly will proclaim their praise.
Enoch pleased the Lord and was translated
As an example of repentance for all generations.

Noah was found perfect
And was righteous in the time of wrath,
In which he was rescued in exchange.
Therefore a remnant was left on the earth
When the flood came.¹
Everlasting covenants were made with him
That all flesh would not be wiped away again by a flood.

Abraham was a great father of many nations,
And no one is found like him in glory.
He kept the law of the Most High,
Who made a covenant with him.
He established a covenant in his flesh,
And he was found faithful in testing.
Therefore He affirmed by an oath
That nations would be blessed in his seed;
And He would multiply him like the dust of the earth,
And exalt his seed like the stars in number,
And cause them to inherit from sea unto sea,
And from the River to the ends of the earth.²
And with Isaac He established the same assurance,
For the sake of Abraham his father.
A blessing for all men and the covenant He made
Rest upon the head of Jacob.
He acknowledged him with His blessings
And gave him an inheritance.
Then He divided his portions among twelve tribes.

Moses
He brought from him a man of mercy

Who found favor in the eyes of all flesh,
Beloved by God and man,
Moses, whose remembrance is blessed.

He made him equal in glory to the saints
And magnified him in the fears of his enemies.
With his words he caused signs to cease,
And the Lord honored him in the presence of kings.

He gave him commands for His people
And showed him His glory.

He sanctified him because of his faithfulness and gentleness
And chose him out of all flesh.

He caused him to hear His voice,
Then led him into the darkness
And gave him the commandments face to face:
The law of life and knowledge,
To teach Jacob His covenant
And His judgments to Israel.

Aaron

He exalted Aaron, a holy man like himself,
His brother from the tribe of Levi.

He established an everlasting covenant with him
And gave him the priesthood of the people.
He blessed him with orderly behavior
And covered him with an adornment of glory.

He clothed him with the consummation of boasting
And confirmed him with instruments of strength:
The linen breeches, the long robe, and the ephod.

And He encircled him with tassels,
With many golden bells all around,
To sound their ring at his steps,
Making their ringing sound
As he walked in the temple,
A reminder for the children of his people.

² With a holy garment, with gold and hyacinth
And purple cloth with embroidered work,
With the oracle of judgment, the Urim and Thummim,
With woven scarlet by the work of an artisan,
² With entwined scarlet, the work of a skilled craftsman,
With precious stones engraved like a seal
In a setting of gold, in a cut stone, a jeweler's work,
With a memorial in engraved letters,
According to the number of the tribes of Israel.
² He set a golden crown over the priestly turban,
A figure of the holy seal, a distinction of honor,
The work of an expert,
Things desirable to the eyes, richly adorned!
² There was never so much beauty before his time.
No outsider was ever clothed in these garments,
Only his sons and his offspring perpetually.
² His sacrifices shall be a whole burnt offering
Perpetually, twice every day.
² Moses ordained him and anointed him with holy oil.
It was an eternal covenant for him
And for his seed forever,
To minister to the Lord and serve as priest;
To bless His people in His name.
² He chose him from all the living
To offer sacrifices to the Lord,
Incense and sweet-smelling offerings as a remembrance
To make atonement for Your people.
² He gave him authority with His commandments
In covenants of judgments,
To teach Jacob the testimonies
And to enlighten Israel in His law.
² Outsiders conspired against him
And were jealous of him in the desert,
The men who gathered with Dothan and Abiram,
And even the company of Korah with anger and wrath.

The Lord saw and was not pleased,

And they were brought to an end by the anger of His wrath.

He performed wonders against them

To consume them in His flaming fire.

He also brought Aaron glory

And gave him an inheritance.

He divided the firstfruits for him;

He prepared bread in abundance from the firstfruits.

For they will eat the sacrifices to the Lord,

Which He gave to him and to his seed.

But in the land of the people

He will have no inheritance,

And there is no portion for him among the people;

For the Lord Himself is his portion and his inheritance.

Phineas

Then Phineas the son of Eleazar is the third in glory,

When he showed zeal in the fear of the Lord;

And he stood fast when the people turned away,

By the goodness of the eagerness of his soul,

And he made atonement for Israel.

Therefore He established a covenant of peace with him,

To be in charge of the sanctuary

And leader of his people,

That the priesthood might be with him and his seed forever.

A covenant was also established with David,

The son of Jesse from the tribe of Judah.

The heritage of the king is from son to son only,

And the heritage of Aaron is for his seed.

May He give you wisdom in your heart

To judge His people in righteousness,

That their good things might not disappear,

And their glory throughout their generations.

Joshua and Caleb
Mighty in battle was Joshua the son of Nun

And successor to Moses in prophecies.

He became, in accordance with his name,

A great savior of God's chosen ones,

To punish the enemies who rose up against them

That he might give Israel its inheritance.

2 How glorious he was when he lifted up his hands
And stretched out his sword against the cities.

3 Who stood so firm before him?
For he led the wars for the Lord.

4 Was not the sun held back by his hand,
And one day become as two?

5 He called upon the Most High, the Lord,
When enemies oppressed him from all sides.

Then the great Lord answered him
With hailstones of mighty power.

6 He shattered that nation with war,
And at the descent of Beth Horon
He destroyed his opponents,

So the nations might know his full armor,

That he fought his battle in the sight of the Lord.

7 For indeed he followed behind the Lord.
Even in the days of Moses he showed mercy,
He and Caleb, the son of Jephunneh:
They withstand the assembly
To prevent the people from sinning
And to stop their evil murmuring.

8 Indeed, these two alone were preserved
From the six hundred thousand on foot,
To lead them into an inheritance,
Into a land flowing with milk and honey.

9 The Lord gave Caleb strength
And remained with him until old age;
For he went up to the hill country,
And his seed took it as an inheritance,

So all the children of Israel
Might know that it is good to follow the Lord.

The Judges

The judges also, each by his name,
Those whose heart did not fall into idolatry,
And whoever did not turn away from the Lord—
May their memory be blessed!
May their bones revive from their place,
And may the name of those honored live again in their sons!

Samuel

The prophet of the Lord, Samuel, beloved by his Lord,
Established a kingdom and anointed rulers for his people.
He judged the assembly by the law of the Lord,
And the Lord watched over Jacob.
By his faithfulness he proved to be a true prophet,
And by his words he was known to be faithful in vision.
Thus he called upon the Lord, the Mighty One,
When enemies troubled him on every side,
And when he offered a young lamb.
Then the Lord thundered from heaven
And with a great sound made His voice heard.
He destroyed the leaders of the Tyrians
And all the rulers of the Philistines.
And before the time of his sleep in perpetuity,
Samuel called men to witness
Before the Lord and His anointed:
“I have not taken any man's possessions,
Even to my sandals.”
Indeed, no man brought any charges against him.
Even after he fell asleep, he prophesied
And showed the king his end,
And raised up his voice out of the earth
Then after this Nathan rose up to prophesy in the days of David.

As the fat was divided from the peace offering,
So David was separated from the sons of Israel.

He played with lions as with young goats,
And with bears as with lambs of sheep.

Did he not slay a giant in his youth,
And remove the disgrace from the people
When he took in his hand a stone for a sling
And struck down the arrogance of Goliath?

For he called upon the Lord Most High,
And strength was given to his right hand
To defeat the mighty man in battle,
To exalt the power of his people.

So for his tens of thousands they glorified him
And praised him for the blessings of the Lord
when they brought him a diadem of glory.

For he destroyed his enemies all around,
Reduced to nothing his enemies the Philistines,
And crushed their power to this very day.

In his every work, he gave thanks with a word of praise
To the Holy One, the Most High;
And he sang a hymn with all his heart
And loved his Maker.

He placed psalm-singers before the altar
To make sweet melody with their voices.

He gave dignity to the feasts
And set in order the appointed times throughout the year
For them to praise His holy name,
And for the sanctuary to resound from early morning.

The Lord took away his sins,
Exalted his power forever,
And gave him a covenant of kings
And a throne of glory in Israel.

Solomon and His Successors

2 After him there arose his wise son,
Who lodged in a broad space because of him.
2 For Solomon reigned in days of peace,
To whom God gave rest on every side
That he might establish a house for His name
And prepare a sanctuary to last forever.
2 How wise you were in your youth,
And filled with understanding like a river.
3 Your soul covered the earth,
And you were filled with the parables of riddles.
3 Your name was known to islands far away,
And you were loved for your peace
3 And for your songs, proverbs, and parables;
Nations marveled at you because of your interpretations.
3 In the name of the Lord God,
Who is called the God of Israel,
You collected gold like tin
And multiplied silver like lead.
3 But you lay down beside women
And were enslaved by your body.
3 You brought disgrace on your honor
And defiled your seed
So as to bring wrath upon your children;
And they were pierced by your lack of good sense.
3 Thus one kingdom became two,
For out of Ephraim there began a disobedient kingdom.
3 But the Lord did not abandon His mercy
Nor corrupt any of His words.
Neither did He wipe away the descendants of His chosen one,
Nor did He remove the seed of the one who loved Him.
He gave a remnant to Jacob,
And to David a root from his stock.

When Solomon rested with his fathers,
He left behind him one of his sons,
Lacking in good sense and understanding,
Rehoboam, who turned away the people by his counsel.

There was also Jeroboam, the son of Nebat,
Who caused Israel to sin
And led Ephraim on the road to sin.
Then their sins were multiplied exceedingly
So as to remove them from their land.

They sought every wickedness
Until punishment came upon them.

Then Elijah the prophet rose up like fire,
And his word burned like a lamp.

He brought a famine upon them,
And in his zeal he reduced them in number.

By the word of the Lord he shut up heaven,
And also three times he brought down fire.

So by your wonders you were honored, O Elijah,
And who can boast like you?

You raised the dead from death
And from Hades by the word of the Most High.

You brought down kings to destruction,
And from their bed, those who had been honored.

You heard rebuke at Sinai,
And at Horeb the judgments of punishment.

You anointed kings for retribution
And prophets to serve after you.

You were taken up in a fiery whirlwind,
In a chariot of flaming horses.

It is written that you will come at the proper time with rebukes
To calm the wrath of God before it breaks forth in fury,
To turn the heart of the father to the son,
And to restore the tribes of Jacob.

Blessed are those who saw you
And who fell asleep with love,
For indeed we will surely live.

Elisha

Elijah was covered by the whirlwind,
And Elisha was filled with his spirit.
And in his days he trembled before no ruler,
And no one oppressed him.

No word could overcome him,
And after death his body prophesied.

As in his life he did wonders,
So even in death his works were amazing.

For all these things the people did not repent,
Nor they did turn away from their sins
Until their land was plundered;
Then they were scattered over all the earth.
But a people few in number were left
And a ruler in the house of David.
Some of them did what was virtuous,
But some multiplied sins.

Hezekiah and Isaiah

Hezekiah fortified his city
And brought water into its midst.
He dug through the hard rock with iron
And constructed cisterns for the water.
In his days, Sennacherib came up
And sent out the Rabshakeh, and he retreated.
Then he lifted up his hand against Zion
And boasted in his arrogance.
So their hearts and hands were shaken,
And they suffered pain like women giving birth.

Then they called upon the merciful Lord,
Stretching out their hands toward Him.
Thus the Holy One quickly heard them from heaven
And rescued them by the hand of Isaiah.

He struck the camp of the Assyrians,
And his angel destroyed them.

For Hezekiah did what was pleasing to the Lord
And grew strong in the ways of David his father,
Which Isaiah the prophet commanded,
The one great and faithful in his vision.

In his days the sun moved backward
And lengthened the life of the king.†

With a great spirit he saw the last things
And encouraged those who mourned in Zion.

He showed what was to come to the end of time,
And the hidden things before they came to pass.†

Josiah and Jeremiah

The remembrance of Josiah is like the composition of incense

Prepared by the work of the perfumer.
In every mouth it is sweet like honey
And like the music at a banquet with wine.

He led in the conversion of the people,
And he removed the abominations of lawlessness.

He directed his heart to the Lord,
And in days of lawlessness he strengthened godliness.

Except for David, Hezekiah, and Josiah,
All offended continually,
For they forsook the law of the Most High.
The kings of Judah failed,

For they gave their power to others
And their glory to a foreign nation.

They set fire to the chosen city of the sanctuary
And desolated her streets

2 According to the word of Jeremiah;

For they did him evil,

He who was sanctified as a prophet while still inside his mother,

To root out, to afflict, and to destroy,

And likewise to build and to plant.

Ezekiel and the Twelve Prophets

8 Ezekiel himself saw a vision of glory,

Which the Lord showed him on a chariot of cherubim.

2 For He remembered his enemies with a thunderstorm

And did good to those who directed their ways aright.

8 May He indeed revive the bones

Of the twelve prophets from their place.

For they encouraged the people of Jacob

And redeemed them with steadfast hope.

Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah

8 How shall we magnify Zerubbabel?

He was surely like a seal upon the right hand,

8 And so was Jeshua the son of Jozadak,

Who in their days built the house

And raised up a holy temple to the Lord,

One prepared unto eternal glory.

8 There is the lasting memory of Nehemiah,

Who raised for us the walls that had fallen;

And he established gates and locks

And raised again our home sites.

Others of Honor

8 No one like Enoch was created upon the earth,

For he himself was taken up from the earth.

8 Neither has a man like Joseph been born,

The leader of his brothers and the support of his people;

And they watched over his bones.

8 Shem and Seth were honored among men,
Simon, Son of Onias

There was Simon, the high priest and son of Onias,

Who repaired the house during his life
And strengthened the temple in his days. 2
2 He also laid the foundation of the double high wall,
The fortified wall surrounding the temple.
2 In his days the cistern for the waters was dug,
A reservoir like a sea in circumference.
4 He was concerned about how to save his people from ruin,
And he strengthened the city to withstand siege. 2

The Day of Atonement

5 So was he honored when the people gathered round
As he came out from behind the veil! 2
6 Like the morning star in the midst of the clouds,
Like the moon when it is full;
7 Like the sun shining upon the temple of the Most High,
And like the rainbow shining in clouds of glory;
8 Like the bloom of the rose in the days of firstfruits,
Like lilies by a spring of water,
Like a sprig of frankincense in the summer;
9 Like fire and incense in the censer,
Like a solid gold vessel decorated with every precious stone;
10 Like an olive tree sprouting fresh fruit,
And like a cypress tree rising into the clouds.
11 When he took up a robe of honor
And was clothed with the perfection of boasting
In his ascent to the holy altar,
He glorified the court of the sanctuary.
12 When he received the portion from the hands of the priests
While standing by the hearth of the altar,
A crown of brethren surrounding him,
He was like a sapling of cedar in Lebanon;
And they encircled him like the trunks of palm trees,

All the sons of Aaron in their glory,

And the offering to the Lord in their hands

Before all the assembly of Israel.

Finishing the services at the altars

And arranging the offering to the Most High, the Almighty,

He stretched out his hand to the cup

And poured a libation of the blood of the grapes.

He poured it out on the foundation of the altar,

A fragrant scent to the King of all, the Most High.

Then the sons of Aaron cried out,

Sounding out the trumpets of hammered work,

A great noise to be heard

As a remembrance before the Most High.

Then all the people hastened in common

And fell with their faces on the ground

To worship their Lord, the Almighty God, the Most High.

The singers also praised Him with their voices,

And their song was sweetened with a variety of sounds.

The people also prayed to the Lord Most High,

In prayer before the Merciful One,

Until the order of the Lord was ended

And they finished His liturgy.

Then going down he lifted up his hands

Over the entire assembly of the children of Israel,

And to boast in His name.

Then they bowed down in worship a second time

To receive the blessing from the Most High.

And now bless the God of all,

Who does great things in every way,

Who exalts our days from our birth

And deals with us according to His mercy.

May He give us gladness of heart,
And may there be peace in our days,
In Israel as in the days of old.
May He entrust with us His mercy,
And let Him redeem us in our days.

Author's Summary

With two nations my soul is angered,
And the third is not a nation:
Those who reside on the mountain of Samaria and the Philistines,
And the foolish people who dwell in Shechem.
Jesus, son of Sirach, son of Eleazar the Jerusalemite,
Who poured wisdom forth in this book,
I inscribed instruction in understanding and knowledge.
Blessed is he who will conduct himself by these,
For by putting these things in his heart
He will be made wise.
For if he does these things,
He will grow strong in all things,
For the light of the Lord is his path.

A Psalm of Thanks

I will give thanks to You, O Lord and King,
And I will praise You as my God and Savior.
I give thanks to Your name.
For You have been my protector and helper,
And You redeemed my body from destruction
And from the snare of a slanderous tongue,
From the lips of those who work falsehood.
And before all those who stood by, You were a helper,
And You redeemed me,
According to Your great mercy and Your name,
From being devoured as one prepared for food
At the hands of those who sought my soul;
From many afflictions that I endured,
From suffocation by an encircling fire,
And from the midst of a fire I did not start;
5 From the depths of the belly of Hades
And from the tongue of the unclean and the word of a liar—
4 The slander of an unrighteous tongue before the king.
My soul drew near unto death,
And my life was near Hades below.
2 They surrounded me on all sides,
And there was no one to help me.
I looked for the help of men, but there was none.
3 Then I remembered Your mercy, O Lord,
And Your work which is from of old,
For You lift up those who wait upon You,
And You save them from the hand of their enemies.
2 I sent up my supplication from the earth
And prayed about the instability caused by death.
2 I called upon the Lord, the Father of my Lord,
That He might not forsake me in the days of affliction,
When I am helpless against the arrogant.
I will praise Your name continually,
And I will sing a hymn with thanksgiving.†
2 My prayer was heard,
For You saved me from destruction
And rescued me from a time of evil.
2 Therefore I will thank and praise You,
And I will bless the name of the Lord.

Striving for Wisdom.

22 While I was still young, before I went on my travels,
I sought wisdom openly in my prayer.
22 Before the temple I prayed about her,
And I will search for her to the end of my life.
22 From blossoms to ripening grapes,
My heart rejoiced in her.
My foot embarked on her righteous path,
And from my youth I hunted for her.†
I inclined my ear a little and received her.
I found much instruction for myself.
There was progress for me in her.
To Him who gives me wisdom, I will give glory.
For I purposed to practice wisdom;
And I was zealous for the good
And was not put to shame.
My soul strove earnestly for her,
And I examined myself closely in my performance of the law.
I stretched out my hands to the heights
And mourned my ignorance of her.
I directed my soul to her,
And in purification I found her.
I acquired a heart for her from the beginning;
Therefore, I was not forsaken.
My heart was stirred to search for her,
And therefore I gained a good possession.
The Lord gave me a tongue as my reward,
And I will praise Him with it.
Draw near to me, untaught ones,
And lodge in my school.
Why do you say that you are lacking in these things,
Yet you let your souls thirst exceedingly?
I opened my mouth and said,
"Gain wisdom for yourselves without money."
Place your neck under her yoke,
And let your soul receive her instruction.
She is near that you might find her.
See with your own eyes that I labored little,
But found much rest for myself.
Partake of instruction with a great amount of silver,
And gain much gold with it.
May your soul be gladdened by His mercy,
And may you not be put to shame when you praise Him.
Do your work before the appointed time,
And He will give you your reward in His appointed time."

Author—The prophet Hosea (commemorated October 17) is traditionally considered the author of this work. He was of the tribe of Issachar and his name means “salvation” or “deliverance.”

Date—Hosea's prophecy occurred about 750 BC, during the reign of Jeroboam II (786–746) and also after that king's death.

Major Theme—God's love and faithfulness to His people. Hosea's marital experience is used as a parable in the book, illustrated by his faithfulness to his unfaithful wife Gomer. Hosea is also one of the prophets who emphasize the importance of knowing God (6:6) in steadfast love, instead of substituting vain and empty sacrifices and burnt offerings to come into His presence.

Background—Hosea was a contemporary of the prophets Amos (in the Northern Kingdom of Israel) and Isaiah and Micah (in the Southern Kingdom of Judah). His prophecy was directed to the Northern Kingdom. The time of Hosea was marked by great material prosperity but also national anxiety in Israel. The people in their complacency and insecurity turned to the gods of the pagans (primarily Baal and Ashtoreth) for guidance. Hosea saw these pagan religions as the exact opposite of God's revelation to His people. Hosea saw it as his calling to bring wayward Israel back to its covenant with the Lord.

Outline

I. Introduction: Author and Time of the Prophecy (1:1)

II. Hosea and Gomer as Images of God's Dealings with Unfaithful Israel (1:2–3:5)
   A. The children as signs (1:2–2:1)
   B. The unfaithful wife—Gomer and Israel (2:2–3:5)

III. God's Faithfulness and Israel's Unfaithfulness (4:1–14:10)
   A. Israel's unfaithfulness (4:1–6:3)
   B. Israel's punishment (6:4–10:15)
   C. The compassionate and faithful love of God (11:1–14:10)

The word of the Lord that came to Hosea the son of Beeri in the days of Uzziah, Jotham,
Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel.†

Hosea's Family

2The beginning of the word of the Lord to Hosea. The Lord said to Hosea,

"Go, take to yourself a wife of fornication
And children of fornication;
For the land will surely go a-whoring
By departing from the Lord."‡

3So he went and took Gomer, daughter of Diblaim, and she conceived and bore him a son.

4Again the Lord said to him,

"Call his name Jezreel;
For in a little while
I will avenge the blood of Jezreel on the house of Jehu,
And I will make to cease the kingship of the house of Israel."²

5It shall be in that day
That I will break the bow of Israel in the Valley of Jezreel.

6Then she conceived again and bore a daughter. So God said to him,

"Call her name Lo-Ruhamah,
For I will no longer have mercy on the house of Israel,
But will surely set Myself in array against them."²

7But I will have mercy on the house of Judah
And will save them by the Lord their God.
I will not save them with bow,
Nor with sword, nor by war,
Nor by chariots, nor by horses or horsemen."

8Now after she weaned Lo-Ruhamah, she conceived again and bore a son. So the Lord said,

"Call his name Lo-Ammi,
For you are not My people,
And I am not your God."²
Yet the number of the children of Israel
Shall be as the sand of the sea,
Which shall not be measured or numbered.
Then it shall come to pass
In the place where it was said to them,
'You are not My people,'
Even then they shall be called
The sons of the living God.
The children of Judah and the children of Israel
Shall be gathered together.
They shall appoint themselves one head
And come up out of the land;
For great shall be the day of Jezreel.

Say to your brother, ‘My People,’ And to your sister, ‘Pitied.’

Plead with your mother, plead,
For she is not My wife,
And I am not her Husband.
I will remove her fornication out of My presence
And her adultery from between her breasts,
That I may strip her naked
And make her again as she was at the day of her birth.
I will make her desolate and as a dry land,
And I will kill her with thirst.

I will not have mercy upon her children;
For they are children of fornication.
For their mother went a-whoring,
She that bore them disgraced herself,
For she said, 'I will go after my lovers,
Who give me my bread and my water,
And my garments and my linen clothes,
My oil and my necessities.'
Therefore, behold, I will hedge up her way with thorns.
I will stop the ways so she shall not find her path.
She will follow after her lovers
But not overtake them.
She will seek them but not find them.
She will say,
‘I will go and return to my former husband;
For it was better for me than now.’
For she did not know I gave her corn, wine, and oil,
And multiplied silver to her;
But she turned the silver and gold over to Baal.
Therefore I will take back
My corn in its season,
And My wine in its time.
I will remove My raiment and My linen clothes
That she may not cover her nakedness.
Now I will expose her uncleanness before her lovers,
And no one shall by any means
Deliver her out of My hand.
I will take away all her gladness, her feasts,
And her festivals at the New Moon,
And her Sabbaths,
And all her solemn assemblies.
“I will destroy her vines and her fig trees,
All things of which she said,
‘These are my wages that my lovers have given me.’
But I will make them a testimony;
And the wild beasts of the field, the birds of the sky,
And the reptiles of the earth shall devour them.
I will repay her For the days of Baalim,
Wherein she sacrificed to them,
And put on her earrings and her necklaces,
And went after her lovers;
But she forgot Me,” says the Lord.

God Has Mercy on His People
Therefore, behold, I will lead her astray
And make her as desolate,
And I will speak to her heart.

I will give her possessions from there,
And the Valley of Achor to open her understanding.
She will be humbled there
According to the days of her infancy,
And according to the days of her coming up
Out of the land of Egypt.

Then it shall come to pass in that day,"
Says the Lord,
"That she will call Me 'My Husband,'
And shall no longer call Me 'Baalim.'

For I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth,
And their names shall be remembered no more.

In that day I will make a covenant for them
With the wild beasts of the field,
And with the birds of the sky,
And with the reptiles of the earth.
I will break the bow, the sword, and the battle from off the earth,
And will cause them to dwell safely.

I will betroth you to Myself forever;
Yes, I will betroth you to Myself
In righteousness and justice,
And in mercy and compassions.

I will betroth you to Myself in faithfulness,
And you shall know the Lord.

"It shall come to pass in that day," says the Lord,
"That I will listen to heaven,
And it shall listen to the earth.

The earth shall listen to the corn,
And the wine, and the oil;
And they shall listen to Jezreel.

I will sow her to Myself on the earth,
And will love her that was not loved,
And will say to that which was not My people,
'You are My people!'
And they shall say,
'You are the Lord my God!' ”

Israel Will Return to the Lord

Then the Lord said to me, “Go yet again and love a woman that loves evil things, an adulteress, even as the Lord loves the children of Israel, for they look after strange gods and love raisin cakes.” So I bought her for myself for fifteen pieces of silver, a homer of barley, and a jar of wine. I said to her, “You shall stay with me for many days. You shall not commit fornication, neither shall you be for another man; but I will be for you.” For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, without a prince, without a sacrifice, without an altar, without a priesthood, and without symbols of revelation. Afterward the children of Israel shall return and seek the Lord their God and David their king; and they shall be amazed at the Lord and at His good things in the latter days.

God's Judgment on Israel

Hear the word of the Lord,
You children of Israel,
For the Lord has a judgment for the inhabitants of the land:
"There is no truth or mercy
Or knowledge of God in the land.
Cursing and lying, murder and theft
And adultery gushed forth in the land,
And blood is mingled with blood.
Therefore the land shall mourn
And be diminished with all the things that dwell in it:
The wild beasts of the field, the reptiles of the earth,
And the birds of the sky,
And the fish of the sea shall come to an end;
That neither may any one judge, nor analyze another;
But my people are as a priest who is spoken against.
"Thus you shall be weak by day,
And the prophet shall be weak with you;
I have compared your mother to the night.²
² My people are like as those who have no knowledge.
Because you have rejected knowledge,
I will also reject you from being a priest to Me;
And because you have forgotten the law of your God,
I also will forget your children.
² According to their multitude,
So they sinned against Me;
I will turn their glory into dishonor.
² They will eat the sins of My people
And take away their lives because of their wrongdoings.²
² The priest shall also be as the people;
So I will punish him for his ways
And repay him for his counsels.²
² They shall eat and not be satisfied;
They have gone a-whoring and shall by no means prosper,
Because they have abandoned holding fast to the Lord.

Israel's Idolatry

² "The heart of My people has gladly engaged
In fornication, wine, and strong drink.
² They asked counsel by means of signs
And they reported answers to them by their staves.
They have gone astray in a spirit of whoredom
And grievously gone a-whoring from their God.
² They have sacrificed on the tops of the mountains,
And on the hills they have sacrificed
Under the oak and poplar
And under the shady tree,
Because their shade was good.
Therefore your daughters shall go a-whoring,
And your daughters-in-law shall commit adultery.
² But I will not show care for your daughters
When they commit fornication,
Nor your daughters-in-law
When they commit adultery;
For they mingled themselves with harlots
And sacrificed with the initiated ones;
And the people who understood
Entangled themselves with a harlot.

* “But you, O Israel, be not ignorant,
And do not go, men of Judah, to Gilgal;
And do not go up to Beth Aven
Nor swear by the living Lord.

≠ For Israel was maddened like a mad heifer;
Now the Lord will feed them
Like a lamb in a wide place.

≠ Ephraim, joined with idols,
Has laid stumbling blocks in his own way.

≠ He has chosen the Canaanites;
They have grievously gone a-whoring;
They have loved dishonor through her rudeness.

≠ You are a blast of wind in her wings,
And they shall be ashamed because of their altars.

Warnings for Israel and Judah

* “Hear these things, O priests, And attend, O house of Israel!
Listen, O house of the king!
For judgment is with you
Because you have been a snare in Mizpah
And a net spread on Tabor,
≠ Which they that hunt the prey have fixed;
But I will be your instructor.

≠ I know Ephraim, and Israel is not far from Me;
For now Ephraim has gone grievously a-whoring;
Israel is defiled.

≠ “Their deliberations did not allow them
To return to their God,
For a spirit of fornication is in them,
And they have not gotten to know the Lord.

The arrogance of Israel

Shall be brought low before His face,

And Israel and Ephraim shall become weak

Due to their wrongdoings;

And Judah also shall become weak with them.

"They shall go with sheep and calves

Diligently to seek the Lord;

But they shall not find Him,

For He has withdrawn Himself from them.

For they have forsaken the Lord

Because strange children have been born to them.

Now the rust shall devour them along with their heritages.

"Blow the trumpet on the hills,

Sound aloud on the heights,

Proclaim in Beth Aven:

'Benjamin is confused.'

Ephraim has vanished in the days of reproof;

Among the tribes of Israel I have shown faithful things.

"The princes of Judah became as those

Who remove the boundaries;

I will pour out my fury upon them as water.

Ephraim oppressed his adversary;

He trod over judgment,

For he began to go after vanities.

Therefore I will be as a confusion to Ephraim

And as a sting to the house of Judah.

"Ephraim saw his disease

And Judah his pain;

Then Ephraim went to the Assyrians

And sent ambassadors to King Jareb.

But he could not heal you,

And your pain shall in no way cease from you.

Wherefore I am as a panther to Ephraim

And as a lion to the house of Judah.
So I will grasp and go away;
And I will take, and there shall be none to rescue.

Therefore I will go and return to My place
Until they are destroyed,
And then they shall seek My face.

Return to the Lord

“Let us go and return to the Lord our God;
For He has grasped and will heal us;
He will smite and plug the wound with lint.

After two days He will heal us.
In the third day we shall rise
And live before Him.
Let us know, let us pursue
That we might know the Lord.
We shall find Him ready as the daybreak,
And He will come to us
As the early and latter rain to the earth.

Israel and Judah Are Unrepentant

“What shall I do to you, O Ephraim?
What shall I do to you, O Judah?
Your mercy is as a morning cloud
And as the early dew that goes away.

Therefore I have cut off your prophets;
I have slain them with the words of My mouth,
And My judgment shall go forth as the light.
For I desire mercy and not sacrifice,
And the knowledge of God
More than whole burnt offerings.

But they are as a man who transgresses the covenant;
There they despised Me.
Gilead is a city working vanity with troubling water.
Your strength is that of a pirate;
The priests have hidden the way;
They have murdered the people of Shechem,
For they have done lawlessness.

In the house of Israel I have seen horrible things;
There is the fornication of Ephraim;
Israel and Judah are defiled.

Begin to harvest for yourself
When I return the captives of My people.

When I have healed Israel, Then shall the wrongdoing of Ephraim
And the evil of Samaria be revealed,
For they have worked falsehood.

A thief shall come in to him,
Even a robber taking spoil in his way,

That they may sing together
As men singing in their heart.
I remember all their evils;
Now their own counsels have encircled them;
They were before My face.

They gladdened kings with their evils
And princes with their lies.

They are all adulterers,
Like an oven heated for cooking,
Burning with a flame during the kneading of the dough
Until it is leavened.

In the days of our kings,
The princes began to be inflamed with wine;
He stretched out his hand with pestilent fellows.

Wherefore their hearts are inflamed like an oven
While they were falling down all the night.
Ephraim is satisfied with sleep;
The morning is come;
He is burnt up like a flame of fire.

They are all heated like an oven
And have devoured their judges.
All their kings are fallen;
There was not among them one that called upon Me.
Ephraim is mixed among his peoples;
Ephraim became a cake not turned.²
Strangers devoured his strength,
And he knew it not.
Grey hairs came upon him,
And he knew it not.

The pride of Israel shall be humbled before his face;
Yet they have not returned to the Lord their God,
Neither have they diligently sought Him in spite of all this.

Trusting Other Nations Is Futile.

Ephraim was like a silly dove, not having a heart;
He called to Egypt, and they went to the Assyrians.²
Whenever they shall go, I will cast My net upon them;
I will bring them down as the birds of the sky.
I will chastise them through the news of their affliction.
"Woe to them, for they have turned away from Me!
They are cowards,
For they have committed impious deeds against Me.
Yet I redeemed them,
But they spoke falsehoods against Me.
Their hearts did not cry aloud to Me,
But they wailed upon their beds.
"They slashed themselves for oil and wine;
They were chastised by Me.
I strengthened their arms,
But they devised evils against Me.
They turned aside to nothing;
They became as a stretched bow.
Their princes shall fall by the sword;
They will be despised in the land of Egypt
Because of their unrestrained tongue.

Israel's Apostasy.

"He shall come into their midst like the land,
Like an eagle against the house of the Lord,
Because they broke My covenant
And acted impiously against My law.

They shall cry out to Me, saying,
'O God, we know You.'

For Israel has turned away from good things;
They have pursued an enemy.

They made kings for themselves, but not by Me.
They have ruled, but they did not make it known to Me.
They made idols for themselves with their silver and gold
That they might be utterly destroyed.

Get rid of your calf, O Samaria.
My anger is kindled against them.
How long will they be unable to purge themselves in Israel?

A workman made it, And it is not God;
Therefore your calf, O Samaria, was a deceiver.

"For they sowed wind-damaged seeds,
And their destruction shall await them;
A sheaf of corn cannot produce flour;
And even if the seeds should produce it,
Strangers would devour it.

Israel is swallowed up.
Now he has become as a worthless vessel among the nations.

For they have gone up to the Assyrians;
Ephraim has sprouted again against himself;
They loved gifts.

Therefore they shall be handed over to the nations.
Now I will receive them,
And they will stop awhile to anoint a king and princes.

"Because Ephraim has multiplied altars,
His beloved altars have become sins to him.

I will write a multitude of statutes for him,
For his statutes are considered as strange things,
As well as his beloved altars.

For if they should offer a sacrifice and eat flesh,
The Lord would not accept them.
Now He will remember their wrongdoings
And take vengeance on their sins.
They have returned to Egypt,
And they shall eat unclean things among the Assyrians.

“He has forgotten Him who made him.
They have built temples,
And Judah has multiplied walled cities;
But I will send fire upon his cities,
And it shall devour their foundations.”

Punishment for Israel

Rejoice not, O Israel,
Neither make merry, as other peoples,
For you have gone a-whoring from your God.
You have loved for hire
Upon every threshing floor of wheat.

The threshing floor and winepress did not know them,
And the wine disappointed them.

They did not dwell in the Lord’s land.
Ephraim dwelt in Egypt,
And they shall eat unclean things among the Assyrians.

They have not offered wine to the Lord,
Neither have their sacrifices been pleasing to Him,
But like the mourning bread to them.

All that eat shall be defiled
Because their bread shall be for their own life;
It shall not come into the house of the Lord.

What will you do in the day of public festival
And in the day of the Lord’s feast?

Therefore, behold, they go forth from the trouble of Egypt.
Memphis shall receive them
And Machmas shall bury them.
As for their silver, destruction shall inherit it,
And thorns shall be in their tents.
The days of vengeance have come;
The days of your recompense have come;
And Israel shall be afflicted
As the prophet that is mad, as a man deranged.
By reason of the multitude of your wrongdoings
Your madness has abounded.

The watchman of Ephraim was with God,
But the prophet is a crooked snare in all his ways.
They have planted the madness firmly
In the house of God.

They have corrupted themselves
As in the days of Gibeah.
He will remember his wrongdoings;
He will take vengeance on his sins.

"I found Israel as grapes in the wilderness,
And I saw their fathers as an early guard at their fig tree.
They went in to Baal Peor
And were shamefully estranged;
And the beloved ones became abominable.

The glory of Ephraim has flown away as a bird:
Their glories from birth, birth-pains, and conception.
For even if they should rear their children,
Yet they shall be utterly bereaved.
For woe to them! My flesh is of them.

Ephraim, even as I saw,
Presented their children as a prey;
Ephraim was ready to bring out his children to slaughter."

Give to them, O Lord!
What will You give to them?
A childless womb and dry breasts.

"All their evils are in Gilgal,
For there I hated them.
Because of their evil practices,
I will cast them out of My house.
I will not love them any more.
All their leaders are disobedient.

Ephraim underwent trouble;

He is dried up at his roots;

He shall bear fruit no more.

Wherefore, even if they should beget children,

I would kill the desired fruit of their womb.”

God shall reject them

Because they have not hearkened to Him.

So they shall be wanderers among the nations.

Israel's Judgment and Captivity

Israel is a luxuriant vine;

Her fruit is abundant.

According to the multitude of her fruits
She has multiplied her altars;

According to the wealth of his land
He has set up pillars.¶

They have divided their hearts;

Now shall they be utterly destroyed.

He shall raze their altars to the ground;

Their pillars shall experience distress.

For now they will say,

"We have no king,

Since we did not fear the Lord.

As for a king, what would he do for us?"

As he speaks words With false motives,

He would make a covenant.

Thus judgment will spring up

As a weed on the soil of the field.

The inhabitants of Samaria

Shall dwell near the calf of Beth Aven,

For its people mourned for it.

To the degree that they rebelled against it,

So they will rejoice at its glory

Because it was removed from them.
For they bound it up for the Assyrians
And carried it away as a gift to King Jareb.
Ephraim shall receive it as a gift,
And Israel shall be ashamed of his own counsel.
Samaria has cast off her king
Like a twig on the surface of the water,
And the altars of Aven, the sins of Israel,
Shall be removed.
Thorns and thistles shall come upon their altars,
And they shall say to the mountains, "Cover us,"
And to the hills, "Fall on us."
"From the days of Gibeah, Israel has sinned;
There they stood.
The war on that hill against the children of unrighteousness
Did not overtake them.
I came to chastise them,
And peoples shall be gathered against them
When they are chastised for their two sins.
Ephraim is a heifer taught to love victory,
But I will come upon the fairest part of her neck.
I will mount Ephraim;
I will pass over Judah in silence;
Jacob shall prevail against him."
Sow to yourselves in righteousness;
Gather in the fruit of life;
Light for yourselves the light of knowledge;
Seek the Lord till the fruits of righteousness come upon you.
Why have you passed over ungodliness in silence
And reaped its wrongdoings?
You have eaten the fruit of deception,
For you have hoped in your chariots,
In the abundance of your power.¹
Therefore destruction shall rise up among your people,
And all your walled places shall be gone,
As Beth Arbel in the time of Prince Shalman.
In the days of battle, They dashed the mother to the ground upon the children.
Thus will I do to you, O house of Israel, Because of your evil deeds. Early in the morning were they cast off; The king of Israel has been cast off.

God's Love for Rebellious Israel

11 "For Israel is a child, and I loved him, And out of Egypt I have called his children."
2 As I called them, So they departed from My presence. They sacrificed to the Baals, And burned incense to graven images. 2 "Yet I bound the feet of Ephraim. I took him on My arm, But they did not know that I healed them."
4 When men were destroyed, I drew them with the bands of My love, And I will be to them as a man Smiting another on his cheek. I will look with favor to him; I will prevail with him.
5 "Ephraim dwelt in Egypt; And the Assyrian himself was his king, Because he would not return. 2 The sword became weak in his cities, And he ceased to war with his hands; For they shall consume themselves With their own intrigues. 2 His people shall hold onto His habitation; But God shall be angry with His precious things, And shall not at all exalt him. 8 "How shall I deal with you, Ephraim? How shall I protect you, Israel?
What shall I do with you?
I will make you as Admah and as Zeboim.
My heart is turned about;
My repentance is utterly thrown into confusion.²
² I will not act according to the fury of My wrath;
I will not abandon Ephraim to be utterly destroyed.
For I am God and not man;
The Holy One among you;
And I will not enter into the city.
Ξ “I will go after the Lord.
He shall utter His voice as a lion;
For He shall roar,
And the children of the waters shall be amazed.
² They shall be amazed as a bird out of Egypt
And as a dove out of the land of the Assyrians;
And I will restore them to their houses,”
Says the Lord.

A Charge against Israel and Judah

12 “Ephraim has encompassed me with falsehood,
And the house of Israel and Judah with ungodliness.
But now God knows them,
And he shall be called God's holy people.
² But Ephraim is an evil spirit.
He has chased the east wind all the day.
He has multiplied empty and vain things
And struck a covenant with the Assyrians.
He made business with oil in Egypt.
² “The Lord has a judgment against Judah
So as to punish Jacob according to his ways,
And He will repay him according to his practices.
² He kicked his brother in the womb,
And in his toils he regained strength with God.
² He prevailed with the Angel and was strong.
They wept and entreated Me.
They found Me in Bethel,
And there a word was spoken to them.²

² So the Lord God Almighty shall be his memorial.

² You shall return to your God;
Therefore, observe mercy and judgment,
And draw near to your God continually.

⁸ “As for Canaan,
There is a balance of wrongdoing in his hand,
For he has loved to oppress.

⁸ As for Ephraim, he said,
‘Nevertheless, I am rich;
I have found relief for myself.’

But none of his labors shall be found in him,
Because of the wrongdoings by which he sinned.

² “But I the Lord your God brought you up
Out of the land of Egypt.
I will yet again cause you to dwell in tents
According to the days of the feast.

² For I will speak to the prophets,
And I have multiplied visions,
And by the authority of the prophets
I was represented.”

² If Gilead does not exist,
Then the leaders in Gilead were false when they sacrificed,
And their altars were like mounds on a parched field.

² Jacob retreated into the plain of Syria,
And Israel served for a wife
And kept watch for a wife.

² The Lord brought Israel
Out of the land of Egypt by a prophet,
And by a prophet he was preserved.

² Ephraim was angry and excited;
Therefore his blood shall be poured out upon him,
And the Lord shall repay him for his disgrace.
According to the word of Ephraim,
He received ordinances for himself in Israel
And established them for Baal; then he died.

So now they have sinned increasingly
And have made for themselves
A molten image with their silver,
According to the fashion of idols,
The work of craftsmen done for them.
They say, “Sacrifice men,
For the calves have come to an end.”

Therefore they shall be as a morning cloud
And as the early dew that passes away,
Like chaff blown away from the threshing floor
And as smoke out of the chimney.

“But I am the Lord your God,
Who makes the heaven firm and creates the earth,
Whose hands have created the whole host of heaven.
But I did not show them to you that you should seek after them.
I brought you up from the land of Egypt,
And you shall know no God but Me;
And there is no Savior besides Me.

I tended you as a shepherd in the wilderness,
In an uninhabited land.

When they had their pastures,
They were completely filled,
And their hearts were exalted;
Therefore, they forgot Me.

“So I will be to them as a panther
And as a leopard by way of the Assyrians.
I will meet them as an excited she-bear,
And I will rend the hardness of their heart.
The lions’ whelps of the thicket shall devour them there;
The wild beasts of the field shall rend them in pieces.
 O Israel, who will help you in your destruction?
Where is this king of yours?
Let him save you in all your cities.
Let him judge you, of whom you said,
‘Give me a king and a prince.’
Thus I gave you a king in My anger
And took him back in My wrath.
“Ephraim is a conspiracy of unrighteousness;
His sin is hidden.
Pains as of a woman in travail shall come upon him.
He is your unwise son,
For he shall not stand in the destruction of your children.
“I will deliver them out of the hand of Hades
And will redeem them from death.
Where is your penalty, O death?
O Hades, where is your sting?
Pity is hidden from My eyes.”
Forasmuch as he will cause
A division among his brethren,
The Lord shall bring upon him
A hot wind from the desert,
And shall dry up his springs
And drain his fountains.
He shall dry up his land
And spoil all his precious vessels.
14 Samaria shall be utterly destroyed,
For she has resisted her God;
And they shall fall by the sword.
Their infants shall be dashed against the ground
And their pregnant women ripped up.

Restoration of Israel

Return, O Israel, to the Lord your God,
For you became weak through your wrongdoings.
Take with you words
And turn to the Lord your God.
Speak to Him,
That you may not receive the reward of unrighteousness,
But that you may receive good things.
We will render in return the fruit of our lips.

4 Assyria will not save us;
We will not mount on horseback.
Let us no longer say to the works of our hands,
“Our gods.”
He who is among you shall have mercy on the orphan.

5 “I will restore their dwellings.
I will love them willingly,
For he has turned away My wrath from them.

6 I will be as dew to Israel;
He shall bloom as the lily
And cast forth his roots as Lebanon.

7 His branches shall spread,
And he shall be as a fruitful olive tree,
And his fragrance shall be as the smell of Lebanon.

8 They shall return and dwell under his shadow;
They shall live and be satisfied with corn,
And he shall flower as a vine;
His memorial shall be as the wine of Lebanon.

9 “To Ephraim: What has he to do any more with idols?
I have humbled him
And I will strengthen him.
I am as a leafy juniper tree.
From Me your fruit is found.”

2 Who is wise and will understand these things?
Or prudent and will know them?
For the ways of the Lord are straight,
And the righteous shall walk in them;
But the ungodly shall become weak in them.

The Book of Amos

Author—Amos, which means “burdened” or “bearer.” He is commemorated on June 15.

Date—About 754 BC, “two years before the earthquake” (1:1, 2), which was so severe that Zechariah wrote about it 200 years later.

Major Theme—God's wrath is to be feared: “A lion shall roar, and who will not fear?” (3:8). Crimes committed against the Jews by their neighboring nations will be the first to be punished. Then God's wrath will turn to the kingdom of Israel for their sins of oppression of the poor (2:6), incest (2:7), indulgence (3:15), gluttony and drunkenness (4:1). The other theme is the promise of Israel's restoration if they repent, or of foreign captivity if they do not repent.

Background—Amos was born in the small rural village of Tekoa, twelve miles south of Jerusalem. He was a goatherd and a tender of sycamore, a contemporary of Hosea. Amos may have known Jonah and Elisha when he was young, and Isaiah and Micah when he was older. He prophesied to the Southern Kingdom (Judah) from 795–754 BC. His prophecies were the first to be written down, perhaps because he was the first prophet to proclaim the end of God's covenant with Israel for their stubborn unrepentance. The prophecies occurred approximately 30 years before the Assyrians captured Samaria in 721 BC, during the time when the two kingdoms were divided. Josephus wrote that a great earthquake took place (1:1) when Uzziah was struck with leprosy. The Israelites had amassed great wealth because of their control over the trade routes, which had created an aristocratic class. Amos was sent to Bethel to warn the king and the people of the Northern Kingdom to repent. The priests, who were tired of his prophecies, clubbed Amos to death.

II. Introduction (1:2)
III. Judgments on the Nations (1:3–2:16)
IV. Prophecies against Israel (3:1–5:17)
V. Prophecy Regarding Exile (5:18–6:14)
VI. Visions of Divine Justice (7:1–9:14)
The words of Amos, who was among the shepherds of Tekoa, which he saw concerning Jerusalem in the days of Uzziah king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel, two years before the earthquake.†

And he said, “The Lord proclaims out of Zion, and out of Jerusalem He gives a shout. The pastures of the shepherds mourn, and the top of Carmel is dried up.”

Thus says the Lord: “For three sins of Damascus and for four, I shall not turn away from it; for they sawed open the pregnant wives of the men of Gilead with a saw made of iron.‡ 4 So I shall send fire into the house of Hazael, and it will consume the foundations of the son of Hadad. 5 And I shall shatter the bars of the gate of Damascus into pieces. I will put to death those dwelling in the plains of Aven, and I will cut in pieces the people of Charran. The notable people of Syria will be led away captive,” says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: “For three sins of Gaza and for four, I shall not turn away its punishment, for they took prisoner the whole captivity of Solomon and held them as slaves in Edom. 7 And I shall send a fire upon the wall of Gaza, and it will consume its foundations. 8 I shall put to death those dwelling in Ashdod and remove the people of Ekron, and the remnant of the Philistines shall perish,” says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: “For three sins of Tyre and for four, I shall not turn away its punishment, for they imprisoned the captivity of Solomon to Edom, and did not remember the covenant of brotherhood. 10 And I shall send a fire upon the wall of Tyre, and it will consume its foundations.”

Thus says the Lord: “For three sins of Edom and for four, I shall not turn away its punishment, because Edom pursued his brother with a sword and ravaged the womb on the earth. And as a testimony he took captive those shuddering in fear, and he sustained his violence in battle. 12 Therefore I shall send a fire upon Teman that will consume the foundations of its walls.”

Thus says the Lord: “For three acts of ungodliness by the sons of Ammon and for four, I shall not turn away its punishment, for they ripped open women with child in Gilead so as to expand their territory. Therefore, I shall kindle a fire in the wall of Rabbah. It shall consume her foundations with shouting in the day of war, and she shall be shaken in the days of her destruction. Their kings shall go into captivity, their priests and their princes together,” says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: “For three sins of Moab and for four, I shall not turn away its punishment, for he burned the bones of the king of Edom to ashes. Therefore I shall send a fire against Moab, and it will consume the foundations of their cities, and in helplessness Moab shall die with shouting and with the sound of a trumpet. And I shall put to death the judge from her midst and slay all her princes with him,” says the Lord.

Judgment against Israel and Judah.

Thus says the Lord: “For three sins of the sons of Judah and for four, I shall not turn away its punishment, for they rejected the law of the Lord and did not keep His ordinances. And the vain idols made by their fathers led them astray. These were lies their fathers followed.

So I shall send a fire upon Judah, and it shall devour the foundations of Jerusalem.”

Thus says the Lord: “For three sins of Israel and for four, I shall not turn away its punishment, for they sold the righteous for silver and the poor for a pair of sandals. They trample the heads of the poor into the dust of the earth, and turn away the afflicted and pervert the way of the humble. A son and his father go in to the same handmaiden in order to profane the name of their God. And having bound their clothes with cords, they made curtains by the altar, and they drank wine gained through false accusations in the house of their God.

Yet it was I who destroyed the Amorite before them, whose height was like the height of the cedars and who was as strong as an oak tree. It was I who dried up his fruit from above and his roots beneath the ground. And it was I who brought you up out of the land of Egypt and led you forty years through the wilderness, that you would inherit the land of the Amorite. I took some of your sons as prophets and some of your young men to be consecrated. Is this not so, O you children of Israel?” says the Lord.

“But you gave the consecrated ones wine to drink and commanded the prophets, saying, ‘Do not prophesy!’ Behold, for this reason, I weigh you down, just as a wagon being filled with sheaves is weighed down. Therefore, escape will be totally lost to the swift, and the strong will certainly lose his strength, and the warrior will in no way be able to save his life. The archer will not stand his ground, and the swift foot will not escape danger, and the horseman will be completely unable to save his life. The strong will find no confidence in their strength; the naked will flee away in that day,” says the Lord.

The Lord's Case against Israel

O house of Israel, hear this word the Lord has spoken against you, against the whole family which I brought up from the land of Egypt, saying, Out of all the families of the earth, I have especially known you. Therefore I shall exact vengeance upon you for all your sins. If two people walk together, will each one not come to know the other? Will a lion roar from his lair in the forest if he has no prey? Will a lion's whelp cry out from his den if he has nothing? Will a bird fall to the earth without a fowler? Will a snare be sprung if it has caught nothing? If a trumpet is sounded in a city, will not the people be alarmed? If evil should be in a city, has not the Lord brought it? For the Lord God does nothing unless He reveals instruction to His servants the prophets. A lion shall roar, and who will not fear? The Lord God speaks, and who will not prophesy?

Proclaim it in the regions among the Assyrians and to the lands of Egypt, and say, ‘Gather yourself to the mountains of Samaria, and behold the many remarkable things in her midst and the oppression that is within her. She does not know the things that will come against her,’ says the Lord, ‘she stores up injustice and misery in her lands.’ Therefore thus says the Lord God: “O Tyre, your land round about you shall be made desolate, and your strength shall be sapped from you, and your lands shall be plundered.” Thus says the Lord: “As when a shepherd takes two legs or a piece of an ear out of the mouth of a lion, so shall the sons of Israel be taken out who dwell in Samaria in the presence of a foreign people, and in Damascus.

Hear, O priests, and testify against the house of Jacob,” says the Lord God Almighty, “for in the day I exact vengeance against Israel for their sins, I shall also visit destruction on the altars of Bethel and tear down the horns of the altar, and they will fall to the ground. I will demolish and knock down the turreted house upon the summer house, and I shall destroy the ivory houses along with many other houses as well,” says the Lord.
Hear this word, O heifers of Bashan who are on the mountain of Samaria, who oppress the poor, who trample the needy, and who say to their lords, “Bring us wine that we may drink!” The Lord swears by His holiness: “Behold, the days shall come upon you, for they will seize you with weapons and cast you and those with you into boiling cauldrons. You shall be brought out naked before one another and be cast out on Mount Hermon,” says the Lord God.

“You come to Bethel and act lawlessly and multiply your transgressions in Gilgal. You bring your sacrifice in the morning and your tithes every three days. Moreover, outside they read things of the Law and call for professions. Proclaim that the children of Israel love these things,” says the Lord God. “And in all your cities I gave you cleanness of teeth, and in all your places a lack of bread. Yet you did not return to Me,” says the Lord. “And also, I withheld rain from you for the three months before the harvest. I caused it to rain upon one city while I withheld rain from another. On one field it rained, but where it did not rain, the crops withered.” So two or three cities wandered to another city to drink water, but they were not satisfied. Yet,” says the Lord, “you did not return to Me.”

The Lord Smites Israel for Her Sin

“I struck you with a parching and blight. When you multiplied your gardens, your vineyards, your fig trees, and your olive trees, the caterpillar devoured them. Yet you did not turn back to Me,” says the Lord. “I sent forth death against you by way of Egypt, and I killed your young men with a sword, together with your captured horses. And in My wrath I brought fire upon your army camps. Yet you did not return to Me,” says the Lord. “I overturned you as God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and you became like a torch that burns out after being plucked out of the fire. Yet even after all this you did not return to Me,” says the Lord. Therefore, O Israel, thus shall I do to you, and because I will do thus to you, make yourself ready to call upon your God, O Israel! For behold, I am the One who strengthens the thunder, and creates the wind, and proclaims His Anointed One to mankind, making the daybreak and the darkness, while treading upon the high places of the earth. The Lord God Almighty is His name!”
5 O house of Israel, hear this word of the Lord, a lamentation which I take up against you.

2 The virgin of Israel has fallen; she will rise no more; she tripped over her land, and there is no one who shall raise her up.

3 For thus says the Lord God: “From the city where a thousand went out, in this group there will yet remain a hundred. And in that from which a hundred went out, ten will be left to the house of Israel.”

A Call to Repentance

4 For thus says the Lord to the house of Israel: “Seek Me, and you will live. 5 But do not seek Bethel, nor go into Gilgal, nor cross over to the Well of Oath, for Gilgal shall surely go into captivity, and Bethel shall come to nothing. 6 Seek the Lord and live, lest He break out like fire in the house of Joseph and devour it, with no one to extinguish the fire for the house of Israel. 7 The Lord is He who brings about justice on high and righteousness on the earth!

8 He makes all things. He transforms the darkness into the morning and makes the day dark as night; He calls forth the waters of the sea and pours them out on the face of the earth. The Lord God Almighty is His name.

9 He rains ruin upon the strong and brings misery upon the fortress.

10 They hated him who reproved in the gates and abhorred the upright word. 11 They tread upon the poor and take bribes from him. They built houses of hewn stone, yet they shall not dwell in them. They planted pleasant vineyards, but they shall not drink wine from them.

12 For I know your many transgressions and the enormity of your sins, devouring the righteous and taking bribes, turning away the poor at the gate. 13 Because of this, the prudent keep silent in this time, for it is an evil time. 14 Seek good and not evil so that you may live, so that the Lord God Almighty will be with you. As you have said, 15 ‘We hated evil and loved good.’ And restore justice in the gate that the Lord God Almighty may have mercy on the remnant of Joseph.”

16 Therefore the Lord God Almighty says, “There shall be wailing in all the streets, and it shall be said in all the highways, ‘Woe! Woe!’ The farmer shall be called to mourning and lamentation, as will those skilled in wailing and complaining. 17 There shall be lamentation in all your streets because I shall pass through the midst of you,” says the Lord.

18 Woe to you who desire the day of the Lord! What is the day of the Lord to you? It will be darkness and not light. 19 It will be as though a man fled from a lion, and a bear met him! As though he rushed into the house, leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him! 20 Is not the day of the Lord darkness and not light? Is it not a deep darkness, with no brightness in it?

21 “I hate, I reject your feast days. I do not savor your sacred assemblies. 22 Though you offer Me burnt offerings and meat offerings, I will not accept them. I will not regard your fattened peace offerings. 23 Take away from Me the sound of your songs, for I will not hear your musical instruments. 24 Instead, let justice run swiftly as does water from the mountain, and let righteousness be as a stream that cannot be crossed.

25 “O house of Israel, did you offer Me sacrifices and offerings those forty years in the wilderness? 26 You have carried the tabernacle of Moloch and the star of your god Raiphan, which you made for yourselves. 27 Therefore I shall exile you beyond Damascus,” says the Lord—the Almighty God is His name.

Woe to the Complacent

6 Woe to those who feel secure in Zion and who trust in Mount Samaria. They have gathered the notable heads of the nations who go there. 2 O house of Israel, all of you, go and see. Go to Hamath the great, and then go down to Gath of the Philistines, the most powerful of all those kingdoms. See if their territory is greater than your territory. 3 You who are approaching the evil day, who draw near and hold false sabbaths. 4 You who lie on beds of ivory, who stretch out on your couches and eat kids from the flock and suckling calves from the midst of the herds, 5 who applaud the sound of stringed instruments, considering them as if permanent and not fleeting, 6 who drink filtered wine and anoint yourselves with the best ointments, and have suffered nothing because of the affliction of Joseph. 7 Therefore, now they shall be taken captive first, and the neighing of horses will be cut off from Ephraim. 8 For the Lord has sworn by Himself, saying, “I abhor all the pride of Jacob, and I hate his lands. Therefore I shall destroy the city and all its inhabitants.”

9 Then it shall come to pass that if ten men remain in one house, they will die. 10 But a remnant will remain, and they will diligently endeavor to remove the bones of their relations from the house; and one will say to those standing before the house, “Are there any more with you?” Then someone will say, “None.” And he will say, “Hold your tongue! For we dare not mention the name of the Lord.”

11 For behold, the Lord commands, and He shall break the great house into bits and the little house into pieces. 12 Will horses run on rocks? Do they keep silent among mares? Yet you turned justice into anger and the fruit of righteousness into bitterness;† 13 you who rejoice vainly, who say, “Have we not possessed horns by our own power?” 14 “But, behold! I shall raise up a nation against you, O house of Israel, and they will afflict you from the entrance of Hamath to the river of the west.”

Powerful Acts of Judgment

Thus the Lord showed me: Behold, He formed locust swarms at dawn; and behold, one locust, Gog, was the king. 2 And so it was, when they had finished eating the grass of the land, I said, “O Lord, Lord, be merciful! Who will raise up Jacob? For he is small!† 3 Repent, O Lord, concerning this.” And the Lord said, “It shall not be.”

4 Thus the Lord showed me: Behold, the Lord called for judgment by fire, and it engulfed the great deep and devoured the Lord's portion. 5 Then I said, “Lord, Lord, cease, who will raise Jacob? For he is small! 6 Relent, Lord, concerning this.” “This also shall not be,” said the Lord.

7 Thus He showed me: Behold, a man stood on a wall made of adamant, with adamant in his hand.† 8 And the Lord said to me, “Amos, what do you see?” And I said, “Adamant.” Then the Lord said, “Behold, I am placing adamant in the midst of My people Israel. I shall not pass by them anymore. 9 The joyful altars will be abolished, and the sacrifices of Israel will be laid waste. I shall rise up against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.”

10 Then Amaziah the priest of Bethel sent to Jeroboam king of Israel, saying, “Amos conspired against you in the midst of the house of Israel. The land is not able to bear all his words. 11 For thus Amos has said: ‘Jeroboam will die by the sword, and Israel will surely be led away captive from their own land.’ ” 12 Then Amaziah said to Amos, “Go, you seer! Flee to the land of Judah. Live out your life there and prophesy there. 13 But no longer prophesy at Bethel, for it is the king's sanctuary, his royal residence.”
Then Amos answered and said to Amaziah, “I was no prophet nor the son of a prophet. I was but a sheepbreeder and a tender of sycamore fruit.† 15 Then the Lord took me from the sheep, and the Lord said to me, ‘Go, prophesy to My people Israel.’ 16 Now therefore, hear the word of the Lord: ‘You say, Do not prophesy to Israel, and do not stir up the house of Jacob.’ 17 Therefore thus says the Lord: ‘Your wife shall be a prostitute in the city, and your sons and daughters shall fall by the sword. Your land shall be divided by a survey line, and you shall die in a defiled land. Israel shall surely be led away captive from his own land.’ ”

The Bird-Catcher's Basket

Thus the Lord showed me: Behold, a bird-catcher's basket. 2 And He said, “Amos, what do you see?” So I said, “A bird-catcher's basket.” Then the Lord said to me, “The end has come upon My people Israel. I shall not pass by them anymore. 3 And the recessed ceilings of the temple shall wail in that day,” says the Lord, “for many are fallen in every place; I will bring silence upon it.”

Therefore, hear this, you who oppress the poor in the morning and use tyranny to drive the needy from the land, 5 saying, “When does the month end so we can barter? and the Sabbath end so we can open the storehouses? So we can falsify the balancing scales to our favor, and thereby receive greater profits by deceit; 6 when the poor man can be acquired for silver and the downcast for sandals; when we can trade in any kind of product?” 7 The Lord swears against the arrogance of Jacob; He will not forget any of your works. 8 Will not the land be disturbed by these things, and will not everyone dwelling in it mourn? Even as a flooding river comes to an end, so too the flood waters of the river of Egypt return to their banks.†

9 “And it will come to pass in that day,” says the Lord God, “the sun will set at noon, and the light of day will grow dark over the land. 10 And I shall turn your feasts into mourning and all your songs into lamentation. I shall place sackcloth on every waist and make every head bald. They shall be as one mourning a beloved one, and those with them as a day of grief.”

A Famine for Lack of the Word of the Lord

11 “Behold, the days will come,” says the Lord, “that I shall send a famine across the land; not a famine of bread nor a thirst for water, but famine to hear the words of the Lord.” 12 waters will be unsettled as far as the sea. And from the north to the east men will scurry about seeking to find the word of the Lord, but they will not find it. 13And in that day the fair virgins and the strong young men will faint from want of water. 14Those who swear by the sin-offering of Samaria, and who say, ‘O Dan, your god lives; O Beersheba, your god lives!’ They shall fall and never rise again.”

A Vision of the Altar

I saw the Lord standing by the altar, and He said, “Strike the mercy seat, and the gateway of the temple shall be shaken. And cut through to the heads of all of them, and I will slay the remnant of them with the sword. He who flees shall not get away, and he who escapes from them shall not be delivered.† 2Though they may attempt to bury themselves in Hades, from there My hand shall drag them out, and though they climb up to heaven, from there I shall bring them down. 3Though they hide themselves on top of Carmel, from there I shall search and take them. Though they hide from My sight at the bottom of the sea, from there I shall command the serpent, and it will bite them. 4And though they go into captivity before their enemies, from there I shall command the sword, and it will slay them. And I shall set My eyes on them for evil and not for good.”

5The Lord, the Lord God Almighty, is He who takes hold of the land and causes it to shake, and all who dwell there shall mourn; for its destruction shall come up as the flood of a river and shall then return to its banks as the River of Egypt. 6He who builds his ascent to the heaven and establishes His promise on the earth, who calls the water of the sea, and pours it out on the face of the earth—the Lord God Almighty is His name. 7“O sons of Israel, are you not as the sons of the Ethiopian to Me?” says the Lord. “Did I not bring Israel up from the land of Egypt, the Philistines from Caphtor, and the Syrians out of Kir?

8“Behold, the eyes of the Lord God are on the kingdom of sinners, and I shall destroy it from the face of the earth. Yet I shall not utterly destroy the house of Jacob,” says the Lord. 9“For I commanded, and I will winnow the house of Israel among all the nations, as grain is sifted in a sieve; yet not a grain will fall upon the ground. 10All the sinners of My people who say, ‘No evil will draw near, neither will it overcome us,’ shall die by the sword.

Restoration after Judgment Is Past

11“In that day I shall raise up the fallen tabernacle of David, and I shall rebuild its ruins and repair its damages and rebuild it as in the days of old, † 12 that the remnant of men and all the nations upon whom My name is called will seek Me,” says the Lord, who does this thing. † 13 “Behold, the days are coming,” says the Lord, “when the threshing will overtake the harvest, and grapes will ripen at the time the seed is sown, and the mountains will drip sweetness, and all the hills shall share in it. 14 I shall bring back the captives of My people Israel, and they will rebuild the ruined cities and inhabit them. They will plant vineyards and drink wine from them. They also will make gardens and eat fruit from them. 15 I shall plant them on their land; no longer will they be uprooted from the land which I have given them,” says the Lord God Almighty.

The Book of Micah

Author—Micah, which means, “who is like the Lord?” He is commemorated on August 14.

Date—Tradition holds that Micah prophesied from 740–686 BC and that his book was written before 720 BC.

Major Theme—God's destruction of evildoers and His goodness to the faithful. In the midst of a very dark time, Micah delivers the messianic prophecies of hope and deliverance for the faithful remnant. He foretells the New Covenant, the Incarnation, Christ's birth at Bethlehem, Christ's sufferings, the Church and its persecutions, the conversion of Gentiles, and a time of peace.

Background—The prophet Micah prophesied during a time of spiritual and moral decadence in the midst of great affluence throughout the Northern and Southern Kingdoms. He witnessed the adoption of the idolatry of the Canaanites by Samaria and Judah. Micah was the son of Joram, from the tribe of Ephraim. He prophesied to both kingdoms. Micah was known as the prophet of the poor and the herald prophet. His contemporaries were Isaiah, Amos, and Hosea.

   A. Lamentation for the sins of corruption (7:1–6)
   B. The prophet's assurance of hope (7:7)
   C. The faithful will trust in God's mercy (7:8–10)
   D. The Messiah's victory (7:11–20)
The word of the Lord came to Micah of Moresheth in the days of Jotham, and Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, concerning what he saw as it relates to Samaria and Jerusalem.

Judgment against Israel and Judah.

Hear these words, O people! Give heed, O earth, and all that is in it. For the Lord God shall be among you for a witness against you, the Lord from His holy house. For behold, the Lord is coming out of His place. He will come down and tread upon the high places of the earth. The mountains will shake under Him, and the valleys will melt like wax before the fire, like water pouring down a steep incline. All of this is for the transgression of Jacob and the sin of the house of Israel. What is the transgression of Jacob? Is it not Samaria? And what is the sin of the house of Judah? Is it not Jerusalem?

I will make Samaria become as a shed in the field and a vineyard for planting, and I will tear down her stones in confusion and expose her foundations. And they shall cut all of her carved images into pieces and burn down all her houses of prostitution with fire. And I shall utterly destroy all her idols, for she gathers from the price of prostitution and has accumulated from the price of a harlot.

A Lamentation.

On account of this she will wail and lament. She will walk barefoot and naked, beating her breast in mourning as a serpent, and mourn as the daughters of Sirens. For her calamity overwhelms her, for it has come to Judah, as far as to the gate of My people—to Jerusalem. Those of Gath, do not exalt yourselves, and those of the house of Aphrah, do not rebuild your house from laughter; sprinkle dust on your laughter. The one living in Shaphir, dwelling comfortably in her cities, did not come to mourn her neighbor; she will receive a calamity of grief from you.

Who has begun to do good for her who dwells in distress? For evils have come down from the Lord upon the gates of Jerusalem, even the sound of a chariot and horseman. Those dwelling in Lachish—she was the beginning of sin to the daughter of Zion—for in you were found the transgressions of Israel. Because of this He will cause men to be sent forth as far as the inheritance of Gath, vain houses, for they have become vanity to the kings of Israel, until they bring the heirs to you, O inhabitants of Lachish; the inheritance shall come as far as Adullam, even the glory of the daughter of Israel. 16Shave your hair and make your head bald as an eagle for the sake of your precious children; increase your widowhood, for they have been taken captive.

The Sins of Judah

2 They devised wickedness and were scheming evil on their beds, and at daybreak they put their plan into action, for they did not lift up their hands to God.† 2They coveted fields and plundered orphans; they oppressed families and plundered a man and his house, a man and his inheritance. 3Therefore thus says the Lord: “Behold, I am devising evils against this tribe from which you shall not lift up your neck, nor will you suddenly walk upright, for this is a time of evil.† 4In that day a parable shall be taken up against you, and a dirge will be wailed, saying, ‘In misery we have suffered hardship. The portion of my people has been measured out with a measuring line, and there was no one who was able to stop Him. Our fields have been divided among them.’ † 5Therefore there will be no one to put out a measuring line for a lot for you in the assembly of the Lord.

6“Do not shed tears, nor even weep over these things; for He will not dismiss the reproaches ‡who says, ‘The house of Jacob has provoked the Spirit of the Lord; are these not His practices? Are not His words good with Him, and have they not proceeded as predicted? 8And previously, for enmity my people resisted against His peace. They flayed his skin to remove hope in the ravages of war. 9Therefore those leading my people will be cast out of their luxurious homes; they have been driven out because of their wicked practices. Draw near to the everlasting mountains.’ ”

10Arise and depart, for this is not a final resting place for you on account of uncleanness; you have been utterly destroyed by corruption. 11You were pursued by no one pursuing! You pursued a spirit built on a falsehood; it drips on you, into the wine and the intoxicating drink, and by reason of the drop of this people, it shall happen.†

Future Deliverance

12“Jacob will be completely gathered together with all of them. I shall wait, expecting the remnant of Israel. By him, I will cause their return as sheep in trouble, as a flock in the midst of their fold. From the breach made before them, they will rush out from among their captors. 13 They will break through the gate of captivity, and their king comes out before their presence. And the Lord shall lead them.”

Rulers and False Prophets Judged

He will say, “Hear these things, O heads of the house of Jacob, and you remnant of Israel.

Is it not for you to know judgment? 2 you who hate good and love evil; you who seize their skins in order flay them and cut their flesh off their bones? 3 who devoured the flesh of my people by removing their skin, breaking their bones, and dividing them as merely flesh for the cauldron and as meat for the pot?”

4 Thus they will cry out to the Lord, but He will not hear them. Instead, He will turn His face from them at that time because they have done wickedly in their deeds against themselves.

5 Thus says the Lord concerning the prophets who lead my people astray, who were proclaiming peace upon them while they themselves ate, but who, when nothing was put in their mouths, stirred up war against them: 6 Therefore to you there will be darkness instead of vision, and to you there will be darkness instead of prophecy. For the sun will set on the prophets, and the day shall become very dark on them. 7 And the seers of dreams will be put to shame, and the prophets will be laughed to scorn. And all the people will speak evil of them, because there will be no one heeding them.”

8 Surely I shall strengthen myself in the Spirit of the Lord, and of judgment, and of power, to proclaim to Jacob his ungodliness and to Israel his sins. 9 Indeed, hear this, you heads of the house of Jacob and the remnant of the house of Israel, you who despise judgment and are perverting everything that is upright, 10 who build up Zion with bloodshed and Jerusalem with injustice. 11 Her leaders make decisions founded on a bribe, and her priests give answers for pay, and her prophets prophesy for money. And they lean on the Lord, saying, “Is not the Lord with us? No harm can come upon us.” 12 Therefore on account of you, Zion shall be plowed as a field; Jerusalem shall be as a shed in the field, and the mountain of the house as a grove of trees.

The Lord Shall Reign
And it shall come to pass in the last days that the mountain of the Lord will be revealed. It will be raised up on the top of the mountains, and it will be exalted far above the hills, and peoples will hasten to it. 2 And many nations will go there and say, “Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob. They will teach us His ways, and we will walk in His paths.” For out of Zion the law shall go forth, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. 3 And He will judge between many peoples and rebuke strong nations afar off. They will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into sickles. Nation shall no more lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore. 4 But everyone shall be at rest under his own vine and under his own fig tree, and no one shall make them afraid, for the mouth of the Lord Almighty has spoken these things. 5 For all the peoples shall walk each one his own way, but we will walk in the name of the Lord our God for ever and ever.

“In that day,” says the Lord, “I shall gather her who has been broken, and I will welcome her who has been exiled, even those whom I have rejected. 7 And I shall make her who has been broken into a remnant, and her that was rejected into a strong nation. So the Lord will reign over them in Mount Zion henceforth and forever. 8 And you, O daughter of Zion, dark tower of the flock, on you it will come and enter in, even the former kingdom of Babylon to the daughter of Jerusalem.”

And now, why have you experienced such evils? Was there no king in your midst? Or did your counsel perish? For your birth pangs have seized you as one in labor. 10 Suffer birth pains and take courage, O daughter of Zion, and draw near like a woman giving birth; for now you will be exiled from the city, and you will abide in the flat open country, and you will have come as far off as Babylon; and from that place the Lord your God shall redeem you from the hand of your enemies.

Now many nations have gathered against you, saying, “We will rejoice, and our eyes will gaze upon Zion.” 12 But they do not know the thoughts of the Lord nor perceive His counsel, for He gathered them like sheaves for the threshing floor.

Arise and thresh them, O daughter of Zion, for I shall make your horns iron, and I will make your hooves bronze. And you will cause the nations to melt away, and you will winnow many peoples. You will dedicate their abundance to the Lord and their strength to the Lord of all the earth. 14 Now the daughter of Ephraim will be blockaded by a siege wall; for he ordered affliction against us, and they shall smite the tribes of Israel with a rod upon the cheek.”
“And you, O Bethlehem, House of Ephrathah, though you are fewest in number among the thousands of Judah, yet out of you shall come forth to me the One to be ruler of Israel. His goings forth were from the beginning, even from everlasting.”Therefore He shall give them up until the appointed time for her to give birth, and then the remnant of their brothers will return to the sons of Israel. And He shall stand and see, and shepherd His flock in the strength of the Lord, and they will dwell in the glory of the name of the Lord their God, for now they will be magnified unto the ends of the earth. And she will have peace; for when the Assyrian comes into our land and goes up upon our country, then seven shepherds and eight attacks from men will be raised up against them.

They will tend the Assyrian with a sword and the land of Nimrod in her trench. And He shall deliver you from the Assyrian should he come into your land, and should he come up over your borders. And the remnant of Jacob will be among the nations, in the midst of many peoples, as dew falling from the Lord and as lambs in a field of grass, in order that none among the sons of men may assemble together nor resist. And the remnant of Jacob will be among the nations, in the midst of many peoples, as a lion among the cattle in the forest, and as a young lion among a flock of sheep, which, whenever it passes through, seizes and carries off its prey, and there is none to rescue. But your hand will be exalted above those oppressing you, and all your enemies will be completely cut off.

“And it shall come to pass in that day,” says the Lord, “I shall utterly destroy your horses from your midst and destroy your chariots. I shall utterly destroy the cities of your land and demolish all your strongholds. And I shall drive away your sorceries out of your hands, and there shall be no soothsayers among you. I shall utterly destroy your carved images and the sacred pillars from your midst, and you will no longer worship the work of your hands; and I shall cut off your sacred groves from your midst and destroy your cities. And I shall exact vengeance on the nations with wrath and anger among those who did not heed.”

Now hear the word of the Lord. The Lord says, “Arise, plead your case before the mountains, and let the hills hear your voice.”Hear, O mountains, the judgment of the Lord, and you valleys, the foundations of the earth; for the Lord has a case against His people, and He will contend with Israel.

3 O My people, what have I done to you? How have I grieved you? Answer Me!† 4 For I brought you up from the land of Egypt and redeemed you from the house of bondage; and I sent you Moses, and Aaron, and Miriam.

5 O My people, remember now what King Balak of Moab plotted against you, and what answer Balaam the son of Beor gave to him from the reeds as far as to Gilgal, that the righteousness of the Lord might be known.”

6 How shall I come to understand the Lord and devote myself to the Most High God? Shall I reach Him with burnt offerings? with year-old calves? 7 Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams? or with a myriad of streams of oil? Should I give my firstborn for my ungodliness, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? 8 He has shown you, O man, what is good. Or what does the Lord seek from you but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to be ready to walk with the Lord your God?†

9 The Lord's voice shall be proclaimed in the city, and He shall save those who fear His name. “Hear, O tribe, who will put the city in order? 10 For is there not a fire there, and the house of the lawless storing up lawless treasures with insolent unrighteousness? 11 Will the lawless be justified by a balance scale or a bag of deceitful weights 12 from which they accumulated their ungodly wealth? And those that dwell in the city have spoken lies and exalted themselves with their own mouth.

13 “Therefore I will begin to smite you; I will destroy you because of your sins. 14 You shall eat but not be satisfied, and there will be darkness upon you, and he will depart without being noticed, and you will not be rescued; and all who do escape will be given over to the sword. 15 You will sow, but you will not reap. You will press olives, but you will not anoint yourself with oil. And you will make wine, but you will not drink any of it, and the statutes of my people will be utterly abolished. 16 For you have kept the ordinances of Omri and done all the works of the house of Ahab. You walked in their counsels, so that I should deliver you over to complete destruction and make your inhabitants into a hissing, and you will bear the reproach of the peoples.”

(trust not in men)
Woe is me! For I have become like one harvesting stubble, like one gleaning small grapes after the vintage grapes are picked, but not finding for myself any cluster of first fruit to eat. Woe is me, O my soul! 2 For the God-fearing man has perished from the earth, and there is no one upright among the men. They all lie in wait, even unto blood, and each one grievously oppresses his neighbor. 3 They prepare their hands for evil; the prince demands a gift, and the judge speaks flattering words; it is the desire of their soul. “Thus I shall take away 4 their good things as the moth who eats away, and as one proceeding by the rule in the day of the watch. Alas! alas! the time of your vengeance is come; now shall be their lamentation. 5 Do not trust in friends, nor put your hope in those who govern. Beware of your wife and do not tell her anything. 6 For a son dishonors his father, a daughter will rise up against her mother, a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; a man's enemies are all the people of his own house.”

Hope in the Lord

But I will look to the Lord. I will wait for God my Savior, for my God will hear me. 8 Do not rejoice over me, O my enemy, for though I have fallen, yet will I arise, because even if I should sit in darkness, the Lord will be a light to me. 9 I will endure the wrath of the Lord, for I sinned against Him, until He pleads my cause; for He will execute my judgment and will bring me out into the light, and I will perceive His righteousness. 10 And my enemy will see it, and he who says to me, “Where is the Lord your God?” will be clothed with shame. And my eyes will look upon him, and now he will be for trampling upon as mud in the streets.

In the days when your bricks are being plastered—that day will be your destruction, and your ordinances will be abolished. 12 In that day even your cities will be leveled to the ground and divided among the Assyrians; your fortified cities will be divided from Tyre as far as the River of Syria; it will be a day of flood and chaos. 13 And the land will become totally desolate together with those dwelling in it, because of the fruit of their practices.

Shepherd Your people with Your staff, the sheep of Your inheritance, those dwelling solitarily in the thicket in the midst of Carmel. They will feed in Bashan and in Gilead, as in days of old. 15 And as in the days of your departure from the land of Egypt, you will see many wonders. 16 The Gentiles will see and be ashamed of all their might. They will cover their mouth with their hands, and their ears will become deaf. 17 They shall lick the dust like serpents crawling on the earth; they will be confounded in their confinement and be amazed at the Lord our God, and they will be afraid of You.

18 Who is a God like You, removing wrongdoings and passing over the ungodliness of the remnant of His inheritance? He does not keep His anger as a witness, for He delights in mercy.† 19 He will return and have compassion on us. He will subdue our transgressions, and all our sins will be cast into the depths of the sea. 20 You will give truthfulness to Jacob and mercy to Abraham, as You swore to our ancestors from days of old.

The Book of Joel

Author—Traditionally the prophet Joel (commemorated October 19), son of Pethuel, of the tribe of Reuben. His is a common Jewish name, meaning “Yahweh is God.” Nothing is known of his life outside of his short prophecy.

Date—Any number of dates have been suggested for Joel’s life. Fathers such as Ss. Jerome and Isidore place Joel in the time of the prophets Isaiah and Hosea, about 740 BC. Tradition held Joel to be one of the earlier prophets; modern scholars are undecided about the matter, often placing him at about 450–400 BC, after the restoration of Israel from exile.

Major Theme—Ultimately, the Lord is victorious. Three major themes are prominent. (1) A call summoning the people of God to turn their sorrow into penitence (1:1–2:17). (2) The faithfulness of God to rise up on behalf of His people, restore their prosperity, and bring the nations to justice (2:18–27). (3) The coming of the Holy Spirit, the Third Person of the Trinity (3:1–5). Joel emphasizes the universal mission of the Spirit, anticipating the Day of Pentecost, when He is poured out on all flesh.

Background—It is likely the prophet Joel wrote in the face of a double disaster—the attack of military aggressors such as the Babylonians, and the onset of a plague of locusts. The prophet freely switches between the two calamities, likening them to each other. As the narrative proceeds, Joel employs two distinct prophetic genres: (1) he calls his people to contrition and repentance; and (2) he uses vivid apocalyptic imagery to convey deep spiritual truths. The contrast created by these two approaches prompted St. Jerome to comment, “Joel is clear at the beginning, but at the end more obscure.”

Outline

I. Devastation in Israel (1:1–20)
II. Call to Repentance (2:1–17)
III. The Deliverance of the Lord (2:18–27)
IV. The Outpouring of the Holy Spirit (3:1–5)
V. The Judgment of the Nations (4:1–17)
VI. The Prosperity of Zion (4:18–21)
The word of the Lord came to Joel the son of Pethuel.

Invasion of the Locusts and the Caterpillars

Hear this, you elders, and give ear, all of you inhabiting the land. Have such things happened in your days or in the days of your fathers?

Tell your children about this, and your children to their children, and their children to the next generation.

What the caterpillars have left is eaten by the grasshopper, and what the grasshoppers have left is eaten by the locust, and what the locusts have left is infected with red blight.

Get sober, you who are drunk from your wine, and weep, mourn all you who drink wine, for joy and gladness are removed from your mouth.

For a nation strong and numberless came up against My land. His teeth are the teeth of a lion and his molars those of a young lion.

He laid waste My vine and splintered My fig tree. He diligently searched out and uprooted My vine, peeling off its outer bark.

Mourn before Me more than a virgin bride clothed with sackcloth for the husband of her youth.

The meat-offering and the drink-offering are removed from the house of the Lord.

Mourn, you priests, you who serve at the altar, for the fields languish and the land mourns; for the grain withers, the wine is dried up, and the olive oil is scarce.

The farmers are exhausted. Mourn for the sake of your fields of wheat and barley, for the harvest from the field has been lost.

The vine is shriveled up, and the fig trees are scarce in number. The pomegranate and the palm tree, the apple tree and all the trees of the field are withered, for they put to shame the delight of the sons of men.

Gird yourself with sackcloth and wail, you priests. Mourn, you who serve at the altar. Go in, sleep in sackcloth, you who minister unto God, for the grain-offering and drink-offering are withheld from the house of your God.

Sanctify a fast. Call a solemn assembly. Gather all the elders and all the people of the land into the house of the Lord your God, and cry out fervently to the Lord.

Alas! Alas! Alas! For the day of the Lord draws near, and it will come as misery upon misery.

The food is completely destroyed before your eyes; joy and gladness are removed from the house of your God.

The heifers are restless in their stalls, and the storehouses are emptied. The winepresses are broken down; the grain is withered.

What will we store up
The herds of cattle groaned because there was no pasture, and the flocks of sheep are no more.

19 O Lord, I will cry out to You, for fire has devoured the pleasant places of the wilderness, and a flame burned all the trees of the field.† 20 And the cattle of the field also look up to You, because the brooks are dried up and fire has devoured the pleasant places of the wilderness.†

The Day of the Lord

2 Sound the trumpet in Zion; make a proclamation in My holy mountain. Let all the inhabitants of the land be confounded, for the day of the Lord is near;† 2 a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of cloud and of dense fog. About daybreak a people both strong and great in number will be spread upon the mountains, the likes of whom have never been nor will come after them, not even for many generations. 3 Before them is a consuming fire and behind them a flame set ablaze. Before them the land is as a paradise of splendor, but behind them a desolate plain; no one will be able to escape them.

4 Their outward appearance is as the appearance of horses, and thus as horsemen they will pursue.† 5 They shall bound upon the tops of the mountains as the sound of chariots, as the sound of a flame of fire devouring straw, as a great number of mighty men setting themselves in battle array. 6 Before them the people will be crushed; every face shall be as the blackness of a cauldron. 7 As warriors they shall march quickly, and they will climb the walls like men of war. Everyone shall march in formation; they will never break their ranks. 8 They will not separate from their comrades and will march weighed down with their arms. And though they fall by their arrows, even so they will not be stopped. 9 They will seize the city and run on the wall. They will climb into the houses and enter the windows as do thieves. 10 Before their presence the land will be confounded, and the sky will be shaken. The sun and moon will grow dark, and the stars will hold back their brightness. 11 And because the day of the Lord is great and exceedingly glorious, the Lord shall utter His voice before the face of His army, for His army is numberless, and the works of His words are mighty. Who shall resist?

12 Now says the Lord your God, “Turn to Me with all your heart, with fasting and wailing and with mourning;† 13 rend your heart and not your garments. Return to the Lord your God, for He is merciful and compassionate. He is longsuffering and plenteous in mercy and repents of evils. 14 Who knows if He will return and change His mind—if He will leave a blessing behind Him, even an offering and drink-offering to the Lord our God?"

15Sound the trumpet in Zion, sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly; 16gather the people, sanctify the congregation, call out the elders, and gather the nursing infants. Let the bridegroom go out from his bedchamber and the bride out of her bridal chamber. 17Between the porch and the altar, the priests of the altar, ministering to the Lord, will each be weeping and will say, “O Lord, spare Your people; do not give Your inheritance to reproach, that the Gentiles should rule over them, lest they should say among the Gentiles, ‘Where is their God?’ ”

God's Blessing upon His People

18But the Lord was zealous for His land and spared His people. 19And the Lord answered His people and said, “Behold, I send you wheat, wine, and oil, and you will be satisfied with them. I will no longer make you a reproach among the nations, and I will drive the army from the north away from you, and I shall force him into a dry land. I will drown his face in the eastern sea and his back in the western sea; its stench and foul smell will rise up, because he has done powerful works.”

21O land, be of good courage; be glad and rejoice, for the Lord has done great things.

22Take courage, you beasts of the field, for the plains of the wilderness have budded, and the trees bear their fruit. And again the vine and the fig tree yield their full potency.

23And you children of Zion, be glad and rejoice in the Lord your God, for He gives food that is right for you, and He will shower you as before with the early and the late rain. 24The threshing floors shall be full of wheat, and the presses of wine and olive oil will overflow.

25“And I will restore to you the years the grasshopper and the locust have eaten, and for the blight, and the caterpillar, even for My great army, which I sent against you. 26You will eat abundantly and be satisfied and will praise the name of the Lord your God for what He has so wondrously done unto you. And My people will not be put to shame forever. 27Then you shall know that I am in the midst of Israel; that I am the Lord your God, and there is no other but Me. And at no time will My people be put to shame forever.

The Promise of the Holy Spirit

“After this it shall come to pass that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh; your sons and daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions.† 2And in those days I shall pour out My Spirit on My servants and on My handmaids.

3And I shall give wonders in the heavens and upon the earth, blood and fire and vapor of smoke. 4The sun shall be turned into darkness and the moon into blood before the great and glorious day of the Lord comes to pass. 5And it shall be that whoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved, for in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the Lord Himself said, and there shall be proclamation of the good news to those whom the Lord Himself called.††

The Coming Day of Judgment

4 “For behold, in those days and at that time, when I bring back the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem,† 2I shall also gather all the nations together and bring them down to the Valley of Jehoshaphat, and there I will enter into judgment against them on account of My people and My inheritance Israel, who were dispersed among the nations—against those who divided My land,† 3and who cast lots over My people, and traded boys for prostitutes, and sold girls for the wine they drank. 4Indeed, O Tyre and Sidon, and all the coast of Philistia, what have you to do with Me? Are you paying Me back for a grudge you hold against Me? If so, I shall return your retaliation swiftly and immediately upon your own head,† 5because you have taken My silver and My gold and taken My precious possessions into your temples, 6and because you sold the sons of Judah and Jerusalem to the sons of the Greeks in order to exile them far from their borders.† 7Behold, I shall raise them up from the place where you sold them, and I shall return your retribution upon your own head. 8I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hands of the sons of Judah, and they will sell them into captivity to a far distant nation, for the Lord has spoken.”

9Proclaim these things among the nations: “Prepare for war; arouse the warriors; draw near and go up, all you men of war.† 10Beat your plowshares into swords and your pruning hooks into spears. Let the weak say, ‘I am strong.’† 11Assemble together and join in, all you nations round about. And in that place, gather yourselves together; let the gentle be warlike. 12Let all the nations rouse themselves and come up to the Valley of Jehoshaphat, for there I shall sit to judge all the nations round about.

13“Bring out the sickles, for the harvest is ripe. Come in and tread the grapes, for the winepress is full, the wine vats overflow; for their wickedness is multiplied.† 14The news resounded in the valley of judgment, for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of judgment.† 15The sun and moon shall become dark, and the stars shall withdraw their light.† 16And the Lord shall cry out from Zion, and He shall utter His voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and earth will quake, but the Lord shall keep His people safe and shall strengthen the sons of Israel.† 17So you shall know that I am the Lord your God, the one dwelling in Zion on My holy mountain. Then Jerusalem shall be a holy city, and no more will strangers pass through her.

The Final Restoration of God's Own

18“And it will come to pass in that day that the mountains shall drip sweetness, and milk shall flow from the hills, and all the brooks of Judah shall flow with water. And a fountain shall flow out from the house of the Lord, and it will supply water to the Valley of Acacias. 19Egypt shall become a desolation and Edom a wilderness because of the wrongdoings against the people of Judah, because of the innocent blood shed in their land.† 20But Judah shall be inhabited forever and Jerusalem unto generations of generations. 21And I shall avenge their blood and shall not let it go unpunished. The Lord shall dwell in Zion.”†

The Book of Obadiah

Author—The prophet Obadiah, whose name means “servant of the Lord.” Nothing is known about him except that he wrote down this brief prophecy.

Date—Sometime near 587 BC. Internal evidence (vv. 11–14) seems to connect the book to the time of the overthrow of Jerusalem by the Babylonians. If this is the case, Obadiah would be a contemporary of the prophet Jeremiah.

Major Theme—The destruction of Edom and the restoration of Israel.

Background—The people of Edom (the descendants of Esau, the twin brother of Jacob) were intense rivals and enemies of Israel. They even assisted the Babylonians in the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 BC and took the occasion to occupy some of the territory of Judah. God raised up the prophet Obadiah to pronounce judgment on Edom's arrogance and to proclaim that the Lord is the defender of what is right and the vindicator of the poor and the oppressed.

Judgment of Edom

1 The vision of Obadiah. Thus says the Lord God to Edom: “I heard a report from the Lord, and He sent out a message to the nations, saying, ‘Arise, and let us rise up against her for battle.’

† 2 Behold, I have made you least among the nations; you are greatly dishonored.

† 3 The arrogance of your heart exalts you, dwelling as you do in the clefts of the rocks, as one overconfident in his habitation, saying in his heart, ‘Who will bring me down to the ground?’

4 If you should ascend as the eagle, and if you should make your nest amongst the stars, from there I shall bring you down,” says the Lord.

† 5 “If thieves come upon you or robbers by night, then to what place will you escape? Will they not steal a considerable amount for themselves? And surely if grape-gatherers come to you, will they not leave a gleaning? How
Esau has been searched out, and his hidden things seized! All your allies force you to your borders. Men at peace with you oppose you and prevail against you. They set an ambush below you; there is no understanding in them.

8“In that day,” says the Lord, “I shall destroy the wise men from Edom and understanding from the mountain of Esau.†

9And your warriors from Teman will be terrified, in order that everyone from the mountain of Esau may be cut off. 10Because of the slaughter and ungodliness against your brother Jacob, shame shall cover you, and you will be cut off forever. 11Because of that day in which you stood back and only watched the capture, his forces being led away as captives by foreigners; in the day when they entered his gates and cast lots for Jerusalem—on that day you were as one of them. 12And you should not have looked on the day of your brother, on the day of foreigners, and you should not have rejoiced against the children of Judah in the day of their destruction, nor spoken boastfully on the day of distress.† 13Neither should you have gone into the gates of the people on the day of their suffering. Neither should you have looked upon their gathering in the day of their ruin, and you should not have joined in the attack on their forces in the day of their destruction. 14Nor should you have stood at their mountain passes to put to death those escaping; nor should you have taken prisoner those fleeing from them in the day of trial.

15“For the day of the Lord is near against all the nations. For as you have done, it shall be done to you in the same manner. Your recompense shall return on your own head.† 16For in the same way that you drank on My holy mountain, so too shall all the nations drink wine. They will drink and will be brought down, and it will be as if they never existed.

17“But deliverance will come to Mount Zion, and it will be holy. And the house of Jacob shall obtain their inheritance as their rightful inheritance. 18And the house of Jacob shall be the fire, and the house of Joseph the flame; but the house of Esau shall be the stubble and will be devoured in flames, and no one of the house of Esau will survive,” for the Lord has spoken.

19And those who dwell in the Negev shall inherit the mountain of Esau, and those of the Sephelah the land of the Philistines. They will inherit the mountain of Ephraim, the plains of Samaria and Benjamin, and the land of Gilead.† 20For the captivity of the sons of Israel shall possess the land of the Canaanite as far as Zarephath; the captivity of Jerusalem as far as Ephratha shall possess the cities of the Negev. 21And those who have been rescued shall ascend from Mount Zion to exact vengeance on the mountain of Esau, and the kingdom shall be the Lord's.

The Book of Jonah

Author—The prophet Jonah (commemorated September 21) is traditionally considered to be the author. He was an inhabitant of the city of Gath Hepher (4Kg 14:25) within the tribal borders of Zebulun, about five miles north of Nazareth. His name means “a dove.”

Date—Perhaps 784–772 BC. The experience of Jonah occurred during the reign of King Jeroboam II of Israel (790–750 BC).

Major Theme—The universality of God's mercy. The compassion of the Lord is not limited to the Jews, but extends to all people, even to the enemies of God's people. Jonah's reluctance to carry out God's command and his disappointment when God acts mercifully are a result of his narrow-minded nationalism, shared with many Jews of the postexilic period.

Background—The only other historical reference to Jonah comes from 4Kg 14:25, which mentions “Jonah the son of Amittai, the prophet from Gath Hepher.” In the Orthodox Church's liturgical tradition, the Book of Jonah is read in its entirety on Holy Saturday. The third-day deliverance of Jonah from the great fish is a foretaste of the third-day Resurrection of Christ.

We sing, “Jonah was enclosed but not held fast in the belly of the whale; for, serving as a figure of You, who were buried in the tomb, he leapt forth from the monster as from a bridal chamber and he called out to the watch: O you who keep guard falsely and in vain, you have forsaken your own mercy.”

Outline

I. First Calling of Jonah (1:1–2:11)
   A. Jonah's disobedience (1:1–3)
   B. God's judgment and rescue (1:4–16)
   C. Jonah's prayer and deliverance (2:1–11)
II. Second Calling of Jonah (3:1–4:11)
   A. Jonah's obedience (3:1–4)
   B. Nineveh's repentance (3:5–10)
Now the word of the Lord came to Jonah the son of Amittai, saying,

1 Arise and go to Nineveh, the great city, and preach in it; for the cry of her wickedness has come up to me.

2 But Jonah rose up to flee to Tarshish from the presence of the Lord. So he went down to Joppa and found a ship going to Tarshish, paid his fare, and boarded the ship to set sail with them to Tarshish, away from the presence of the Lord.

3 But the Lord raised up a great wind upon the sea, and there came about a mighty tempest, and the ship was in danger of breaking up.

4 And the mariners were afraid and cried out, each one to his god. And they cast out the cargo of the ship into the sea, attempting to lighten the ship. But Jonah had gone below into the hold of the ship, had gone to sleep, and was snoring.

5 The captain came to him and said, “Why are you snoring? Get up and call upon your God, that your God may keep us safe so we do not perish.”

6 And each one said to his shipmate, “Come! Let us cast lots and find out on whose account this calamity is upon us.” So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.

7 Then they said to him, “Tell us, what is your occupation? Where do you come from and from what country and people are you?”

8 And he said to them, “I am a servant of the Lord, and I worship the Lord God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land.”

9 Then the men were exceedingly afraid and said to him, “What is this that you did?” For the men knew he was fleeing from the presence of the Lord, because he had told them.

10 Then they said to him, “What should we do to you that the sea will calm itself for us?” For the sea continued to be tempestuous, and the waves rose up even higher.

11 And Jonah said to them, “Take me up and cast me into the sea, and the sea will grow calm for you, for I know this great tempest is upon you because of me.”

12 And the men tried hard to return to the land, but were unable to do so, for the sea arose and grew even more tempestuous against them.

13 Then they cried out to the Lord and said, “Please, O Lord, do not let us perish on account of this man's life, nor bring righteous blood upon us; for you, O Lord, have brought this about.”† 15So they took up Jonah and threw him into the sea, and the sea ceased from its raging. 16And the men feared the Lord even more, and they offered a sacrifice to the Lord and vowed vows.

Jonah's Song of Thanksgiving

Now the Lord commanded a huge sea creature to swallow Jonah, and Jonah was in the belly of the sea creature three days and three nights.† 2And from the belly of the sea creature, Jonah prayed to the Lord his God,† 3and said:

“I cried out in my affliction to the Lord, my God,
And He heard my voice;
Out of the belly of Hades, You heard the cry of my voice.†
4You cast me into the depths of the heart of the sea,
And rivers encompassed me;
All Your surging waters and Your waves passed over me.
5And I said, 'I have been driven away from Your sight;
Shall I again look with favor toward Your holy temple?'
6Water is poured over me to my soul;
The lowest depth encircled me;
My head plunged into the clefts of the mountains.
7I descended into the earth,
The bars of which are everlasting barriers;
Yet let my life ascend from corruption, O Lord, my God.
8When my soul was failing from me, I remembered the Lord.
May my prayer be brought to You, into Your holy temple.
9Those who follow vanity and lies forsake their own mercy.
10But with a voice of thanksgiving and praise,
I will sacrifice to You.
As much as I vowed, I shall offer up to You,
To You, the Lord of Deliverance.”†

11Then the Lord commanded the sea creature, and it cast up Jonah onto the dry land.

The Repentance of Nineveh
Now the word of the Lord came to Jonah a second time, saying, "Arise and go to Nineveh, the great city, and preach there according to the message I previously spoke to you." So Jonah arose and went to Nineveh, just as the Lord spoke. Nineveh was an exceedingly great city to God, a journey of about three days. And Jonah began to enter into the city, going a day's journey, where he proclaimed and said, "Yet three days and Nineveh shall be overthrown."

And the men of Nineveh believed God. They proclaimed a fast and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them to the least. Then the word came to the king of Nineveh; and he arose from his throne, removed his robe, and put on sackcloth, and sat upon ashes. And it was proclaimed and spoken in Nineveh by the king and by his great men, saying, "Let not the men, cattle, oxen, or sheep taste anything, eat, or drink water." So the men and the cattle were clothed with sackcloth, and they cried out fervently to God; and they each turned back from their evil ways and from the wrongdoings of their hands, saying, "Who knows if God shall have a change of heart and turn from His fierce anger, that we should not perish?"

And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil ways. And God had a change of heart about the evil which He said He would do to them, and He did not do it.

Jonah Is Grieved by the Lord's Compassion

But Jonah was deeply grieved and was troubled. So he prayed to the Lord and said, "O Lord, were these not my words when I was yet in my land? Therefore I saw the need to flee to Tarshish; because I knew You to be compassionate and merciful, longsuffering and abundant in mercy, and willing to change your heart concerning evils. And now, Master, Lord, take my life from me, for it is better for me to die than to live."

And the Lord said to Jonah, "Are you exceedingly grieved?" Then Jonah went out of the city and seated himself opposite it. There he made for himself a tent and sat under its shade, until he might observe what would happen to the city. And the Lord God commanded a gourd, and it came up over the head of Jonah to be a shade over his head, to shield him from his discontents. Jonah rejoiced with great joy because of the gourd. But early the next morning, God commanded a worm, and it smote the gourd, and the gourd withered up. And when the sun rose, God commanded a burning east wind; and the sun beat down on the head of Jonah, and he grew faint and despaired of his life. And he said, "It is better for me to die
Then God said to Jonah, “Are you exceedingly grieved on account of the gourd?” And he said, “I am exceedingly grieved, even unto death.” And the Lord said, “You took pity on the gourd, for which you did not labor, nor did you make it grow, which came up during the night and perished before the next night. And shall I Myself not take pity upon Nineveh, the great city, in which dwell more than one hundred and twenty thousand people who do not know either their right hand or their left—and many livestock?”†

The Book of Nahum

Author—The prophet Nahum (commemorated December 1). His name means “consolation.” He was from the tribe of Simeon and a contemporary of the prophets Zephaniah, Jeremiah, and Habakkuk.

Date—Between 663 BC (the fall of Thebes) and 612 BC (the fall of Nineveh)

Major Theme—God's judgment and the destruction of Nineveh (capital of the Assyrian Empire) for its idolatry, oppression, cruelty, and wickedness. Justice will prevail. God is the Lord of history and of all nations, and their destinies are in His hands. Christ is revealed as the One who brings good tidings and proclaims peace (1:15).

Background—The Assyrians had invaded Israel and Judah several times in the eighth and seventh centuries BC. They were ruthless and cruel to the conquered peoples, deporting them to other lands and bringing in foreigners to mingle with the few Jews who were left. The prophet Jonah was sent by God to preach to the inhabitants of Nineveh during this time, and they repented. However, within a few generations the evil and wickedness of their forefathers returned, and the city was at its zenith of power and wickedness when the prophet Nahum prophesied its destruction.

The Lord Judges His Enemies
The burden against Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum the Elkoshite.

God is jealous, and the Lord is an avenger; the Lord is avenging with fury; the Lord takes vengeance on His adversaries and drives out His enemies. The Lord is patient and His power is great, but the Lord will not acquit the guilty. His way is in destruction and in a whirlwind; the clouds are the dust of His feet. He threatens the sea and makes it dry, and he dries up all the rivers. Bashan and Carmel have diminished, and the flowers of Lebanon have died out. By Him the mountains are shaken and the hills quake, and the earth heaves at His presence—the whole earth and all who dwell in it. Who can stand before His wrath? Who can withstand the fierceness of His anger? His fury melts away ruling powers, and He shatters the rocks into pieces.

The Lord is merciful to those who wait on Him in the day of affliction, and He knows those who reverence Him. For with an overwhelming flood He shall make an end to those rising up, and darkness will pursue His enemies. What do you plot against the Lord? He shall bring about a complete end to it; He will not twice punish with affliction for the same thing, for the enemy shall be laid bare even to the foundations, and consumed as twisted yew, even as fully dried stubble.

From out of you shall come forth a plot against the Lord, counseling things hostile to Him. Thus says the Lord who rules over many waters: “In the same manner you will be torn apart, and the report of you will no longer be heard. And now I will break his rod from off you, and I will break your bonds.” The Lord shall Himself give a command concerning you: “Your name shall be perpetuated no longer. I will utterly destroy the graven and molten images out of the house of your god. I shall dig your grave, and that quickly!”

The Judgment of Nineveh

Behold, on the mountains the feet of him that brings good tidings and proclaims peace. O Judah, celebrate your feasts, pay your vows; for in no way shall they pass through you as one who is beaten. He is completely destroyed; he has been removed. The one being delivered from affliction has come up breathing in your presence. Watch the road, gird your loins, and be valiant in your strength!

For the Lord has turned away the pride of Jacob, just as He did the pride of Israel, for the shakers have shaken them off and completely destroyed their branches.

4The weapons of their power from men—mocking mighty men with fire, the reins of their chariots in the day of their readiness, and their horsemen—shall be thrown into a state of confusion in the streets, and the chariots shall clash and become entangled with one another in the broad roads. Their appearance is as torches of fire and flashing lightning.

6And their great men will be remembered, and they will flee by day. They will be weak as they go on their way; they will hasten to the walls, and they will prepare their advance defenses.

7The gates of the rivers have been opened, and the palaces have fallen into ruin, and the foundation has been exposed. She has gone up, and her bondwomen were led away as doves moaning in their hearts.

9And as for Nineveh, her waters are as a pool of water, and fleeing away, they did not stand; there was no one paying attention.

10They were plundering the silver, they were plundering the gold—and there was no end of her treasures; they have been weighed down by all her precious things.

11There is thrusting, shaking, and tumult, and breaking of hearts and weakening of knees, agony in every loin, and the face of each one appearing as the blackening of a pot.

12Where is the dwelling place of the lions and the feeding place for her cubs? Where did the lion go, that the lion's cub should go where there is none to scare him away?

13The lion carried off sufficient prey for his cubs, and he strangled prey for his lions and filled his lair with prey, even his dwelling-place of plunder.

14“Behold, I am against you,” says the Lord Almighty; “I shall burn up your multitude in smoke, and the sword will devour your lions. I shall utterly destroy your prey from the land, and your deeds shall never again be heard.”

The Wickedness of Nineveh

O city of blood, totally false and full of unrighteousness: the prey will not be touched.

2The cracking of whips and the sound of rumbling wheels, the galloping horses and bounding chariots, cavalrmen in full charge with the glistening of swords and the glittering of weapons, a multitude of wounded and of heavy falling; and there was no end to her nations, but they will be weak in their bodies because of the abundance of sexual immorality. She is a prostitute who is cultured and pleasing, skilled in the art of sorcery, selling the nations with her sexual immorality and the people by her sorceries.
“Behold, I am against you,” says the Lord God Almighty. “I shall uncover your backside in your presence, and I shall make known your shame to the nations and your disgrace to the kingdoms. I shall cast abominable filth upon you according to your uncleanness, and I shall cause you to be a public example. And it will be that all who see you will turn away from you and say, ‘Wretched Nineveh, who shall lament her? Where shall I seek consolation for her?’ ”

Prepare yourself a portion, tune the string of the lyre, and prepare a portion for Amon, the one dwelling by the rivers with the river round about her, whose dominion is the sea and the water her walls. Ethiopia is her strength, and Egypt as well, and there is no limit to her flight, and the Libyans became her helper. And she will go into captivity as a prisoner, and they will dash her infants to the ground at the heads of all the streets; they will cast lots over all her splendid things, and all her nobles will be bound in chains. And you will become drunk and be disregarded. You will seek for yourself a place of refuge from your enemies. All your strongholds are as fig trees having a watchman: if shaken, they will fall into the mouth of the eater! Behold, your people are as women among you. The gates of your land shall be wide open to your enemies, and fire will destroy the bars of your gates.

Draw water for the siege and fortify your strongholds. Trample the clay and tread it with straw; make it stronger than brick. There the fire will devour you, and the sword will utterly destroy you. It will devour you as a locust, and you will be oppressed as a locust. You have multiplied your commerce beyond the stars of heaven; the locust has attacked and flown away. As a grasshopper, your crowd of half-breeds has suddenly left, as a locust perched on a hedge on a frosty morning; the sun rises and it flies away. It does not know its place. Woe to them! Your shepherds slumber; the king of Assyria put your nobles to rest; your people departed to the mountains, and there was no one expecting them. There is no healing your destruction. Your wound is festering. All those hearing the news of you shall clap their hands over you, for upon whom has not your wickedness passed continually?

The Book of Habakkuk

Author—The prophet Habakkuk (commemorated December 2). Some traditions tell us he was the son of Sapnat, of the tribe of Simeon, prophesying in Judah six hundred years before Christ, in the time of King Manasseh. This would make him a contemporary of the Prophets Nahum, Jeremiah, Daniel, and Zephaniah.

Date—About 605 BC, during the weakening and collapse of the Southern Kingdom of Judah (626–586 BC) and before the arrival of the Babylonians in Palestine.

Major Theme—The problem of evil. Habakkuk agonizes in his soul that wickedness, strife, and oppression are rampant in Judah, but God seemingly does nothing about it. His perplexity intensifies when he learns God will judge Judah by the hands of the Babylonians, who are more wicked and ruthless than those being judged! In the end, he learns to rest and trust in God’s dealings with His creation.

Our Lord Jesus Christ is prophesied in this book as the Lord in His holy temple (2:20) and the One who comes from afar to visit His People with salvation (3:3—quoted in the hymns of the Royal Hours of the Nativity).

Background—Our Orthodox tradition states that this same prophet was indeed the one who was miraculously transported to Babylon and who visited and ministered to Daniel the Prophet in the lions’ den (Bel and the Serpent 33–37). Habakkuk entered into rest in great old age, and his relics were discovered during the reign of Theodosius the Great in the fourth century.

The prophecy is set against the backdrop of the approaching Babylonians, who destroyed Jerusalem in 587 BC. The people of Judah were living in wealth and luxury, and the society was showing signs of rot and collapse. The rich were unjust and greedy, disregarding the needs of the poor, the widows or the orphans. The judges were entirely corrupt.

VI. The Prayer of Habakkuk (3:1–19)

1 The burden which the prophet Habakkuk saw.

The Prophet Complains of Injustice

2 How long, O Lord, shall I cry out to You, and You will not hear me? Being wronged I cry out to You; You will not save.†

3 Why have You shown me hardship and suffering, to look upon misery and ungodliness? Judgment is before me, and the judge takes bribes. Therefore the law is disregarded and justice is done ineffectually, for the ungodly oppress the righteous; therefore justice shall go forth perverted.

The Lord Answers

5 “Behold, you scoffers, take notice; look and be amazed and be gone, for I am working a work in your days which you would not believe even if someone told it to you.†

6 For behold, I am raising up against you the Chaldeans, a bitter and hasty nation that marches through the breadth of the earth to take possession of dwellings that are not theirs. He is terrible and awesome. His judgment and dignity proceeds from himself.†

7 Their horses bound more swiftly than leopards, and they are more fierce than the wolves of Arabia. His horsemen will ride out far away. They will spread out from afar, and they will fly as an eagle eager for its food. Destruction will come upon the ungodly, opposing their advances from the opposite side, and like sand will he gather the captivity.†

8 And he will revel in kings, and princes will be his plaything; he shall mock every fortified city and put up a siege mound and capture it. Then he will change his spirit, and he will pass through and he will make an atonement saying, ‘This strength is from my god.’ †

A Further Complaint of Injustice

12 Are You not from everlasting, O Lord God, my Holy One? O Lord, surely we shall not die. O Lord, You have ordered it for judgment; He has formed me to reprove for His instruction.†

13 His eye is too pure to see evil, and You are not able to look upon affliction. Why then do
You pay attention to those who scoff and keep silence when the ungodly swallow up the just?

14And will you make men to be like the fish of the sea and as the reptiles with no one leading them?

† 15He has brought up destruction with a fishhook, drawn it with his casting net, and gathered it in his dragnets. Because of this he will be glad, and his heart will rejoice.

16On account of this he will sacrifice to his dragnet and burn incense to his casting net. For by them he has enriched his portion, and his foods are choice.

† 17Therefore, he will throw out his casting net, and he will not spare to kill all the nations.

The Lord Answers the Prophet's Complaints

I will stand on my watch, mounted upon the rock, and see what He shall say to me, and what might I answer when I am reproved?

2And the Lord answered me and said, “Write the vision distinctly upon a tablet, that he who reads it may flee.

† 3For the vision is yet for an appointed time, and it will come up at the end, and it will not be in vain; if he should tarry, wait for him, for he will surely come, and he will not tarry.

4“If any man should shrink back, My soul will not be well pleased in him; but the righteous shall live by My faith.

† 5But the one who is drunk and the scoffer, the man who boasts, shall accomplish nothing; he widened his soul as the grave, and as death he is never satisfied, and he will gather to himself all the nations and will take to himself all the peoples.

† 6Shall not all these take up a parable against him and a proverb for his history? And they shall say, ‘Woe to him who multiplies to himself possessions which are not his. How long will this continue? And who heavily presses down his yoke?’

† 7For suddenly those biting at him shall rise up, and they who plot against you will sober up, and you shall be as plunder to them.

8Because you have plundered many nations, all the people who remain shall plunder you, because of the men's blood and the sins of the land, and of the city and all who dwell in it.

9“Woe to him who takes advantage of evil gain for his own house, so that he may set his nest on high, that he may be delivered from the hand of evil.

10You counseled shame to your house, and you wiped out many peoples, and your soul sinned.

† 11Therefore, the stones will cry out from the wall, and the beetle will speak out of wood.

† 12“Woe to him who builds a city with bloodshed, who establishes a city by wrongdoing,
Are not these things from the Lord Almighty? And many a people have utterly perished in fire, and many nations have been disheartened. For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord; it shall cover them as water.

15“Woe to him who gives clouded and intoxicating drink to his neighbor, that he might look upon his private parts. Drink to the fullness of the dishonor of your glory. Quake and tremble! The cup in the right hand of the Lord has surrounded you, and it has gathered disgrace upon your glory.

16For the ungodliness of Lebanon shall cover you, and the distress of wild beasts will terrify you, because of the blood of men and the ungodliness of the land and all who dwell in it.

What benefit is a graven image, since men carve it? They have formed it into a molten image, a false image. For the one who made the thing trusts in that which is formed by him, to make idols that cannot speak.

Woe to him saying to the wood, ‘Awake and rise up,’ and to the dumb stone, ‘Be exalted.’ It is a merely a fantasy, being but a hammered piece of gold and silver. There is no living breath in it at all. But the Lord is in His holy temple; let all the earth be reverent before Him.”

The Prophet's Prayer

The prayer of the prophet Habakkuk, with an ode.

2 Lord, I have heard Your report and was afraid; I considered Your works and was greatly astonished. You shall be known between the two living creatures; In the approaching years You shall be acknowledged; You will be revealed when the time comes.

When my soul is troubled, You will in wrath remember mercy.

3 God will come from Teman, The Holy One from the mount of shaded leafy trees. Pause. His excellence covered the heavens, And the earth was full of His praise.

His brightness will be like the light;
Horns will be in His hand,
And He established a mighty love of His strength.

Before His face a word will go forth;
It will go out by the shoes of His feet.

The earth stood and was shaken to and fro;
He looked and the nations melted away.
The mountains were shattered by force;
The everlasting hills wasted away.

In the place of distresses, I saw His eternal ways.
The tents of the Ethiopians will be dismayed,
Even the tents of the land of Midian.

Were you angry, O Lord, with the rivers?
Or was Your wrath against the rivers,
Or was Your fury against the sea,
That You will mount on Your horses,
And Your chariot is salvation?

“You will stretch your bow against scepters,” says the Lord. Pause.
The land of rivers shall be torn asunder.

Many peoples will see you and be in travail,
Dispersing waters from its course.
The abyss uttered its voice;
Raising its form on high.

The sun arose, and the moon stood in its course;
At the light of Your arrows they went forth,
At the flashing of Your gleaming weapons.

You will bring low the land with threatening;
You will break the nations in wrath.

You went forth for the salvation of Your people,
To save Your anointed ones.
You brought death upon the heads of the lawless;
You brought bonds upon their neck. Pause.

You cut off the heads of rulers in amazement;
They shall tremble in it.
They will break their bridles
Like a poor man eating secretly.
You ran your horses into the sea,
Churning up the many waters.
I kept watch, and my belly trembled
From the sound of the prayer of my lips;
And trembling penetrated into my bones.
And my very frame of mind was troubled.
I shall rest in the day of tribulation
To go up to the people of my sojourn.
For though the fig tree will not bear fruit
And there be no grapes on the vines;
The labor of the olive tree fail
And the fields yield no food;
Though the sheep have no pasture
And there be no oxen in the cribs;
Yet I will glory in the Lord;
I will rejoice in God my Savior.
The Lord God is my strength;
He will direct my feet to the end;
He will set me upon high places,
So to conquer by His song.

The Book of Zephaniah

Author—The prophet Zephaniah (commemorated December 3), from the tribe of Simeon. His name can be rendered “God has hidden.” It appears he was of royal blood, tracing his ancestry back to King Hezekiah (715–686 BC), and he was a resident of Jerusalem (1:4).

Date—About 627–625 BC. The holy prophet Zephaniah prophesied during the reign of King Josiah (1:1), who reigned in Judah from 640 to 609 BC. He was a contemporary of the prophets Jeremiah, Nahum, and Habakkuk.

Major Theme—Judgment and blessing on Judah.

Background—Zephaniah found himself prophesying in times that were both perilous and promising. During the long reign of Manasseh (696–642 BC), the religion and morality of Judah had been brought to an all-time low. The people practiced Baal worship, worship of the stars, and even human sacrifice, probably to please their Assyrian overlords. However, in the eyes of the holy prophet, these practices were nothing less than unbridled wickedness.

Manasseh repented of his wickedness (2Chr 33:12); however, his son Amon did not, and the people continued their pagan practices. When Josiah came to the throne in 640 BC, there were many who yearned for a return to the God of the fathers and were ready both to hear Zephaniah’s message and to follow King Josiah in his zeal for reform.

Outline

I. Author and Setting of the Prophecy (1:1)

II. Judgment of Judah: The Day of the Lord (1:2–2:3)
   A. Judah’s idolatry and destruction (1:2–6)
   B. Officials and royalty punished (1:7–9)
   C. Merchants and complacent judged (1:10–13)
   D. The Day of the Lord is at hand (1:14–2:3)

III. Judgment of the Nations (2:4–3:8)
   A. Philistia (2:4–7)
   B. Moab (2:8–11)
The word of the Lord which came to Zephaniah the son of Cushi, the son of Gedaliah, the son of Amariah, the son of Hezekiah, in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah.

1“Let all things be totally consumed from the face of the earth,” says the Lord. 2“Let man and cattle cease. Let the birds of the air and the fish of the sea be consumed. I shall drive mankind from the face of the land,” says the Lord. 4“I shall stretch out My hand against Judah and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And I shall remove the names of Baal from this place and the names of the priests—

5those who worship the host of heaven on the housetops and who swear oaths by the Lord and who swear oaths by their king—

6those who turn away from the Lord, neither seeking the Lord nor holding steadfastly to Him.

7“Fear before the presence of the Lord God, for the day of the Lord is at hand. The Lord has prepared His sacrifice; He has sanctified His guests. 8And it shall be in the day of the Lord's sacrifice that I shall take vengeance on the princes and on the king's house, and upon all clothed with strange garments. 9And I will openly take vengeance upon all those in the gates in that day, on those who fill the house of the Lord their God with ungodliness and deceit.

10“And in that day,” says the Lord, “there will be from the gate the sound of shouting from men killing, and a wailing from the second gate along with a great destruction from the hills. 11Mourn, those of you dwelling here, being cut down in pieces; for all the people are like Canaan. All those exalting in silver are utterly destroyed.

12“And it shall come to pass in that day that I shall search Jerusalem with a lamp and shall take vengeance on the men having scorned their charge, the ones saying in their hearts, ‘The Lord shall not do any good, nor shall He do any harm.’ 13And their power will be for plundering and their houses for complete destruction. And they will build houses, but will not live in them; and they will plant vineyards, but will not drink of their wine.
14“For the great day of the Lord is near. It is near and quick. The sound of the day of the Lord is bitter and harsh. 15A mighty day of wrath has been appointed: a day of affliction and distress, a day of unseasonable happenings and destruction, a day of gloom and darkness, a day of cloud and vapor, 16a day of the trumpet and shouting against the fortified cities and the high towers. 17I will greatly afflict the men, and they will walk as blind men, for they sinned against the Lord; and He shall pour out their blood as dust and their flesh as dung. 18Their silver and gold shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the wrath of the Lord, but the whole land shall be consumed by the fire of His zeal; for He will bring about a speedy end to all those who dwell in the land.

Judgment against the Nations

2“O untaught nation, be gathered together and united to one another, 2before you become like a flower that passes away, before the anger of the Lord comes upon you, before the day of the wrath of the Lord comes upon you! 3Seek the Lord, all you humble of the earth. Bring about justice, seek righteousness, and give answer to these things, so you may be sheltered in the day of the Lord's wrath.

4“For Gaza shall be for pillaging, and Ashkelon shall be for extermination. Ashdod shall be driven out at midday, and Ekron shall be uprooted. 5Woe to those dwelling on the seacoast, neighbors of the Cretans; O Canaan, land of the Philistines, the word of the Lord is against you, and I shall destroy you out of your dwelling place. 6Crete shall be a pasture for flocks and folds for sheep. 7The seacoast shall be for the remnant of the house of Judah; upon them they shall pasture their flocks in the houses of Ashkelon; in the evening they will rest because of the presence of the children of Judah, for the Lord their God has cared for them and has removed their captivity.†

8“I have heard the insults of Moab and the cruel acts of the people of Ammon, by which they have berated My people and exalted themselves against My borders. 9Therefore, as I live,” says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, “Moab shall be like Sodom, and the sons of Ammon like Gomorrah, and Damascus is like a heap left on the threshing floor and ruined forever; and the remnant of My people will plunder them, and the remnant of My nation will inherit them.” 10This is their punishment because they have reproached and exalted themselves against the Lord Almighty. 11The Lord shall show Himself to be against them and shall utterly destroy all the gods of the earth, and they will worship Him, each one from his place, even all the islands of the nations.

12“O Ethiopians, you are the slain of My sword.” 13And He shall stretch out His hand to the north and destroy the Assyrian, and make Nineveh a waterless desolation, as a desert. 14And flocks will graze in the midst of her, even all the wild animals of the land; and the chameleons and hedgehogs will sleep in her coffered ceilings, and wild animals will cry out between her breaches and ravens in her gates, for her loftiness was as a cedar. 15This is the contemptuous city who dwells in hope, who says in her heart, “I am, and there is none beside me.” How she has even become a desolation, a pasture for wild beasts! Everyone passing through her will hiss and shake his fists.

Woe to Jerusalem

3 Alas, the glorious and ransomed city! The dove did not listen to the voice, nor did she accept correction, nor did she trust in the Lord, and she did not draw near to her God. 2Her rulers are in her as roaring lions, and her judges are as wolves of Arabia that remain until morning. 4Her prophets borne by the wind, men who are scoffers, the bearers of the spirit, are men who are scorners. Her priests profane the holy things and live contrary to the law. 5But the Lord in her midst is just and will never act unjustly. Morning by morning He will give His judgment in the light, and it is not concealed; He does not grant injustice by extortion nor injustice by strife.

6“I have brought down the arrogant with destruction, and their cornerstones are destroyed. I will make their streets totally desolate, so that none can pass through. Their cities are destroyed because there is no one to live or dwell in them. 7I said, ‘But fear Me and receive instruction, and you will not be completely uprooted from the face of it—for much vengeance I have taken against her.’ Prepare yourself, rise early in the morning, for every last small grape left for the gleaners has been spoiled.

8“On account of this, wait for Me,” says the Lord, “until the day of My rising up as a testimony. For My judgment shall be for the gathering of the nations, to receive kings to pour out upon them all My fierce anger, for all the earth shall be consumed with the fire of My jealousy. 9For then I shall transform for the people a language for her generation, for all to call upon the name of the Lord, to serve Him under one yoke. 10 From the boundaries of the rivers of Ethiopia they will bring offerings to Me. 11 In that day, you will not be ashamed of all your practices in which you acted profanely against Me. For at that time I will take away from you the contempt of your arrogance, and you shall no longer be haughty upon My holy mountain. 12 And I will leave among you a gentle and humble people, who will show reverence to the name of the Lord. 13 The remnant of Israel will not commit unrighteousness nor speak vanities; neither will a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth; for they will feed and lie down, and there will be no one terrifying them.”

Promised Blessings for Jerusalem

14 Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion! Cry aloud, O daughter of Jerusalem! Be glad and rejoice with your whole heart, O daughter of Jerusalem! 15 The Lord has taken away your iniquities and ransomed you from your enemies. The Lord, the King of Israel, is in your midst; you will no longer see any evil. 16 At that time the Lord shall say to Jerusalem, “O Zion, be of good courage; do not let your hands grow slack. 17 The Lord your God is with you. The Mighty One shall save you. He shall bring gladness upon you and will renew you with His love. He will delight over you with joy as in a day of feasting. 18 I shall gather together your broken ones. Alas! who has taken up a reproach against her?

19 “Behold, at that time I will act among you for your sake,” says the Lord. “I will save the oppressed and welcome those being rejected. I will make them a praise and renowned throughout the whole earth. 20 And they shall be put to shame in that day when I do well with you, at the time when I shall receive you, for I will make you praised and renowned among all the peoples of the earth when I return your captivity,” says the Lord.

The Book of Haggai

Author—The author is the prophet Haggai, whose name means “festal.” He is the first of the postexilic prophets and a contemporary of the prophet Zechariah. Jewish tradition suggests he was a priest.

Date—520 BC, during the second year of the reign of Darius, king of Persia. Four prophetic messages were delivered over a period of four months.

Major Theme—Forsake life's comforts and rebuild the temple. Other themes revolve around the consequences of disobedience (1:6, 11; 2:16, 17) and the blessings of obedience (2:7–9, 19). A further prophetic theme points to the building of the Church from among the Gentiles (2:7).

Background—In 587 BC, the Babylonians conquered Jerusalem and carried the Jews into exile in Babylon. In 539 BC, the Persian king Cyrus conquered the Babylonians and decreed that the Jews could return to their homeland. The rebuilding of the temple was begun by the remnant that returned. Theodoret of Cyrrus points out, “Since the completion of the construction was interrupted partly on account of the wickedness of their enemies and partly on account of their own sluggishness, Haggai, the blessed prophet, induced the people to begin rebuilding the temple.” It was finished and consecrated five years after the Book of Haggai was written, in 515 BC.

Outline

I. Introduction (1:1)

II. First Prophetic Message: Exhortation to Rebuild the Temple (1:2–15)
   A. The people's excuse (1:2–4)
   B. God's response to their disobedience (1:5–11)
   C. The people go to work (1:12–15)

III. Second Prophetic Message: Future Glory of the Temple (2:1–9)
   A. God's presence is with the people in their work (2:1–5)
   B. The “choice things” to come, filling the house with glory (2:6–9)

IV. Third Prophetic Message: God Will Bless the Nation's Obedience (2:10–19)
   A. Holiness and uncleanness (2:10–14)
   B. Further consequences of disobedience (2:15–17)
C. Immediate blessings: the reward of faithfulness (2:18, 19)

V. Fourth Prophetic Message: God's Promise to Zerubbabel (2:20–23)

A. Judgment of kings and nations (2:20–22)

B. The calling and role of Zerubbabel (2:23)

1 In the second year of King Darius, in the sixth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying, “Speak to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, from the tribe of Judah, and Joshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, this message. 2“This people says, ‘The time has not come to build the Lord's house.’”’

The Command to Rebuild the Lord's House

3 Then the word of the Lord came by Haggai the prophet, saying, “Is it time for you to dwell in your paneled houses, while this house stands in ruins?” 5Now therefore, thus says the Lord Almighty: “Consider your ways! 6You have sown much and brought in little. You have eaten, but you are not satisfied. You have drunk, but not to get drunk. You have clothed yourselves, but no one is warm. And he who earns wages, earns wages to put into a bag with holes.”

7 Thus says the Lord Almighty: “Carefully consider your ways! 8Go up to the mountain and cut wood and build the house, and I will take pleasure in it and be glorified,” says the Lord. 9Thus says the Lord Almighty: “You looked for much, but little came, and when it was brought into the house I blew it away, because My house is desolate while each one of you hurries to his own house; 10because of this the heavens above you will withhold the dew, and the earth withhold its fruit. 11And I shall bring a sword upon the land and upon the mountains, and upon the grain and upon the wine and upon the oil, and upon whatever the ground brings forth, and on men and livestock, and on all the labor of their hands.”

12 Then Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel from the tribe of Judah, and Joshua the son of Jehozadak the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, heeded the word of the Lord their God and the words of Haggai the prophet, as the Lord their God had sent him to them, and the people feared in the presence of the Lord. 13Then Haggai, the Lord's messenger, said these words to the people: “I am with you, says the Lord.” 14So the Lord stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel from the tribe of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of Jehozadak the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people. And they came and worked on the house of the Lord Almighty, their God,† on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month, in the second year of King Darius.

The Future Glory of the New Temple

In the seventh month, on the twenty-first of the month, the Lord spoke by Haggai the prophet, saying, 2“Speak now to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel from the tribe of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Jehozadak the high priest, and to all the remnant of the people, saying, 3‘Who among you saw this house in its former glory? And how do you see it now? Is this not in your eyes as being nothing? 4Yet now be strong, Zerubbabel,’ says the Lord; ‘be strong, Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest; and be strong, all you people of the land,’ says the Lord, ‘and work; for I am with you,’ says the Lord Almighty. 5‘And My Spirit remains among you; take courage!’ 6For thus says the Lord Almighty, ‘Once more I will shake heaven and earth, the sea and dry land; 7and I will shake all nations, and the choice things of all the nations shall come in, and I will fill this house with glory,’ says the Lord Almighty. 8‘The silver is Mine, and the gold is Mine,’ says the Lord Almighty. 9‘The glory of this latter house shall be greater than the former,’ says the Lord Almighty. ‘And in this place I will give peace,’ says the Lord Almighty, ‘and peace of soul for a possession to everyone who builds and raises this temple.’”†

The Corrupting Effect of the Unclean

On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, the word of the Lord came to Haggai the prophet, saying,† 11“Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘Now, ask the priests concerning the law, saying, 12“If one carries holy meat in the fold of his garment, and the edge touches bread or stew, wine or oil, or any food, will it become holy?”’ Then the priests answered and said, “No.” 13And Haggai said, “If one who is unclean because of a dead body touches any of these, will it be unclean?” So the priests answered and said, “It shall be unclean.” 14Then Haggai answered and said, ‘ “So is this people, so is this nation before Me,’ says the Lord, ‘and so are all the works of their hands. Whoever comes near them shall be unclean because of their early burdens; they shall be distressed because of their toils; and you have hated him who rebukes in the gates.

15‘And now consider from this day forward, from before a stone was laid upon a stone in the temple of the Lord, when you put twenty ephahs of barley into the bin, and there were but ten; when you came to the wine vat to draw out fifty measures from the press, but only twenty were there. 17 I struck you with barrenness and blight and hail in all the labors of your hands; yet you did not turn to Me,’ says the Lord. 18 Establish your hearts from this day forward, from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, from the day the foundation of the Lord's temple was laid. Give careful thought to this: 19 Is the seed still on the threshing floor? And as yet, the vine, the fig tree, the pomegranate, and the olive tree have not yielded fruit? But from this day I shall bless you.’ ”

A Promise Made to Zerubbabel.

20 And again the word of the Lord came to Haggai the prophet a second time on the twenty-fourth day of the month, saying, 21 “Speak to Zerubbabel from the tribe of Judah, saying, ‘I shall shake heaven and earth and the sea and the dry land. 22 I shall overthrow the thrones of kings, and I will destroy the power of the kings of the nations, and I shall overthrow both chariots and riders. The horses and their riders will come down; everyone by the sword of his brother. 23 In that day,’ says the Lord Almighty, ‘I shall take you, Zerubbabel, My servant, the son of Shealtiel,’ says the Lord, ‘and shall make you like a signet ring; for I have chosen you.’ ”

Author—Zechariah, whose name means “he whom God remembers.” He was born in Babylon, returning to Judah in 537 BC. Zechariah's prophetic ministry was well established in Babylon among the people in captivity. He was from the tribe of Judah, succeeding his grandfather Addo as a prophet. Haggai was his contemporary. Zechariah is commemorated on February 8.

Date—520–480 BC. Zechariah's prophecies coincide with those of Haggai.

Major Theme—Encouraging the returned captives to rebuild the temple. The prophecies of Zechariah are messianic, apocalyptic, and eschatological. Zechariah foretold Christ's coming in lowliness and humility (6:12; 13:7), His rejection and betrayal for thirty pieces of silver (11:12, 13), His crucifixion (13:7), His priesthood (6:13), His heritage (6:13; 9:9; 14:9, 16), His coming in glory (14:4), His building of the Lord's temple (6:12, 13), his reign (9:10, 14), and His establishment of peace and prosperity (3:10; 9:9, 10).

As to the apocalyptic and eschatological emphasis, the prophecies foretold the invasion of Jerusalem (12:1–3; 14:1, 2), the victory of Judah's enemies (14:2), the Lord's defense of Jerusalem (14:3, 4), the judgment on the nations (12:9; 14:3), the geographical changes in Judah (14:4, 5), the commemoration of the Feast of Tabernacles in the messianic age (14:16–19), and the fulfillment of the prophecies about the holiness of the Israelites (14:20, 21).

This book also develops the theology of angels, as God communicates through them to Zechariah. Many New Testament apocalyptic images are foreshadowed in this book.

Background—In the first year of Cyrus the Great of Persia, a decree was issued permitting the return of the Jews to Jerusalem with a commission to rebuild the temple. The Israelites were led back by Zerubbabel and Joshua. Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, was the heir to the throne of David. In 520 BC, Zechariah and Haggai attempted to rouse the remnant of returned exiles to rebuild the temple.

I. Introduction (1:1–6)
II. The Eight Night Visions (1:7–6:8)
In the eighth month of the second year of the reign of Darius, the word of the Lord came to Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Addo the prophet, saying, 2“The Lord has been very angry with your fathers, 3and you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord Almighty: “Return to Me, and I will return to you,” says the Lord, 4“And do not become like your fathers, whom the former prophets accused, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord Almighty: “Turn from your evil ways and your evil practices.’ ” But they did not pay attention or heed Me,” says the Lord.

5“Your fathers—where are they? And the prophets—will they live forever? 6But receive My words and My ordinances as I commanded by My Spirit to My servants the prophets who overtook your fathers.” And they answered and said, “As the Lord Almighty determined to deal with us, according to our ways and according to our practices, thus He dealt with us.”

Then the Angel of the Lord answered and said, “O Lord Almighty, how long will You show no mercy on Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, which You disregarded these seventy years?”

12Then the Angel of the Lord answered and said, “O Lord Almighty, how long will You show no mercy on Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, which You disregarded these seventy years?”

And the Lord Almighty replied to the angel who was speaking to me with kind and comforting words. 14 And the angel speaking to me said to me, “Cry out, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord Almighty: “I have been jealous for both Jerusalem and Zion with great jealousy, 15 and I am exceedingly angry with the nations joining together against her, with whom I was only a little angry, but then they joined together with evil intent.”’ Therefore, thus says the Lord: “I shall return to Jerusalem with compassion, and in her My house shall be rebuilt,” says the Lord Almighty, “and a measuring line shall indeed be stretched out over Jerusalem.”’ ”

The Vision of the Four Horns

And I looked up, and behold, four horns. 2 And I said to the angel who talked with me, “My lord, what are these?” And he said to me, “These are the horns that have scattered Judah and Israel.” 3 And the Lord showed me four craftsmen. 4 And I said, “What are they coming to do?” And he said, “These are the horns that scattered Judah and broke Israel in pieces, and not one of them looked up, and they come forth to sharpen these with their hands, the four horns—the nations that lifted their horn up against the land of the Lord to scatter it.”

The Glory of the New Jerusalem

And I looked up, and behold, a man, and in his hand was a measuring line. 6 And I said to him, “Where are you going?” And he said to me, “To measure Jerusalem to see its width and its length.” 7 And behold, the angel who was speaking to me stood up, and another angel went to meet him. 8 And he spoke to him, saying, “Run and speak to that young man, saying, ‘Jerusalem shall be fruitfully inhabited by reason of the multitude of men and livestock in the midst of her.’” 9 And I will be for her a wall of fire all around,’ says the Lord, ‘and I will be in glory in the midst of her,’ says the Lord.”

10 “Oh! Oh! flee from the land of the north,” says the Lord, “because I will gather you together from the four winds of heaven,” says the Lord. 11 “Escape to Zion, you who dwell with the daughter of Babylon.” 12 For thus says the Lord Almighty: “He has sent Me out after glory to the nations that plundered you, for the one who assails you is as one who assails the apple of His eye. 13 For behold, I bring My hand against them, and they shall be plunder to those serving them, and you will know the Lord Almighty sent Me.

14“Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Zion, for behold, I am coming to you, and I will dwell in your midst,” says the Lord. 15“And in that day many nations shall flee to the Lord for refuge, and they will be His people, and they will dwell in your midst, and you shall know the Lord Almighty has sent Me to you. 16And the Lord will inherit Judah, His portion in the holy land, and He will still choose Jerusalem. 17Let all flesh fear before the presence of the Lord, for He has roused Himself from His holy clouds.”

Joshua the High Priest

3And the Lord showed me Joshua, the high priest, standing before the presence of the Angel of the Lord, and the devil stood at his right hand to oppose him. 2And the Lord said to the devil, “The Lord rebukes you, O devil, even the Lord choosing for Himself Jerusalem rebukes you. Behold, is this one not like a brand plucked from the fire?” 3And Joshua was clothed in filthy garments and stood before the Angel. 4And He answered and spoke to those who stood before Him, saying, “Take away the filthy garments from him.” And He said to him, “Behold, I have taken your iniquities away from you. Now clothe him with a long robe, and place upon his head a clean miter.” So they clothed him and put a clean miter on his head, and the Angel of the Lord was standing by.

6Then the Angel of the Lord testified to Joshua, saying, 7“Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘If you walk in My paths and if you keep My commands, you shall judge My house; and if you will diligently guard My courtyard, I will give you those to walk in the midst of these who stand here. 8Hear then, O Joshua the high priest, you and your neighbors sitting before you, for these men are prophets; for behold, I bring forth My servant the Dayspring. 9For the stone which I place before the face of Joshua, upon one stone are seven eyes. Behold, I am digging a pit,’ says the Lord Almighty, ‘and I will search out every wrongdoing of that land in one day. 10On that day,’ says the Lord Almighty, ‘each of you will invite his neighbor under his vine and under his fig tree.’”

The Lampstand and the Olive Trees

4And the angel who spoke to me came again and awakened me as when a man is awakened out of his sleep. 2And he said to me, “What did you see?” And I said, “Behold, I have seen a lampstand made of solid gold, and a bowl at its top, and seven lamps upon it, and the seven tubes to its lamps; 3and over it two olive trees, one on the right of the bowl and one on the left. 4And I asked the angel who was speaking to me, “What are these, my lord?” 5And the angel speaking to me answered, “Do you not know what these are?” And I said, “No, my lord.” 6And he answered and spoke to me, saying, “This is the word of the Lord to Zerubbabel, saying, ‘Not by mighty power nor by strength, but by My Spirit,’ says the Lord Almighty. 7‘Who are you, O great mountain, to set this right before the face of Zerubbabel? For I will bring forth the stone of the inheritance, its grace equaling My grace.’ ”

8And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 9“The hands of Zerubbabel laid the foundation of this house, and his hands will complete it, and you will know the Lord Almighty has sent Me to you. 10For who has scorned the day of small beginnings? They shall rejoice and shall see the plumb line in the hand of Zerubbabel: these seven are the eyes of the Lord, which look upon all the earth.”

11And I answered and said to him, “What are these two olive trees at the right of the lampstand and at its left?” 12And I inquired a second time and said to him, “What are the two branches of the olive trees in the handles of the two golden tubes that pour forth and bring oil to the golden channels?” 13And he said to me, “Do you not know what these are?” And I said, “No, my lord.” 14And he said, “These are the two sons of richness who stand beside the Lord of all the earth.”

The Flying Sickle

5I turned and looked up, and behold a flying sickle. 2And he said to me, “What do you see?” And I said, “I see a flying sickle, twenty cubits in length by ten cubits wide.” 3And he said to me, “This is the curse going out over the face of the whole earth, for every thief on this side shall be punished with death, and everyone on that side who swears falsely shall be punished by death.” 4“And I will bring it forth,” says the Lord Almighty, “and it shall enter the house of the thief and the house of the one who swears falsely by My name. It shall settle in the midst of his house and destroy it, both its timber and its stones.”

5And the angel who was talking to me came out and said to me, “Look up and see this that is going forth.” 6And I said, “What is it?” And he said, “This is the measuring basket that goes forth.” And he said, “This is their wrongdoing in all the land.” 7And behold, a talent of lead was being lifted up, and behold one woman sat in the midst of the measuring basket.†
8And he said, “This is lawlessness.” And he threw it into the midst of the measure, and he threw the lead weight into the mouth of it.

9Then I looked up to see, and behold two women going forth, and the wind was in their wings. They had wings like the wings of a stork, and they took up the measuring basket into the air between heaven and earth. 10And I asked the angel speaking to me, “For what reason do they carry this basket for measuring?” 11And he said to me, “To prepare and to build a place for it in the land of Babylon. They will place it there upon its own place.”

The Four Chariots

9And the word of the Lord came to me, saying,† 10“Take the things of the captivity from the rulers, from its useful men and from those having come to understand it, and on that day you shall enter into the house of Josiah, son of Zephaniah, who has come out of Babylon; 11take silver and gold and make crowns, and set them on the head of Joshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest. 12And you will say to him, ‘Thus says the Lord Almighty: “Behold the man, Orient is His name, and He shall rise up from below the horizon, and He shall build the house of the Lord.”’ 13And He shall receive power and shall sit and rule upon His throne, and a priest shall be by His right hand, and there will be peaceful counsel between both of them.’” 14And the crown shall be to those who endure patiently, to His useful men, and to those coming to understand it, and for the favor of the son of Zephaniah, and for a psalm in
And it came to pass, in the fourth year of Darius the king, the word of the Lord came to Zechariah on the fourth day of the ninth month, which is Chislev, 2 when Sharezer and Regem-Melech and his men went to Bethel to propitiate the Lord, 3 speaking to the priests in the house of the Lord Almighty and to the prophets, saying, “The holy offering has come in here in the fifth month—just as I have done for a considerable number of years.” 4 And the word of the Lord of hosts came to me, saying, 5 “Speak to all the people of the land and to the priests, saying, ‘Though you fasted or mourned in the fifth or seventh months, lo these seventy years, did you at all fast for Me? 6 And if you do eat or drink, do you not eat and drink for yourselves? 7 Are these not the words the Lord spoke by the hand of the former prophets when Jerusalem was inhabited and thriving, and the cities around her, and the hill country and the plains were inhabited?’ ”

And the word of the Lord came to Zechariah, saying, 9 “Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘Render a just judgment; show mercy and compassion each to his brother. 10 Do not oppress the widow, or the orphan, or the foreigner, or the poor. And let not one remember in his heart any wrong of his brother.’

“But they refused to pay attention, and without reason turned their backs and stopped their ears so they should not hear. 12 And they made their hearts disobedient so as not to heed My Law, nor to hear the words the Lord Almighty sent by His Spirit by the hand of the former prophets. And there came great wrath from the Lord Almighty. 13 And it shall come to pass as He said, for they did not listen. So they will cry out, but by no means will I listen to their prayers,” says the Lord Almighty. 14 “And I shall cast them out among all the nations which they did not know, and behind them the land shall become utterly worthless from traveling through or for coming back, for they made the chosen land a desolation.”

The Future Restoration of Israel.

And the word of the Lord Almighty came, saying, 2 “Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘I have been zealous for Jerusalem and for Zion, zealous for her with great zeal and fervor.’ 3Thus says the Lord: ‘I will return to Zion and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem, and Jerusalem shall be called a True City, and the Mountain of the Lord Almighty the Holy Mountain.’

4“Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘Elderly men and elderly women shall yet sit in the streets of Jerusalem, each one holding his cane in his hand for the multitude of their days.’ 5And the streets will be filled with boys and girls dancing in her streets.’ 6Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘If it is impossible in the sight of the remnant of this people in those days, will it also be impossible in My sight?’ says the Lord Almighty. 7Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘Behold, I shall deliver My people from the land of the east and from the land of the west. I shall bring them in and settle them in the midst of Jerusalem. They shall be to Me a people and I will be to them a God in truth and in righteousness.’

8Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘Let your hands be strong, you who hear in these days these words from the mouth of the prophets, from the day that the house of the Lord Almighty was founded, and from the time the temple was built.’ 9For before those days, men's wages will not be profitable and a price for livestock will not even exist, and because of affliction there will be no peace for those going out and those coming in, and I will send forth all men, each against his neighbor. 10But now I do not do to the remnant of this people as in the former days,’ says the Lord Almighty. 11‘Rather I will show forth peace, for the vine shall give its fruit, the earth her produce, the heaven its dew, and I will give all these things as an inheritance to the remnant of this people. 12And it shall come to pass that as you were a curse among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel, so I will save you, and you will be for a blessing; be of good courage and strengthen your hands.’

13“For thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘As I purposed to afflict you when your fathers provoked Me to anger,’ says the Lord Almighty, ‘and I did not relent, so now in these days I have prepared and purposed to do good to Jerusalem and to the house of Judah; be of good courage. 14These are the things you shall do: speak the truth, each man to his neighbor, and judge with peaceful judgment in your gates; 15and let none of you plan evil in his heart against his neighbor, and do not love a false oath, for all these things I hate,’ says the Lord Almighty.”

18And the word of the Lord Almighty came to me, saying, 19“Thus says the Lord Almighty:
‘The fourth-month fast, and the fifth-month fast, and the seventh-month fast, and the tenth-month fast shall be for joy and gladness and in good feasts to the house of Judah. And you will rejoice, and you will love truth and peace.’† 20Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘Yet many people will have come and those inhabiting many cities; 21and the inhabitants of five cities will come together to one city, saying, “Let us go to beseech the Lord and to seek out the face of the Lord Almighty; and I will go also.” 22And many peoples and many nations will come to seek out the presence of the Lord Almighty in Jerusalem and to obtain the favor of the presence of the Lord.’ 23Thus says the Lord Almighty, ‘In those days, if ten men from all the tongues of the nations stop you, even if they grab hold of the hem of a Jewish man, they will be saying, “We will go with you, for we heard God is with you.”’ †

Judgment of Israel's Enemies

9 The burden of the word of the Lord against the land of Hadrach, and of Damascus his sacrifice, for the Lord looks upon men and on all the tribes of Israel.† 2And on Hamath in her borders, Tyre and Sidon, because they are very wise. 3For Tyre built a fortress for herself and stored up silver like dust and collected gold like mud in the streets. 4Therefore, the Lord shall possess her as an inheritance, and shall strike against her power in the sea, and she shall be consumed by fire. 5Ashkelon shall see it and fear; and Gaza, even she shall suffer greatly, and Ekron will be ashamed because of her transgression. The king will perish from Gaza, and Ashkelon shall no longer be inhabited.

6And foreigners shall settle in Ashdod, and I will bring down the pride of the Philistines. 7I will remove their blood from their mouth and their abominations from between their teeth, and this also will be left to our God. And they shall be as a captain of a thousand in Judah, and Ekron as a Jebusite. 8And I will raise up a fortress around My house that none may pass through nor return back, and no longer shall anyone come against them to drive them out, for I have now seen with My own eyes.†

The Coming King

9Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion! Proclaim it aloud, O daughter of Jerusalem! Behold, your King comes to you; He is righteous and saving; He is gentle and mounted upon a donkey, even a young foal.†ω 10He will utterly destroy the chariots out of Ephraim and the horse out of Jerusalem. The bow of war shall be utterly destroyed, and there shall be abundance and peace among the nations. He shall rule over the waters as far as the sea and over the rivers to the ends of the earth.

11“And by the blood of your covenant, you freed your prisoners from the pit having no water.† 12You prisoners from the congregation, you shall live in the fortress, and for one day of your exile, I will repay to you double. 13For I have bent you, O Judah, for Myself as a bow; I have filled Ephraim. And I will arouse your sons, O Zion, against the sons of the Greeks, and I will handle you as the sword of a warrior.” 14And the Lord will be over them, and He shall go forth like a lightning bolt. The Lord Almighty shall sound with the trumpet and shall go forth with the tumult of His threat. 15The Lord Almighty will shield them, and they shall devour their enemy and overwhelm them with sling-stones. They will drink them down as wine, and they shall fill the bowls as at the altar. 16And on that day, the Lord their God will deliver them, His people, as a flock, for sacred stones will roll across His land. 17For if anything of His be good, and anything of His be fair, there shall be grain for the young men and the fragrant wine for the virgins.

The Ransomed People of God.

10 Ask for yourself rain from the Lord during the time of the early rain and the late rain. The Lord made a great display and will give winter rain to each crop in the field.† 2Therefore the ones speaking proclaimed troublesome things, and the seers false visions, and they told false dreams; they spoke vain words of comfort. They have been driven away like sheep, and they have lost heart because there was no healing.

3“My anger was kindled against the shepherds, and I will care for the lambs. The Lord God Almighty shall visit His flock, the house of Judah, and shall appoint them as His stately warhorse. 4For from Himself He observed attentively, and from Himself He ordered—even from Himself a bow in anger; from Him shall go forth every oppressor. 5And as warriors, they will be trampling as grapes the clay on the roads. They shall array themselves in battle array, for the Lord is with them, and the horsemen will be put to shame.

6“And I will strengthen the house of Judah and save the house of Joseph, and I will settle them, for I have loved them; and they shall be as though I had not turned away from them, because I am the Lord their God, and I will hear them. 7And they shall be like the warriors of Ephraim, and their heart shall rejoice as with wine; and their children shall see it and be glad,
and their heart shall rejoice in the Lord.

8 I will make a sign for them and gather them in, for I will redeem them, and they shall be multiplied according to their previous number.

9 And I will sow them among the peoples, and those far off will remember Me. They will rear their children, and they will return. 10 And I shall bring them back from the land of Egypt and gather them in from the Assyrians. I shall bring them into the land of Gilead and into Lebanon; not even one of them will be left behind. 11 They will pass through the narrow sea and will strike the waves of the sea, and all the full depths of the rivers shall be dried up. All the arrogance of the Assyrians shall be taken away, and the scepter of Egypt shall be stripped away. 12 And I will strengthen them in the Lord their God, and they shall boast in His name," says the Lord.

The Shepherds

11 Open your doors, O Lebanon, and let the fire devour your cedars. 2 Let the pine wail, for the cedar has fallen; because the mighty men have been greatly afflicted. Wail, oak trees of the Basanite land, for the thickly wooded forest has fallen. 3 The sound of wailing is from the shepherds, for their greatness has been brought low; the sound of roaring lions, the arrogance of the Jordan has languished. 4 Thus says the Lord Almighty: “Tend the sheep of the slaughter like a shepherd, 5 the ones whose possessors have slaughtered and did not repent, and those selling them said, ‘Blessed be the Lord, for we have become rich and the shepherds themselves suffered nothing because of them.’ 6 Therefore I will no longer spare the inhabitants of the land,” says the Lord, “but behold, I will deliver men up, each one into the hand of his neighbor and into the hand of his king. They shall cut the land into pieces, and I will not deliver them from their hand.”

---

The Two Staffs

7 But I shall tend the sheep of the slaughter in the land of Canaan, and I will take to myself two staffs: the one I called Beauty and the other one I called Line, and I shall tend the flock. 8 And I shall cut off three shepherds in one month, and my soul shall be weighed down by them, for their souls have roared against me. 9 And I said, “I will not tend to you; that which dies, let it die, and that which perishes, let it perish, and let the rest of them devour the flesh each of his neighbor.”
And I shall take my staff Beauty, and I shall cast it away, to break my covenant which I made with all the people.

And in that day they will be scattered about. And the Canaanites shall know the flock is kept safe, for this is the word of the Lord. And I shall say to them, “If it is fitting in your judgment, give me my payment, or refuse it.” And they established my wage at thirty pieces of silver.

And the Lord said to me, “Drop them into the smelting furnace and see if it is proven, as in the same manner I was proven for their sake.” And I took the thirty pieces of silver and threw them into the smelting furnace in the house of the Lord.

And I threw aside the second staff, the Line, to disband the possessions between Judah and Israel.

And the Lord further said to me, “Take even for yourself the equipment of a shepherd, of an unskilled shepherd. For behold! I raise up a shepherd against the land, one who will not care for the sheep who are abandoned, nor seek the scattered ones, nor heal the injured, nor even guide the healthy. But instead, he will devour the flesh of the choice ones, and he will tear them apart joint by joint. Woe to you shepherding the flock carelessly, forsaking the flock! The sword shall be against his arms, and against his right eye; his right arm shall be completely withered, and his right eye shall become totally blind!”

The Coming Deliverance for Judah

The burden of the word of the Lord to Israel: Thus says the Lord, who stretches out the heavens, who lays the foundation of the earth and forms the spirit of man within him:

Behold, I make Jerusalem as a gate being shaken to all the peoples surrounding her; for in Judea there shall be a siege against Jerusalem.

And it shall come to pass in that day that I shall make Jerusalem a stone to be walked upon by all the nations. Everyone trampling her underfoot will utterly mock her, and all the nations of the earth shall come together against her. In that day,” says the Lord Almighty, “I shall smite every horse with bewilderment, and I shall bring a state of total confusion against its rider. But I shall open My eyes upon the house of Judah, and I shall smite all the horses of the nations with blindness.

And the captains of thousands of Judah shall say in their hearts, ‘We shall find for ourselves those inhabiting Jerusalem with the Lord Almighty, their God.’

In that day I will make the captains of thousands of Judah as a burning torch of fire among the trees and like a torch in dried straw. They shall consume all nations surrounding her, both on the right and on the left, and Jerusalem will again dwell by herself. And the Lord shall preserve the dwelling places of Judah as at the beginning, that the boast of the house of David and the pride of the inhabitants of Jerusalem may not magnify themselves over Judah.

8And in that day, it shall come to pass that the Lord shall defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and in that day, the one who is weak among them will be as the house of David, and the house of David as the house of God, as the Angel of the Lord before them. 9It shall come to pass in that day that I shall seek to drive away all the nations that come against Jerusalem. 10And I will pour the spirit of grace and compassion upon the house of David and those inhabiting Jerusalem, and they shall look upon Me whom they mocked, and they will mourn for Him as for a beloved one, and they shall grieve profoundly as for a firstborn son.

11“In that day, the lamentation in Jerusalem shall be very great, like the mourning for the pomegranate orchard being cut down in the plain. 12And the land itself shall mourn throughout the tribe, the tribe of the house of David by itself and their wives by themselves; the tribe of the house of Nathan by itself and their wives by themselves; 13the tribe of the house of Levi by itself and their wives by themselves; the tribe of Symeon by itself and their wives by themselves; 14and all the remaining tribes, every tribe by itself and their wives by themselves.

The End of False Prophets and Idols.

13“In that day every place shall be opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 2And it shall come to pass in that day,” says the Lord of hosts, “that I will utterly destroy the names of the idols from the land, and their remembrance shall be no more. I will remove the false prophets and the unclean spirit from the land.

3“And it shall come to pass that if a man still prophesy, his father and his mother who begot him will say to him, ‘You will not live, for you spoke falsehoods in the name of the Lord,’ and his father and his mother who begot him will bind him when he prophesies. 4And it shall come to pass in that day that the prophets shall be put to shame, each by his vision when he prophesies, and they will put on a leather skin of hair because they spoke lies. 5And one will say, ‘I am not a prophet, for I am a tiller of the soil; a man brought me up thus from my youth.’ 6And I will say to him, ‘What are these wounds in the middle of your hands?’ And he will say, ‘Those with which I was wounded in the house of my beloved.’
“O sword, raise up against My shepherds, and against My fellow-man,” says the Lord Almighty. “Smite the shepherds and draw out the sheep, and I shall bring My hand against the shepherds.‡

And it will come to pass in all the land,” says the Lord, “two of every three will be utterly destroyed and shall die, but the other third will be left in it.‡

And I shall bring the remaining third through the fire, and I shall try them as silver is tried, and I will prove them as gold itself is proven. He will call upon My name, and I will hear him, and I will say, ‘This is My people,’ and they will say, ‘The Lord is my God.’ ”

The Day of the Lord

Behold, the days of the Lord come, and your plunder will be divided among you.‡

And I shall gather together all the nations to war against Jerusalem. The city shall be taken, the houses plundered, the women defiled, and half of the city will go forth into exile, but the rest of My people shall not be utterly cut off from the city.‡

And the Lord will go forth and prepare for battle against those nations, as in the day of His battle array in the day of war.‡

And on that day His feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem on the east. And the Mount of Olives shall be split in two, half towards the east and half towards the sea, a very great divide; and half the mountain shall lean toward the north and half of it toward the south.‡

And the valley of my mountains will be blocked up, and the ravine of the mountains will be joined as far as Azal. And it will be blocked up as he had blocked it up in the days of the earthquake, in the days of Uzziah the king of Judah, and the Lord my God shall come and all the saints with Him.‡

And in that day, it shall be that there will not be any light, but there shall be cold and frost for one day, and that day shall be known to the Lord. It will be neither a day nor a night, but towards evening there will be light.

And in that day living water shall come forth out of Jerusalem, half of it toward the eastern sea and half toward the western sea. So it will be in both summer and spring.‡

And the Lord shall be King of all the earth, and in that day the Lord shall be one Lord, and His name one name, encircling all the land, even the wilderness from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem. But Rama shall remain in her place; from Benjamin's Gate to the place of the First Gate; to the Gate of the Corners, and to the Tower of Hananeel, as far as the king's winepresses, they will dwell in her, and it will no longer be a curse. Jerusalem shall dwell securely.

And this will be the downfall with which the Lord will strike all the nations, as many as made war against Jerusalem. Their flesh will be eaten away as they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall pour out of their sockets, and their tongue shall melt away in their mouth.

13 In that day there shall be a state of great bewilderment upon them from the Lord. Each of them will seize the hand of his neighbor, and his hand will become locked with the person near to him. 14 And Judah shall draw up for battle in Jerusalem, and He will gather together the strength of all the surrounding peoples: the gold, the silver, and the apparel in great abundance. 15 And this will be the overthrow of the horses and the mules, the camels and the donkeys, and all the cattle that are in those camps throughout this downfall.

16 And it shall come to pass that whoever may be left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem, they too will go up every year to worship the King, the Lord Almighty, and celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles. 17 And it shall be that whoever from all the tribes of the land will not go up to Jerusalem to worship the King, the Lord Almighty, even these will be added to the others. 18 And if the nation of Egypt shall not go up nor attend, upon these will come the downfall which the Lord will strike on all the nations, as many as do not come up to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles.† 19 This will be the sin of Egypt and the sin of all the nations, as many as do not come up to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles.

20 In that day, there will be engraved in the bridle of every horse, “Holy to the Lord Almighty,” and the kettles in the house of the Lord will be like bowls before the altar. 21 And every kind of kettle in Jerusalem and Judah will be holy to the Lord Almighty; and all who sacrifice will come and take from them and shall cook in them. And in that day the Canaanite shall no longer be in the house of the Lord Almighty.†

The Book of Malachi

Author—Malachi, whose name means “angel” or “messenger.” Whatever he prophesied, that very day an angel of God appeared and repeated his message. Malachi spoke with his angel face-to-face as to a friend. Malachi was born in Sopha (Supha), of the tribe of Levi, after the return of the captives from Babylon. He prophesied after the consecration of the temple in Jerusalem, 515 BC. He is commemorated on January 3.

Date—500–350 BC, based on the contents of the book.

Major Theme—Turn from sin, for the day of the Lord is coming. Malachi considers the temple, the priesthood, and true worship as the spiritual foundation not only for the people of his day, but also for the messianic kingdom to come. Even in the midst of a multitude of sins and evildoings, Malachi looked ahead with hope to see a new day dawning when Elijah (that is, John the Baptist) would be sent and the darkness would disappear with the coming of the Christ.

Background—After the reconstruction of the temple, the Israelites began grumbling against God, neglecting true worship. In spite of the many times God had delivered them, the people were ungrateful and forgot their history, saying, “And how has God shown His love?” (1:2). The priesthood neglected their sacred duties, no longer teaching the Law, accepting inferior sacrifices (1:7, 8) from men who oppressed the widows and orphans, and abandoning their lawful wives and children (2:14–16). Empty ritualism, hypocrisy, irreverence, apostasy, sorcery, and idolatrous practices were common (3:5). Because of the sins of the priests and the people, droughts, disease, and misfortunes were commonplace. The Book of Malachi addresses these issues.

The Lord's Love for Israel

1 The burden of the word of the Lord to Israel by the hand of His messenger Malachi. Take it to heart!†

2“I have loved you,” says the Lord. “But you say, ‘In what way have You loved us?’ Was not Esau the brother of Jacob?” says the Lord. “Yet Jacob I have loved,† 3 but Esau I have hated, and I have appointed his borders for destruction and made his heritage as dwellings of the wilderness.” 4 Because one will say, “Edom has been destroyed, but let us return and rebuild the desolate places,” thus says the Lord, Ruler of all: “They may build, but I will throw down. They shall be called the Territory of Wickedness, and the people against whom the Lord has placed Himself forever. 5 Your eyes will see, and you will say, ‘The Lord is magnified beyond the borders of Israel.’

Defiled Offerings

6“A son honors his father, and a servant his master. If then, I am the Father, where is My honor? And if I am a Master, where is the reverence due to me?” says the Lord Almighty. “You priests are the ones who disparage My name, yet you say, ‘In what way have we disparaged Your name?’ 7 You offer defiled bread on My altar, but you say, ‘How have we defiled You?’ By saying, ‘The table of the Lord is contemptible and the food placed upon it is contemptible.’† 8 And when you offer the blind as a sacrifice, is that not evil? And when you offer the lame and sick, is that not evil? Offer it then to your ruler! See if he will accept it, if he will accept it favorably,” says the Lord Almighty.

9“But now earnestly entreat the face of your God and pray to Him. These things have been done by your hands; shall I accept these from you?” says the Lord Almighty.† 10 For this reason, even among you the doors will be shut, and you will not burn an offering on My altar. I have no pleasure in you,” says the Lord Almighty, “nor will I accept an offering from your hands. 11 For from the rising of the sun even to its going down, My name has been glorified among the Gentiles; and in every place incense shall be offered to My name, and a pure offering, for My name shall be great among the Gentiles,” says the Lord Almighty.† 12 “But you profane it in that you say, ‘The table of the Lord is defiled; and the food placed upon it is contemptible.’† 13 And you said, ‘Oh, what a weariness!’ And I have blown these away,” says the Lord Almighty. “And you bring prey, the lame, and the sick, and when you bring an offering, should I accept these from your hands?” says the Lord Almighty. 14“But cursed be the man who is able, who has in his flock a male, and takes a vow but sacrifices to the Lord what is blemished—for I am a great King,” says the Lord Almighty, “and My name is glorious among the nations.

Contemptible Priests

2 “And now, O priests, this commandment is for you. 2If you will not hear, and if you will not take it to heart, to give glory to My name,” says the Lord Almighty, “I will send a curse upon you, and I will curse your blessing; indeed I will curse it, and I will scatter your blessing, and you will have it no more because you do not take this to heart. 3Behold, I am turning my back on you, and I will smear dung on your faces, the dung of your feasts, and I will carry you away at the same time. 4Then you will know that I have sent this commandment to you, that My covenant is with the sons of Levi,” says the Lord Almighty.

5“My covenant of life and peace was with him, and I gave this to him that he might reverently fear Me, that he might be established before My name. 6The law of truth was in his mouth, and injustice was not found on his lips. He walked with Me in peace and equity, and turned many away from lawlessness. 7For the lips of a priest should keep knowledge, and people should seek the law from his mouth, for he is the messenger of the Lord Almighty.

8“But you have departed from the way; you weakened many in the law and corrupted the covenant of Levi,” says the Lord Almighty. 9“Therefore I also made you contemptible and disregarded before all nations, because you have not guarded My ways but have shown partiality in the law.”

10Did not one God create you? Do you not all have one father? Why, then, does each of you forsake his brother to profane the covenant of your fathers? 11Judah was forsaken, and an abomination has occurred in Israel and in Jerusalem, for Judah profaned the holy things of the Lord, which He loved, and sought out foreign gods. 12The Lord will destroy the man who does these things until he is humiliated from the tents of Jacob and from among those who offer sacrifice to the Lord Almighty.

The Tragedy of Divorce

13And you do these things which I hate. You cover the altar of the Lord with tears, with weeping and moaning because of troubles, yet still thinking it is worthy to look upon your sacrifice or take it as acceptable from your hands.† 14 And you say, “Why?” Because the Lord has been witness between you and the wife of your youth, whom you have forsaken; yet she is your companion and the wife of your covenant. 15 But did He not make another, having a remnant of His Spirit? Yet you ask, “What else does God seek but offspring?” But take heed to your spirit, and do not forsake the wife of your youth. 16 “But if you hate her and send her away,” says the Lord God of Israel, “ungodliness will obscure your thinking,” says the Lord Almighty. “So take heed to your spirit, that you do not forsake her.” 17 You weary the Lord with your words, yet you say, “In what way have we wearied Him?” In that you say, “Everyone who does evil is good in the sight of the Lord, and He delights in them,” or, “Where is the God of justice?”†

Messenger of the Covenant

3 “Behold, I send My messenger, and he will prepare the way before Me. And the Lord, whom you seek, will suddenly come into His temple, even the Messenger of the covenant, whom you desire. Behold, He is coming,” says the Lord Almighty.† 2 “But who can endure the day of His coming? And who can withstand His appearance? For He enters like a refiner's fire and as soap in one's wash.† 3 He will sit as a refiner and a purifier of silver and gold. He will purify the sons of Levi and pour them out as purified gold and silver, and they will bring an offering to the Lord in righteousness. 4 Then the offering of Judah and Jerusalem will be pleasing to the Lord, as in the days of old, as in former years.

5 “And I will draw near to you in judgment, a swift witness against sorcerers, adulterers, those who swear falsely by My name, those who exploit wage-earners, those who oppress widows and afflict orphans, those who pervert the justice due foreigners, and those who do not fear Me,” says the Lord Almighty.† 6 “For I am the Lord your God; I have not changed. But you, O sons of Jacob, have not abstained† from the sins of your fathers. You have turned away from My ordinances and have not kept them.

Tithing Brings God's Blessing

“Return to Me and I will return to you,” says the Lord Almighty. “But you say, ‘In what way shall we return?’ 8 Will a man insult God? Yet you have insulted Me! But you say, ‘In what way have we insulted You?’ You kept back your tithes and offerings.† 9 You most certainly
You turned your back on Me, you and the whole nation, and you insulted Me. 10 You brought all the produce into the storehouses—but it will be plundered in its house. Return now in this,” says the Lord Almighty, “and see if I will not open for you the floodgates of heaven and pour out for you a blessing until it is overflowing. 11 And I shall send it to you for food and I will not destroy the fruit of your ground, nor will the vine in the field fail to bear fruit,” says the Lord Almighty. 12 “And all nations will call you blessed, for you will be a delightful land,” says the Lord Almighty.

13 “You spoke harsh words against Me,” says the Lord, “yet you say, ‘What have we spoken against You?’ 14 You have said, ‘One who serves God is foolish; what profit have we from keeping His ordinances, and why do we go as suppliants before the face of the Lord Almighty? 15 And now we call foreigners blessed, and those doing lawless deeds are raised up—they even oppose God and go free.’”

16 Then those who feared the Lord spoke these things each to his neighbor, and the Lord listened and heard them, and He wrote a book of remembrance before His face for those who feared the Lord and reverenced His name. 17 “They shall be mine,” says the Lord Almighty, “in the day that I make them My possession, and I will choose them as a man chooses his own son who serves him. 18 Then you shall return, and you will discern between the righteous and the wicked, between one who serves God and one who does not serve Him.

The Day of the Lord

19 “For behold, the day of the Lord is coming, burning like an oven. And it will burn them up, and it shall be that all foreigners and all who do wickedly will be stubble; and the day that is coming shall burn them up,” says the Lord Almighty, “and neither root nor branch will be left of them. 20 But to you who fear My name the Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in His wings, and you shall go forth leaping as little calves released from their bonds. 21 You shall trample the wicked, for they shall be ashes under your feet on the day I do this,” says the Lord Almighty. 22 “Behold, I will send you Elijah before the coming of the great and glorious day of the Lord. 23 And he will turn the heart of the father to his son, and a man's heart to his neighbor, lest I come and strike the earth completely. 24 Be in remembrance of the Law of Moses My servant as I commanded him, with its statutes and judgments, at Horeb for all Israel.”

The Book of Isaiah

Author—According to both Jewish and Christian tradition, Isaiah the son of Amoz is the author of this book. Isaiah, which means “the salvation of God,” was from the tribe of Judah and was the nephew of King Amaziah (796–767 BC) of Judah. He is commemorated on May 9.

Date—The time period is mentioned as “in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah.” This places the book about 745–680 BC, from approximately 25 years before the Assyrian captivity of the Northern Kingdom to about 40 years after it.

Major Theme—“The Holy One of Israel” (1:4), who punishes His unrepentant people but later will redeem them. The prophet's vision of the glory of God (1:6ff) is one of infinite transcendence. Man's role is one of faith in response to God's holiness and vision for the world. Isaiah revealed the Messiah in amazing detail—as if he were telling history instead of the future. He even describes the Theotokos (ch. 7) and how she is to conceive and bear God the Son incarnate with her virginity intact. Isaiah describes the suffering of Christ (ch. 53) together with His Resurrection from the dead, proclaiming His kingdom as if it had already happened.

Background—Assyria was growing in power under Tiglath-Pileser, who turned to the west after his conquests to the east. He saw the kingdom of Israel fall to Assyria's might along with other nations along the Mediterranean coast. Seeing his people taken captive, Isaiah turned to warn the Southern Kingdom of Judah to trust in God alone.

Outline

   F. The judgment of Assyria (10:5–12:6)
   G. The judgment of the nations (13:1–23:18)
The vision of Isaiah the son of Amoz, which he saw against Judah and Jerusalem in the kingdom of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah.

Hear, O heavens, and listen, O earth. For the Lord has spoken: “I have begotten and brought up sons, but they rejected Me. The ox knows its owner and the donkey its master's crib; but Israel does not know Me, and the people do not understand Me.” Alas, sinful nation, a people full of sins, an evil seed, lawless children. They forsook the Lord; they provoked to anger the Holy One of Israel. Why should you still be struck as you continue in lawlessness? The whole head is in pain, and the whole heart in sadness. From the feet all the way to the head, there is no soundness in them, only wounds and bruises and festering sores. They have not been closed or bandaged, or soothed with ointment. Your land is desolate; your cities are burned with fire. Strangers take over your land in your presence and it is made desolate, overthrown by foreign people. So the daughter of Zion is forsaken, like a tent in a vineyard, like a hut in a garden of cucumbers, like a besieged city. Unless the Lord of hosts had left us a seed, we would have become like Sodom and been made like Gomorrah.

Hear the word of the Lord, you rulers of Sodom. Give ear to the law of our God, you people of Gomorrah: "What is the multitude of your sacrifices to Me?” says the Lord. “I am full of the burnt offerings of rams and the fat of lambs. I do not desire the blood of bulls and
When you come to appear before Me, who required these things from your hands to tread My court? Although you should bring fine wheat flour, it is vain. Incense is an abomination to Me. I cannot endure your new moons, and Sabbaths, and the calling of assemblies, and fasting and holy day. Your new moons and feasts My soul hates. You have become a dissatisfaction to Me; I will not forgive your sins. When you stretch forth your hands to Me, I will turn My eyes from you. Although you make many prayers, I will not listen to you. Your hands are full of blood. Wash yourselves, make yourselves clean. Put away the evils from your souls before My eyes. Cease from your evils. Learn to do good. Seek judgment and redeem the wronged. Defend the orphan and justify the widow. Come now, and let us reason together,” says the Lord, “although your sins are like crimson, I shall make them white like snow, and although they are as scarlet, I shall make them white like wool. If you are willing and obedient, you shall eat the good things of the land. But if you are unwilling and disobedient, you shall be devoured by the sword,” for the mouth of the Lord has spoken.

How the faithful city of Zion has become a prostitute! It was full of judgment. Righteousness lodged in it, but now murderers. Your silver is worthless; your tavern-keepers mix wine with water. Your rulers are disobedient and companions of thieves. Everyone loves bribes and follows after rewards. They do not defend the orphans, nor do they regard the cause of the widow. Therefore says the Master, the Lord of hosts: “Woe to the mighty ones of Israel, for My anger against the adversaries will not cease; and I will execute judgment on My enemies. I will bring My hand upon you and purge you completely. I will destroy those who disobey and remove all the lawless from you; I will humble all the arrogant. I will establish your judges as at the first and your counselors as at the beginning. Afterward, you shall be called the city of righteousness, Zion, the faithful mother-city.” For her captives shall be saved with judgment and with mercy. The lawless and sinners shall be destroyed together. Those who forsake the Lord shall come to an end. For they shall be ashamed of the idols they desired and the gardens they longed for. For they shall be as a terebinth tree that has lost its leaves; like a garden with no water. Their strength shall be as broken fiber and their works as sparks of fire. The lawless and the sinners will burn together, and no one shall quench them.
Now it shall come to pass in the last days, the mountain of the Lord and the house of God shall be visible on the tops of the mountains and exalted above the hills. All the Gentiles shall come to it. Many Gentiles shall travel and say, “Come and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob. He will proclaim His way to us, and we shall walk in it.” For the law of the Lord shall go forth from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. He shall judge between the Gentiles and rebuke many people. They shall beat their swords into plows and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore.

O now, house of Jacob, come and let us walk in the light of the Lord. For He forsook His people, the house of Israel, for as from the beginning, their land is filled with divinations—like the land of foreigners—and many children of foreigners were born to them. Their land is filled with silver and gold, and there is no end to their treasures. Their land is also filled with horses; there is no end to their chariots. Their land is also filled with the abominations of their works, and they worship the works of their hands, which their fingers made. A man bows down and each man humbles himself, but I will not forgive them. Enter now into the rocks and hide in the earth from the face of the Lord, for fear and the glory of His might when He rises to smite the earth. For the eyes of the Lord are lofty, and man is humble. The haughtiness of man shall be humbled, and the Lord alone shall be exalted in that day. For the day of the Lord of hosts shall come upon all who are insolent, arrogant, high and lifted up, and they shall be humbled; and upon every cedar tree of Lebanon, high and lifted up, and upon every oak of Bashan, and upon every mountain and lofty hill, and upon every high tower and fortified wall, and upon every ship of the sea, and upon every sight of beautiful ships. Every man shall be humbled, and the haughtiness of man shall fall. The Lord alone shall be exalted in that day. But they shall hide all the things made by hands. They shall carry them into the caves and cracks of the rocks, and into the holes of the earth, from fear of the Lord's presence and the glory of His might when He arises to strike the earth. For in that day, man will cast away his abominations of silver and gold, which they made to worship worthless things and bats, so as to enter into the holes of solid rocks and clefts of the rugged rocks, from fear of the Lord and the glory of His might when He arises to strike the earth.
For behold, the Lord, the Lord of hosts, takes away from Judah and from Jerusalem the strong man and the strong woman; the strength of bread and the strength of water; 2 the mighty man and the man of war; the judge, the prophet, the diviner, and the elder; 3 the captain of fifty, the wonderful counselor, the skillful artisan, and the prudent disciple. 4 “I will give children to be their princes, and mockers shall rule over them. 5 The people will collapse, every one on another and every one on his neighbor. The child will be arrogant toward the elder and vulgar toward the honorable.” 6 When a man takes hold of his brother or his father's servant, saying, “You have clothing; you be our ruler and let my food be under your roof.” 7 In that day, he will protest, saying, “I will not be your ruler, for in my house there is neither food nor clothing. I will not be the ruler of this people.” 8 For Jerusalem is ruined and Judah is fallen, because their tongues are lawless and they are disobedient to the Lord. Now their glory is humbled. 9 The shame on their face witnesses against them. They declare and exhibit their sin as Sodom. Woe to their soul, for they planned evil upon themselves, 10 saying, “Let us hand over the righteous man, for he is burdensome to us.” They shall eat the fruit of their doings. 11 Woe to the wicked! It shall be ill with him, for the reward of his hands shall be given him. 12 “O My people, your punishers gather you, and those who make demands of you rule over you. O My people, those who bless you lead you astray and trouble the path of your feet.” 13 The Lord stands up to plead and stands to judge His people. 14 The Lord will enter into judgment with the elders of His people and His princes: “For you set fire to My vineyard and the plunder of the poor is in your houses. 15 What do you mean by crushing My people and grinding the faces of the poor?”

Moreover the Lord says, “Because the daughters of Zion are haughty and walk with outstretched necks and wanton eyes, because they walk and mince as they go, making a jingling with their feet, 17 therefore the Lord will humble the chief daughters of Zion. The Lord will uncover their secret parts.” 18 In that day, the Lord will take away the glory of their garments and adornments: the hair-clasps, the tassels, the crescents, the necklace, and the ornament on their faces; 19 even the collection of glorious adornment, the anklets and the armlets, the bracelets for the right arm and the finger-rings and the earrings, 21 the garments dyed and decorated with purple, 22 the house-coats and transparent Lyconian garments, 23 the fine linen—the hyacinthine and scarlet and flax interwoven with gold and hyacinth—and the flowing veils. 24 And so it shall be, instead of a sweet smell there will be dust; instead of a sash, a rope; instead of a golden ornament of the head, baldness; and for your deeds, instead of purple, you will have sackcloth.

25 Your most handsome son, whom you love, shall fall by the sword, and your mighty shall fall by the sword.

26 And your chests of adornments shall lament and mourn, and you shall be left to sit on the ground.

Seven women shall take hold of one man, saying, “We will eat our own food and wear our own apparel, only let us be called by your name, to take away our disgrace.”

2 In that day, the Lord will shine in counsel and glory on the earth, to exalt and glorify those of Israel who remain.

3 And it shall come to pass that those who remain in Zion and in Jerusalem will be called holy—everyone who is recorded among the living in Jerusalem,

4 because the Lord shall wash away the filth of the sons and the daughters of Zion, and shall purge the blood of Jerusalem from their midst by the Spirit of judgment and the Spirit of burning.

5 He shall come and there shall be with regard to Mt. Zion and everything round about, a cloud to overshadow it by day, and as it were smoke and light of fire burning at night, and it shall be covered altogether with glory.

6 It shall be for shade from the heat, for a place of shelter, and for a hiding-place from inclement weather and rain.

“Now I will sing to My Beloved a song of My Beloved regarding My vineyard: There was a vineyard for My Beloved, a place in power and richness.

2 He placed a wall around it and fortified it. He planted it with the choicest vine. He built a tower in its midst and also made a winepress in it. So I waited for it to bring forth grapes, but it produced thorn-plants.

3 And now, man of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem, judge between Me and My vineyard.

4 What shall I yet do for My vineyard that I have not done for it? For I waited for it to bring forth grapes, but it produced thorn-plants.

5 But now I will tell you what I shall do to My vineyard: I shall remove its wall and it shall be for booty. I shall break down its wall and it shall be trampled underfoot.

6 I will forsake My vineyard. It shall not be pruned or cultivated, but thorns shall sprout forth as in a barren land. I will also command the clouds not to rain on it.”

7 For the vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel, and the man of Judah is His beloved plant. I waited for it to bring forth judgment, but it brought forth lawlessness, and not righteousness, but a cry.

8 Woe to those who join house to house, who add field to field, to take something from their neighbor. Surely you will not dwell alone in the land.

9 For these things reached the ears of the Lord of hosts, for though many large and beautiful houses should be built, they shall be desolate, for there shall be no one to live in them.

10 For where ten yoke of oxen shall work, the land shall yield one jar, and whoever sows six homers shall receive three measures.

11 Woe to those who rise early in the morning to follow intoxicating drink; to those who continue until night, for wine shall inflame them. 12 For they drink wine with the harp, the strings, the tambourine and flute, but they do not look at the deeds of the Lord, nor consider the works of His hands!

13 Therefore my people became captives, because they did not know the Lord; and a multitude died through hunger and thirst for water. 14 Hades enlarged itself and opened its mouth continually. The glorious, the great, the wealthy, and the troublesome shall descend into it. 15 A man shall be humiliated, and a man shall be dishonored; and the eyes of the lofty shall be humbled. 16 But the Lord of hosts shall be exalted in judgment, and the Holy God shall be glorified in righteousness. 17 Those plundered shall be fed as bulls, and lambs shall eat on the waste places of those taken away.

18 Woe to those who draw sins to themselves as with a long rope and lawlessness as with the strap of a cow's yoke, 19 who say, “Let Him speedily hasten what He will do that we may see it, and let the counsel of the Holy One of Israel come, that we may know it!” 20 Woe to those who call evil good and good evil, who put darkness for light and light for darkness, who put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter! 21 Woe to those who are intelligent in their own eyes and expert in their own sight! 22 Woe to your strong ones who drink wine and the mighty ones who mix intoxicating drink, 23 who justify the ungodly for a bribe and take away justice from the righteous man! 24 Therefore in the manner that stubble shall be burned by coals of fire and consumed by a violent flame, their root shall be like chaff and their flower shall go up like dust, for they did not will to do the law of the Lord of hosts, but despised the word of the Holy One of Israel. 25 Thus the wrath of the Lord of hosts is furious against His people. He laid His hand on them and struck them. The mountains were provoked, and their carcasses were as refuse in the midst of the road. For all this His anger was not turned away, but His hand is still uplifted.

26 Consequently He shall take up a banner to the nations from afar and will whistle to them from the ends of the earth. Behold, they are coming swiftly and with speed. 27 They shall not hunger or be weary. Neither shall they slumber nor sleep. Nor shall they lose the belts from their loins. Neither shall their sandal-straps be broken. 28 Their arrows are sharp, and their bows are bent. The hooves of their horses seem like flint and their chariot-wheels like a sudden blast of wind. They rush like lions, and stand like a young lion that seizes his prey and roars like a wild animal, then carries it away; and there shall be no one to deliver them. In that day, they will bellow against them like the sound of the roaring sea. They will look at the land and behold harsh darkness in their despair.

In the year King Uzziah died, I saw the Lord sitting on a throne, high and lifted up. The house was full of His glory. Around Him stood seraphim; each one had six wings: with two he covered his face, with two he covered his feet, and with two he flew. And one cried to another and said, “Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.”

The lintel was lifted up by the voice of those who cried out, and the house was filled with smoke. So I said, “Woe is me, because I am pierced to the heart, for being a man and having unclean lips, I dwell in the midst of a people with unclean lips; for I saw the King, the Lord of hosts, with my eyes!” Then one of the seraphim was sent to me. He had a live coal in his hand, which he took with tongs from the altar. He touched my mouth, and said, “Behold, this has touched your lips. Your lawlessness is taken away, and your sin is cleansed.” I also heard the voice of the Lord, saying, “Whom shall I send, and who will go to this people?” Then I said, “Behold, here am I, send me.” So He said, “Go, and tell this people, ‘You shall hear indeed, but not understand; and you shall see indeed, but not perceive.’ For the heart of this people has become insensitive, and their ears hear with difficulty. They have closed their eyes, lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and return, and I should heal them.” Then I said, “Lord, how long?” So He answered, “Until the cities are laid waste and without inhabitant, the houses are without people, and the land shall be left desolate. After this God will remove the people far away, and those left in the land shall multiply. Yet a tenth shall be left in it, and again it shall be for plundering, like a terebinth tree or like an acorn when it falls from its case.”

And it came to pass in the days of Ahaz the son of Jotham, the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, there came up Rezin king of Syria and Pekah the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, against Jerusalem to war against it; but they could not conquer it. Then it was reported to the house of David, saying, “Syria's forces made an agreement with Ephraim.” So his soul and the soul of his people was confounded, as a tree of the woods is shaken by the wind. Then the Lord said to Isaiah, “Go out now to meet Ahaz, you and Shear-Jashub your son, at the end of the aqueduct from the upper pool, on the highway to the Fuller's Field, and say to him, ‘Guard yourself and be silent; do not fear, neither let your soul be disheartened because of these two stubs of smoking firebrands, for when My fierce anger is over, again I shall heal.

5 The son of Syria and the son of Remaliah have plotted evil against you, saying,

6 “Let us go up against Judah and talk with them, and let us turn them to our side, and let us make the son of Tabel king of it.”

7 Thus says the Lord of hosts: “This counsel shall not continue, nor shall it come to pass.

8 But the head of Syria is Damascus; nevertheless, in sixty-five years the kingdom of Ephraim will cease being a people.

9 Also the head of Ephraim is Samaria, and the head of Samaria is Remaliah's son, and if you do not believe this, neither will you understand it.”

10 Moreover the Lord added this to Ahaz, saying,

11 “Ask a sign for yourself from the Lord your God; ask it either in the depth or in the height above.”

12 But Ahaz said, “I will not ask, nor will I tempt the Lord.”

13 Then Isaiah said, “Hear now, O house of David, is it a small thing for you to weary men, but will you weary the Lord also?

14 Therefore the Lord Himself will give you a sign: behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a Son, and you shall call His name Immanuel.

15 Butter and honey He shall eat before He knows to prefer evil or choose the good,

16 for before the Child knows good or evil, He refuses the evil to choose the good;

17 and the land you fear because of the presence of the two kings will be abandoned.

18 But God will bring the king of Assyria upon you, your people and your father's house—days that have not yet come, from the days Ephraim took away from Judah the king of the Assyrians.”

19 And it shall come to pass in that day, the Lord will whistle for the fly that rules over part of the river of Egypt, and for the bee in the land of Assyria.

20 All of them will come and rest in the ravines of the country, in the clefts of the rocks, in the caves and every crevice and tree.

21 In that day, the Lord will shave—with a large and blood-drenched razor belonging to the king of Assyria beyond the river—the head and the hair of the legs, and will also remove the beard.

22 It shall be in that day, a man will rear a heifer and two sheep.

23 So it shall be, from the abundance of milk they give, everyone left in the land will eat butter and honey.

24 It shall happen in that day, wherever there could be a thousand vines worth a thousand shekels of silver, it will be a barren land with thorn-plants.

25 Men will enter there with bows and arrows, for all the land will be barren and with thorn-plants.

Moreover the Lord said to me, “Take for yourself a large new book, and write on it with a man's pen concerning making a swift plunder of spoils, for it is near at hand.† 2 Then make witnesses for Me of faithful men: Uriah and Zechariah, the son of Berechiah.” 3 Then I went to the prophetess, and she conceived and bore a son, and the Lord said to me, “Call his name Quickly Despoil, Swiftly Plunder; 4 for before the child shall know how to call for his father and mother, one shall take the power of Damascus and the spoils of Samaria in the presence of the king of Assyria.” 5 The Lord also added this for me to speak as well, saying:

“Because this people did not choose the water of Siloam that flows quietly, but chose Rezin and Remaliah's son to be king over you; 7 therefore, behold, the Lord brings upon you the mighty and abundant water of the river, the king of the Assyrians, and his glory. He shall come up over every ravine of yours and walk over all your walls, 8 and take away from Judah every man able to raise his head or accomplish anything. His encampment will fill the breadth of Your land, O God with us. 9 Know this, O Gentiles, and be defeated. Give ear, all you to the very ends of the earth. Be defeated although you are strong, for even if you should be strong again, you will be defeated again. 10 Then too, whatever counsel you take, the Lord will scatter it abroad; and whatever word you shall speak, it will not continue among you, for the Lord God is with us.”

Thus says the Lord: “With a strong hand they rebel against the course of the way of this people, saying,† 12 that you should not say, ‘It is hard,’ for whatever this people says is hard; but do not be afraid of their terror, nor be troubled. 13 Sanctify the Lord Himself, and He shall be your fear. 14 So if you trust in Him, He shall be as a sanctuary for you, and you shall not come against Him as a stumbling stone nor as a rock of disaster. But the house of Jacob lies in wait with a snare, and those in Jerusalem with a trap. 15 Therefore many among them shall be powerless and fall, and be broken, and men who are in safety shall draw near and be conquered.”

Then they who seal the law so as not to learn it themselves shall be evident.† 17 But One will say, “I shall wait for God who turned His face away from the house of Jacob, and I will trust in Him,† 18 behold, I and the children God gave me.” This will be for signs and wonders in the house of Israel from the Lord of hosts, who dwells in Mount Zion. 19 So if they should say to you, “Seek those who call from the earth and are ventriloquists, who speak from the belly,” should not a nation seek their God? Why do they seek the dead on behalf of the living? † 20 He gave the law to help them, so as not to speak such a word as this, concerning which word there are no gifts to offer with it. † 21Thus a harsh famine will come upon you, and it shall be, when you are hungry, you will be grieved, and speak badly of your ruler and the idols. Then they shall look up to heaven above, and on the earth below, and behold, tribulation, distress, and darkness. There will be severe despair and darkness, so dark one cannot see. 23And the one who is in despair shall be perplexed, but only for a time.

Do this first and do it quickly: O country of Zebulun, land of Naphtali, by the way of the sea, and the rest dwelling along the seacoast and parts of Judea, and the land beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles, a people who walk in darkness, behold a great light; and you who dwell in the country of the shadow of death, upon you a light will shine. 2The multitude of the people, whom You brought down in Your joy, they shall also rejoice in Your presence, as those who rejoice in harvest, as men rejoice when they divide the spoils. 3For the yoke lying upon them and the rod upon their neck is taken away, for the Lord broke the rod of the exactors as in the day of Midian. † 4For every robe and garment gathered by deceit, they shall repay with money, and they shall be willing to do this, even though they were burned with fire. 5For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government will be upon His shoulder. His name will be called the Angel of Great Counsel, for I shall bring peace upon the rulers, peace and health by Him. † 6Great shall be His government, and of His peace there is no end. His peace shall be upon the throne of David and over His kingdom, to order and establish it with righteousness and judgment, from that time forward and unto ages of ages. The zeal of the Lord of hosts shall perform this.

7The Lord sent death against Jacob, and it came on Israel. 8All the people will know—Ephraim and the inhabitant of Samaria—who say in pride and arrogance of heart, † 9“The bricks fell, but let us hew stones; and let us cut down sycamores and cedars, and we shall build ourselves a tower.” 10But God shall overthrow those who rise up against them on Mt. Zion, and scatter their enemies: 11the Syrians from the rising of the sun, the Greeks from the setting of the sun, and those who shall devour Israel with open mouth. For all this, His anger is not turned away, but His hand is still uplifted. 12But the people did not turn until they were struck, yet they did not seek the Lord. 13So the Lord took away head and tail from Israel, great and small, in one day. 14The elder and those who admire persons, this is the head. The prophet who teaches lawlessness, this is the tail. 15For those who bless this people lead them astray, and they lead them astray so as to destroy them. 16Therefore God will have no joy in their young men, nor mercy on their orphans and widows. For all of them are lawless and evil. Every mouth speaks injustices. For all this His anger is not turned away, but His hand is still uplifted. 17 For lawlessness burns like fire, and like dry grass, it shall be consumed by fire and burn in the thickets of the forest. It shall devour all the hills round about. 18 Because of the Lord's wrath the entire land is burned up, and the people are as fuel for the fire. No man will have mercy on his brother. 19 But one shall turn aside to the right hand, for he shall be hungry; and he shall eat on the left hand and not be satisfied. Every man shall eat the flesh of his own arm. 20 Manasseh shall devour Ephraim and Ephraim Manasseh. Together they shall besiege Judah. For all this His anger is not turned away, but His hand is still uplifted.

10 “Woe to those who write evil things, for when they write such things, they turn aside judgment from the poor, and rob judgment from the needy of My people, that the widow may be their prey and the orphan a spoil. 2 What will they do in the day of visitation? For affliction will come to you from afar, and to whom will you flee for help? Where will you leave your glory, so as not to fall into captivity?” For all this, His anger is not turned away, but His hand is still uplifted.

5 “Woe to the Assyrians! The rod of My anger and wrath are in their hands. 6 I will send My wrath against a lawless nation; and I will order My people to seize spoils and plunder, to trample down their cities, and turn them into dust. 7 However, he does not think in the same way, nor does he consider the same thing in his soul; but his heart will change, so as to utterly destroy many nations. 8 If they should say to him, ‘You alone are ruler,’ then he shall say, ‘Have not I taken the country above Babylon and Chalanne, where the tower was built, and taken Arabia, Damascus, and Samaria? 10 As I took these with my hand, so also shall I take all the kingdoms. Wail, O carved images in Jerusalem and Samaria! 11 For as I did to Samaria and the things made by human hands, so shall I do also to Jerusalem and her idols.’ 12 But it shall come to pass, when the Lord has completed all He will do on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, He will go against the arrogant heart of the king of the Assyrians and the glory of his haughty looks. 13 For he said, “I shall act in my strength and by the wisdom of my understanding. I also shall remove the boundaries of the nations and plunder their strength. I shall shake their inhabited cities. 14 I shall overtake with my hand all the inhabited world as a nest, and take them as eggs that have been left. There is no one who can escape or oppose me.”
Shall the ax glorify itself without him who chops with it? Or shall the saw exalt itself without him who saws with it? It is likewise if one should lift a rod or a piece of wood. But it shall not be so, for the Lord of hosts will send dishonor against your honor; and He will kindle a burning fire against your glory. So the Light of Israel will be as a fire, and He will sanctify him with burning fire; and it will devour the wood like grass on that day. The mountains, the hills, and the forests will be consumed, and devour both soul and body, and he who flees will be like one fleeing from a burning flame. Then the remnant will be few in number, and a child shall write them.

It shall come to pass in that day that the remnant of Israel and those of Jacob who were saved will never again obey those who wronged them; but they will trust in God, the Holy One of Israel, in truth. The remnant of Jacob shall trust in the Mighty God. For though the people of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant of them shall be saved; for He shall accomplish the word and cut it short in righteousness. For God will accomplish the word and cut it short in all the world.

Therefore, thus says the Lord of hosts: “O My people who dwell in Zion, do not be afraid of the Assyrian, because he shall strike you with a rod; for I am bringing a stroke upon you, that you may see the way of Egypt. Yet in a very short while, the wrath will cease, but My anger shall be against their counsel.” For God will stir up enemies against them, as it was in the stroke against Midian in that place of affliction; and His anger shall be by way of the sea, in the way that leads to Egypt. Thus it shall come to pass in that day, his fear will be taken from you and his yoke from your shoulder, for the yoke shall be destroyed from off your shoulders. For he shall come to the city of Aiath and pass on to Migron and place his property at Michmash. He will pass along the valley and arrive at Aiath. Fear will seize Ramah, the city of Saul; the daughter of Gallim will flee, Laish will hear; Anathoth will hear; Madmenah was astounded, so too the inhabitants of Gebim. Urge them today to remain in the way. Comfort with your hand the mountain, the daughter of Zion, and the hills in Jerusalem. For behold, the Master, the Lord of hosts, will trouble the glorious ones with power, and the haughty in pride shall be crushed. The lofty will be humbled, and the high and mighty shall fall by the sword, and Lebanon, with its high and mighty ones.

There shall come forth a rod from the root of Jesse, and a flower shall grow out of his root. The Spirit of God shall rest upon Him, the Spirit of wisdom and understanding, the Spirit of counsel and might, the Spirit of knowledge and godliness.

2 The Spirit of the fear of God shall fill Him. He shall not judge by reputation nor convict by common talk.

4 But He will judge the cause of the humble, and reprove the humble of the earth. He shall strike the earth with the word of His mouth, and with the breath of His lips He shall slay the ungodly.

5 He shall gird His loins with righteousness and cover his sides with truth.

6 “The wolf shall feed with the lamb, the leopard shall lie down with the young goat, and the calf, the bull, and the lion shall feed together; and a little child shall lead them.”

7 The cow and the bear shall graze together, and their young ones shall lie down together. The lion and the ox shall eat straw together.

8 The nursing child shall play by the hole of asps, and the weaned child shall put his hand in the den of asps.

9 They shall not hurt nor be able to destroy anyone on My holy mountain, for the whole world shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as much water covers the seas.

10 “It shall come to pass in that day that there shall be a Root of Jesse who shall arise to rule nations. The Gentiles shall hope in Him, and His resting place shall be honorable.”

11 It shall come to pass in that day that the Lord will show His hand again to be zealous for the remnant left of His people: left by the Assyrians and by Egypt, Babylon and Ethiopia, and by the Elamites, and from the rising of the sun, and out of Arabia.

12 He shall set up a sign for the Gentiles and will assemble the lost ones of Israel. He shall gather together the dispersed of Judah, from the four corners of the earth.

13 Also the envy of Ephraim shall depart, and the enemies of Judah shall be destroyed. Ephraim shall not envy Judah, and Judah shall not afflict Ephraim.

14 But they shall spread sails on the ships of foreigners, and together they shall plunder the sea and the people of the East and Edom. They shall lay their hands first on Moab, but the sons of Ammon shall obey them first.

15 The Lord shall make desolate the Sea of Egypt, and He will lay His hand on the river with a violent wind, and will strike the seven channels, that men might pass across it in sandals.

16 “There shall be a highway for the remnant of My people in Egypt, and it will be for Israel as in the day he came out of the land of Egypt.”

12 And in that day, you will say, “I will bless You, O Lord. Although You were angry with me, You turned away Your anger and had mercy on me.

2 Behold, God is my Savior and Lord. I will trust in Him and be saved by Him. I will not be afraid, for the Lord is my glory and my praise. He has become my salvation.”

3 You will draw water with gladness from the wells
In that day, you will say, “Praise the Lord; call upon His name. Declare His glorious things among the Gentiles and make mention that His name is exalted.”

Sing to the name of the Lord, for He has done great things. Declare this in all the earth.

Exult and be glad, O inhabitants of Zion, for the Holy One of Israel is exalted in her midst.”

The vision against Babylon seen by Isaiah the son of Amoz:

Lift up a sign on the mountain of the plain and raise your voice to them. Do not fear; comfort with your hand; open the gates, O you rulers. I command and I lead them. They are sanctified, and I lead them. My mighty ones come to fulfill My anger—rejoicing and insulting at the same time.”

The sound of many nations upon the mountains, like that of many nations, the voice of kings and nations gathered together—the Lord of hosts commanded a warring nation to come from a far country, from the end of heaven, the Lord and His weapons, to destroy all the inhabited world.

Wail, for the day of the Lord is at hand, and destruction will come from God.

Therefore every hand will grow weary, and every man's soul will be fearful.

The elders will be troubled. Pangs will take hold of them, like a woman in childbirth, and they will wail at one another and be amazed; and their countenance shall change like a flame.

Behold, the day of the Lord is coming, a day that cannot be averted, a day of anger and wrath, to make all the inhabited world a desert, and to destroy the sinners from it.

For the stars of heaven and Orion and all the ornament of heaven will not give their light. It will be dark when the sun goes forth, and the moon will not give its light.

“"I will command evils for all the inhabited world and the ungodly because of their sins, and I will destroy the insolence of the lawless and humble the haughtiness of the arrogant.

Those left behind will be more valuable than fine gold tried in the fire, and a man more precious than the stone of Ophir.

For heaven will be angry, and the earth will be shaken from its foundations because of the fierce anger of the Lord of hosts, in the day His anger comes.

Those who are left shall be as the fleeing gazelle and as a wandering sheep, and there shall be no one to gather them, that a man may return to his own people and a man may seek his own country.

For whoever is taken will be overcome, and those who are gathered together will fall by the sword.

Their children also will be dashed before their eyes. They shall plunder their houses and possess their wives.

Behold, I will stir up the Medes against you, who will not regard silver, neither do they have need of gold.

They will break in pieces the bows of the young, and show your children no mercy; nor will their eyes sparing your children. It shall be that Babylon, called glorious by the king of the Chaldeans, will be as when God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah. It shall never be inhabited, nor will any enter it for many generations. Neither shall the Arabians pass through it, nor will shepherds take their rest in it. But wild animals of the desert will rest there, and their houses will be filled with noise. Sirens will rest there, and demons will dance there. Donkey-centaurs will dwell there, and hedgehogs will make dens in their homes. It will come quickly and not delay.”

For the Lord will have mercy on Jacob and will yet choose Israel to take rest in their land. The sojourner will be added to them, and they will be added to the house of Jacob. Then the Gentiles will take them and bring them to their place. They will inherit them, and they will multiply in God's land as male and female servants. Those who captured them shall be captives to them, and those who ruled over them shall be ruled by them. Then it shall come to pass in that day that God will give you rest from your sorrow and anger and your hard slavery in which you served them.

You shall take up this lamentation against the king of Babylon, and will say in that day, “How the exacter has ceased, and the compeller ceased! God broke the yoke of sinners in pieces, the yoke of the rulers, and in His anger He struck a nation with an incurable wound; and striking a nation with a plague of anger, which did not spare them, He rested in confidence. All the earth cries aloud with gladness. Indeed, the trees of Lebanon rejoice against you and the cedar of Lebanon, saying, ‘From the time you fell asleep, no one has come up to cut us down.’ Hades from below was embittered to meet you. All the mighty who ruled over the earth rose up to meet you. Those who raised from their thrones all the kings of the nations, all shall answer and say to you, ‘You also were conquered, even as we, and are numbered among us. Your glory and great gladness have come down to Hades. They will spread decay under you, and the worm will be your covering.’ How you are fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, who rose up in the morning! He who sends for all the nations is crushed to the earth. For you said in your mind, ‘I will ascend into heaven; I will place my throne above the stars of heaven. I will sit on a lofty mountain, on the lofty mountains toward the north. I will ascend above the clouds; I will be like the Most High.’ But now you shall descend to Hades, to the foundations of the earth. Those who see you will marvel at you, and they will say, ‘This is the man who greatly upset the earth, who shook kingdoms, and who made all the inhabited world a desert. He destroyed its cities, and did not set free those in captivity.’ 18All the kings of the nations sleep in honor, every man in his house. 19But you shall be cast forth on the mountains like a loathsome dead person, with many dead pierced with swords who go down into Hades; and as a garment defiled in blood, you will not be clean. 20So you will not be clean, because you destroyed My land and killed My people. You, an evil seed, will not endure forever. 21Prepare your children for slaughter for the sins of their father, that they may not arise and inherit the earth, and fill it with wars.”

22“For I will rise up against them,” says the Lord of hosts, “and I will destroy their name, their remnant and their seed”—so says the Lord— 23“and I will make Babylon a desert, that hedgehogs may dwell there; and it shall come to nothing; and I will make it a pit of clay for destruction.” 24Thus says the Lord of hosts: “As I said, so it shall come to pass. As I purposed, so it shall remain— 25to destroy the Assyrians in My land and on My mountains. They shall be for trampling underfoot, and their yoke shall be taken away; and their renown shall be removed from their shoulders.” 26This is the purpose the Lord purposed upon all the inhabited world. His hand is lifted up over all the nations of the inhabited earth. 27For who will reject what the holy God purposed? Who will turn away His uplifted hand?

28In the year King Ahaz died, this word came: 29“Do not be glad, all you foreigners, for the yoke of him who struck you is broken to pieces. For from the seed of serpents shall come forth the young asps, and their offspring shall be flying serpents. 30The poor will be fed by him, and poor men will rest in peace, but he shall destroy your seed with hunger, and he will destroy your remnant. 31Wail, gates of the cities, cry out, troubled cities, even all the foreigners, for smoke is coming from the north, and you will be no more!” 32What will the kings of the nations answer? For the Lord founded Zion, and the humble of His people shall be saved.

† The word against the land of Moab:

15 In the night the land of Moab shall be destroyed, for the wall of the land of Moab shall be destroyed in the night.† 2Lament for yourselves, for even Dibon, where your altar is, shall be destroyed. Go there to weep over Nebo in the land of Moab. Wail, for baldness shall be on every head, and all arms shall be mutilated. 3In her streets, dress yourselves with sackcloth and strike yourselves on her housetops. All of you cry out with bitter wailing in her streets.
Heshbon and Elealeh cry out until their voice is heard as far as Jahaz; therefore, the loins of the land of Moab cry aloud, for its soul shall know this. The heart of the land of Moab cries aloud in itself as far as Zoar, like a three-year-old heifer. On the ascent of Luhith, they shall go up to you with weeping by way of Horonaim. She cries, “Destruction and earthquake!” The water of Nemerim shall be a desert, and its grass shall fail, for there will be no green grass. “Even so, will Moab be saved? For I will bring the Arabs upon the valley, and they shall take it. For the cry reaches the border of the land of Moab, even of Eglaim, and its wailing as far as the well of Elim. For the water of Dimon shall be full of blood, for I will bring Arabs upon Dimon. I shall take away the seed of Moab, Ariel and the remnant of Adama.

“I shall send them like reptiles upon the land, for is not Mount Zion a deserted rock? O Daughter of Moab, you shall be like a young bird taken away from a bird that has flown. Then, O Arnon, take more counsel and make for her a shelter of mourning continually. In the middle of the day they flee in darkness; they are amazed; do not be led away. The outcasts of Moab will sojourn with you. They will shelter you from the face of the pursuer, for your alliance has been taken away, and the ruler who trampled the land underfoot has perished from the earth. A throne will be established with mercy, and in the tabernacle of David, one will sit upon it in truth, judging, seeking justice, and hastening righteousness.”

We heard of the insolence of Moab, exceedingly insolent. You drove away his arrogance. Your divination is not in this way, no not in this way. Moab shall wail, for everyone shall wail in the land of Moab. For you will think about those who dwell in Deseth, and not be ashamed. The plains of Heshbon and the vine of Sibmah swallow the nations and shall mourn. Trample down her vines. Do not reach to Jazer. Wander in the desert. Those sent were left behind, for they passed through the desert. Therefore I will weep for the vine of Sibmah with the weeping of Jazer. O Heshbon and Elealeh, he struck down your trees, for I shall trample on your harvest and vintage, and both shall fall. Gladness is taken away, so too the joy from your vineyards, for in the vineyards there shall be no rejoicing; and no treaders will tread out wine in the wine vats, for the wine has ceased. Therefore my belly will resound like a harp for Moab, and my inward parts like a wall you renewed. Then it shall come to pass, when you are shamed (for Moab grows weary at his altars), that he will go in to pray to the things made with hands, but they will be unable to deliver him.
This is the word the Lord spoke against Moab when He spoke. 14“So now I say to you, within three years, as in the years of a hired man, the glory of Moab, with its great wealth, shall be dishonored, and he will be left few in number and not honored.”

The word against Damascus:

“Behold, Damascus will be taken away from among cities and will fall, abandoned forever. It shall be a fold and resting-place for sheep. No one will pursue them. 3There shall no longer be a strong place for Ephraim to flee to, and there shall no longer be a kingdom in Damascus and a remnant of Syrians; for you are no better than the sons of Israel and their glory,” says the Lord of hosts.

4“In that day, there shall be an eclipse of the glory of Jacob, and the riches of his glory shall be shaken. 5It will be as when one gathers a standing harvest and reaps ears of corn with his arm. It shall be as when one gathers heads of grain in a rich valley. 6It shall be as when straw is left in it, or as when the berries of an olive tree, two or three on the uppermost bough, or as when four or five are left on their branches,” says the Lord, the God of Israel. 7In that day, a man will trust in Him who made him, and his eyes will look at the Holy One of Israel. 8They will not trust in their altars, nor in the works of their hands, which their fingers made. They will not look to their trees, nor to their abominations. 9In that day, your cities will be abandoned, as the Amorites and the Evites forsook theirs, because of the children of Israel. They will be desolate, 10because you forsook God your Savior, and have not been mindful of the Lord your helper. Therefore you will be a faithless plant and a faithless seed. 11In the day you plant, you will be deceived; but if you sow in the morning, it will blossom into a harvest, in which you will receive an inheritance in that day; and as a man's father, you will obtain an inheritance for your sons.

12Woe to the multitude of many nations; as the swelling sea, so shall you be troubled; and the surging of many nations will sound like water, 13many nations like much water, as when much water rushes violently; and he will curse him and pursue him afar, as when the dust of chaff scatters before the wind, and a sudden blast of wind whirs the dust of a wheel! 14Toward evening there will be mourning, and before morning, he will be no more. This is the portion of those who plundered you, and the inheritance of those who robbed you of your inheritance.
Woe, O farthest edge of the land of ships, beyond the rivers of Ethiopia! He sends hostages by sea and paper letters over the water, for swift messengers will go to an exalted nation and a strange and violent people. Who is beyond it, a nation without hope and trampled underfoot? Now all the rivers of the land shall be inhabited, like an inhabited country. Their country shall be like a sign raised by a mountain and an audible sound like a trumpet. So the Lord said to me, “There will be security in My city, as the light of the midday heat, and as a cloud of dew in the day of harvest.” Before the time of harvest, when the flower has been completely formed, and the unripe grape has put forth its flower and produced sour grapes, then He shall take away the small clusters with sickles and the brushwood, and cut them off. Then He shall leave them together for the birds of heaven and the wild animals of the earth; and the birds of heaven shall gather upon them, and all the wild animals of the earth will come upon him. At that time gifts shall be brought to the Lord of hosts by a people afflicted and peeled, and by a people great from now on and forever, a nation hoping and trampled on, which is in a part of a river of his country, to the place, Mount Zion, where the name of the Lord of hosts is called upon.

The vision of Egypt:

Behold, the Lord sits on a swift cloud and shall come to Egypt, and the things made by hands in Egypt shall be shaken by His presence, and their heart shall be overcome within them. Egyptians shall be stirred up against Egyptians, and a man shall fight against his brother, and a man against his neighbor, city against city and law against law. The spirit of the Egyptians will be troubled within them, and I will reject their counsel, and they shall consult their gods and their statues, and those who speak from the earth and are ventriloquists. And I will deliver Egypt into the hands of harsh lords and kings who will rule over them,” thus says the Lord of hosts. And the Egyptians will drink water from the sea, for the river will run dry and have no water. The streams and canals of the river will fail; and every reservoir shall dry up, as well as every marsh of reed and papyrus. All the greenery around the river and everything sown alongside the river shall be blasted by the wind and dried up. The fishermen will also groan, and all who cast a fishhook into the river will also lament, and those who cast dragnets and the anglers shall mourn. Shame shall fall on those who work fine flax, and those who weave fine fabric will be ashamed. Those who work these things will be in pain. All who make strong drink shall grieve and suffer in their souls. The rulers of Tanis are fools. As for the king's wise counselors, their counsel will be turned into foolishness. How will you say to the king, “We are sons of the wise, we are sons of kings of old”? 12 Where are your wise men now? Let them now tell you, and let them say what the Lord of hosts planned against Egypt. 13 The rulers of Tanis have failed, and the rulers of Memphis are exalted, and they shall lead Egypt astray according to tribes. 14 For the Lord prepared for them a spirit of error, and they led Egypt astray in all their works, like a drunken man who staggers and vomits. 15 There shall be no work for the Egyptians that will bring about employer and employee, and beginning and completion.

16 In that day, the Egyptians shall be like women in fear and trembling because of the hand of the Lord of hosts, which He shall lay upon them. 17 The country of the Jews will be a terror to the Egyptians. If anyone mentions it to them, they will be in fear, because of the counsel the Lord purposed concerning it. 18 In that day, five cities in the land of Egypt will speak the language of Canaan and swear by the name of the Lord; one city will be called the City of Justice. 19 In that day, there will be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the country of Egypt and a pillar to the Lord at its border. 20 It will be a sign forever to the Lord in the country of Egypt, for they will cry to the Lord because of their oppressors, and the Lord will send them a Man who will save them. He will judge and save them. 21 Then the Lord will be known to the Egyptians, and in that day the Egyptians will know the Lord and offer sacrifices. Yes, they will make vows to the Lord and pay them. 22 The Lord shall strike the Egyptians with a great wound and completely heal them. They will return to the Lord, and He shall hear and heal them. 23 In that day there will be a road from Egypt to Assyria. The Assyrians will come into Egypt and the Egyptians into Assyria. The Egyptians will serve with the Assyrians. 24 In that day, Israel will be one of three with the Egyptians and Assyrians; a blessing in the land, 25 which the Lord of hosts blessed, saying, “Blessed are my people in Egypt, and in Assyria and Israel, My inheritance.”

20 In the year Tartan came to Azotus, when he was sent by Sargon the king of the Assyrians, and he fought Ashdod and took it, † 2 then the Lord spoke to Isaiah, saying, “Go and remove the sackcloth from your loins, and take your sandals off your feet.” Thus he did so, walking naked and barefoot. † 3 Then the Lord said, “Just as My servant Isaiah walked naked and barefoot three years for a sign and a wonder against the Egyptians and Ethiopians, 4 so shall the king of the Assyrians lead the captivity of Egypt and the Ethiopians, young men and old, naked and barefoot, exposing the shame of Egypt. 5 The Egyptians being defeated shall be ashamed before the Ethiopians, in whom they trusted, for they were their glory.
Those also who dwell in this island shall say, ‘Behold, we hoped to flee for help to those who were unable to save themselves from the king of the Assyrians. How then shall we be saved?’

The vision of the desert:

As though a whirlwind should pass through the desert, coming from a desert, from a fearful land, so a fearful and harsh vision was declared to me. He who is treacherous deals treacherously; the lawless one deals lawlessly. The Elamites and the ambassador of the Persians come against me. Now I will groan and comfort myself. Therefore my loins are filled with feebleness, and agony seizes me as a woman giving birth. I did wrong, so I cannot hear; I am so troubled, I cannot see. My heart is led astray, and lawlessness permeates me. My soul is occupied with fear.

Prepare the table, eat and drink. Arise, you princes, and prepare your shields. For thus the Lord said to me: “Go, set a watchman for yourself and declare whatever you see.” So I saw two mounted horsemen, a rider on a donkey, and a rider on a camel. Listen with much attention, and call Uriah to the lookout-place of the Lord. Then he said, “I stood continually during the day, and in the camp throughout the night. Behold, he is coming, a rider on a chariot.” Then he answered and said, “Babylon is fallen, and all her statues and those made by hand are crushed to the ground.”

Listen, you who remain and are suffering pain, hear what things I heard from the Lord of hosts, which the God of Israel declared to us.

The vision of Edom:

He calls to me from Seir, “Guard the battlements. I guard in the morning and at night. If you will inquire, inquire, and dwell with me.” In the forest on the road of Dedan you will lodge. Bring water to meet him who is thirsty, you inhabitants of the land of Teman; meet those who are fleeing with bread, because of the multitude who are fleeing and the multitude who are wandering, and because of the multitude of swords and bent bows, and the multitude of those fallen in war. For thus the Lord said to me: “Within a year, according to the year of a hired servant, all the glory of the sons of Kedar shall fail. The remainder of the archers and the mighty men of the sons of Kedar shall be few, for the Lord God of Israel has spoken.”
The word concerning the valley of Zion:

What has happened to you, now that you have all gone up to worthless houses? The city is full of loud crying. Your slain men are not slain with the sword, nor are your dead those who died in war. All your rulers have fled, and your captives are tightly bound, and the mighty among you have fled. Therefore I said, “Let me alone; I will weep bitterly; do not labor to comfort me at the destruction of the daughter of my race.” For it is a day of trouble, destruction, trampling, and error from the Lord of hosts in the Valley of Zion. They wander on the mountains, from the least to the greatest of them. And the Elamites took their quivers, and there were men mounted on horses, gathered for battle. It shall come to pass, your chosen valleys shall be full of chariots, and the horsemen shall block up your gates. They shall uncover the gates of Judah, and look in that day on the chosen houses of the city. They shall uncover the secret places of the houses of the citadel of David, and see they are many. They shall see they had turned back the waters of the old pool into the city, and had pulled down the houses of Jerusalem to fortify the wall for the city. You also made a reservoir for yourself between the two walls of the inner old pool. But you did not look to Him who made it from the beginning, nor did you perceive Him who created it. In that day the Lord of hosts called for weeping and mourning, for baldness and for girding with sackcloth. But instead, they celebrated in joy and gladness, slaying oxen and killing sheep, so as to eat and drink wine, saying, “Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die.” These things are revealed in the ears of the Lord of hosts, for this sin shall not be forgiven you until you die.

Thus the Lord of hosts says, “Go into the chamber, to Shebna the steward, and say to him, What have you here, and what is this to you, that you have hewn a memorial here for yourself, and made yourself a memorial on high, and engraved a testimony for yourself in a rock? Indeed the Lord of hosts will cast out and destroy such a man, and take away your robe and glorious crown, and cast you into a large and unmeasured country. There you shall die, and there your beautiful chariot shall be brought to dishonor and your master's house trampled. You will be taken from your stewardship and position. Then it shall be in that day, I will call My servant Eliakim the son of Hilkiah. I will clothe him with your robe and give your crown to him, and I will commit your power and your stewardship into his hands. He shall be like a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem and Judah. I will give him the glory of David, and he shall rule, and no one will oppose him. 23 I will establish him as a ruler in a trustworthy place, and he will become a glorious throne to his father's house. 24 Everyone glorious in his father's house will trust in him, from small to great, and they will depend on him. 25 In that day,' says the Lord of hosts, ‘the man established in a trustworthy place will be removed and fall, and the glory that was on him will be taken away; for the Lord has spoken.’”

23 The vision concerning Tyre:

Wail, you ships of Carthage, for Tyre has perished; and they no longer come from the land of the Citaeans, for Tyre is led captive! 2 To whom are the dwellers on the island likened—these merchants of Phoenicia, who cross over the sea in great waters, the offspring of merchants? These merchants of the nations are like as when the harvest is gathered. 4 Be ashamed, O Sidon; for the sea has spoken, the strength of the sea has said, “I do not labor in birth, nor bear children; neither do I rear young men, nor raise virgins.” 5 Moreover when the report reaches Egypt, sorrow will take hold of them concerning Tyre. 6 Cross over to Carthage; wail, you inhabitants on this island! 7 Was this not your arrogance from the beginning, before it was handed over? 8 Who purposed these things against Tyre? Is it inferior, or does it have no strength? Are not its merchants the glorious rulers of the earth? 9 The Lord of hosts purposed these things, to bring down all the arrogance of the glorious ones and to dishonor every glorious thing on the earth. 10 Cultivate your land, for ships are no longer coming from Carthage. 11 Your hand is no longer able at sea, the hand that provoked kings. The Lord of hosts has given a command concerning Canaan, to destroy its strength. 12 They will say, “No longer continue to insult and wrong the daughter of Sidon, and if you cross over to the Citians, neither will you be at rest there. 13 And if you depart for the land of the Chaldeans, this also was desolated by the Assyrians. Neither will you be at rest there, for its wall has fallen.” 14 Wail, you ships of Carthage, for your stronghold is destroyed! 15 Then it shall come to pass in that day that Tyre will be abandoned for seventy years, as the time of a king, as the time of a man; and it shall be, after the seventy years, Tyre will be as the song of a prostitute. 16 Take a harp, wander about the city, you forgotten prostitute. Play well on the harp, sing many songs, that you may be remembered. 17 And it shall be, at the end of seventy years, that the Lord will visit Tyre. She will be restored again as of old, and will be a marketplace for all the kingdoms of the inhabited earth. 18 Her trade and her wages will be holy to the Lord. Her trade will not be gathered for them, but for those who dwell before the Lord, to eat, drink, and be filled, as a shared meal and a memorial before the Lord.

24 Behold, the Lord is about to lay waste the inhabited earth, and He will make it desolate, lay bare its surface, and scatter those who dwell therein.† 2And it shall be that the people shall be as the priest, the servant as the lord, the maiden as the mistress, the buyer as the seller, the lender as the borrower, and the debtor as the creditor. 3The earth shall be completely laid waste and utterly plundered, for the mouth of the Lord has spoken these things. 4The earth mourns and the inhabited earth is ruined; the lofty of the earth mourn. 5The earth acts lawlessly because of its inhabitants, for they transgressed the law and changed the ordinances, the everlasting covenant. 6Therefore a curse shall devour the earth, because those who dwell in it sinned. Therefore the inhabitants of the earth shall be poor, and few people will be left. 7The wine shall mourn, the vine shall mourn, and all the merry-hearted will groan. 8The mirth of tambourines, the willfulness and wealth of the ungodly, and the sound of the harp have ceased. 9They were ashamed; they did not drink wine; strong drink is bitter to those who drink it. 10Every city was made desolate; every house is shut up, that none may go in. 11Wail for wine everywhere; all gladness of the earth is gone! 12Cities shall be left desolate, and abandoned houses will be destroyed. 13All these things shall be in the earth in the midst of the nations, in the manner someone would glean an olive tree. Thus they shall glean them when the harvest is done. 14They shall cry aloud, and those left behind on the earth shall be glad together in the glory of the Lord. The water of the sea shall be troubled.† 15Therefore the glory of the Lord will be in the islands of the sea; the name of the Lord, the God of Israel, will be glorious. 16From the ends of the earth we heard wonderful things, and there is hope for the godly man. They will say, “Woe to the rejecters, who reject the law!” 17Fear, a pit, and a snare are upon you who dwell on the earth. 18It shall be that he who flees from the fear shall fall into the pit, and he who comes up from the midst of the pit shall be caught in the snare; for the windows of heaven are opened, and the foundations of the earth shall be shaken.† 19The earth shall be completely troubled, and the earth will be completely perplexed. 20The earth bends and will be shaken like a hut, and like a drunkard overpowered with wine; and it shall fall and be unable to stand, for lawlessness is upon it. 21Then God will bring His hand upon the host of heaven and upon the kings of the earth.† 22They will gather them and close them in a fortress and in a prison; and after many generations they shall be visited. 23And the brick will melt and the wall shall fall, for the Lord
O Lord my God, I will glorify You; I will sing a hymn to Your name, for You have done wonderful things, an ancient and true counsel. So be it, O Lord.† 2 For You made cities into a mound; You made the foundations of their strong cities fall. The city of the ungodly shall not be built forever.† 3 Therefore the poor people will bless You, and the cities of wronged people will praise You. 4 For You were a helper to every humbled city, and a protection to those who were disheartened by reason of poverty. You will deliver them from evil men, and be a shelter of the thirsty and a breath of life to the wronged. 5 They will bless You as discouraged people, thirsting in Zion because of ungodly men to whom You delivered us. 6 Then the Lord of hosts shall do this to all the nations on this mountain. They shall drink in gladness; they shall drink wine; they shall anoint themselves with ointment on this mountain. Deliver all these things to the nations, for this is the counsel for all the nations. 8 Death prevailed and swallowed them, but again God wiped away every tear from every face; He took away the disgrace of His people from all the earth; for the mouth of the Lord has spoken.† 9 Then it will be said in that day, “Behold, this is our God, in whom we hoped and rejoiced exceedingly; and we shall be glad in His salvation.”† 10 For on this mountain God will give them rest, and the Moabite shall be trampled down, in the manner the threshing floor is tread with wagons.† 11 He will spread forth His hands so as to humble man, to destroy him; and He will humble his arrogance—arrogance on which he laid his hands. 12 The height of your refuge He will humble, and bring it down to the ground.

In that day they shall sing this song in the land of Judah: “Behold, we have a strong city; He will make our salvation its surrounding wall. 2 Open the gates; let the people enter who keep righteousness and guard the truth, 3 and who lay hold of the truth and keep peace, 4 because they hope forever in You, O Lord, the great and eternal God, 5 who humbles and brings down those who dwell on high; the strong cities You will cast down; You will bring them down to the ground.† 6 The feet of the gentle and the humble shall tread them underfoot. 7 The way of the godly is straight; and the way of the godly is prepared.† 8 For the way of the Lord is judgment. We hope in Your name and in the remembrance of You, 9 which our soul desires at night. My spirit rises early in the morning to You, O God, for Your commands are a light upon the earth. Learn righteousness, you who dwell on the earth. 10 The ungodly man ceases; he will not learn righteousness on the earth; he will not do the truth; let the ungodly man be taken away, that he may not see the glory of the Lord. O Lord, Your arm is exalted, but they did not know it. But when they know it, they shall be ashamed, for jealousy will seize an untaught people; and now fire will devour the adversaries. O Lord our God, grant us peace, for You render everything to us. O Lord our God, possess us; O Lord, we know no other besides You; we name Your name. The dead will not see life; neither will physicians raise them. Therefore You brought evils upon them and destroyed them, and took away every male of theirs. Bring more evils on them, O Lord, on the glorious of the earth. O Lord, I remembered You in my hard circumstances. Your chastening to us was a small affliction. As a woman with child is in pain and cries out in her pangs, when she draws near the time of her delivery, so we became Your beloved because of Your fear, O Lord. We have been with child, we have been in pain, and we have given birth. We brought forth the spirit of Your salvation on the earth. But the inhabitants of the world shall fall. The dead shall rise up; and those in the tombs shall arise. Those in the earth shall be glad, for your dew is a healing for them, but the land of the ungodly shall come to an end.” Come, my people, enter your closets and shut your door; hide yourself for a very short while, until the anger of the Lord is past. For behold, the Lord is bringing wrath from His holy place upon the inhabitants of the earth, and the earth will uncover its blood and will not cover its slain.

In that day, God will bring His holy, great, and strong sword upon the fleeing dragon serpent, the perverse dragon serpent that flees; and He shall destroy the dragon. In that day, there shall be a beautiful vineyard, and a desire to begin a hymn against a city: “I am a strong city, a besieged city; I water it in vain; for it shall be taken at night, and its wall shall fall by day. There is no woman who has not taken hold of it. Who will appoint me to guard straw in a field? I rejected it because of this enemy. For that very reason therefore, the Lord God did all the things He ordered. I am burned down.” Those who dwell in it will cry out, “Let us make peace with Him, let us make peace.” Those who come are the children of Jacob. Israel shall bud and put forth flowers, and the inhabited earth shall be filled with its fruit. As he struck, shall he not be thus struck? As he slew, shall he not be thus slain? Fighting and denouncing he shall send them away. Did you not think with a harsh spirit about killing them in a spirit of anger? Therefore the lawlessness of Jacob will be removed; and this is his blessing when I take away his sin, when they make all the stones of the altars beaten like fine dust. Their trees do not remain, and their idols shall be cut down like a
The flock that dwelt there shall be left like an abandoned flock, and for a long time the field will be for pasture; and there flocks shall lie down to rest.†

And after a time, there will be nothing green in it because of the withering. Come here, you women who come from that sight. For it is a people of no understanding; therefore He who made them will have no compassion on them, neither He who formed them; and He will show them no mercy. 12 And it shall come to pass in that day that the Lord will close it from the channel of the river to the Brook of Egypt. And you will gather the sons of Israel one by one.†

So it shall be in that day that they shall blow the great trumpet, and the lost ones in the country of the Assyrians and in Egypt will come, and they shall worship the Lord on the holy mountain in Jerusalem.

28 Woe to the crown of arrogance, the hirelings of Ephraim, the flower that fell from the glory on top of the fertile mountain, those who are drunk without wine.†

Behold, the anger of the Lord is a strong and harsh thing, like a falling hail where there is no shelter, falling violently like a great force of water, sweeping away the country. He shall bring relief for the earth with His hands. 3 The crown of arrogance, the hirelings of Ephraim, will be trampled underfoot. 4 But the flower that fell from the hope of the glory on the top of the high mountain shall be like the forerunner of the fig. He who sees it wishes to swallow it before he gets it in his hand.†

In that day, the Lord of hosts shall be the crown of hope, woven of glory, to the remnant of My people. 6 They shall be left in a spirit of judgment upon judgment and for the strength of those who prevent slaying. 7 For these are led astray with wine and are deceived by strong drink. Priest and prophet are out of their minds by reason of wine; they stagger because of drunkenness; they go astray. This is delusion. 8 A curse will devour this counsel, for this counsel was for the sake of covetousness. 9 To whom have we reported evils and declared a message? Those weaned from milk and withdrawn from the breasts. 10 Expect affliction upon affliction, hope upon hope, yet a little, yet a little.†

By reason of the contempt of lips and another tongue they will speak to this people, 12 saying to them, “This is the rest for the hungry, and this is the affliction,” but they would not listen. 13 The teaching of the Lord God will be for them affliction upon affliction, hope upon hope, yet a little, yet a little, so they may go and fall backward; and they will be in danger, crushed and conquered. 14 Therefore hear the word of the Lord, you afflicted men and rulers of this people in Jerusalem. 15 Because you said, “We made a covenant with Hades, and are in agreement with death, and if the rushing storm passes through, it will not come upon us, for we made falsehood our hope, and in falsehood we shall be protected”; therefore, thus says the Lord: 16 Behold, I lay for the foundations of Zion a costly stone, a chosen and precious cornerstone for its foundations, and whoever believes in Him will not be put to shame. 17 I will also cause judgment to be for hope, and My mercy to be for a standard. The sudden blast of wind will not pass by you who trust vainly in falsehood, except it also take away your covenant of death. Your hope in Hades will also not stand when the rushing storm passes through, for you will be beaten down by it. 18 When it passes through, it will take you; for morning by morning it will pass through by day, and by night there will be an evil hope.” Learn to listen, you in difficult straits. We cannot fight, and we ourselves are too weak to gather ourselves together. 21 As the mountain of the ungodly will rise up and be in the valley of Gibeon, He will do His deeds in anger, a work of bitterness. His anger will behave strangely, and His bitterness will be strange. 22 So do not be glad, neither let your hands become strong; because I heard from the Lord of hosts the things He will perform upon all the earth. 23 Give ear and hear my voice. Listen and hear my words. 24 Will the plowman plow all day? Or will he prepare the seed before he cultivates the ground? 25 When he levels its surface, does he not then sow the small black cummin, and afterward sow the wheat, the barley, and the one-seeded wheat in your borders? 26 So you will be chastised by the judgment of your God and be gladdened by it. 27 For the black cummin is not cleansed with harshness, nor will the wheel of a wagon roll over the cummin; but the black cummin is threshed with a stick, and the cummin will be eaten with bread. For I will not be angry with you forever, nor will the voice of my bitterness trample you underfoot. 29 These signs came forth from the Lord of hosts.

Woe to the city of Ariel, against which David waged war! Gather fruits year by year, for you will eat with Moab. For I will afflict Ariel, and her strength and wealth will be mine. 3 I will encircle you as David did, and I will put a barricade around you, and place towers around you. 4 Your words will be humbled to the earth, and your words will sink into the earth. Your speech shall be like those calling out of the ground, and your voice weakened to the ground. 5 Moreover the wealth of the ungodly shall be like the dust of a wheel and like dirt carried away. It shall be as though in an instant and suddenly from the Lord of hosts; for there will be a visitation with thunder and earthquake and a great noise, and a sudden blast of wind and a devouring flame of fire. 2 The wealth of all the nations, as many as fought against Ariel, and all who wage war against Jerusalem, and all who gather against her and afflict her, shall be as one who dreams in the night. They shall be like those who eat and drink in a dream, and when they awake their dream was useless, and as a thirsty man dreams, as if he is drinking but is still thirsty when he wakes, and his soul hoped in vain, so will be the wealth of all the nations that fought against Mount Zion. Faint and be amazed; be overpowered, not with strong drink nor with wine, for the Lord made you drink a spirit of deep sleep, and He shall close their eyes and the eyes of their prophets and rulers, who see secret things. All these things shall be to you as the words of this sealed book, which if they should give to a learned man, saying, “Read this,” then he will say, “I cannot read this, for it is sealed.” This book shall also be placed in the hands of an unlearned man, and one shall say to him, “Read this,” then he will say, “I do not understand writings.”

So the Lord said, “These people draw near to Me and honor Me with their lips, but their heart is far from Me, and they worship Me in vain, teaching the commandments and doctrines of men. Therefore behold, I will proceed to remove this people, and I shall remove them. I shall destroy the wisdom of the wise and hide the understanding of the intelligent.” Woe to those who deepen their counsel, but not through the Lord! Woe to those who take counsel in secret and whose works are in darkness! They say, “Who sees us?” and, “Who knows us or what we do?” Shall you not be considered as the clay of the potter? Shall what is molded of clay say to him who molded it, “You did not create me”? Or shall the work say to him who made it, “You did not make me wisely”? Is it not yet a very little while until Lebanon shall be changed like Mount Carmel, and Mount Carmel be considered a forest? In that day, the deaf shall hear the words of the book, and the eyes of those in darkness and in a fog shall see. The poor also shall rejoice exceedingly in gladness because of the Lord, and the hopeless among men shall be filled with gladness. The lawless man has come to an end, and the arrogant man has perished. Those who act lawlessly in malice are utterly destroyed, as well as those who cause men to sin in word. They shall make all who condemn at the gates an offense, because they turned aside the righteous man with wrongdoing. Therefore the Lord says this concerning the house of Jacob, whom He set apart out of Abraham: “Now Jacob shall not be ashamed, nor shall Israel now change his countenance. But when their children see My works, they shall sanctify My name for My sake, and will sanctify the Holy One of Jacob, and fear the God of Israel. And those who erred in spirit shall know understanding, and those who complained will learn to obey, and the stammering tongues shall learn to speak peace.”
“Woe to the apostate children,” says the Lord! “You made counsel, but not through Me, and covenants, but not of My Spirit, so as to add sins to sins. You proceeded to go down to Egypt, but did not ask Me, so as to be helped by Pharaoh and protected by the Egyptians. For the protection of Pharaoh shall be your shame, and there shall be disgrace for those who trust in Egypt. For there are rulers at Tanis, evil messengers. In vain shall they labor in seeking a people who will not profit, help or benefit them, but they shall be for them a shame and a disgrace.”

The vision of the quadrupeds in the desert:

In affliction and distress they carry their wealth on the backs of donkeys and camels—amid lions and lion's cubs, and vipers and the offspring of flying vipers—to a nation that will not profit or benefit them, but will be for them a shame and a disgrace. For the Egyptians shall help you utterly in vain. Tell them, “This consolation of yours is in vain.”

Now therefore, sit and write these things on a tablet in a book, for these things shall be for the time to come, even forever. For this is a disobedient people, false children, children who are unwilling to hear the law of God. They say to the prophets, “Do not report to us”; and to those who see visions, “Do not speak to us, but speak and declare to us another deception. Turn us aside from this way; remove this path from us, and take away from us the Holy One of Israel.” Therefore thus says the Lord, the Holy One of Israel: “Because you disobeyed these words, and hoped in falsehood and grumbled and were confident in this respect; therefore, this sin shall be to you like a wall ready to fall when a strong city is taken, whose fall is immediately present. Its fall shall be like the breaking of a clay vessel, like that of a small jar, so as not to find among them even a fragment with which to take away fire, or draw a little water.” For thus says the Lord, the Holy One of Israel: “When you return and groan, then you will be saved and know where you were. When you trusted in vain things, vain was your strength, and you did not will to listen.” But you said, “We will flee on horses”—therefore you shall flee. You also said, “We will ride on swift horses”—therefore those who pursue you shall be swift. One thousand shall flee at the voice of one; at the voice of five, many shall flee, until you are left as a pole upon a mountain, and as one holding a banner on a hill. And again God will wait, that He may have compassion on you; and therefore He will be exalted, that He may have mercy on you, because the Lord our God is a judge, and where will you leave behind your glory? Blessed are all those who abide in Him.
For a holy people shall dwell in Zion; and Jerusalem cried with wailing, “Have mercy on me.” He will have mercy on you at the sound of your cry. When He sees this, He will listen to you.

The Lord will give you the bread of affliction and scant water; and those leading you astray will no longer approach you, but your eyes shall see those leading you astray.†

Your ears shall hear words behind you leading you astray, saying, “This is the way; let us walk in it,” either to the right hand or to the left.

You will also remove your idols plaited with silver and covered with gold. You will grind them to powder and scatter them like the water of an indisposed woman, and thrust them away like dung.

Then there will be rain for the seed of your land, and the bread of produce of your land's increase will be plenteous and rich. In that day your cattle will feed in rich and large pastures.

Your bulls and the oxen that work the ground will eat straw prepared with winnowed barley.

On every high mountain and on every high hill there will be streams in that day, when many perish and the towers fall.

In that day, the light of the moon will be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun will be sevenfold, when the Lord heals the wound of His people and the pain of your plague.

Behold, the name of the Lord comes after a long time, a burning anger. The teaching of His lips is with glory, a revelation full of wrath, and the wrath of His anger shall devour like fire.

His breath, like an overflowing stream in a valley, shall reach up to the neck and be divided, to trouble the nations for their vain error; and error shall pursue and overtake them.

Must you always be glad, and go into My holy places continually, as those who keep a feast, and must you always go with a flute, as those who are glad when they go into the mountain of the Lord, to the God of Israel?

God will cause His glorious voice to be heard, and He will show the anger of His arm with anger and wrath, and the flame of a devouring fire. He shall strike violently with thunderbolts, and His wrath shall be as water and violent hail.

For through the voice of the Lord, the Assyrians will be defeated, as He strikes them with the rod.†

And it shall happen to him on every side, that those from whom his hope of assistance was, and in whom he trusted, shall themselves, in turn, make war on him with flutes and harps.

For you will be required before many days: Was it prepared for you also to reign? No, God prepared for you a deep valley, wood laid down, fire and much wood. The anger of the Lord shall be as a valley burning with brimstone.

Woe to those who go down to Egypt for help and rely on horses, who trust in chariots because they are many, and in horsemen because they are very strong, but who do not trust in the Holy One of Israel, nor seek God!†
word cannot be set aside, for He will rise up against the houses of evil men and against their vain hope.

3 Now an Egyptian is a man, and not God; and their horses are flesh, and not a help. The Lord shall bring His hand against them, and those who help them shall become weary. All will perish together.

4 For thus the Lord said to me: “As a lion roars, and a young lion over his prey, which he took and cries out upon it until the mountains are filled with his sound, and the animals are awestruck and terrified at the fierceness of his anger, so the Lord of hosts will come down to fight for Mount Zion, even upon her mountains.†

5 Like birds flying about, so will the Lord defend Jerusalem. He will deliver, preserve, and save it.”

6 Return, you who planned a deep and lawless counsel.

7 For in that day, men shall renounce their idols of silver and gold, which their hands made.

8 Then the Assyrian shall fall by a sword not of man, and a sword not of man shall devour him. He shall not flee from the sword, but his young men shall be overthrown.†

9 For they shall be surrounded by a rock as by a barricade, and he who flees shall be caught.

The Lord says this: “Blessed is he who has a seed in Zion and kindred in Jerusalem. For behold, a righteous King shall reign, and rulers will govern with judgment.†

2 A Man will hide His words, and be hidden as from flowing water; and He will appear in Zion as a glorious river flowing in a thirsty land.†

3 And they will no longer trust in men, but their ears will incline to listen.

4 The heart of the sick will pay attention to listen, and the tongues that stammer will learn quickly to speak peace.”

5 Let them no longer tell a fool to rule, nor let Your servants say any longer, “Be silent.”

6 For the fool will speak foolishness, and his heart will think vain things: to practice lawlessness, to speak error against the Lord, to scatter hungry souls, and to make thirsty souls empty.

7 For the counsel of evil men plans lawlessness, to destroy the humble with unjust words, and to scatter the words of the humble with judgment.

8 But the godly plan wise things, and this counsel remains.

9 Rise up, you rich women, and hear my voice. You daughters with hope, listen to my words.

10 In pain, yet with hope, remember that for a full year the harvest will be consumed and cease. It shall by no means come again.

11 Be amazed, be grieved, you confident ones. Strip yourselves, and gird your loins with sackcloth.

12 Beat upon your breasts because of the desirable fields and the fruit of the vine.

13 On the land of my people, thorns and grass will come up, and gladness will be taken from every house. As for the rich city,

14 the houses are deserted, and they will leave behind the wealth of the city and desirable houses. The villages will become caves forever, and the gladness of wild donkeys and pastures of shepherds—

until the Spirit comes upon you from on high, and the desert becomes a fruitful field, and the fruitful field is counted as a forest.†

Then judgment will take rest in the desert, and righteousness shall dwell in Carmel.

The works of righteousness will be peace, and righteousness shall ensure rest and confidence forever.

His people will dwell in a city of peace, and will dwell in confidence, and they will rest with riches.

Though hail should come down, it would not fall upon you, and those who dwell in the forests shall be as confident as those in the plain.

Blessed are those who sow beside all waters, where the ox and the donkey tread.†

Woe to those who distress you, though no one is causing you distress, and he who deals treacherously with you, though no one is dealing treacherously with you! Those who deal treacherously will be conquered and handed over, and like a moth in a garment they will be defeated.†

O Lord, have mercy on us; for we trust in You. The seed of the disobedient was made for destruction, but our salvation is in a time of affliction.†

The peoples were dismayed through fear of You, because of Your fearsome voice, and the nations were scattered.

So now the spoils of your small and great shall be gathered, as if someone might gather grasshoppers. Thus shall they make fun of you.

The God who dwells in the heights is holy. Zion is filled with judgment and righteousness.†

They will be handed over to the law. Our salvation is in treasures wherein is wisdom, knowledge, and godliness toward the Lord—these are the treasures of righteousness.

Behold therefore, they will fear you greatly, and those you feared will fear you. For messengers shall be sent entreating for peace, weeping bitterly as they ask for peace.

For their ways will lie desolate. The fear of the nations has ceased, and the covenant with them is taken away, and you will not reckon them as a people.

The earth mourns, and Lebanon is shamed. Sharon has become marshlands, and Galilee and Carmel are laid bare.

“Now I will arise,” says the Lord; “now I will be glorified; now I will be exalted.

Now you shall see, now you shall perceive; the strength of your spirit is vain; fire shall devour you.

The nations shall be burned up, like thorns thrown in the field and burned up.

Those afar off will hear what I have done; and those near will know My strength.”

The lawless in Zion departed; trembling will seize the ungodly. Who will tell you a fire is burning? Who will tell you about the eternal place?†

He who walks in righteousness and speaks uprightly, he who hates lawlessness and wrongdoing, who gestures with his hands, refusing bribes, he who stops his ears from hearing the judgment of blood, and he who shuts his eyes from seeing wrongdoing. 16 He will dwell in a high cave of a mighty rock. Bread will be given him, and his water will be plentiful. 17 All of you will see a King with His glory, and your eyes will see a land from afar. 18 Your soul will think about fear. Where are the scribes? Where are the advisors? Where is he who numbers those growing up, both a small and great people, with whom they did not consult, nor did he know a deep-voiced people, that a despised people should not hear, and there is no understanding to him who hears? 20 Behold, there is Zion, the city of our salvation. Your eyes will see Jerusalem, a wealthy city, a tabernacle which will not be shaken. Neither shall one of the tent-p pegs of its tabernacle be moved forever, nor its cords broken; 21 for the name of the Lord is great to you. There will be a place for you—rivers and brooks, broad and spacious. You will not travel this way, nor will a boat with oars. 22 For my God is great. The Lord our judge will not pass me by. The Lord is our ruler, the Lord is our king. He will save us. 23 Your ropes broke apart, for the boat was not strong. Your mast could not hold, and the sails slackened. It will not raise a flag until it is taken for booty. Therefore many lame men will make it a spoil. 24 And the people who dwell among them will not say, “I am weary,” for their sin shall be forgiven.
Come near, you nations, and listen, you rulers. Let the earth hear and those in it, the inhabited earth and the people therein.

† 2 For the anger of the Lord is against all the nations, and His wrath against all the number of them, to destroy them utterly and to deliver them over for slaughter. 3 Their slain and their dead shall be thrown out; their stench shall rise from their dead bodies, and the mountains shall be drenched with their blood. 4 Heaven shall also be rolled up like a scroll, and all the stars shall fall like leaves from a vine, as leaves fall from a fig tree. 5 My sword in heaven is soaked with blood. Behold, it shall come down on Edom, and with judgment on the people of destruction. 6 The sword of the Lord is filled with blood. It is fattened with the fat of lambs, goats, and rams. For the Lord has a sacrifice in Bozrah and a great slaughter in Edom. 7 The mighty ones shall fall with them, and the rams and the bulls. Their land shall be soaked with blood and saturated with fatness. 8 For it is the day of the Lord's judgment and the year of recompense for the cause of Zion. 9 Its valleys shall be turned into pitch and its land into brimstone. Its land shall become burning pitch. 10 It shall never be quenched day or night, and its smoke shall rise up. It shall lie waste for all time and generations. 11 But birds and hedgehogs shall live in it, and also ibises and ravens. He shall stretch out over it the measuring line of a desert, and donkey-centaurs will dwell in it. 12 Its rulers shall be no more, for its kings, rulers, and great ones shall be destroyed. 13 Thorn-trees shall come up in its cities and fortresses; it shall be a habitation of sirens, a courtyard for ostriches. 14 Demons shall also meet with donkey-centaurs, and one will cry out to another. Donkey-centaurs shall also rest there, for they found themselves a place of rest. 15 There the hedgehog made its nest, and the earth preserved its children in safety. There the deer also gathered and saw one another's faces. 16 They passed by in numbers, and not one of them perished. Not one of them sought the other, for the Lord commanded them, and His Spirit gathered them. 17 He shall cast lots for them, and His hand divided it among them to graze upon. They shall inherit it for all time, and shall rest on it from generation to generation.

Be glad, you thirsty desert, and rejoice exceedingly, and let the desert blossom as a lily. 2 The desert places of the Jordan shall blossom abundantly and rejoice exceedingly. The glory of Lebanon and the honor of Carmel shall be given to it, and My people shall see the glory of the Lord and the majesty of our God. 3 Be strong, you relaxed hands and feeble knees. 4 Be comforted, you fainthearted. Be strong, do not fear. Behold, our God renders judgment and will render it. He will come and save us. 5 Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall hear. 6 Then the lame shall leap like a deer, and the tongue of the dumb will speak clearly. For water shall burst forth in the desert, and a valley in the thirsty land. 7 The waterless desert shall become meadows, and the thirsty land springs of water. There will be the gladness of birds, a habitation of reeds and marshes. 8 A pure way shall be there, and it shall be called a holy way. No unclean man shall pass through there, neither shall there be an unclean way there. But those dispersed shall walk in it, and they shall not go astray. 9 No lion shall be there, nor shall any ravenous animals go up on it, nor at all be found there. But the redeemed shall walk in it, 10 and those gathered by the Lord shall return and come to Zion with gladness, and with everlasting gladness over their head. For praise and exceeding joy will be on their head, and gladness shall possess them. Pain, sorrow, and sighing fled away.

36 Now it came to pass in the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah that Sennacherib king of the Assyrians came up against all the fortified cities of Judah and took them. 2 Then the king of the Assyrians sent Rabshakeh with a great army from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem, and he stood by the aqueduct of the upper pool, on the way of the fuller's field. 3 So Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, the steward, Shebna the scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder, came out to him. 4 Then the Rabshakeh said to them, “Say now to Hezekiah, ‘Thus says the great king, the king of the Assyrians: “Why are you confident? 5 Is a war carried on by counsel or mere words? Now in whom do you trust, that you disobey me? 6 Behold, you are trusting in the staff of this broken reed, Egypt, on which if a man leans, it will puncture his hand. So is Pharaoh king of Egypt and all who trust in him. 7 But will you say, ‘We trust in the Lord our God’?”’ ” 8 Now therefore, make an agreement with my lord the king of the Assyrians, and I will give you two thousand horses—if you are able on your part to put riders on them. 9 How are you able to turn back the face of one governor? Those who trust in the Egyptians for horse and rider are our servants. 10 Have we now come up without the Lord to make war against this country?”

11 Then Eliakim, Shebna, and Joah said to the Rabshakeh, “Speak to your servants in the Syrian language, for we understand it; and do not speak to us in Hebrew in the hearing of the men who are on the wall.” 12 But Rabshakeh said to them, “Has my lord sent me to your lord or to you to speak these words? Has he not sent me to speak to the men who sit on the wall, so they may eat their own dung, and drink their own urine with you?” 13 Then the Rabshakeh stood and called out with a loud voice in Hebrew, and said, “Hear the words of the great king,
Thus says the king: ‘Do not let Hezekiah deceive you with words which will be unable to deliver you; nor let Hezekiah say to you, “God will deliver you, and this city will not be given into the hand of the king of the Assyrians.”’

Do not listen to Hezekiah; for thus says the king of Assyria: ‘If you wish to be blessed, come out to me, and each of you will eat from his own vine and his own fig tree, and all of you will drink the waters of your own cistern, until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of grain and wine, and of bread and vineyards.’

Let not Hezekiah deceive you, saying, ‘God will deliver us.’ Has any one of the gods of the nations delivered its land from the hand of the king of the Assyrians? Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim? Have they delivered Samaria from my hand? Who among all the gods of these nations delivered his land from my hand, that God should deliver Jerusalem from my hand?’

But they held their peace and answered him not a word, because of the king's commandment not to answer him.

Then Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, the steward, Shebna the scribe of the army, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekiah with their clothes torn and told him the words of the Rabshakeh.

Thus it came to pass, when King Hezekiah heard this, he tore his clothes, covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the Lord. Then he sent Eliakim the steward, Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz. So they said to him, “Thus says Hezekiah: ‘This day is a day of affliction, disgrace, rebuke, and wrath; for the pangs of childbirth have come, but there is no strength to give birth. May the Lord your God hear the words of the Rabshakeh, whom the king of the Assyrians sent to denounce the living God, and to insult Him with words which the Lord your God heard. Therefore you shall pray to the Lord your God for the remnant that is left.’”

So the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah, and Isaiah said to them, “Thus shall you say to your lord: ‘The Lord says this, “Do not be afraid of the words you heard, whereby the ambassadors of the king of the Assyrians denounced Me. Behold, I will send a spirit upon him, and he shall hear a rumor and return to his land. Then he will fall by the sword in his own land.”’”

So Rabshakeh returned and found the king warring against Libnah. Then the king of the Assyrians heard that Tirhakah king of the Ethiopians had come out to make war against him. So when he heard it, he returned and sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, 10 “Thus you shall speak to Hezekiah king of Judah, saying, ‘Do not let your God in whom you trust deceive you, saying, “Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the king of the Assyrians.”’ ¹¹ You heard what the kings of the Assyrians did to all lands by destroying them. ¹² Did the gods of the nations deliver those my fathers destroyed—Gozan and Haran and Rezeph in the country of Telassar? ¹³ Where are the kings of Hamath and Arpad, and the kings of the city of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivah? ” ¹⁴ So Hezekiah received the scroll from the messengers and opened it before the Lord. ¹⁵ Then Hezekiah prayed to the Lord, saying, ¹⁶ “O Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, the One who sits between the cherubim, You alone are the God of all the kingdoms of the world. You made heaven and earth. ¹⁷ Hear, O Lord, and open Your eyes, O Lord, and see the words Sennacherib sent to denounce the living God. ¹⁸ For it is true, the kings of the Assyrians laid waste the inhabited earth and their countries, ¹⁹ and cast their idols into the fire; for they were not gods, but works of men's hands—wood and stone. Therefore they destroyed them. ²⁰ But now, O Lord our God, save us from their hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know You alone are God.”

²¹ Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah and said to him, “The Lord God of Israel says this: ‘I heard what you prayed to Me against Sennacherib king of the Assyrians. ²² This is the word God has spoken concerning him: “The virgin daughter of Zion has despised and laughed you to scorn. The daughter of Jerusalem has shaken her head at you.” ²³ Whom have you denounced and provoked? Or against whom have you raised your voice? You have lifted your eyes on high against the Holy One of Israel. ²⁴ By your messengers, you have insulted the Lord, for you said, ‘By the multitude of my chariots I came to the height of the mountains, to the limits of Lebanon. I cut down its tall cedars and its choice cypress trees, and entered the height of its forest region. ²⁵ I built a bridge, and dried up the waters and every pool of water.’ ²⁶ Did you not hear long ago the things I did? From ancient times I appointed them, but now have manifested my purpose to desolate nations in their strongholds and those who dwell in strong cities. ²⁷ I weakened their hands, and they withered; and they became like dry grass on the housetops and like weeds. ²⁸ Now then, I know your resting place, your going out and your coming in. ²⁹ Your great rage and bitterness has come up to Me. Therefore I will put a hook in your nose and a bridle in your lips, and I will turn you back by the way you came.’ ” ³⁰ This shall be a sign to you: You shall eat this year what you sowed, and the second year what is left over; also in the third year sow and reap; plant vineyards and eat the fruit of them. 31So the remnant in the house of Judah shall again take root downward and bear fruit upward. 32For out of Jerusalem a remnant shall go forth, and those saved from Mount Zion. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform these things. 33Therefore, thus says the Lord concerning the king of the Assyrians: ‘He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor come before it with shield, nor build a siege mound against it. 34By the way he came, by the same shall he return,’ says the Lord. 35‘I will protect this city, to save it for My own sake and for My servant David's sake.’ ”

36Then the Angel of the Lord went out and killed in the camp of the Assyrians one hundred and eighty-five thousand; and when people arose early in the morning, they discovered all the dead bodies.† 37Then Sennacherib king of the Assyrians departed and returned to Nineveh, and dwelt there. 38Now it came to pass, as he was worshiping in the house of Nisroch his god, his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer struck him down with the sword, then escaped into the land of Ararat; and Esarhaddon his son reigned in his place.

In those days Hezekiah was sick and near death. Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz, went to him and said, “Thus says the Lord: ‘Set your house in order, for you shall die and not live.’ ”† 2Then Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall, and prayed to the Lord, 3and said, “Remember now, O Lord, I pray, how I have walked before You in truth and with a true heart, and did what is pleasing in Your sight.” So Hezekiah wept loudly. 4Then the word of the Lord came to Isaiah, saying, 5“Go and tell Hezekiah, ‘Thus says the Lord, the God of David your father: “I heard your prayer, I see your tears. Behold, I will add fifteen years to your life. 6I will deliver you and this city from the hand of the king of the Assyrians, and I will protect this city. 7Now this shall be the sign to you from the Lord, that God will do this thing:† 8I will turn back the shadow on the ten steps of your father's house—the steps on which the sun goes down.” ’ ” So the sun's shadow that went down on the ten steps turned back.

9The prayer of Hezekiah king of Judah when he was sick and recovered from his sickness:
10“I said at the end of my days near the gates of Hades, ‘I shall leave behind the remainder of my years.’ 11I said, ‘I shall no longer see the salvation of my God upon the earth; I shall no longer see a man among my kindred.’ 12I left behind what remained of my life. It went away and departed from me like one who takes down a tent. My breath became in me like the web of a weaver when she draws near to cut it. 13On that day I was given as to a lion until morning. So He broke my bones, for from day until night I was given over. 14Like a swallow, so shall I cry; I will mourn like a dove. My eyes fail from looking to the height of heaven toward the Lord, who delivered me. 15and removed the pain of my soul. 16O Lord, it was told You concerning this, and You revived my breath; and I was comforted and lived. 17For You chose my soul that it should not perish, and You cast all my sins behind me. 18For those in Hades shall not praise You, neither will the dead bless You; nor shall those in Hades hope for Your mercy. 19The living shall praise You as I do. For from this day forward, I shall cause children to declare Your righteousness, O Lord of my salvation, 20and I shall not cease to bless You with the psaltery all the days of my life before the house of God.”

21Now Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Take a cake of figs, mash them, and apply them as a plaster, and you shall recover.” 22Then Hezekiah said, “This is the sign that I shall go up to the house of the Lord God.”

39At that time, Merodach the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters, ambassadors, and gifts to Hezekiah, for he heard he was sick and almost died, but had recovered. **†

2Hezekiah was very glad they came, and he showed them the house of his treasures—the oil of myrrh, the fragrant incense, the ointment, the silver and the gold—and all the treasure houses with their vessels, and everything found among his treasures. There was nothing in his house he did not show them. 3Then Isaiah the prophet went to King Hezekiah, and said to him, “What did these men say, and from where did they come to you?” So Hezekiah said, “They came to me from a far country, from Babylon.” 4Then he said, “What did they see in your house?” So Hezekiah answered, “They saw everything in my house; there is nothing in my house they did not see, even among my treasures.” 5Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the Lord of hosts: † 6‘Behold, the days are coming,’ says the Lord, ‘when everything in your house and everything your fathers accumulated until this day shall be carried to Babylon; nothing shall be left.’ 7God also said they shall take away some of your sons whom you begot, and make them eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.” 8So Hezekiah said to Isaiah, “The Lord's word you spoke is good. Let there indeed be peace and righteousness in my days.” **†

40“Comfort, yes, comfort My people,” says God. † 2“O priests, speak to the heart of Jerusalem, comfort her, for her humiliation is ended, her sin is pardoned; for she received from the Lord's hand double for her sins.” 3The voice of one crying in the wilderness: “Prepare the way of the Lord; make straight the paths of our God.” 4 Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill humbled; the crooked places shall be made straight, and the rough places into plains. 5 The glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see the salvation of God; for the Lord has spoken.” 6 The voice said, “Cry out.” So I said, “What shall I cry?” “All flesh is grass, and all man's glory is like the flower of the field. 7 The grass withers, the flower fades, but the word of our God abides forever.” 8 O you who bring good tidings to Zion, go into the high mountain; O you who bring good tidings to Jerusalem, lift up your voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid. Say to the cities of Judah, “Behold your God.” 9 Behold, the Lord is coming with strength, and His arm is with authority. Behold, His reward is with Him, and His work before Him. 10 He will feed His flock like a shepherd and gather the lambs with His arm; and He will comfort those with young.

12 Who measured the water in His hand, and heaven with a span, and all the earth with a handful? Who weighed the mountains in scales and the vales in a balance? 13 Who knows the Lord's mind, and who was His counselor; who advises Him? 14 Or with whom does He take counsel, who instructs Him, and who teaches Him judgment and shows Him the way of understanding? 15 The nations are as a drop in a bucket and are counted as the balance of a scale; and they are counted as spittle. 16 Lebanon is not sufficient to burn, nor its four-footed animals sufficient for a whole burnt offering. 17 All nations are as nothing and are counted as nothing. 18 To whom then will you liken the Lord, and to what likeness will you compare Him? 19 Has the workman made an image, or has the goldsmith overspread it with gold, gilding it, making a likeness of Him? 20 For the workman chooses wood that will not rot, and skillfully seeks to prepare a carved image that will not totter. 21 Will you not know? Will you not hear? Has it not been told you from the beginning? Do you not know the foundations of the earth? 22 It is He who possesses the circle of the earth, and its inhabitants are like grasshoppers. It is He who stretches out heaven like a vault, and spreads them out like a tent to dwell in. 23 He makes the rulers He establishes to rule to be as nothing; He makes the earth as nothing. 24 Scarcely shall they be planted, scarcely shall they be sown, scarcely shall their stock take root in the earth, when He shall also blow on them and they will wither, and the whirlwind will take them away like stubble. 25 “Now then, to whom will you liken Me, that I should be exalted?” says the Holy One. 26 Lift up your eyes on high, and see. Who displayed these things? He who brings forth their host by number; He who calls them all by name. From the greatness of His glory to the strength of His might, nothing escapes Your notice.

27For why do you say, O Jacob, and speak, O Israel, saying, “My way is hidden from God, and my God took away my judgment and departed”? 28So then, have you not known? Have you not heard? The everlasting God, the God who created the ends of the earth, neither hungers nor is weary. His understanding is unsearchable. 29He gives strength to the hungry, and sorrow to those who do not grieve. 30Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the elect shall be without strength. 31But those who wait on God shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings like eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not hunger.

41“Be renewed before Me, O coastlands, for the rulers will gain their strength. Let them come near and speak together, then let them declare judgment. 2Who raised up righteousness from the east, and called it to his feet, that it should go forth? He will establish it before the Gentiles and amaze kings. He shall bury their swords in the earth and cast away their bows as sticks. 3He will pursue them, and the way of His feet will pass through in peace. 4Who worked and performed these things? He called righteousness, He who calls it from generations of old. I, God, am the first, and into the future I Am. 5The Gentiles saw His righteousness and feared. The ends of the earth drew near and came together, each one judging for his neighbor, that he might help his brother. One will say, The craftsman is strong, as is the metalworker who strikes with the hammer and forges at the same time.’ Sometimes one will say, ‘It is put together well, and they fastened it with nails. They arranged them, and they shall not be moved.’

8“But you, O Israel, are My servant, and Jacob, whom I chose, the seed of Abraham, whom I loved. 9I took you from the ends of the earth, and called you from its height. I said to you, ‘You are My servant. I chose you, and have not forsaken you. 10Fear not, for I am with you. Do not go astray, for I am your God who strengthens you; and I will help and secure you with My righteous right hand.’ 11Behold, all your adversaries shall be put to shame and disgraced. For they shall be as though they did not exist, and all who oppose you shall perish. 12You shall seek but not find the men who rage against you, for those who war against you shall be as though they did not exist. 13For I am your God who holds your right hand, saying to you, ‘Fear not.’ 14O Jacob, O Israel, few in number, I will help you, and I will redeem you, O
Israel,” says God.† 15“Behold, I will make you like new saw-shaped threshing wheels of a wagon, and you shall thresh the mountains and beat the hills to powder, and make them like chaff. 16You shall crush them, and the wind shall carry them away; and the whirlwind will scatter them; but you shall be glad among the saints, O Israel. 17The poor and needy shall rejoice exceedingly, for when they shall seek water, but there is none, and their tongues are parched with thirst, I, the Lord God, will hear them; I, the God of Israel, will not forsake them. 18But I will open rivers in the mountain and fountains in the midst of the plains. I will make the desert into marsh-meadows, and the dry land into aqueducts. 19I will plant the cedar, the box-tree, the myrtle, the cypress, and the white poplar in the waterless ground, 20so they may see, know, consider, and understand together that the Lord’S hand did all these things; and the Holy One of Israel created them.†

21“Your judgment draws near,” says the Lord God. “Your counsels draw near,” says the King of Jacob. 22“Let them draw near, and tell you what will happen; or tell you about the former things, what they were; and we shall be able to understand and know them, and know what are the last things; and tell us about the future. 23Declare to us things coming at the end of time, and we will know you are gods. Do good and evil, and we shall marvel and see it together. 24Where do you come from? Where does your work come from? They chose you, an abomination out of the earth. 25I raised up one from the north and from the rising of the sun, and they shall be called by My name. Let the rulers come, and you will be trampled down, as potter's clay and as a potter tramples down the clay. 26For who will declare the things from the beginning, that we may also know the former things and say they are true? There is no one who foretells or hears your words. 27I will give Zion the power to rule, and I shall comfort Jerusalem in the way. 28For I looked, and there was no one from the nations or from their idols to declare it to me. If I should ask them where they are from, they would not answer me. 29For they are the ones who made you, so you think, and in vain they are leading you astray.

42 “Jacob is My Servant; I will help Him. Israel is My chosen; My soul accepts Him. I put My Spirit upon Him; He will bring forth judgment to the Gentiles.† 2He will not cry out, nor raise His voice, nor cause His voice to be heard outside. 3A bruised reed He will not break, and smoking flax He will not quench; but He will bring forth judgment in truth. 4He will shine forth and not be broken until He establishes judgment in the earth; and in his name the Gentiles will hope.”  5 Thus says the Lord God, who made heaven and established it, who made firm the earth and the things in it, and who gives breath to the people in it, and spirit to those who walk on it: 6 “I, the Lord God, called You in righteousness, and will hold Your hand. I will strengthen You, and give You as the covenant of a race, as the light of the Gentiles, 7 to open the eyes of the blind, to bring out prisoners who are bound, and those who sit in darkness from the prison house. 8 I am the Lord God; this is My name. I will not give My glory to another, nor My praise to carved images.† 9 Behold, things from of old came to pass, and new things I will declare. Before they spring forth, I will tell you of them.”

10 Sing to the Lord a new song, you His realm. Glorify His name from the ends of the earth, you who go down to the sea and sail on it, you coastlands and you who inhabit them.† 11 Be glad, O desert and its villages, the homesteads and those inhabiting Kedar. Those who dwell in Petra shall be glad; they shall shout from the tops of the mountains. 12 They will give glory to God and declare His virtues in the coastlands. 13 The Lord God of powers shall go forth and crush war. He shall stir up His zeal, and cry out against His enemies with strength.† 14 I held My peace, and I will not always be silent and restrain Myself. Now I will be steadfast, like a woman in labor. I shall amaze and dry up together. 15 I will make the rivers into coastlands and dry up marsh-meadows. 16 I will bring the blind by a way they did not know, and will cause them to tread paths they have not known. I will turn darkness into light for them, and make crooked places straight. These things I will do for them, and not forsake them. 17 But they turned back. You be greatly ashamed who trust in carved images, who say to the molded images, “You are our gods.”

18 Hear, you deaf; and look up, you blind, that you may see. 19 Who is blind but My servants, or deaf but those who rule over them? The servants of God are blind. 20 You often see, but do not take heed. Your ears were opened, but you do not listen. 21 The Lord God wished to show His righteousness and to magnify His praise. 22 But I saw the people robbed and plundered, for there was a snare in the secret chambers everywhere, and in the houses at the same time, where they hid them. They became as plunder, and there was no one to rescue the prey, and no one who said, “Restore them.” 23 Who among you will give ear to these things? Who will listen and hear what is coming? 24 Who gave Jacob for plunder, and Israel to those who plunder him? Was it not God, against whom they sinned? For they would not walk in His ways nor heed His law. 25 So He brought upon them the fury of His wrath, and 43 And now, thus says the Lord God who made you, O Jacob, and who formed you, O Israel: “Fear not, for I redeemed you. I called you by your name, for you are Mine. \(^\dagger\) 2 If you pass through water, I am with you; and the rivers shall not overflow you. If you pass through fire, you shall not be burned up, nor shall the flame consume you. 3 For I am the Lord your God, the Holy One of Israel, who saves you. I made Egypt and Ethiopia your ransom and gave Seba on your behalf. 4 Since you were precious in My sight, you became glorious, and I love you. I will give many men for you and rulers to lead you. 5 Fear not, for I am with you; I will bring your seed from the east, and gather you from the west. \(^\dagger\) 6 I will say to the north, ‘Bring them,’ and to the south, ‘Do not keep them back. Bring My sons from afar and My daughters from the ends of the earth—everyone called by My name.’ 7 For in my glory I prepared him, and formed and made him. 8 I brought forth the blind people, and their eyes are alike blind, and their ears deaf.” 9 All the nations are gathered together, and the rulers shall be assembled from among them. Who will declare these things or tell us things from the beginning? Let them bring forth their witnesses, and be proven right; and let them speak the truth. 10 “You are My witnesses, and I am a witness,” says the Lord God, “and My Servant whom I chose, that you may know and believe, and understand that I am He. Before Me there was no other God, nor shall there be after Me. 11 I am God, and besides Me there is no one who saves. 12 I proclaimed, and I saved. I denounced foreign gods so there were none among you. You are My witnesses, and I am a witness,” says the Lord God. 13 “Even from the beginning, there is no one who can deliver out of My hands; I will work, and who will reverse it?”

14 Thus says the Lord God who redeems you, the Holy One of Israel: “For your sake I will send to Babylon and arouse all who flee, and the Chaldeans shall be bound in ships. 15 I am the Lord God, your Holy One, who made known your King, O Israel.” 16 Thus says the Lord, who makes a way in the sea and a path in the mighty water, 17 who brings forth chariot and horse, and a mighty host. But they fell asleep, and shall not arise. They are extinguished, like a quenched lamp-wick: 18 “Do not remember the former things, nor reason about the things of old. 19 Behold, I will do new things, which shall now spring forth, and you shall know them; and I will make a road in the desert and rivers in the waterless places. 20 The wild animals of the field will bless Me, the sirens and the daughters of sparrows, because I gave water in the wilderness and rivers in the waterless place, to give drink to My race, My chosen,

21My people whom I preserved to declare My virtues. 22I have not called on you now, O Jacob, neither have I made you grow weary, O Israel. 23You have not brought Me sheep for your whole burnt offerings, neither have you glorified Me with your sacrifices, nor have I wearied you with frankincense. 24Neither have you purchased sweet incense for Me with money, nor have I desired the fat of your sacrifices; but I set before you your sins and wrongdoings. 25I, even I, am He who blots out your lawlessness, and I will not remember them. 26But remember, and let us judge; tell your lawless first, that you may be made righteous. 27Your fathers first, and their rulers after them, acted lawlessly against Me. 28Your rulers defiled My holy things; thus I gave Jacob to destruction and Israel for reproach.”

Yet hear now, O Jacob My servant, and Israel, whom I chose. 2Thus says the Lord God who made you, and formed you from the womb: “You will yet be helped; fear not, Jacob My servant, and Israel, My beloved, whom I chose. 3For I will give water to the thirsty who walk in a waterless place. I will put My Spirit upon your seed and My blessings upon your children. 4They will spring up like grass in the midst of the water and like willows by the flowing water. 5One will say, ‘I am God’s,’ and will call himself by the name of Jacob. Another will write, ‘I am God's,’ and call himself by the name of Israel.”

Thus says God, the King of Israel who delivers him, the God of hosts: “I am the first and the last; besides Me there is no God. 2Who is just as I am? Then let him stand, let him call and prepare for Me that from which I made man forever, and let them declare to you the things that are coming before they come. 4Do not hide yourselves. Have you not paid attention from the beginning, and have I not declared it to you? You are My witnesses, if there is a God besides Me? Indeed there was none. 9All who form and carve gods are useless, and they desire things which shall not profit them; but they will be ashamed. 10They all create a god and carve unprofitable things. 11All by whom they were made are withered, and let all the deaf among men be gathered together. Let them stand together, and be ashamed and dishonored together. 12For the craftsman sharpens his iron tool, and fashions the idol with his axe, and pierces it with the awl. He works it with the strength of his arm, and will hunger and grow weak, and will not drink water. 13The craftsman selects his wood and stretches out his rule, and fits it with glue. He makes it like the form of a man and according to the bloom of youth, to set it up in the house. 14The wood he cut from the forest which the Lord planted, and the rain made it grow, 15so as to be for men to burn and to take some of it to warm himself. They kindle it, and bake bread for themselves; but he works into gods what is left and worships them. 16They burn half of it in the fire, and with the other half they bake bread for themselves. They roast meat on it, eat and are satisfied. He even warms himself and says, ‘I am comfortable, because I am warm, and have seen the fire.’ 17And the rest of it he makes into a carved god, and worships it and prays to it, and says, ‘Deliver me, for you are my god.’ 18They do not know how to discern because they shut their eyes, so as not to see with their eyes or understand with their heart. 19No one considered in his heart, neither pondered in his soul, nor knew in his discernment, that he burned half of it in the fire, baked bread on its coals, roasted meat and ate, and then made the rest of it an abomination; and they worship it. 20Know this: their heart is ashes; they go astray, and no one can deliver his soul. See, you will not say, ‘There is a lie in my right hand.’

21“Remember these things, O Jacob and Israel, for you are My servant; I formed you to be My servant; therefore, you, O Israel, do not forget Me.” 22For behold, I blotted out your lawlessness like a cloud and your sins like darkness. Return to Me, and I will redeem you. 23Be glad, O heavens, for the Lord had mercy on Israel. Sound the trumpet, you foundations of the earth; shout with gladness, you mountains and hills and every tree on them. For God redeemed Jacob, and Israel will be glorified.”

24Thus says the Lord, who redeems you and forms you from the womb: “I am the Lord, who accomplishes all things, who alone stretched out the heavens and established the earth. 25Who else will scatter abroad the sign of ventriloquists and the divinations from their heart, turning their shrewd men backward and making their counsel foolishness? 26Who else establishes the word of His servant, proving the counsel of His messengers to be true? Who else says to Jerusalem, ‘You shall be inhabited,’ and to the cities of Judah, ‘You shall be built, and the desert places shall spring forth’? 27Who else says to the deep, ‘You shall be dried up, and I will dry up your rivers’? 28Who else tells Cyrus to be wise, and do all My will, and says to Jerusalem, ‘You will be built, and I shall lay the foundation of My holy house’?”

Thus says the Lord God to Cyrus, My anointed, whose right hand I hold that nations might be obedient before him, and I will break the strength of kings: I will open doors before him, and the cities will not be closed.

2“I will go before you and level mountains; I will break in pieces the gates of bronze and shatter the bars of iron.

3I will give you the treasures of darkness, and I shall open unseen secret things to you, so you may know I, the Lord God, who call you by your name, am the God of Israel.

4For Jacob My servant's sake, and Israel My elect, I will call you by your name; I will accept you, though you have not known Me.

5For I am the Lord God. There is no God besides Me, and you have not known Me.

6I will call you by name and accept you, so those who come from the east and the west may know there is none besides Me. I am the Lord God, and there is no other.

7I am He who prepared light and made darkness, who makes peace and creates troublesome things. I am the Lord God who does all these things.

8Let heaven above be glad, and let the clouds sprinkle righteousness. Let the earth bring forth mercy and righteousness together. I am the Lord who created you.

9“As the clay of a potter, what better thing have I created? Will the one plowing plow all day? Shall the clay say to the potter who forms it, ‘What are you making, for you neither work nor have hands?’

10As though one should say to his father, ‘What will you beget?’ Or to his mother, ‘What will you bring forth?’ ”

11Thus says the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel, who made the things that are to come: “Ask Me concerning My sons and daughters; and command Me concerning the works of My hands.

12I made the earth and mankind upon it. With My hand I established heaven and commanded all the stars.

13I raised him up to be a king with righteousness, and all his ways are right. He shall build My city and return the captivity of My people, not with ransoms or gifts,” says the Lord of hosts.

14Thus says the Lord of hosts: “Egypt labored for you, and the merchandise of the Ethiopians and of the Sabeans, men of stature, shall pass over to you. They shall be your servants and follow behind you, bound with handcuffs. They shall bow down and make supplication to you, because God is with you; and they shall say, ‘There is no God besides You.

15For You are God, the God of Israel, the Savior, yet we knew it not.’

16All who oppose him shall be ashamed and disgraced and shall walk in shame. Be restored to Me, O coastlands.

17Israel is saved by the Lord with an everlasting salvation. They will not be ashamed or disgraced forever.”

18For thus says the Lord, who made heaven—this is the God who formed the earth and made it. He established it, and did not make it in vain, but formed it to be inhabited—“I Am, and there is no other. 19 I have not spoken in secret, nor in a dark place of the earth. I did not say to the seed of Jacob, ‘Seek Me in vain.’ I Am, I am the Lord who speaks righteousness and declares the truth. 20 Assemble yourselves and come. Take counsel together, you who are saved from among the nations. Those who set up the wood of their carved image have no knowledge, and pray to gods who do not save. 21 If they will declare, let them draw near, so as to know together who caused these things to be heard from the beginning. At that time it was told you, ‘I am God, and there is no other besides Me; there is no righteous God and Savior in addition to Me.’ 22 Return to Me, and you shall be saved, you who are from the ends of the earth. For I am God, and there is no other. 23 I swore by Myself: righteousness will truly proceed from my mouth; My words shall not be turned away, that to Me every knee shall bow, and every tongue shall confess to God, 24 saying, ‘Righteousness and glory shall come to Him, and all who separate themselves from Him shall be put to shame.’ 25 All the seed of the children of Israel shall be made righteous by the Lord, and glorified in God.”

Bel bowed down; Dagon is crushed; their carved stones are for the wild animals and cattle. Take them bound as a burden to the weary, 2 to the hungry, the exhausted and those who have no strength together, who shall not be able to save themselves from war, but who themselves are led away as captives.

3“Listen to Me, O house of Jacob and all the remnant of Israel, both those taken from the womb and those instructed from childhood, 4 even to your old age: I Am, and even to your gray hairs, I Am. I bear you; I made you and will forgive you. I will take you up and save you. 5 To whom will you liken Me? Look what you contrived, you who went astray. 6 Those who contribute gold from a purse and silver on a scale, and count them out by weight, and who hire a goldsmith, they make things with their hands, and bowing down, they worship them. 7 They bear it on their shoulders and go; and if they set it somewhere, it remains there and never moves. Though one cries out to it, yet it cannot answer, nor save him from his troubles. 8 Remember these things and groan. Repent, you who go astray; return in your heart. 9 Remember the former things of old, for I am God, and there is no other besides Me, 10 declaring beforehand the latter events before they come to pass and are accomplished together. I say, ‘All My counsel shall stand, and I will do whatever I will to do,’ 11 calling a bird from the east and from a land afar off.’ For what I purpose to do, I speak and bring it about, and create and do it. Thus I brought him and proposed his way. 12 Listen to Me, you stubborn-hearted who are far from righteousness. 13I bring My righteousness near, and My salvation shall not delay. I give salvation in Zion and to Israel for glory.

47 “Come down and sit on the ground, O virgin daughter of Babylon; enter the darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans, for you shall be prosperous no more, so as to be called comfortable and luxurious.† 2Take a millstone and grind meal. Remove your veil, show your gray hair, uncover the shins, and pass through the rivers. 3Your shame will be uncovered, and your disgrace will be seen. I will take your standard of living from you, and no longer deliver people to you. 4He who delivers you has spoken; the Lord of hosts is His name, the Holy One of Israel. 5Sit down, you who are pierced to the heart; enter into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans; for you shall no longer be called the strength of a kingdom. 6I was provoked at My people; you profaned My inheritance; I gave them into your hand. You showed them no mercy; you laid your yoke very heavy on the elderly. 7You said, ‘I shall be a princess forever,’ but you did not understand these things in your heart, nor remember the latter end. 8Therefore hear this now, you who are given to pleasures, who sit in confidence, who says in her heart, ‘I am, and there is no other; I shall not sit as a widow, nor shall I know bereavement.’ 9But now these two things shall come upon you in a moment, in one day: widowhood and the loss of children. They shall come upon you in a moment because of your sorcery, the great abundance of your enchanters, 10and your hope of evil. For you said, ‘I am, and there is no other.’ Know that your understanding of these things and your fornication will be your shame, for you said in your heart, ‘I am, and there is no other.’ 11Therefore destruction shall come upon you, and you shall not know the pit into which you will fall. Trouble shall come upon you, and you will be unable to be clear of it. Destruction shall come upon you suddenly, but you will not know it. 12Stand now with your enchantments and the multitude of your sorceries which you learned from your youth, if you will be able to profit from this. 13You are wearied in your counsels. Let the astrologers, the stargazers, and the monthly prognosticators stand up and save you from what shall come upon you. 14Behold, all these shall be burned like sticks in a fire, and they shall not deliver their soul from the flame. For you have coals of fire to sit on, and these shall be your help. 15You grew weary in your traffic from youth, and each man led himself astray, but there shall be no salvation for you.

48 “Hear this, O house of Jacob, who are called by the name of Israel and have come forth from Judah, who swear by the name of the Lord God of Israel, mentioning it, but not with truth nor with righteousness,† 2and who are devoted to the name of the holy city, and lean on the God of Israel for support—the Lord of hosts is His name. 3 I still declare the former things that went forth from My mouth, and they became well known. Suddenly I did them, and they came to pass. 4 I know you are stubborn, and your neck is an iron nerve; and your forehead is made of bronze. 5 Yet I told you long ago, before it came to pass. I made it well known to you, lest you should say, ‘My idols did them’; and lest you should say, ‘My carved images and my molten images commanded them for me.’ 6 You heard all this, yet you knew not what you heard. But I also made new things known to you, things about to happen from that present time; yet you said not so. 7 Now they come to pass, and not long ago, but you did not listen to these things in former days. You do not say, ‘Yes, I know this.’ 8 You neither know nor understand, nor have I opened your ears from the beginning. For I knew you would deal treacherously and reject them, and would be called lawless from the womb. 9 For My name’s sake, I will show you My anger, and I will bring before you my glorious acts, so as not to utterly destroy you. 10 Behold, I sold you, but not for silver; and I delivered you from the furnace of poverty. 11 For My own sake, I will do this for you, because My name is profaned; and I will not give My glory to another. 12 Listen to Me, O Jacob and Israel, whom I call: I am the first, and I am forever. 13 My hand also laid the foundation of the earth, and My right hand established heaven. I shall call them, and they will stand together. 14 All shall be gathered and hear: Who declared these things to them? Because I love you, I did your will against Babylon, to slay the seed of the Chaldeans. 15 I have spoken, I have called him, I have brought him, and made his way prosper. 16 Come near to Me, hear this: I have not spoken in secret from the beginning, nor did I speak in a dark place of the earth. When it took place, I was there, and now the Lord and His Spirit have sent Me.” 17 Thus says the Lord who delivers you, the Holy One of Israel: “I am your God, who showed you how to find the way wherein you should walk. 18 If only you had heeded My commandments, then your peace would be like a river, and your righteousness as a wave of the sea. 19 Your seed would also be like the sand, and the offspring of your womb like the dust of the ground. Neither would you be utterly destroyed now, nor would your name perish before Me.”

20 Go forth from Babylon, you who are fleeing from the Chaldeans. Proclaim a voice of gladness and let it become well known. Proclaim it to the end of the earth, and say, “The Lord delivered His servant Jacob.” 21 If they shall thirst, He will lead them through the desert, and water shall flow from the rock for them. He will split the rock, the water shall flow, and My people will drink. 22 “There is no rejoicing,” says the Lord, “for the ungodly.”
“Listen to Me, O coastlands, and take heed, you Gentiles. It will stand for a long time,” says the Lord. “He called My name from My mother's womb. 2He made My mouth like a sharp sword, and hid Me under the shadow of His hand. He made Me as a chosen arrow and covered Me in His quiver. 3He said to me, ‘You are My servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.’ 4Then I said, ‘I have labored in vain and spent My strength for nothing. Therefore My judgment is from the Lord, and my labor is before My God.’

Now thus says the Lord—who formed Me from the womb to be His Servant, and to bring Jacob and Israel back to Him (for I shall gather and glorify them before the Lord, and My God shall be My strength)—indeed He says, ‘It is a great thing for You to be called My Servant, to establish the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the dispersion of Israel. Behold, I give You as the covenant of a race and as the light of the Gentiles, that You should be the salvation to the ends of the earth.’

Thus says the Lord, who delivers You, the God of Israel: “Sanctify Him who despises His life, who is abhorred by the nations and by the servants of rulers. Kings shall see Him and rise, and rulers also shall worship Him for the Lord's sake. For the Holy One of Israel is faithful, and He chose You.” Thus says the Lord: “In an acceptable time I heard You, and in the day of salvation I helped You. I give You as a covenant to the Gentiles, to establish the earth and to inherit the inheritance of the desert; saying to those in bonds, ‘Go forth,’ and to those in darkness, ‘Reveal yourselves.’ They shall feed along all their roads, and their pasture shall be along all the paths. They shall not hunger, neither shall they thirst, nor shall the burning heat of the sun strike them; but He who has mercy on them will comfort them; and He shall lead them by the fountains of waters. I will make every mountains as a road, and every path as a pasture for them. Behold, these come from afar, these from the north and these from the sea, and the others from the land of the Persians.” Be glad, O heavens, and rejoice exceedingly, O earth. Let the mountains break out in gladness, and the hills in righteousness. For the Lord had mercy on His people, and comforted the humble of His people.

But Zion said, “The Lord forsook me, and the Lord forgot me.” Will a woman forget her child, so as not to have mercy on the offspring of her womb? But even if a woman should forget these things, nevertheless, I shall not forget you,” says the Lord. Behold, I painted your walls on My hands, and you are continually before Me. 17It will be rebuilt quickly by your destroyers, and those who laid you waste shall go away from you. 18Lift up your eyes round about, and look on them. Behold, they gather together and come to you. As I live,” says the Lord, “you shall clothe yourselves with them, and put them on as a bride's attire. 19 For your deserts and your ruined and fallen places will now be too confined because of the inhabitants; and those who swallowed you up will go far away. 20 For your children, whom you lost, will say in your ears, ‘The place is too narrow for me. Make me a place where I may dwell.’ 21 Then you will say in your heart, ‘Who has begotten these for me? For I am childless and a widow, but who reared these for me? I was left alone, but these, where are they from?’ ”

22 Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I lift My hand to the Gentiles, and I will set up My signal to the islands. They shall bring your sons in their bosom, and your daughters shall be carried on their shoulders. 23 Kings shall be your foster fathers, and their queens your nursing mothers. They shall bow down to you upon the face of the earth, and lick up the dust of your feet. Then you will know I am the Lord, and you will not be ashamed. 24 Will someone take spoils from a mighty man? If anyone should take someone captive unjustly, will that one be saved?” 25 Thus says the Lord: “If someone should take a mighty man captive, he will also take his spoils; and he will also save the one taken captive by that strong man. For I will plead your cause and deliver your children. 26 Those who oppressed you will eat their own flesh and drink their own blood as new wine; and all flesh shall perceive that I am the Lord, who delivers you and supports the strength of Jacob.”

50 Thus says the Lord: “Of what quality is your mother's certificate of divorce, by which I put her away? Or to which debtor have I sold you? Behold, you are sold for your sins, and for your lawlessness I put away your mother. 2 Why, when I came, was there no man? Why, when I called, was there none to obey? Is My hand unable to deliver? Or have I no strength to deliver? Behold, with My rebuke I dry up the sea, and I turn rivers into deserts; and because there is no water, their fish dry up and die of thirst. 3 I clothe heaven with darkness and make its covering like sackcloth.”

4 “The Lord gives Me the tongue of the learned, so as to know when to speak a word at a fitting time; and He causes My ear to listen each morning. 5 The Lord's instruction opens My ears, and I am not disobedient, nor do I contradict Him.

6 “I gave My back to whips, and My cheeks to blows; and I turned not away My face from the shame of spitting. 7 The Lord became My helper; therefore, I was not disgraced. But I made My face like a solid rock and knew I would not be ashamed. 8 For He who pronounces
Me righteous draws near. Who is he who judges Me? Let him oppose Me at the same time. Who is he who judges Me? Let him come near Me. 9Behold, the Lord will help Me. Who will harm Me? Behold, all of you will grow old like a garment, and old age will devour you, as a moth does a garment.

10“Who among you fears the Lord? Let him listen to the voice of His Servant. You who walk in darkness and have no light, trust in the name of the Lord and rely upon God.

11Behold, all of you kindle a fire and feed a flame. Walk in the light of your fire and the flame you kindled. This happened to you for My sake, and you shall lie down in sorrow.

51“Listen to Me, you who pursue righteousness and seek the Lord. Look to the solid rock which you hewed, and to the hole of the pit which you dug.² Look to Abraham our father and to Sarah who bore you, for he was first, and I called and blessed him, and loved and multiplied him. ³And now I will comfort you, O Zion, and I comforted all her desert places; and I shall make her desert places like the Garden of the Lord. In it they shall find gladness and exceeding joy, and thanksgiving and the voice of praise.⁴ Listen to Me, listen, O My people and kings, give ear to Me, for law shall proceed from Me, and My judgment as the light of the Gentiles. ⁵My righteousness draws near quickly, and My salvation will go forth as light, and the Gentiles will hope in My arm, and the coastlands shall wait for Me and hope in My arm.⁶ Lift up your eyes to heaven, and look to the earth below, for heaven is solid as smoke, and the earth will grow old like a garment; and the inhabitants of the earth shall die, as do these things. But My salvation shall be forever, and My righteousness will not fail.⁷ Listen to Me, My people who know judgment, in whose heart is My law. Do not fear the reproach of men, nor be overcome by their contempt. ⁸For as a garment will be devoured by time, and as wool will be devoured by a moth, so shall they be devoured. But My righteousness shall be forever, and My salvation from generation to generation.”

9Awake, awake, O Jerusalem, and put on the strength of your arm. Awake as in the beginning of days, as in the generations of old. ¹⁰Are You not He who dried up the sea, the abundant water of the deep, and made the depths of the sea a road of passage for those who were delivered and redeemed? ¹¹For with the Lord's help, they shall return and come to Zion with gladness and everlasting joy; for exceeding joy. Praise and gladness shall come on them, and pain, grief, and sighing shall depart from them. ¹²“I Am, I am the Lord who comforts you. Know who it is you feared, for you were fearful of mortal man and the son of man, those
You forgot the God who made you, who made heaven and laid the foundations of the earth, but all your days you feared the angry face of him who oppressed you. For he plotted to take you away, but now where is the anger of him who oppressed you? For when you are saved, he will not stand still nor tarry. For I am your God who troubles the sea and causes the waves to roar. The Lord of hosts is My name. I will put My words in your mouth, and protect you under the shadow of My hand, with which I established heaven, and laid the foundation of the earth. I will say to Zion, ‘You are My people.’

Awake, awake, rise up, O Jerusalem, who drank the cup of anger from the Lord's hand, for you drank the cup of destruction, the drinking-vessel of My anger, and emptied it out. There was no one to comfort you from all the children you bore, and there was no one to take hold of your hand, not even from among all the children you reared. These two things are against you. Who will sympathize with you in your grief? Misfortune and affliction, famine and sword! Who will comfort you? Your sons are at a loss, and they lie asleep at the end of every street like a half-boiled beet, full of the Lord's anger and forsaken because of the Lord God. Therefore listen, you who are humbled and drunk, but not from wine. Thus says the Lord God who judges His people: “Behold, I took the cup of destruction, the cup of My anger, from your hand, and it shall no longer be imposed on you to drink from it. I will put it into the hands of those who wronged and humbled you, those who said to your soul, ‘Bow down as we pass by.’ So you put your back parallel with the ground to those who passed by.”

Awake, awake, O Zion; put on your strength, O Zion, and put on your glory, O Jerusalem, the holy city. The uncircumcised and the unclean shall no longer continue to pass through you. Shake off the dust and rise up. Sit down, O Jerusalem; put off the band from your neck, O captive daughter of Zion. For thus says the Lord: “You were sold for nothing, and you shall be redeemed without money.” Thus says the Lord: “My people went down to Egypt in former times to sojourn there, and they were taken to the Assyrians by force.” So now, why are you here? The Lord says this: “Because My people were taken for nothing, marvel and lament.” The Lord says this: “Because of you, My name is blasphemed continually among the Gentiles. Therefore My people shall know My name in that day, for I am He who speaks. I am present like springtime in the mountains, like the feet of one who announces a good report of peace, like one who preaches good things, for I will cause Your salvation to be heard, saying, ‘O Zion, your God reigns.’” For the voice of those who guard you is raised upward, and with their voice they shall be glad together; for their eyes shall be on watch together when the Lord has mercy on Zion. 9 Break forth in gladness together, O desert places of Jerusalem, for the Lord had mercy on her, and has delivered Jerusalem. 10 The Lord will reveal His holy arm before all the Gentiles, and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of God. 11 Depart, depart, go out from there, and do not touch an unclean thing. Separate yourselves, you who carry the vessels of the Lord, 12 because you shall not go forth with tumult, nor will you go by flight. For the Lord will go before you, and the Lord God of Israel shall gather you.

Behold, My Servant shall have wisdom, and He shall be exalted and glorified exceedingly. 14 Just as many shall be astonished at You, so Your form and glory shall be dishonored by men. 15 Thus many nations shall marvel at Him, and kings shall shut their mouth, because they to whom no report was brought concerning Him shall see; and they who did not hear shall understand.

O Lord, who has believed our report, and to whom was the arm of the Lord revealed? 2 We proclaimed His presence as a Child, as a Root in a thirsty land. He had no form or glory, and we saw Him; and He had no form or beauty. 3 But in comparison to all men, His form was lacking in honor. He was a man in suffering and knew how to bear sickness. His face was turned away, and He was dishonored and not esteemed. 4 He bears our sins and suffers for us, yet we considered Him to be in pain, suffering, and ill-treatment. 5 But He was wounded because of our lawlessness, and became sick because of our sins. The chastisement of our peace was upon Him, and by His bruise we are healed. 6 All we like sheep have gone astray. Man has gone astray in his way, and the Lord delivered Him over for our sins. 7 Although He was ill-treated, He opened not His mouth. He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb is silent before his shearsers, so He opens not His mouth. 8 In His humiliation His judgment was taken away, and who will declare His generation? For His life is taken from the earth, and because of the lawlessness of My people He was led to death. 9 I will appoint evil men for His burial and rich men for His death, because He committed no lawlessness, nor was deceit found in His mouth. 10 The Lord wishes to cleanse Him of His wound, and if You give an offering for sin, Your soul shall see a long-lived seed. 11 The Lord wishes to take away the pain of His soul, to show Him light, to form Him with understanding, and to pronounce righteous the Righteous One who serves many well; and He shall bear their Therefore He shall inherit many, and will divide the spoil with the strong, because His soul was delivered over to death. He was considered among the lawless, and He bore the sins of many, and was delivered over because of their sins.†

54 “Be glad, O barren woman who does not bear; break forth and cry out, you who are not in travail, for more are the children of the desolate than the children of the married woman,” says the Lord.† 2“Enlarge the place of your tent and courtyard; set it up; do not avoid it; lengthen your ropes and strengthen your pegs.† 3Spread out further to the right and the left, and your seed shall inherit the Gentiles. You shall cause the desolate cities to be inhabited. 4Fear not that you were shamed, neither be confounded and disgraced; for you will forget your former shame and will not remember the disgrace of your widowhood. 5For it is the Lord who is your Maker; the Lord of hosts is His name. He is your Deliverer, and He shall be called the God of Israel by all the earth. 6The Lord has not called you like a woman forsaken and fainthearted, nor like a wife hated from her youth,” says your God. 7“I forsook you for a short while, but with great compassion I will have mercy on you. 8In a little anger I turned away My face from you, but in everlasting compassion I will have mercy on you,” says the Lord who delivered you. 9“This little anger is to Me as it was at the time of Noah’s Flood, when I swore to him regarding the earth, that I would no longer be angry with it, neither would I again threaten to remove its mountains nor move its hills.† 10So neither shall My compassion fail you, nor shall your covenant of peace be removed; for the Lord who is merciful to you has spoken.

11“Servile and unstable, you were not comforted. Behold, I am preparing you carbuncle for your stone and sapphire for your foundations,† 12and I will make your battlements jasper and your gates crystal stones, and the enclosing wall of your temple choice stones. 13I will cause all your children to be taught by God, and your children to be in great peace. 14You shall be built in righteousness. Keep away from wrongdoing, and you will not be afraid, and trembling shall not come near you. 15Behold, resident aliens shall come to you because of Me, and they shall flee to you. 16Behold, I created you, not as a metalworker who blows coals in the fire and brings out a vessel fit for work; and I created you, not for ruin so as to destroy you. 17I will not prosper any instrument of destruction used against you, and every voice raised against you in judgment, you shall overcome them all; and your adversaries shall be judged guilty. This is the inheritance for those who serve the Lord, and you shall be my righteous ones,” says the Lord.
55 “You who are thirsty, go to the water, and all who have no money, go and buy wine and fat, and eat and drink without money and price. Why do you value at the price of money, and give your toil for what does not satisfy? Listen to Me and eat good things, and your soul will delight in good things. 3 Incline your ears and follow my ways. Listen to Me, and your soul shall live in good things; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, the holy and faithful things of David. 4 Behold, I made him a witness among the Gentiles, a ruler and commander to the Gentiles. 5 The Gentiles, which did not know you, shall call upon you, and the peoples who did not understand you shall take refuge in you, because of your God, the Holy One of Israel; for He glorified you.”

6 Seek God, and when you find Him, call upon Him when He draws near to you. 7 Let the ungodly man abandon his ways, and the lawless man his counsels; and let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; for He shall forgive your sins abundantly. 8 “For My counsels are not as your counsels, neither are your ways My ways,” says the Lord. 9 “But as heaven is distant from earth, so is My way distant from your ways, and your thoughts from My mind. 10 For as rain comes down, or snow from heaven, and does not return until it saturates the earth, and it brings forth and produces, and gives seed to the sower and bread for food, so shall My word be, whatever proceeds from My mouth. It shall not return until it accomplishes whatever I willed, and I shall prosper your ways and My commandments. 12 For you shall go forth with gladness and shall be taught with joy, for the mountains and hills shall exult to receive you with joy; and all the trees of the field shall applaud with their branches. 13 Instead of the broom-tree shall come up the cypress, and instead of the nettle shall come up the myrtle; and the Lord shall be for a name and for an everlasting sign, and He shall not fail.”

56 The Lord says this: “Guard judgment and do righteousness, for My salvation draws near, and My mercy shall be revealed. 2 Blessed is the man who does these things, and the man who lays hold on them; and who keeps the Sabbaths, so as not to profane them, and keeps his hand free from wrongdoing.” 3 Let not the foreigner who is devoted to the Lord say, “The Lord therefore will separate me from His people,” and let not the eunuch say, “I am a withered tree.” 4 The Lord says this to the eunuchs: “As many as keep My Sabbaths, and choose the things I will, and lay hold of My covenant, I will give them a notable place in My house and within My wall, a place better than that of sons and daughters. I will give them an eternal name, and it shall not fail. I will also give an eternal name to the foreigners who devote themselves to the Lord, to serve Him and to love His name, to be His male and female servants, and to all who keep My Sabbaths so as not to profane them, and who hold fast to My covenant. I will lead them to My holy mountain and gladden them in My house of prayer. Their whole burnt offerings and sacrifices shall be accepted upon My altar, for My house shall be called House of Prayer for All Nations,” says the Lord who gathers the dispersed of Israel; “for I will gather together a congregation to Him.”

9All you wild animals of the fields and all you wild animals of the thicket, come and eat. See, all are blinded; they do not know how to be discerning; all are dumb dogs unable to bark; dozing on a bed, loving to sleep. They are shameless dogs in their soul and do not know satisfaction. They are evil and have no understanding. All follow their own ways, each according to his own will.

See how the righteous man perishes, and no one takes it to heart. Righteous men are taken away, and no one notices it; and the righteous man is taken away from the presence of wrongdoings. His burial shall be in peace, for he was taken from the midst of it.

But come here, you lawless sons, a seed of adulterers and of a prostitute. In whom did you delight? And against whom did you open your mouth? Against whom did you loosen your tongue? Are you not the children of destruction, a lawless seed? You are those who call upon their idols under leafy trees and slay their children in the midst of the rocks. That is your portion, this is your lot, for you poured out drink offerings to them, and to them you offered up sacrifices; therefore, shall I not be angry for these things? On a high and lofty mountain, there was your bed, and there you carried up your sacrifices. Also behind the posts of your door, you put your memorials. You supposed if you departed from Me, it would be a better thing. You loved those who slept with you, and multiplied your fornication with them. You increased their number far away from you, and sent ambassadors beyond your borders. You turned aside and humbled yourselves, even to Hades. You grew weary with many ways, but you did not say, ‘I will cease strengthening myself,’ for you practiced these things; therefore, you did not supplicate Me. Whom did you respect and fear, so as to lie to Me, and not remember Me, nor take Me into your heart and mind? So when I see you, I disregard you, for you do not fear Me. And I will declare My righteousness, and your evils, which will not profit you. When you cry out, let them deliver you in your tribulation, for wind and storm will take them and carry them all away. But those who hold fast to Me shall possess the land and inherit My holy mountain. 14 They shall say, ‘Cleanse the ways before His face, and take away the obstacles from the way of My people.’ ”

15 The Lord, the Most High who dwells on high forever, the Holy One among His saints, whose name is the Lord Most High, who rests among His saints, and who gives patience to the fainthearted and life to the broken-hearted, says this:† 16 “I will not punish you forever, nor will I always be angry with you, for My Spirit shall go forth from Me, and I made every breath. 17 Because of sin for a time I grieved him, and struck him, and turned away My face from him; and he was grieved, and he went on sorrowful in his ways. 18 I saw his ways, and healed him; and I comforted him, and gave him true comfort. 19 There is peace upon peace to those far off and those near; and the Lord says, ‘I will heal them.’ 20 But wrongdoers shall be tossed here and there by waves, and be unable to rest. 21 There is no joy to the ungodly,” says the Lord God.

58 “Cry aloud with strength, and spare not; lift up your voice like a trumpet, and declare to My people their sins, and to the house of Jacob their lawlessness.† 2 They seek Me day by day, and desire to know My ways. As a people who did righteousness, and did not forsake the judgment of their God, they now ask Me about righteous judgment, and desire to draw near to God,† 3 saying, ‘Why have we fasted, but You did not see it? Why have we humbled our souls, but You did not know it?’ Because in the days of your fasts, you seek your own wills, and mistreat those under your authority. 4 If you fast for condemnations and quarrels, and strike a humble man with your fists, why do you fast to Me as you do today, so your voice may be heard in crying? 5 I did not choose this fast, and such a day for a man to humble his soul; nor if you should bow your neck like a ring and spread sackcloth and ashes under yourself, could you thus call such a fast acceptable. 6 I did not choose such a fast,” says the Lord; “rather, loose every bond of wrongdoing; untie the knots of violent dealings; cancel the debts of the oppressed; and tear apart every unjust contract. 7 Break your bread for the hungry, and bring the homeless poor into your house. If you see a naked man, clothe him, nor shall you disregard your offspring in your own household.† 8 Then your light shall break forth as the morning, and your healing shall spring forth quickly. Your righteousness shall go before you, and the glory of God shall cover you. 9 Then you shall cry out, and God will hear you. While you are still speaking, He will say, ‘Behold, I am here.’ If you take away your fetter and the pointing of the finger, and the word of grumbling,† 10 and if you give bread to the hungry from your soul, and satisfy the humble soul, then your light shall rise up in the darkness, and your darkness shall be as midday. 11God shall be with you continually, and you shall be satisfied as your soul desires. Your bones shall be enriched, and you shall be like a well-watered garden and like a spring of water that does not fail. Your bones will arise and be enriched like a green plant, and they shall inherit generations of generations.† 12Your ancient deserts shall be built, and your ancient foundations shall be from generation to generation. You shall be called Builder of Walls, and will rest on the paths within them.† 13If you turn away your foot from work because of the Sabbath, so as not to do your desires on the holy day, and if you shall call the Sabbath joyful, holy to your God, and not take away your foot for work, nor speak a word in wrath from your mouth, then you shall trust in the Lord; and He will bring you to the good things of the land, and feed you with the inheritance of Jacob your father, for the mouth of the Lord has spoken these things.”

59 Is the Lord's hand unable to save? Is His ear heavy so as not to hear?† 2But your sins stand between you and your God, and He turned His face from you because of your sins, so as not to have mercy. 3For your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with sins; and your lips speak lawlessness, and your tongue plots wrongdoing.† 4No one speaks righteous things, nor is there true judgment. They trust in worthless things and speak vain things; for they conceive trouble and give birth to lawlessness. 5They hatch the eggs of asps, and weave a spider's web. He who is about to eat of their eggs finds a sterile and broken egg, and in it a basilisk. 6Their web shall not become a garment, nor will they clothe themselves with their works; for their works are works of lawlessness. 7Their feet run swiftly to evil to shed blood. Their thoughts are the thoughts of undiscerning men, and destruction and misery are in their ways. 8They do not know the way of peace, and there is no judgment in their ways; for the paths they travel are corrupt, and they do not know peace. 9Therefore judgment departed from them, and righteousness does not lay hold of them. While they waited for light, darkness came upon them, and while they waited for the dawn, they walked in darkness. 10They groped around for a wall like blind men, and like men who have no eyes they groped around. They shall fall at midday as though it were midnight, and shall groan like dying men. 11They shall proceed together like a bear and a dove: We waited for judgment, but there is none, and salvation departed far away from us. 12For our lawlessness is great before You, and our sins oppose us; for our lawlessness is with us, and we know our unrighteous deeds.† 13We acted in an ungodly manner, and we lied and departed backwards from our God. We spoke unjustly, and were disobedient; and we conceived and meditated on unrighteous words from our heart. 14 We departed backwards from judgment, and righteousness stands far off. For the truth is consumed in their ways, and they could not pass by a straight path. 15 Truth was taken away, and they turned away their mind so as not to understand. But the Lord saw this and was not pleased, because there was no judgment. 16 He also saw there was no man, and He observed, but there was no one to help. He defended them with His arm and established them with His mercy. 17 He put on righteousness as a breastplate and placed the helmet of salvation on His head. He clothed Himself with the garment and covering of vengeance, as a recompense of recompenses, even a rebuke to His adversaries. 19 Those from the west shall fear the name of the Lord, and those from the east, His glorious name; for the wrath of the Lord shall come like a violent river; it shall come with anger. 20 He who delivers shall come for Zion's sake, and He shall turn back ungodliness from Jacob.† 21 "This shall be My covenant with them," says the Lord. "My Spirit who is upon you, and My words I caused to be in your mouth shall not fail from the mouth of your seed; for the Lord has spoken it, from now and forever.

60 "Shine, shine, O Jerusalem, for your light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon you."ω 2 Behold, darkness and gloom shall cover the earth upon the nations, but the Lord will shine on you; and His glory shall be seen upon you. 3 Kings shall come to your light, and the Gentiles to your brightness. 4 Lift up your eyes all around, and see your children gathered together. Behold, all your sons come from afar, and your daughters shall be lifted upon their shoulders.† 5 Then you will see, fear and be amazed in your heart, because the wealth of the sea and of nations and peoples shall change their course and turn to you. 6 Herds of camels shall come to you, and the camels of Midian and Ephah shall cover you. All those from Sheba shall come bearing gold, and they shall bring frankincense and proclaim the good news of the Lord's salvation.† 7 All the sheep of Kedar shall be gathered together to you, and the rams of Nebaioth shall come to you. They shall offer acceptable sacrifices upon My altar, and My house of prayer shall be glorified. 8 Who are these who fly like clouds and like doves with young? 9 The coastlands waited for Me, and the ships of Tarshish among the first, to bring your children from afar, and silver and gold with them for the sake of the Lord's name, and because the Holy One of Israel is glorified. 10 Foreigners shall build your walls, and their kings shall defend you; for I struck you because of My wrath, and I loved you because of My mercy. 11 Your gates shall be opened continually, and they shall not be shut day or night, to bring you the power of the Gentiles, and their kings leading them."ω 12 For the nations and their kings who will not serve you shall perish, and those nations will be utterly desolate. 13 The glory of Lebanon shall come to you, with the cypress, the pine, and the cedar together, to glorify My holy place. 14 The sons of those who humbled and provoked you shall go to you in fear, and you shall be called City of the Lord, Zion of the Holy One of Israel. 15 Because you were forsaken and hated, and there was no one to help you, therefore I will make you an eternal joy, the gladness of generations to generations. 16 You shall drink the milk of the Gentiles and eat the wealth of kings. You shall know I am the Lord who saves you and the God of Israel who delivers you. 17 Instead of bronze, I will bring you gold, and instead of iron, I will bring you silver, and instead of wood, I will bring you bronze, and instead of stones, iron. I will establish your rulers in peace and your bishops in righteousness. 18 Unrighteousness shall no longer be heard in your land, neither destruction nor distress within your boundaries, but your walls shall be called Salvation, and your gates Sculptured Work. 19 The sun shall no longer be your light by day, nor shall the rising of the moon shine on you at night, but the Lord shall be your everlasting light, and God, your glory. 20 For your sun shall no longer set, nor shall your moon be eclipsed, for the Lord shall be your everlasting light, and the days of your mourning shall be fulfilled. 21 Also your people shall all be righteous, and they shall inherit the land forever, guarding what they planted, the works of their hands, for glory. 22 The few in number shall become thousands, and the lesser shall become a great nation. I the Lord will gather them together at the appointed time.

61 “The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because of which He anointed Me. He sent Me to proclaim good news to the poor, to heal the brokenhearted, to preach liberty to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind;† to declare the acceptable year of the Lord, the day of recompense, and to comfort all who mourn; 3 to give those who mourn in Zion glory instead of ashes, the oil of gladness to those who mourn; the garment of glory instead of a spirit of indifference. They shall be called generations of righteousness, the planting of the Lord for glory.† 4 They shall build the ancient deserts, raise up those formerly abandoned, and renew the desert cities that laid waste for generations. 5 Foreigners shall come and shepherd your sheep, and aliens shall be your plowmen and vinedressers; 6 but you shall be called priests of the Lord and the ministers of God. You shall eat the strength of nations and be admired because of their wealth. 7 So they shall inherit the land a second time, and eternal gladness shall be upon their head.† 8 For I am the Lord, who loves righteousness and hates robberies of wrongdoing. I will give their labor to the righteous and will make with them an everlasting covenant. Their seed and their offspring shall be known among the Gentiles. All who see them shall know these are the seed blessed by God; and they shall have exceeding gladness in the Lord.”

Let my soul rejoice exceedingly in the Lord, for He clothed me with the garment of salvation and the tunic of gladness. He put a miter around me like a bridegroom and adorned me with ornaments like a bride. As the earth causes its flower to grow, and as a garden its seeds, so shall the Lord cause righteousness to rise up, and exceeding joy before all the Gentiles.

For Zion's sake I will not be silent, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until My righteousness goes forth as light, and My salvation burns like a lamp. The Gentiles will see your righteousness, and kings your glory; and one will call you by your new name, which the Lord shall name. You shall also be a crown of beauty in the Lord's hand, and the diadem of a kingdom in the hand of your God. You shall no longer be called Forsaken, and your land shall not be called Desert; for you shall be called My Will, and in your land, the Inhabited Earth. As a young man lives in wedlock with a virgin, so shall your sons dwell with you, and as a bridegroom rejoices over his bride, so the Lord shall rejoice over you. I will place guards on your walls all day and all night, O Jerusalem, who shall never keep silent in the remembrance of the Lord. For there shall be no one like you, O Jerusalem, when He amends and makes you the pride of the earth. The Lord swore by His right hand and by the strength of His arm, “I will not give your grain and your food to your enemies, and the sons of foreigners shall not drink your wine for which you labored; but rather, those who gather the food shall eat it and praise the Lord, and those who gather the grapes shall drink their wine in My holy courts. Go through My gates, make a way for My people, throw the stones off the road, and lift up a standard for the Gentiles.” For behold, the Lord caused this to be heard to the ends of the earth: “Say to the daughter of Zion, ‘Behold, your Savior is come, and has His reward, and His work before His face.’ ” One shall call them a holy people, the redeemed of the Lord, and you shall be called a City Sought for and Not Forsaken.

Who is this who comes from Edom with red garments from Bozrah, so beautiful in His apparel, with force of strength? “I speak of righteousness and saving judgment.” Why are Your garments red and Your apparel as one who treads in a winepress? “I am full of the treading of grapes, and there is no man with Me among the nations. I trampled them in My anger, and crushed them like earth, and brought down their blood to the ground. 4 For the day of recompense has come upon them, and the year of redemption has arrived. 5 I looked, but there was no helper; and I observed, but there was no one to help; therefore, My arm delivered them, and My anger was suddenly present. 6 So I trampled them in My wrath and brought their blood down to the ground."

7 I remembered the Lord's mercy, the praises of the Lord in all things in which the Lord recompenses us. The Lord is a good judge to the house of Israel, and He deals with us according to His mercy, and according to the multitude of His righteousness. 8 He said, "Surely My people, My children, have not rejected Me?" So He became their salvation. 9 Not an elder or an angel, but the Lord Himself saved them from all their tribulation, because He loved them and spared them. He redeemed and took them up, and lifted them up all the days of old. 10 Yet they disobeyed Him and grieved His Holy Spirit. So He turned against them with hostility and waged war on them. 11 Then He remembered the days of old, He who brought up the shepherd of His sheep from the land. Where is He who put His Holy Spirit in them? 12 Where is He who led Moses with His right hand, the arm of His glory? He overpowered the water by His presence to make for Himself an everlasting name. 13 He brought them through the deep, like a horse through the desert, yet they did not grow weary. 14 Like cattle through the plain, the Spirit came down from the Lord and guided them. Thus You led Your people, to make Yourself a glorious name.

15 Return from heaven, and look from Your holy and glorious dwelling-place. Where are Your zeal and Your strength; where is the multitude of Your mercy and Your compassion, so as to be patient with us? 16 You are our Father, although Abraham did not know us, and Israel did not acknowledge us; but You, O Lord, are our Father. You delivered us, and from the beginning Your name was upon us. 17 Why have you led us astray, O Lord, from Your path, and hardened our hearts so as not to fear You? Return for the sake of Your servants, for the sake of the tribes of Your inheritance, that we may inherit a small portion of Your holy mountain. 18 For our adversaries trampled down Your sanctuary, and we have become as we were from the beginning, when You did not rule us, neither did we call upon Your name. 19 If You open heaven, trembling shall take hold of the mountains before You, and they shall melt as wax melts before the fire.
The fire shall burn up the adversaries, and the Lord's name shall be manifest among the adversaries; and the nations shall be troubled by Your presence.

When You do glorious things, trembling shall take hold of the mountains because of You.

From of old we have not heard, nor have our eyes seen any God but You, and Your works which You shall do for those who wait for Your mercy.

For mercy shall meet with those who do righteousness, and they shall remember your ways. Behold, You were angry, for we sinned; therefore, we went astray.

We all are become as unclean, and all our righteousness is like a filthy rag. We fall off like leaves because of our wrongdoings; thus the wind will carry us away.

There is no one who calls upon Your name and who remembers to take hold of You; for You turned away Your face from us, and delivered us over because of our sins.

And now, O Lord, You are our Father, and all we are clay, the work of Your hands.

Do not be exceedingly angry with us, and do not remember our sins in an opportune time. And now look upon us, for we are all Your people.

The city of Your holy place has become a desert. Zion is like a desert, and Jerusalem is for a curse.

The house, our holy place and the glory our father blessed, has been burnt with fire, and all our glorious things have become extinct.

You tolerated all this, O Lord, and were silent; and You humbled us exceedingly.

“I was manifest to those who did not seek Me; I was found by those who did not ask for Me. I said, ‘Behold, I am here,’ to a nation that did not call on My name.

I stretched out My hands the whole day long to a people who disobeyed and contradicted Me, who did not walk in the true way, but after their sins.

This is a people who provoke Me continually to My face. They sacrifice in gardens and burn incense on bricks to the demons, which do not exist; and they sleep in graves and caves for the sake of dreams, they who eat swine's flesh and the sauce of their sacrifices, which defiles all their vessels; who say, ‘Stay away from me; do not come near me, for I am clean.’ This is the smoke of My anger; a fire burns in it all day long.

Behold, it is written before Me: I will not be silent,” says the Lord, “until I repay into their bosom their sins and the sins of their fathers, who burned incense on the mountains and reproached Me on the hills. I will repay their works into their bosom.”

Thus says the Lord: “As the grape shall be found in a cluster, and they shall say, ‘Do not destroy it, for there is a blessing from the Lord in it,’ so shall I do for the sake of him who serves Me. For his sake I will not destroy them all.

I will bring forth the seed of Jacob and the seed of Judah, and they shall inherit My holy mountain. My elect shall inherit it, and My servants shall dwell there. 10 There shall be in the forest a fold of flocks, and the valley of Achor shall be for the resting place of herds for My people who sought Me. 11 But you are those who forsook Me, and forget My holy mountain, and prepare a table for the devil, and fill a drink-offering to Fortune. 12 I will deliver you to the sword, and all of you shall fall in the slaughter; because I called you, but you did not obey; I spoke, but you refused to listen. You did evil in My sight, and did not choose the things I willed.”

Therefore, thus says the Lord: “Behold, My servants shall eat, but you shall hunger. Behold, My servants shall drink, but you shall thirst. Behold, My servants shall be glad, but you shall be ashamed. 14 Behold, My servants shall rejoice exceedingly in gladness, but you shall cry out because of the pain in your heart; and you shall wail from the crushing of your spirit. 15 For you shall leave your name as an example of excess to My elect, and the Lord shall destroy you. But those who serve Him shall be called by a new name, 16 which shall be blessed upon the earth. For they shall bless the true God, and those who swear upon the earth shall swear by the true God; for they shall forget their former tribulation, and it shall not come into their heart.†

17 “For there shall be a new heaven and a new earth, and they shall not remember the former things, nor shall these things come into their heart.† 18 But they shall find gladness and exceeding joy in her, for behold, I will make Jerusalem an exceeding joy, and My people gladness. 19 I will rejoice exceedingly in Jerusalem, and I will be glad in My people. There shall no longer be heard in her a voice of weeping, nor a voice of crying. 20 There shall not be the untimely death of a child there, nor shall there be an old man who does not fulfill his time. For a young man shall be a hundred years old, but a sinner who dies at a hundred years old shall be cursed. 21 They shall build houses and dwell in them; and they shall plant vineyards and eat their produce. 22 But they shall not build, and others inhabit; and they shall not plant, and others eat. For according to the days of the tree of life, so shall be the days of My people, and the works of their labors shall not grow old. 23 My elect shall not labor in vain, nor shall they bear children to be a curse; for they are a seed blessed by God; and their offspring shall be with them. 24 It shall be, before they cry out, I will listen to them; while they are still speaking, I will say, ‘What is it?’ 25 The wolves and lambs shall feed together, and the lion, like the ox, shall eat chaff; and the serpent, the ground as bread. They shall not injure, neither destroy in My holy mountain,” says the Lord.
Thus says the Lord: “Heaven is My throne, and earth is the footstool of My feet. What kind of house will you build for Me? Or what kind is the place of My rest? 2For My hand made all these things, and all these things are Mine,” says the Lord; “and upon whom will I show respect, but to the humble and the peaceful and to him who trembles at My words. 3But the lawless man who sacrifices a calf is as he who kills a dog; and he who offers a grain offering, as he who offers the blood of a pig; and he who offers incense for a memorial, as he who is a blasphemer. These chose their ways and their abominations, which their soul willed. 4But I will choose their mockeries, and I will repay them; because I called, but they did not obey Me; I spoke, but they did not listen; but they did evil in My sight, and things I did not will, they chose.”

Hear the word of the Lord, you who tremble at His word. Speak, our brethren, to those who hate us and detest us, that the Lord's name may be glorified and seen in their gladness, so they may be ashamed. 6A voice of crying from the city, a voice from the temple, the voice of the Lord is fully repaying His enemies. 7“Before she travails in labor to give birth, before the pain of birth pangs comes on, she escapes it and bears a male. 8Who has heard such a thing, and who has seen anything like this? Has the earth travailed in one day, or has a nation given birth at once? For Zion travailed and gave birth to her children. 9But I raised this expectation, yet you did not remember Me,” says the Lord. “Behold, do I not cause one woman to beget, but another to be sterile?” says God. 10“Be glad, O Jerusalem, and celebrate holy days in her. All you who love her, rejoice exceedingly, and all you who mourn over her; 11that you may nurse and be satisfied by the breast of her consolation; that you may take pleasure in nursing because of the entrance of her glory.” 12For thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will turn to them like a river of peace and like a brook, to flood them with the glory of the Gentiles. Their children shall be taken up on shoulders and comforted on knees. 13Like someone a mother comforts, so also will I comfort you, and you shall be comforted in Jerusalem.” 14You shall see, and your heart will rejoice. Your bones shall rise up like a pasture, and the Lord's hand shall be known by those who fear Him; but He shall threaten the disobedient.

15For behold, the Lord shall come like a fire, and His chariots like a sudden blast of wind, to render His vengeance with anger and His renunciation with a flame of fire. 16For all the earth shall be judged in the fire of the Lord, and all flesh with His sword; and many shall be wounded by the Lord. 17“Those who purify and cleanse themselves in the gardens and porches, who eat the meat of a pig or any abomination, they shall be destroyed together at the same time,” says the Lord; 18“and I know their works and their reasoning. I am coming to gather all the nations and tongues, and they shall come and see My glory. 19And I will leave signs upon them, and those among them who are saved, I will send forth to the Gentiles: to Tarshish, and Pul and Lud and Tubal, and to Greece and to the coastlands far off, to those who have not heard My name, nor seen My glory; and they shall declare My glory among the Gentiles. 20They shall bring your brethren from among all the Gentiles as a gift to the Lord, with horses and chariots, in litters drawn by mules and covered with sunshades, to the holy city of Jerusalem,” says the Lord, “just as the children of Israel would bring Me their sacrifices with psalms into the house of the Lord. 21I shall take some of them to be My priests and Levites,” says the Lord. 22“For just as the new heaven and the new earth which I make shall remain before Me,” says the Lord, “so shall your seed and your name remain. 23It shall come to pass from month to month and from Sabbath to Sabbath, all flesh shall worship before Me in Jerusalem,” says the Lord. 24“They shall go forth and see the dead bodies of the men who transgressed against Me, for their worm shall not die, and their fire shall not be extinguished; and they shall be a vision to all flesh.”

The Book of Jeremiah

Author—Jeremiah, “the one whom God appoints or exalts.”

Date—Jeremiah prophesied from about 627 to 582 BC.

Major Themes—Destruction and captivity. Jeremiah prophesied the persecutions and destruction of Jerusalem and the temple; he also foretold the captivity of the Jews in Babylon. He exhorted the people to repent, promising hope for those who remain faithful to the Lord. He prophesied there would come a “new covenant” (38:31–34) to be inscribed in every believer's heart, inaugurated and fulfilled through Christ God, the Messiah of Israel.

Background—Jeremiah was called the “weeping prophet.” He shed many tears during the dark and despairing time of the Babylonian captivity. He began prophesying during King Josiah's reign (640–609 BC). Jeremiah was also known as “the prophet of the interior life” because he preached a personal knowledge of God and the forgiveness of sins (38:31–34). The bulk of his message was such a heavy burden to him that it broke even his own heart (8:19–21).

   B. Bonds and yokes (34:1–14)
   C. The false prophet Hananiah (35:1–17)
   D. Jeremiah's letter (36:1–27)

V. Promises to Israel (37:1–38:40)
The word of God came to Jeremiah the son of Hilkiah of the priests, who lived in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin.† 2The word of God came to him in the days of Josiah the son of Amon, king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign.† 3The word also came in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, until the eleventh year of Zedekiah the son of Josiah, king ofJudah, until the captivity of Jerusalem in the fifth month.

The Prophet Is Chosen

4Thus the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 5“Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you, and before you were born, I sanctified you. I established you a prophet to the nations.”† 6Then I said, “O Lord and Master, behold, I do not know how to speak, for I am a youth.”† 7But the Lord said to me, “Do not say, ‘I am a youth,’ for you shall go to all to whom I send you, and whatever I command, you shall speak. 8Do not be afraid of their faces, for I am with you to deliver you,” says the Lord. 9Then the Lord put forth His hand to me and touched my mouth; and the Lord said to me, “Behold, I have put My words in your mouth. 10Behold, this day I am setting you over the nations and kingdoms, to root out and to pull down, to destroy, to rebuild, and to plant.”

11The word of the Lord came to me, saying, “Jeremiah, what do you see?” So I replied, “I
32 Then the Lord said to me, “You see well, for I keep watch to perform the works of my words.”

13 Again the word of the Lord came to me a second time, saying, “What do you see?” Then I said, “A boiling pot, and it is facing away from the north.” 14 The Lord said to me, “From the north, evil things will inflame all who inhabit the land. 15 For behold, I will call together all the kingdoms of the land of the north,” says the Lord, “and they shall come; and each shall set his throne at the entrance of the gates of Jerusalem, against all the walls surrounding her, and against all the cities of Judah. 16 I will speak to them with judgments concerning all their vices, because they forsook Me, burned incense to foreign gods, and worshiped the works of their hands.† 17 As for you, gird your loins and arise, and speak to all whatever I command you. Do not be afraid of their faces nor tremble before them, for I am with you to deliver you,” says the Lord. 18 “For behold, on this day I have established you as a fortified city and as a fortified bronze wall against all the kings of Judah, against its rulers, and against the people of the land. 19 They will fight against you, but they shall not prevail over you, for I am with you to deliver you,” says the Lord.

God's Charges against Israel.

2 Again the Lord said, “Thus says the Lord: 2 ‘I remember your compassion and youth and your love and maturity, so as to follow the Holy One of Israel,’ says the Lord.† 3 ‘Israel, the beginning of His harvest, was holy to the Lord. All who devour him shall transgress, and evils will come upon them,’ ” says the Lord.

The Worship of Baal.

4 Hear the word of the Lord, O house of Jacob, and all families of the house of Israel. 5 Thus says the Lord: “What transgression have your fathers found in Me, so as to go far from Me, to follow after vain and worthless things? 6 They did not say, ‘Where is the Lord, who led us out of the land of Egypt, who guided us in the wilderness, in an unknown and untrodden land, a land that was waterless and barren, in which no one traversed and where no son of man dwelt?’ 7 I brought you into Carmel to eat its fruit and its good things, but you entered and defiled My land, and made My heritage an abomination. 8 The priests did not say, ‘Where is the Lord?’ But those who handle the law did not trust Me, and the shepherds acted profanely toward Me. The prophets prophesied by Baal and walked after unprofitable things.
The holy Prophets of Israel played a unique and critical role in their society. They repeatedly called the people back to their commitment to obey and worship only the one true God; they warned of foreign invasions; they protested against social and economic injustice; and they even rebuked kings face to face for their sinfulness (2Kg 12:1–15; 3Kg 18:17, 18; 20:1–29; 2Ch 12:1–8; 16:7–10). In times of crisis they were consulted by kings to discern the Lord’s will (4Kg 3:5–20; 8:7–15; 22:8–20; Jer 21:1–14). Yet their most significant task was prophesying about the coming of the Messiah, the King of Kings.

Through prayer, asceticism, repentance, and the practice of virtue, the Prophets were particularly receptive to the Holy Spirit—He “Who spoke by the Prophets,” as the Nicene Creed declares. St. Basil the Great writes, “In souls pure and cleansed from all defilement, the prophetic gift shines clear.” Most unique was the preparation received by St. John the Baptist, the greatest of the Prophets (Mt 11:7–14), who was “filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother’s womb” (Lk 1:15).

The backgrounds of the Prophets were varied. Amos was a shepherd (Am 1:1; 7:14, 15), Ezekiel a priest (Ezk 1:1–3), Daniel a young nobleman reared in captivity at the royal court in Babylon (Dan 1:3–6), Deborah a judge and military leader (Jdg 4:1–5:31), and Huldah was the wife of the keeper of the king’s wardrobe (4Kg 22:14). Also varied were their responses to the Lord’s call. For example, Moses and Jeremiah protested (Ex 3:7–4:17; Jer 1:7–2:2), and Jonah immediately tried to flee from the Lord (Jon 1:1–3). Isaiah, on the other hand, though acutely aware of his own sinfulness said, “Here am I, send me” (6:8). Moses, Jeremiah (Jer 1:7–2:2), and Ezekiel (Ezk 2:1–3:14) all received repeated reassurances from the Lord that He would be with them to strengthen them in fulfilling their prophetic calling.

The Prophets vividly demonstrated their willingness to obey the Lord when asked to do unusual things in dramatized prophecies. Ezekiel drew a picture of Jerusalem on a clay tablet and pretended to besiege it (Ezk 4:1–3); he was also asked to take a sword and cut off his hair and beard and burn part of it (5:1–13; see 12:1–15). Jeremiah buried a linen sash by the Euphrates River (Jer 13:1–11); Isaiah walked naked and barefoot for three years (Is 20:1–6); Hosea was commanded to marry a harlot (Hos 1:1–3).

Sometimes the Prophets experienced fierce opposition from the authorities—kings, priests, and even other prophets—who resented the condemnatory messages being delivered. Micaiah was slapped and imprisoned for being the only one of about four hundred prophets who dared to tell King Ahab of Israel the true word of the Lord (3Kg 22:2–38). Jeremiah was threatened with death by his fellow citizens of Anathoth (Jer 11:19–23) and later by the priests and the false prophets (33:1–19); and he was imprisoned under King Zedekiah (44:1–21; see 20:1, 2). The priest of Bethel tried to expel Amos out of Israel (Am 7:10–13). According to tradition, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and Amos all were executed, as was St. John the Baptist (Mt 14:1–12; see Lk 11:47–51; Mt 23:29–37; 2Ch 24:17–22; Jer 33:20–23; Heb 11:32–38).

At times certain Prophets even wanted to die, such as Elijah (3Kg 19:1–4) and Jonah (Jon 4:1–3). But the Prophets always reaffirmed their reliance upon God’s will and their hope in His mercy (Lam 3:21–41). In this, as well as in their sufferings for our Lord’s sake, the holy Prophets serve as important examples for us who have received, at our Baptism and Chrismation, the gift of the same Holy Spirit who came upon them.

9“Therefore I will yet bring charges against you,” says the Lord, “and I will bring charges against the sons of your sons. 10For pass by the islands of Chettim and see. Send to Kedar and consider diligently. See if such things happened,† whether nations will change their gods; though they are not gods. But My people changed their glory to a glory from which they will not profit. 11Heaven was amazed at this and was exceedingly horror-struck,” says the Lord. 12“For My people have committed two evils: They forsook Me, the fountain of living water, and hewed for themselves broken cisterns, unable to hold water.†

† Forsaking the Lord

14“Is not Israel a slave or household servant? 15The young lions roared at him with their growl and made his land desolate, and her cities were demolished, no longer livable. 16Also the sons of Memphis and Tahpanhes know you and mock you. 17By forsaking Me, did you not bring these things upon yourself?” says the Lord your God. 18“Now, what concern of yours is the road to Egypt, or drinking the waters of the Nile? Why concern yourself about the road to Assyria, or drinking the water of his rivers? 19Your own rebellion will chastise you, and your vices will convict you. You will know and experience the bitterness of your forsaking Me,” says the Lord your God.

“But I have taken no joy in you,” says the Lord your God, 20“for from of old you have splintered your yoke and have broken your chain to pieces. You have said, ‘I will not serve You, but I will go to every high hill and under every shade tree to indulge in my fornication.’

21 I planted a fruitful vine for you, one most healthy and sweet, yet you turned it into a vine unknown to Me, with a taste of bitterness. 22 Though you wash in soap and evermore use lye on yourself, still you remain defiled in your wrongdoings before Me,” says the Lord. 23 “In what way will you say, ‘I was not a disciple of Baal, nor am I defiled’? Consider your ways, which lead you to the common burial place. Know what you have done, for Baal's voice cries out late in the day.† 24 He extends his ways over the waters of the desert, for he is borne along as by the wind in the desires of his soul. He is given over to them. Who will turn him back? All who seek him will not grow weary, but they will find him in his humiliation. 25 Therefore, turn your feet away from this uneven path and from the thirst in your mouth, for he says, ‘I will act like a man,’ because he loves strangers and goes after them.

26 “The sons of Israel, their kings and rulers, their priests and even their prophets shall be ashamed, like the shame of a thief when he is caught. 27 For they said to a tree, ‘You are my father,’ and to the stone, ‘You have begotten me.’ They have turned their backs to Me, and not their faces; yet in the time of their evils, they will say, ‘Arise and save us.’ 28 But where are the gods you made for yourself? Will they arise and save you when you are in oppression? For in the same number as you have cities, O Judah, you have gods, and according to the number of thoroughfares in Jerusalem, they sacrifice to Baal.

Denial of Sin

29 Why do you speak to Me? All of you have been ungodly, and all of you have acted lawlessly against Me,” says the Lord. 30 “In vain I struck your children, for you accepted no chastisement. Like a destroying lion, a sword devoured your prophets, but you did not fear.” 31 Hear the word of the Lord. Thus says the Lord: “Was I really a desert to Israel, or a barren land? Then why did My people say, ‘We will not be dominated, and no more will we come to You’? 32 Can a bride forget her ornaments, or a virgin her breast-band? Yet for days without number My people forget Me. 33 Yet what good will you practice in your ways so as to seek love? None. But you also did evil so as to defile your ways. 34 The death of innocent souls was found at your hands. I did not find them by digging in the earth, but under every oak tree. 35 Yet you said, ‘But I am innocent, so let Your anger turn from me.’ Behold, I pass judgment against you because you say, ‘I have not sinned.’ 36 Why did you deal so very contumuously so as to repeat your ways? But you will be ashamed of Egypt as you were of Assyria.†

3 For you will go out henceforth with your hands on your head, because the Lord rejected your hope; and you will not prosper in it.

Israel Is Defiled

3 “If a man divorces his wife, and she goes from him to become another man's, may she turn back and return to him again? Would not such a woman be greatly defiled? But you committed fornication with many shepherds and have returned to Me,” says the Lord. 2 “Lift up your eyes straight ahead and see. Where have you not been defiled? You sat for them along the roads like a deserted crow, and defiled the land with your fornications and vices. 3 Yes, you have many shepherds as an occasion of stumbling for yourself. The appearance of a prostitute has come upon you, but you shamelessly deny all this. 4 Have you not called Me, as it were, a home, a father, and a founder of your virginity? 5 Will this appearance continue forever, or be maintained to the end? Behold, you said and did these evil things as you were able.”

A Call to Return

6 Again the Lord said to me in the days of Josiah the king, “You saw what the habitation of Israel did to Me? They went up on every high mountain and under every shady tree to commit fornication there.† 7 Yet after Israel committed all these acts of fornication, I said, ‘Return to Me,’ but she did not return. Faithless Judah also saw Israel's faithlessness. 8 I also saw it, and because of all the things in which the habitation of Israel committed adultery and was overtaken in it, therefore I put her away and placed in her hands a certificate of divorce. Yet even after this, faithless Judah did not fear, but she, too, proceeded to commit fornication. 9 Her fornication was good for nothing, for she committed adultery with wood and stone. 10 In all of this, faithless Judah did not turn to Me with her whole heart, but falsely.”

11 Again the Lord said to me, “Israel justified herself more than faithless Judah. 12 Go and read these words toward the north, and you shall say, ‘Return to Me, O habitation of Israel,’ says the Lord, ‘and I will not set My face against you. I am merciful,’ says the Lord, ‘and I will not be wrathful forever. 13 However, realize your wrongdoing, for you behaved in an ungodly way against the Lord your God; and you passed on your evil ways to foreigners under every shady tree, because you did not obey My voice.

14 “Return, O sons who have turned away,” says the Lord, “for I will rule over you and receive you—one from a city and two from a family—and I will lead you to Zion. 15 I will give you shepherds according to My heart, and they will thoroughly shepherd you with knowledge.† 16 It shall come to pass that if you multiply and increase in the land in those days,” says the Lord, “they will no longer say, ‘The ark of the covenant of the Holy One of Israel.’ It will not enter their heart, nor be named or visited; neither will this be done any more. 17 In those days and at that time, they shall call Jerusalem the Throne of the Lord, and all the Gentiles shall be gathered to it. They shall no longer walk after the reasoning of their evil heart.

18 In those days, the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north, and from all the countries to the land I gave as an inheritance to their fathers.

19 “I declare” (may it be, O Lord!) “that I will set you among children and give you a choice land, the inheritance of the Almighty God of the Gentiles; and I declare that you shall call Me Father, and you shall not turn away from Me.† 20 Nevertheless, as a wife rejects her husband, so the house of Israel has rejected Me,” says the Lord. 21 “For a sound from lips was heard, even bitter crying and the entreaty of the sons of Israel; because they did wrong in their ways and forgot their holy God. 22 Return, O sons, return, and I will heal your ruin.”

23 “Behold, we will be Your servants, for You are the Lord our God. Indeed, the hills and the power of the mountains were as a lie, for our salvation is only through the Lord our God. 24 But from our youth, shame devoured the labors of our fathers: their sheep, their cattle, their sons and their daughters. 25 We fall asleep in our shame and dishonor covers us, because we sinned against the Lord our God. From our youth even to this day, we and our fathers did not obey the voice of the Lord our God.”

“If Israel returns to Me,” says the Lord, “he shall return. If he puts away abominations from his mouth, and fears My presence, 2 and swears that the Lord lives with truth, judgment, and righteousness, then the Gentiles shall bless in Him, and in Him they shall praise God in Jerusalem.” 3 For thus says the Lord to the men of Judah and those dwelling in Jerusalem: “Plow for yourselves the untilled fields, and do not sow among thorns. 4 Circumcise yourselves to God, all you men of Judah and those dwelling in Jerusalem, and circumcise the hardness of your heart, lest My anger come forth like fire and burn; and there shall be no one who quenches it, because of the presence of your evil practices."†

Warning of Disaster

5Declare in Judah and let it be heard in Jerusalem, and say, “Blow the trumpet in the land, and cry out loudly, saying, ‘Assemble yourselves, and let us go into the fortified cities.’ 6Pick up and flee toward Zion. Hurry. Do not stop! For I bring disaster from the north and great destruction.” ‡The lion has come up from his den, and the destroyer of nations has arisen. He has come forth from his place to make the land desolate, and the cities will be laid waste, no longer livable. 8For this, clothe yourself with sackcloth, lament and wail, saying, “The anger of the Lord has not turned back from us.”

9“In that day it shall come to pass,” says the Lord, “that the heart of the king and the heart of the rulers shall perish. The priests shall be amazed and the prophets shall wonder.” 10Then I said, “O Lord and Master, surely You deceived this people and Jerusalem when You said, ‘You shall have peace,’ but behold, the sword reaches to their soul.”

11At that time, they will say to this people and to Jerusalem, “There is a spirit of wandering in the desert, for the way of the daughter of My people is not clean nor holy. 12A spirit of completion will come to Me now, for I speak judgments against them. 13Behold, he shall come up like a cloud, and his chariots like a whirlwind, for his horses are swifter than eagles. They will say, ‘Woe to us, for we are in ruin!’ ”

14O Jerusalem, wash the vices from your heart that you may be saved. How long shall your painful thoughts be within you?† 15For the voice of one declaring from Dan will come, and anguish will be heard from Mount Ephraim: 16“Remind the nations, for they have come. Announce to those in Jerusalem the gatherings of those from afar, for they uttered their voice against the cities of Judah. 17They completely surrounded her, like those who guard a field, for you rejected Me,” says the Lord. 18“Your ways and practices have brought these things upon you. This evil is your own, for it is bitter, because it took hold of your heart.”

Jeremiah's Sorrow for Israel

19I am pained to the depth of my belly and in the senses of my heart. My soul is in great commotion, and my heart is torn asunder. I will not be silent, for my soul hears the sound of the trumpet, the alarm of war. It calls for a ruinous crushing, for the whole land is in ruin. Suddenly the tabernacle is in ruin, and my coverings are torn apart. How long will I see people fleeing and hear the sound of trumpets? “For the leaders of My people do not know Me. They are foolish and unwise sons. They are wise to do evil, but do not know how to do good.”

I looked upon the earth, and behold, it was nothing, and into the sky, and there were no stars in it. I saw the mountains, and they were trembling; and I saw all the hills, and they were shaking. I looked, and behold, there was no man, and all the birds of the heavens were alarmed. I saw, and behold, Carmel was deserted, and all the cities were burnt with fire at the presence of the Lord, and because of His fierce anger they were destroyed.

Thus says the Lord: “The whole land shall be desolate, yet I will not destroy it completely. Let the earth mourn for these things, and let the sky above grow dark, for I have spoken and will not repent. I have sworn and will not turn back from it. From the sound of the horse and the bow strung with an arrow, the whole land retreated. They crawled into caves, hid in the groves, and climbed up on the rocks. Every city is forsaken, and not a man dwells in them. As for you, what will you do, though you clothe yourself with crimson and adorn yourself with ornaments of gold, though you daub your eyes with myrrh? Your adornment is in vain. Your lovers rejected you, and they seek your life. For I heard your voice groaning, like the sound of a woman giving birth, like the voice of the daughter of Zion whose anguish is like that of one who gives birth the first time, who grows weary and whose hands lose their strength; and she says, ‘Woe is me, for my soul faints because of those killed!’

God’s Judgment Is Just

“Run to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem, and you will see and know; and seek in her streets if you can find a man, if there is anyone who does judgment and seeks faithfulness; and I shall be merciful to them,” says the Lord. “Though they say, ‘As the Lord lives,’ therefore, do they not make an oath with lies?” O Lord, Your eyes are on faithfulness. You chastised them, but they have not grieved. You consumed them, but they were unwilling to receive correction. They set their faces harder than a rock and did not will to return.

Therefore I said, “Perhaps they are poor, because they are weak and do not know the way of the Lord, nor the judgment of God. 5 I will go to the great men and speak to them, for they do not know the way of the Lord and the judgment of God.” But behold, they altogether crushed the yoke and broke the bonds. 6 Therefore a lion from the thicket struck them, and a wolf destroyed them, even to their houses; and a leopard kept watch against their cities. Everyone who goes out from them shall be hunted, because they multiplied their ungodliness and grew strong in their turning away.

7 “In what way shall I be merciful to you? Your sons forsook Me and swore by those who are not gods. I pastured them, but they committed adultery and lodged in the houses of prostitutes. 8 They were lusty horses. Each one neighed after his neighbor's wife. 9 Shall I not visit them for these things?” says the Lord. “Shall not My soul take vengeance on such a nation as this?

10 “Go upon her outer fortifications and tear them down, but do not ruin them completely. Leave the support foundations, for they belong to the Lord. 11 The house of Israel and the house of Judah dealt very treacherously with Me,” says the Lord. 12 They lied to their own Lord, and said, “These things are not so. Evil will not come upon us, nor shall we see sword or famine. 13 Our prophets were as wind, and the word of the Lord did not exist in them.”

14 Therefore, thus says the Lord Almighty: “Because you prophets spoke this word, behold, I will cause My words to be fire in your mouth, and this people to be wood, and the fire shall devour them. 15 Behold, O house of Israel,” says the Lord, “I will bring a nation against you from afar. It is a nation whose spoken language you shall not understand. 16 They are all mighty men. 17 They shall eat up your harvest and your bread, and they shall devour your sons and daughters, along with your sheep and cattle, and your vines, fig trees, and olive groves. With a sword they shall destroy your fortified cities in which you trust.

18 “Nevertheless, it shall come to pass in those days,” says the Lord your God, “that I will not make a complete end of you. 19 It will be that when you say, ‘Why did the Lord our God do all these things to us?’ then you shall answer them, ‘Because you served foreign gods in your land, so you shall serve foreigners in a land not yours.’

20 “Declare this in the house of Jacob, and let it be heard in Judah. 21 Hear these things now, O people, foolish and heartless. They have eyes that see not, they have ears that hear not. 22 Do you not fear Me?” asks the Lord. “Have you no fear before My presence, I who placed the sand as the bound of the sea, a perpetual decree, so it shall not pass beyond? Though it be in a constant uproar, yet it shall not prevail; and though its waves toss, yet they shall not pass over it. 23 But this people has an inattentive and disobedient heart. They turned aside and departed. 24 They did not say in their heart, ‘Let us now fear the Lord our God, who gives us both the early and the late rain, according to the fullness of the season, and preserves the harvest He ordained for us.’ 25 Your lawlessness turned these things away, and your sins withdrew the good things from you. 26 For the ungodly were found among My people. They set traps to destroy men, and they caught them. 27 As a trap set for birds is full, so their houses are full of deceit; therefore, they became great and grew rich. 28 They transgressed judgment and do not plead the cause of the orphan, nor the cause of the widow. 29 Shall I not visit them for these things?” says the Lord. “Shall not My soul take vengeance on such a nation as this?

30 “Bewilderment and horrible things have come upon the land. 31 The prophets prophesy unrighteous things, and the priests applaud with their hands. My people also love to have it so. But what will you do after these things?”

Destruction Is Coming from the North

6 Be strong, O sons of Benjamin, in the midst of Jerusalem. Blow the trumpet in Tekoa, and for the sake of Beth Hacerem, set up a signal; because evil looms from the north, and great destruction is coming. 2 Your crown will be taken away, O daughter of Zion. 3 Shepherds and their flocks will come to her, and they shall pitch their tents against her all around; and they shall feed their flocks, each with his hand. 4 Get ready to war against her, to rise up against her in battle at noon. Woe to us! Because the day draws to a close, and the shadows of evening come to an end. 5 Arise and go up in the night, and utterly destroy her foundations.

6 For thus says the Lord: “Cut down her trees; pour out your power against Jerusalem, O false city. There is oppression in her entirely. 7 As a reservoir chills down water, so evil causes her to grow cold. Ungodliness and misery will be heard in her presence continually. 8 Be instructed, O Jerusalem, by pain and affliction, lest My soul depart from you; lest I make you a land not to be trodden, where no one shall dwell.” 9 For thus says the Lord: “Glean, glean as a vine the remnant of Israel; return them as one who gathers for his basket.”
To whom shall I speak and testify? Will it be heard? Behold, their ears are uncircumcised, and they cannot hear. Behold, the word of the Lord was an insult to them, and they do not wish to hear it. I was filled with my anger, but held fast and did not end their lives. I will pour it out against the children from the outside, against the youth of the assembly; and the husband and wife will be taken together, the elder full of days. Their houses shall be turned over to others, together with their wives and fields. For I will stretch out My hand against the inhabitants of this land,” says the Lord. “Because from the least of them even to the greatest, everyone accomplished lawlessness. From the priest even to the false prophet, everyone acted falsely. With contempt they healed the calamity of My people incompletely, saying, ‘Peace, peace.’ But where is peace? They were ashamed because they failed; but they were not ashamed as those truly ashamed, for they did not recognize their dishonor. Therefore, they shall utterly fall when they do fall, and at the time of their visitation they shall perish,” says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: “Stand in the ways and see, and ask about the eternal pathways of the Lord. See what the good way is and walk in it. Here you will find purification for your souls. But they said, ‘We will not walk in it.’ I set watchmen over you. Listen to the sound of their trumpet. But they said, ‘We will not listen.’ Therefore the Gentiles heard, and those who shepherd their flocks. Hear, O earth. Behold, I will bring evils upon this people, the fruit of their turning away, because they did not heed My words, but rejected My law. Why do you bring frankincense to Me from Sheba and cinnamon from a far country? Your whole burnt offerings are not acceptable, and your sacrifices are not sweet to Me.” Therefore thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will bring weakness upon this people, and the fathers and the sons together shall be weak. The neighbor and his friend shall perish.”

Thus says the Lord: “Behold, a people will come from the north, and a nation will be raised from the farthest parts of the earth. They will take hold of bow and spear; and they are reckless and will show no mercy. Their voice is like the roaring sea, and they are deployed on horses and chariots. They shall draw up in battle order as a fire for war against you, O daughter of Zion.”

You will say, “We heard the report of them, and our hands became feeble. Distress takes hold of us as pains of a woman in labor.” Do not go out into the field nor walk along the ways, for the swords of enemies linger on every side. O daughter of my people, dress himself in sackcloth and sprinkle yourself with ashes. Make for yourself a bitter lamentation as if for a beloved son, because suddenly misery will come upon you.

27“\textit{I gave you an assayer to prove you among the peoples, and you shall know Me when I test their way.} 28They all are inattentive and walk perversely. They are bronze and iron, and all have corrupted themselves. 29The blowpipe and the lead failed because the fire gave out. The silversmith coins money in vain, and their evils have not melted away. \textit{30Call them rejected silver, because the Lord rejected them.}”

\textit{Trust Not in Lying Words}

Hear the word of the Lord, all you of Judah. 2Thus says the Lord God of Israel: “Amend your ways and your practices, and I will cause you to dwell in this place.

3Do not entrust yourselves to lying words, for they will not profit you when you say, ‘It is the temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord.’ 4For if you thoroughly amend your ways and your practices, if you thoroughly bring about judgment between a man and his neighbor, 5and do not oppress the resident alien, the orphan, and the widow, and do not shed innocent blood in this place or walk after foreign gods to your hurt, 6then I will cause you to dwell in this place, in the land I gave to your fathers of old and forever.

7“But if you trust in lying words from which you cannot profit, 8and you murder, commit adultery, steal, swear to do wrong, burn incense to Baal, and walk after foreign gods you do not know so as to do evil, 9and come and stand before Me in the house wherein My name is called and say, ‘We have not abstained from doing all these abominations,’ 10then is this house, called by My name, a den of robbers in your eyes? Behold, I have seen it.

11“But go to My place in Shiloh, where I caused My name to dwell before, and see what I did to it because of the vices of My people Israel,” says the Lord. 12“Now then, because you did all these works, and I spoke to you but you did not hear Me, and I called you but you did not answer, 13therefore, I will also do to this house, called by My name in which you trust, and the place I gave you and your fathers, as I did to Shiloh. 14I will cast you out of My sight as I cast out your brethren—all the seed of Ephraim.

15“Therefore, do not pray for this people, nor consider them worthy to be shown mercy. Do not pray nor come to Me about them. I will not hear you. 16Do you not see what they do in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? 17 Their sons gather wood, and their fathers kindle the fire, while their women knead cake dough for the host of heaven; and they pour out drink offerings to foreign gods to provoke Me to anger. 18 Do they provoke Me to wrath?” says the Lord. “Do they not provoke themselves to the shame of their own faces?” 19 Therefore, thus says the Lord: “Behold, My wrath and anger is poured out on this place, on men and cattle, on every tree of their field, and on all the fruits of the land. It will burn and not be quenched. 20 Gather your whole burnt offerings with your sacrifices, and eat meat.”

21 Thus says the Lord: “For I did not speak to your fathers, nor command them concerning whole burnt offerings and sacrifices in the day I brought them out of the land of Egypt. 22 But I commanded them this word, saying, ‘Listen to My voice, and I will be to you as God, and you shall be to Me as a people. Walk in all My ways I commanded you, that it may be well with you.’ 23 Yet they did not hear Me and did not attend their ear. Instead, they walked in the devices of their heart and went backward, not forward. 24 From the day their fathers came out of the land of Egypt until this day, I sent you all My servants, the prophets. I sent them by day and early in the morning. Yes, I sent them. 25 But they did not hear Me, nor did their ear attend. Instead, they stiffened their neck even more than their fathers.

False Worship Will Be Judged

26 “Therefore, you shall speak this word to them: 27 ‘This is the nation that heard not the voice of the Lord, nor received correction. Faith has perished from their mouth. 28 Cut off your hair and cast it away. Take up a lamentation on your lips, for the Lord has rejected and repudiated the generation that does these things.’ 29 For the sons of Judah did the evil thing in My sight,” says the Lord. “They set their abominations in the house called by My name, to defile it. 30 They also built the altar of Tophet in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom to burn their sons and their daughters in the fire, which I did not command them, nor consider in My heart. 31 Behold, the days are coming,” says the Lord, “when they will no longer say, ‘the Altar of Tophet,’ or, ‘the Valley of the Son of Hinnom,’ but instead, ‘the Valley of the Slain’; and they will be buried in Tophet, for there is no other place. 32 The dead of this people will also be food for the birds of heaven and the wild beasts of the land. No one will scare them away. 33 I shall cause to cease the glad and joyful voice, the voice of the bridegroom and the bride, from the cities of Judah and the thoroughfares of Jerusalem. For the whole land shall be desolate.
The Relics Are an Example

8 “At that time,” says the Lord, “they shall bring out of their graves the bones of the kings of Judah and its rulers, the bones of the priests and the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem. They shall dry them before the sun and the moon, and before all the stars and the hosts of heaven, which they loved and served, and after which they walked, devoted themselves, and worshiped. They are not to be mourned nor buried; but they are to be an example on the face of the earth, because they chose death rather than life. They are also to be an example to all the remnant left from that generation, in every place wherever I banish them.”

False Teaching Will Be Judged

4 For thus says the Lord: “Will not he who falls arise? Or he who turns away, will he not return? 5 Why therefore has this My people turned away from Me in a shameful way, strengthened themselves in their choice, and were not willing to return? 6 Indeed, give ear and listen. Will they not speak thus: ‘There is no man who repents of his vices, saying, “What have I done?” ’ The runner ceases to run his race, as a sweating horse ceases to run when he is tired. 7 Even the stork in the sky knows her appointed time, as do the turtledove and the swallow of the field. The sparrows watch for the times of their coming. But My people do not know the judgments of the Lord.

8 “How can you say, ‘We are wise, and the law of the Lord is with us’? The lying pen becomes vanity for the scribes. 9 Wise men are put to shame and convicted, for they rejected the word of the Lord. What wisdom is in them? 10 I will give their wives and fields to others as an inheritance. 11 They will gather together their fruits. There are no grapes on the vines, nor figs on the fig trees, and the leaves have fallen off. 12 They will say, ‘Why do we sit still? Assemble yourselves, and let us enter the strong cities. Let us be rejected, for God has cast us out and given us gall to drink, because we sinned against Him.’ 13 Let us come together for peace, but there was nothing good, and for a time of healing, but behold, trouble. 14 We will hear the swift sound of His horses coming from Dan. The whole land quakes from the neighing of His horse-drawn chariots. He will come and devour the land and its fullness, the city and those who dwell in it.” 15 For behold, I send forth lethal serpents among you, for which there are no charms. 16 They shall bite you mortally with the pain of your disturbed
Behold, the voice of the daughter of my people cries out from a far land, “Is not the Lord in Zion? Is her King not there?” “No, because they provoked Me to anger with their carved images and foreign vanities.”

They will say, “The summer is gone, the harvest is past, and we are not saved.”

I am saddened because of the ruin of the daughter of my people. Pains have seized me as one who gives birth. Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician? Why is no healing taking place for the daughter of my people?

Who will give water to my head and a fountain of tears to my eyes, that I might weep day and night for this people of mine, for the wounded of the daughter of my people?

Who will give me lodging in a deserted place, that I might leave my people and depart from them? For they are all adulterers, an assembly of treacherous men.

“They bent their tongues like a bow. Falsehood, not faith, prevails in the land. For they went from evil to evil, and have not known Me.”

Let each take heed to his neighbor, and not trust their brothers, for every brother will utterly deceive, and every friend will walk treacherously.

Each will mock at his friend and not speak the truth. Their tongue learns to speak lies, and they do wrong. They do not pause to turn back.

There is usury upon usury, deceit upon deceit. They are unwilling to know Me.”

Therefore thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will set them on fire and test them; I shall do so because of the evil of the daughter of My people. Their tongue is a wounding arrow, and the words of their mouth are deceitful. One speaks peaceably to his neighbor, but has hatred in his heart. Shall I not visit them for these things?” says the Lord. “Shall not My soul take vengeance on such a people as this? Take up a wailing on the mountains and a lamentation on the paths of the desert; for they cease from being a people. They do not hear the sound of existence from the birds of the sky, nor even from cattle. They were astonished; they were gone. I will put Jerusalem into captivity, and it will become a dwelling place of serpents. I will make the cities of Judah desolate, beyond habitation.”
11 Who is a wise man? Let him understand this. Let him declare to you by the word of the Lord to him why the land was ravaged by fire, and became like a desert no one could pass through. 12 The Lord answered me, “Because they forsook My law which I set before their face, and they did not hear My voice. 13 Instead, they walked after what pleased their evil heart, and after the idols their fathers taught them.” 14 Therefore, thus says the Lord God of Israel: “Behold, I will feed them as a matter of necessity, and give them the water of bitterness to drink. 15 I will also scatter them among the Gentiles, amongst whom neither they nor their fathers are known. I shall send a sword after them until I consume them with it.”

The People Weep in Shame

16 Thus says the Lord: “Call for the mourning women and let them come. Send for the wise women and let them give utterance. 17 Let them take up a lamentation over you. Let your eyes run with tears, and your eyelids flow with water. 18 For a voice of wailing is heard from Zion, ‘How we have been afflicted and greatly ashamed, because we forsook the land and were cast out of our dwellings.’ ” 19 Indeed, O women, hear the word of God, and let your ear receive the words of His mouth. Teach your daughters wailing, and a woman a lamentation to all her neighbors. 20 For death will come through your windows and enter your land, to destroy the children from outside and the youth from the streets. 21 The dead men shall be as an example in the open country of your land, like grass after it is mowed, when there shall be none to gather it.

22 Thus says the Lord: “Let not the wise man boast in his wisdom, nor let the mighty man boast in his might, nor let the rich man boast in his riches.” 23 Instead, let him who boasts boast in this, that he understands and knows that I am the Lord, who shows mercy, judgment, and righteousness on earth, for in these is My will,” says the Lord. 24 “Behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, “that I will visit upon all the circumcised their uncircumcision. 25 I will visit Egypt, Judea, Edom, the sons of Ammon and the sons of Moab, and all who dwell in the desert—all who shave their face. For all these nations are uncircumcised in the flesh, but all the house of Israel are uncircumcised in their heart.”

Let the Idols Perish
O house of Israel, hear the word of the Lord, for He has spoken to you. Thus says the Lord: “Do not learn the ways of the Gentiles, and do not be afraid because of signs from the sky, for they themselves reverence these. For the customs of the peoples are vain. This vanity is a tree cut from the forest, the work of a craftsman, or it is a molten image. They are embellished with silver and gold with a hammer, and they strengthen them with nails so they will not move. They will be taken up and carried, for they cannot walk by themselves. Do not be afraid of them, because they cannot do evil, nor is there any good thing in them. The silver is worked in relief, and they cannot travel anywhere. The silver overlays come from Tarshish, the gold from Uphaz. All handiwork is the work of goldsmiths and craftsmen, and they will dress them in hyacinth and purple.”

Thus you shall say to them, “Let the gods that did not make heaven and earth perish from the earth and from under this heaven.”

The Lord—who made the earth in His strength, who restores the inhabited world in His wisdom and discernment—stretched out heaven, and the abundance of water in heaven; and He brings up clouds from the ends of the earth. He made lightning for the rain, and brings light out of His storehouses. Every man is made foolish because of this knowledge, and every goldsmith is put to shame by his carved images; because they cast false gods that have no spirit in them. They are vain works that are ridiculed, and in the time of His visitation they shall be destroyed. Such is not the portion for Jacob, for He who formed all things is Jacob's inheritance. The Lord is His name.

Desolation Is Coming to Judah

This inheritance resides in the elect and gathers together your existence outside the land. For thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will overthrow those who reside in this land with affliction, that your wound might be discovered.” Alas for your ruin! Your wound is painful, and I say, “Indeed, this is my wound, and it overtakes me. My tabernacle endures hardship and is ruined, and all my skin coverings are torn apart. My sons and my sheep are no more, and there is no place left for my tent, nor for my curtains. For the shepherds act foolishly and no longer seek out the Lord. Therefore, the whole pasture does not understand, thus the sheep are scattered. Behold, there is a sound of news, and an earthquake comes from the land of the north to cause the cities of Judah to disappear, making them the nesting place of 11 I know, O Lord, that man's way is not his own, nor will a man go and prosper in his own pursuit. 20 Chastise us, O Lord, but with judgment and not in anger, lest You make our numbers few. 21 Pour out Your anger on the Gentiles who do not know You, and on the generations who did not call on Your name; because they devoured Jacob and utterly destroyed him, and they laid waste his pasture.

The word came from the Lord to Jeremiah, saying, 2“Hear the words of this covenant, and you shall speak to the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 3You shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord God of Israel: “Cursed is the man who will not hear the words of this covenant, which I commanded your fathers in the day I brought them out of the land of Egypt, from the iron furnace, saying, ‘Hear My voice, and do all I command you, so you shall be to Me as a people and I will be to you as God, 5that I may confirm the oath I swore to your fathers, to give to them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is today.’ ” ’” Then I answered and said, “O Lord, may it be so.”

Then the Lord said to me, “Read aloud these words in the cities of Judah and outside Jerusalem, saying, ‘Hear the words of this covenant and do them.’ ” 7But they did not. 8Again the Lord said to me, “A conspiracy was found among the men of Judah and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 9They turned back to the wrongdoings of their forefathers who were unwilling to hear My words. Behold, they go after foreign gods to serve them. Both the house of Israel and the house of Judah rejected My covenant which I made with their fathers.”

Therefore, thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will bring calamities on this people from which they cannot escape; and they shall cry out to Me, but I will not listen. 11Then the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem will go and cry out to the gods to whom they offer incense. But will they save them in the time of their calamities? 12O Judah, your gods were based on the number of your cities, and according to the number of streets in Jerusalem, you appointed altars to burn incense to Baal.

13“Do not pray for this people, and do not consider them worthy in petition; for I will not hear their prayer in the time they cry out to Me or in the time of their distress.† 14 Why has My beloved done a detestable thing in My house? Will prayers and holy offerings remove your vices from you? Will you escape by means of these? 15 The Lord called your name a pleasant olive tree, a good shade tree in appearance. At the sound of its pruning, a fire was kindled against it. Great is the affliction coming upon you. Its branches have become worthless. 16 For the Lord who planted you has proclaimed troubles against you in return for the evil the house of Israel and the house of Judah did against themselves when they offered incense to Baal and provoked My wrath.”

🔗 A Plot against Jeremiah🔗

17 O Lord, teach me, and I will know. Then I saw their purpose.† 18 For I did not know I was like an innocent lamb led to be sacrificed. They plotted an evil device against me, saying, “Come, let us put wood in his bread, and destroy him root and branch from the land of the living, so his name might not be remembered any longer.”† 19 But, O Lord, You who judge righteously, who tests minds and hearts, let me see Your vengeance on them, for I have revealed my righteous plea to You.

20 Therefore thus says the Lord against the men of Anathoth, against those who seek my life, and who say, “Do not prophesy in the name of the Lord, lest you die by our hands”—† 21 “Behold, I will visit them. The young men shall die by the sword, and their sons and daughters shall die by famine. 22 There shall be no remnant of them, for I will bring calamities on the inhabitants of Anathoth in the year of their visitation.”

🔗 Jeremiah Pleads His Case🔗

12 O Lord, You are righteous, that I may plead my case with You, to speak to You concerning judgments. Why does the way of the ungodly prosper, and all who deal treacherously flourish?† 2 You planted them, and they took root. They bear children and are fruitful. You are near in their mouth, but far from their mind. 3 But You, O Lord, know me. You have proven my heart before You. Set them apart for the day of slaughter. 4 How long will the land mourn and the grass of the field wither, because of the vices of those who dwell in it? The cattle and the birds are destroyed, because they said, “God will not see our ways.”

🔗 The Lord Answers Him🔗
5“Your feet run and grow weary. How then will you prepare yourself to run with horses? You are confident when the land is peaceful, but what will you do when the Jordan floods the land?⁷ ⁶But even your brothers and the house of your father dealt treacherously with you. They cried out and gathered together in pursuit of you. Do not trust them because they will speak fair words to you.

7“I forsook My house and left My inheritance. I gave My beloved inheritance into the hands of its enemies.⁸ For My inheritance became to Me like a lion in the forest. It raised its voice against Me; therefore, I hated it. ⁹Is not My inheritance the cave of a hyena to Me, or a cave it walks around? Gather together all the wild beasts of the field and let them come to devour her. ¹⁰Many shepherds destroyed My vineyard and defiled My portion. They turned My pleasant portion into an impassable desert. ¹¹It was made a complete ruin. The whole land was utterly destroyed for My sake, because there was no man who took it to heart. ¹²The tormentors come to every passage in the desert, because the sword of the Lord will devour from one end of the land to the other. No flesh has any peace. ¹³Sow fires and reap thorns. Their portions will not profit them. Be ashamed of your boasting because of your disgrace before the Lord.”

¹⁴For thus says the Lord: “Concerning all the evil neighbors who touch My inheritance, which I divided to My people Israel—behold, I shall draw them away from their land and will cast out Judah from their midst. ¹⁵Then it shall come to pass, after I cast them out, that I will return them and have mercy on them. I will settle them, each in his inheritance and each in his land. ¹⁶It shall be that if they carefully learn the way of My people, to swear by My name, saying, ‘The Lord lives,’ as they taught My people to swear by Baal, so they shall be built as a nation in the midst of My people. ¹⁷But if they do not return, I will remove that nation by destruction and ruin.”

🔗The Sash: A Symbol of Israel🔗

13Thus says the Lord: “Go and get yourself a linen sash and put it around your waist, but let it not pass through the water.” ²So I got the sash according to the word of the Lord, and put it around my waist.

³Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, ⁴“Take the sash from around your waist. Arise and go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole in the rock.” ⁵So I went and hid it by the Euphrates as the Lord commanded me. 6Again it came to pass that after many days the Lord also said to me, “Arise and go to the Euphrates, and take from there the sash I commanded you to hide there.” 7Then I went to the Euphrates River and dug, and took the sash from the place where I buried it. Behold, it was rotted and good for nothing.†

8Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 9“Thus says the Lord: ‘In this manner I will destroy the insolence of Judah and that of Jerusalem. 10The great insolence of those who are unwilling to obey My words, and who walk after foreign gods to serve and worship them, they shall be like this sash—good for nothing. 11For as a sash clings to the waist of a man, so I caused the house of Israel and the whole house of Judah to cling to Me, so as to become a notable people to Me, as a boast and a glory; but they would not listen to Me.’

Wine Bottles: A Warning to Israel

12“Thus you shall say to this people: ‘Every bottle shall be filled with wine.’ But if they say to you, ‘Do we not know for certain every bottle will be filled with wine?’ 13Then you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land with intoxicating drink: their kings, the sons of David who sit on his throne, their priests, their prophets, and Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 14I will scatter them, a man and his brother, together with their fathers and their sons. I will not desire them,” says the Lord, “nor spare them, nor have compassion on them in their destruction.” ’ ”

How Long, O Jerusalem?

15Listen and give ear. Do not exalt yourselves, for the Lord has spoken. 16Give glory to the Lord your God before it grows dark, and causes your feet to stumble on the dark mountains. You shall wait in anticipation of the light, but the shadow of death will be there; and they shall bring you into darkness. 17Now if you will not hear, your soul will weep secretly because of your insolent countenance, and your eyes will bring forth tears, for the Lord's flock is broken apart.† 18Say to the king and to the nobles, “Humble yourself and sit down, for your crown of glory is removed from your head.” 19The cities to the south were shut, and there was no one to open them. Judah is sent away completely as a settlement.†

20Lift up your eyes, O Jerusalem, and see those who come from the north. Where is the flock given to you, the sheep of your glory? 21What will you say when they visit you? For you taught them lessons in the beginning against yourself. Shall not pains of agony seize you, like a woman who gives birth? 22 But if you say in your heart, “Why have these things happened to me?” Because of the multitude of your wrongdoings, your backside was uncovered so your heels might be exposed. 23 If an Ethiopian could change his skin or a leopard its spots, so you who learned evil might also be able to do good.

24 “Therefore I scattered them like sticks, carried by the wind into the desert. 25 This is your lot and your portion for your disobedience against Me,” says the Lord, “because you forgot Me and trusted in falsehoods. 26 I will uncover your backside to your face, and your dishonor will be seen.† 27 For I have seen your adultery and neighing, and the alienation of your fornication, the abomination of your fornication on the hills and in the fields. Woe to you, O Jerusalem! For you were not cleansed so as to follow Me. How long will it still be?”

sword, famine, and death

The word of the Lord came to Jeremiah concerning the drought, saying,† 2 “Judah mourns, and her gates are empty. They are darkened in the land, and the cry of Jerusalem goes up. 3 Her nobles sent their young ones for water, but they found no water in the wells. So they returned with their water containers empty. 4 The works of the land failed, for there was no rain. The farmers were ashamed and covered their heads. 5 The deer also gave birth in the field, but left because there was no grass. 6 The wild donkeys stood in the wooded glens and sniffed the wind. Their eyes failed, for there was no grass because of the wrongdoing of the people.”

7 Our sins rise up against us, O Lord. Do to us for Your sake, because our sins are many before You; for we sinned against You. 8 O Lord, the steadfast endurance of Israel, You deliver us in the time of evils. Why have You become as a sojourner in the land, and like a native of the land who turns elsewhere to lodge? 9 Will You be like a man who sleeps, or as a man who is unable to save? But You are in our midst, O Lord, and we are called by Your name. Do not forget us.

10 Thus says the Lord to this people: “They love to wander and have not refrained from it; therefore, God is not pleased with them. Now He will remember their wrongdoings.”

11 Again the Lord said to me, “Do not pray about this people for their good. 12 When they fast, I will not hear their petition, and when they present whole burnt offerings and sacrifices, I will not take pleasure in them. For I will consume them by the sword, by the famine, and by death.”

13Then I said, “O Lord, behold their prophets prophesying, and say, ‘You shall not see the sword, nor shall there be famine among you; for I will give you truth and peace in the land and in this place.’ ”

14Then the Lord said to me, “The prophets prophesy lies in My name. I have not sent them, nor commanded them; nor have I spoken to them. Because of false visions, divinations, prophesying by the way of birds, and by the purposes of their hearts, they prophesy to you. Therefore thus says the Lord concerning the prophets who prophesy lies in My name: ‘I did not send them.’ They say, ‘Sword and famine shall not be upon this land.’ They shall die in the deathbed of sickness, for the prophets shall die in famine. The people to whom they prophesy shall be cast into the thoroughfares of Jerusalem because of the edge of the sword and famine. There shall be no one to bury them, for even their wives, sons, and daughters shall so die. I will pour out their evils upon them.

17“So you shall speak this word to them: ‘Let your eyes flow with tears night and day. Let them not cease; for in ruin, the daughter of My people was crushed to pieces, and her wound was very painful. If I go out into the plain, then behold, there are the soldiers wounded by the sword. If I enter into the city, then behold, there is the pain of famine, for priest and prophet have traveled to a land they do not know.’ ”

19Have You utterly rejected Judah? Has Your soul departed from Zion? Why did You strike us, and there is no healing for us? We waited for peace, but there was no good thing; for a time of healing, but behold, there was trouble. We know, O Lord, our sins and the wrongdoings of our fathers, for we sinned against You. Stop for Your name's sake. Do not destroy the throne of Your glory. Remember, and do not break Your covenant with us. Is there anyone among the idols of the Gentiles able to cause rain? Or will the sky yield its fullness at their request? Are You not He? Therefore, since You made all these things, we will wait for You.

The Lord Will Not Give In

15Then the Lord said to me, “Even if Moses and Samuel stood before Me, My soul would not be favorable toward them. Send away this people, and let them depart.”
that if they say to you, ‘Where should we depart?’ you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord:
“As many as are for death, to death, and as many as are for the sword, to the sword, and as many as are for famine, to famine, and as many as are for captivity, to captivity.’ ”

3I will punish them in four ways,” says the Lord, “the sword for slaughter, the dogs for tearing in pieces, the wild beasts of the earth and the birds of the sky for eating and destruction.†

4I will deliver them into distress to all the kingdoms of the earth, because of Manasseh son of Hezekiah, the king of Judah, for all he did in Jerusalem.

5“Who will spare you, O Jerusalem? Who will fear for you? Who will turn back to ask peace for you? 6You turned away from Me,” says the Lord. “You will go backward, and I will stretch out My hand and destroy you. I will no longer leave them unpunished. 7I will scatter them in a dispersion. In the gates of My people, they are deprived of children. They destroyed
My people because of their vices. 8Their widows multiply more than the sand of the sea. I brought upon the mother of a young son misery at midday. I suddenly cast upon her trembling and anxiety. 9She who gave birth to seven has been left empty, and her soul has succumbed to misfortune. The sun set for her when it was still noonday. She was put to shame and insulted. I will give their remnant to the sword in the presence of their enemies.”†

Jeremiah Senses Failure

10Woe is me, my mother! You gave birth to me as a man who is condemned and at variance with the whole earth. I have neither helped anyone, nor has anyone helped me. My strength has failed among those who curse me. 11O Master, may this be the time of their prosperity. Surely I stood before You in the time of their calamities and in the time of their affliction for their good against the enemy. 12The Lord says, “Will iron be known? But your strength is a bronze covering. 13I will give your treasures as plunder in all your boundaries, in exchange for all your sins. 14For I will enslave you to your surrounding enemies in a land you have not known. For a fire has been kindled from My anger, and it shall burn upon you.”

15O Lord, remember me and visit me. Let me go unpunished because of those who persecute me. Do not bear long with them. Know how I have met with disgrace for Your sake at the hands of those who reject Your words. 16Make an end to them, and Your word shall be the gladness and joy of my heart; for I am called by Your name, O Lord, the Almighty. 17I did not sit in their council while they mocked, but I feared because of Your power. I sat alone, for
I was filled with bitterness. 18 Why do those who grieve me prevail against me? My wound is severe, but from where will I be healed? It has indeed become to me as deceitful water that has no faithfulness.†

The Lord Restores Jeremiah

19 Therefore thus says the Lord: “If you return, I will restore you, and you shall stand before My face. If you bring forth what is honorable from what is unworthy, you shall be as My mouth. They shall return to you, but you shall not return to them.† 20 I will cause you to be like a strong brazen wall to this people. They will fight against you, but not prevail, because I am with you to save you, 21 to deliver you from the hand of evil men, and to set you free from the hand of pestilent men.”

Jeremiah’s Conduct and Message

16 The Lord God of Israel says, “Do not take a wife,† 2 nor shall you beget either a son or a daughter in this place.” 3 For thus says the Lord concerning the sons and daughters begotten in this place, and their mothers who gave birth to them, and their fathers who beget them in this land: 4 “They shall die by a death caused by disease, and shall not be lamented or buried; for they shall be as an example on the face of the land. They shall be for the wild beasts of the earth and the birds of heaven; and they shall fall by the sword and die of hunger.”

5 Thus says the Lord: “Do not enter their mourning feast, nor go to lament and grieve with them; for I have removed My peace from this people.† 6 They must not mourn, nor cut themselves; and they shall not shave themselves. 7 Bread shall not be broken in mourning for them as a consolation for the dead, nor shall they give one a cup to drink as a consolation for his father and mother.† 8 You shall not enter their banquet-house to sit with them or to eat and drink.” 9 For thus says the Lord God of Israel: “Behold, before your eyes and in your days, I will bring to an end from this place the voice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride.

10 “It shall come to pass that when you shall announce all these words to this people and they say to you, ‘Why has the Lord pronounced all these evils against us? What is our wrongdoing, and what sin did we commit before the Lord our God?’ 11 Then you shall say to them, ‘Because your fathers forsook Me,’ says the Lord, ‘for they went after foreign gods; and they served and worshiped them. They forsook Me, and did not keep My law. 12But you acted in ways more evil than your fathers; for behold, you, each one of you, walk after the evil pleasures of your heart and do not obey Me. 13Therefore I will cast you out of this land and into a land neither you nor your fathers know; and there you shall serve other gods, who will show you no mercy.’

God's Promise to Jew and Gentile

14“Therefore behold, days are coming,” says the Lord, “when no more will they say, ‘The Lord lives who brought up the children of Israel from the land of Egypt,’ 15but, ‘The Lord lives who brought up the house of Israel from the land of the north, and from all the countries where they were driven out.’ For I will restore to them their land which I gave to their fathers.†

16“Behold, I will send many fishermen, and they will fish them. After this, I will send many hunters, and they will hunt them upon every mountain, upon every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks.† 17For My eyes are on all their ways, and their wrongdoings are not concealed from My eyes. 18For I will repay double for their evil and their wrongdoings, whereby they desecrated My land with the carcasses of their abominations and filled My inheritance with their lawlessness.”

19O Lord, my strength, my help, and my refuge in the day of evils, to You the Gentiles shall come from the ends of the earth and say, “How false were the idols our fathers acquired for themselves, and there is nothing beneficial in them.”†

20“If a man will create gods for himself,” says the Lord, “even so, they are not gods. 21Because of this, behold, I will show them My hand at this time and make known to them My power; and they will come to know that My name is the Lord.

The Agony of Apostasy

17“Cursed is the man who puts his hope in man, and who will strengthen the flesh of his arm in him, and withdraws in his heart from the Lord.” 18For he shall be like a shrub in the desert. He shall not see when good things come, but shall dwell in salt lands along the sea and in the desert, in a salt land where no one dwells. 3But blessed is the man who puts his trust in the Lord, for the Lord shall be his hope. 4 He shall be like a flourishing tree alongside the waters which spreads its roots toward the moisture. He will not fear when the burning heat comes, for He shall be like the root in a grove in the year of drought. He shall not fear, for he shall be like a tree that does not cease yielding its fruit.

5 “The heart is deep beyond all things, and it is the man. Even so, who can know him? I, the Lord, examine hearts and test minds, to give each man according to his ways and the fruits of his practices. 7 A partridge coos and collects eggs she did not lay. So is a man who obtains his wealth, but not with judgment. In the midst of his days his riches will forsake him, and at the time of his end he will be foolish.”

8 An exalted throne of glory is our sanctuary. 9 O Lord, the patient endurance of Israel, let all who forsake You be ashamed. “Let those who fall away from Me in apostasy be written in the earth, that they forsook the Lord, the fountain of life.”

Jeremiah's Prayer for Protection

10 Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed. Save me, and I shall be saved, for You are my boast. 11 Behold, they say to me, “Where is the word of the Lord? Let it come.” 12 But I have not become weary in following after You, nor have I desired the day of man. You know the words that proceed from my lips are before Your face. 13 Do not be as a stranger to me, and spare me in the evil day. 14 Let those who persecute me be put to shame, but may I not be ashamed. May they, but not I, be terrified. Bring upon them an evil day and crush them with a double destruction.

Sanctify the Sabbath

15 Thus says the Lord: “Go and stand in the gates of the sons of your people through which the kings of Judah come in and go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem. 16 You shall say to them, ‘Hear the word of the Lord, you kings of Judah and all Judea, and all of Jerusalem, who enter by these gates. 17 Thus says the Lord: “Guard your souls, and take up no burdens on the Sabbath days, neither go out through the gates of Jerusalem. 18 On the Sabbath days, carry no burdens with you from your houses, nor do any work. Instead, sanctify the Sabbath days, as I commanded your fathers. But they did not hear, and did not incline their ears. 19 They stiffened their neck more than their fathers, so as not to hear Me or receive instruction.
“Thus it shall come to pass that if you hear Me,” says the Lord, “so as not to carry burdens through the gates of this city on the Sabbath days, but to sanctify the Sabbath days and do no work therein, then there shall enter through the gates of this city kings and rulers, sitting on the throne of David and riding in their chariots and on their horses, they and their rulers, men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. This city itself shall be inhabited forever. They shall come from the cities of Judah, and from around Jerusalem and the land of Benjamin, and from the lowlands and the mountains, and from the south, bringing whole burnt offerings and a sacrifice, and incense, manna, and frankincense. They will bring praise to the house of the Lord.

“But it shall come to pass that if you will not hear Me so as to sanctify the Sabbath days, and bear no burdens, nor enter the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath days, then I will kindle a fire in her gates. It will consume the streets of Jerusalem and will not be quenched.”

Potter and Clay

The word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah, saying, Arise and go down to the potter's house. There you shall hear My words. Then I went down to the potter's house, and behold, he was forming something of wet clay upon the stones. The vessel he formed in his hands failed. So he again made himself another vessel as it pleased him to do.

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, "Surely as this potter, am I not able to form you, O house of Israel? Behold, you are as the clay of the potter in My hands. I shall declare a decree concerning a nation or a kingdom, to remove and destroy them. But if this nation turns away from all their evils, then I will repent concerning the calamities I considered to do to them. If I shall declare a decree concerning a nation or a kingdom to rebuild and to plant it, but they do evils in My sight so as not to hear My voice, then I will repent concerning the good I spoke to do for them.

Therefore now, speak to the men of Judah and those inhabiting Jerusalem for Me, saying, ‘Behold, I form calamities and devise a plan against you. Therefore, let each turn away from his way of evil and do good in your practices.’

God's Warning Is Spurned

But they said, “We will act like men and walk after our inclinations, and each one of us
Therefore thus says the Lord: “Ask now of the Gentiles, ‘Who has heard of such exceedingly horrible things as what the virgin of Israel did?’ 14 Will nourishing streams of water not flow from rocks or snow from Lebanon? Will water turn aside when violently pushed by the wind? 15 For My people have forgotten Me. They offer incense in vain and are sick in their ways, leaving the ancient ways to embark on impassable paths, so as to appoint their land for destruction and a perpetual hissing. All who pass through it shall be amazed and shake their head. 17 I will scatter them like a burning wind before the face of their enemies. I will show them the day of their destruction.”

Jeremiah Is Ridiculed

Then they said, “Come and let us devise a plan against Jeremiah, for the law shall not perish from the priest, nor counsel from the intelligent, nor a word from the prophet. Come and let us strike him down with the tongue, and we will hear all his words.”

O Lord, hear me, and give ear to the voice of my plea for what is right. 20 Surely evil things are repaid for good things; for they spoke words against my soul and concealed punishment meant for me. But remember, I stood before You to speak good things for them, so as to turn away Your wrath from them. 21 Therefore give their sons to the famine and gather them to the power of the sword. Let their wives become childless and widowed, and let their men be put to death. In war, let their young men fall by the sword. 22 Let a cry be heard in their houses, for You shall bring robbers upon them suddenly, because they formed a plan to take me and hid snares against me. 23 O Lord, You know all their counsel against me so as to put me to death. Do not let their wrongdoings go unpunished, nor blot out their sins from before Your face. Let their weakness come before You, and in the time of Your anger deal with them.

Broken Jar, Broken City

Then the Lord said to me, “Go and obtain an earthen-baked wine-jar, and you shall lead some of the elders of the people and some of their elder priests out to the graveyard of the sons of their children, by the entry of the Gate of Charsith. There you shall read all the words I will speak to you. You shall say, ‘Hear the word of the Lord, O kings and men of Judah, you inhabitants of Jerusalem and all entering by these gates. Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: “Behold, I bring calamities upon this place, that whoever hears of it, both his ears will ring.

4“Because they forsook Me, and alienated this place, and offered incense in it to foreign gods, which neither they nor their fathers knew, and because the kings of Judah filled this place with the blood of the innocent 5and built high places for Baal so as to burn up their sons in the fire, which things I did not command or speak, nor consider in My heart. 6Therefore behold, days are coming,” says the Lord, “when this place shall no longer be called the Fall, or the Graveyard of the Son of Hinnom, but the Graveyard of Slaughter. 7For I shall destroy the counsel of Judah and the counsel of Jerusalem in this place. I shall cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies and by the hands of those who seek their lives. I will give their dead as food for the birds of heaven and for the wild animals of the earth. 8I will appoint this city for desolation and for hissing. Everyone passing by it will scowl and hiss because of all her misfortune. 9They shall eat the flesh of their sons and daughters, and each shall eat the flesh of those in the passage who are his neighbors in the blockade, and in the siege in which their enemies shall besiege them.’”

10“Then you shall break the wine-jar in the sight of the men who come out with you, 11and you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “In this way I will break this people and this city, as one breaks an earthen vessel which cannot be made whole again.

12Thus I will do to this place,” says the Lord, “and to those who dwell in it, so this city may be given as one that crumbles in pieces. 13Therefore the houses of Jerusalem and the houses of the kings of Judah shall be as a place that crumbles because of the uncleanness in all their houses, where they burnt incense upon their housetops to all the host of heaven and poured drink offerings to foreign gods.”’”

14Then Jeremiah came from the place of the Fall, where the Lord sent him to prophesy. He stood in the court of the Lord's house and said to all the people, 15“Thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I bring upon this city, and on all the cities and villages belonging to it, all the calamities I declared against it, because they hardened their neck so as not to obey My words.’”

God's Warning to Pashhur
Now Pashhur the son of Immer, the priest who was also appointed governor in the house of the Lord, heard Jeremiah prophesying these words. He struck him and cast him into the stockade by the gate of the house set apart near the house of the Lord. Later Pashhur brought Jeremiah out of the stockade, and Jeremiah said to him, “The Lord does not call your name Pashhur, but Emigrant.

“For thus says the Lord, ‘Behold, I will give you and all your friends as an emigrant in a foreign land. They shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and your eyes shall see it. I will give you and all Judah into the hands of the king of Babylon. They shall deport them as immigrants and cut them with their swords. For I shall give all the strength of this city, all its labors and its treasures of the kings of Judah, into the hands of its enemies. They will carry them to Babylon. You, and all who dwell in your house, shall go in captivity to Babylon. There you shall die and be buried—you and all your friends to whom you prophesied lies.’ ”

Jeremiah Is Despised

O Lord, you deceived me, and I was deceived. You seized me and prevailed. I am a laughingstock, for every day I am mocked continually. Since I laugh with my bitter word, I will call upon faithlessness and misery, for the word of the Lord has become a disgrace to me and a joke each of my days. Then I said, “I will not name the name of the Lord, nor speak anymore in His name.” But His word was like a burning fire in my bones. I am weakened on all sides and no longer able to bear it. For I heard the censure of many who gathered round, saying, “Let us and all the men who are his friends confront and conspire against him. Let us observe his intention and see if he can be deceived, for we will prevail against him and be avenged on him.”

But the Lord was with me as a mighty warrior. Therefore they persecuted me, but were unable to discern anything they could use against me. They were greatly ashamed, for they did not understand their dishonor, which will never be forgotten. O Lord, You who approve righteous acts, who understand the minds and hearts, may I see Your vengeance upon them, for I revealed my defense before You.

Sing to the Lord, sing praises to Him, for He delivers the soul of the poor from the hand of those who are evil.
Cursed be the day I was born, the day my mother bore me. Let it not be longed for.

Cursed be the man who brought the good news to my father, saying, “A boy has been born to you.”

Let that man be as these cities the Lord destroyed in anger, and did not regret it. Let them hear crying in early morning and lamentation at noon, because He did not kill me in the womb of my mother, and because my mother did not become my tomb, and her womb an unending conception.

Why is it I came forth from her womb, to look upon hardships and sufferings and to remain in shame all my days?

God Spurns Jerusalem

The word came from the Lord to Jeremiah, when King Zedekiah sent to him Pashhur the son of Melchiah and Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah, the priest.

They said to him, “Inquire of the Lord for us—for the king of Babylon besieges us—if the Lord will act according to all His wonderful works, and the king will depart from us.”

Jeremiah said to them, “Thus you shall say to Zedekiah, king of Judah, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I turn back your weapons of war to gather them in the midst of this city, weapons with which you wage war against the Chaldeans, who shut you in from outside the wall. For I will fight against you with an outstretched hand and a powerful arm, with anger and wrath and with great provocation. I will strike all the inhabitants of this city, men and cattle, with a great death. Indeed they shall die. After this,” says the Lord, “I will deliver Zedekiah king of Judah, his servants, and the people left in this city from death and from famine and sword, into the hands of their enemies who seek their lives. They shall cut them down with the edge of the sword. I shall not spare them nor have compassion upon them.’ ”

Now you shall say to this people, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I set before you the way of life and the way of death. He who remains in this city shall die by sword and famine, but he who goes out to the Chaldeans who shut you in, he shall live. His life shall be as booty to him, and he shall live. For I have set My face against this city for calamities and not for good things. It shall be given into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.’ ”

A Word to the House of David

“O house of the king of Judah, hear the word of the Lord: O house of David, thus says the Lord: “Bring about judgment early in the morning, and act uprightly, and deliver him who is plundered from the hand of the one who wrongs him, lest My wrath be kindled like fire that shall burn with no one to quench it. 13 Behold, I am against you who dwell in the valley of Sor, in the plain, who say, ‘Who will terrify us?’ Or, ‘Who shall enter our dwelling?’ 14 For I will kindle a fire in its woods and it shall devour all things round about it.” ’ ”

Thus says the Lord: “Go down to the house of the king of Judah, and there you shall speak this word, 2 and you shall say, ‘Hear the word of the Lord, O king of Judah, you who sit on the throne of David, you and your house and your people, and those who enter these gates! 3 Thus says the Lord: “Bring about judgment and righteousness, and rescue the plundered from the hand of the one who wrongs him. Do not oppress and act ungodly toward the resident alien, the orphan, or the widow. Do not shed innocent blood in this place. 4 For if you will indeed perform this word, there shall enter through the gates of this house kings who sit on the throne of David. They shall ride on horses and in chariots— they, their servants, and their people. 5 But if you do not perform these words I Myself have sworn,” says the Lord, “this house shall become a desolation.” ’ ”

6 For thus says the Lord concerning the house of the king of Judah: “You are Gilead to Me, the head of Lebanon. Yet I will surely make you as a wilderness, and your cities shall not be inhabited. 7 I will bring against you a man who destroys with his two-edged ax; and they shall cut down your choice cedars and cast them into the fire. 8 Then nations will pass through this city, and each will say to his neighbor, ‘Why has the Lord done so to this great city?’ 9 They will answer, ‘Because they forsook the covenant of the Lord their God, and worshiped foreign gods and served them.’ ”

10 Weep not for the dead, neither lament. Weep bitterly for him who goes away, for he shall return no more to see his native land.

A Word to the Sons of Josiah

11 For thus says the Lord concerning Shallum the son of Josiah, who reigned in the place of Josiah his father, who left this place: “He shall not return here anymore, 12 but he shall die in the place where I have exiled him. He shall see this land no more.

13 “Woe to him who builds his house without righteousness and his rooms upstairs without judgment, who employs his neighbor for nothing and will not give him his pay! 14 You built for yourself a well-proportioned house with breezy rooms upstairs, lined with windows, cedar panels, and painted with vermillion. 15 Shall you reign, for you provoked Me as did your father Ahaz? They shall not eat and drink. It is better for you to bring about good judgment and righteousness. 16 They did not understand and judge the cause of a lowly or poor man. Is this your not knowing Me?” says the Lord. 17 “Behold, neither your eyes nor your heart are good for anything except for covetousness and the shedding of innocent blood, and for committing wrongdoing and murder.”

18 Therefore thus says the Lord to Jehoiakim the king of Judah, the son of Josiah: “Woe to this man. They shall not mourn for him, saying, ‘Oh brother!’ Neither shall they weep for him, saying, ‘Alas, master!’ 19 But he shall be buried with the burial of a donkey, and they will drag him out to be discarded beyond the gates of Jerusalem.

20 “Go up to Lebanon and cry out, and lift up your voice in Bashan. Shout to the faraway places of the sea that all your lovers are crushed. 21 For I spoke to you concerning your transgression, but you said, ‘I will not hear.’ This has been your way from your youth. You do not hear My voice. 22 The wind shall tend all your shepherds, and your lovers shall go into captivity, for then you will be shamed and treated with dishonor because of all your lovers. 23 Those who dwell in Lebanon and who make their nest in the cedar trees, you shall groan when pangs come upon you, as those of a woman giving birth.

A Word to Jeconiah

24 “As I live,” says the Lord, “though Jeconiah king of Judah, the son of Jehoiakim, were the signet on My right hand, still I would drag off all of you. 25 I will give you into the hands of those who seek your life, into the hands of the Chaldeans, before whose face you are afraid. 26 So I will cast all of you, and your mother who bore you, into a country where you were not born. There you shall die. 27 But they shall not return to the land they long for in their souls. 28 Jeconiah is dishonored like a worthless vessel, for he is cast forth and driven out into a land he did not know.

29 “O land, land, hear the word of the Lord: 30 ‘Write this man as a banished man, for none at all from his seed shall be raised to sit on the throne of David, or still as a ruler in Judah.’ ”
“Woe to the shepherds who scatter and destroy the sheep of My pasture!”Therefore thus says the Lord against those who tend My people: “You have scattered My sheep and driven them out. You did not care for them. Behold, I shall punish you according to your evil practices. I will receive the remnant of My people from every land where I have driven them. I will establish them in their pasture, and they shall increase and be multiplied.

I will set up shepherds over them who will feed them. They shall fear no more, nor be terrified,” says the Lord.

Behold, days are coming,” says the Lord, “when I will raise up for David the Righteous Orient, and a King shall reign. He will understand and bring about judgment and righteousness on the earth.

In His days Judah will be saved, and Israel shall dwell in confidence. This is His name by which the Lord will call him: ‘The Lord Our Righteousness.’

The Lord says, “Therefore behold, days are coming when they shall no longer say, ‘As the Lord lives who brought up the house of Israel from the land of Egypt,’ but they will say, ‘The Lord lives who gathered all the descendants of Israel from the north country, from all the countries where He drove them, and restored them into their land.’”

Among the prophets, my heart is broken within me, and all my bones are shaken. I am as a broken-down man overcome with wine, because of the Lord’s presence and the excellence of His glory.

Because of these things, the land mourns and the pastures of the desert are dried up. Their way of life has become evil, and so has their strength.

For both prophet and priest are defiled, and I see their evils within My house,” says the Lord. Therefore let their way be to them as a fall into darkness; and they shall be tripped up and fall therein, because in the year of their visitation I will bring calamities upon them.

In the prophets of Samaria I have seen lawless actions. They prophesy through Baal and lead astray My people Israel. Also in the prophets of Jerusalem I have seen horrible things. They commit adultery and walk in lies. They strengthen the hands of evil men, so they might not turn back each from his evil path. They are to me like Sodom, and her inhabitants like Gomorrah.” Therefore thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will feed them pain and give them bitter water to drink, because from the prophets of Jerusalem defilement goes out into all the Thus says the Lord Almighty: “Do not listen to the words of the prophets, for they invent a futile vision for themselves. They speak from their own heart, and not from the mouth of the Lord.† They say to those who reject the word of the Lord, ‘You shall have peace.’ To those who walk according to their own wishes, and to everyone who walks in the error of his heart, they say, ‘No evil shall come upon you.’† For who stands in the camp of the Lord and sees His word? Who gives ear to His word and hears it? Behold, there is an earthquake from the Lord, and wrath goes forth as an earthquake. It shall come violently on the ungodly. The anger of the Lord shall not turn away until He establishes it, because of the undertaking of His heart. They shall understand this in the last days. I did not send these prophets, but they went forth. I did not speak to them, but they prophesied. If they had stood in My counsel and heard My words, then they would have turned my people away from their evil practices.

I am a God who is near,” says the Lord, “and not a God afar off. Can a man hide in secret, and I not see him? Do I not fill heaven and earth?” says the Lord. “I heard what the prophets said, and what lies they prophesied in My name, saying falsely, ‘I have dreamed a dream.’ How long shall this be in the heart of the prophets who prophesy lies, when they prophesy the wishes of their heart? They reason by their dreams so men will forget My law. Each prophet tells his neighbor to forget Me, as their fathers forgot My name in their worship of Baal. The prophet in whom there is a dream, let him tell his dream; and the prophet in whom there is My word, let him tell it truthfully. What is chaff in comparison to wheat? So are My words,” says the Lord. “Are they not like an ax striking a rock?

Behold therefore, I am against the prophets,” says the Lord God, “who steal My words, each prophet from his neighbor. Behold, I am against the prophets who are drowsy and put forth prophecies as mere words. Behold, I am against the prophets who prophesy false dreams, and they relate them. They lead My people astray with their lies and in their deceits. Yet I did not send them or command them. Therefore, they shall not profit this people at all.”

The Lord says, “So if these people, or a prophet, or a priest, ask you, saying, ‘What is the burden of the Lord?’ you shall then say to them, ‘You are the burden, and I will strike you
As for the prophet and the priest and the people who say, ‘The burden of the Lord,’ then I will take vengeance on that man and his house.

Thus each shall say to his neighbor, and each to his brother, ‘What has the Lord answered? What has the Lord spoken?’

Do not mention the burden of the Lord anymore, for the burden on a man shall be his word.

But why,’ you say, ‘has the Lord our God spoken?’

Therefore thus says the Lord God: ‘Because you spoke this word: “The burden of the Lord”; therefore I instructed you, saying, “You shall not say, ‘The burden of the Lord.’ ”

Therefore behold, I take and strike you, and the city I gave to you and to your fathers. I will bring everlasting disgrace upon you, and a perpetual dishonor which shall not be forgotten.’

Therefore behold, days are coming,” says the Lord, “when they will no longer say, ‘The Lord lives who brought the house of Israel out of the land of Egypt,’ but, ‘The Lord lives who brought all the seed of Israel from the north, and from all the countries where He banished them, and restored them to this land.’”

The Lord showed me two baskets of figs set before the temple of the Lord, after Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon carried away captive Jeconiah king of Judah, the son of Jehoiakim, and the rulers, the craftsmen, the prisoners, and the wealthy men from Jerusalem, and brought them to Babylon.

One basket was full of very good figs, like the first figs that ripened. The other basket was full of very bad figs which no one could eat, because they were rotten.

Then the Lord said to me, “What do you see, Jeremiah?” I replied, “Good figs, very good figs, and also bad figs, figs too rotten to eat.”

The word of the Lord came to me, saying, “Thus says the Lord God of Israel: ‘As these good figs, so will I acknowledge that for good things I settled the tribe of Judah in a far land, whom I sent from this place into the land of Chaldea. For I will set My eyes on them for good things, and restore them to this land for good things. I will build them up, and not tear them down. I will plant them, and not pluck them up. Then I will give them a heart to know Me, that I am the Lord, and they shall be to Me as a people, and I will be to them as God. They shall return to Me with their whole heart.”

As for the bad figs, too rotten to eat’—surely thus says the Lord—‘I shall deliver them to Zedekiah the king of Judah, his nobles, and the remnant of Jerusalem, those left in this land, and those dwelling in Egypt. 9 I will cause them to be dispersed into all the kingdoms of the earth, and they will be for a disgrace, for a parable, for a hatred, and for a curse in every place where I drive them. 10 I will send famine, death, and the sword to them, until they come to an end in the land I gave to them.’ ”

Seventy Years of Disgrace

In the fourth year of Jehoiakim king of Judah, the son of Josiah, the word came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, which he spoke to all the people of Judah and all inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying, 3 In the thirteenth year of Josiah king of Judah, the son of Amos, even to this day, in the twenty-third year, I spoke to you early in the morning, saying, 4 I sent My servants the prophets to you, sending them early in the morning (but you did not listen, nor did you incline your ear to hear), saying, 5 “Let each of you turn away from his evil way and evil practices, and dwell in the land I gave to you and your fathers from ages past and forever. 6 Do not go after foreign gods to serve and worship them, so you may not provoke Me with the works of your hands, to harm you.” 7 Yet you have not listened to Me.’ ”

8 Therefore thus says the Lord: “Because you have not believed My words, behold, I shall even send a family from the north and lead them against this land, and against those living in it, and against all the nations round about her. I will make it desolate and give it up to destruction. I will render it a hissing and a perpetual disgrace. 10 I will destroy from them the voice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, and the fragrance of ointment and the light of the lamp. 11 All the land shall be for desolation, and for seventy years they shall serve among the Gentiles. 12 When the seventy years are fulfilled, I will take vengeance on that nation, and I will appoint them for perpetual destruction. 13 I will bring upon that land all My words I pronounced against it, and all things written in this book.”

14 What Jeremiah prophesied against the nations of Elam:

15 Thus says the Lord: “Let the bow of Elam, the beginning of their power, be broken. 16 For I shall bring against Elam the four winds from the four extremities of heaven, and I will scatter them by all these winds. There will not be a nation that will not come there to drive out Elam. 17 I will terrify them before the enemies who seek their life. I will bring calamities upon them according to the wrath of My anger, and send My sword after them until I have utterly destroyed them. 18 Then I will set My throne in Elam, and from there send forth the king and his nobles.† 19 It shall come to pass in the last days that I will bring back the captivity of Elam,” says the Lord. 20 This word concerning Elam came in the beginning of King Zedekiah’s reign.
Concerning Egypt, against the army of Pharaoh Necho, king of Egypt, who was by the River Euphrates in Carchemish and whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon defeated in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, king of Judah.

Take up weapons and shields, and draw near for war. Saddle the horses and mount up, you horsemen. Stand ready with your helmets, advance the spears, and put on your breastplates. Why are they terrified and turn back? Because their mighty ones, surrounded on all sides, will be struck as they flee in panic, and not live,” says the Lord.

Let not the swift flee. Let not the mighty man escape to the north. The forces alongside the Euphrates grow weak and fall. Who is this that shall come up like a river, and like rivers flood their waters? The waters of Egypt will come up like a river, for he said, ‘I will go up and cover the earth, and will destroy its inhabitants.’ Mount the horses and prepare the chariots. Come forth, you warriors of Ethiopia, and you of Libya armed with weapons, and you Lydians, arise and bend the bow. That shall be the day of the Lord our God, the day of vengeance to avenge His enemies. The sword of the Lord shall devour and be fully satisfied, drunken with their blood; for the Lord of Hosts has a sacrifice from the land of the north at the Euphrates. Go up, Gilead, and take balm for the virgin daughter of Egypt. In vain you multiply your medicines, but they are of no benefit to you. The nations heard your voice, and the land is filled with your cry; for warrior to warrior grows weak, and both fall together.”

What the Lord spoke by the hand of Jeremiah concerning the coming of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon to strike the land of Egypt.

Declare in Migdol and proclaim in Memphis, and say, ‘Stand up and prepare yourselves, for the sword devours your bow.’ Why did Apis flee from you? Your chosen calf did not remain, because the Lord utterly weakened him. Your multitude grew weak and fell. Each said to his neighbor, ‘Let us arise and return to our people and to the land of our nativity, from the presence of the Greek sword.’ They cried there, ‘Pharaoh is but a noise. He has passed by the appointed time.’ As I live,” says the Lord God, “Tabor is among the mountains and Carmel is by the sea, he shall come. O daughter of Egypt who dwell at home, prepare for yourself goods for captivity, for Memphis shall be for destruction, and be called, ‘Woe!’ because no one will dwell in it.

Egypt is a heifer made beautiful; a rage from the north comes against her. Her mercenarysin her midst are as fatted calves, well fed by her, because with one accord they also turned and fled. They did not stand, for the day of destruction and the time of their retribution came upon them.

Their voice is like that of a hissing serpent, for they will proceed upon the sand. They shall come against her with axes, as if cutting wood.

They shall cut down her oak groves,” says the Lord God, “for their number cannot at all be conjectured, since they abound more than locust trees.

The daughter of Egypt is put to shame. She is delivered into the hands of people from the north.

Behold, I will avenge Ammon her son against Pharaoh and those who trust in him.

But do not fear, My servant Jacob, neither be terrified, O Israel; for behold, I will save you from afar and your seed from the land of their captivity. Jacob shall return, and be at ease, and sleep; for there will be no one to trouble him.

Do not fear, O Jacob, My servant,” says the Lord, “for I am with you. I will bring an end to every nation where I drove you, but I will not cause you to cease. However, I will chasten you in the way of judgment, and not leave you wholly unpunished.”

The word of the Lord He spoke against Babylon.

Declare among the Gentiles and cause it to be heard. Do not conceal what is spoken. Say, ‘Babylon is conquered; Bel the fearless one has been put to shame; Merodach the luxurious one is handed over.’

For a nation comes against her from the north. He shall destine her land for destruction, and nothing from man to animal shall dwell in it.

In those days and at that time, the children of Israel shall come, they and the children of Judah together. They shall proceed, walking and weeping and seeking the Lord their God.

They shall ask the way until they come to Zion, for they shall set their face toward this place. They shall come and flee for refuge to the Lord their God, for the everlasting covenant shall not be forgotten.

My people have been lost sheep. Their shepherds drove them out to wander on the mountains. They went from mountain to hill and forgot their marriage bed.

All who found them devoured them. Their adversaries said, ‘Let us not leave them alone, because they sinned against the Lord, who gathered together their fathers in a pasture of righteousness.’

Be alienated from the midst of Babylon and from the land of the Chaldeans. Be like serpents in the presence of sheep.

For behold, I raise up assemblies of nations against Babylon from the land of the north. They will array themselves against her, and from there she shall be conquered, as the javelin of an expert warrior shall not be returned empty.

10Chaldea shall be for plundering, and all who plunder her shall be satisfied, 11 because you celebrated and exulted while plundering My inheritance, and because you skipped like calves in pasture and butted horns like bulls.

12“Your mother is very ashamed, she who bore you for good things. She is the last of the nations, and a desert. 13 Because of the Lord's wrath, she will not be inhabited, but shall be for destruction. All who travel through Babylon shall be sullen, and they shall hiss at all her calamity. 14 All you who bend the bow, set yourselves in array against Babylon round about, and shoot at her. Do not spare your arrows. 15 Applaud excessively, for her hands are paralyzed. Her means of defense has fallen, and her wall is demolished; for it is vengeance from God. Take vengeance on her, for as she did, so do to her. 16 Utterly destroy the seed of Babylon, and hold fast the sickle in the time of harvest. Because of the Greek sword, each shall return to his people, and each shall flee to his land.

17 “Israel is a wandering sheep, for the lions drove him out. First, the king of Assyria devoured him, then the king of Babylon devoured his bones.” 18 Therefore thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will take vengeance on the king of Babylon and upon his land, as I took vengeance upon the king of Assyria. 19 But I shall restore Israel to his pasture, and he will graze on Carmel, on Mount Ephraim and in Gilead. His soul shall be satisfied. 20 In those days and at that time, they will seek for the wrongdoing of Israel, but it shall not exist; and they will look for the sins of Judah, but these shall not be found; for I shall be merciful to those left in the land,” says the Lord.

21 “Embark against this land bitterly, and against those who dwell therein. Avenge with the sword and destroy it,” says the Lord, “and do according to all I command you. 22 A sound of war and great destruction is in the land of the Chaldeans. 23 How was the hammer of all the earth broken and crushed? How did Babylon become a desolation among the nations? 24 They will attack you, and you will be conquered, O Babylon. You will not even know you are found and taken, because you opposed the Lord. 25 The Lord opened His treasure and brought out the vessels of His wrath, because the work of the Lord God is in the land of the Chaldeans.† 26 For her time has come. Open her storehouses, search her like a cave, and utterly destroy her. Let nothing of her remain. 27 Dry up all her fruits and let them go down to the slaughter. Woe to them! For their day has come, and the time of their retribution.
The voice of those who flee and escape from the land of Babylon declares in Zion the vengeance of the Lord our God. Summon many against Babylon, even all who bend the bow. Encamp against it round about; let no one be saved from her. Repay her according to her works, and whatever she did, so do to her, for she opposed the Lord, the Holy God of Israel. Her young men shall fall in the streets, and all her men of war shall be cast down,” says the Lord. “Behold, I am against you, the haughty one,” says the Lord, “because the day and the time of your retribution has come. Your insolence shall fail, and you will fall. There shall be no one to cause it to arise. I will kindle a fire in its thicket, and it shall devour everything around her.”

Thus says the Lord: “The sons of Israel have been oppressed along with the sons of Judah, for all who took them captive oppressed them. They were unwilling to let them go. He who redeemed them is strong; the Lord Almighty is His name. He shall enter into judgment against His adversaries so as to take away their land and to provoke those who dwell in Babylon.† He will bring a sword against the Chaldeans and those inhabiting Babylon, and against her nobles and wise men, and against her warriors; and they shall be weakened. He will bring a sword against their horses and chariots, and against the warriors and irregular troops in her midst. They shall be like women. He will also bring a sword against its treasures, and they will be scattered over the water she trusted. They will be put to shame in the islands in which they boasted, for it is a land of graven images.

Therefore apparitions shall dwell in the islands, and the daughters of sirens shall dwell therein. It shall not be inhabited anymore forever.† As God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities bordering them,” says the Lord, “no man shall dwell there, and no son of man will sojourn there. Behold, a people comes from the north, and a great nation and many kings shall be raised up from the ends of the earth, holding bow and dagger. He is reckless and will show no mercy at all. Their voice shall roar like the sea on the horses they ride, prepared for war like fire against you, O daughter of Babylon.

The king of Babylon heard their sound, and his hands grew feeble. Anguish took hold of him, like the pangs of a woman in childbirth. Behold, he shall go up like a lion from the Jordan River into the place of Aitham; for I will banish them quickly from it and set every young man against it. For who is like Me? Who opposes Me? Who is this shepherd who will stand against My presence?”
Therefore hear the counsel of the Lord which He has resolved against Babylon, and the thoughts which He has reckoned against those inhabiting Chaldea. Surely the lambs of their sheep are utterly destroyed; surely the pasture is cut off from them; for at the sound of the capturing of Babylon, the earth shall quake, and clamor will be heard among the nations.

Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I raise up against Babylon and the inhabitants of the Chaldeans a scorching heat, a wind to destroy utterly. I will send violent men into Babylon, and they shall insult and ravage her land. Woe to Babylon all round in the day of her calamity. Against her let the archer bend his bow, and let him who has armor put it on. Do not spare her young men; utterly destroy all her power. The wounded men shall fall in the land of the Chaldeans, and those pierced through shall fall outside her. For Israel and Judah were not bereaved of their God, the Lord Almighty, for the land was filled with their wrongdoings against the holy things of Israel.”

Flee from the midst of Babylon, and everyone save his life. Do not be made to perish in her wrongdoing. For it is the time of her retribution from the Lord. He shall render repayment to her. Babylon was a golden cup in the Lord's hand, causing all the earth to be drunk. The nations drank from her wine; therefore, they were shaken. Babylon fell suddenly and was broken in pieces. Sing a dirge for her; take resin for her corruption, if somehow she may be healed. We treated Babylon medically, but she would not heal. Let us forsake her, and let each move to his country. For her judgment draws near to heaven and is taken to the stars.

The Lord brought forth His judgment. Come and let us declare in Zion the works of the Lord our God. Prepare the arrows; fill the quivers. The Lord has raised up the spirit of the king of the Medes. For His wrath is against Babylon to destroy it utterly, because it is the vengeance of the Lord, the vengeance of His people. Lift up a banner on the walls of Babylon, prepare the quivers, rouse guards, and prepare the weapons. For the Lord has taken in hand and will do what He spoke against the inhabitants of Babylon, who dwell near many waters, and amidst the abundance of her treasures.

The Arm of the Lord.

Truly, your end is come into your bowels. For the Lord has sworn by His arm, saying, “Therefore I will fill you with men as with locusts, and they will go down and speak against 15He made the land by His might, prepared the inhabited world by His wisdom, and by His understanding He stretched out heaven. 16By His voice, He makes the sound of water in the sky and brings up the clouds from the end of the earth. He makes lightnings for rain and brings light out of His storehouses. 17Every man is made foolish without knowledge, and every goldsmith is dishonored by his carved images; because they cast false gods, but there is no spirit of life in them. 18It is a worthless work to be ridiculed, and in their time of visitation they shall perish.

19Jacob's portion is not such, because He who created all things is his inheritance. The Lord is His name. 20"You scatter the weapons of war by Me, and by you I will scatter nations and drive away kings from you. 21By you I will scatter the horse and its rider, and by you I will scatter the chariots and their mounted riders. 22By you I will scatter young man and virgin, and by you I will scatter man and woman. 23By you I will scatter the shepherd and his flock, and by you I will scatter the farmer and his farming. By you I will scatter rulers and commanders. 24I will make Babylon and all the inhabitants of Chaldea pay for all their vices performed against Zion, according to what you saw,” says the Lord.

25“Behold, I am against you, the corrupted mountain that corrupts everything in the land. I will stretch forth My hand against you and roll you down from the rocks. I will cause you to be a burnt mountain. 26They will not take a stone from you for a corner or for a foundation. For you shall be a place of desolation forever,” says the Lord.

27“Lift up a banner in the land; sound a trumpet among the nations; set apart the nations against her; direct against her from Me the kingdoms of Ararat and the people of Ashkenaz to stand against her. Set siege engines against her, and bring horses like a multitude of locusts. 28Set apart the nations against her, the king of the Medes, and all of the land, its governors, and all its generals.

29“The earth shook and suffered toil, for the purpose of the Lord is risen up against Babylon, to make the land of Babylon a desolation and uninhabitable. 30The warriors of Babylon ceased to wage war. They shall sit there in the siege. Their might has been broken, and they became like women. Her tents are burnt, and the bars of their gates are shattered into pieces. 31One will pursue to meet another pursuer, one messenger to meet another messenger, to bring word to the king of Babylon that his city is taken. 32At the end of the crossing point they were taken, their garrisons were burned with fire, and their warriors ran away."

33For thus says the Lord: “The houses of the king of Babylon shall be like a threshing floor in the season for threshing. In a short while her harvest will come. 34King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon devoured me. He divided and overtook me, a small vessel. He swallowed me up, like a dragon who filled his belly with my delicacies, and drove me out. 35She that dwells in Zion shall say, ‘My hardships and my miseries banished me to Babylon.’ Jerusalem shall say, ‘My blood shall be upon those inhabiting Chaldea.’ ”

36Therefore, thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will judge your adversary and exact vengeance for you. I shall lay waste her sea and dry up her springs. 37Babylon shall be as a desolation, and it shall not be inhabited. 38For they rose up together as lions and as cubs of lions. 39In their heat, I shall give them a wine-cup. I will make them drunk so they may be intoxicated, and sleep an unending sleep, and not wake up,” says the Lord.

40“I will bring them down like lambs for slaughter, like rams with young. 41How has the boast of the whole earth been caught and captured? How has Babylon become as a desolation among the nations? 42The sea came up against Babylon with the sound of her waves, and she was covered. 43Her cities became a waterless and impassable land. Not even one man shall dwell in it, nor shall a son of man lodge in it. 44I will take vengeance on Babylon, and bring out from her mouth what she swallowed. The nations will no longer be gathered to her. 45In Babylon, all the wounded men of the earth shall fall. 46You who escape, go from the land, and do not stay. You who are afar off, remember the Lord, and let Jerusalem enter your heart.”

47We are ashamed because we heard our disgrace. Dishonor covers our face, for strangers entered the house of the Lord among our holy things. 48“Therefore, behold the days are coming,” says the Lord, “when I will take vengeance upon her carved images, and wounded men shall fall in all her land. 49For even if Babylon ascended like heaven and she fortified the strength of her walls, yet from Me the plunderers shall come to destroy her,” says the Lord.

50“There is the sound of a cry in Babylon, and great destruction is in the land of the Chaldeans; 51for the Lord utterly cut off Babylon, and destroyed from her the great voice ringing out as many waters. He appointed her voice for ruin, for misery came against Babylon. 52Her warriors are conquered, and their bow is useless; for God repays them. The Lord renders repayment to her. 53He will make her princes, her wise men, and her commanders completely drunk,” says the King. “The Lord Almighty is His name.” 54Thus says the Lord: “The wall of Babylon was made broad, but it shall be utterly broken, and her high gates shall burn with fire. The peoples shall not labor in vain, nor will the nations fail in their rule.”

55This is the word the Lord commanded Jeremiah the prophet to say to Seraiah the son of Neriah, the son of Mahseiah, when he went with Zedekiah the king of Judah to Babylon in the fourth year of his reign. Now Seraiah was the quartermaster.† 56So Jeremiah wrote in one book all the calamities that would come upon Babylon. Indeed he wrote all these words against Babylon. 57Then Jeremiah said to Seraiah, “When you arrive in Babylon and see it, you shall read all these words. 58You shall say, ‘O Lord and Master, You spoke against this place to destroy it, and so none should dwell in it, neither man nor animal, because it shall be desolate forever.’ 59Then it shall come to pass, when you finish reading this book, you shall tie a stone to it and throw it into the middle of the Euphrates. 60After this, you shall say, ‘Thus Babylon shall sink and not rise, because of the calamities I bring upon her.’”†

Against the Philistines:†

2Thus says the Lord: “Behold, waters come up from the north and shall be a flooding torrent, which will flood the land, the entire city, and those dwelling in it. The men will cry out, and all those inhabiting the land will wail loudly, 3because of the sound of his attack, the hoofs of his horses, and the rumblings of his chariots, at the noise of his wheels. Because of the weakness of their hands, the fathers did not return to their sons, 4to destroy all the Philistines in the day to come. I shall utterly destroy Tyre and Sidon and all the rest of their allies, because the Lord will put to death the remaining people of the islands. 5Baldness is come upon Gaza, and Ashkelon is cast out, along with the rest of the Enakim. 6How long will you strike, O sword of the Lord? How long will it be until you rest? Return to your sheath, rest and be exalted. 7How shall it be quiet, for the Lord has given it a commission against Ashkelon and the regions of the seacoast, to be stirred up against the remaining countries?”

Against Edom:†
Thus says the Lord: “Wisdom is no longer in Teman. Counsel perished from the intelligent; their wisdom is gone. Their place is deceived. Those dwelling in Dedan dig deep for a place to dwell, for you caused troubles. So I brought troubles upon him in the time I visited him.”

For those who gather grapes shall come to you, and they will not leave you a remnant. Like thieves by night, they will lay their hands upon your possessions. For I pulled down Esau and uncovered their secret places. They shall be unable to hide themselves. They perished, each by the hand of his brother and his neighbor, and it is not possible for the orphan to remain alive; but I shall live, and the widows will trust in Me.”

For thus says the Lord: “Those not appointed to drink the cup drank it, and you shall not remain unpunished, nor without blame, for you will certainly drink it.” For the Lord says, “I swore by Myself that you shall become impassable and a disgrace, and you shall become a curse in her midst. All her cities shall be a perpetual desert.” I heard a report from the Lord, and He sent messengers to the nations, saying, “Assemble yourselves and come against her. Rise up for war.” I made you small among nations, contemptible among men. Your insolence has risen up against you. The rashness of your heart has broken up the holes of the rocks, and has seized the strength of the lofty hill. For like an eagle he has set his nest on high, but from there I will bring you down. Edom shall be inaccessible, and everyone who passes by will hiss at it.

“As Sodom and Gomorrah were overthrown, along with their sojourners,” says the Lord Almighty, “so no man shall sit there, nor shall any son of man dwell there. Behold, one will come up like a lion from the midst of the Jordan to the place of Aitham, for I will quickly drive them out from it. Do you set young men against her? For who is like Me? Who will oppose Me? Who is this shepherd who will stand against Me?”

Therefore hear the counsel of the Lord which He purposed against Edom, and His plan which He calculated against the inhabitants of Teman. Surely the least of the sheep are swept away; surely their dwelling place shall be laid waste for them. For at the sound of their fall the earth shook, and your outcry was heard in the sea. Behold, He shall look upon her as an eagle, and spread forth His wings over her stronghold. In that day, the heart of the strong men of Edom shall be as the heart of a woman with pains of childbirth.

Against the sons of Ammon:
Thus says the Lord: “Are there no sons in Israel? Or have they no one to succeed them? Why then did Malcom receive Gad, and why will their people dwell in their cities? 18 Therefore behold, the days are coming,” says the Lord, “when I will cause an uproar of war to be heard in Rabbah. They shall be impassable and in utter ruin. Her altars shall burn with fire. Then Israel shall take possession of his dominion. 19 Wail loudly, O Heshbon, for Gaith has perished. Cry out, you daughters of Rabbah, and gird yourselves with sackcloth. Be frenzied and lament over Malcom, for he shall go into captivity, together with his priests and rulers. 20 Why, O haughty daughter, do you rejoice exceedingly in the plains of Enakim? You who trusted in your own treasures, saying, ‘Who shall come against me?’ 21 Behold, I will bring fear upon you from all who live around you. Each of you shall be scattered before his face, and there will be no one to gather you.”

22 Against Kedar, queen of the court, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon struck:

Thus says the Lord: “Arise, go up to Kedar, and fill the sons of Kedem. 23 They will seize their tents and their sheep. They shall take their garments, all their vessels, and their camels for themselves. Summon destruction against them from every side. 24 Flee! Dig very deep for a dwelling place, you who sit in the court, for the king of Babylon counsels against you and prepares a plan against you.

25 “Rise up and go against a nation settled and dwelling at ease, who have neither gates, nor pins and bars, and who dwell alone. 26 Their camels shall be for booty, and the multitude of their cattle for destruction. I will scatter them as chaff with every wind, having their hair cut about their foreheads. I will bring their overthrow from every side. 27 The court shall be a resting place for sparrows and untrodden forever. No man shall settle there, nor shall a son of man dwell in it,” says the Lord.

28 Against Damascus:

“Hamath and Arpad are put to shame, for they heard the evil report. They are surprised. They are so angry they are unable to rest. 29 Damascus is utterly weakened. She is put to flight. Trembling has seized her. 30 How has she not abandoned My city in their love for the village? 31 Therefore the young men shall fall in your streets, and all your warriors shall fall. 32 For I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall engulf the streets of Ben-Hadad,” says the Lord."
Against Moab:

Thus says the Lord: “Woe to Nebo, for they are undone. Kirjathaim is taken. Amath is dishonored in its shame and defeated.

There is no longer any healing for Moab, nor insolence in Heshbon. He has planned evils against her. We cut her off from being a nation, and she will cease completely. A sword will go after you, for a voice cries out of Horonaim, death and great destruction.

Moab is crushed; proclaim the destruction to Zogora. For Luhith is filled with weeping. One will go up weeping on the road of Horonaim. You have heard a cry of destruction.

Flee and save your lives, for you shall be like a wild donkey in the desert! Since you trusted in your strongholds, therefore you will be taken, and Chemosh shall go forth into captivity, together with his priests and rulers. Destruction shall come upon every city, and no city shall escape. The valley also shall perish, and the plain shall be utterly destroyed, as the Lord said. Set a sign on Moab, for she shall be set ablaze; and all her cities shall be inaccessible. From what place shall they come to inhabit her?

Cursed is the man who does the work of the Lord carelessly, keeping back his sword from blood. Moab has been at ease from his youth and trusted in his glory. He has not been poured out from vessel to vessel, nor has he gone into exile. Therefore his taste is established within himself, and the smell of it does not cease.

Therefore behold, days are coming,” says the Lord, “when I will send him those who put others to flight, and they will put him to flight. They shall thrash his possessions and cut up his horns. Moab shall be ashamed of Chemosh, as the house of Israel was ashamed of Bethel their hope, having trusted in them. How will you say, ‘We are strong, a people skilled in war’? Moab, his city, is ruined, and his choice young men have gone down to the slaughter. The day of Moab is near at hand, and the evil he did moves swiftly to judgment. All you who surround him, move against him. All you who know his name, say, ‘How is the renowned staff broken, the rod of might?’

Come down from your glory, and sit down in a damp place. Be utterly destroyed, O Dibon, because Moab is ruined. One has gone up against you to ravage your stronghold. You that sit in Aroer, stand by the road and look. Ask him who flees and the one who escapes, and say, ‘What happened?’ 20Moab is put to shame, for he is broken. Wail and cry! Proclaim in Arnon that Moab is ruined. 21Judgment comes upon the land of Misor, and upon Holon, Jahzah and Mephaath, 22and upon Dibon, Nebo and the house of Diblathaim, 23and upon Kirjathaim and the houses of Gamul and Meon, 24and upon Kerioth and Bozrah, and the houses of Moab, those far and near.

25“The horn of Moab is crushed, and his arm is broken. 26Make him drunk, for he exalted himself against the Lord. Moab shall clap with his hand, but he himself will be a laughingstock. 27For surely, was not Israel a laughingstock to you? Was he not found to be one of your stolen things, because you fought against him? 28The inhabitants of Moab have abandoned their cities and now dwell in the rocks. They have become like doves nestling in the rocks at the mouth of a cave. 29I heard about the insolence of Moab, how he greatly increased his insolence and arrogance, and exalted his heart. 30But I know his works, how they are not yet sufficient for him, to satisfy his haughtiness.

31“Therefore, cry aloud on all sides against Moab. Cry out against the men of Kirheres, a dried-up place. 32I mourn deeply for you, O vine of Sibmah, as with the weeping of Jazer. Your branches reached across the sea and touched Jazer. Destruction came upon your fruit and upon those who gather your grapes. 33Joyfulness and gladness are swept away from the land of Moab, for there is no wine in your winepresses. In the morning, there are none to trample the grapes, neither in the evening any to shout at the joy of harvest. 34From the crying of Heshbon even to Elealeh, and from Zogor as far as Horonaim and Aglath-Salisia, their cities uttered their voice, for the water of Nimrim shall be dried up.

35“I will destroy Moab,” says the Lord, “as he comes up to the altar and burns incense to his gods. 36Therefore, the heart of Moab shall make a humming noise like flutes. My heart will hum like a flute for the men of Kirheres, for whatever each man has gained has perished from him. 37They will shave every head in every place, and every beard will be shaved. All hands will beat their chests, and sackcloth shall be over every back. 38There will be mourning in all the houses of Moab and on his streets, for I have broken Moab in pieces,” says the Lord, “like a useless vessel. 39How did Moab change? How did he turn about? Moab is put to shame, and he became a laughingstock and an object of anger to all round about him.”

40For thus says the Lord: 41“Kerioth is taken, and the strongholds are seized. 42Moab shall perish from being a multitude, because he exalted himself against the Lord.

A snare, fear, and a pit are upon you, O inhabitant of Moab. He who flees before the fear shall fall into the pit, and he who gets out of the pit shall be caught in the snare. For I will bring these things upon Moab in the year of his visitation.”

What Jeremiah prophesied against all the nations.†

Thus says the Lord God of Israel: “Take a cup of the unmixed wine from My hand, and you shall cause all the nations to whom I send you to drink it. They will drink, vomit, and be insane because of the presence of the sword I send among them.”

So I took the cup from the hand of the Lord and caused the nations to whom the Lord sent me to drink it: Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, the kings of Judah and its rulers, to put them into desolation, to make them an untrodden place and a hissing; Pharaoh king of Egypt, his servants, his nobles, and all his people; all the mixed multitude and all the kings of the Philistines, and Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod; Edom, Moab, and the sons of Ammon; and all the kings of Tyre, the kings of Sidon, and the kings in the seas beyond; Dedan, Teman, and Buz, and everyone who shaves round about his face; and all the mixed multitude who dwell in the desert; and all the kings of Elam, and all the kings of the Persians; and all the kings from the faraway East, each one with his brother; and all the kingdoms on the face of the earth.

“You shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord Almighty: “Drink and become drunk, and you shall vomit, fall, and not rise because of the presence of the sword I send among you.’ ” It shall come to pass, when they refuse to take the cup from your hand to drink it, you shall say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “You shall surely drink it. For I will begin to afflict the city upon which My name is called, and you will not be guiltless; because I will call a sword upon all who dwell upon the earth.’ ”

You shall prophesy against them these words, and say, ‘The Lord shall speak from on high, to instruct from His sanctuary. He will utter His voice, and declare a word against His place.’ They will answer like men who gather grapes and shout in harvest; and destruction is coming upon those who dwell on earth—to the ends of the earth. For the Lord has a controversy with the nations. He is pleading with all flesh, and the ungodly are given to the sword.”
Thus says the Lord: “Behold, evils go from nation to nation, and a great storm proceeds from the ends of the earth. In the day of the Lord, the slain of the Lord shall be from one end of the earth to the other. They shall not be buried, but will be as manure on the face of the earth. Wail loudly, you shepherds, and cry aloud. Strike yourselves, you rams of the sheep, for your days are filled for slaughter, and you shall fall like choice rams. Flight shall vanish from the shepherds and safety from the rams of the flock. There shall be a voice of outcry from the shepherds, and the loud wailing of sheep and rams shall be heard, for the Lord destroyed their pasture. The remnants of the peace will end because of the fierceness of My wrath. Like a lion, he forsook his lair, for their land became impassable because of the presence of the great sword.”

Jeremiah Spared from Death

In the beginning of the reign of King Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, this word came from the Lord. Thus says the Lord: “Stand in the court of the house of the Lord, and you shall declare to all Judeans, and all who come to worship in the house of the Lord, all the words I command you to reveal to them. Do not omit a word. Perhaps each will hear and turn away from his evil ways. Then I will cease from the calamities I consider doing to them because of their evil practices. You shall say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “If you will not hear Me, to walk in My laws I set before you, to heed the words of My servants the prophets, whom I send to you early in the morning—yes, I sent them, but you did not heed Me—then I will make this house like Shiloh, and the city into a curse to all the nations of all the earth.”’

So the priests, the false prophets, and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the Lord. Then it came to pass, when Jeremiah finished speaking to all the people the things the Lord commanded him, the priests, the false prophets, and all the people seized him, saying, “You will surely die, for you prophesied in the name of the Lord, saying, ‘This house shall be like Shiloh, and this city shall be desolate of inhabitants.’” So all the people summoned an assembly against Jeremiah in the house of the Lord.

The rulers of Judah also heard this word. So they went up from the house of the king to the house of the Lord and sat in the entrance of the new gate of the Lord. Then the priests and the false prophets said to the rulers and all the people, “The judgment of death is due this man because he prophesied against this city, as you heard with your ears.”
Then Jeremiah replied to the rulers and all the people, saying, “The Lord sent me to prophesy against this house and this city all the words you heard. Now then, amend your ways and your works. Hear the voice of the Lord, and the Lord will cease from the calamities He spoke against you. Behold, I am in your hand. Do with me as seems useful and best for you. But know for certain, if you put me to death, you will bring innocent blood upon yourselves, on this city, and on those living there. For in truth, the Lord sent me to you, to speak all these words in your ears.”

Then the rulers and all the people said to the priests and the false prophets, “The judgment of death is not due this man, for he spoke to us in the name of the Lord our God.”

After this, men from the elders of the land rose up and spoke to all the assembly of the people: “Micah the Morasthite lived in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah and said to all the people of Judah, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Zion shall be plowed like a field, Jerusalem shall be impassable, and the mountain of the house shall be a thicket of trees.’ ”

Now did Hezekiah and all Judah by any means put him to death? Instead, did they not fear the Lord and make supplication before the Lord; and the Lord ceased from the calamities He spoke against them? But we have done great evils against our souls.”

After this, there was a man who prophesied in the Lord's name, Urijah the son of Shemaiah of Kirjath-jearim, and he prophesied concerning this land according to all the words of Jeremiah.

Jehoiakim the king with all the rulers heard all his words, and they sought to put him to death; but Urijah heard this and went to Egypt. So the king sent men to Egypt, and they brought him from there to the king. Then he killed him with the sword and cast him into the grave of the children of his people. Nevertheless, the hand of Ahikam the son of Shaphan was with Jeremiah to prevent his being delivered into the hands of the people to be put to death.

Thus says the Lord: “Make bonds and wooden yokes and put them on your neck, and you shall send them to the king of Edom, the king of Moab, the king of the sons of Ammon, the king of Tyre, and the king of Sidon by the hand of the same messengers who met them in Jerusalem with Zedekiah king of Judah. You shall instruct them with regard to their masters to speak thus: ‘Thus says the Lord God of Israel to your masters: ‘I made the earth by My great strength and with My high arm, and I will give it to whomsoever it may seem good in My eyes. 5 I gave the earth to Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon to serve him; and I gave the wild beasts of the field to him to work for him. 6 But the nation and kingdom, whoever will not put their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, I will visit them with the sword and the famine,” says the Lord, “until they come to an end by his hand. 7 So do not give heed to your false prophets, diviners, dreamers, soothsayers, or sorcerers, who say, ‘You shall not work for the king of Babylon.’ 8 For they prophesy lies to you to remove you far from your land. 9 But the nation that brings its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon to work for him, I shall leave it on its own land; and he shall work it for him and dwell in it.’”

I also spoke to Zedekiah king of Judah according to all these words, saying, “The Lord says, ‘Place your neck under the yoke and work for the king of Babylon, for they prophesy wrongdoings to you, but I did not send them. 11 Yet they prophesy wrongfully in My name, that I might destroy you, and you should perish, and these prophets of yours, who wrongfully prophesy lies to you.’”

Again I spoke to him, to all this people and to the priests, saying, “Thus says the Lord: ‘Do not heed the words of the prophets who prophesy to you, saying, “Behold, the vessels of the Lord’s house will return from Babylon,” for they prophesy wrongfully to you; but I did not send them.’”

Thus if they are prophets, and the word of the Lord is in them, let them meet me, for thus the Lord said. Now concerning the remainder of the vessels the king of Babylon did not take when he carried away captive Jeconiah from Jerusalem, the Lord says, “They will go to Babylon.”

The False Prophet Hananiah

Now it came to pass in the fourth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fifth month, that Hananiah, the false prophet from Gibeon, and the son of Azur spoke to me in the house of the Lord in the presence of the priests and all the people, saying, “Thus says the Lord: ‘I broke into pieces the yoke of the king of Babylon. Yet two full years, and I will return the vessels of the Lord’s house to this place, along with Jeconiah and all the captives of Judah, for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.’”
Then Jeremiah spoke to Hananiah in the presence of all the people, and in the presence of the priests who stood in the house of the Lord. Thus Jeremiah said, “Truly, may the Lord do so indeed, and establish the word you prophesy, to return the vessels of the Lord's house and all those carried away captive from Babylon to this place. Nevertheless, hear the word of the Lord I speak in your ears and the ears of all the people. The prophets who were before me and before you of old, they prophesied concerning war against many countries and great kingdoms. As for this prophet who prophesied regarding peace to come, when his word comes to pass, they shall know the prophet the Lord sent to them in good faith.”

Then in the sight of all the people, Hananiah took the yokes from the neck of Jeremiah and broke them to pieces. Hananiah then spoke in the presence of all the people, saying, “Thus says the Lord: ‘Thus I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon from the necks of all nations.’” After this, Jeremiah went his way.

Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah after Hananiah broke the yokes from his neck, saying, “Go and tell Hananiah, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord: “You have broken the yokes of wood, but I will make yokes of iron in their place.”’ For thus says the Lord: “I have put a yoke of iron on the neck of all the nations, so they may serve the king of Babylon.”

Jeremiah also said to Hananiah, “The Lord has not sent you, but you have caused this people to be persuaded wrongfully. Therefore thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I will cast you from the face of the earth, and you shall die this year.’” So he died in the seventh month.

Jeremiah's Letter to the Captives.

These are the words of the letter Jeremiah the prophet sent from Jerusalem to the elders of the captivity, and to the priests and false prophets. (He sent it to Babylon for the captivity and for all the people, after the departure from Jerusalem of Jeconiah the king, the queen mother, the eunuchs, and every freeman, bondman, and craftsman.) Jeremiah sent the letter to Babylon by the hand of Elasah the son of Shaphan, and Gemariah the son of Hilkiah (whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent to Babylon, to the king of Babylon), saying,

Thus says the Lord God of Israel concerning the captivity which I caused to be carried away from Jerusalem: Build houses and dwell in them. Plant gardens and eat their fruit. Take wives and beget sons and daughters; and take wives for your sons, and give your... daughters to husbands; and be multiplied and not diminished. 7Seek the peace of the land into which I carried you captive. Pray to the Lord for them, for in its peace you shall have peace. 8For thus says the Lord: Do not let the false prophets in your midst deceive you; and do not let your diviners persuade you, nor heed the dreams you dream. 9For they prophesy wrongfully to you in My name, but I did not send them.

10For thus says the Lord: When seventy years are about to be fulfilled in Babylon, I will visit you and confirm My words to you, to return your people to this place.† 11For I shall consider a plan of peace for you, to give you good things and not calamities. 12Therefore, pray to Me, and I will hear you. 13Seek Me, and you will find Me, because you seek Me with all your heart. 14I will appear to you,† 15for you said, “The Lord established prophets for us in Babylon.”

16Thus says the Lord against Achiab and Zedekiah: Behold, I will deliver them into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall smite them in your sight. 17They shall make of them a curse among all the captivity of Judah in Babylon, saying, “May the Lord do to you as He did to Zedekiah and as He did to Achiab, whom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire,” 18because they committed lawlessness in Israel, committed adultery with the wives of their fellow-citizens, and spoke a word in My name which I did not command them; and I am a witness, says the Lord.

19To Shemaiah the Nehelamite, you shall say, 20“I did not send you in My name,” and to Zephaniah the priest, the son of Maaseiah, saying,

21“The Lord made you priest in the place of Jehoiada the priest, to be an overseer in the house of the Lord over every prophet and every man who is insane, and you shall put them in prison or into the dungeon. 22Now therefore, why have you joined in mocking Jeremiah of Anathoth, who prophesied to you? 23Did he not send you into Babylon for this purpose, saying, ‘It is far off. Build a house and dwell in it, and plant a garden and eat its fruit.’ ” 24Thus Zephaniah read this letter in the ears of Jeremiah.† 25Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying, 26“Send to the captivity, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite: Because Shemaiah prophesied to you, although I did not send him, and causes you to trust in wrongdoings; 27therefore, thus says the Lord: Behold, I will visit Shemaiah and his family. There shall not be a man of them in your midst to see the good
The word came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying, 2 "Thus says the Lord God of Israel: ‘Write in a book all the words I have spoken to you. 3 For behold, the days will come,’ says the Lord, ‘when I will return the captives of My people Israel and Judah,’ says the Lord, ‘and I shall return them to the land I gave to their fathers, and they shall have dominion over it.’ ”

4 Now these are the words the Lord spoke concerning Israel and Judah, saying, 5 “Thus says the Lord: ‘You shall hear a sound of fear. There is fear, and there is not peace. 6 Ask and see if a male gives birth, and ask concerning fear in which they shall hold fast their loins and look for safety; for I see every man, and his hands are on his loins. Their faces have turned to paleness. 7 For that day is great, and there is no other like it. There is little time for Jacob, and because of this, he will be saved. 8 In that day,’ says the Lord, ‘I will break the yoke from their neck and break their chains; and they shall no longer work for foreigners.’ 9 But they shall work for the Lord their God, and I will raise up for them David their king.’

10 “Thus says the Lord: ‘I brought about your destruction. Your blow was painful. 11 There was no one to judge your cause. You were painfully treated for healing, but this was no benefit to you. 12 All your friends forgot you. They do not ask about you, for I struck you with the blow of your enemy, even firm correction. Your sins have multiplied because of all your wrongdoing. 13 Therefore, all who devour you shall be consumed, for all your enemies shall devour themselves. Your sins multiplied because of the abundance of your wrongdoings, thus they did these things to you. But those who tore you to pieces shall be as prey, and I will give all who plundered you as plunder. 14 For I will bring about your healing from a painful wound. I will heal you,’ says the Lord. ‘For you were called Dispersed, for they said, “She is your prey, because no one seeks her.” ’

15 “Thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I will turn back the captivity of Jacob and have mercy upon his captives. The city shall be built upon her summit, and the temple shall remain according to His judgment. 16 Singers shall go forth from them. I will multiply them, and they shall not be diminished. 17 Their children shall enter as before, and their testimonies shall be established before Me. I will visit those who afflict them. 18 His mighty ones shall be over them, and his ruler shall go forth of himself, and I will gather them. They shall return to Me, for who is this who sets his heart to return to Me?’ says the Lord. 19 For the wrath of the Lord goes out; a whirlwind of anger goes forth. It shall come against the ungodly. 20 The fierce wrath of the Lord will not turn away until He executes it, and until He establishes the undertaking of His heart. In the last days, you will come to know these things.’”

A Father for Israel

“At that time,” says the Lord, “I will be as God to the family of Israel, and they shall be as My people.”†

2Thus says the Lord: “I found him alive in the desert with those slain by the sword. Go and do not destroy Israel.” 3The Lord appeared to him from afar, saying, “I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore, I drew you in compassion. 4O virgin of Israel, I shall build you, and you will be restored. You shall again take your tambourine and go forth with the assembly of those who rejoice.† 5Moreover, plant a vineyard on the mountains of Samaria. Plant and praise,† for it is a day of calling, when those who defend you on the mountains of Ephraim will say, ‘Arise and go up to Zion to the Lord our God.’”

7For thus says the Lord to Jacob: “Rejoice and exult in the Head of the nations. Make a proclamation and praise Him. Say, ‘The Lord saved His people, the remnant of Israel.’ 8Behold, I will bring them from the north, and gather them from the ends of the earth to the feast of Passover. You shall beget a great multitude, and they shall return here.† 9They went forth with weeping, but I will gather them with consolation. I will cause them to lodge by the channels of waters in an upright way, and they will not be led astray; for I have become as a Father to Israel, and Ephraim is My firstborn.

10“Hear the word of the Lord, you nations. Proclaim it to the islands far distant and say, ‘He who scattered Israel will also gather and protect him, as one who feeds his flock.’ 11 For the Lord redeemed Jacob. He redeemed him from the hand of those stronger than he. 12They shall come and be glad in the mountain of Zion, and they shall come to the goodness of the Lord; to the land of wheat, wine, and fruit, and of cattle and sheep. Their soul shall be like a fruitful tree, and they shall hunger no more.† 13Then shall the virgins rejoice in the assembly of young men, and the old men shall rejoice. I will turn their mourning into joy, and I will make them glad. 14I will magnify and cheer with wine the soul of these priests, the sons of Levi, and My people shall be satisfied with My good things.”

Mercy for Ephraim

15Thus says the Lord: “A voice of lamentation, weeping, and mourning was heard in Ramah. Rachel does not wish to cease mourning deeply over her children, because they are no more.”† 16Thus says the Lord: “Let your voice cease from its bitter weeping and your eyes from tears, for there is a reward for your works, and they shall return from the land of their enemies. 17There shall be an abiding home for your children.

18“I heard the news of Ephraim, lamenting, ‘You chastised me, and I was chastised. Like a calf, I was not taught, but turn me back, and I shall return; for You are the Lord my God. 19For after my captivity I repented, and after I knew, I groaned because of the day of shame, and showed You that I bore the reproach of my youth.’ 20Ephraim is a beloved son and a child who is a delight to Me, because My words are in him. I will surely remember him; therefore I hastened to help him. I will surely have mercy upon him,” says the Lord.

21“Rouse yourself, O Zion, and bring about vengeance. Be strong in your heart and return by the way you went, O virgin of Israel. Return to your cities and mourn. 22How long, O dishonored daughter, will you turn away? For the Lord has created safety by a new planting. Men will travel about in security.”†

23Thus says the Lord: “They will say this word in the land of Judah and its cities when I bring back the host of captives: ‘Blessed is the Lord on His righteous and holy mountain.’ 24There shall be those who dwell in the cities of Judah and in all its land, together with the farmer, and the shepherd shall go forth with his flock. 25For I have satiated every thirsty soul and filled every hungry soul.” 26Therefore, I awoke and beheld, and my sleep was pleasant to me.

27“Therefore, behold, days are coming,” says the Lord, “when I will sow Israel and Judah with the seed of man and the seed of cattle. 28It shall come to pass, as I watched over them to overthrow and afflict, so too, I will watch over them to build and plant,” says the Lord. 29“In those days, they shall not say, ‘The fathers ate sour grapes, and the children's teeth were set on edge.’ 30But rather, each shall die in his own sin, and the teeth of him who eats the sour grapes shall be set on edge.”†
31“Behold, days are coming,” says the Lord, “when I shall make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah, 32not according to the covenant I made with their fathers in the day I took hold of their hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; for they did not abide in My covenant, and I disregarded them,” says the Lord. 33“For this is the covenant I will make with the house of Israel after those days,” says the Lord. “I will surely put My laws into their mind and write them on their hearts. I will be as God to them, and they shall be as My people.” 34Each shall not teach his neighbor and each his brother, saying, ‘Know the Lord,’ for all shall know Me, from the least of them to the greatest of them. For I will be merciful to their wrongdoings, and I will no longer remember their sins.

35“Though the sky should be raised to a greater height,” says the Lord, “and though the ground of the earth should be sunk lower beneath, yet I would not reject the family of Israel,” says the Lord, “for all they have done.” 36Thus says the Lord, who gives the sun as a light by day, and the moon and the stars as a light by night; and who makes the sea roar so its waves make a crashing sound. The Lord Almighty is His name. 37“If these laws cease from before Me,” says the Lord, “the family of Israel shall also cease to be a nation before Me forever.

38“Behold, days are coming,” says the Lord, “when the city shall be built for the Lord from the Tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate. 39The measure of the city shall proceed in front of them as far as the hills of Gareb, and it shall be encircled round about by choice stones. 40All Hasaremoth as far as the Kidron River, to the corner of the Horse Gate eastward, shall be a sanctuary to the Lord. It shall not fail or be destroyed anymore forever.”

Jeremiah Buys a Field

39 The word came from the Lord to Jeremiah in the tenth year of King Zedekiah of Judah. This was the eighteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. 2The forces of the king of Babylon's army made a fortification against Jerusalem, and Jeremiah was kept in the court of the prison which was in the king's house, in which King Zedekiah shut him up, saying, “Why do you prophesy, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it. Zedekiah shall not escape from the hand of the Chaldeans, for he shall surely be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon. He shall speak with him face to face and see him eye to eye. Then Zedekiah shall go to Babylon and Again the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying,

"Behold, Hanamel the son of Shallum, your father's brother, will come to you, saying, 'Buy yourself my field in Anathoth, for you have the right to receive it as a possession.'"

So Hanamel the son of Shallum, my father's brother, came to me in the court of the prison and said to me, “Buy my field in Anathoth, which is in the land of Benjamin. The right to buy it is yours and you are the elder.” So I knew this was the word of the Lord. Thus I bought the field from Hanamel, the son of my father's brother, and weighed him seventeen shekels of silver. I wrote it in a book, sealed it, took the testimony of witnesses, and weighed the money on the scales. Then I took the book of the purchase that was sealed and gave it to Baruch the son of Neriah, son of Mahseiah, in the sight of Hanamel, the son of my father's brother, and in the sight of the men who stood by and who signed the purchase deed, and in the sight of those Jews in the court of the prison.

Then I charged Baruch in their sight, saying, “Thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘Take this purchase deed and the deed that was read aloud and put it in an earthen vessel, that it may remain many days.’ For thus says the Lord: ‘Even fields, houses, and vineyards shall be possessed in this land.’”

Jeremiah's Prayer Acknowledges God's Faithfulness

After I gave the book of the purchase to Baruch the son of Neriah, I prayed to the Lord, saying, “O Lord, You made heaven and earth by Your great strength and by Your high and uplifted arm. There is nothing hidden from You. You grant mercy to thousands, and repay the sins of the fathers into the bosoms of their children after them, the Great and Mighty God, the Lord of great counsel and powerful in deeds, the Great God, the Almighty and the Lord of great name. Your eyes are upon the ways of the sons of men, to give everyone according to his way. You did signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, even to this day, and in Israel and among the inhabitants of the earth. You made Yourself a name, as it is this day. You brought Your people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs and wonders, with a strong hand and a high arm, and with great visions. You gave them this land, which You swore to their fathers, a land flowing with milk and honey. They went in and took it; but they did not listen to Your voice or walk in Your commandments. They did none of the things
You commanded them to do, and it caused all of these calamities to happen to them.

24 Behold, a multitude comes against this city, and the city is given into the hands of the Chaldeans who wage war against it, with the power of sword and famine. As You have spoken, thus it has happened. 25 You did say to me, ‘Buy for yourself the field for silver.’ So I wrote the book, sealed it, and took the testimony of witnesses. Yet the city has been given into the hand of the Chaldeans.”

Jerusalem Will Fall

26 The word of the Lord came to me, saying, 27 “I am the Lord, the God of all flesh. Shall anything be hidden from Me? 28 Therefore thus says the Lord God of Israel: ‘This city shall certainly be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it. 29 For the Chaldeans shall come and wage war against this city. They shall burn this city with fire, and burn up the houses in which they burnt incense to Baal on their housetops, and poured drink offerings to other gods to provoke Me. 30 For the children of Israel and the children of Judah alone did evil in My sight from their youth. 31 For this city provoked My wrath and anger from the day they built it even to this day, so I removed it from My presence, 32 because of all the evils of the children of Israel and Judah which they did to provoke Me— they and their kings, and their rulers, priests and prophets, and the men of Judah and those living in Jerusalem. 33 They turned their back to Me and not their face. I taught them early in the morning, yes I taught them, but they did not listen to take hold of the instruction. 34 Instead, they put their unclean defilements in the house in which My name is called. 35 They built altars to Baal in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to offer their sons and daughters to King Molech, which things I did not command; nor did such things come into My heart, for them to do this abomination to cause Judah to sin.”

God Reaffirms His Covenant

36 “Now thus says the Lord God of Israel against this city of which you say, ‘It shall be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon by sword, famine, and banishment’: 37 Behold, I will gather them out of every land where I scattered them in My wrath and anger and in great provocation. I will bring them back to this place and will cause them to dwell in confidence. 38 They shall be to Me as a people, and I shall be as God to them. 39 I will give them another way and a different heart, to fear Me all their days, for their good and for the good of their children after them.† 40 I will make an everlasting covenant with them, by which I will not turn away from them. I will put My fear into their heart so they may not depart from Me.‡ 41 I will visit them to do good to them, and I will plant them in this land in faithfulness, and with all My heart and soul.’†

42 “For thus says the Lord: ‘As I have brought all these great calamities upon this people, so I will bring upon them all the good things I have spoken. 43 Fields will yet be bought in the land of which you say, “It is impassable for men and cattle, for they were delivered into the hands of the Chaldeans.” 44 But they shall buy fields with money, and you will write a book, seal it, and take the testimony of witnesses in the land of Benjamin and round about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah and the mountains, and in the cities of the lowland, and the south; for I will turn back their captivity.’ ”

The Nation Will Be Restored

40 The word of the Lord came to Jeremiah a second time when he was yet bound in the court of the prison, saying, 2 “Thus says the Lord, He who made the earth and formed it to establish it—the Lord is His name: 3 ‘Cry out to Me, and I will answer you. I will proclaim to you great and mighty things which you do not know.’

4 “For thus says the Lord God of Israel concerning the houses of this city and the houses of the king of Judah, which were pulled down and made into entrenchments and outer fortifications, 5 to fight against the Chaldeans and to fill the city with dead men, whom I struck in My wrath and anger, and I turned away My face from them because of all their evils: 6 ‘Behold, I bring her health and healing for her wounds, and I will show them how to obey. Yes, I will heal this city and bring about peace and faithfulness.’† 7 I shall return the captives of Judah and Israel and will restore them, even as before. 8 I will cleanse them from all their wrongdoings by which they sinned against Me. I will not remember their sins by which they sinned against Me and withdrew from Me. 9 This shall be for the gladness, praise, and majesty of all the people of the earth, who shall hear all the good things I will do. They shall fear and be provoked concerning all the good things and the peace I shall bring upon them.’

10 “Thus says the Lord: ‘There shall yet be heard in this place, in which you say, “It is destitute of people and cattle,” in the cities of Judah and outside of Jerusalem, in the places made desolate, without man and cattle, 11 the voice of gladness and joyfulness, the voice of the bridegroom and the bride, the voice of those saying, “Give thanks to the Lord Almighty, for the Lord is good, for His mercy endures forever.” They will bring gifts into the house of the Lord, for I shall bring back all the captives of that land as it was before,’ says the Lord.

12 “Thus says the Lord of hosts: ‘There shall yet be in this place of desolation without man and cattle, and in all its cities, resting places for the shepherds to bed down their sheep. 13 In the cities of the hill country and the valley, and in the cities of the south and the land of Benjamin, and in the cities around Jerusalem and Judah, sheep shall again pass under the hand of him who counts them,’ says the Lord.”

God Warns Zedekiah

The word came to Jeremiah from the Lord, when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army and every land of his dominion warred against Jerusalem and all the cities of Judah, saying, 2 “Thus says the Lord: ‘Go to Zedekiah king of Judah, and you shall tell him, “Thus says the Lord: ‘This city shall certainly be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon; and he shall take it and burn it with fire. 3 You shall not escape from his hand, but shall certainly be taken and delivered into his hands. Your eyes shall see his eyes, and you will speak with him face to face. You shall enter Babylon.’ 4 But hear the word of the Lord, O Zedekiah king of Judah. Thus says the Lord: 5 ‘You shall die in peace, and as they wept for your fathers who reigned before you, they shall also weep for you, saying, “Alas, lord!” They shall mourn for you, for I spoke the word,’ says the Lord.”

6 So Jeremiah spoke all these words to King Zedekiah in Jerusalem. 7 Then the army of the king of Babylon waged war against Jerusalem and against the cities of Judah, and against Lachish and Azekah, for these strong cities were left among the cities of Judah.

Failure to Free the Slaves

8 The word came from the Lord to Jeremiah, after King Zedekiah concluded a covenant with all the people, to proclaim a remission: 9 that every man should set his servant free—each male and female servant of his, the Hebrew man and the Hebrew woman—that no man of Judah should be a servant. 10 Then all the princes and all the people who entered into the covenant to set free each male and female servant of his, 11 again forced them to be male and female servants.
Therefore the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying, "Thus says the Lord God of Israel: ‘I made a covenant with your fathers in the day I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage, saying, ‘When six years are complete, you shall set free your Hebrew brother who will be sold to you, for he shall serve you six years, then you will send him forth a free man.’ But they did not listen to Me, nor inclined their ear. Even today, they turned to do what is right in My sight, to proclaim remission to each neighbor of his. So they concluded a covenant before Me in the house called by My name. But you turned away and profaned My name to bring back each male and female servant of his, whom you set free in their soul, to be once again your male and female servants.’

Therefore thus says the Lord: ‘You did not listen to Me to proclaim remission to each neighbor of his. Behold, I proclaim a remission to you for the sword, and for death and famine. I will deliver you as a dispersion among all the kingdoms of the land. I will deliver the men who transgressed My covenant, who did not keep My covenant they made before Me, with the young bull they offered as a sacrifice: the rulers of Judah and the mighty men, and the priests and the people, I will deliver them to their enemies, and their dead bodies shall be food for the birds of the sky and the wild animals of the earth. I will deliver Zedekiah the king of Judah and their rulers into the hands of their enemies, and the army of the king of Babylon shall chase those who run away from them. Behold, I shall command them,’ says the Lord, ‘and I will turn them to this land, and they will fight against it. They shall take it and burn it with fire, even the cities of Judah, which I will cause to be desolate and without inhabitant.’ ”

The obedient Rechabites

The word came to Jeremiah from the Lord in the days of Jehoiakim king of Judah, saying, "Go to the house of the Rechabites; and you shall bring them to the house of the Lord, into one of the courts, and give them wine to drink." So I brought out Jaazaniah the son of Jeremiah, the son of Habazziniah, and his brothers and his sons, and all the house of the Rechabites, and I brought them into the house of the Lord, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan the son of Igdalai, a man of God, which was near the house of the ruler who was over the house of Maaseiah the son of Shallum, who kept the court. I set before them a pitcher of wine and cups, and said, “Drink wine.”

But they said, “We will drink no wine, for our father, Jonadab the son of Rechab, commanded us, saying, ‘Drink no wine, neither you nor your sons forever; 7nor shall you build a house, nor sow any seed, nor shall you have a vineyard; for you shall dwell in tents all your days, so you may live many days in the land where you are sojourners.’ 8So we obeyed the voice of Jonadab our father so as to drink no wine all our days, we and our wives, and our sons and daughters, 9and so as to build no houses to dwell in. Thus, we have no vineyard, field, or seed, 10for we dwell in tents; because we obeyed everything Jonadab our father commanded us. 11Then it came to pass, when Nebuchadnezzar came up against the land, we said, ‘Let us go and enter Jerusalem because of the presence of the army of the Chaldeans and the army of the Assyrians.’ So we dwelt there.”

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 13“Thus says the Lord: ‘Go and tell the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, “Will you not receive correction to obey My words? 14The sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab kept the word he commanded his children so as to drink no wine, and they did not drink it. But I spoke to you early. I spoke, but you did not obey. 15I also sent to you My servants the prophets, saying, ‘Let each of you turn from his evil way, and amend your doings. Do not go after other gods to serve them, and you will dwell in the land I gave you and your fathers.’ But you did not incline your ear, nor did you obey. 16Yet the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab kept the commandment of their father, but this people did not obey Me.’ ” 17Therefore, thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I will bring on Judah and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the evils I pronounced against them.’

18“Therefore, thus says the Lord: ‘Since the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab obeyed the commandment of their father to do as their father commanded them,† 19there shall never be wanting a man of the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab to stand before My face while the earth remains.’ ”

The Scroll Is Read in the Temple

Now in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, the word of the Lord came to me, saying, † 2“Take for yourself the scroll of a book, and write on it all the words I instructed you against Jerusalem, and against Judah, and against all the nations, from the day I spoke to you, from the days of Josiah king of Judah even to this day.† 3Perhaps the house of Judah will hear all the calamities I purpose to bring upon them, so as to turn them from their evil way; and I shall be merciful to their wrongdoings and sins.”
So Jeremiah called Baruch the son of Neriah, and he wrote on a scroll all the words of the Lord from the mouth of Jeremiah, which he spoke to him.‡

Thus Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, “I am under guard and unable to go into the house of the Lord,‡ so you shall read from this scroll in the ears of the people in the house of the Lord on the day of fasting, and in the hearing of Judah, who come from their city. You shall read to them.‡ Perhaps their supplication will come before the face of the Lord, and they will turn from their evil way; for great is the anger and wrath of the Lord which He pronounced against this people.” § So Baruch did according to all Jeremiah commanded him, to read from the book the words of the Lord in the house of the Lord.

Then it came to pass in the eighth year of King Jehoiakim, in the ninth month, all the people in Jerusalem and in the house of Judah proclaimed a fast before the Lord. ¶ Baruch read from the book the words of Jeremiah in the house of the Lord, in the house of Gemariah the son of Shaphan the scribe, and in the upper court at the entry of the new gate of the Lord’s house, in the hearing of all the people.

The Scroll Is Read to the Rulers and People

Now Michaiah the son of Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, heard all the words of the Lord from the book. ¶ He then went down to the house of the king, into the home of the scribe, and behold, there were sitting all the rulers: Elishama the scribe, Delaiah the son of Shemaiah, Elnathan the son of Achbor, Gemariah the son of Shaphan, Zedekiah the son of Hananiah, and all the rulers. ¶ So Michaiah declared to them all the words he heard Baruch read in the ears of the people. ¶ Then all the rulers sent Jehudi the son of Nethaniah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Cushi, to Baruch the son of Neriah, saying, “Take in your hand the scroll to read in the hearing of the people and come.” So Baruch took the scroll and went down to them. ¶ Then they said to him, “Read it again in our ears.” So Baruch read it. ¶ Now it came to pass, when they heard all the words, they took counsel each with his neighbor, and said, “Let us report all these words to the king.” ¶ So they asked Baruch, saying, “How did you come to write all these words to me from his mouth, and I wrote them in the book.” ¶ Then they said to Baruch, “Go and hide, you and the man Jeremiah. Let no one know where you are.”

The King Burns the Scroll
So they went to the king, into the court, but gave the scroll for safekeeping in the house of Elishama; and they reported to the king all these words. 21 The king then sent Jehudi to fetch the scroll, and he took it from the house of Elishama. Jehudi then read it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the rulers who stood around the king. 22 Now the king was sitting in the winter house, and a hearth with a burning fire was before him. 23 Then it came to pass, as Jehudi was reading the third or fourth page, he cut them off with the scribe's knife and cast them into the fire of the hearth, until all of the scroll was consumed by the fire of the hearth.† 24 But the king and his servants who heard all these words did not seek the Lord, neither did they tear their garments. 25 But Elnathan, Delaiah, and Gemariah pointed out to the king that he should not burn up the scroll. 26 The king then commanded Jerahmeel the king's son and Seraiah the son of Azriel to seize Baruch and Jeremiah, but they were hidden.

Jeremiah Rewrites the Scroll

27 The word of the Lord came to Jeremiah after the king burned the scroll containing all the words Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah, saying,† 28 “Take again another scroll, and write on the scroll all the words which King Jehoiakim burned. 29 Then you shall say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “You burned this scroll, saying, ‘Why did you write in it, saying, “The king of Babylon will certainly come in and utterly destroy this land; and man and cattle will cease from it”? ’ ” 30 Therefore thus says the Lord against Jehoiakim king of Judah: “He shall have no one to sit on the throne of David, and his dead body shall be cast out into the heat of the day and the frost of the night. 31 So I will visit him, his family, and his servants. I will bring upon them and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and upon the land of Judah, all the calamities I spoke regarding them, for they did not heed them.” ’ ” 32 Then Baruch took another scroll, and he wrote on it all the words of the book from the mouth of Jeremiah which Jehoiakim burned. There were yet more words added to it like the former.

Zedekiah Becomes King

44 Then Zedekiah the son of Josiah reigned instead of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadnezzar appointed to reign over Judah.† 2 But neither he nor his servants nor the people of the land gave heed to the words of the Lord which He spoke by the hand of Jeremiah. 3 Then Zedekiah the king sent Jehucal the son of Shelemiah and Zephaniah the priest, son of Maaseiah, to Jeremiah, saying, “Indeed, pray to the Lord for us.” 4 Now Jeremiah came and passed through the midst of the city, and they did not put him in the prison. 5Then the army of Pharaoh came up from Egypt; and the Chaldeans heard the report concerning them, and they departed from Jerusalem.

6The word of the Lord then came to Jeremiah, saying, 7“Thus says the Lord: ‘In this way you shall speak to the king of Judah who sent you to seek Me: “Behold, the army of Pharaoh which came up to help you, they shall return to the land of Egypt, and the Chaldeans shall return again to fight against this city. They shall take it and burn it with fire.’ ”

9Thus says the Lord: ‘Do not suppose in your souls, saying, “The Chaldeans will surely depart from us,” yet they will not depart. 10For though you should smite the whole army of the Chaldeans who wage war against you, and they left certain wounded men, these men would rise up and burn this city with fire.’ ”

Jeremiah Is Imprisoned

11Then it came to pass, when the army of the Chaldeans left Jerusalem because of the presence of Pharaoh's army, 12Jeremiah left Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin to buy goods from among the people. 13He came to the Gate of Benjamin, and there was a man in that place with whom he lodged, Irijah the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah; and he seized Jeremiah, saying, “You are fleeing to the Chaldeans!” 14But he said, “That is a lie! I am not fleeing to the Chaldeans.” Yet he did not listen to him. So Irijah seized Jeremiah and brought him to the rulers. 15The rulers were embittered against Jeremiah; and they struck him and sent him to the house of Jonathan the scribe; for they made this into a prison. 16So Jeremiah entered the dungeon and the cells and sat there many days.

17Then Zedekiah sent and called for him. The king secretly asked him, saying, “Is there a word from the Lord?” He replied, “There is. You shall be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon.” 18Then Jeremiah said to the king, “What offense have I committed against you, your servants, or this people, that you have put me in the prison? 19Where are your prophets who prophesied to you, saying, ‘The king of Babylon will not come against the land’? 20Now, O lord the king, let my supplication come before your face. For why do you return me to the house of Jonathan the scribe? Do not let me die there.” 21Then the king gave the command, and they cast him into the prison. They gave him one loaf of bread daily from their bakery until the bread in the city failed. So Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.
Shephatiah the son of Mattan, Gedaliah the son of Pashhur, and Jucal the son of Shelemiah heard the words Jeremiah spoke to the people, saying, 2“Thus says the Lord: ‘He who dwells in this city shall die by the sword and famine, but he who goes out to the Chaldeans shall live. His life shall be as finding a treasure, for he shall live.’ 3For thus says the Lord: ‘This city shall most assuredly be given into the hands of the army of the king of Babylon, and they shall take it.’ ” 4Therefore they said to the king, “Indeed, let that man be put to death, for by speaking to them such words, he weakens the hands of the fighting men left in the city and the hands of all the people. This man does not prophesy peace for this people, but evil.” 5Then the king replied, “Behold, he is in your hands,” for the king could not resist them. 6So they cast him into the pit of Malchiah the king’s son, who was in the court of the prison. They let Jeremiah down into the pit where there was no water, except for mud; thus he was in the mud.

Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian was in the household of the king; and he heard they put Jeremiah into the pit, and that the king was at the Gate of Benjamin. 8So he went out to the king and spoke to him, saying, 9“You did evil in what you did, to kill this man by hunger, for there is no more bread in the city.” 10Then the king commanded Ebed-Melech, saying, “Take with you thirty men from here and lift him out of the pit, lest he die.” 11So Ebed-Melech took the men and entered into the underground area of the king's house. From there, they took old rags and old ropes and threw them down into the pit to Jeremiah. 12Then he said, “Put these under the ropes,” and Jeremiah did so. 13So they pulled Jeremiah up with the ropes and lifted him out of the pit. But Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

Zedekiah Converses with Jeremiah

Then the king sent and summoned Jeremiah to himself at the third entrance of the Lord's house. The king said to him, “I will ask you a question, and indeed do not hide anything from me.” 15Jeremiah replied to the king, “If I tell you, will you not surely put me to death? But if I advise you, you will not heed me.” 16So the king swore to him, saying, “As the Lord lives who made this soul in us, surely I will not put you to death, nor will I give you into the hands of these men.”

17Jeremiah then said to him, “Thus says the Lord: ‘If you will indeed go out to the leaders of the king of Babylon, your soul shall live, and this city shall not be burned with fire; and you and your house will live. 18 But if you do not go out, this city shall be delivered into the hands of the Chaldeans. They shall burn it with fire, and you will not escape.’ ” 19 The king said to Jeremiah, “I am afraid of the Judeans who fled to the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hands, and they mock me.” 20 But Jeremiah said, “They will not deliver you. Hear the word of the Lord I speak to you, and it will be good for you; and your soul will live. 21 But if you refuse to go out, this is the word the Lord showed me: 22 ‘Behold, all the women who were left behind in the house of the king of Judah and were led out to the rulers of the king of Babylon said, “Your peace-loving men deceived you and will prevail against you. They will cause your feet to slide and fail, and will turn away from you.” 23 They will also lead out your wives and children to the Chaldeans, and you shall not escape; for you will be taken by the hand of the king of Babylon, and this city shall be burned.’ ”

24 Then the king said to him, “Let no man know of these words, and you shall not die. 25 But if the rulers hear that I talked with you, and they come to you and say, ‘Tell us, what did the king say to you? Do not hide it from us, and we will not put you to death. So what did the king say to you?’ 26 Then you shall say to them, ‘I brought my supplications before the presence of the king, that he would not send me back to the house of Jonathan to die there.’ ” 27 Then all the rulers came to Jeremiah and asked him, and he told them all these words the king commanded him. So they were silent, for the word of the Lord was not to be heard. 28 Jeremiah then remained in the court of the prison until the time Jerusalem was taken.

The Fall of Jerusalem

Now it came to pass in the ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army came against Jerusalem and besieged it. 2 Then in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, the city was broken apart. 3 All the leaders of the king of Babylon went in and sat in the middle gate: Nergal-Sharezer, Sam-gar-Nebo, Sarsechim, Rabsaris, Nergal-Sarezer, and Rabmag, with the rest of the rulers of the king of Babylon.

Jeremiah Is Released to Gedaliah

4 They sent and took Jeremiah from the court of the prison, and committed him to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan; then they brought him out and sat him in 5The word of the Lord then came to Jeremiah in the court of the prison, saying, 6“Go and say to Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian, ‘Thus says the Lord God of Israel: “Behold, I will bring My words upon this city for calamities and not for good. But I shall deliver you in that day, and I shall not give you into the hands of the men before whose presence you are afraid. For I shall surely deliver you, and you shall not fall by the sword. Instead, your life shall be as finding a treasure, because you trusted in Me,” says the Lord.’ ”

Jeremiah with the Governor of Judah.

The word came from the Lord to Jeremiah after Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard released him from Ramah, when he took him in manacles in the midst of the captivity of Judah, those being led into Babylon. The captain of the guard took him and said to him, “The Lord your God pronounced all these calamities upon this place, and the Lord did this because you did not heed His voice. Behold, I have freed you from the manacles placed on your hands. If it seems good to you to come with me to Babylon, come, and I will look after you. But if not, run hard and return to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon appointed over the land of Judah, and dwell with him among the people in the land of Judah. Go wherever in your eyes it seems best to go.” Then the chief of the guard gave him rations and a gift and sent him away. So Jeremiah came to Gedaliah at Mizpah and remained among the people who were left in the land.

Now all the leaders of the army in the field, they and their men, heard the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah to govern over the land, and that he entrusted to him their men and women whom he had not carried away captive to Babylon. Then Ishmael the son of Nethaniah came to Gedaliah at Mizpah, along with Johanan the son of Kareah, Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth, the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, and Jezaniah the son of Mechati, they and their men. Gedaliah swore an oath to them and their men, saying, “Do not be afraid in the presence of the servants of the Chaldeans. Dwell in the land and work for the king of Babylon; for it shall be beneficial for you. Behold, I sit in your presence at Mizpah to stand before the Chaldeans who come against us. Gather together wine and fruit, together with olive oil, and put them in your containers. Dwell in the cities you possess.” Then all the Jews in Moab, and those among the children of Ammon, and those in Edom, and those in all the land heard the king of Babylon had granted a remnant in Judah and set over them
Gedaliah the son of Ahikam. So they came to Gedaliah in the land of Judah at Mizpah, and gathered together a great abundance of wine, fruit, and olive oil.

Then Johanan the son of Kareah and all the field leaders of the army came to Gedaliah at Mizpah. They said to him, “Do you indeed know that king Baalis of the sons of Ammon has sent Ishmael to slay you?” But Gedaliah did not believe them. Then Johanan spoke secretly to Gedaliah at Mizpah, “Indeed, I shall go and smite Ishmael, but let no one know it, lest he take your life, and all Judah gathered to you be scattered by him, and the remnant in Judah perish.” But Gedaliah said to Johanan, “Do not do this deed, for you speak lies concerning Ishmael.”

Now it came to pass in the seventh month that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama, of the royal family, came with ten men to Gedaliah at Mizpah. There they ate bread together. Then Ishmael and the ten men with him arose and struck Gedaliah, whom the king of Babylon appointed over the land, and all the Jews with him at Mizpah, and all the Chaldeans found there.

It came to pass on the second day after he struck Gedaliah, while no one yet knew, that eighty men came from Shechem, Salem, and Samaria with beards shaved, tearing their clothes and beating their breasts. In their hands were manna and frankincense to bring into the house of the Lord. Now Ishmael went out to meet with them, and they walked and wept. He said to them, “Come to Gedaliah.” Then it came to pass that when they entered into the midst of the city, he killed them at the well. But ten men were found there among them, and they said to Ishmael, “Do not kill us, for we have treasures of wheat, barley, honey, and oil in the field.” So he passed by and did not kill them in the midst of their brethren. Now the well into which Ishmael cast all whom he killed is the great well King Asa made for fear of Baasha king of Israel. Thus Ishmael filled this with the slain. After this, Ishmael brought back all the people left in Mizpah, including the daughter of the king whom the captain of the guard committed to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam; then he went away beyond the sons of Ammon.

But Johanan the son of Kareah and all the leaders of the army with him heard of all the evil things Ishmael did, and they brought their entire army to wage war against him. They found him near the great pool in Gibeon. 13 So it came to pass, when all the people with Ishmael saw Johanan and the leaders of the army with him, 14 they returned to Johanan. 15 But Ishmael escaped with eight men and went to the sons of Ammon. 16 Then Johanan and all the leaders of the army with him brought back all of the remaining people whom he took from Ishmael: the mighty men of war, all the women and the rest, and the eunuchs, whom they brought back from Gibeon. 17 They departed and encamped in Gaberoth-Chimham towards Bethlehem to go into Egypt, 18 away from the presence of the Chaldeans; for they were afraid of them because Ishmael killed Gedaliah, whom the king of Babylon appointed over the land.

Do Not Go to Egypt

49 All the leaders of the army, Johanan and Azariah the son of Mahseiah, and all the people, from the least to the greatest, 2 came to Jeremiah the prophet and said to him, “Let our supplication now come before your face, and pray to the Lord your God concerning those who remain, for we few are left out of the many, as your eyes see. 3 Let the Lord your God proclaim to us the way wherein we should walk and the thing we should do.” 4 Then Jeremiah said to them, “I hear you. Behold, I will pray to the Lord our God according to your words, and it shall come to pass, whatever word the Lord shall answer I will declare to you. I will not conceal any word from you.” 5 They said to Jeremiah, “Let the Lord be between us as a righteous and faithful witness, if we will do every word the Lord sends us, 6 and whether it be good or evil, we will heed the voice of the Lord our God to whom we send you, that it may be beneficial for us; for we will heed the voice of the Lord our God.”

7 So it came to pass that the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah after ten days. 8 Thus he called Johanan, and all the leaders of the army, and all the people, from the least even to the greatest, 9 and said to them, “Thus says the Lord: 10 ‘If you will indeed stay in this land, I will build you up and not pull you down. I will plant you and not pluck you up; for I will put an end to the calamities I did to you. 11 Do not be afraid of the king of Babylon, whom you fear. Do not be afraid of him,’ says the Lord, ‘because I am with you to deliver you, and to save you from his hand. 12 I will show you compassion and have mercy on you. I will return you to your land.’

13 “But if you say, ‘We will not stay in this land, so as not to heed the voice of the Lord;
for we shall go into the land of Egypt, where we will not see war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor be hungry for bread, and there we will dwell’; then hear the word of the Lord: Thus says the Lord: ‘If you have set your face to Egypt to enter and dwell there, then it shall be that the sword you feared shall find you in the land of Egypt, and the famine of which you have regard shall overtake you in Egypt; and there you shall die. So all the men and all the foreigners who set their faces to the land of Egypt to dwell there, they shall die by the sword and famine. Not one of them shall escape from the evils I will bring upon them.’

For thus says the Lord: ‘As My anger fell upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so shall My anger fall upon you when you enter Egypt. You shall be as an impassable land and under the authority of others. You shall be as a curse and a disgrace, and you shall see this place no more.’ These are the words the Lord said concerning you, O remnant of Judah: ‘Do not go to Egypt.’ So now, know this as a certainty, that you did evil in your souls when you sent to me, saying, ‘Pray for us to the Lord, and according to all the Lord speaks to you we will do.’ But you did not heed the voice of the Lord which He sent me for you. So now you shall die by the sword and by famine in the place you desire to go and dwell.”

Jeremiah Brought to Egypt

Then it came to pass, as Jeremiah ceased speaking to the people all the words of the Lord for which the Lord sent him to them, even all these words, that Azariah the son of Mahseiah, Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the men who spoke to Jeremiah said, “That is a lie. The Lord did not send you to us, saying, ‘Do not enter Egypt to dwell there.’ But Baruch the son of Neriah set you against us that you might deliver us into the hands of the Chaldeans, to kill us or to send us as captives to Babylon.” So Johanan, all the leaders of the army, and all the people refused to heed the voice of the Lord, to dwell in the land of Judah. Thus Johanan and all the leaders of the army took the entire remnant of Judah who returned to dwell in the land: the mighty men, the women and children, the daughters of the king, and the souls Nebuzaradan left with Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, together with Jeremiah the prophet and Baruch the son of Neriah. They entered Egypt; for they did not heed the voice of the Lord, but entered Tahpanhes.

Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah in Tahpanhes, saying, “Take for yourself large stones and hide them in the entrance, at the gate to the house of Pharaoh in Tahpanhes, in the sight of the men of Judah. Then you shall say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will send and bring Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon. He will set his throne upon these stones you hid and spread his weapons upon them.” Or 11He shall enter in and strike the land of Egypt. He shall deliver some for death, and those for captivity to captivity, and those for the sword to the sword. Or 12He shall kindle a fire in the houses of their gods and shall burn them. He will carry them away captive, and search the land of Egypt as a shepherd searches his garment for lice; then he shall go from there in peace. Or 13He shall break into pieces the pillars of the sun in On, and he shall burn their houses with fire.” ’ ”

The Disobedient Jews Are Judged in Egypt

The word came to Jeremiah for all the Jews dwelling in the land of Egypt and staying in Migdol, and in Tahpanhes, and in the land of Pathros, saying, Or 2“Thus says the Lord God of Israel: ‘You saw all the calamities I brought upon Jerusalem and the cities of Judah. Behold, they are desolate without inhabitants because of their evils which they committed to provoke Me, by burning incense to other gods they did not know. Or 4Yet early in the morning, I sent you My servants the prophets. I sent them, saying, “Do not do this deed of defilement which I hate.” Or 5But they did not listen to Me, nor did they incline their ear to turn from their evils of burning incense to other gods. Or 6So My wrath and anger fell upon them and was kindled in the cities of Judah and outside Jerusalem. They became as a desolation and impassable, as it is this day.’

Or 7“So now, thus says the Lord Almighty: ‘Why do you commit great evils against your souls, to cut off your man and woman, and your child and infant, from the midst of Judah? Your evils did not leave one of you as a remnant, because you provoked Me with the works of your hands by burning incense to other gods in the land of Egypt, in which you entered to dwell. You cut yourself off so as to become a curse and a disgrace among all the nations of the earth. Or 9Have you forgotten the evils of your fathers, the evils of the kings of Judah, the evils of your rulers, and the evils of your wives, which they committed in the land of Judah and outside Jerusalem? Or 10They have not ceased even to this day, nor have they cleaved to My statutes, which I gave in the presence of their fathers.’

Or 11“Therefore, thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I set My face against you to destroy all the remnant in Egypt. They shall fall by the sword and by famine; and they shall die, from the least to the greatest. They shall be as a disgrace, a destruction, and a curse. Or 13I shall visit those who dwell in the land of Egypt as I visited Jerusalem with the sword, famine, and death. Of those left in Judah and who dwell in the land of Egypt, there shall not be any of them who shall return to the land of Judah, to which they hope in their hearts to return; but only those who escape shall return.’ ”

15Then all the men who knew their wives burned incense to other gods, and all the great assembly of women, and all the people who stayed in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, answered Jeremiah, saying, "As for the word you spoke to us in the name of the Lord, we will not listen to you. For we will certainly do every word which proceeds from our mouth, to burn incense to the queen of heaven and to pour out drink-offerings to her, as we and our fathers, our kings and our princes, have done in the cities of Judah and outside Jerusalem. For we were full of bread; and we were well-off and saw no calamities. But since we stopped burning incense to the queen of heaven, we are all diminished and have died by sword and famine. But while we burned incense to the queen of heaven and poured out drink offerings to her, did we make cakes to her and pour out drink-offerings to her without our husbands?"

20Then Jeremiah spoke to all the people: the mighty men, the women, and all the people conversing with him, saying, "Did not the Lord remember the incense you burned in the cities of Judah and outside Jerusalem, you and your fathers, your kings and rulers, and the people of the land, and did it not come into His heart? The Lord could no longer bear with your evil deeds and with the abominations you committed. Thus your land became as a desolation, as impassable, and as a curse, as it is this day. Because you burned incense and sinned against the Lord, and did not heed the voice of the Lord, nor walked in His ordinances, His law, and His testimonies—therefore, these calamities came upon you.”

24Jeremiah also said to the people and to the women, "Hear the word of the Lord. Thus says the Lord God of Israel: ‘You wives spoke with your mouth and fulfilled with your hands, saying, “We will surely keep the confessions we made, to burn incense to the queen of heaven and to pour out drink offerings to her.” You certainly stood fast and performed your confessions.’ Therefore hear the word of the Lord, all Judah who dwell in the land of Egypt: ‘Behold, I swore by My great name,’ says the Lord, ‘that My name shall no more be in the mouth of everyone of Judah, to say, “The Lord and Master lives in all the land of Egypt.” For behold, I have watched over them to harm them, and not to do them good. For all the men of Judah who dwell in the land of Egypt shall die by sword and famine, until they cease to be. 28 Yet those few in number who escape the sword shall return to the land of Judah. But the remnant of Judah who stayed in the land of Egypt to dwell there shall know whose word will remain steadfast. 29 This shall be a sign for you that I will visit you for evil. 30 Thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I will give Hophra king of Egypt into the hands of his enemy and into the hands of those who seek his life, as I gave Zedekiah king of Judah into the hands of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, his enemy who sought his life.’ ”

A Promise to Baruch

31 The word Jeremiah the prophet spoke to Baruch the son of Neriah when he wrote these words in the book from the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, saying,† 32 “Thus the Lord spoke to you, O Baruch: 33 ‘Because you said, “Alas! alas! for the Lord added pain upon pain to me. I laid down in groaning, but found no rest.’ ” 34 Thus you shall say to him, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I pull down those whom I built up, and I pluck up those whom I planted. 35 So will you seek great things for yourself? Do not seek them, for behold, I will bring calamities upon all flesh,” says the Lord. “But I will give you life, as finding a treasure in every place, wherever you go.” ’ ”

The Death of Zedekiah

52 Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.† 2 Then it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came with all his army against Jerusalem. They surrounded it with a fortress and encircled it with stones.† 3 The city was besieged until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah, 4 on the ninth day of the month. The famine became severe in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land.

5 Then the city was broken through, and all the men of war went out at night by way of the gate, between the wall and the outwork, next to the garden of the king; for at the time the Chaldeans surrounded the entire city. They went by the road to Arabah. 6 But the army of the Chaldeans pursued the king and overtook him in the country beyond Jericho; and all his servants were scattered from him. 7 They took the king and brought him to the king of Babylon at Riblah; and he pronounced judgment against him. 8 In Riblah, the king of Babylon slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah and all the rulers of Judah before his eyes. 9 He blinded the eyes of Zedekiah and bound him in shackles; and the king of Babylon brought him to Babylon, and placed him in the mill house until he died.

Destruction of Jerusalem Reviewed

10 Now in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, who served before the king of Babylon, came to Jerusalem. 11 He burned the house of the Lord and the king's house, and all the houses of the city. Every great house he burned with fire. 12 Then the army of the Chaldeans, with the captain of the guard, pulled down every wall round about Jerusalem. 13 But the captain of the guard left the remnant of the people to be vinedressers and farmers.

14 The Chaldeans also broke in pieces the bronze pillars of the house of the Lord, and the pedestals and the bronze Sea in the house of the Lord, and they carried all their bronze to Babylon. 15 The captain of the guard also took away the rim, the bowl, the meat-hooks, and all the brazen vessels in which they ministered, 16 and the basins, the snuffers, the oil-funnels, the candlesticks, the censers, the golden cups, and the silver cups, 17 and two pillars, the one Sea, and the twelve bronzed calves under the Sea, which King Solomon made for the house of the Lord, and the bronze artifacts which were beyond measure.

18 As for the pillars, the height of one pillar was thirty-five cubits, and a line of twelve cubits measured the circumference. It was four fingers in thickness. 19 And a bronze border was upon them, and the length was five cubits, the height of one border. Around the capital was a network and pomegranates, all made of bronze. Similarly, the second pillar had eight pomegranates for each of the twelve cubits. 20 There were ninety-six pomegranates on each side, and all the pomegranates all around on the network were one hundred.

21 The captain of the guard took the chief priest, the second priest, and the three who kept the door, 22 and one eunuch who was over the men of war, and seven men found in the city who were renowned before the presence of the king, the scribe of the armies who communicated to the people of the land, and sixty men of the people of the land found in the midst of the city. 23 So Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard took them and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. 24 Then the king of Babylon put them to death at Riblah, in the land of Hamath.

Jehoiachin Freed from Prison

25 Now it came to pass that in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fourth day of the month, Evil-Merodach king of Babylon, in the year which he reigned, lifted up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah and brought him out from the house where he was imprisoned. 26 He spoke kindly to him and set his throne above the thrones of the kings who were with him in Babylon. 27 He also changed his prison garment, and Jehoiachin ate his food in the presence of the king all the days of his life. 28 His appointed portion was always given to him by the king of Babylon, from day to day until his death.

Author—Baruch, secretary to the prophet Jeremiah, wrote the second part of this book, from 3:9 to the end. The beginning records the words of a Jewish community in exile in Babylon. The Book of Baruch was compiled sometime after the exile took place.

Date—Written sometime after the siege of Jerusalem in 586 BC. The initial message was given in 581.

Theme—Baruch is the story of a Jewish community that repents. Throughout Jeremiah's prophetic ministry as recounted in his book, the Jews hardened their hearts to his words. Here we see a community in exile that responds from the heart to the call to repentance. In eschatological terms, the community represents the Church, those who hear the call of God, confess their sins, and come to Him. The book is best read as a story of the relationship between God and His people.

Background—After Jerusalem was sacked and the leaders of Judah were deported, the Jews established communities in territory occupied by Babylon. In this new situation of exile, the Jewish community, now without the temple and a political home, established connections with other Jews across Babylon. Here we meet Baruch coming from Egypt to a community, calling on them to soften their hearts and return in obedience to the Lord. They do so and send an offering to the Jews who remain near Jerusalem.

Outline

I. Historical Information (1:1–12)

II. Corporate Confession and Prayer for Deliverance for Jews in Jerusalem (1:13–3:8)

III. God's Gift of Wisdom to Israel (3:9–4:3)

IV. Poem of Comfort and Restoration (4:4–5:9)

Now these are the words of the book written by Baruch, the son of Neriah, the son of Mahseiah, the son of Zedekiah, the son of Hasadiah, the son of Hilkiah, while in Babylon, in the fifth year, on the seventh day of the month, at the time the Chaldeans took Jerusalem and burned it with fire.

A Gathering of the Exiles in Babylon.
And Baruch read the words of this book to Jechoniah the son of Joachim, king of Judah, and to all the people who came to hear the book to the nobles and the sons of the kings, to the elders and all the people from small to great, and to everyone dwelling in Babylon by the river Sud. Then they wept and fasted and prayed before the Lord. They took up a collection of silver, as each was able to give, and sent it to Jerusalem to Joachim the high priest, son of Hilkiah, son of Salom, and to the priests and to all the people found with him in Jerusalem. At the same time, on the tenth day of the month Sivan, Baruch took the silver vessels of the house of the Lord fashioned by Zedekiah the son of Josiah, king of Judah, in order to return them to the land of Judah, those vessels previously taken away from the temple when Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried away Jechoniah and the princes, along with the captives, the powerful men, and the people of the land, and had brought them from Jerusalem into exile in Babylon.

Gifts for Worship in Jerusalem

And they said, “Behold, we send you silver. With it, buy whole burnt offerings and sin offerings and incense, and prepare bread, and offer them upon the altar of the Lord our God. And pray for the life of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and his son Belshazzar, that their days on earth may be like the days of heaven. And the Lord will give us strength and enlighten our eyes, and we will live under the shelter of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and under the shelter of Belshazzar his son, and we will serve them for many days and find mercy in their sight.

Israel's Confession

Pray for us to the Lord our God, because we have sinned against the Lord our God. Even to this day the wrath of the Lord and His anger is not turned away from us. And you shall read this book which we are sending to you, in order to make confession in the house of the Lord on the feast days and on the solemn days.

And you shall say, ‘To the Lord our God belongs righteousness, but for us shame is on our faces, as it is this day for the people of Judah and to those inhabiting Jerusalem, and for our kings, for our rulers, for our priests, for our prophets, and for our fathers, who have sinned before the Lord. We have disobeyed Him and have refused to heed the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in the ordinances of the Lord, which He gave to us openly. Since the day the Lord led our fathers out of the land of Egypt until this day, we have been disobedient toward Him and neglected to heed His voice.†

The Consequences of Israel's Sin

So to this day evils cling to us, even the curse which the Lord set forth through His servant Moses in the day He led our fathers out of the land of Egypt to give us the land flowing with milk and honey. 21 We did not heed the voice of the Lord our God in all the words of the prophets whom He sent to us. 22 Instead, each one has followed the imaginations of his own wicked heart, to serve strange gods and to do evil deeds in the sight of the Lord our God.†

‘So the Lord confirmed His word which He proclaimed against us, and against our judges who judged Israel, and our kings and rulers, and against every man of Israel and Judah.

As can be seen in what was written in the law of Moses, there has been nothing comparable anywhere, under all the heavens, as to that which has been done in Jerusalem: 3 that a man eat the flesh of his son and the flesh of his daughter.†† 4 He put them under subjection to all the kingdoms around us, to be a reproach and a desolation among all the nations around about us where the Lord scattered them. 5 And because we sinned against the Lord our God and did not obey His voice, we have been brought low and have not been exalted.†

To the Lord our God belongs righteousness, but to us and our fathers shame on our faces, as at this day. 7 All these calamities that the Lord proclaimed against us have come upon us. 8 But we did not pray before the presence of the Lord, to turn each one away from the purposes of his wicked heart. 9 And the Lord has watched over the evils, and the Lord brings these upon us, for the Lord is righteous in all His works which He commands us.† 10 But we have not obeyed His voice, to conduct our lives in those commandments of the Lord that He set before us.

A Plea for Mercy and Deliverance

‘And now, O Lord God of Israel, who with a mighty hand led Your people out of the land of Egypt with signs and wonders, with great power and with outstretched arm, and made a name for Yourself then, as it continues to this day, 12 we have sinned and acted ungodly, we have acted unrighteously, O Lord our God, against all Your commandments. 13 Let Your wrath turn away from us, for only a few of us remain within the nations where You scattered us.

O Lord, hear our prayer and our petition, and for Your own sake deliver us, and grant us mercy before those who have carried us into exile, in order that the whole earth may come to know that You are the Lord our God, for Israel and his descendants are called by Your name.

O Lord, look down from Your holy house and consider us. O Lord, incline Your ear and hear us. O Lord, open Your eyes and behold, for the dead who are in Hades, whose spirit is taken from their bodies, will not ascribe glory and righteousness to the Lord; but the person who is greatly distressed, who walks bent over, who is ailing and going blind, and the person who hungers—these will give glory and righteousness to You, O Lord. It is not because of the righteous acts of our fathers or our kings that we lay before You our humble plea, O Lord our God, for You sent down Your anger and wrath upon us, as You have said through the hand of Your servants the prophets, saying, “Thus says the Lord: ‘Bend your shoulder and serve the king of Babylon, and remain in the land I gave to your fathers. But if you do not heed the voice of the Lord, to serve the king of Babylon, I shall cause to cease from the cities of Judah and from outside Jerusalem the sound of gladness, the voice of joyfulness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride. The whole land will become desolate of inhabitants.’ ”

But we did not obey Your voice, to serve the king of Babylon, and You carried out Your words which you spoke by Your servants the prophets, that the bones of our kings and the bones of our fathers would be carried out from their place. And behold, they have been cast forth in the heat of the day and the frost of the night, and they died in grievous pains by famine and by the sword and by pestilence. And You laid to waste the house called by Your name, as it is this day, because of the wickedness of the house of Israel and the house of Judah.

Recalling the Promises of God.

Even so, O Lord our God, You have dealt with us according to all Your goodness and great mercy, just as You spoke through Your servant Moses on the day You commanded him to write Your law in the presence of the sons of Israel, saying, “If you do not obey My voice, truly this very great multitude of people will become a small number amidst all the nations where I shall scatter them. 30 For I knew they would not obey Me, because they are a stiff-necked people. But in the land of their exile their hearts will turn back, 31 and they will know that I am the Lord their God, and I will give them a heart and ears that obey; 32 and they will praise Me in the land of their exile and will remember My name. 33 They will turn from their stubbornness and their evil deeds; for they shall remember the way of their fathers, who sinned against the Lord. 34 And I shall bring them again to the land I swore to their fathers—to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—and they will rule over it, and I will multiply their numbers, and they will not be diminished. 35 And I shall establish an everlasting covenant with them to be their God, and they will be My people; I shall never again remove My people Israel from the land I give to them.”

‘O Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, a soul in straits and a spirit of weariness cries out to You. 2 Hear, O Lord, and have mercy, for we have sinned against You. 3 You endure forever, but we are perishing forever. 4 O Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, hear the prayer of the dead of Israel and of the sons who have sinned against You, who have not obeyed the voice of the Lord their God, so calamities have clung to us. 5 Do not remember the wrongdoings of our fathers, but remember Your hand and Your name in this time. 6 For You are the Lord our God, and You we will praise, O Lord. 7 On account of this You granted in our hearts the fear of You, to call upon Your name, and we shall praise You in our exile, because we will turn away from our hearts all the iniquities of our fathers who sinned against You. 8 Behold, today we are in our exile, where You have scattered us to be a reproach and a curse and a punishment for all the iniquities of our fathers, who fell away from the Lord our God.’”

The Way of Wisdom.

9 Hear, O Israel, the commandments of life; give ear to know wisdom. 10 Why is it, O Israel, that you are in the land of your enemies, that you have grown old in a foreign land, 11 that you are defiled with the dead and counted among those in Hades? 12 You have forsaken the fountain of wisdom. 13 If you had walked in the way of God, you would have dwelt in peace forever. 14 Learn where wisdom is, where strength is, where understanding is, so at the same time you may know where length of days and life are, where peace is and the light of the eyes. 15 Who has found her place? Who has entered into her treasures?

16 Where are the rulers of the nations and those who ruled over the wild animals of the those who sport with the birds of the air and those hoarding silver and gold, in which trust (and there is no end to the acquisition of these),† 18 those who scheme to obtain silver and are anxious, whose works are unsearchable? 19 They vanish and descend into Hades, and others have risen up to take their place.

20 Young men have seen the light and dwelt in the land, but they have not known the way of knowledge, † 21 nor practiced it, nor understood her paths; their sons are far from her path.
22 It has not been heard in Canaan, nor seen in Tamar; 23 the sons of Hagar, who seek understanding on the earth, the merchants of Merra and of Tamar, the storytellers and those who search out understanding—none of these have learned the way of wisdom nor remember her paths. They do not know.

24 O Israel, how great is the house of God, and how far-reaching the place He possesses! †
25 It is great and has no end; it is high and immeasurable. 26 The giants born there, those renowned from the beginning, being very large in size and skilled in war; † 27 God did not choose them nor grant them the way of knowledge. 28 Instead, they perished because they failed to attain to wisdom; they perished through their thoughtless counsel.

The Author of Wisdom

29 Who has gone up into heaven and taken hold of her, and brought her down from the clouds? † 30 Who has crossed the sea and found her, and brought her back for pure gold? 31 No one knows her way, nor does anyone ponder her path. 32 But the One who knows all things knows her; He has found her by His understanding—He who formed the earth for all time, who filled it with four-footed creatures; 33 the One who sends forth the light and it goes out;
the One who calls to it, and it obeys with fear. 34 The stars shone in their watches and rejoiced. 35 He called them and they said, “Here we are!” They shone with gladness for Him who made them. 36 This is our God; no other shall be compared to Him.ω 37 He found the whole way of knowledge and gave it to Jacob His servant and to Israel His beloved. † 38 Afterwards, He was seen upon the earth and lived among men.

Wisdom and the Law of God

She is the book of the commandments of God and the law that endures forever. All those who keep her will live, but those forsaking her will die. 2 Return, O Jacob, and take hold of her. Walk toward the radiance of the presence of her light. 3 Do not give your glory to another or the things that are of advantage to you to a foreign nation.

Jerusalem Speaks to Her Children

4 O Israel, we are blessed, for what is pleasing to our God is known to us. 5 Be of good courage, my people, O memorial of Israel. 6 You were sold to the nations, not for destruction, but you were handed over to the enemies because you provoked God. 7 You provoked Him who created you by sacrificing to demons and not to God. 8 You forgot the eternal God, who nursed you, and you grieved Jerusalem, which nourished you. 9 For she saw the wrath coming upon you from God, and she said, "Give heed, neighbors of Zion, God has brought upon me great sorrow," 10 for I see the exile of my sons and my daughters which the Eternal One brought upon them. 11 With joy I raised them, but with weeping and sorrow I sent them away. 12 Let no one rejoice over me, a widow and forsaken of many. I was made desolate on account of the sins of my children, because they turned away from the Law of God. 13 And they did not know His ordinances, nor walk in the ways of the commandments of God, nor did they walk on the paths of discipline in His righteousness.

14 "Let the neighbors of Zion come, and let them remember the exile of my sons and my daughters, which the Eternal One brought upon them. 15 He brought a nation from afar against them, a shameless nation speaking a strange language, which does not respect the elderly nor pity the young child. 16 They led away the widow's beloved sons and left her who was alone destitute without daughters. 17 But how can I be of help to you? 18 For He who brought these calamities upon you will deliver you from the hand of your enemies. 19 Go, my children, go; for I am left desolate. 20 I have taken off the robe of peace and clothed myself in the sackcloth of my prayer. I will cry out to the Eternal One in my days.

21 "O my children, take courage, cry out to God, and He will deliver you from the power and the hand of the enemies. 22 For I hope upon the Eternal One to save you, and the joy from the Holy One comes to me, because mercy will soon come to you from the Eternal One, your Savior. 23 For I sent you out with sorrow and weeping, but with joy and gladness God will restore you to me forever. 24 For just as the neighbors of Zion have now seen your exile, so too they will soon see your salvation from your God, which will come upon you with great glory and the radiance of the Eternal One."
"My children, endure in patience the wrath that has come upon you from God. Your enemy has pursued you diligently, but soon you will see his destruction, and you will tread upon their necks. My pampered ones have been made to walk rough roads; they were carried off like a flock seized by enemies. Take courage, my children, and cry out to God, for you will be remembered by Him who brought this upon you. For just as you purposed to go astray from God, now having returned, seek Him with tenfold zeal. For the One who brought these calamities upon you will bring you everlasting joy with your salvation."

Jerusalem Is Comforted

Take courage, O Jerusalem, for He who named you will comfort you. Wretched are those who mistreated you and rejoiced at your fall. Wretched are the cities in which your children served as slaves. Wretched is she who took your sons. For just as she took pleasure in your ruin and rejoiced over your fall, so shall she be grieved at her own desolation. I shall take away from her the rejoicing of her great multitude, and her arrogance will become sorrow. For fire will come upon her from the Eternal One for many days, and she will be inhabited by demons for a long time.

O Jerusalem, look eastward, and see the joy that is coming to you from God. Behold, your sons whom you sent away are coming, gathered together from the east to the west by the word of the Holy One, rejoicing in the glory of God.

O Jerusalem, take off the garment of your sorrow and your oppression, and put on the beauty from the God of glory forever. Put around you the double robe of righteousness from God; set upon your head the diadem of the glory of the Eternal One. For God will show your brightness to every nation under heaven, for your name will forever be called by God the Peace of Righteousness and the Glory of Godliness.

Arise, O Jerusalem, stand upon the heights and look eastward, and behold your children being gathered together by the word of the Holy One, rejoicing in the remembrance of God. For they went out from you on foot, being led away by their enemies. But God will return them being carried back with glory, as on the throne of a kingdom. For God commanded every high mountain and the everlasting hills to be made low, and all the valleys to be filled until made level, so that Israel may walk safely in the glory of God; and at the command of God, the woods and every fragrant tree have shaded Israel. 9 For God will lead Israel with joy in the light of His glory, with mercy and righteousness that come from Him.

The Lamentations of Jeremiah

Author—Jeremiah the prophet

Date—Written during the three months following the destruction of Jerusalem (October, 587 BC) and before Jeremiah was taken captive to Egypt in December of the same year.

Major Themes—God's judgment of the people's sins and His unfathomable love and sorrow for Israel. This is Jeremiah's personal testimonial and lament over the devastation of Jerusalem and the temple. The prophet maintains there is still hope for repentance and restoration. Consistent with his previous and later messages, here he instructs the suffering Jews not to despise God's punishment but to repent, confessing their sins and seeking forgiveness and deliverance.

Background—The destruction of Jerusalem has just occurred, and the people have been taken away as captives to Babylon. God continually forewarned them about these specific events through Jeremiah and His other prophets. The Lord had sent many prophecies about His punishment of those who would not keep His commandments. Jeremiah witnessed the destruction and laments over the loss of the people, the temple, and the city. The book contains five psalms.

Outline

I. The Psalmist and the Daughter of Zion Lament the Destruction of Jerusalem amid Ruin and Misery (1:1–22)
II. The Psalmist and the Daughter of Zion Describe the Day of the Lord (2:1–22)
III. Individual Lament: Affliction and Hope (3:1–62)
IV. Communal Lament: Meditations in a Ruined City (4:1–22)
V. Communal Prayer for Deliverance (5:1–22)

Now it came to pass that after Israel was taken captive and Jerusalem became desolate, Jeremiah sat weeping; and he lamented this song of grief over Jerusalem and said:†

† "How does the city now sit alone,
She who was full of people?
She has become like a widow,
She who was multiplied among the nations,
She who was ruling among the countries.
She has become subject to tribute.

2 "She weeps bitterly in the night;
She sheds tears on her cheeks.
Yet among all her lovers there is no one who comforts her.
All who love her have dealt treacherously with her.
They have become her enemies.

2 "Judea has gone into captivity
Because of her humiliation and harsh servitude.
She dwells among the Gentiles;
She finds no rest.
All who pursue her overtake her in the midst of her distress.

4 "The roads of Zion mourn,
Because no one comes to the feast.
All her gates are destroyed,
Her priests groan,
Her virgins are led away,
And she is embittered in herself.

5 "Her oppressors have become the master,
And her enemies prosper;
For the Lord humbled her
Because of the greatness of her ungodliness.
Her infants have gone into captivity in the presence of the oppressor.

6 "From the daughter of Zion
All her beauty has departed.
Her princes have become like rams
That find no pasture,
And they journey in weakness
Before the face of the pursuer.

5 "Jerusalem remembers her days of humiliation and rejection.
She remembers all her objects of desire,
What she had in days of old,
When her people fell into the hand of the oppressor,
When there was no one to help her.
When her enemies saw this, they laughed at her deportation.‡

8 “Jerusalem sinned grievously;
Therefore, she became a storm-tossed sea.
All who glorified her have humiliated her,
For they saw her shameful acts,
And indeed, she groans and turns away.†

9 “Her uncleanness is at her feet.
She did not remember her last things,
And she lowered her boasting tone.
There is no one who comforts her.
‘O Lord, behold my humiliation,
For the enemy has been exalted.’

10 “The oppressor has spread his hand
Over all the objects of her desire,
For she sees the Gentiles entering her sanctuary,
Those whom You commanded not to enter Your church.

11 “All her people groan
And seek for bread.
They gave the objects of their desire for food
To stay alive.
‘O Lord, behold, and have regard for me,
For I am treated shamefully.’‡

12 ‘All you who pass by, do not turn away,
And see if there is any pain like my pain
Which has happened to me.
The Lord who spoke by me
Humiliated me in the day of His fierce anger.

13 ‘From His lofty place He sent fire
And brought it into my bones.
He spread a net for my feet
And turned me back.
He caused me to perish
And to be in great pain all the day.

14 ‘He kept watch on my profane acts;
They are entangled together with my hands;
They come up about my neck.

My strength weakens,

For the Lord has caused my hands to be in pain.

I shall be unable to stand.

"The Lord drove off all my mighty ones from my midst.

He summoned an appointed time against me

To crush my chosen men.

The Lord trod a winepress for the virgin daughter of Judah,

And for these I weep.

"My eyes pour down tears,

For He who comforts me

And restores my soul

Is gone far from me.

My children have perished

Because the enemy has prevailed."

"Zion has spread out her hands,

But there is no one who comforts her.

The Lord commanded concerning Jacob;

His oppressors are around him,

And Jerusalem has become as an unclean woman in their midst.

"The Lord is righteous,

For I provoked His mouth.

Hear now, all peoples,

And behold my pain;

For My virgins and my young men have gone into captivity."

"I called my lovers,

But they deceived me.

My priests and my elders

Ended their life in the city,

For they sought food for themselves

To revive their lives;

But they found none.

"Behold, O Lord, for I am afflicted.

My stomach is troubled,

And my heart is upset within me;"
For I have rebelled exceedingly.
From without, the sword has deprived me of my children,
As death has here at home.

"Hear now, because I groan;
There is no one who comforts me.
All my enemies heard of my calamities,
And they rejoiced,
Because You brought it about.
You brought on the day;
You set the appointed time,
For they have become like me.

"So let all their evil come before Your face,
And do to them as they did to me
Concerning all my sins.
My groaning is great,
And my heart is grieved."

"How did the Lord darken The daughter of Zion in His wrath?
He cast down the glory of Israel
From heaven to earth,
And did not remember His footstool
In the day of His wrath.
"The Lord has swallowed up and not spared
All the beauty of Jacob.
In His anger, He brought down the strongholds
Of the daughter of Judah.
He brought them down to the ground;
He desecrated her king and its princes.

In fierce anger, He broke off every horn of Israel
And drew back His right hand
From the face of the enemy.
He blazed against Jacob like a flaming fire,
And it devoured everything all around.
"He bent His bow like an enemy
And strengthened His right hand like an adversary.
He put to death all the objects of my desire,
And poured out His anger like a fire
On the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion.
5 “The Lord became like an enemy
And swallowed up Israel.
He brought down all his palaces,
Destroyed his strongholds,
And multiplied shame and humiliation
In the daughter of Judah.

6 “He opened and spread out His tabernacle like a vine
And destroyed His feast.
The Lord forgot His festivals and the Sabbath
Which He appointed in Zion,
And in the fury of His wrath
He provoked king, priest, and prince.

2 “The Lord rejected His altar
And abandoned His sanctuary.
By the hand of the enemy,
He broke in pieces the wall of her palaces.
They uttered their voice in the house of the Lord
As on a feast day.

8 “The Lord turned to destroy
The wall of the daughter of Zion.
He stretched out a measuring line
And has not turned back His hand from trampling her.
Therefore the bulwark mourned,
And the wall weakened with it.

2 “Her gates sank into the ground,
And He destroyed and broke her bars.
Her king and her princes are among the Gentiles,
And the Law is no more;
And indeed, her prophets see no vision from the Lord.

20 “The elders of the daughter of Zion
Sit on the ground and keep silence.
They throw dust on their heads
And gird themselves with sackcloth.
They have brought down to the ground
The leading virgins in Jerusalem.
ě “My eyes fail with tears,
And my heart is troubled.
My glory is poured out upon the ground
At the destruction of the daughter of my people,
While the child and the nursing infants
Faint in streets of the city.
ě “They say to their mothers,
‘Where is the wheat and wine?’
While they faint like the wounded
In the streets of the city,
While their lives are being poured out
In their mothers’ bosom.ć
ě “What shall I testify to you,
Or what shall I compare to you,
O daughter of Jerusalem?
Who will save and comfort you,
O virgin daughter of Zion?
For the cup of your destruction is great;
Who shall heal you?
ě “Your prophets have seen foolishness
And worthless things for you,
But they did not reveal your wrongdoing
So as to turn back your captivity.
Instead, they saw worthless burdens
And banishment for you.
ć “All who pass by clap their hands at you,
And they hiss and shake their head
At the daughter of Jerusalem.
‘Is this the city they call
The crown of glory,
The joy of all the earth?’ć
ě “All your enemies have opened their mouths against you;
They hiss and gnash their teeth.
They say, 'We have swallowed her up!
Besides, this is the day we have looked for;
We have found it; we have seen it.'

"The Lord has done what He purposed;
He has carried out His words
Which He commanded in days of old.
He pulled down, and has not spared,
And has caused the enemy to rejoice over you.
He has exalted the horn of those who oppress you.

Their heart cried out to the Lord,
'O wall of Zion,
Pour down tears like torrents, day and night;
Give yourself no relief;
May your eyes have no rest, O daughter.

'Arise, rejoice in the night,
At the beginning of your watch.
Pour out your heart like water
Before the face of the Lord,
And lift your hands up to Him
For the life of your infants,
Who grow weak in hunger
On the corner of every street.'

'Behold, O Lord, and look
For whom You have gathered thus.
Shall the women eat the fruit of their womb?
The cook has made a gleaning;
Shall the infants who nurse the breasts be put to death?
Will you kill priest and prophet
In the sanctuary of the Lord?
'The child and the old man
Sleep in the street.
My virgins and my young men
Have gone into captivity.
You killed them with sword and famine
In the day of Your wrath;
You massacred and have not spared.

‘He called my sojourner round about me to a feast day.

There was no one who escaped, or were left

In the day of the Lord's wrath,

As I strengthened and multiplied

All my enemies.'

*I am the man who sees poverty By the rod of His anger upon me.

He took me and led me away

Into darkness, and not into light.

Surely He has turned His hand against me

Throughout the day.

‘He has aged my flesh and my skin

And has broken my bones.

He has besieged me

And surrounded my head;

He has worn me down with hardships.

He set me in dark places

As those long dead.

‘He hedged me in,

And I cannot come forth;

He made my brazen chain heavy.

Though I will call and cry out,

He shuts out my prayer.

He has blocked my ways

And obstructed my paths;

He has troubled me.

‘He is a bear lying in wait for me

Like a lion in a hidden place.

After I departed, He eagerly pursued and caught me;

He has utterly ruined me.

He bent his bow

And set me up as a target for the arrow.

‘He caused the arrows of His quiver

To pierce my loins.

I became a laughingstock to all my people,
And their song all the day.

He has filled me with bitterness
And drenched me with gall.

"He also broke my teeth with gravel
And fed me with ashes.

He took away peace from my soul,
And I have forgotten the good things.

Therefore I said, 'My victory and my hope
Have perished from the Lord.'

"I remembered by reason of my poverty,
And because of my persecution, I remembered my bitterness and gall.

My soul shall remember
And meditate within me.

I will fix this in my heart;
Therefore, I will endure.

"The Lord is good to those who wait for Him,
To the soul who will seek Him, the Good One.†

He will wait for and quietly expect
The salvation of the Lord.

It is good for a man when he takes up
A yoke in his youth.

"He will sit alone and be silent,
Because he bears it on himself.

He will give his cheek to the one who strikes him,
And he will be filled with insults.

Yet the Lord shall not reject him forever.

"For He who humbles will have compassion
According to the abundance of His mercy.

For He does not afflict willingly,
Though He humbles the children of men.

"To humble all the prisoners of the earth
Under His feet,

"To turn aside the judgment of a man
Before the face of the Most High,

And to condemn a man
Before he is judged,
The Lord does not command.

Who thus speaks,
And it comes to pass?
The Lord has not commanded it,

“For evil and good shall not proceed
From the mouth of the Most High.

Why should a living man complain,
A man concerning his sin?

Our way has been searched out and examined;
Therefore we shall turn to the Lord.

“Let us lift our hearts and our hands
To the Most High in heaven.

We have sinned and acted in an ungodly way;
Thus You have not shown us mercy.

But You visited us in anger
And drove us away.
You have put us to death
And not spared us.

“You veiled Yourself with a cloud
Because of our prayer.

To close my eyes and to reject me,
You have placed us in the midst of the peoples.

All our enemies have opened
Their mouth against us.

“Fear and anger have come upon us,
Yes, devastation and destruction.

My eyes will shed tears for forgiveness
Because of the destruction of the daughter of my people.

My eyes are drowned with tears,
And I will not keep silent;
So there shall be no rest,

“Until the Lord bends down
And sees from heaven.

My eyes will bring suffering in my soul
Because of all the daughters of the city.

4 My enemies hunted me down
Without cause, like a sparrow.

42 “They put my life to death in the pit
And threw a stone at me.

4 Water flowed over my head;
I said, ‘I am rejected.’

41 I called on Your name, O Lord,
From the lowest pit.

4 “You heard my voice;
Do not hide Your ears from my supplication.

4 You drew near at my call on the day I called upon You.
You said to me, ‘Do not fear.’

4 O Lord, You pleaded the case for my soul;
You redeemed my life.

45 “O Lord, You saw my troubles;
You judged my cause.

4 You saw all their vengeance
In all their reasoning against me.

4 You heard their taunts
And all their plots against me,

4 “And the lips of those who rose up against me,
And their meditations against me all the day.

4 Look at their eyes
As they sit down and rise up.

4 You shall render a recompense to them, O Lord,
According to the works of their hands.

4 You shall repay them as a covering
Your hardship for them.

4 You shall pursue them in Your wrath and utterly destroy them
From under heaven, O Lord.

4 “How will gold lose its brightness
And fine silver become tarnished?
The stones of the sanctuary are scattered
At the head of every street.”
The honored sons of Zion,
Valuable as gold,
How are they now regarded as clay pots,
The works of a potter’s hands?

Even the serpents uncover their breasts
To nurse their young;
But the daughters of my people are cruel,
Like an ostrich in the desert.†

The tongue of the nursing child cleaves
To the roof of its mouth for thirst.
The young children beg for bread,
But no one breaks it for them.

Those who ate delicacies
Perish in the streets;
Those brought up on the best food
Are clothed with dung.

The lawlessness of the daughter of My people
Is greater than the lawlessness of Sodom,
Which was overthrown in a moment,
And there was no one to help her.‡

Her Nazirites were purer than snow;
They shone more brightly than milk;
They were purified as with fire;
Their polishing was superior to sapphire stones.‡

Now their appearance is blacker than soot;
They go unrecognized in the streets;
Their skin clings to their bones;
It is withered and has become as dry as wood.

Those slain by the sword are better off
Than those who die of hunger,
Deprived of the fruits of the field.

The hands of compassionate women
Cooked their children;
They became food for them
In the destruction of the daughter of my people.
2 "The Lord has fulfilled His anger;
He has poured out His fierce wrath.
He has kindled a fire in Zion,
And it devoured her foundations.

2 "The kings of the earth
And all inhabitants in the world
Would not believe
That the enemy and oppressor
Could enter through the gates of Jerusalem.

2 "For the sins of her prophets
And the lawlessness of her priests,
Who shed righteous blood in her midst,†

2 "Her watchmen wandered in the streets.
They were defiled with blood in their weakness
And stained their garments with it.

2 "Depart from the unclean.
Call to them, 'Depart! Depart!
Do not touch us!'
For they are set on fire and indeed wander.
Say among the Gentiles,
'Let them not live here.'

2 "Their portion shall not continue
To enjoy the Lord's presence,
When He looked upon them with favor.
For they did not respect the person of the priests,
Nor did they show mercy to the elders.‡

2 "While we yet lived,
Our eyes failed us
As we looked in vain for help.
We kept watching intently
For a nation that could not save us.

2 "We hunted for our little ones
So they would not walk in our streets.
Our appointed time is near,
Our days are fulfilled;
Our time is come.

“*Our pursuers were swifter

Than the eagles of the sky.

They perched on the mountains

And lay in wait for us in the desert.

“The breath of our nostrils, the Anointed of the Lord,

Was seized in their corruption,

Of whom we said, ‘Under His shadow

We shall live among the nations.”

“Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom,

Who dwell in the land.

For indeed the cup of the Lord shall pass through to you,

And you shall become drunk and be poured out.

“O daughter of Zion, your lawlessness has come to an end;

He will not continue your exile.

He has been concerned about your lawlessness,

O daughter of Edom;

He has revealed your profane acts.

5 “O Lord, remember what happened to us;

Look upon us with favor

And see our disgrace.”

Our inheritance has been turned over to foreigners,

And our homes to strangers.

We have become orphans and have no father;

Our mothers are as widows.

“We pay for the water we drink,

And our wood comes at a price.

We are pursued at our heels;

We have labored;

We have no rest.”

Egypt gave us a hand,

Assyria to their satisfaction.

“Our fathers sinned and are no more;

We suffered from their lawless actions.

Servants rule over us;
There is no one to redeem us from their hand.

We will bring in our bread
At the risk of our lives
From the presence of the sword in the desert.

“Our skin has become blackened as an oven.
They are shriveled up from the stormy wind of famine.

They humbled the women in Zion,
The virgins in the cities of Judah.

Princes were hung up by their hands,
And elders were not honored.
The chosen men took up weeping,
And the young men weakened under the loads of wood.

Elders also ceased to gather at the gate;
The chosen men ceased to sing their psalms.

“The joy of our heart has ceased;
Our dance has turned into mourning.

The crown fell from our head;
Woe to us, because we sinned!

Because of this, our heart has become painful;
Because of this, our eyes have remained in darkness.

On Mount Zion, because it is desolate,
Foxes pass through it.

“But You, O Lord, shall dwell forever,
Your throne from generation to generation.

Why will You utterly forget us?
Will You forsake us for so long a time?

Turn us back to You, O Lord,
And we shall be converted;
Renew our days as before.

For You have indeed rejected us,
And are exceedingly angry with us.”

The Epistle of Jeremiah

Author—Jeremiah the prophet

Date—Written in the aftermath of the sack of Jerusalem (597 BC) and the exile to Babylon of her leaders, probably from Egypt.

Major Theme—Beware of idols!

Background—The epistle is a diatribe against the sin of idolatry as represented by the Baal cult. Jeremiah wrote to the Israelites to exhort and warn them to be free of a sin that must have been on the increase at this time. Because the epistle has very little historical information, it became timeless and was used by certain Church Fathers to combat pagan errors and superstitions practiced in their own day. The epistle conveys a message that heresy and false ideas about God are both ridiculous and untenable.

Outline

I. Historical Information (vv. 1–6)

II. Condemnation of Idolatry (vv. 7–73)
   A. Idols adorned like people (vv. 7–14)
   B. Uselessness and helplessness of idols (vv. 15–24)
   C. Idols cannot move (vv. 25–28)
   D. Idols cannot repay good or evil; they cannot give wealth, save, or heal (vv. 29–39)
   E. The Chaldeans even bring shame upon their own idols (vv. 40–44)
   F. Idols are the works of human hands (vv. 45–52)
   G. Idols are powerless (vv. 53–57)
   H. Idols cannot be compared to the sun, moon, stars, animals, etc. (vv. 58–69)
   I. Idols compared to scarecrows, brambles, and a corpse (vv. 70–73)

The copy of an epistle Jeremiah sent to those being led away as captives to Babylon by the king of the Babylonians, to proclaim a message to them, as it was commanded him by God.

1Because of the sins you committed in the sight of God, you will be led away to Babylon as captives by Nebuchadnezzar, king of the Babylonians. 2After you enter Babylon, you will remain there many years, even a long time, as many as seven generations. But after this, I shall lead you from that place with peace. Now in Babylon you will see gods of silver, gold, and wood carried upon shoulders as displays of fear to the Gentiles. Therefore do not reverence them, lest you become like the foreigners, and fear also seizes you because of them. When you see a multitude worshiping them, both in front of and behind them. But say in your mind, “One must worship You, O Lord.” For My angel is with all of you, and he is searching your souls.

Idols Dressed Like People

Indeed their tongue is polished by a craftsman, and they are plated with silver and gold. But they are false and unable to speak. As though for a virgin, they take gold and prepare crowns upon the heads of their gods. But there are times when the priests will rob the silver and gold from their gods and spend them on themselves, and also give some of them to the prostitutes in their chamber. So they adorn them—these gods of silver, gold, and wood—with clothing like humans, but they cannot preserve themselves against scum and moth.

After they clothe them with a purple garment, they wipe their face because of the dust from the temple, which is thick upon them. One of them holds a scepter, like the judge of a country who does not put to death the one who sins against him. Another holds a dagger in his right hand and a battleax itself, but he cannot defend himself from war and robbers. From this, it is evident they are not gods; therefore, do not fear them.

Useless, Lifeless

For as the vessel of a man is shattered and becomes useless, such are their gods as they sit in their temples. Their eyes are full of dust from the feet of those who enter. As courtyards are fenced all around against someone who offends a king, and thus is awaiting the death penalty, so the priests also fortify the temples of their gods with doors, bars, and bolts, lest they be plundered by robbers. Although their gods cannot see for themselves, they burn many lamps for them. Indeed, as the saying goes, the gods are like a wooden beam in their temple, for their hearts are eaten out by the creeping things of the earth, which devour both them and their clothing; and the face of their idols is blackened by the smoke from the temple; yet all this goes unnoticed. Bats, swallows, and other birds also perch on their body and head, and even cats likewise sit there. So know from this that they are not gods; therefore, do not fear them.

23 As for the gold worn by the idols for beauty, unless someone wipes off the scum, it does not shine; neither did they notice this when they were formed. 24 Although they are bought at a high price, there is no spirit in them. 25 Since they are without feet, they must be carried on the shoulders of others, which demonstrates the disgrace of these idols before mankind. Moreover, those who serve them are put to shame, because if the idol happens to fall to the ground, it must be lifted up by them. 26 Even if someone should stand it upright, it would not move by itself, nor if it were bent over, it would not straighten up; yet gifts are offered to it by them as to the dead. 27 But the priests sell their sacrifices to make full use of this money for themselves. Likewise even their wives preserve the meat offered them, though neither the poor nor the lame are given a share; and even a woman in her menstruation, or one just giving birth, touches them. 28 Since you know from this that they are not gods, therefore, do not fear them.

False Priests

29 How then can these be called gods? For women serve offerings to these gods of silver, gold, and wood. 30 Even the priests sit in their temples, and their clothes are torn. Their heads and beards are also closely shaven and uncovered as they roar and shout before their gods, as some do at a feast. 31 The priests take the garments of their idols to clothe their wives and children. 32 Whether these gods may suffer evil by someone or even good, they will not be able to repay either. Even more, they are not capable of raising up a king, nor do they have the power to remove one. 33 Likewise they are unable to give wealth or money to anyone. Moreover if someone makes a vow to them but does not pay it, they will not seek payment from him. 34 They cannot deliver a man from death, nor rescue the weak from the strong. 35 They cannot restore the sight of a blind man, nor rescue someone in distress, nor deliver anyone in trouble. 36 They cannot show mercy to a widow, nor do good to the orphan. 37 These wooden idols, plated with silver and gold, are likened to stones on a mountain, and those who serve them will be put to shame. 38 How then can anyone suppose them to be gods, or call them such?

Undiscerning Chaldeans

40 Besides, even the Chaldeans themselves dishonor them, for when they see someone without the power of speech, they bring him to Bel. They consider it worthy to call out to him, as though he could understand. 41 Yet they themselves do not understand so as to abandon their idols, for they have no discernment. 42 The women also put cords around themselves and sit in the streets, burning corn as incense. 43 When one of these women is led off by some passerby and sleeps with him, she insults her neighbor because she was not as desirable as herself, nor was her cord broken. † 44 Everything to do with these idols is a lie. How then can anyone suppose them to be gods, or call them such?

Idols Are a Disgrace

45 They are fashioned by craftsmen and goldsmiths. They cannot be anything but what the craftsmen desire them to be. † 46 Even those who fashion them do not attain a long life; therefore, how can the things created by them be gods? 47 For they leave behind lies and a disgrace for those who come after. 48 Indeed, when war and calamities fall upon them, the priests counsel among themselves so they may hide themselves with them. † 49 How then is it not perceived that they are not gods, who can neither save themselves from war nor calamities? 50 For they are wood, plated with silver and gold, 51 and it will become known and evident in due time to the Gentiles and their kings that they are false and not gods, but rather the works of men's hands. There is nothing of God's work in them. 52 Who then can fail to know that they are not gods?

53 For they cannot raise up a king for a country, nor can they give mankind rain. 54 They cannot decide a case, nor can they help one who is wronged; for they are like crows tossed about in the air. 55 Indeed, when a fire breaks out in the temple of these wooden gods, plated with silver or gold, their priests will run and save themselves, but these beams of wood in the midst will be burned up. † 56 They offer no resistance against a king or in a war. 57 How then can one admit or suppose that they are gods?

58 Neither can wooden gods save themselves from thieves or robbers, since they are plated with silver and gold. For those who are strong will take away their silver and gold and the clothing they wear. Nor can they help themselves. 59 So it is better to be a king able to demonstrate his own courage, or a household utensil that is useful to its owner, than to be false gods. It is better to be a wooden pillar in a palace than to be false gods. † 60 For indeed the sun, moon, and stars that shine brightly are sent for a useful purpose, and they obey.
Likewise, when lightning flashes it is seen far and wide, and the wind blows in every country. So too, when God commands the clouds to travel across the whole earth, they fulfill what is commanded. So does fire when it is sent from above to consume the mountains and forests, and does what is ordered. But idols cannot be compared to any of this, either in power or appearance. Therefore they are not to be considered as gods, nor as able to make judgments, nor to be good for mankind. So then, since you know they are not gods, do not fear them.

For they can neither curse nor bless kings. They cannot show signs in heaven to the Gentiles, so as to shine like the sun or give light like the moon. The wild animals are superior to them, for they are able to flee for shelter to profit themselves. Therefore, there is no evidence to prove that they are gods, so do not fear them.

For like a scarecrow in a garden of cucumbers, guarding nothing worthwhile, so are their wooden gods, plated with silver and gold. They are like a thorn bush in a garden on which every bird perches, and they are like a dead man cast into darkness. Such are their wooden gods, plated with silver and gold.

Because of the purple and fine linen rotting on them, you will know that they themselves are not gods. Afterwards, they will be consumed, and become a disgrace in the land. Better therefore is a man who is righteous and has no idols, for he shall be far from disgrace.

The Book of Ezekiel

Author—The prophet Ezekiel himself. No one else could be so intimately informed of his actions and intentions.

Date—The generally accepted time frame in which the book was written is 595–572 BC. This work contains more dates than any other Old Testament prophetic book, and the times of the prophecies are accurately described.

Major Theme—God's direction of events in heaven and on earth. His revelation of knowledge to all the nations is another predominant theme running throughout the book. He is the Judge, but He is equally desirous to be gracious and merciful.

Background—The holy prophet Ezekiel (commemorated on July 23), whose name means “God strengthens,” was of the tribe of Levi. He was therefore both priest and prophet, and he was married. He grew up during the reign of King Josiah of Judah (640–609 BC), but his prophetic ministry spanned the years 595 to 572 BC. More than any other prophet, Ezekiel was called by God to involve himself personally in the divine word by acting it out in prophetic symbolism. He was a contemporary of the prophets Jeremiah and Daniel.

   C. Judgment on Edom (25:12–14)
   D. Judgment on Crete (25:15–17)
1 Now it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, as I was in the midst of the captivity by the River Chebar, the heavens were opened and I saw visions of God.† 2 On the fifth day of the month, in the fifth year of King Jehoiachin’s captivity, 3 the word of the Lord came to Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the River Chebar; and the hand of the Lord was upon me.†

4 I looked, and behold, a sweeping wind came from the north, and a great cloud was in it, with a surrounding brightness and fire flashing forth from it. In its midst was something like the appearance of amber in the middle of the fire, and a brightness in it. 5 In the midst, there was as it were the likeness of four living creatures. This was their appearance, and the likeness of a man upon them.† 6 Each had four faces, and each had four wings. 7 Their legs were straight, and their feet were winged. There were sparks like gleaming brass, and their wings were light. 8 The hand of a man was underneath their wings on their four sides. 9 The faces of those four did not turn as they proceeded, and they went with each face opposite the other. 10 This was the likeness of their faces: the face of a man, the face of a lion on the right side of the foursome, the face of an ox on the left, and the face of an eagle.† 11 Their wings were spread out above them. Each had two wings joined together, and two wings covered up their bodies. 12 Each went straight forward wherever the spirit was going, and did not turn back. 13 In the midst of the living creatures there was an appearance as of burning coals of fire, as an appearance of lamps turning among the living creatures. There was the brightness of fire, and out of the fire lightning came forth.†

14 I looked and behold, there was one wheel on the earth next to each living creature with its four faces.† 15 The appearance of the wheels was like the appearance of beryl, and each of the four had one likeness; and their work was as it were a wheel within a wheel. 16 They went on their four sides, and did not turn when they went. 17 Neither did their backs turn, and they were high. I saw them, and the backs of all four were full of eyes all around. 18 When the living creatures went, the wheels went beside them; and when the living creatures lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up. 19 Wherever the cloud happened to be, there was the spirit ready to go. The living creatures went, and the wheels went with them, for the spirit of life was in the wheels. 20 When the living creatures went, the wheels went; when the living creatures came to a stop, the wheels stopped; and when those were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up with them, for the spirit of life was in the wheels.

21 The likeness above the heads of the living creatures was like a firmament, like the appearance of crystal, spread out over their wings above. 22 Their wings were outspread underneath the firmament, clapping their wings one to the other, two wings joined to each, and two wings covering up their bodies.† 23 I heard the sound of their wings when they went, like the sound of much water; and when they stood still, their wings rested.

24 Then behold, a voice came from above the firmament, above their head. 25 There was as it were the appearance of a sapphire stone, and the likeness of a throne upon it. Upon the likeness of the throne there was as it were the appearance of a man above.† 26 Then I saw as it were the outward appearance of amber from the appearance of the waist and upward. From the appearance of the waist and downward I saw as it were the appearance of fire with brightness round about. 27 Like the appearance of a rainbow in a cloud on a rainy day, so was the condition of the surrounding brightness.†

Ezekiel Called as a Prophet to Israel.

This was the vision of the likeness of the Lord's glory. I saw it, and I fell down on my face, and heard the voice of One speaking.

2 Then He said to me, “Son of man, stand on your feet, and I will speak to you.” 2 The Spirit then came upon me, took me up, raised me, and set me on my feet; and I heard Him speaking to me. 3 So He said to me, “Son of man, I am sending you to the house of Israel, to the ones provoking Me. They have provoked Me, they and their fathers, up to this very day. 4 Then you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord.’ 5 Now then, if they listen or are put off—for they are a rebellious house—still they will know you are a prophet in their midst.
But you, Son of man, do not be afraid of them nor be dismayed by their looks, for they will swarm and sting you, and crowd against you on every side. You will live in the midst of scorpions. Do not be afraid of their words or dismayed by their looks, for they are a house of provocation.

You shall speak My words to them, whether they hear or are put off, because they are a house of provocation.

You, son of man, listen to the One who speaks to you. Do not be one who rebels like the house of provocation, but open your mouth wide, and eat what I give you.”

Then I looked, and behold, there was a hand reaching out to me, and the roll of a book was in it. He unrolled it before me, and there written on the inside and the outside were words of lamentation and mourning and woe.

Then He said to me, “Son of man, eat this scroll, and go and speak to the children of Israel.” So I opened my mouth, and he fed me the scroll. Then He said to me, “Son of man, your mouth shall eat and your stomach will be filled with this scroll that is given you.” So I ate it, and it was in my mouth as sweet as honey. Then He said to me, “Son of man, go! Go to the house of Israel, and speak My words to them. For you are not sent to a people of unfamiliar speech and obscure language, but to the house of Israel. Neither are you sent to many peoples speaking a foreign language or using strange tongues, nor to a people of heavy speech, whose words you would not understand. Surely, had I sent you to them, they would have listened to you. But the house of Israel shall be unwilling to listen to you, because they are unwilling to listen to Me; for all the house of Israel is argumentative and hard-hearted. Behold, I have made your face to be strong against their faces, and I will strengthen your case against their arguments. Your argument shall be continually stronger than a rock. Do not be afraid of them, nor be dismayed at their faces; for they are a house of provocation.”

Again He said to me, “Son of man, receive into your heart all My words I have spoken to you, and listen with your ears. Go! Go to the captives, to the children of your people, and you shall speak to them, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord,’ whether they listen or whether they refuse.” Then the Spirit lifted me up, and I heard behind me a great thunderous voice: “Blessed is the glory of the Lord from His place.” I also perceived the sound of the wings of the living creatures as they clapped one to the other, and the sound of the wheels nearby, and the sound of the earth quaking. Then the Spirit moved me and raised me up, and I went forth under the impulse of my spirit; but the hand of the Lord was strong upon me.
lifted up, I then entered among the captivity and circulated among those who were dwelling by the River Chebar. I sat there for seven days, holding conversation in their midst.†

Ezekiel Made a Watchman

16 Again it came to pass, after seven days, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

17 “Son of man, I made you a watchman for the house of Israel, and you will hear a word from My mouth and shall threaten them from Me:† 18 When I say to the lawless, ‘You shall surely die,’ and you do not give him explicit warning, nor speak to warn the lawless to turn from his ways so he may live, that lawless man shall die in his unrighteousness; but his blood I will require at your hand. 19 However, if you warn the lawless, and he does not turn from his lawlessness, nor from his way, that lawless man shall die in his unrighteousness; but you delivered your soul. 20 Again, when a righteous man turns from his righteousness and commits a transgression, and I put him to the test, he shall die, because you did not give him explicit warning. He shall die in his sins, and his righteous deeds which he did shall not be remembered; but his blood I will require at your hand.† 21 But if you explicitly warn the righteous man not to sin, and he does not sin, the righteous man shall live, because you explicitly warned him; and you will deliver your own soul.”

22 Again the hand of the Lord came upon me, and He said to me, “Arise and go out into the plain, and there you will be spoken to.”† 23 So I arose and went out into the plain, and behold, the glory of the Lord stood there, just like the vision and just like the glory I saw by the River Chebar; and I fell on my face. 24 Then the Spirit came upon me and set me on my feet, and said to me, “Go inside and shut yourself within your house. 25 As for you, son of man, behold, chains are appointed for you, and they will put you in them so you cannot go out from their midst. 26 I shall bind your tongue, and you will become deaf. You will not be for them as a man to convict them, for they are a house of provocation. 27 But when I speak with you, I shall open your mouth, and you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord.’ He who hears, let him hear; and he who disobeys, let him disobey; for it is a house of provocation.

The Siege of Jerusalem Predicted

4 “As for you, son of man, take a brick for yourself and lay it before you. You shall put it before your face and outline the city of Jerusalem on it.† 2 On this outline you shall draw a wall, build a rampart round about it, put a barricade against it, place armies around it, and arrange it with engines of war all around. Then take for yourself a frying-pan made of iron, and set it as an iron wall between you and the city. Set your face against the city, and it shall be in confinement; and you shall shut it up completely. This will be a sign to the children of Israel.

4“You shall sleep on your left side and lay the acts of unrighteousness of the house of Israel upon it. For one hundred and fifty days, for this number of days, you shall sleep on it; for you shall bear their acts of unrighteousness. 5For I have laid on you their two acts of unrighteousness according to the number of the days, one hundred and ninety days. You shall bear the acts of unrighteousness of the house of Israel. 6When you accomplish all this, then you shall sleep on your right side; and you shall bear the acts of unrighteousness of the house of Judah for forty days. I have appointed you a day for each year. 7You shall set your face toward the confinement of Jerusalem; and you shall strengthen your arm and prophesy against it. 8Behold, I have appointed chains for you, and you may turn from one side to the other until the days of your confinement are accomplished.

9“Also take for yourself wheat, barley, beans, lentils, millet, and spelt; put them into one vessel made of earth, and make loaves of bread for yourself. According to the number of days you sleep on your side, one hundred and ninety days, you shall eat them. 10Your food which you eat shall be by weight, twenty shekels a day; from time to time you shall eat them. 11You shall also drink water by measure, one-sixth of a hin, and from time to time you shall drink. 12You shall eat them as a barley cake baked in ashes. You shall bake them in their sight in the filth of human dung. 13Then you shall say, ‘Thus says the Lord God of Israel: So shall the children of Israel eat unclean things among the Gentiles.’ ”

14So I said, “Not so, O Lord God of Israel. Behold, my soul has not defiled itself with uncleanness, nor from my youth up until now have I eaten what died of itself or was torn by beasts, nor has day-old meat entered my mouth.” 15Then He said to me, “Behold, I give you cow dung instead of human waste, and you shall prepare your loaves of bread upon it.” 16Then He said to me, “Son of man, behold, I will break the support of bread in Jerusalem, and they shall eat bread by weight and in want and drink water by measure and in a state of ruin, so as to become in need of bread and water. A man shall destroy his brother, and they shall waste away in their wrongdoings.

Jerusalem's Desolation Prophesied
5“As for you, son of man, take for yourself a sword sharper than a barber's razor. Acquire it for yourself, and shave your head and your beard; then take scales to weigh and divide the hair.† 2One-fourth you shall burn in the midst of the city, at the completion of the days of the confinement. Then you shall take one-fourth and burn it up in its midst, and one-fourth you shall cut up around about all sides with the sword; and one-fourth you shall scatter to the wind. Thus I will unsheathe a sword after them. 3You shall also take from there a small amount of hair and wrap it in the fold of your garment. 4Then from this amount, again take some and throw it into the midst of the fire and burn it in the fire. Fire shall come forth from it, and you shall say to all the house of Israel, 5“Thus says the Lord: “This is Jerusalem; I have put her in the midst of the surrounding countries, in the midst of the nations.† 6So you shall speak of My ordinances to the lawless one among the nations, and my laws to the lawless one from the surrounding countries; because they rejected My ordinances, and have not walked in My laws.” 7Therefore thus says the Lord: “Because your opportunity for lawlessness is taken from the nations around you, and you have not walked in my laws, nor kept My ordinances—indeed you have not even kept the ordinances of the nations around you—” 8therefore, thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will execute judgment in your midst in the sight of the nations. 9I will do among you what I have not done, and the likes of which I will not do again, because of all your abominations. 10Therefore fathers shall eat their children in your midst, and children shall eat their fathers; and I will execute judgments among you, and all of you who remain, I will scatter to every wind. 11Therefore, as I live,” says the Lord, “surely, because you defiled My holy things with all your abominations, I also will reject you. My eye will not spare, nor will I have any mercy. 12One-fourth of you shall be destroyed by death, and one-fourth shall be consumed in your midst by famine. One-fourth of you I will scatter to every wind, and one-fourth of you will fall by the sword all around you, for I will unsheathe a sword after them. 13Thus shall My anger and My wrath be accomplished against them. You will come to know this because I, the Lord, have spoken in My zeal, when I accomplish My anger against them. 14I will make you desolate, along with your daughters around you, in the sight of everyone who travels through. 15You shall be mournful and miserable among the nations around you when I execute judgments among you, in the vengeance of my anger. I, the Lord, have spoken. 16When I send forth against them My arrows of famine, and they are extinguished, I also shall break your supply of bread. 17So I will send against you famine and evil beasts and shall punish you. Death and blood shall pass through upon you, and I will bring a sword against you, all about you. I, the Lord, have spoken.”’”

The Lord Condemns Idolatry

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying,† 2“Son of man, set your face against the mountains of Israel and prophesy against them. 3You shall say, ‘You mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord. Thus says the Lord to the mountains and hills, and to the ravines and valleys: “Behold, I shall bring a sword against you and destroy your high places. 4Your altars, along with your sacred precints, shall be broken down. I shall cast down your wounded in the presence of your idols, 5and scatter your bones all around your altars. 6In all your dwelling places, the cities shall be laid waste, and the high places shall be abolished, so as to destroy your altars and break your idols in pieces and remove your sacred precints.

7“The wounded shall fall in your midst, and you shall know that I am the Lord, when some among you are escaping from the sword among the nations and when you are scattered among the countries. 8Then those of you who escape among the nations where they were taken captive will remember Me. For I swore an oath against their heart, which went away from Me and committed fornication, and against their eyes, which committed fornication after their practices. They shall mourn over themselves amid all their abominations. 9Then they shall come to know that I, the Lord, have spoken.”

11Thus says the Lord: “Clap your hands and stamp your feet, and say, ‘Good, well done! Good, well done!’ Because of all the abominations of the house of Israel, they shall fall by the sword, by death, and by famine. 12He who is near shall fall by the sword, and he who is far off shall die an untimely death; and he who is in the confinement shall perish by famine. Thus will I accomplish My wrath upon them. 13Then you shall come to know that I am the Lord, when your wounded are among your idols, all around your altars, on every high hill, and under every shady tree where they offered a sweet aroma to their idols. 14So I will stretch out My hand against them, and appoint the land for destruction and ruin, from the desert of Diblah, in all their dwelling places. Then you shall know that I am the Lord.”’”

Judgment Is Near for Israel

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying,† 2“You, son of man, speak and say, ‘Thus says the Lord to the land of Israel: “An end has come; the end has come upon the four corners of the land. 3 An end has come upon you who dwell in the land. 4 The time has come; the day is near, not with tumult nor with travail. 5 Now it is near. I shall pour out my wrath upon you and accomplish My anger among you. I shall judge you in your ways and cause all your abominations to come upon you. 6 My eye will not spare, neither will I show mercy; because I will cause your ways to come against you. Your abominations shall be in your midst, and you will know that I am the Lord who smites. 7 Now the end has come to you. I shall send judgment upon you, take vengeance on your ways, and recompense all your abominations upon you. 8 My eye will not spare against you, nor will I have mercy; because I will cause your way to come against you, and your abominations shall be in your midst. You shall know that I am the Lord.”

9 For thus says the Lord: 10 “Behold, the end has come. Behold, the day of the Lord. Although the rod has blossomed, arrogance has risen forth. 11 The support of the lawless one shall be crushed, and without either tumult or haste. 12 The time has come, behold the day. Let not the buyer rejoice, and let not the seller mourn. 13 For the one who buys shall no longer turn to the one who sells, and a man shall no longer have control over his life. 14 Blow with the trumpet and judge all at once. 15 There shall be war by the sword from without and death and famine from within. He who is in the field will die by the sword, and famine and death shall destroy those in the city. 16 Those who are saved and survive will be on the mountains; I will slay all the rest—each one in his wrongdoings. 17 All hands shall be feeble, and all legs will be stained with urine. 18 They will clothe themselves with sackcloth, and astonishment shall cover them. Shame will be on them—on every face, and baldness on every head. 19 They will throw their silver into the streets, and their gold will be disregarded. Their souls will not be satisfied, nor their stomachs filled; because it became their stumbling block of wrongdoings.

20 “As for their choice of adornment, they displayed these in arrogance and made their abominable images from them. For this reason I caused these things to be uncleanness to them. 21 I will hand over these things into the hands of foreigners, to plunder these things; and I will give these things to the troublemakers of the land as booty, and they shall desecrate them. 22 I will turn My face away from them, and they will defile My place of service. They will enter it unguardedly and desecrate it.

23 “They will create disorder, because the land is full of peoples, and the city is full of lawlessness. I will turn back the pride of their strength, and their holy things shall be defiled. Though propitiation shall come and one shall seek peace, there shall be none.

There will be woe upon woe, and message upon message, and a vision will be sought from a prophet; but the law will perish from the priest, and counsel from the elders. The ruler shall clothe himself with destruction, and the hands of the people of the land will weaken. I will do to them according to their ways and reward them according to their judgments. Then they shall know that I am the Lord!”

Abominations in Jerusalem

Again it came to pass in the sixth year, in the fifth month, on the fifth day of the month, as I sat in my house with the elders of Judah sitting before me, that the hand of the Lord came upon me. Then I looked, and behold, there was the likeness of a man, as of fire from His waist down, and from His waist up like the appearance of amber. He extended what looked like a hand and raised me up by the crown of my head. The Spirit lifted me up between the earth and the sky and brought me in a vision of God to Jerusalem, to the porches of the inner gate that looks to the north, where the pillar of idolatry was. Behold, the glory of the Lord God of Israel was there, like the vision I saw in the plain.

Then He said to me, “Son of man, lift your eyes toward the north.” So I lifted my eyes toward the north, and behold, I looked from the north toward the eastern gate. Then He said to me, “Son of man, do you see what they are doing? They commit great acts of lawlessness here to keep Me from My sanctuary. Now you will see even greater acts of lawlessness.”

So He brought me to the porches of the court. Then He said to me, “Son of man, dig a hole.” So I dug, and behold, a door. He said to me, “Go in, and see the lawless deeds they are doing here.” So I went in, and behold, I saw vain abominations—all the idols of the house of Israel were portrayed on the wall all around. There were seventy men of the elders of the house of Israel, and in their midst stood Jaazaniah the son of Shaphan. Each man had a censer in his hand, and the smoke of the incense rose up. Then He said to me, “Son of man, do you see what the elders of the house of Israel are doing, each one of them in their private bedroom? For they said, ‘The Lord does not see; the Lord has forsaken the land.’ ”

Then He said to me, “You will see even greater acts of lawlessness they are doing.” So
He brought me to the porches of the court of the Lord's house that faces north; and behold, women were sitting there weeping for Tammuz. Then He said to me, “Do you see this, son of man? You will see worse practices than these.” So He brought me into the inner court of the Lord's house; and behold, there, at the outer entrance of the Lord's temple, between the porch and the altar, were about twenty men. They stood with their backs toward the temple of the Lord, with their faces in the opposite direction; and they were worshiping the sun.

Then He said to me, “Do you see this, son of man? This is not a trivial thing for the house of Judah to commit these lawless acts which they commit here, is it? For they have filled the land with lawlessness, and behold, they are as those who treat Me with contempt. As for Me, I shall treat them in anger. My eye will not spare, nor will I have mercy.”

Then He cried out in my ears with a loud voice, saying, “The punishment of the city is near, and each had instruments of destruction in his hand.” Behold, six men were coming from the way of the high gate that looks toward the north, and each one's ax was in his hand. One man among them was clothed with a full-length robe, with a belt of sapphire about his waist. They entered and stood near the bronze altar.

Then the glory of the God of Israel went up from the cherubim, and the glory which was over them went into the inner court of the house. He called to the man clothed with the long robe with the belt on his waist, and He said to him, “Go through the midst of Jerusalem and put a mark on the foreheads of the men who sigh and groan over all the lawless deeds taking place within her.” To the others He said in my hearing, “Go after him through the city and kill. Let not your eyes spare, and have no mercy. Utterly destroy old men and youth, and virgins, infants, and women, but do not come near anyone on whom is the mark. Begin at My sanctuary.” So they began with the elders who were inside the house. Then He said to them, “Defile the house, and go out and fill the roads with the dead, and smite.”

So it was, as they were smiting, I fell on my face and cried out, and said, “Alas, O Lord, are You wiping out all the remnant of Israel in pouring out Your anger on Jerusalem?” Then He said to me, “The wrongdoing of the house of Israel and Judah has become exceedingly great, for the land is full of many peoples, and the city is full of wrongdoings and uncleanness. For they said, ‘The Lord forsook the land, and the Lord does not look upon it.’ My eye will not spare, nor will I have mercy, but I will recompense their deeds on their own heads.” Then behold, the man clothed with the long robe and girded with the belt on his waist reported back and said, “I have done as You commanded me.”

The Glory Leaves the Temple

10 Then I looked, and behold, over the firmament above the heads of the cherubim, there was the likeness of a throne over them, like a sapphire stone.† 2He spoke to the man clothed with the long robe, “Go in between the wheels underneath the cherubim, and fill your hands with coals of fire from among the cherubim, and scatter them over the city.” So he went in as I watched.

3Now the cherubim were standing on the right side of the house as the man was entering, and the cloud filled the inner court. 4Then the glory of the Lord went up from the cherubim into the inner court of the house. The cloud filled the house, and the court was filled with the brightness of the Lord's glory.† 5The sound of the wings of the cherubim was heard as far as the outer court, like the voice of Almighty God when He speaks.

6Then it came to pass, as He was commanding the man clothed in the sacred robe, saying, “Take fire from between the wheels, from between the cherubim,” that he went in and stood near the wheels. 7A cherub stretched out his hand into the midst of the fire, between the cherubim, and took and put it into the hands of the man clothed with the sacred garment. The man took it and went out. 8I saw the cherubim having the likeness of men's hands under their wings.†

9I looked, and behold, four wheels were standing near the cherubim, one wheel by each cherub; and the appearance of the wheels was like that of a precious stone. 10As for their appearance, there was one likeness to the four, as when a wheel is in the midst of a wheel. 11When they went, they went on their four sides. They did not turn when they went, for they followed in the direction the first head was looking, but they did not turn as they went. 12Their backs and hands, and their wings and wheels, were all full of eyes all around their four wheels. 13As for the wheels, they were called in my hearing, “wheel.”†

14The cherubim were the same living creatures I saw by the River Chebar. 15When the cherubim went, the wheels close to them went; and when the cherubim lifted their wings to mount up from the earth, the wheels did not turn. 16When the cherubim stood, the wheels stood; and when the cherubim mounted up, the wheels mounted up with them, because the
Then the glory of the Lord departed from the house and went upon the cherubim.

The cherubim lifted their wings and mounted up from the earth in my sight. When they went out, the wheels were beside them; and they stood by the porches of the door of the Lord's house opposite them. The glory of the God of Israel was over and above them.

This is the living creature I saw under the God of Israel, by the River Chebar, and I knew they were cherubim. Each had four faces and each had eight wings, and the likeness of a man's hand was under their wings. As for the likeness of their faces, these are the same faces I saw under the glory of the God of Israel by the River Chebar; and they went straight forward.

Moreover the Spirit took me up and brought me to the front gate of the Lord's house, the gate which looks eastward; and behold, on the porches of the gate were about twenty-five men. I saw in the midst of them Jaazaniah the son of Azzur, and Pelatiah the son of Benaiah, the princes of the people. Then the Lord said to me, “Son of man, these are the men who plan worthless things and give evil counsel in this city, who say, ‘Have not the houses been constructed recently? This city is the cauldron, and we are the meat.’ Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, son of man!”

Then the Spirit of the Lord fell upon me and said to me, “Say this, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Thus you have said, O house of Israel; for I know the deliberations of your spirit. You multiplied your dead in this city and filled its streets with the wounded. Therefore thus says the Lord: ‘Your dead, whom you trampled in its midst, they are the meat, and this city is the cauldron; but I shall bring you out of the midst of it. You fear the sword; thus I will bring a sword upon you,’ says the Lord. I will bring you out of its midst and deliver you into the hands of foreigners, and execute judgments on you. You shall fall by the sword. I will judge you at the borders of Israel, and you shall know that I am the Lord. This city shall not be your cauldron, nor shall you be the meat in its midst. I will judge you at the borders of Israel. You shall know that I am the Lord.’ ”

Then it came to pass while I was prophesying that Pelatiah the son of Benaiah died. So I fell on my face and cried with a loud voice, “Alas, alas, O Lord! Will you make a complete end to the remnant of Israel?”

God Will Restore the Exiles

14 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 15 “Son of man, your brethren, and the men of your captivity, and all the house of Israel are at their end, to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem said, ‘Keep far away from the Lord. This land was given to us as an inheritance.’

16 Therefore say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “I will reject them among the nations, and scatter them into every land; yet I shall be a little sanctuary for them in the countries wherever they may go.”’ 17 Therefore I said, ‘Thus says the Lord: “I shall also receive them from the nations, and gather them from the countries where I scattered them; and I will give them the land of Israel.”’

† 18 They shall enter there and remove all its abominations and lawlessness from it.

19 Then I will give them another heart and put a new spirit within them. I shall remove the stony heart out of their flesh and give them a heart of flesh, 20 so they may walk in My commandments, keep My ordinances, and do them. They will be My people, and I shall be their God.

21 But as for the heart set upon their abominations and lawlessness—as their heart went after these things—so I have recompensed their ways on their own heads,” says the Lord.

22 Then the cherubim lifted up their wings with the wheels beside them, and the glory of the God of Israel was high above them. 23 Then the glory of the Lord went up from the midst of the city and stood on the mountain opposite the city.

24 The Spirit took me up—in a vision by the Spirit of God—and brought me to the land of the Chaldeans, to the captivity. Then I rose up from the vision I saw, 25 and spoke to the host of captives all the words the Lord made known to me.

Ezekiel Prepares for Exile

12 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 12 “Son of man, you dwell in the midst of wrongdoers who have eyes to see, but do not see, and ears to hear, but do not hear; for they are a house of provocation.

3 As for you, son of man, prepare belongings for captivity, for captivity by daylight and in their sight. You will be taken into captivity from your place to a different place, a place in their sight; so they may see they are a house of provocation.

4 You will carry out your belongings as baggage for captivity by day before their eyes; and you shall go out in the evening as a captive goes out. 5 Dig through the wall for yourself, and you shall go out through it in their sight. 6 You shall be carried on men's shoulders and go forth in secret. You shall cover your face and not see the ground, because I have made you a sign to the house of Israel." 7 So I did this according to all He commanded me. I brought out my belongings as baggage for captivity by day, dug through the wall for myself in the evening, and went out in secret. I was borne upon men's shoulders before them.

8 Then in the morning, the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 9 "Son of man, has not the house of Israel, the house that provokes, said to you, 'What are you doing?' 10 Say to them, 'Thus says the Lord, the Master, the Ruler and the Leader in Jerusalem and over all the house of Israel in their midst. 11 Say, ‘I am performing signs in her midst. As I have done, so shall it be to them, and they shall go into deportation and captivity.’ 12 The ruler in their midst will be carried on men's shoulders and will go out secretly through the wall. He shall dig through that he may pass through it. He shall cover his face so as to remain hidden from any eye; and he himself shall not see the ground.† 13 I will spread out My net over him, and he shall be caught in My enclosure. I will lead him to Babylon, to the land of the Chaldeans, but he will not see it, though he shall die there. 14 I will scatter to every wind all his assistants around him, and all his auxiliaries; and I will unsheathe a sword after them. 15 Then they shall know that I am the Lord, when I scatter them among the nations and disperse them in the countries. 16 But I will spare a few of their men from the sword, famine, and pestilence so they may declare all their lawlessness among the nations where they go. They shall know that I am the Lord.' "

17 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 18 "Son of man, you shall eat your bread in sorrow and drink your water with torment and affliction.† 19 You shall say to the people of the land, 'Thus says the Lord to the inhabitants of Jerusalem and to the land of Israel: “They shall eat their bread in poverty and drink their water in desolation, that the land may be destroyed with its fullness; for all who dwell in it are ungodly. 20 Their inhabited cities shall be utterly wasted and their land destroyed. You shall know that I am the Lord.” ’ ”

21 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying,† 22 "Son of man, what is your parable about the land of Israel which says, ‘The days are far off; the vision has perished’? 23 Therefore say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “I shall remove this parable, and no longer shall the house of Israel repeat this parable.” For you shall say to them, “The days are at hand, and the word of every vision. 24 For there shall no longer be any false vision or favorable prophesying in the midst of the children of Israel. 25 For I, the Lord, shall speak my words; I will speak and perform them. I shall delay no longer, because in your days, O house which provokes, I will speak the word and perform it,” says the Lord.’ ”

26 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 27 “Son of man, behold, the house of Israel which provokes is surely saying, ‘The vision this man sees is many days from now, and he prophesies of times far off.’ 28 Therefore say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “All My words I speak shall no longer be delayed. I will speak and do,” says the Lord.’ ”

Woe to False Prophets

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 2 “Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel. You shall prophesy and say to them, ‘Hear the word of the Lord.

3 ‘Thus says the Lord: “Woe to those who prophesy from their hearts, but who see nothing at all! 4 O Israel, your prophets are like foxes in the deserts. 5 They do not stand in a firm place, and they gather flocks in the house of Israel. They will not stand up who say, ‘In the day of the Lord.’ 6 They see lies and prophesy vain things. They say, ‘The Lord says,’ but the Lord did not send them; yet they begin to establish the word. 7 Have you not seen a false vision, and spoken worthless prophecies?’ ”

8 “Therefore say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Because your words are lies and your prophecies are worthless, therefore I am against you,” says the Lord. 9 “I shall stretch out My hand against the prophets who see lies and utter worthless things. They will not exist for the instruction of My people, neither shall they be written down in the record of the house of Israel, nor enter the land of Israel. They shall know that I am the Lord. 10 Because they have deceived My people, saying, ‘Peace, peace,’ and there is no peace; and one builds a wall, and they plaster it—it shall certainly fall. 11 Say to those who plaster it, ‘It will fall,’ for there shall be flooding rain; and I will send hailstones against its joints, and it shall fall; and a wind will rise up and break it down. 12 Behold, the wall has fallen, and will not they say to you, ‘Where is the mortar you used to plaster it?’ ” 13 Therefore thus says the Lord: “I will also bring forth a driving and furious wind, and there shall be a flooding rain in My anger. They shall be swept away in anger, and there shall be a flooding rain in My wrath; and I shall bring down hailstones in My anger for complete destruction. 14 So I will break down the wall you plastered, and it shall fall. I shall lay it on the ground, and its foundations will be revealed; and you will be consumed with rebukes. You shall know that I am the Lord. 15 Thus will I accomplish My anger on the wall and on those who plastered it—it shall fall.” So I said to you, “The wall is no more, nor those who plastered it; 16 even so are the prophets of Israel who prophesy over Jerusalem, and who see visions of peace for her when there is no peace,” says the Lord.’

17 “As for you, son of man, set your face against the daughters of your people who prophesy from their own heart, and prophesy against them. 18 You shall say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Woe to the women who sew pillows under every elbow, and make coverings for every head of every age, to mislead souls! The souls of my people are turned aside, and they keep alive souls for themselves. 19 They desecrated My people for the sake of a handful of barley and for pieces of bread, so as to kill souls which should not die, and to keep souls alive which should not live, while you prophesy to a people who listen to worthless speeches.”

20 “Therefore, thus says the Lord: “Behold, I am against your pillows whereby you conspire against souls. I will tear them from your arms and free their souls, which you turned aside so as to scatter them. 21 I will tear away your coverings and deliver My people out of your hand. They shall no longer be in your hand, and you shall know that I am the Lord. 22 Because you have turned aside the heart of the righteous man unjustly—whom I did not turn aside—so as to strengthen the hands of the lawless man, that he should not completely turn from his evil way and live; 23 therefore, you shall no longer see false visions, nor utter prophecies; for I will deliver My people out of your hand, and you shall know that I am the Lord.” ’ ”

Woe to the Idolatrous Elders

14 Now some of the elders of Israel came to me and sat before me. 2 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 3 “Son of man, these men devised inventions in their hearts, and placed before their face the stumbling block of their wrongdoings. Shall I indeed answer them? 4 Therefore speak to them, and say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Any man of the house of Israel who devises inventions in his heart, and places before his face the stumbling block of his wrongdoing, and then comes to the prophet, I, the Lord, will answer him according to the things in which his mind is entangled, 5 so as to lead astray the house of Israel according to their hearts, which are completely alienated from Me in their inventions.’”
Therefore say to the house of Israel, ‘Thus says the Lord and Master: “Be converted and turn away from your practices and all your ungodliness; then turn your faces back again. 7 For any man from the house of Israel, or the resident aliens who sojourn in Israel, who alienates himself from Me, and devises inventions in his heart, and places before his face the stumbling block of his wrongdoing, and comes to the prophet to inquire of him concerning Me, then I, the Lord, will answer him according to the things that entangle his mind. 8 I shall set My face against that man, and make him desolate and ruined, and remove him from the midst of My people. You shall know that I am the Lord. 9 If the prophet is led astray and speaks, I, the Lord, have led that prophet astray; and I will stretch out My hand against him and destroy him from the midst of My people Israel. 10 So they shall bear their wrongdoing—the one who inquired shall bear his wrongdoing according to his wrong, and likewise it shall be for the prophet, 11 so the house of Israel may not stray from Me, nor be defiled any longer with all their transgressions, but be My people and I their God,” says the Lord.’ ”

Four Punishments

12 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying,† 13 “Son of man, if a land sins against Me by committing a trespass, I shall stretch out My hand against it. I shall cut off its supply of bread, send famine upon it, and remove man and cattle from it. 14 Even though these three men: Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, they would deliver only themselves by their righteousness,” says the Lord.

15 “If again I bring wild animals upon the land and punish it, and it becomes desolate because men fear the wild animals, 16 even though these three men were in the land, as I live,” says the Lord, “neither sons nor daughters would be saved. Instead, only they themselves would be delivered, but the land would be desolate.

17 “Or again, if I should bring a sword on that land and say, ‘Let a sword go through the land,’ and I removed man and cattle from it, 18 even though these three men were in it, as I live,” says the Lord, “they would deliver neither sons nor daughters, but only they themselves would be delivered.

19 “Or if I should send death upon the land and pour out My anger upon it in blood, to destroy both man and cattle from it, 20 and Noah, Daniel, and Job were in it, as I live,” says the Lord, “neither sons nor daughters would be left. Only they by their righteousness would Thus says the Lord: “But even if I send upon Jerusalem My four evil punishments—sword, famine, wild animals, and death—to destroy from it both man and cattle, yet behold, the remnant in it, those of it who are saved, who bring out sons and daughters from it, behold, these shall go forth to you. You will see their ways and inventions and be sorry over the evils I brought upon Jerusalem, even all the evils I brought upon it. Then they will console you, because you will see their ways and their inventions; and you will know I have not done in vain whatever I did in it,” says the Lord.

The Worthless Vine

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, "Son of man, of all the wood of the branches in the forest, what would be made from the wood of the vine? Would they take wood from it to make something for profit? Would they take a peg from it on which to hang some object? It is only thrown into the fire to be consumed, for the fire consumes what is pruned from it each year; thus nothing is left. So will it be useful for profit? Not even while it was whole would it be useful for profit. How much less useful would it be once the fire devoured it?

Therefore thus says the Lord: ‘As the wood of the vine among the trees of the forest, which I give to the fire to be consumed, so I give the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and I shall set My face against them. They will get away from the fire, yet fire will devour them. Then they will know that I am the Lord, when I set My face against them. Thus I shall give the land over to ruin, because they utterly transgressed,’ says the Lord.”

God's Love for Lawless Jerusalem

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, "Son of man, testify emphatically to Jerusalem concerning her lawlessness. You shall say, ‘Thus says the Lord to Jerusalem: “Your root and birth are from the land of Canaan. Your father was an Amorite and your mother a Hittite. As for your birth, on the day you were born they did not bind your breasts, nor were you washed in water. Neither were you salted with salt, nor wrapped in swaddling cloths. Nor did My eye pity you to do any one of these things for you, to suffer anything for you; but you were cast out into the open field because of the perversity of your..."
soul on the day you were born.

6“As I passed by, I saw you defiled in your blood. So I said to you, ‘Let there be life out of your blood, and multiply.’ 7I made you as a field in full bloom, and you multiplied, became great, and entered into great cities. Your breasts were firm and your hair grew, but you were naked and behaved improperly. 8As I passed by and saw you, behold, it was your time, a time for lodging people. So I spread My wings over you, covered your shame, and swore an oath to you. I entered into a covenant with you, and you became Mine,” says the Lord. 9“Then I washed you in water, washed away your blood, and anointed you with oil. 10I clothed you in embroidered garments with purple underneath. I dressed you with fine linen and covered you with a veil of fine silk. 11I adorned you with jewelry and put bracelets on your wrists and a necklace around your neck. 12I put a ring in your nose, earrings in your ears, and a crown of boasting on your head. 13Thus you were adorned with gold and silver, and your clothing was of fine linen, silk, and embroidered cloth. You ate pastry of fine flour, oil, and honey. You became very beautiful. 14Your name went out among the nations for your beauty, because it was perfected with elegance and beauty which I put upon you,” says the Lord.

Playing the Prostitute

15“But you put your trust in your beauty, played the prostitute because of your name, and poured out your fornication on everyone passing by. 16You took cloth from your garments, made idols of needlework for yourself, and committed fornication with them. But you should never have entered into such a thing, nor should this have taken place. 17You also took the fine jewelry of My gold and silver that I gave you and made male images for yourself, and committed fornication with them. 18You took your embroidered garments and clothed them. Then you set before them My oil and incense, 19and took My bread which I gave you—the pastry of fine flour, oil, and honey I fed you—and set it before them as a fragrant offering; and so it was,” says the Lord. 20“You also took your sons and daughters whom you bore, and sacrificed these to them to be destroyed, and committed fornication as if that were a small matter. 21Besides your fornication, you slaughtered your children and offered them as a sacrifice to ward off evil from yourselves. 22Thus you no longer remember the days of your youth, when you were naked and behaved improperly, and lived defiled in your blood.

23“So it came to pass, after all your evils,” says the Lord, 24“that you also built for yourself a house of fornication, and made a public place for yourself in every street; and at the beginning of every road, you built your brothel and ravaged your beauty. You spread your legs to everyone who passed by, and multiplied your acts of prostitution. You committed fornication with the children of Egypt, your fleshly neighbor, and committed fornication in many ways, to provoke Me to anger. So when I stretch out My hand against you, then I will abolish your customs and will deliver you over to souls who hate you, even to the daughters of foreign lands, who will turn you aside from your way wherein you were ungodly.

You also committed fornication with the daughters of Assyria, and even then you were not satisfied; indeed you committed fornication with them and were not satisfied. You multiplied your covenants with the Chaldeans, and not even with these were you satisfied. Why should I make a covenant with your daughter,” says the Lord, “when you do all these things, the deeds of a prostitute? So you committed threefold fornication.

An Adulterous Wife.

With your daughters, you built a house of prostitution at the beginning of every road, set up your high place in every street, and became as a prostitute gathering wages. An adulterous wife is like you, who prefers a whore's wages to her own husband. She even gives wages to those who commit fornication with her; and you give wages to all your lovers, and load them with wages, so they should come to you from all around for your prostitution. So there happened in you a perverseness in your prostitution beyond that of other women, and they committed fornication with you when you gave them wages; and no wages were received by you; thus perverseness happened in you.

Now then, prostitute, hear the word of the Lord! Thus says the Lord: ‘Because you poured out your money, and your shamefulness was uncovered in your prostitution with your lovers, and because of your many inventions of lawlessness, and the blood of your children you gave to them; therefore, behold, I will gather against you all your lovers with whom you consorted, and all those you loved, and all those you hated. I will gather them against you from all around and will uncover your evil deeds before them, so they may see all your shame. Thus I will be avenged on you with the vengeance of an adulteress, and bring upon you the blood of fury and jealousy. I shall deliver you into their hands, and they will demolish your house of prostitution and destroy your high place. They will strip you of your clothes, take your proud jewelry, and leave you naked and in disgrace. They also shall bring up a multitude against you to stone you with stones, and to strike you down with their swords. 41They will burn down your houses and execute punishments on you in the sight of many women. Then I shall turn you back from prostitution, and you will no longer give wages. 42So I shall discharge My anger against you, then My jealousy will depart from you. I shall be at rest and no longer concerned for you. 43Because you did not remember the day of your youth, but grieved Me with all these things, therefore behold, I recompensed your deeds on your own head,’ says the Lord. For thus you committed ungodliness beyond all your other lawlessness.

44“These are all the things they spoke against you in a parable, saying, ‘Like mother, like daughter!’ 45You are your mother's daughter, rejecting her husband and children; and you are the sister of your sisters, who reject their husbands and children. Your mother was a Hittite and your father an Amorite. 46Your elder sister who dwells with her daughters to the north of you is Samaria, and your younger sister who dwells to the south of you is Sodom and her daughters. 47You not only walked in their ways and acted according to their lawlessness; but, as if that were too little, you excelled more than they in all your ways.

48“As I live,” says the Lord, “surely your sister Sodom and her daughters have carried on in the manner you and your daughters have done. 49Surely this was the lawless action of your sister Sodom, namely, arrogance. For in fullness of bread and abundance of wine, she and her daughter lived in self-indulgence. This belonged to her and her daughters, but they did not give a helping hand to the poor and needy. 50So they were haughty and committed acts of lawlessness before Me; therefore, I removed them as I saw fit. 51But Samaria did not commit half your sins, for you multiplied your lawlessness beyond them, and declared your sisters righteous by all the lawless deeds you committed. 52Therefore, bear your punishment, for you corrupted your sisters by your sins, sins more lawless than their own. You made them appear more righteous than yourself. Yes, be disgraced, and bear your dishonor in which you declared your sisters righteous.

53“I will turn away from their faithlessness, the faithlessness of Sodom and her daughters, and I will turn away from the faithlessness of Samaria and her daughters. I will also turn away from your faithlessness in the midst of them, 54so you may bear your punishment and be dishonored by all you did to provoke My anger. 55But your sister Sodom and her daughters shall be restored as they were from the beginning, and Samaria and her daughters shall be restored as they were from the beginning. Even you and your daughters shall be restored as you were from the beginning. 56Surely your sister Sodom was not mentioned by your mouth in the days of your arrogance, before your evils were uncovered. 57Even now you are a disgrace to the daughters of Syria and all those around her, and to the daughters of the foreigners around you on every side. 58By your deeds of ungodliness and lawlessness, you received these things,” says the Lord.

The Covenant Remembered

59“For thus says the Lord: ‘I will deal with you as you have done, as you dishonored these things so as to break my covenant.† 60Nevertheless I shall remember My covenant with you in the days of your youth, and raise up an everlasting covenant for you. 61Then you will remember your way and be utterly dishonored when you receive your older and younger sisters. I shall give them to you for strengthening, but not because of your covenant. 62But I shall raise up My covenant with you. Then you will know that I am the Lord, 63that you may remember and be ashamed, and may never open your mouth again because of your dishonor, when I am reconciled to you for all you did,’ says the Lord.”

Two Eagles and a Vine

17Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying,† 2“Son of man, pose a riddle, and speak a parable to the house of Israel. 3You shall say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “A great eagle—with large wings, spreading them out very far, and full of talons, and with the design to enter Lebanon—took the choice branches of the cedar. 4He nipped off its topmost tender twig, carried it to the land of Canaan, and set it in the fortified city. 5Then he took some of the seed of the land, planted it in a fertile field by much water, and set it in a conspicuous place. 6So it grew and became a weak vine, small in size as to its appearance. Its branches were on it and its roots under it. So it became a vine, put forth shoots, and extended into a vine that grows up trees.

7“But there was another great eagle with large wings and many talons; and behold, this vine and her roots turned itself toward him, and stretched its branches toward him, that he might water it together with the soil where it was planted. 8She thrives in a good field by much water, so as to produce shoots and bear fruit, that she may be a large vine.’ ”
Therefore say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Will it prosper? Will not the roots of her tender stem and fruit be blighted, and all its shoots be withered? Yes, no mighty arm or many people will be needed to pluck it up by its roots. 10 Behold, it thrives, but will it prosper? Will it not utterly wither when the wind and burning heat touch it? It shall be dried up, its growth together with it soil.” ’”

11 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 12 “Son of man, say now to the house that provokes, ‘Do you not understand what these things mean?’ Tell them, ‘When the king of Babylon comes to Jerusalem, he will take its king and rulers, and take them with himself to Babylon. 13 He will also take one from the royal seed, and make a covenant with him, and place him under oath. 14 Then he will take away the leaders of the land that it may become a weak kingdom, so as never to lift itself up, that he may preserve his covenant and establish it. 15 But this one shall revolt from him and send his messengers to Egypt, so they might give him horses and many people. Will he prosper? Will he who acts as an adversary escape? Can he break the covenant and be delivered? 16 As I live,’ says the Lord, ‘he shall certainly die in the midst of Babylon, in the place where the king dwells who made him king, who dishonored My oath and broke My covenant. 17 But with a small army and few people, Pharaoh shall wage war against him by throwing up a mound and building engines of war, so as to carry away souls. 18 So he will not escape when he does all these things to him, because he dishonored the oath by breaking the covenant, although he gave his hand in trust.’ 19 Therefore say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “As I live, surely My covenant which he broke and My oath which he dishonored—I will recompense these things on his head. 20 I will spread My net over him, and he shall be caught in its enclosure. 21 His whole line of battle will fall by the sword, and those who remain I will scatter to every wind. Then you shall know that I, the Lord, have spoken.’ ”

22 “Therefore, thus says the Lord: ‘I shall take the choice branches of the cedar from its top and nip off their heart, and plant it on a high mountain. 23 I shall hang it on a lofty mountain of Israel, yes, I will plant it; and it will bring forth shoots, produce fruit, and be a great cedar. Under it, every kind of wild animal will take rest, every kind of bird will rest in its shade, and its branches will be restored. 24 So all the trees of the field will know that I, the Lord, am He who humbles the high tree and exalts the humble tree, who dries up the green tree and makes the dry tree flourish. I, the Lord, have spoken and will do it.’ ”
Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

†2“Son of man, what is the meaning of this parable among the children of Israel which says, ‘The fathers eat unripe grapes, and the children's teeth grind’?

3As I live,” says the Lord, “you shall no longer use this parable in Israel.

4For all souls are Mine; the soul of the father as well as the soul of the son is Mine.

“The soul who sins, he shall die.

5But the man who is righteous and does judgment and righteousness, who will not eat on the mountains, or lift up his eyes to the inventions of the house of Israel, or defile his neighbor's wife, and who will not approach a woman during her menstruation,

7or oppress any man, but who will restore to the debtor his pledge, and commit no robbery, but who will give his bread to the hungry and cover the naked, and who will not lend his money with interest, but will turn his hand from wrongdoing, and do righteous judgment between a man and his neighbor,

9and walk in My ordinances, and keep My requirements to do them—this man is righteous. He will surely live!” says the Lord.

10“But if he begets a troublesome son, who sheds blood, commits sins,

11does not walk in the way of his righteous father, but eats on the mountains, defiles his neighbor's wife,

12oppresses the poor and needy, commits robbery, does not restore a pledge, sets his eyes on the idols, commits lawlessness,

13exacts interest, and takes unjust gains—this son shall not live, because he did all this lawlessness. He will surely die, and his blood shall be upon himself.

14“If, however, he begets a son who sees all the sins his father commits, but fears and does not do according to these things—

15does not eat on the mountains, nor sets his eyes on the inventions of the house of Israel, nor defiles his neighbor's wife,

16nor oppresses anyone, nor withholds a pledge, nor commits robbery, but gives his bread to the hungry, covers the naked,

17and turns his hand from wrongdoing, nor receives interest, nor takes unjust gains, but does righteousness and walks in My ordinances—this son shall not die for the wrongdoings of his father. He will surely live.

18As for his father, if he cruelly oppresses and robs his brother, and does these contrary things in the midst of My people, he shall die in his wrongdoing.
19“Yet you say, ‘Why does a son not bear the wrongdoing of his father?’ Because the son practiced righteousness, showed mercy, kept all My commandments and did them. Thus he will surely live. 20But the soul who sins shall die. The son shall not bear the wrongdoing of his father, nor shall the father bear the wrongdoing of his son. The righteousness of a righteous man shall be upon himself, and the lawlessness of a lawless man shall be upon himself. 21But if a lawless man turns from all the lawless deeds he commits, keeps all My commandments, does righteousness and shows mercy, he will surely live and not die. 22None of the transgressions he commits will be remembered. In the righteousness he does, he shall live. 23Do I ever will the death of a lawless man,” says the Lord, “since My will is for him to turn from the evil way and live? 24But when a righteous man turns away from his righteousness and commits a wrongdoing, according to all the lawlessness a lawless man commits, then all the righteousness he does shall not be remembered. In the transgression he falls into and in his sins he commits, in these he shall die.

25“Yet you say, ‘The Lord's way is not straight.’ Hear now, all the house of Israel, is My way not straight? Is your way straight? 26When the righteous man turns away from his righteousness, commits a transgression, and dies in the transgression he commits, he should die because of it. 27Again when a lawless man turns away from the lawlessness he commits and does judgment and righteousness, then he guards his life; 28for he turned himself away from all the ungodliness he committed. He will surely live and not die. 29Yet the house of Israel says, ‘The Lord's way is not right.’ Is not My way right, O house of Israel? Is not your way wrong? 30I shall judge you, O house of Israel, each one according to his way,” says the Lord. “Return and turn away from all your ungodliness, and it shall not be to you as a punishment for wrongdoing. 31Cast away from yourself all your ungodliness you commit against Me, and make a new heart and a new spirit for yourselves. For why should you die, O house of Israel? 32For I do not will the death of the one who dies,” says the Lord.†

A Song of Lament

19 “As for you, son of man, take up a lamentation for the prince of Israel.† 2You shall say, ‘Why did your mother became a young lion in the midst of lions? Among the lions she multiplied her young lions. 3Then one of her young lions leaped off. He became a lion, and learned to catch prey—he devoured men. 4The nations also heard of him. He was taken in their pit, and they brought him in a muzzle to the land of Egypt. 5So she saw he was driven away from her, and her assurance perished.

‘Then she took another of her young lions and made him a lion. He lived among the lions and became a lion. He learned to catch prey—he devoured men. He prowled in his boldness, laid waste their cities, and destroyed the land with its fullness by the noise of his roaring. Then the nations came against him from the countries all around, and spread their nets over him. He was taken in their pit. They put him in a muzzle, and he came to the king of Babylon in a cage for wild animals. So they led him into a prison so his voice would not be heard on the mountains of Israel.

10Your mother was like a vine, like a blossom on a pomegranate tree, planted in water. Her fruit and branches grew because of much water. She became a rod of strength for a tribe of leaders. She was exalted in her greatness in the midst of the stems, and saw her greatness in the multitude of her branches. But she was broken to pieces in anger, for she was thrown down on the ground, and the wind and burning heat dried her chosen branches. She was punished, and the rod of her strength withered—fire consumed it. So now they have planted her in the desert, in a waterless land. Fire went out from the rod of her chosen branches and devoured her. There was no rod of strength in her. Her tribe is a parable of lamentation, and it shall be for a lamentation.’”

The Will of the Lord, and Man's Rebellion.

Again it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, that men from the elders of the house of Israel came to inquire of the Lord, and they sat before me. Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying, “Son of man, speak to the elders of Israel, and you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Have you come to inquire of Me? As I live,” says the Lord, “I will not answer your inquiries.’ ” Shall I utterly take vengeance on them, son of man? Testify to them concerning the lawlessness of their fathers.

You shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “From the day I chose Israel and made Myself known to the seed of the house of Jacob, and to those in the land of Egypt, and helped them with My hand, saying, ‘I am the Lord your God’ — in that day I helped them with My hand to lead them from the land of Egypt into the land I prepared for them, a land flowing with milk and honey, a land more abundant than all other lands. I said to them, ‘Let each of you cast away the abominations before his eyes, and not defile yourselves with the practices of Egypt. I am the Lord your God.’

But they fell away from Me and were unwilling to obey Me. They did not cast away the abominations before their eyes, nor abandon the practices of Egypt. Then I said I would pour out My anger and accomplish My wrath among them in the land of Egypt. So I acted that My name would not at all be desecrated in the sight of the nations in the midst of whom they were, and among whom I made Myself known in their sight, to lead them out of Egypt.

I brought them out of Egypt and led them into the desert. I gave them My ordinances and made known My requirements to them, which if a man will do them, he shall live by them. I also gave them My Sabbaths as a sign between Me and them, so they might know that I am the Lord who sanctifies them. I said to the house of Israel in the desert, ‘You shall walk in my ordinances.’ But they did not walk in them, and they rejected my requirements, which if a man will do them, he shall live by them; and they desecrated my Sabbaths exceedingly. Thus I said I would pour out My anger upon them in the wilderness, to utterly destroy them. So I acted that My name might not be at all desecrated before the nations before whose eyes I brought them out. I swore an oath against them in the desert that I would no longer bring them into the land I gave them, a land flowing with milk and honey, a land sweeter than all other lands, because they rejected My requirements and did not walk in My ordinances; instead, they desecrated My Sabbaths and walked after the inventions of their hearts. Nevertheless My eye spared them from utter destruction, and I did not make an end to them in the wilderness.

But I said to their children in the desert, ‘Do not walk in the customs of your fathers, nor observe their requirements, nor have fellowship with their practices, nor defile yourself with them. I am the Lord your God. Walk in My ordinances, keep My requirements and do them. Sanctify My Sabbaths, and let them be a sign between Me and you, that you may know that I am the Lord your God.’ But they rebelled against me, along with their children. They did not walk in My ordinances or keep My requirements, which if a man will do them, he shall live by them; and they desecrated My Sabbaths. So I said I would pour out My wrath upon them in the desert, to accomplish My wrath against them. But I did this so My name would not be desecrated in the sight of the nations before whose eyes I brought them out. Thus I swore an oath against them in the desert, that I might scatter them among the nations and disperse them in the countries, because they did not keep My requirements. and rejected My ordinances. They desecrated My Sabbaths, and their eyes went after the inventions of their fathers. 25Therefore I gave them ordinances that were not good, and requirements in which they should not live. 26I will defile them by their gifts, when I pass through upon everyone that opens the womb, that I may destroy them.’ ”

27“Therefore speak to the house of Israel, son of man, and you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Up to this point, your fathers provoked Me by the transgressions they committed against Me. 28But I led them into the land I swore with an oath to give them, and they saw every high hill and every shade tree. There they sacrificed to their gods; and there they appointed fragrant offerings and poured out their drink offerings. 29Then I said to them, ‘What is this high place you go to?’ So they call its name Bamah, to this day.’ ” 30Therefore say to the house of Israel, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Do you defile yourselves with the lawlessness of your fathers, and commit fornication after their abominations? 31You defile yourselves in the first fruits of your gifts with all your inventions to this very day. Shall I answer you, O house of Israel? As I live,” says the Lord, “I will not answer you, nor will an answer occur to your spirit; 32for it will not be as you say, ‘We will be like the nations and like the tribes of the earth, to worship trees and stones.’ ”

33“Therefore, as I live,” says the Lord, “I will reign over you with a mighty hand, with a high arm, and with anger poured out. 34I shall lead you out from the peoples and will receive you from the countries where you were scattered, with a mighty hand, with a high arm, and with anger poured out. 35I shall bring you into the desert of the peoples and will judge you face to face. 36As I judged your fathers in the desert of the land of Egypt, so I shall judge you,” says the Lord. 37“I will make you pass under my scepter and bring you in by number. 38I will select the ungodly from among you, and those who revolted; for I shall lead them out of their sojourning, and they will not enter the land of Israel. Then they will know that I am the Lord.

39“As for you, O house of Israel,” thus says the Lord and Master: “Each of you put away your practices, and after this, if you listen to Me, you will no longer desecrate My holy name with your gifts and practices. 40For upon My holy mountain, the high mountain,” says the Lord and Master, “there all the house of Israel will serve Me to the end; and there I shall receive you, and look upon the first fruits of your offerings, together with all your holy objects. 41I shall receive you as a fragrant aroma when I lead you out from the peoples, and receive you from the countries where you were scattered; and I shall be sanctified among you before the eyes of the peoples. Then you will know that I am the Lord, when I lead you into the land of Israel, into the land I swore by an oath to give your fathers. There you will remember all your ways and practices which defiled you; and you shall bewail yourselves for all your evil. Then you will know that I am the Lord, when I deal with you in the way, that My name be not desecrated according to your evil ways and corrupt practices,” says the Lord.’

Fire in the Woods

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, “Son of man, set your face against Teman, and look against Darom, and prophesy against the forest which leads to Nageb. You will say to the forest of Nageb, ‘Hear the word of the Lord. Thus says the Lord and Master: “Behold, I will kindle a fire in you, and it shall devour every green wood and every dry wood in you. The blazing flame shall not be quenched, and every face from north to south shall be burned up by it. All flesh shall know that I, the Lord, kindled it, and it shall not be quenched.” ’ ”

The Sword of the Lord

So the word of the Lord came to me, saying, “Therefore, son of man, prophesy and set your face against Jerusalem, and look against the holy places, and prophesy against the land of Israel. You shall say to the land of Israel, ‘Behold, I am against you, and I will draw My sword out of its sheath and destroy both the unrighteous man and the lawless man from among you. Because I will destroy both the unrighteous man and the lawless man from among you, thus My sword shall go out of its sheath against all flesh from north to south, and all flesh will know that I, the Lord, have drawn My sword out of its sheath; and it shall not return anymore.’ As for you, son of man, groan with a breaking heart, and sigh with bitterness before their eyes. It will be, if they say to you, ‘Why are you groaning?’ that you shall say, ‘Because of the news, for it is coming. Every heart will be oppressed, all hands will be feeble, all flesh and every spirit will faint, and every thigh will be stained with urine. Behold, it is coming and will be,’ says the Lord and Master.”

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, “Son of man, prophesy and you will say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Say, ‘O sword, sword, be sharpened and furious, \(^{15}\)that you may slay victims. Be sharpened, that you may be glistening and ready for destruction. Despise and reject every tree.’ \(^{16}\)So he made it ready for his hand to hold. The sword is sharpened and ready to put in the hand of the slayer.’”

\(^{17}\)Cry out and wail, son of man, for this sword is come among My people; this sword is come among all the leaders of Israel. They shall be as strangers because of the sword that is come among My people; therefore, clap your hands, \(^{18}\)because it is justified; and what if even the tribe is rejected? It shall not be,” says the Lord and Master.

\(^{19}\)So you, son of man, prophesy, and clap your hands, and take a second sword. The third is the sword of the slain, the great sword of the slain. It will amaze them, \(^{20}\)that the heart may be oppressed, and the weak multiplied at every gate of theirs. They are handed over for slaughter by the sword, a sword well suited for slaughter, a sword well suited for glistening. \(^{21}\)Pass through and strike from the right and from the left, wherever your face may set itself. \(^{22}\)I also will clap My hands together and let go My anger. I, the Lord, have spoken.”

The Sword of the King of Babylon

\(^{23}\)Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying: \(^{24}\)“So you, son of man, order two roads for yourself, for the sword of the king of Babylon to enter. The two roads will go forth from one region. There shall be a force at the top of the way leading to the city. \(^{25}\)You shall order for a sword to enter against Rabbath of the children of Ammon, against Judah and against Jerusalem in its midst. \(^{26}\)For the king of Babylon will stand at the ancient road, at the fork of the two roads, to practice divination by casting a stick, consulting the graven images, and inspecting the liver for soothsaying. \(^{27}\)The divination against Jerusalem has come to pass—to set up barricades, to open the mouth with shouting, to lift up the voice with great shouting, to set battering rams against the gates, and to build engines of war. \(^{28}\)He will be to them as one who practices divination before them, and he will bring their wrongdoings to remembrance.

\(^{29}\)Therefore thus says the Lord: ‘Because you caused your wrongdoings to be remembered in the revelation of your ungodliness, that your sins should be seen in all your ungodliness and ways of living—because you caused remembrance of them—you shall be taken captive. \(^{30}\)Now you, O godless and lawless leader of Israel, whose day has come, whose end of wrongdoing has come at the proper time, \(^{31}\)thus says the Lord: “You removed the turban and put on the crown; another will not follow. You humbled what was high and exalted what was low. 32 I will reckon it as wrongdoing, wrongdoing! Another shall not follow it until He comes whose right it is, and I will deliver it to Him.’ ”

A Sword for Ammon

33 “As for you, son of man, prophesy, and you shall say, ‘Thus says the Lord to the sons of Ammon and to their shame,’ and you shall say, ‘O sword, sword, drawn for slaughter and for an end; arise, that you may glisten. 34 While you are seeing a worthless vision, and while you are prophesying falsehood, and while you are handing over the necks of wounded and lawless men whose day has come, whose end of wrongdoing has come at the proper time, turn back, and do not lodge in this place in which you were born, for I will judge you in your own land. 36 I will pour out My wrath upon you; I will breathe upon you with the fire of My wrath, and deliver you into the hands of barbarians, skilled in working destruction. 37 You will be fuel for the fire; your blood will be in the midst of your land. There will be no remembrance of you; for I the Lord have spoken.’ ”

The Sins of Jerusalem

22 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 2 “As for you, son of man, will you judge the city of blood? Show her all her lawlessness. 3 You will say, ‘Thus says the Lord and Master: “O city that sheds blood in her midst—her time has come—and that makes inventions against herself, so as to defile herself with their blood you shed, you fell away, and in the inventions you made you defiled yourself, and caused your days to draw near; and you have come to the end of your years; therefore, I made you a disgrace to the nations and a mockery to all countries near you and those far away from you. They will mock at you, saying, ‘She is abominable and unclean, and great is her lawlessness!’ ” 6 Behold, the leaders of the house conspired together within you, each with his relatives, to shed blood. 7 Within you they speak evil of father and mother, and behave unjustly toward the resident alien. Within you they oppress the orphan, and within you, the widow. 8 Within you they despise My holy things, and within you they desecrate My Sabbaths. 9 Within you men are robbers that shed blood within you, and eat on the mountains within you. They do unholy things in your midst. 10 Within you they uncover the father's shame, and within you violate women set apart during their impurity. 11 One man acts lawlessly with his neighbor's wife; another defiles his daughter-in-law in ungodliness; and within you another violates his sister, his father's daughter. 12Within you they accept gifts so as to shed blood. Within you they receive interest and unjust gains, and by oppression you bring your evil to the full. But you forgot Me,” says the Lord.

13“Therefore, if I strike My hands against the evils you bring to the full—against the things you are doing—and against the bloodshed occurring in your midst, 14will your heart endure, will your hands remain strong in the days I deal with you? I, the Lord, have spoken, and will do it. 15I will scatter you among the nations and disperse you in the countries; and your uncleanness will cease among you. 16I shall make the Gentiles the owners of your inheritance. Then you shall know that I am the Lord.”

17Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 18“Son of man, behold, the house of Israel is mixed before Me—they are altogether mixed—the house is mixed together in the midst of the silver, with bronze, iron, tin, and lead. 19Therefore thus says the Lord: ‘Because all of you are one mixture, therefore, I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem, 20as men gather silver, bronze, iron, tin, and lead into the midst of a furnace, to blow fire on it, to cast it like metal into a mold. Thus I shall gather you in My wrath, and bring you together and cast you. 21I shall blow on you with the fire of My wrath and cast you in her midst. 22As silver is cast into a mold in the midst of a furnace, so shall you be cast in her midst. Then you shall know that I, the Lord, have poured out My anger upon you.’”

23Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 24“Son of man, say to her, ‘You are the land not rained on, neither has rain come upon you in the day of wrath.’ 25Her leaders are like roaring lions seizing prey, who devour souls by domination and receive honors in wrongdoing; and your widows multiply in your midst. 26Her priests reject My law and desecrate My holy things. They no longer distinguish between the holy and the profane, nor between the unclean and the clean. They have hidden their eyes from My Sabbaths, and I am desecrated in their midst. 27Her rulers in her midst are like wolves seizing their prey, so as to shed blood and exploit others for greed. 28Her prophets who anoint them will fall because they see worthless and false prophecies, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord,’ but the Lord has not spoken, 29and because they oppress the people of the land in wrongdoing, commit robbery, oppress the poor and needy, and do not treat the resident alien with upright judgment. 30So I sought for a man among them who would conduct himself rightly and stand before Me. perfectly at all times in the land, so as not to wipe her out completely; but I did not find him. 31 Therefore I poured out My anger in the fire of my wrath to finish them, and I recompensed their ways on their heads,” says the Lord and Master.

Two Immoral Sisters

23 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, †2 “Son of man, there were two women, the daughters of one mother, 3 and they committed fornication in Egypt while still young. Their breasts fell while there, and their virginity was lost. 4 Their names were Oholah the elder and Oholibah her sister; they were Mine, and they bore sons and daughters. As for their names, Samaria is Oholah and Jerusalem is Oholibah.

The Older Sister, Samaria

5 “Oholah departed from Me and committed fornication. She gave herself to her lovers, the Assyrians, who drew near to her, 6 who were dressed in purple, leaders and commanders, all chosen young men, horsemen riding on horses. 7 Thus she committed fornication with them, all of them chosen sons of the Assyrians; and upon whomever she offered herself, with all their inventions, she defiled herself. 8 She did not abandon her fornication with Egyptians, for they slept with her in her youth. These men violated her virginity and poured out their fornication upon her. 9 Therefore I delivered her into the hand of her lovers, into the hands of the sons of the Assyrians to whom she offered herself. 10 They uncovered her shame, took her sons and daughters, and killed her with the sword. She became a byword among women, and they exacted retribution on her through her daughters.

The Younger Sister, Jerusalem

11 “Her sister Oholibah saw this, and she indulged in her lusts more corruptly than she, and her fornication more than the fornication of her sister. 12 She offered herself to the sons of the Assyrians, the leaders and commanders near her, men clothed in purple, horsemen riding on horses, all of them chosen young men. 13 I saw both defiled in the same way, 14 but Oholibah added to her fornication; for she looked at men portrayed on the wall, images of Chaldeans portrayed in color, 15 girded with embroidered belts around their waists and brightly colored turbans on their heads, the appearance of high rank to all of them, the likeness of the sons of the Chaldeans, their native land. 16 As soon as her eyes saw them, she offered herself to them and sent messengers to them in the land of the Chaldeans. Then the sons of Babylon came to her, into the bed of love, and defiled her in her fornication. So she was defiled with them, and her soul fell away because of them. She revealed her fornication and exposed her shame. So My soul withdrew from her, as My soul withdrew from her sister. Yes, you multiplied your fornication, so as to call to remembrance the days of your youth, in which you committed fornication in Egypt. For you offered yourself to the Chaldeans, whose flesh is like the flesh of donkeys, and their members as the members of horses. But you did look upon the lawlessness of your youth, the things you did in Egypt in your lodgings, where were the breasts of your youth.

Judgment of the Younger

—Therefore, Oholibah, thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I shall raise up your lovers against you, because of whom your soul fell away, and I shall bring them against you all around—the sons of Babylon, all the Chaldeans, Pekod, Shoa, Koa, all the sons of the Assyrians with them, chosen young men, all leaders and commanders, men of high rank and famous men riding on horses. All will come against you from the north—chariots and wheels with a multitude of peoples, with shields and spears—and they will set up a guard against you all around. I shall give judgment to them, and they will judge you according to their judgments. I shall put My jealousy on you, and they will deal with you in great wrath. They will take away your nose and ears, and strike down your remnant with the sword. They will take your sons and daughters, and fire will consume your remnant. They will also strip you of your clothes and take the objects of your boasting. Thus I shall turn back your ungodliness and your fornication from the land of Egypt; and you shall not lift your eyes to them, nor remember Egypt any longer.’

For thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I will deliver you into the hands of those you hate, because of whom you withdrew your souls. They will deal hatefully with you and take all the fruits of your labor and toil. You will be naked and disgraced, and the shame of your fornication and ungodliness will be revealed. Your fornication caused this to happen to you, in that you acted as a prostitute with the nations and defiled yourself with their inventions. You walked in the way of your sister; therefore, I shall put her cup into your hands.’
32 “Thus says the Lord: ‘You shall drink from the deep and large cup of your sister, a cup filled to the brim. 33 You shall be filled with drunkenness and feebleness, and you shall drink from the cup of destruction, the cup of your sister Samaria; 34 and I will take away her feasts and her new moons. For I have spoken,’ says the Lord. 35 Therefore thus says the Lord: ‘Because you forgot Me and cast Me behind your back, therefore, bear the penalty of your ungodliness and prostitution.’ ”

Judgment of Both Sisters

36 Again the Lord said to me, “Son of man, will you judge Oholah and Oholibah? You shall declare their lawlessness to them. 37 For they committed adultery, and blood is on their hands. They committed adultery with their inventions, and passed through the fire the children whom they bore to Me. 38 So long as they did these things to Me, they defiled My sanctuary and desecrated My Sabbaths. 39 For as they were slaughtering their children for their idols, they also entered My sanctuary to desecrate it; for so they did in the midst of My house. 40 They also sent for men from afar by way of messengers; and as they were traveling, you washed yourself for them, made up your eyes, and adorned yourself with jewelry. 41 You sat on a furnished bed, with a decorated table before it, and they rejoiced over My incense and oil. 42 They played harmonious music, and put bracelets on their wrists and a crown of boasting on their heads, to attract the multitude of men coming from the desert. 43 Therefore I asked, ‘Are they not committing adultery and doing the deeds of a prostitute with these? Is she not indulging in prostitution?’ 44 Yes, they went in to her as men go in to a prostitute; thus they went in to Oholah and Oholibah, to commit lawlessness. 45 But righteous men will take revenge on them after the manner of an adulteress, and after the manner of women who shed blood; because they are adulteresses, and blood is on their hands.

46 “Thus says the Lord: ‘Bring up a multitude against them and give them up to trouble and plunder. 47 They will stone them with the stones of a crowd and stab them with their swords. They will kill their sons and daughters and set their houses on fire. 48 Thus I shall turn away ungodliness from the land, and all women will be taught not to imitate their ungodliness. 49 Your ungodliness will be recompensed upon you, and you will bear the sins of your inventions. Then you shall know that I am the Lord.’ ”

Parable of the Cooking Pot
Again the word of the Lord came to me in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, saying, † 2Son of man, record for yourself daily, from this day, the day on which the king of Babylon laid siege against Jerusalem. 3Speak a parable to the house which provokes, and you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Stand over a basin and pour water into it. 4Put pieces of meat in it, every good piece, the thigh and shoulder full of meat, 5taken from the choice cattle. Also pile fuel-bones under it, make it boil well, and let the cuts simmer.”

6Therefore thus says the Lord: “O bloody city, the basin in which there is scum, and the scum has not gone out of it. She brought forth the cuts, piece by piece, but no portion was selected. 7For her blood is in her midst; I set it upon a smooth rock; I did not pour it on the ground, that the dirt may cover it, 8that My wrath may come forth and take vengeance. I set her blood upon a smooth rock, so as not to cover it.”

9Therefore thus says the Lord: “I will also make a great display of fire. 10I shall heap the wood on and kindle the fire, to consume the meat and boil away the sauce. 11I will set the basin on the coals, so its copper may become thoroughly heated and melted in the midst of her uncleanness, so her scum may be consumed, 12and her abundant scum may not come forth from her. 13Her scum shall be shameful, because you defiled yourself, and what if you will not be cleansed any more, until I have satisfied my wrath? 14I, the Lord, have spoken it, and it will come to pass; and I shall do it. I will not hold back nor show mercy. According to your ways and your inventions, I shall judge you,” says the Lord. “Therefore I shall judge you according to your bloodshed and inventions, you unclean, notorious, and provoking one.” ’ ”

Death of Ezekiel's Wife

15Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, † 16Son of man, behold, I will take away your inventions before your eyes in the line of battle, but you shall neither mourn nor weep. 17There shall be groaning over bloodshed and mourning on bended knee. There shall be no braided hair on your head or sandals on your feet. You shall not be comforted by their lips, nor shall you eat the bread of men.” 18So I spoke to the people in the morning in the manner He commanded me, and that evening my wife died. The next morning I did as He commanded me.

19Then the people said to me, “Will you not tell us what these things mean that you are
So I answered them, “The word of the Lord came to me, saying, 21: ‘Speak to the house of Israel, “Thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I shall desecrate My sanctuary, the boast of your strength, the object of your desire, over which your souls spare nothing; and your sons and daughters whom you left will fall by the sword. 22 You will do as I have done. You will not be comforted by their mouth, nor eat the bread of men. 23 Your hair will be on your heads and your sandals on your feet. You will neither mourn nor weep. You will sink deep in your wrongdoings, and each of you will comfort one another. 24 Thus Ezekiel shall be a sign to you; according to all he does, you will do. When these things come, you will know that I am the Lord.’ ”

25 ‘As for you, son of man, it shall not be as in the day when I take their strength from them, the arrogance of their boasting, the objects of their desire, and the arrogance of their souls, their sons and their daughters. 26 In that day, he who is rescued will come to you, so you will hear of it with your own ears. 27 In that day, your mouth will open before him who is rescued. You will speak and no longer be silent. Thus you will be a sign to them, and they shall know that I am the Lord.’ ”
Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 2 "Son of man, set your face against the children of Ammon and prophesy against them. 3 You shall say to the children of Ammon, 'Hear the word of the Lord. Thus says the Lord: “Because you rejoiced against My sanctuary when it was desecrated, and against the land of Israel when it was destroyed, and against the house of Judah when they went into captivity; 4 therefore, behold, I shall deliver you over to the children of Kedem as an inheritance. They will dwell among you with their goods and pitch their tents among you. They will eat your fruit and drink your drinks. 5 I shall make the city of Ammon a pasturage for camels, and Rabbah a resting place for sheep. Then you will know that I am the Lord.” 6 For thus says the Lord: "Because you clapped your hands, and applauded with your feet, and rejoiced in your soul against the land of Israel; 7 therefore, I shall stretch out My hand against you and give you as plunder to the nations. I shall utterly destroy you from among the peoples and cause you to perish from the countries. Then you will know that I am the Lord.”

Thus says the Lord: “Because Moab said, ‘Behold, the house of Israel and Judah is like all the nations,’ 9 therefore, behold, I shall weaken the shoulder of Moab from its prominent cities—its choice land—as is the house of Beth Jeshimoth, above the spring of the seaside city. 10 I have given these cities, as well as the children of Ammon, as an inheritance to the sons of Kedem, so there may be no memory of the sons of Ammon. 11 Thus I shall take vengeance upon Moab, and they will know that I am the Lord.”

Thus says the Lord: “Because of what Edom did when it took revenge on the house of Judah, and because they remembered wrongs and exacted punishment,” 13 therefore, thus says the Lord: “I shall also stretch out My hand against Edom, and destroy man and cattle from it, and make it a desert. They will be pursued from Teman and fall by the sword. 14 I shall execute My vengeance on Edom by the hand of My people Israel, and they will do in Edom according to My wrath and anger. Then they will know My vengeance,” says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: “Because of what Edom did when it took revenge on the house of Judah, and because they remembered wrongs and exacted punishment,” 13 therefore, thus says the Lord: “I shall also stretch out My hand against Edom, and destroy man and cattle from it, and make it a desert. They will be pursued from Teman and fall by the sword. 14 I shall execute My vengeance on Edom by the hand of My people Israel, and they will do in Edom according to My wrath and anger. Then they will know My vengeance,” says the Lord.
Therefore thus says the Lord: “Because the foreigners exacted vengeance and raised up vengeance, rejoicing in their souls to destroy My people forever,” therefore, thus says the Lord: “Behold, I shall stretch out My hand against the foreigners, and I shall utterly destroy the Cretans. I shall also destroy those who dwell on the seacoast. 17 I shall execute great vengeance, and they will know that I am the Lord, when I bring My vengeance upon them.”

Judgment on Tyre

Again it came to pass in the eleventh year, on the first day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 2 “Son of man, because Tyre spoke against Jerusalem, saying, ‘Good, well done!’ she is crushed; the nations destroyed her; she is turned to Me; she who was full is made desolate! 3 Therefore, thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, I am against you, O Tyre, and will cause many nations to come up against you, as the sea causes its waves to crash the shore. 4 They will knock down your walls, O Tyre, and break down your towers. I shall scrape her dust from her and make her like a smooth rock. 5 It will be a drying-place for fishing nets in the midst of the sea, for I have spoken,’ says the Lord. ‘It shall be as a place of plunder for the nations. 6 Also her daughters which are on the plain will be killed by the sword. Then they will know that I am the Lord.’

7 “For thus says the Lord: ‘Behold, from the north I will bring Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon against you, O Tyre. He is king of kings, with horses, chariots, horsemen, and an army of very many nations.” 8 He will kill your daughters with the sword in the plain; he will establish outposts and build forts around you. He will establish a barricade and warlike works against you all around, and array his spears against you. 9 Your walls and towers will be struck down with his swords. 10 Because of the great number of his horses, their dust clouds will cover you, and because of the sound of his horsemen and the wheels of his chariots, your walls will shake when he enters your gates, like one who enters a city from the plain. 11 With the hooves of his horses, they will trample all your streets. He will kill your people with the sword, and bring down to the ground the substance of your strength. 12 He will plunder your army and strip your possessions. He will break down your walls and pull down your desirable houses. He will throw your stones, your timber, and your soil into the sea. 13 He will destroy the multitude of your musicians, and the sound of your harps will be heard no more. 14 I shall make you bare like the top of a rock, a place for spreading nets; you will never be rebuilt, for I have spoken,’ says the Lord.
15“For thus says the Lord and Master to Tyre: ‘Will not the coastlands shake at the sound of your fall, when the wounded groan, when the sword is unsheathed in your midst? 16Then all the rulers of the nations along the seacoast will step down from their thrones, lay aside their crowns, and take off their embroidered garments. They will be beside themselves as they sit on the ground. They will tremble with fear at their destruction and groan over you. 17They will take up a lamentation for you and say to you, “How were you destroyed from out of the sea, O renowned city that caused her fear to be on all her inhabitants?” 18From the day of your fall, the coastlands will also be afraid.’

19“For thus says the Lord and Master: ‘When I make you a wasted city, like cities not to be inhabited, and when I bring the abyss upon you, and much water covers you, 20then I shall bring you down to those who descend into the pit, to the people of old, and I shall make you dwell in the depths of the earth, like an eternal desert, with those who go down into the pit, that you may never be inhabited, nor raised up to the land of the living. 21I shall give you over to destruction, and you will never exist again,’ says the Lord and Master.”

_Lament for Tyre_

27Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying,† 2“Son of man, take up a lamentation for Tyre, 3and you shall say to Tyre, situated at the entrance of the sea and market of the peoples on many coastlands, ‘Thus says the Lord to Tyre: “You say, ‘I clothed myself with beauty.’ 4In the heart of the sea, your sons clothed you with beauty for Beelim. 5Cedar from Senir was used by you in building. Boards of cypress timber were obtained from Lebanon to make masts of pinewood, 6and they made your oars out of wood from Bashan. They made your sacred objects from ivory, and your groves of houses out of wood from the coastlands of Cyprus. 7Your couch was made of fine embroidered linen from Egypt, to cover you with splendor, and to clothe you with blue and purple from the coasts of Elishah. They were your coverings. 8Your rulers were the inhabitants of Sidon, and the Aradians were your oarsmen. Your skilled men, O Tyre, were your pilots. 9The elders of Byblos and their wise men were in you. These men strengthened your counsel. All the ships of the sea and their oarsmen were yours, even to the far west.

10“Persians, Lydians, and Libyans were in your army. Your warriors hung shields and helmets in you, and they gave you glory. 11The sons of the Aradians and your army were upon your walls. There were guards in your towers, and they hung their quivers on the walls all around your harbors. These sons completed your beauty.

12 Those from Carthage were your merchants because of the abundance of all your strength. They furnished your marketplace with silver, gold, iron, tin, and lead. 13 Greece and all the extended regions, these busied themselves in the trade of human lives and of vessels of copper for your markets. 14 The house of Togarmah furnished your marketplace with horses and horsemen. 15 The sons of Rodians were your traders. From the coastlands they multiplied your trade in ivory. 16 To those who brought in the goods, you paid them wages in return from the abundant market of your mixed goods: myrrh and embroidered works from Tharsis, and even people as merchandise. Ramoth and Chorchor also traded with you. 17 Judah and the sons of Israel, these traded with you. They traded in your marketplace the sale of wheat, myrrh, cassia, fine honey, oil, and resin. 18 Damascus was a merchant in your marketplace because of the abundance of all your power: wine from Helbon and wool from Miletos. They also provided wine for your marketplace. 19 From Asel, there came wrought iron and wheels for your market of mixed goods. 20 Dedan was your merchant, with choice animals for chariots. 21 Arabia and all the rulers of Kedar, these were your traders, bringing camels, rams, and lambs in which they traded with you. 22 The merchants of Sheba and Raamah traded with you. They traded for your wares the choicest spices, all kinds of precious stones, and gold. 23 Harran and Canneh also traded with you. Assyria and Chilmad were merchants in your marketplace, 24 as they brought trade in blue cloth, in choice treasures bound with ropes, and in cypress wood. 25 The ships of Tarshish were your merchants in abundance, with your market of mixed goods, and you were filled and heavily loaded in the heart of the sea.

26 Your oarsmen brought you into many waters, but the south wind broke you to pieces in the heart of the sea. 27 Your armies and the profits from your markets of mixed goods, your oarsmen and pilots, your counselors and merchandisers from your market of mixed goods, all your men of war who are in you, and the entire company in your midst will fall in the heart of the sea in the day of your fall. 28 At the sound of your cry, your pilots will be greatly afraid. 29 All who handle the oar, the mariners, and all the pilots of the sea will disembark from their ships and stand on the shore. 30 They will cry out in pain over you. They will cry out bitterly, put dust on their heads, and spread ashes under themselves. 31 Their sons will take up a song of grief and a lamentation for you, saying, 32:‘How great a profit did you find from the sea? The nations were filled from your abundance and the kings of the earth were enriched from your market of mixed goods. 33:Now you are broken to pieces in the sea, in the depth of water. Your market of mixed goods and all your assembly fell in your midst, along with all your oarsmen. 34:All the inhabitants of the coastlands are shocked over you. Their kings are greatly astonished, and their faces are covered with tears. 35:The merchants from the nations hiss at you, for destruction has come about, and you will be no more forever.’”’

The King of Tyre Is Overthrown

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 2:“As for you, son of man, say to the ruler of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Because your heart is lifted up, and you say, ‘I am God, and I live in the dwelling of God, in the heart of the sea,’ yet you are a man and not God, though you set your heart as the heart of God. 3:Are you wiser than Daniel? Or have not your wise men instructed you with their understanding? 4:Have you gained wisdom by your own understanding? Have you gained power for yourself by your own knowledge or discernment, and obtained gold and silver by yourself for your treasuries? 5:By your abundant understanding and trade you increased your power, and your heart was lifted up in your power.””’ Therefore thus says the Lord: “Since you set your heart as the heart of God, 7:instead of this, behold, I shall bring foreigners against you, the plague of the nations. They will unsheathe their swords against the beauty of your knowledge and bring down your beauty in destruction. 8:They will bring you down, and you will die the death of the slain in the heart of the sea. 9:Will you still say, ‘I am God,’ before those who slay you? But you are a man and not God. 10:You shall perish by the hands of foreigners among the multitude of the uncircumcised, for I have spoken,” says the Lord.’”

Lamentation for the Ruler of Tyre

11:Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 12:“Son of man, take up a lamentation for the ruler of Tyre, and say to him, ‘Thus says the Lord and Master: “You are a seal of resemblance and crown of beauty. 13:You were the luxury of the paradise of God, adorned with every good stone: sardius, topaz, emerald, and diamond, sapphire, jasper, silver, and gold, stone of Liguria, agate, and amethyst, chrysolite, beryl, and onyx. You filled your treasuries and your storehouses with gold from the very day you were created. 14:I appointed you to be with the cherub. I set you on the holy mountain of God. You were in the midst of the stones of fire. 15 You were blameless in your days from the day you were created, until wrongs were found in you. 16 By the abundance of your trade, you filled your secret rooms with lawlessness; thus you sinned. So you were cast wounded from the mountain of God, and the cherub brought you out from the midst of the stones of fire. 17 Your heart was lifted up because of your beauty. Your knowledge was corrupted with your beauty. Because of the multitude of your sins I cast you to the ground. Before kings I set you forth as an example. 18 Because of the multitude of your sins and the wrongdoings of your trade, you desecrated your sanctuaries; therefore, I will bring fire from your midst which will devour you, to turn you into ashes upon your land in the sight of all who see you. 19 All who know you among the nations shall groan over you. You destroyed yourself, and you shall be present no more forever.”’”

Judgment on Sidon

20 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 21 “Son of man, set your face toward Sidon, and prophesy against her, 22 and say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I am against you, O Sidon, and I shall be glorified in you. Then you will know that I am the Lord, when I execute judgments in you and am sanctified in you. 23 Blood and death shall be in your streets, and those wounded by the sword shall fall on every side. Then you will know that I am the Lord.”

Israel Will Have Hope

25 Thus says the Lord and Master: “I shall bring Israel from the nations where they were scattered, and I shall be sanctified among them in the sight of the peoples and of the nations. Then they will dwell in their own land which I gave to My servant Jacob. 26 So they will dwell there in hope, build houses, and plant vineyards; yes, they will dwell in hope when I execute judgment on all those who dishonor them. Then they will know that I am the Lord their God, and the God of their fathers.”’”

Judgment on Egypt
In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying, "Son of man, set your face toward Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him and against all Egypt. 3Speak and say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I am against you, O Pharaoh king of Egypt, O great dragon who lies in the midst of his rivers and says, ‘The rivers are mine, for I made them.’ 4But I shall put hooks in your jaws and join the fish of your rivers to your wings, and I shall bring you and all the fish of your river up from the midst of your river. 5Then I will quickly cast down you and all the fish of your river. You will fall to the surface of the plain, and you will not be gathered and buried. I will give you as food to the wild animals of the field and to the birds of the heavens. 6Then all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the Lord, because they were a staff made of reed to the house of Israel. 7For when they took hold of you with their hand, you broke it, and when every hand conquered them and they rested their hand on you, you crushed it and broke all their backs.”

8Therefore thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will bring a sword against you, and destroy man and cattle from you. 9Thus the land of Egypt shall be destroyed and become a desert. Then they will know that I am the Lord, because you say, ‘The rivers are mine, and I made them.’ 10Therefore, behold, I am against you and against all your rivers, and I shall turn the land of Egypt into a desert, to the sword and to destruction, from Migdol to Syene, as far as the borders of Ethiopia. 11Neither foot of man nor foot of cattle will pass through it, and it will be uninhabited for forty years. 12I shall make the land of Egypt a destruction in the midst of a land laid waste, and her cities will be laid waste for forty years. I shall scatter Egypt among the nations and disperse them like chaff throughout the countries.”

13Yet, thus says the Lord: “At the end of forty years, I shall gather the Egyptians from the nations where they were scattered. 14I shall bring back the captives of the Egyptians and cause them to dwell in the land of Pathros, in the land from which they were taken; but they will be a lowly dominion. 15Alongside all the dominions, it will not be exalted any longer among the nations, for I shall make them to be very small, so as not to be great among the nations. 16So they shall no longer be to the house of Israel as an expectation to remind them to follow after their lawlessness. Then they will know that I am the Lord.”’
Again it came to pass in the twenty-seventh year, in the first month, on the first day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 18 “Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon caused his army to labor strenuously against Tyre. Every head was made bald, and every shoulder rubbed raw; yet there was no reward to him nor his army serving against Tyre, for the labor they expended on it. 19 Therefore thus says the Lord and Master: ‘Behold, I will give the land of Egypt to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and he will plunder it and carry off her spoil. It will be the wages for his army. 20 As compensation for his service in which he served against Tyre, I will give him the land of Egypt,’ says the Lord and Master.

21 “In that day a horn shall spring forth for all the house of Israel, and I will give you an open mouth in the midst of them. Then they will know that I am the Lord.”

Woe to Egypt and Her Allies

Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 2 “Son of man, prophesy and say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Woe, woe be the day! 3 For the day of the Lord is near. It shall be the end of the nations. 4 The sword will come upon the Egyptians, and there shall be trouble in Ethiopia. The wounded will fall in Egypt, and her foundations shall collapse. 5 Persians, Cretans, Lydians, Libyans, and all the mixed multitude, and all the children of the covenant shall fall by the sword therein.”’

6 “Thus says the Lord: “The supports of Egypt will fall, and the insolence of her strength will come down. From Migdol to Syene, they shall fall by the sword therein,” says the Lord. 7 “So they shall be wasted in the midst of desolate countries, and their cities shall be wasted in the midst of desolate cities. 8 Then they will know that I am the Lord, when I set Egypt on fire and crush all those who help it. 9 In that day messengers shall go forth, hurrying to destroy Ethiopia, and there will be trouble among them in the day of Egypt; for behold, it is coming.”

10 “Thus says the Lord and Master: “I shall destroy a multitude of the Egyptians by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. 11 His hand and the hand of his people, they are the plague of the nations, sent to destroy the land. They will unsheathe all their swords against Egypt and fill the land with the slain. 12 I shall make their rivers deserts, and I will destroy the land and its fullness by the hands of foreigners. I, the Lord, have spoken.”

13 ‘For thus says the Lord and Master: “I shall also destroy the men of high status from Memphis, and the rulers of Memphis from the land of Egypt; and they shall be no more. 14 I shall destroy the land of Pathros, and set Tanis on fire, and exact vengeance on Diospolis. 15 I will pour out My anger on Sais, the strength of Egypt, and I will destroy the multitude of Memphis, 16 and set Egypt on fire. Syene will be greatly troubled, there shall be a rupture in Diospolis, and there will be flooding waters. 17 The youth of Heliopolis and Bubastum shall fall by the sword, and the women will go into captivity. 18 At Taphnae, the day will be darkened, when there I break to pieces the kingly powers of Egypt, and there the insolence of her strength shall perish. A cloud will cover her, and her daughters shall be taken prisoners. 19 Thus I shall execute judgment on Egypt, for they shall know that I am the Lord.’”

Pharaoh Punished by Babylon

20 Again it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 21 “Son of man, I have broken the arms of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and, behold, it has not been bound up to be healed, and no plaster applied to make it strong enough to hold a sword. 22 Therefore thus says the Lord and Master: ‘I am against Pharaoh king of Egypt. I will break his strong and outstretched arms, and throw down his sword from his hand. 23 I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them as chaff throughout the countries. 24 I shall strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon and put My sword into his hand. I shall bring it upon Egypt, and he shall plunder and take spoils from it. 25 Thus I shall strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, but the arms of Pharaoh will fall. Then they will know that I am the Lord, when I put My sword into the hand of the king of Babylon and he stretches it out against the land of Egypt. 26 So I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them as chaff throughout the countries. Then all will know that I am the Lord.’”

A Warning to Pharaoh

31 Again it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 2 “Son of man, say to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and to his multitude, ‘To whom do you liken yourself in your high position? 3 Behold, Assyria was a cypress in Lebanon, and he was beautiful in offshoots and high in greatness. His rule came to be among the clouds. 4 Water nurtured him, and the depths made him grow tall. The depths led her rivers around his trees, and sent forth her system into all the trees of the plain. 5 For this reason his greatness was exalted above all the trees of the plain, and his branches were enlarged because of the abundance of water. 6 All the birds of the heavens made their nests in his offshoots, and under his branches all the wild animals of the plain brought forth their young; and all the multitude of nations dwelt under his shadow.

7 Thus he was beautiful in his high position because of the multitude of his branches, for his roots were in much water. 8 There were no such cypresses in the paradise of God, and there were no pine trees displaying offshoots like these. Silver firs did not have branches like these. No tree in the paradise of God was like him in beauty because of the multitude of his branches, 9 and all the trees of God's paradise of splendor were jealous of him.'

10 “Therefore thus says the Lord: ‘Because you increased in greatness, and you established your rule among the clouds, and I saw him when he was exalted; 11 therefore, I delivered him into the hands of the ruler of nations, and he carried out his destruction. 12 Thus foreigners, the plague of the nations, destroyed him and cast him down upon the mountains. His branches fell in all the valleys, and his stems were broken in every plain of the land. All the peoples of the nations went down from their shelter and dashed him to the ground. 13 All the birds of heaven rested on his fall, and all the wild animals of the field came upon his branches, 14 that no trees in the water may ever again exalt themselves in their greatness, nor establish their rule among the clouds, and that no trees which drink water may stand in their high position. For all were delivered to death, to the depths of the earth, among the sons of men who go down to the pit.’

15 “Thus says the Lord and Master: ‘In the day he went down to Hades, the deep abyss mourned him; and I stood over her rivers and restrained her abundant water. Lebanon mourned over him, and all the trees of the field fainted over him. 16 From the sound of his fall, the nations were shaken when I cast him down to Hades, together with those who descend into the pit. All the trees of splendor and the chosen plants of Lebanon, all that drink water, comforted him in the earth. 17 Yet they also went down to Hades with him among those slain by the sword, along with their posterity. They that dwelt under his shadow perished in the midst of their life. 18 To whom are you likened? Go down and be humiliated with the trees of splendor to the depths of the earth. You will sleep in the midst of the uncircumcised, with those slain by the sword. Thus shall it be for Pharaoh and the multitude of his strength,’ says the Lord and Master.”
Again it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the twelfth month, on the first day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying, † 2“Son of man, take up a lamentation over Pharaoh king of Egypt, and you shall say to him, ‘You are like a lion among the nations, and you are like a dragon in the sea. You assaulted with your rivers, troubled water with your feet, and trampled your rivers.’

3“Thus says the Lord: ‘I shall therefore spread a net over you of many peoples, and bring you up with my fishhook. 4I shall stretch you out upon the earth, and the plains will be filled with you. I shall cause the birds of the heavens to settle upon you, and all the beasts of the whole earth to fill up on you. 5I shall offer your flesh on the open mountains and saturate them with your blood. 6The land shall be drenched with your excrement because of your multitude upon the mountains. I will fill the valleys with you. 7When I extinguish you, I shall cover up heaven and make its stars grow dark. I shall cover up the sun with a cloud, and the moon will not give her light. 8All the bodies that give light in heaven shall grow dark over you, and I shall bring darkness upon your land, says the Lord and Master. 9I will provoke to anger the heart of many peoples, when I lead you captive among the nations into a land you have not known. 10Many nations will become saddened over you, and their kings will be utterly amazed when My sword flies in their faces, as they await their own fall from the day of your fall.’

11“For thus says the Lord: ‘The sword of the king of Babylon will come upon you with the swords of his mighty men, and I will strike down your strength. 12All these men are plagues from the nations. They will destroy the insolence of Egypt, and all her strength will be crushed. 13I will also destroy all her cattle from beside her abundant water, which the foot of man will trouble no more, nor will the footstep of cattle trample it. 14Thus at that time, their waters shall become still, and their rivers will flow like oil, says the Lord, 15when I give Egypt over to destruction, and the land becomes desolate with all its fullness, and when I disperse all who dwell in it. Then they will know that I am the Lord. 16There is a lamentation, and you shall mourn over Pharaoh. The daughters of the nations shall mourn over him and over Egypt, and they shall mourn for her over all her strength,’ says the Lord and Master.”
Again in the first month of the twelfth year, on the fifteenth day of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying, "Son of man, lament over the strength of Egypt, for the nations will cast down her daughters dead into the depth of the earth, to those who go down into the pit. They shall fall with him among those slain by the sword, and all his strength will sleep in death. The mighty men will say to you, 'Be in the depth of the pit, for to whom are you superior? Go down and sleep in death with the uncircumcised among those slain by the sword.'

Assyria is there and all its company, and all the slain were put there. Their burial-place is in the depth of the pit, and his company are set round about his grave. All the slain who fell by the sword are those who caused their fear to be upon the land of the living.

There is Elam and all his army all around his grave, and all the slain who fell by the sword, and the uncircumcised who went down into the depth of the earth, and who caused their terror to be in the land of the living. Now they bear their torment with those who go down to the pit among the slain.

Meshech and Tubal and all their strength were put there around about his grave. All his slain men, all the uncircumcised slain by the sword, who spread their terror in the land of the living, are there. They sleep in death with the mighty men who fell of old, who went down to Hades with their weapons of war. Their swords were put under their heads, but their lawlessness was placed on their bones, because they terrified the mighty men in the land of the living. As for you, you will sleep in death among the uncircumcised, with those slain by the sword.

There are the rulers of Assyria who yielded his strength to a wound of the sword. They sleep in death with the slain, with those who go down into the pit. There are the rulers of the north, all the commanders of Assyria, who, with their terror and their strength, go down slain into the pit. They fell asleep uncircumcised with those slain by the sword, and they bear their torment with those who go down to the pit.

King Pharaoh will see them, and be comforted over all their strength," says the Lord and Master. "For I caused his fear to be in the land of the living; but he shall sleep in death among the uncircumcised, with those slain by the sword, even Pharaoh and all his multitude," says the Lord and Master.
Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, "Son of man, speak to the sons of your people, and you will say to them, ‘On whatever land I bring the sword, take one man from among the people of the land and make him their watchman. When he sees the sword coming upon the land, he shall blow the trumpet and warn the people. Then whoever hears the sound of the trumpet but does not take warning, and the sword comes and takes him away, his blood shall be on his own head. For he heard the sound of the trumpet, but did not take warning. So his blood shall be upon himself. But he who takes warning will save his life. But if the watchman sees the sword coming and does not blow the trumpet, and the people are not warned, and the sword comes and takes any person from among them, he is taken away in his transgressions; but his blood I shall require at the watchman's hand.’

As for you, son of man, I made you a watchman for the house of Israel, and you shall hear a word from My mouth. When I say to the sinner, ‘You will surely die,’ and you do not speak to warn the ungodly man to change his way, that lawless man will die in his lawlessness; but his blood I shall require at your hand. But if you warn the ungodly man to turn from his way, and he does not turn from his way, he will die in his ungodliness; but you have delivered your own soul.

As for you, son of man, say to the house of Israel, ‘Thus you spoke, saying, “Our errors and our lawlessness are upon us, and we waste away in them. So how can we then live?”’ Say to them, ‘As I live, thus says the Lord: “I do not will the death of the ungodly man. So the ungodly man should turn from his way and live. Turn heartily from your way, for why should you die, O house of Israel?”’

Say to the sons of your people, ‘The righteousness of a righteous man will not deliver him in the day he goes astray. As for the lawlessness of the ungodly man, it will not harm him in the day he turns from his lawlessness, but a righteous man who goes astray cannot save himself.” When I say regarding the righteous man, this man puts his trust in his righteousness but commits lawlessness, then none of his righteousness will be remembered, for he shall die in the wrongdoing he commits. Again when I say to the ungodly man, “You will surely die,” and he turns from his sin, does judgment and righteousness, restores the pledge, gives back what he has stolen, and walks in the ordinances of life without committing wrongdoing, he will surely live. Thus he will not die. 16 None of his sins he committed will be remembered, for he does judgment and righteousness. By doing these things, he shall live.’

17 “Yet the sons of your people will say, ‘The way of the Lord is not upright.’ But it is their way that is not upright. 18 When the righteous turns from his righteousness and commits lawlessness, he will die because of it. 19 But when the sinner turns from his lawlessness and does judgment and righteousness, he shall live because of it. 20 Yet this is what you say, ‘The way of the Lord is not upright.’ O house of Israel, I shall judge every one of you according to his ways.”

The Capture of Jerusalem

21 Again it came to pass in the twelfth year of our captivity, in the twelfth month, on the fifth day of the month, that one who escaped from Jerusalem came to me, saying, “The city is taken.” 22 Then the hand of the Lord came upon me the evening before the man came, and opened my mouth. So when He came to me in the morning, my mouth was opened, and it was no longer closed. 23 Thus the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 24 “Son of man, those who inhabit the desolate places in the land of Israel say, ‘Abraham was one man, and he inherited the land. But we are many, and the land was given to us as a possession.’ 25 Therefore say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord and Master: “As I live, truly those in the desolate places shall fall by the sword, and those in the open plain shall be given to the wild animals as food; and those in the strongholds and caves I will surely kill. 26 For I shall make the land a desert, and the insolence of her strength will perish; and the mountains of Israel will be desolate by reason of no one passing through. 27 Then they will know that I am the Lord. I shall make their land a desert, and it will be laid waste because of all the abominations they committed.’”

Hearing, but Not Heeding

28 “As for you, son of man, the sons of your people are talking about you by the walls and at the gateways of the houses. They speak as a man speaks to his brother, saying, ‘Let us gather and hear the words that proceed from the Lord.’ 29 So they come together before you as people do, and they sit before you to hear your words, but they will not do them, because a lie is in their mouth, and their heart pursues their own defilements. 30 For you are to them as a sweet, well-tuned song, and they will hear your words, but will not do them. 31 So when it
34 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying,‡ ²“Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel; prophesy and say to the shepherds, ‘Thus says the Lord and Master: “O shepherds of Israel who feed themselves, should not the shepherds feed the sheep? ³Behold, you drink the milk and clothe yourselves with the wool. You slay the fatlings, but do not feed My sheep. ⁴You have not strengthened the weak, and the sick you have not revived. The broken you have not bandaged, and the misled you have not brought back. The lost you have not sought, and the strong you have not prepared for labor. ⁵So My sheep were scattered, because there were no shepherds. So they became food for all the wild animals of the field. ⁶My sheep were scattered in all the mountains and on every high hill. They were scattered over the face of the earth, and there was no one to seek them or to bring them back.”

⁷“Therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the Lord. ⁸“As I live,” says the Lord and Master, “because My sheep became as plunder, and as food for all the wild animals of the plain, because there were no shepherds with them, nor did My shepherds search for My sheep, but fed themselves and not My flock”— ⁹because of this, O shepherds, ¹⁰thus says the Lord and Master: “Behold, I am against the shepherds, and shall require My sheep at their hands. I shall turn them away so they may not shepherd My sheep. The shepherds will not feed them anymore, for I shall deliver My sheep from their mouth; and they shall no longer be as food for them.”

¹¹“For thus says the Lord: “Behold, I shall search for My sheep and care for them. ¹²As a shepherd seeks his flock on a day when there is darkness, and when a cloud separates the sheep, thus I will drive them from every place where they were scattered in the day of cloud and darkness. ¹³And I shall bring them out from the Gentiles, gather them from the countries, and bring them into their land. I shall feed them on the mountains of Israel, in the valleys, and in all the inhabited places of the land. ¹⁴I shall feed them in good pasture and on the high mountain of Israel, and their folds will be there. They will lie down, and there they shall rest in good luxury, and feed in rich pasture on the mountains of Israel. 15 I shall feed My sheep and refresh them; and they will know that I am the Lord,” thus says the Lord and Master. 16 “I shall seek the lost, bring back the misled, bind up the broken, strengthen the fallen, protect the strong, and feed them with judgment.”

17 So as for you, My sheep, thus says the Lord and Master: “Behold, I will distinguish between sheep and sheep and between rams and goats. 18 Is it not enough for you that you grazed on the good pasture, that you trampled down the rest of your pasture with your feet, that you drank the clear water, but muddied the rest with your feet? 19 Thus My sheep grazed on what you trampled with your feet, and drank what you muddied with your feet.”

20 Therefore thus says the Lord and Master: “Behold, I shall distinguish between the strong sheep and the weak sheep. 21 Because you pushed with side and shoulder, butted all the weak ones with your horns, and greatly distressed the weak; therefore, I will save My sheep, and they will not be as plunder anymore; and I shall judge between one ram and another. 22 I shall raise up one Shepherd over them, and He will tend them, even My Servant David. He shall be their Shepherd, 24 and I, the Lord, will be their God; and David will be the Ruler in their midst. I, the Lord, have spoken.

25 “I will also make a covenant of peace with David, and utterly destroy the evil wild animals from the land. They shall dwell in the desert and sleep in the forests. 26 I will settle them round about my mountain and will give you rain, the rain of blessing. 27 The trees of the plain will also produce their fruit, and the earth shall produce her strength. They shall dwell on their land in the hope of peace, and know that I am the Lord, when I break their yoke and deliver them from the hand of those who enslaved them. 28 They shall no longer be as plunder for the nations, nor will the wild animals devour them; but they will dwell in hope, and no one shall make them afraid. 29 I will raise up for them a garden of peace, and they shall no longer perish with hunger, nor bear the insults of the nations. 30 Then they will know that I am the Lord their God, and they are My people, O house of Israel,” says the Lord. 31 “You are My sheep and the sheep of My pasture, and I am the Lord your God,” says the Lord and Master.’”

Prophecy against Mount Seir
Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, †Son of man, set your face against Mount Seir and prophesy against it, 3and say to it, ‘Thus says the Lord and Master: “Behold, O Mount Seir, I am against you, and I will stretch out My hand against you. I will cause you to become a desert, and you will be wasted. 4I will also cause desolation in your cities, and you shall be desolate. Then you will know that I am the Lord. 5Because you have an eternal hatred for the house of Israel, and laid in wait deceitfully with sword in hand as enemies, in a time of wrongdoing to the extreme; 6therefore, as I live,” says the Lord and Master, “truly you sinned even to blood, thus blood shall pursue you. 7I will cause Mount Seir to become a desert and a desolate place, and destroy man and cattle from it. 8I will fill your hills and valleys with your slain, and in all your plains and among you the slain shall fall by the sword. 9I will make you an eternal desolation, and your cities will be inhabited no more. Then you will know that I am the Lord.

10“Because you said, ‘The two nations and the two countries shall be mine, and I shall inherit them,’ though the Lord is there; 11therefore, as I live,” says the Lord, “I will deal with you according to your enmity, and I will be made known to you when I judge you. 12Then you will know that I am the Lord. I heard the voice of your blasphemies when you said, ‘The desert mountains of Israel are given to us as food.’ 13You boasted against Me with your mouth, and I heard it.” 14Thus says the Lord: “When all the earth is in gladness, I will make you a desert. 15You will be a desert, O Mount Seir, and all of Edom will be utterly destroyed. Then you will know that I am the Lord their God.’ ”

God's Blessing on Israel

“As for you, son of man, prophesy over the mountains of Israel, and say to the mountains of Israel, ‘Hear the word of the Lord.† 2Thus says the Lord and Master: “Because the enemy said against you, ‘Good, well done! The ancient deserts have become ours as a possession;’ ” ’ 3therefore, prophesy, and say, ‘Thus says the Lord and Master: “Because you were dishonored and hated by those all around you, so as to be a possession for the rest of the nations, and because you became a byword and were disgraced by the nations”— 4therefore, O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord! Thus says the Lord to the mountains, the hills, the valleys, the brooks, the desert places, the desolated regions, and the abandoned cities, plundered and trampled underfoot by the nations that were left all around them— 5therefore, thus says the Lord and Master: “Certainly in the fire of My anger, I have spoken against the rest of the nations and against all of Edom, because they gave My land to themselves as a possession with gladness, when they treated souls shamefully, so as to destroy them by plunder.’”

6Therefore prophesy over the land of Israel, and say to the mountains, the hills, the valleys, and the wooded vales, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I have spoken in My jealousy and My anger, because you have borne the insults of the nations.

7Therefore I shall raise My hand against the nations around you, and they will bear their disgrace.

8“But My people will eat your grapes and fruit, O mountains of Israel, for they are drawing near to this time to come.”

9For behold, I am for you, and I will have regard for you, and you shall be tilled and sown. 10I shall multiply people upon you, upon all the house of Israel to the end. The cities shall be inhabited, and the ruins shall be rebuilt. 11I shall multiply people and cattle upon you, and they will increase and bear young. I shall make you inhabited as in your beginning, and treat you well as in your former times. Then you will know that I am the Lord. 12Thus I will beget people upon you, My people Israel, and they shall inherit you. You shall be as a possession for them, and you will not be deprived of children anymore.”

13Thus says the Lord and Master: “Because they say to you, ‘You devour people, O land, and thus you are bereaved of your nation’; 14therefore, you shall no longer devour people, nor be bereaved of your nation anymore,” says the Lord and Master. 15“No longer will the disgrace of the nations be heard among you, nor shall you bear the insults of the peoples anymore,” says the Lord and Master.’”

The Cleansing of Israel

16Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying,”

17“Son of man, the house of Israel dwelt upon their land, but they defiled it by their conduct and by their idols and uncleanness. Their conduct before me was like the uncleanness of a woman in her customary impurity.

18Therefore I poured out My anger on them. 19I scattered them among the nations and dispersed them as chaff into the countries. I judged them according to their conduct and their sins. 20So when they came to the nations, wherever they went, they desecrated My holy name when they said, ‘These are the people of the Lord, and they have come out of His land.’

21But I spared them for the sake of My holy name, which the house of Israel desecrated among the nations wherever they went.

22“Therefore say to the house of Israel, ‘Thus says the Lord: “I will not do this for your sake, O house of Israel, but for the sake of My holy name, which you desecrated among the nations wherever you went. 23 Thus I will sanctify My great name, desecrated among the nations, which you desecrated in their midst. Then the nations will know that I am the Lord, when I am sanctified among you before their eyes. 24 For I will take you from among the nations, gather you from all the lands, and bring you into your land. 25 I shall sprinkle clean water on you, and you will be cleansed from all your uncleanness, and I will also cleanse you from all your idols. 26 I shall give you a new heart and put a new spirit within you. I shall take the heart of stone from your flesh and give you a heart of flesh. 27 I shall put My Spirit within you and cause you to walk in My requirements, and you will keep My judgments and do them. 28 You will dwell in the land I gave to your fathers. You will be My people, and I shall be your God. 29 I shall save you from all your uncleanness; and I will call for the grain and multiply it, and bring no famine upon you. 30 I shall multiply the fruit of your trees and the produce of your fields, that you need never again bear the disgrace of famine among the nations. 31 Then you will remember your evil ways and your practices which were not good, and you shall be angry in your own sight for your lawlessness and your abominations. 32 Not for your sake will I do this,” says the Lord and Master. “As it shall become known to you, be ashamed and embarrassed of your ways, O house of Israel.”

33 Thus says the Lord: “On the day in which I shall cleanse you from all your lawlessness, I shall also cause you to dwell in the cities, and the uninhabited regions will be rebuilt. 34 The land which was destroyed will be cultivated, because it will no longer be desolate in the sight of all who pass by. 35 Thus they will say, ‘That desolate land has become like a garden of luxury; and the wasted, desolate, and ruined cities are now fortified and inhabited.’ 36 Then the nations yet remaining around you will know that I, the Lord, have rebuilt the ruined cities and planted what was desolate. I, the Lord, have spoken it and shall do it.”

37 Thus says the Lord: “For this I shall be sought by the house of Israel, that I might establish and multiply their people like sheep. 38 As holy sheep, as the sheep of Jerusalem in her feasts, thus shall the desert cities be filled with flocks of people. Then they will know that I am the Lord.”

 Vision of the Dry Bones

Again the hand of the Lord came upon me, and brought me by the Spirit of the Lord, and set me in the midst of the plain, which was full of human bones. † 2 So He led me round about them, and behold, there was a great multitude of bones on the face of the plain. They were very dry. 3 Then He said to me, “Son of man, can these bones live?” So I answered, “O Lord, You know this.” 4 Then He said to me, “Prophesy to these bones and say to them, ‘O dry bones, hear the word of the Lord. 5 Thus says the Lord to these bones: “Behold, I will bring the Spirit of life upon you. 6 I will put muscles on you and bring flesh upon you. I will cover you with skin and put my Spirit into you. Then you shall live and know that I am the Lord.”’ ”

7 So I prophesied as He commanded me, and it came to pass while I prophesied that, behold, there was a shaking, and the bones came together, each one to its joint. 8 So I looked, and behold, muscle and flesh grew upon them, and skin covered them over; but no breath was in them. 9 Then He said to me, “Prophesy to the wind, prophesy, son of man, and say to the wind, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Come from the four winds and breathe upon these dead men; and let them live.”’ ” 10 So I prophesied as He commanded me, and the Spirit entered into them; and they lived and stood upon their feet, an exceedingly great assembly.

11 Again the Lord spoke to me, saying, “Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel. They say, ‘Our bones are dry, our hope has perished, and we are lost.’ 12 Therefore prophesy and say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will open your tombs, bring you up from your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel. 13 Then you will know that I am the Lord, when I open your tombs to lead you, My people, up from their graves. 14 I will put My Spirit in you, and you will live; and I will place you in your own land. Then you will know that I am the Lord. I have spoken, and I will do it,” says the Lord.’ ”

One Nation and One King

15 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, † 16 “As for you, son of man, take a rod for yourself and write on it, ‘Judah and the sons of Israel devoted to him.’ Then take a second rod for yourself and write on it, ‘For Joseph, the rod of Ephraim, and all the sons of Israel added to him.’ 17 Then you shall join them to one another for yourself so as to form one rod, and they shall be in your hand.

18 “So it shall be, when the sons of your people speak to you, saying, ‘Will you not tell us what you mean by these?’ — 19 then you will say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will take the tribe of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel, who are added to him, and I will give them to the tribe of Judah. They shall be one rod in the hand of Judah.'

20 The rods on which you write will be in your hand before their eyes. 21 Then you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord and Master: “Behold, I will take the whole house of Israel from the midst of the nations where they went, and will gather them from every side, to bring them into the land of Israel. 22 I shall make them one nation in My land, even on the mountains of Israel, and there will be one Ruler over them. There will no longer be two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms anymore, 23 so as to defile themselves with their idols. For I will deliver them from all their lawlessness whereby they sinned, and will cleanse them. They will be to Me as a people, and I shall be to them as their God.

24 “My Servant David shall be the Ruler among them, and there will be one Shepherd of them all; for they will walk in My ordinances and observe My judgments, and do them. 25 Then they will dwell in their land which I gave Jacob My servant, where their fathers dwelt; and they will dwell upon it, and My servant David shall be their Ruler forever. 26 I will make a covenant of peace with them. It shall be an everlasting covenant, and I will establish My sanctuary in their midst forever. 27 My tabernacle shall be among them; and I will be their God, and they shall be My people. 28 Then the nations will know that I am the Lord who sanctifies them, when My sanctuary is among them forever.” ’ ”

Gog Will Invade Israel

38 Again the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 2 “Son of man, set your face against Gog and the land of Magog, the ruler of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal, and prophesy against him, 3 and say to him, ‘Thus says the Lord and Master: “Behold, I am against you, O Gog, the ruler of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal. 4 I shall gather you and all your army—horses and horsemen, all armed with breastplates, and a large assembly with shields, helmets, and swords— 5 along with Persians, Ethiopians, and Libyans with shields and helmets, 6 and also Gomer and all belonging to him, and the house of Togarmah from the far north and all belonging to him, and many nations with you.

7 “Be prepared; prepare yourself and all your gathering assembled with you; and you will be as an advance guard for Me. 8 He will be prepared after many days, and will come in the last years. He will come into the land turned away from the sword, when many are gathered together from the nations against the land of Israel, which was entirely a desert, and he will come forth from the nations against all who dwell in peace. 9 You shall arrive like rain, like a cloud to cover the land, you and all your army and the many nations with you.”

10 “Thus says the Lord and Master: “In that day it shall also come to pass that words will arise in your heart, and you will think evil thoughts. 11 For you will say, ‘I will go up to the rejected land. I will come against those who live in peace and quiet, and who dwell in a land that has no wall, and neither bars nor gates, 12 to plunder them and take spoils.’ I will turn your hand against a nation gathered from many nations, which acquired possessions and inhabitants in the midst of the land. 13 Sheba, Dedan, and Carthaginian merchants and all their villages shall say to you, ‘You come for plunder, to capture a prey and take spoils. You gather your assembly to take silver and gold, and to carry off possessions and take spoils.’ ”

14 “Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say to Gog, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Will you not arise in that day, the day My people Israel dwell in peace? 15 Yes, you will come from your place out of the far north, you and the many nations with you, all riding on horses, a great assembly and a mighty army. 16 You will come upon My people Israel like a cloud to cover the land. It shall come to pass in the last days that I will bring you against My land, that all the nations may know Me when I am sanctified in you before them.” 17 Thus says the Lord and Master to Gog, “You are he of whom I spoke in former days by the hand of My servants the prophets of Israel, in those days and years, that I would bring you up against them.

Gog Is Judged

18 “Thus it shall come to pass in that day, the day Gog comes against the land of Israel,” says the Lord and Master, 19 “that My anger and jealousy shall arise in the fire of My wrath. I have spoken, ‘Certainly in that day there shall be a great earthquake in the land of Israel. 20 Even the fish of the sea, the birds of the sky, the wild animals of the plain, all the reptiles that creep on the ground, and all the people on the face of the land will shake because of the Lord’s presence. Also, the mountains will break apart, the valleys will be done away with, and every wall will fall to the ground.’ 21 I will also summon every fear against Gog,” says the Lord, “for the sword of every man shall be against his brother. 22 I will judge him with death and bloodshed, and I will send a flooding rain and hailstones, and fire and brimstone against him and everyone with him, and also against the many nations with him. 23 For I shall be magnified, sanctified, and glorified, and known in the sight of many nations. Then they shall know that I am the Lord.’ ”
The Defeat of Gog

"As for you, son of man, prophesy against Gog and say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I am against you, O Gog, the ruler of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal. 2 I will gather and guide you, and raise you up from the far north, and bring you upon the mountains of Israel. 3 Then I will destroy the bow in your left hand and the arrows in your right hand; and I will cast you down upon the mountains of Israel. 4 For you and all with you shall fall, and I shall give the nations with you to the multitude of birds, to every fowl. But I will give you to all the wild animals of the field to be devoured, 5 for you will fall on the face of the open plain, because I have spoken,” says the Lord. 6 “I will also send fire upon Gog, and the coastal peoples shall dwell in peace. Then they will know that I am the Lord, 7 and My holy name will be known in the midst of My people Israel; and My holy name will no longer be desecrated. The nations will also know that I am the Lord, the Holy One in Israel. 8 Behold, it is coming, and you will know it shall be,” says the Lord and Master.

“This is the day of which I have spoken. 9 Those who dwell in the cities of Israel will also go out and make a fire with the weapons: the shields and spears, the bows and arrows, and the javelins and lances; and they shall keep the fire burning for seven years. 10 So they will not take any wood from the field, nor cut down any of the forests; rather, they will burn the weapons, and plunder those who plundered them, and despoil those who took spoils from them,” says the Lord.

A Burial for Gog

11 “In that day it shall come to pass that I will give Gog a place of renown, a monument in Israel, a common burial place of those who come to the sea. There they shall bury Gog and all his multitude round about the edge of the valley, and it will be called the Burial Place of Gog. 12 The house of Israel shall bury them, that the land may be cleansed in the space of seven months. 13 Yes, all the people of the land will bury them, and it shall be a place of renown for them in the day I was magnified,” says the Lord. 14 “So they will appoint men continually to pass through the land to bury those bodies yet on the ground, to cleanse it by the end of seven months; and they will seek them out. 15 Everyone who passes through the land and sees a man's bone will also set a marker by it, until the grave diggers shall bury it in the Burial Place of Gog. 16 Indeed, the name of the city shall be Burial Place. Thus the land will be
An Assembly of Triumph

17“As for you, son of man, say, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Speak to every sort of bird and every wild animal of the field: ‘Assemble yourselves and come; gather together from all sides to My sacrifice which I offered up for you, a great sacrifice on the mountains of Israel, and you will eat meat and drink blood. 18You will eat the flesh of mighty men and drink the blood of the rulers of the earth: the rams, the young bulls, and the male goats; for they are all fatted animals. 19You will eat fat until you are full, and drink wine until you are drunken from My sacrifice which I slaughtered for you. 20You will be filled at My table, eating horse and rider, and the mighty man, and every warrior,’ says the Lord.

21“I will set My glory in your midst, and all the nations will see My judgment which I executed, and My hand which I laid on them. 22Then the house of Israel will know that I am the Lord their God from this day forward. 23All the nations will also know that the house of Israel was led into captivity on account of their sins, because they rejected Me. So I turned My face away from them and delivered them into the hands of their enemies; and they all fell by the sword. 24According to their uncleanness and according to their lawless actions I dealt with them, and turned My face away from them.”

25“Therefore thus says the Lord and Master: “Now I will turn back the captivity of Jacob and have mercy on the house of Israel; and I will be jealous for the sake of My holy name. 26They shall bear their dishonor and the wrongdoing they committed when they dwelt upon the land in peace; and there shall be no one to frighten them. 27Thus when I bring them back from the nations and gather them from the countries of the nations, I will be sanctified among them in the sight of the nations. 28Then they will know that I am the Lord their God, when I reveal Myself to them among the nations. 29But I will not turn away My face from them anymore, because I poured out My anger on the house of Israel,” says the Lord and Master.’ ”

Ezekiel’s Vision: New City, New Temple

Again in the twenty-fifth year of our captivity, in the first month, on the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after the city was captured, on the very same day, the hand of the Lord was upon me. He took me in a vision of God into the land of Israel and set me on a very high mountain. On it, but opposite from me, was something like the structure of a city. He took me there, and behold, there was a man whose appearance was like the appearance of gleaming bronze. He had a builder's cord and a measuring rod in his hand, and he stood at the gate. Then the man said to me, “Son of man, have you seen this? Look with your eyes and hear with your ears, and fix your heart on everything I show you; for you were brought here that I might show them to you. For you shall reveal to the house of Israel everything you see.”

The East Gate of the Temple

Now there was a wall around the entire outside of the house. In the man's hand was a measuring stick, six cubits long, each consisting of a cubit and a handbreadth, and he measured the width of the wall structure, one measuring stick, and the height, one measuring stick. Then he went to the gate which faced east, up seven stairs, and measured across the entrance of the gate, one measuring stick wide. Each gate chamber was one measuring stick long and one measuring stick wide. Between the gate chambers was a space of six cubits, and the second gate chamber was one measuring stick wide, one measuring stick long; and the entrance was five cubits. The third gate chamber was one measuring stick wide and one measuring stick long. The neighboring entrance was eight cubits, and the gatepost was two cubits, also the outer entrance of the gate.

The gate chambers were three on one side and three on the other. There was one measurement to all three and one measurement to the entrances on this side and the other. He measured the width of the entrance to the gate, ten cubits, and the length of the gate, thirteen cubits. The dimensions of the front of the gate chambers were equal, and the gate chambers were six cubits on this side and six cubits on that side. Then he measured the gate from the roof of one gate chamber to the roof of the other, and the width was twenty-five cubits, from one gate to the other. He measured the open inner court of the gate chamber, sixty cubits high, and there were twenty gate chambers all around. From the open court of the gate outside into the open inner court of the gate chamber within was fifty cubits. There were hidden windows in the gate chambers and in their entrances on the inside of the gate all around, and likewise the entrances had hidden windows all around. There were windows all around on the inside, and on each entrance chamber were ornamental palm trees, equally displayed on one side and the other.‡

17Then he brought me into the inner court; and behold, there were temple chambers and pillars all around the court; thirty chambers among the pillars. 18The porches were behind the gates; corresponding to the same length of the gates was the underlying pillar. 19Then he measured the width of the court, from the open air court of the gate which was to the outside to the open air court of the gate which faces out, a hundred cubits to the court which faces east.

The North Gate

Then he led me to the north side, 20and behold, there was the gate facing north to the outer court, and he measured its length and its width.‡ 21Its gate chambers, three on this side and three on that side, its gateposts and its porches, and palm trees, and they were the same measurement of the gate which faces to the east: its length was fifty cubits and its width twenty-five cubits. 22Its windows, its doorposts, and also its palm trees were just like the gate facing east, and it was ascended by seven steps, and the doorpost within. 23A gate of the inner court was opposite the northern gate, in the same manner as the eastern gate, and he measured from gate to gate, one hundred cubits.

The South Gate

24Then he brought me toward the south, and behold, a gate was facing south; and he measured its gate chambers, gateposts, and archways according to these same measurements. 25There were windows in it and in its archways all around like those windows. Its length was fifty cubits and its width twenty-five cubits. 26Seven steps led up to it, and its gateposts were within; and it had palm trees on its gateposts, one on this side and one on that side. 27There was also a gate on the inner court, facing south, and he measured from gate to gate toward the south, one hundred cubits, in the southerly direction.‡

The Inner Court

28Then he brought me to the inner court through the southern gate, and he measured the southern gate according to these same measurements. 29Also its gate chambers, its gateposts, and its archways were according to these same measurements, and there were windows in it and in its archways all around. It was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits
There was the porch into the outer court, and palm trees were on its gatepost, and going up to it were eight steps.

Then he brought me to the gate facing east, and he measured it according to these same measurements. Its gate chambers, its gateposts, and its archways were according to these same measurements. There were windows in it and in its archways all around, and it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide. There were porches opening into the inner court, and palm trees were on its gateposts, on this side and on that side; and going up to it were eight steps.

Then he brought me to the north gate and measured it according to these same measurements—also its gate chambers, its gateposts, and its archways. It had windows all around, and its length was fifty cubits and its width twenty-five cubits. Its porches were toward the outer court, and there were palm trees on its gateposts, on this side and on that side, and going up to it were eight steps.

A Place for the Sacrifices and the Priests

There were its chambers and its gateposts at its gate, and a drain for the second gate, so they might slay in it the sin offerings and trespass offerings. Behind the drain line for the whole burnt offerings of the gate which faces north, there were two tables placed toward the east, and behind the second gate and its gate chamber, there were two tables toward the east. Four tables were on this side and four tables on that side, and behind the gate, there were eight tables on which they slaughtered the sacrifices. There were also four tables of hewn stone for the whole burnt offerings, two cubits long, one cubit and a half wide, and one cubit high. On these they laid the instruments with which they slaughtered the whole burnt offerings and the sacrifices. Inside were projections hewn out, a handbreadth wide, all around, and over the tables above, there were little roofs to cover from the rain and the drying wind.

Then he led me into the inner court, and behold, there were two halls in the inner court, one behind the gate which faces north and bearing to the south, and the other behind the gate which faces to the south and bearing to the north. So he said to me, “This hall which faces south is for the priests who have charge of the temple. The hall which faces north is for the priests who have charge of the altar. These are the sons of Zadok, from the sons of Levi, who come near the Lord to minister liturgically to Him.” 46 Then he measured the court, one hundred cubits long and one hundred cubits wide, foursquare. The altar of sacrifice was in front of the house.

47 Then he brought me to the entrance chamber of the house and measured the doorpost of the entrance chamber, five cubits on this side and five cubits on that side; and the width of the doorway was fourteen cubits; and the sills of the door to the entrance chamber were three by three on each side. 48 The length of the entrance chamber was twenty cubits, and the width twelve cubits, and one would ascend it by ten steps; and there were pillars by the entrance chamber, one on this side and another on that side.

The Temple Interior

41 Then he brought me into the temple and measured its entrance, six cubits wide on one side and six cubits wide on the other side. 2 The width of the entryway was ten cubits, and the sills of the gate were five cubits on this side and five cubits on the other side; and he measured its length, forty cubits, and its width, twenty cubits. 3 He also went into the inner court and measured the posts of the doorway, two cubits; and the doorway itself, six cubits high; and the width of the sills, seven cubits. 4 He measured the length of the doors, forty cubits, and the width, twenty cubits, in front of the sanctuary; and he said to me, “This is the holy of holies.”

The Wall and Its Chambers

5 Next he measured the wall of the house, six cubits. The width of each side all around was four cubits on every side. 6 The side chambers were thirty-two in number, each next to the other, and the layout along the wall of the house all around was so one could see that all of them went together, and that nowhere did they touch the walls of the house. 7 As one went up from story to story, the side chambers became wider all around, because their supporting ledges in the wall of the temple ascended like steps; therefore, the width of the structure increased as one went up from the lowest story to the highest, by way of the middle one. 8 The side chambers of the house all around were of a high layout of sides, equal in measurement to one measuring stick. The layout was six cubits. 9 The thickness of the outer wall of the side chambers was five cubits, and the open spaces between the sides of the house and the halls measured twenty cubits in width, all around the sides of the house. 11 The doors of the halls led to the open space: the one door led north, and the other door led south; and the width of the light of the open space was five cubits in width all around.† 12That which made a boundary before the open space, like the edge of the sea, was seventy cubits wide; and the width of the wall which bordered was five cubits all around, and its length ninety cubits.

13Then he measured in front of the house, one hundred cubits long, and the open spaces and their boundaries and walls were one hundred cubits long. 14Also the width of the face of the house, along with the open spaces before it, was one hundred cubits. 15Then he measured the length of the boundary in front separating the open space, with its galleries on the one side and on the other side, one hundred cubits. The temple, its corners and the outer entrance area, 16their thresholds and the latticed doors, were set so the narrow openings would give light through narrow openings to all three stories, like that of a fishnet. The house and all the neighboring structures all around were paneled with wood, the floor and from the floor up to the doorways, and the doorways opened up all three stories into the shaded light.†
